

A GENERAL MAP of the COUNTY of ESSEX,
Shewing the Division of the HUNDREDS,
the Towns and chief Places,
the Course of the Rivers, & the great Roads.
Humbly Inscrib'd to the Right Hon.
John W^m Anne, Hollis, Capel;
EARL of ESSEX.

T H E
H I S T O R Y
A N D
A N T I Q U I T I E S
Of the COUNTY of
E S S E X.

C O M P I L E D

From the best and most ancient H I S T O R I A N S; From D O M E S D A Y - B O O K, I N Q U I S I T I O N E S P O S T M O R T E M, and other the most valuable Records and MSS. &c.

The whole digested, improved, perfected, and brought down to the present Time,

By P H I L I P M O R A N T, M. A.

Rector of S T. M A R Y ' S C O L C H E S T E R, and of A L D H A M near the same; and Fellow of the Society of A N T I Q U A R I E S.

I N T W O V O L U M E S.

V O L. I.

Illustrated with C O P P E R P L A T E S.

“ Quis tandem me reprehendat, aut quis mihi jure succenseat, si, quantum ceteris ad suas res obeundas, quantum “ ad festos dies ludorum celebrandos, quantum ad alias voluptates, & ad ipsam requiem animi & corporis con-“ ceditur temporis, quantum alii tribuunt intempestivis conviviis, quantum denique aleæ, quantum pilæ; tantum “ mihi egomet ad hæc studia recolenda sumsero.”
CICERO, pro Archiâ poetâ.

L O N D O N:

Printed for T. OSBORNE, in Gray's-Inn; J. WHISTON, in Fleet-Street; S. BAKER, in York-Street; L. DAVIS and C. REYMERS, in Holborn; and B. WHITE, in Fleet-Street.

MDCCLXVIII.

THE HISTORY
AND ANTIQUITIES
OF THE COUNTY OF ESSEX

COMPILED

BY JOHN HALL, ESQ.

AND JOHN HALL, ESQ.

IN TWO VOLUMES

VOLUME I

THE HISTORY OF THE COUNTY OF ESSEX

IN TWO VOLUMES

VOLUME I

THE HISTORY OF THE COUNTY OF ESSEX

THE HISTORY OF THE COUNTY OF ESSEX

LONDON:

Printed by J. W. Smith, at the Press of the Society of Antiquaries, in Strand.

MCCCLXXIII.

THE FIRST VOLUME
OF
THE HISTORY OF ESSEX

CONTAINS

THE HALF-HUNDRED OF BECONTREE,	p. 1
THE HALF-HUNDRED OF WALTHAM,	p. 40
THE LIBERTY OF HAVERING,	p. 58
THE HUNDRED OF CHAFFORD,	p. 76
THE HUNDRED OF ONGAR,	p. 125
THE HUNDRED OF BARSTABLE,	p. 190
THE HUNDRED OF ROCHFORD,	p. 268
THE HUNDRED OF DENGLEY,	p. 327
THE HUNDRED OF THURSTABLE,	p. 379
THE HUNDRED OF WINSTREE,	p. 405
THE HUNDRED OF TENDRING,	p. 431

T O

THE RIGHT HONORABLE

THOMAS-BARRETT LENNARD,

L O R D

D A C R E,

This VOLUME of the

HISTORY OF ESSEX

Is most humbly and thankfully

D E D I C A T E D

By his most obedient

And most obliged humble Servant,

PHILIP MORANT.

P R E F A C E.

THE HISTORY of ESSEX now appears entire; I will not say perfect and compleat, least I should seem guilty of Vanity, a Weakness which I would by all means avoid. I can with Truth affirm, that I have used my utmost endeavours to render it as compleat as I could. In such a Variety of Names and Dates, between the Author and Printer, some Errors are not easily avoidable. However, they are as few as could be expected in a Work of such length.

When I first set about this Work, I had thoughts of doing only those Parts that remained unfinished by N. Salmon, LL.D. But finding, beyond what I could expect, a continuance of Life and Strength; and observing what a poor Use He had made of the excellent Materials in his possession, I resolved to new-mould what he had published, or rather to compose it afresh: and, how little Use I could make of what he had done before, appears upon inspection. At length, through constant Application, I have brought the Work to a Conclusion.

The person who laid the first Foundation of this History, was Thomas Jekyll Esq; son and heir of John-Stocker Jekyll of Bocking Esq; and grandson of Bartholomew Jekyll of Newington in Middlesex Esq; descended from an ancient Family of that name in Lincolnshire. He was born in the parish of St. Helens in London, 12 January 1570, and lived to the great age of 82 years. His profession was the Law, which he studied in Cliffords inn, and became Secondary of the King's Bench, and one of the Clerks of the Papers. The profession of the Law was hereditary in his Family, being practised both by his father and son. By virtue of his profession and office, he had uncommon opportunities of collecting Materials for this History; which he duly improved, by getting Copies of the Inquisitiones post mortem, from the reign of K. Henry III. to their ceasing in the time of K. Charles I; as also the Pedigrees of the Essex Families, and other very valuable Materials.

The Rev. John Ousley, Rector of Sprinkfeild-Bosvile, and Little Waltham; and the Rev. William Holman, of Halsted; built upon that foundation with great industry and success. The latter especially was indefatigable in the work, and visited every parish: By comparing his extracts with the records in some of the Public Offices, I have found him quite exact and faithful. His neighbour Mr. Samuel Dale assisted him very much, and made great Improvements. Mr. Humfrey Wanley furnished Materials out of the Harleian Library. The late Mr. John Booth, of Bernards-inn, not only collated the copy of Domesday-book with the original in the Chapter-House at Westminster, but also greatly corrected and improved the other Materials, and visited most Parishes. And proper Extracts have been taken from Mr. Richard Symonds's Collections in the Heralds-Office.

I have endeavoured to make this History as concise, and yet as complete, as it is in my power. For the sake of Conciseness, I avoid repeating too frequently the titles of Sir—and Knight—concerning the same person, one being sufficient till the Creation of the Baronets in 1611: All that bore the title of Sir being of course Knights, unless they were Knights Bannerets, or Knights of the Bath, which I carefully distinguish as far as they come to my knowledge. For the same reason, I avoid repeating too often some words, which occur almost at every line in our modern Accounts of Families.

Unless a Place hath been distinguished by some remarkable Event, noted in our ancientest Historians, I can seldom begin my Accounts higher than Edward the Confessor, or William the Conqueror. The chief Materials I make use of, and mostly depend upon, are Records. Amongst them the most valuable is Domesday-Book. But as it appears very uncouth in an English Dress, I have not ventured to give a full and literal Translation of it, but only the substance of each article in few words; and insert the Latin original at the bottom of the page, under the respective Parishes, from Mr. Booth's transcript. In the end of the Introduction to this History of Essex I give a literal and exact copy of one of its articles, with the Abbreviations, and an Explanation of the words Bordar, Villan, Hide, Carucate, &c. so often occurring.

P R E F A C E.

Other Records which I greatly depend upon, and preserve almost entire, are the Inquisitiones post mortem, above-mentioned. Mr. Holman had entered them under the respective Parishes: But a Gentleman in Colchester having Office-copies of them, kindly communicated them to me; from which I was enabled to correct several mistakes.

What the College of Heralds, and other Repositories contain, relating to this County, had been searched long ago; transcripts of which are in my custody, and have been properly made use of. So that I wanted no materials of any kind; but only the Art of Digesting them. And how I have executed that part, is left to the Reader's Candor and Judgment.

In order to help the Eye as much as possible, every distinct Family, or Owners of an Estate, are comprised in different Paragraphs; and their names printed in Italic characters.

I have chosen not to swell this History with matters, or facts, relating to this County, that are little important or interesting; or which occur in Books that are common, and of no great price.

The Lists of Incumbents in Mr. Newcourt, I have brought down to the present times, but have found it impossible to make them quite complete.

If any Articles are not so perfect as could have been wished, it is not for want of Application to the proper Persons, but for want of an Answer, or a timely Information, from those who could have given it, and were interested.

I return my heartiest Thanks to those Noblemen and Gentlemen who have been pleased to contribute Copper-plates of their Seats, or otherwise to favour me with their Assistance and Encouragement.

All that remains for me to do, is to express my heartiest Acknowledgments and Gratitude to the great Author of my Life and Happiness, who hath enabled me to go through This and other laborious Employments. I can look back with inexpressible Satisfaction upon a Life not spent in Idleness, and Indolence, or in fruitless Amusements; but in a constant Endeavour to do all the Good in my power.

I must beg leave to add, That if the World is benefited by my Labours, the chief Praise is due to my only Patron good Bishop GIBSON.

Colchester,
Janu. 2. 1768.

INTRODUCTION.

§ 1. THE COUNTY OF ESSEX is one of the best situated in this Kingdom, on account of its Nearness to the Capital, Conveniency of Water-carriage, good Roads in general, and other great Advantages. It is bounded on the South by the noble river Thames; on the West by the rivers Stort and Ley, and part of Hertfordshire; on the North by part of Cambridgeshire, and the river Stour which divides it from Suffolk; and on the East by the German Ocean. Its Circumference, as near as we can measure or estimate, with all the windings, is 225 miles. The greatest Length of the County from West to East, namely from Roydon to the Naze, is 61 miles; and the greatest Width from North to South, that is from Bartlow to Tilbury-fort, is 50 miles.

The word ESSEX is derived from Eaſt Seaxa, and Eaſt-ſexcyne, two names given to it by the Saxons, who settled and divided this district, and erected it into a Kingdom, as we shall shew a little lower.

This County is not fill'd with light Sands, apt to be blown about with every high Wind; nor is it covered with barren Rocks, or dreary Mountains; but the Surface of it is in general level. However it is not a dead Flat, but diversified with agreeable Eminences and fruitful Dales, the latter watered in general with Brooks, or Rills of Water.

The highest Hills in it, are at Danbury; and the next highest, is the range from Langdon-hills to Burnt-wood; and South-weald (a). But in general the North-west part of the County is the highest, as appears by most of the Rivers rising there, and running from thence every Way.

The Country being inclosed, makes it much more comfortable to live and travel in, than such as is quite open, exposed without the least shelter to all the Inclemencies of Wind and Weather:

And it also makes every man's Property, whether great or little, much securer, and more his own, than where it is unfenced, and liable to the encroachments of every joint-commoner, or greedy neighbour. To which add, that the Trees in the Fences afford a great quantity of Fuel; a matter of no small importance!

§ 2. The SOIL is various, but in general good. Very little there is, but what is profitable more or less. Where the land is clay and loom, as about Fering, Coggeshall, the Tays, the Rodings, and some of the northern Parishes, fine crops of excellent Corn are produced [A]. And most other places yield very tolerable ones.

There are still many Commons, and Wastes of Maners, which by Cultivation might be rendered as profitable as the other lands; but even these breed many sheep, and black cattle, to the great benefit of the poor copyholders and lesser tenants. The marshes and parts adjoining to the Thames and Sea afford rich pastures, from whence great store of cattle are sent up to the London markets.

In many places the Soil being fit for Hops, great quantities have been raised for several years, about Chelmsford, Halsted, the two Hedinghams, &c.

About the Thames the Soil is chalky, as at West and Little Thurrock, Chadwell, &c.

§ 3. The nature of the Soil leads me to consider the ROADS of the County of Essex. They are, especially the great Roads, as good as any in the Kingdom; excellent from London to Colchester, and beyond: As also in many other parts: And they are not interrupted by dangerous waters, or steep hills. For repairing and amending them, several Acts have passed from time to time, which may be seen in the Statute-books. [B].

(a) See Vol. I. of this History, p. 246.

[A] It is a well known saying,
That Country is best for th' abider
That is most cumberfom to the rider.

[B] From King William's time, to the present Session of Parliament.

As to the Roman Roads ;

In Antonine's Itinerary, two of the Itinera pass through this County : And the Roman Colonies and Stations there mentioned, are,

Ad Amfem, or Amnem, viz. Sturium, Stratford.

{ Camulodunum Colonia,	- - -	M. P. VI.
{ Colchester.
{ Canonium,	- - - - -	M. P. IX.
{ about Kelvedon.
{ Cæsaromagum,	- - - - -	M. P. XII.
{ Chelmsford, or rather Writtle.
{ Durofitum,	- - - - -	M. P. XVI.
{ Below Brentwood.
{ Londinium,	- - - - -	M. P. XV.
{ London.		(b)

What might be said upon the Roman Roads, cannot be better expressed than in the following Dissertation upon that Subject, by the late Smart Lethieullier, Esq; kindly communicated to me by Mrs. Lethieullier, widow of his brother Charles Lethieullier, Esq;

' The County of Essex, tho' inferior to few in England either in regard of its extent or variety of valuable products, yet has hitherto had its ancient State but slenderly considered, or little enquired into.

' That it was however fully inhabited in the British times, there is no reason to doubt: And History informs us of many particulars.

' Its vast Forest was a proper Habitation for their Druids in the earliest Times, and a Retirement for their people in the latter period of their settlement here: Nor are there footsteps wanting in the very heart of it, to prove that it was thoroughly penetrated by them. The want of Quarries of Stone in this County, rendered it impossible for the Britans to leave such Monuments of themselves here, as they have at Stonehenge, Rollright, and elsewhere. But if I should hereafter offer probable Conjectures, that many Earth-works still remaining were made in those Ages, I hope I shall be allowed to have performed all that can be reasonably expected from me.

' Under the Roman Government it was very early and universally known. A very considerable Great Road ran the whole length of it; another skirted its northern borders. Many vicinal ones cross it in different places: It was honour'd with the First Colony ever establish'd in Britain, and with several other Stations and Towns in different parts of it. The names of some of them are preserv'd in the Itinerary; tho' many others, no doubt, are now totally buried in oblivion.

' Camden, and since him all Antiquaries acknowledge, that both the Roads and Stations throughout this county are more obliterated and difficult to settle than any other County in England.

' 'Tis no wonder that the Roman Roads near London are not easily to be discovered, considering how the Soil in that, like other great Cities, must in the compass of above 1000

' years be raised. Dr. Gale speaks of Pavements found 20 feet under ground after the fire: and Dr. Woodward mentions several Antiquities found near Bishopsgate, 17 feet under the surface, as were many more upon the rebuilding Bishopsgate Church.

' The Hermen-street is suppos'd to have issued from London about Cripple-gate, and gone due north thro' Enfield towards Royston, &c.

' Dr. Stukely brings a Road from the West cross Hyde Park thro' Clerkenwell, Old-street, &c. and crossing the Hermen-street almost at right angles, goes to Oldford. This must be a secondary Icenning, or Via ad Icenos.

' There is a visible straight Direction from Old-street cross Cambridge-heath, down a lane, between grounds to Old Ford. As London grew more noted, no doubt a line was drawn from the Milliard stone in London to this road which led cross Old Ford into Essex: and accordingly it appears upon the Map, that it is a very straight line from Aldgate cross Spittlefields, &c. to Old Ford; whereas the new Road made by Queen Maud makes a considerable curve southward in going to Stratford Langthorn.

' Edward the Confessor built a Royal Palace at Haver-ing, where he frequently resided; and cross Old Ford to Ilford, &c. appears to be the only road he could go thither.

' The Road therefore went from Old Ford through part of Wanstead, where a Mosaic Pavement and other Roman-Antiquities have been discovered, and proceeded through or near Ilford to Romford [the Roman Ford]. The course of the present Road is the only proper line: for several Hills or deep Valleys must have been cross'd, had it gone either to the North or South of Ilford, the only proper spot for passing the river Roden.

' The famous Battle between Suetonius and Boadicea was fought somewhere between Epping and Waltham; near which a fine Camp remains.

' The Romans, in making their Roads, always at first dug as deep in search of a solid bottom, or, where they could find none, made as solid an artificial one, as if they had been to erect a fort or a palace upon the foundation.

' It is in vain to attempt settling the uncertain Stations abovementioned, without taking the Roman Road for our guide.

' This is so worn out in Essex, that very little remains, except one Great Bank visible in many places, near Dunmow, Raine-hall, Coggeshall, and other places, through the middle of the country, in a line from Bishop Stortford to Colchester. It is certain that there was such a Great Road, called Calcea que tendit de Sterreford versus Colcestr' (c).

' However, from the remains of these Banks, many have been induced to believe, That the only Roman Road from London to Colchester

(b) See the following History, vol. I. p. 22. and Vol. II. p. 106. Dr. Stukeley's Account of Richard of Cirencester, p. 45. (c) Cart. 5 Joh. See Hist. of Colchest. p. 12.

‘ went that way, and accordingly to look for all the Stations in the Itinerary on that side the country. Yet some very material reasons may be produced to shew, That there went a Roman Road to Colonia-Camulodunum, not far from the present one used between London and Colchester. In the first place, it is visible from Ham Frith to the pales of Aldersbrook-park. And the Bank is again visible near Ingatstone. As to any high agger, or bank, if there was such an one, ’tis no wonder it should be much obliterated now; since the whole Road was gravel entirely, there being very few or no stones near; and the great Trade that has for many centuries been carried on between Ipswich, Colchester, &c. and London, hath occasion’d this Road to be frequently raised and mended with gravel, in such a manner, that any such agger of a moderate height must now be covered some, or rather several, feet.

‘ To which add; The Bounds of the Forest of Waltham are undoubtedly very ancient; and yet the present high road to Romford is evidently prior to them, since the present Boundary of the Forest is from the river Lea at Bowbridge to a Whale-Bone at a trivium within a mile of Romford.

‘ This is an Argument against the general notion, that what is called the Green-lane, a lane leading from Ilford to Horn-church and running for some miles parallel with the present road, was the ancient Highway; since doubtless the Bounds of the Forest would have been carried thither, and not stop where they do now.

‘ All writers agree, That Mauricius Bp. of London, in the beginning of K. Henry 1st’s reign built a Bridge at Chelmsford, and by that means brought the High Road through that Town, which before ran through Writtle. This is acknowledging that a great Road did go through Writtle before Henry the 1st’s time, which was many years before his Queen Maud made the Road before mention’d.

‘ The general Opinion that prevails, seems to be, that here was no Great Road into Essex through Ilford, Romford, Brentwood, Ingatstone, Chelmsford or Writtle, to Colchester, till that remarkable Accident happening to Maud wife of K. Henry I, as she pass’d at Old Ford, caused her to make the present Road between Aldgate and Stratford Langthorn, and to build Bow-bridge, of which I give an account below, at page 20. But here I will attempt to prove, that she did not make a Great Road thro’ a Country where none had gone before, but only altered the course of one part of it.

‘ The earliest mention I have seen of this Road, is the Londoners bringing the Body of Erkenwald their Bishop from the Abbey of Berking where he dyed, in order to interr him at London: but were stopp’d at their passage a-cross the Meadows at Oldford, where, according to the style of that age, a Miracle is brought to their assistance. This was about the year 685, not 300 years after the Romans had left this Island.

‘ The Abbey of Berking had long flourish’d through the Saxon Ages, and been frequently visited, as well as govern’d, by the Saxon Monarchs. William the Conqueror, we are told, was there for some time. K. Stephen and his Queen were there in person, as is evident from Charters, &c. ’Tis hardly probable that they had not a straight Road from London to this place.’

§ 4. As the Soil is various, so is also the Air of this County. Near the Sea plentiful Exhalations arise, and the Marshes and standing Waters send forth noisom and stinking Vapours, not only here but every where else: And where the situation is such, the Air must of course be more moist, and more unhealthy, than where it is otherwise. This is the case especially in the low grounds near the Thames, and in the Hundreds of Rochford and Dengy. However, not so much as formerly when the land was less cultivated, and fuller of Woods.

Where the Air is bad, good spring WATER is also scarce; and the Water either mostly brackish, or thick, turbid, and unwholesome.

But in all other parts, where good Water is plentiful, where the Soil is not oozy or fenny, but gravelly, sandy and dry; why the Air should not be as sweet and wholesome here as in the adjoining Counties, no good reason can be given.

Of the Medicinal Waters an account is given towards the end of this Introduction.

§ 5. The RIVERS belonging to this County, are such as either serve it of Boundaries, or such as water its bosom.

Of the first sort, are the Thames, the Stour, the Stort, and the Ley, already mentioned.

Of the second sort, are the Colne, the Pant or Blackwater, the Chelmer, the Crouch, the Rodon, and the Cam.

The Stour, so named from the Saxon Stup, sometimes written Estur, rises above Haverhill, and soon after forming a Mere, gives name to the parish of Stourmere: At Watsey-bridge it receives two other Streams. Running from thence eastward, and sometimes south-east, it passes by the Towns of Clare, Sudbury, Neyland, Dedham, Maningtree, and discharges itself into the Sea at Harwich. It was made navigable as high as Sudbury, by Act of Parliament passed several years ago.

The Stort, bounding this County, in part of its western Side, only from Hasley-end in Fernham to Graves-weare near Nether-hall in Roydon, loses itself there into the Ley.

The Ley, in British Luh, gives name to Luton in Bedfordshire, near which it rises: after its junction with the Stort, it passes by Waltham-Abbey and Berking, and falls into the Thames near Blackwall.

The Colne rises in the Parish of Redgwell, and taking its course eastward, passes by the Hedinghams, Halsted, the Colnes, and Colchester, or Colonia, from which the river takes its name; and receiving two large Brooks at Fingringhough and Brightlingsea, discharges itself into the Sea, between Mersey and St. Outh, about eight Miles below Colchester.

The Pant, or Blackwater, hath its source in Depden, and receiving two or three streams at Radwinter, runs, east south-east, by Great Bardfeild, Bocking, Coggeshall, Kelvedon, Wickham-mills, Maldon, where the Chelmer joins it, and thus united they fall into Blackwater-bay, and into the Sea between Mersey and Bradwell.

The Chelmer rises in Chickney or Henham, and running South-east by Thaxsted, Dunmow, Felsted, Great and Little Waltham, comes to Chelmsford, to which it gives name; and then turning eastward, after having received the Cam, unites with the Pant near Maldon.

The Crouch, flows from two springs in Little Burghsted and Langdon, and running east, divides the Hundreds of Rochford and Dengey; and partly those of Barstable and Chelmsford; and falls into the Sea, between Foulness and the Salt Marshes below Burnham.

The Rodon rises in or near Little Easton, and running south and south-westward; after receiving several Brooks, and watering the Rodings, and the Towns of Cheping-Ongar, Gr. Ilford, and Berking; discharges itself into the Thames, a little below the last named Town. It is made navigable up to Ilford Bridge.

The Cam, or Granta, hath its source in Quendon, and running, directly north, by Newport, Audeley-end, Chesterford, and Icardun, hastens to Cambridge.

The most considerable of these Rivers, the Stour, the Colne, the Pant, the Chelmer, the Rodon, rise in the north-west part of this County; and flowing from thence, as from the highest ground, the first easterly, the three next east and by south, and the two others southerly, discharge themselves into the Sea, and the river Thames.

Ingreburn runs by Upminster and Rainham.

Many other Rivulets and nameless Brooks there are, watering almost every Parish, and tending the Country, not only fruitful, but also the more healthful and pleasant.

§ 6. Antiently, the whole County was in a manner one continued FOREST [C].

K. Stephen disafforested Tendring Hundred, as is shewn in this Volume, p. 431.

And K. John disafforested all that part which lies north of Stane-street, i. e. the Causeway, or great Roman road, leading from the Ramparts on Lexden heath to Stortford (d).

Perambulations were taken of the remaining Forest of Essex, in 12 Hen. III, 1228; and 26 and 28 Edw. I, 1298 and 1300.

And several Parcels were disafforested at different times; by the procurement of Paul Viscount Bayning, and others (e).

The Office of Forester was anciently in the Aucher family of Copped-hall. Henry Fitz-Aucher held it in 1304, by grand Serjeancy, viz. of being the King's Forester (f).

The Stewardship of the whole Forest of Essex was for many generations in the De Veres, Earls of Oxford. They were deprived of it by K. Edward IV. for their Adherence to the House of Lancaster, and the Office was granted to Richard Duke of York (g). They recovered it upon the accession of K. Henry VII; who granted, 2 December 1489, to John Earl of Oxford, as Steward of the Forest, 9*l.* 2*s.* rent during pleasure.

By virtue of their office, they had power to substitute a Lieutenant, and one Riding-Forester, also three yeomen Foresters in the three Bayliwicks of the Forest.

The Warden and Steward had all Wayfs and Strays, and all deer-fallen wood, or browsing wood, within the Forest; and all amerciements in the swainmotes, and wood-comptes, according to the Assise of the Forest; except the Amerciements for venison: and the bodies of oaks. And of every covert and hedgerow to be sold, of every shilling one penny; and of every wood to be sold, the second best oak; and of the buyer and seller of every such wood, one bow, and one broad arrow; and one penny of every shilling of the feller and buyer of every such wood, upon the sale of it. He had also, as belonging to the said Office, the custody and keeping of the maner of Havering at Bower, and of the House and Park there.

The thirteen Walks in Waltham Forest, are: The Walk, of Chapel Henolt, or Hainault—of West Henolt—of Woodford—Waltham-stow—Leyton—Loughton—Chigwell—Lambourn—Highwood—Epping—Waltham-Abbey—New Lodge—Chingford.

The whole Half-Hundred of Waltham is within the Forest.

In Becontree-Hundred, Leyton, Waltham-stow, Wansted, and Woodford, are within the Forest.—Stratford, West Ham, East-Ham, Dagenham, Berking, and the two Ilfords, are partly in, and partly out.

In Ongar Hundred, Loughton, Chigwell, Lambourn, and Stapleford-Abbots, are within the Forest.—Navestock, and Theydon-Bois, are partly in, and partly out.

The Hundreds of Clavering, Utlesford, Dunmow, Froshwell, Chelmsford, Hinckford, Witham, Lexden, Tendring, Chafford, Barstable, Rochford, Thurstable, and Winstree, are out of the Forest (b).

In the reigns of K. Henry III. K. Edward I. II. and III. the Bailiwick of this Forest was in the Family De Clare, to whom it was granted by Richard de Montfichet (i).

Notwithstanding the Charter of Forests, and the Statutes for perambulations and deafforestation, so slight a regard was paid to them; both by many of the Subjects who were daily encroaching; and by the officers of the Forests, who did not like to have their wings clipt, but continued to use as Forest what by law and right

(d) Cart. 5 John. Hist. of Colch. p. 12.

93 56. (f) Inqu. 32 Edw. I.

K. Charles I's reign.

(e) See this History, Vol. I. p. 245. 264. and 319. Vol. II. p. 49.

(g) Pat. 13 Edw. IV.

(b) Foresta de Waltham, 4^o. printed in

(i) Inquif. temp. Hen. III. and 14 Edw. II. and 1 Edw. III.

[C] De antiquis metis et bundis Foreste Essex presentatum est per xii milites, et alios eis adjunctos jurat' electos de Com' Quod Foresta Domini R. continetur in metis et bundis. in longitudine a Ponte de Stratford usque ad Pontem de Cattawad' et in latitudine a Tamisia usque regalem viam que d'citur Stane street. Ex Bundell' Foresta, 12 Hen. III. See the Perambulation, 28 Edw. I.

was not forest; that some remedy was often necessary.

In the 28th of Edward I, the Commons granted him a Fifteenth of all their Goods, that the Forests might be perambulated, according to the Charter of the Forest, and the bounds assigned by the perambulators might stand and be observed. A very curious Roll, containing the manner of assessing this Fifteenth, is in my possession.

However, uneasinesses still continued, as appears by Petitions to Parliament, in the Time of Edward II. and in the 22d and 45th Edward III. and 1, 2, 5 and 7 Ric. II. and 1 Henr. V.

In 1 Henry V. the Commons desired the King, to grant and ordain, That the Woods and other Possessions, which were afforested by all the perambulations and ridings in the time of his great grandfather, against the form of the Charter of the Forest; and those which were out of the bounds of Forests before the perambulations and ridings aforesaid; be for ever disafforested; notwithstanding any statute, &c. to the contrary. The King answered, It shall be lawful for those who are grieved against the Charter of the Forest, to sue to the King especially, and the King will do them right.

The Right Hon. John Earl Waldegrave is now obtaining an Act, for dividing and inclosing Navestock Common and Heath, within the Manors of Navestock and Lofthall, in this County, containing about 671 acres and a half; which may be a prelude to more Inclosures of that kind.

§ 7. Under the Supreme Governor, the King of Great Britain, the CIVIL GOVERNMENT of this County, is in the Sheriff who holds County-Courts, and the Sheriff's Torn.

Anciently it was in the Earl, who held Courts and received the third penny of all amerciaments, with other perquisites; and the Sheriff, Scýpe peve, or Vice-comes, was only his Deputy: But, since the Earl of Essex hath been merely Titular, he hath nothing to do in the Government of the County.

M. Dalton affirms, That 'the most eminent and supream dignity from the Conquest until the 11 year of Edward the Third, was the Earl or Counte, being anciently of the Blood Royal.' (k) But more certain it is, That the Earls, as Governors of Counties, existed before the Conquest; and I do not find that they ceased exactly the 11th of Edward the Third.

About the time of the Conquest, and some years after, the Sheriffs continued several years in office. But in 1340, 14 Edw. III. it was enacted, that 'no Sheriff shall tary in his Bailiwick over one year, and then another convenient shall be ordained in his place, that hath land sufficient in his Bailiwick, by the Chancellor, Treasurer, and chief Baron of the Exchequer, taking to them the chief Justices of the one Bench and of the other, if they be present; and that shall be done yearly on the day after All-Souls day, i. e. November 3d, at the Exchequer.' (l)

The Sheriff's Officers, are, The Bailiffs of the Hundreds;—The High-Constables, 2 in each Hundred, 3 in Hinckford, 1 in Witham; Formerly this office was very honorable, and of much the same power as the present Justices of the Peace. (m)—The Petty Constables, one or two in each Parish, or more, according to the extent of the Parish, or the pleasure of the Inhabitants.

The other considerable Persons employed in the Government of Counties, are the Justices of the Peace. Some have fancied, that they were instituted in the reign of K. Henry III. after the agreement between the King and his Barons: And others have fixed their first Institution at the 6th of Edward I. 1278. Conservators of the Peace were indeed appointed from time to time in certain places, but not throughout England, till 1 Edw. III. 1327. when, 'for the better keeping and maintaining of the Peace, it was ordained, That in every County good men and lawful, which be no maintainers of evil, or barretors in the country, shall be assigned to keep the peace.' And more fully in the following Statute, 'That in every County of England shall be assigned for the keeping of the Peace, one Lord, and with him three or four of the most worthy in the County, with some learned in the law.'—They are appointed by the King, by commission under the great seal.—And hold Sessions these four times in the year. In the first week after the feast of St. Michael: In the first week after the Epiphany: In the first week after the clause of Easter: and in the first week after the translation of St. Thomas the Martyr [a Becket.] (n)

Other ancient Officers, are The Coroners, and The Clerk of the Market.

With respect to the first, the Statute directs, That 'through all Shires sufficient men shall be chosen to be Coroners, of the most wise and discreet Knights, which know, will, and may best attend upon such offices.' (o)

§ 8. As to the ECCLESIASTICAL GOVERNMENT; the County of Essex is within the Bishoprick of London; being the most extensive Part of that Diocese.

The Parishes of Bocking, Stysted, Lachingdon with Lawling, and South Church, are Peculiars belonging to his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury.

The Bishop's Assistants, are the Archdeacons of Essex, Colchester, and Middlesex.

The Archdeaconry of Essex contains the Deanries of Barstable, Berking, Chafford, Chelmsford, Dengey, Ongar, and Rochford. In which are 175 Churches and Chapels.

The Archdeaconry of Colchester comprehends the Deanries of Colchester, Lexden, Tendring, Newport, and Sandford. In which are 161 Churches and Chapels.

Within the Archdeaconry of Middlesex, which is only Part in this County, are the Deanries of Dunmow, Harlow, and Hedingham; containing 83 Churches and Chapels.

Rural Deans have not been appointed for some years.

§ 9. The MILITARY Government of the County is in the Lord-Lieutenant, who is also commonly Custos Rotulorum, and often Vice-Admiral.

(k) M. Dalton's Office and Authority of Sheriffs, c. 1. See Sir Edw. Coke. 9 Inst. 40. & 97. (l) Statute 14 Edw. III. c. 7. (m) They 'are called in the elder books of our lawes of the realme Custodes pacis' Sir Tho. Smyth's Commonwealth of England, p. 172. (n) Statut. 1 Edw. III. Seff. 2. c. 16. 4 Edw. III. c. 2. and 34 Edw. III. c. 1. (o) Statut. 3 Edw. I. c. 10. and 4 Edw. I. Stat. 2.

§ 10. SHERIFFS of ESSEX, from the Conquest to the present time [D].

SHERIFFS of ESSEX and HERTFORDSHIRE:
for there was but one for the two Counties.

Reg.

1. WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, A. D. 1066.
Suein of Essex, at the time of the Conquest.
Geffrey de Mandeville, made Hereditary Vicecomes, or Sheriff.
Ilbert de Hertford.

2. WILLIAM RUFUS, A. D. 1087.

3. HENRY I. A. D. 1100.
Peter de Valoynes, Baron of Orford, Bennington-hall.
Edw. de Evreux, or Salisbury.

4. K. STEPHEN, A. D. 1135.

5 Albery de Vere.
Richard Bassett, justiciary.
7 Geffrey de Mandeville, E. of Essex for 2 years.

5. HENRY II. A. D. 1154.

1 Albery de Vere, Lord Chamberlain.
Richard Bassett.
2 Richard de Lucy, Kt. of Ongar-castle.
3 Maurice de Tireton, for 7 years.
10 Nicolas de Boville.
11 Nicol. Decanus, for 4 years.
15 and for half a year.
Stephen de Beauchamp, the last half year.
16 the same for half a year.
Robert Mantell the other half-year.
17 the same for 11 years.
Otho Fitz-William Kt. for 8 years.

6. RICHARD I. A. D. 1189.

1 The same Otho for 2 years.
3 Geffrey Fitz-Piers Kt. Earl of Essex, of Walden-castle.
Richard de Heriot, Sheriff, for 3 years.
6 Simon de Pateshull for half a year.
William de Long-champ, Chancellor, and Robert de Laweshall, for the last half-year.
7 The same two.
8 William Pointell.
9 Reginald de Argentine Kt. of Wimley Magna and Horseheath, for half a year.
Humfrey de Barrington Kt.
10 Hugh de Neville of Little Hallingbury, and John de Neville Kt. his son, the last half-year.

7. JOHN, A. D. 1199.

1 Hugh de Neville, and his son, for 2 years.
Richard de Montfichet Kt. Baron of Stansted.
3 John de Cornherd, Sheriff, for 3 years.
Hugh Lord Neville, and his son
6 John de Neville Kt. for half a year.
Matthew Mauntell, the last half-year.
7 Matthew Mauntell, for 3 years.
10 The same for half a year.
Albery de Vere E. of Oxford, and 10 William Fitz-Fulke, the other half-year.
11 The same for five years.
Matthew Mauntell, and 16 Geffrey de Roinges, or Rothing.

Reg.

17 Robert Mauntell brother and heir of Matthew decd. and Walter de Verdon.

8. HENRY III. A. D. 1216.

Robert de Mauntell, and
1 Walter de Verdon.
2 The same for a quarter of a year.
2 William le Marefchall, Earl of Strigul and Pembroke, and John de Cornherd, for the 3 last quarters;
The said Earl, who deceased this year, and
3 John de Cornherd.
William le Marefchall, son of the last, and
3 John de Cornherd.
4 Walter de Verdon, for half the year;
4 Robert Mauntell for the other half.
5 Stephen de Segrave Kt. chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and Ralph Fitz-Reginald.
The same Stephen, and 6 Peter de St. Edward, for 2 years.
Richard de Argenton Kt. and 8 William de Culworth Kt.
9 The same William for 8 years.
17 Robert de Waltham.
18 William de Holwell, for half a year, and 18 William de Culworth Kt. for the last half-year.
19 William de Culworth Kt.
20 The same, for half a year.
20 Peter de Taney Kt. for the last half-year.
21 The same, for two years.
23 The same for half a year.
23 Richard de Grey Kt. of Thurrock-Grey, for the third quarter of the year.
23 Bertram de Cryol, or Kyriell Kt. for the last quarter.
24 Bertram de Kyriell Kt. of Albury.
25 John de Walton.
26 The same for half a year.
26 Richard de Montfichet Kt. for the other half-year.
27 The same for three years.
30 The same for half a year.
William Fitz-Reginald for the other half-year.
31 The same for three years.
34 The same for half a year.
Richard de Whitfand for the other half-year.
35 The same for half a year.
Henry de Heleghton for the last half-year.
36 The same for 2 years.
38 The same for half a year.
Ralph de Arderne, or Arden Kt. of Horndon on the Hill, for the last half-year.
39 The same for two years.
41 Thomas de Rameden, for half a year.
Robert de la Vall, for the last half-year.
42 Hubert de Montchenfy, of Chisfield, for 2 years.
44 Richard de Taney Kt.
45 The same for half a year.
Matthew de la Mare Kt. for the other half-year.
46 The same and William his son.
Roger de Kenlevedon, or Keldon.
47 The same for half a year.
John de Bocking, for the other half-year.
48 The same, for 3 quarters of a year.
Nicolas le Espigornell, or Spigurnell, of Stondon Mafsey, for the last quarter.

[D] Chiefly from the Collections of Robert Smyth, M. A. Rector of Woodston near Peterborough, a laborious and correct Antiquary; communicated by the late Thomas Wotton Esq;

Reg.

- 49 The same.
- 50 Richard de Suchirche, of South-church Kt. for two years.
- 52 The same for half a year.
- Richard de Herlawe, or Harlow, for the last half-year.
- 53 William de Kaunvill, or Canvyle, for half a year.
- Walter de Essex, for the last half-year.
- 54 William de Blundevile, or Blomvile.
- 55 Walter de Essex, for two years.

9. EDWARD I. A. D. 1272.

- 1 Walter de Essex, for two years.
- 3 Thomas de Sandwych Kt.
- Laurence de Scaccario, for 3 years.
- 7 William de St. Clere.
- 8 Reginald de Ginge, or Ingrave, for 6 years.
- 14 William de Lamburne, for half a year.
- Hugh le Blound, or Blount, for the other half-year.
- 15 Hugh le Blount Kt.
- 16 The same for half-year.
- 16 Ralph de Bocksted, for the other half a year.
- 17 The same for two years.
- 19 Henry Grapnell of Tyled-hall in Lachingdon.
- 20 The same, for half a year.
- John Carbonel Kt. for the other half-year.
- 21 William Le Grose, or Grice.
- 22 William de Sutton, of Wivenhoe, for 3 years.
- 25 Simon de Brädenham, for 3 years.
- 28 John de la Lee, of Albury Kt. for 2 years.
- 30 William de Harpenden, of Whethamsted.
- 31 John de Wengrave.
- 32 John de Bassingburne Kt. of Woodhall in Hatfield Bishop's.
- 33 John de la Lee Kt.
- 34 The same, and
- John de Bassingbourne Kt.
- 35 John de Harpefield.

10. EDWARD II. A. D. 1307.

- 1 Walter de Baude Kt. of Coringham.
- 2 Alan de Goldingham, of Chigwell, for 2 years.
- 4 Geoffrey de la Lee Kt. and his son John de la Lee Kt. for 2 years.
- 6 John de Aygnell Kt. of Penley.
- 7 John le Ward, of Hoo.
- 8 Richard de Perers Kt. for 4 years.
- 12 John atte Doure, for half a year.
- Ralph de Gifford, of Giltton, for the other half-year.
- 13 The same.
- 14 Geoffrey de Lake for half a year.
- John atte Doure, for the other half-year.
- 15 Nicolas Engayne, of Hunsdon.
- 16 Adam Franceys, of Ruckholt.
- 17 Thomas Gobion Kt.
- 18 Richard de Perers Kt.

11. EDWARD III. A. D. 1326.

- 1 Richard de Perers Kt.
- 2 William de Baude Kt.
- 3 Richard de Perers Kt. for two years.
- 5 John de Wanton, or Wauton, of Wallington, Kt.
- 6 The same, for half a year.
- John de la Hay Kt. the other half-year.
- 7 The same, for half a year.
- Adam de Bloye Knt. for the other half-year.
- 8 The same, for half a year.
- William de Baude Kt. for the other half-year.
- 9 John de Coggeshall Kt. for 2 years.
- 11 The same, for 3 years.
- 14 William de Wauton Kt. for half a year.
- John de Coggeshall Kt. for the last half-year.
- 15 William atte Moore, of Gobions in N. Mymms.
- 16 Richard de Montchenfy Kt. for half a year.
- Henry Garnet Kt. for the other half-year.
- 17 The same H. Garnet, being of H. Easter.

Reg.

- 18 John de Coggeshall Kt. for 4 years.
- 22 The same for half a year.
- Peter de Bocksted for the last half-year.
- 23 William Brett for half a year.
- Humfrey de Walden, of Rickling Kt. for the other half-year.
- 24 Peter de Bocksted.
- 25 Thomas Lacy.
- 26 John de Coggeshall Kt. for 3 years.
- 29 Hugh Fitz-Simon Kt.
- 30 William de Enefeld.
- 31 Tho. de Chabham, for 2 years.
- 33 Roger de Louthe, of Roxford in Hertingfordbury, for 2 years.
- 35 Hugh le Blount Kt.
- 36 William de Leire, or Layer.
- 37 Guy de Boys.
- 38 Tho. de Fitling Kt.
- 39 John Gernon Kt.
- 40 Tho. de Helpeston, of Felstead.
- 41 John Oliver, of Sandon.
- 42 The same for half a year;
- John Shardelow Kt. of Newhall in Boreham, for the other half-year.
- 43 John de Henxteworth.
- 44 The same for half a year.
- Roger Keterich, for the last half-year.
- 45 Thomas de Bassingbourne.
- 46 William de Baude Kt.
- 47 John de Bampton, or Brampton.
- 48 John Filiol, of Kelvedon, Kt.
- 49 Edward Fitz-Simon Kt. of Hippolits.
- 50 John Batteyle, or Battell Kt. of High Ongar park.
- 51 Robert Fitz-William of Alphamston.

12. RICHARD II. A. D. 1377.

- 1 Robert Goldington of Hunsdon.
- 2 John Fitz-Simon Kt. of Barling.
- 3 Edw. Bensted Kt. of Benington.
- 4 John Sewale, of Coggeshall.
- 5 Walter Godmanston, or Godston, of Frinton.
- 6 Geoffrey Darsham.
- 7 Tho. Battell Esq;
- 8 John Walton, of Wivenhou, Kt.
- 9 Geoffrey Brockhole, of Gr. Samford, Kt.
- 10 John Ruggewyn Esq; of Standon, for 2 years.
- 12 Henry English.
- 12 Walter Lee, of Albury Kt.
- 14 Geoffrey Michell, of Finchingfield.
- 15 William Coggeshall Kt.
- 16 Adam Franceys Kt.
- 17 Tho. Coggeshall Esq;
- 18 Tho. Sampkin Esq;
- 19 William Bateman, of Little Sampford Esq; for 3 years.
- 22 Rob. Turke Kt. of Hormede parva.

13. HENRY IV. A. D. 1399.

- 1 Edw. Bensted Kt.
- 2 John Howard Kt. of Stansted Montfichet.
- 3 William Marney Kt. of Layer Marney.
- 4 Helmingius Legat Esq; of Stapleford Tany.
- 5 Tho. Swinburne Kt. for 2 years.
- 7 William Coggeshall Kt.
- 8 Gerard Braybroke Kt. of Danbury.
- 9 Helm. Legat Esq;
- 10 William Loveney, of Gr. Wendon Esq;
- 11 John Walden Esq;
- 12 Tho. Astqn.
- 13 William Coggeshall Kt.

14. HENRY V. A. D. 1412.

- 1 Philip Englefield, of Finchingfield Esq;
- 2 John Tyrell, of Herongate, Esq;
- 3 John Howard Kt.
- 4 Tho. Barre Kt.

Reg.

- 5 Lodoic John Esq; of West Horndon.
- 6 Reginald Malyn Esq; of Theydon-Mount.
- 7 John Howard Kt.
- 8 Robert Darcy Esq; of Danbury.
- 9 Lodoic John Esq;
- 10 William Loveney Esq;

15. HENRY VI. A. D. 1422.

- 1 John Tyrell Esq;
- 2 Maurice Bruyn Kt. of S. Okingdon.
- 3 John Barlee Esq; of Albury.
- 4 John Doreward Esq; of Bocking.
- 5 Conand Aske Esq; of Hadleigh.
- 6 Tho. Torell Esq; of Willingale Dou.
- 7 John Hotoft, Esq; of Knebworth.
- 8 Nicolas Ryckhill Esq;
- 9 Henry Langley Esq; of Rickling.
- 10 Nic. Thorley Kt. of Gr. Canfield-castle.
- 11 John Doreward Esq;
- 12 Robert Whyttingham Esq; of Penley.
- 13 Geoffrey Rockhole Esq;
- 14 Maurice Bruyn Kt.
- 15 Edw. Tyrell Esq; of Downham.
- 16 Richard Alrede, Esq; of Newhall, in Boreham.
- 17 Rob. Whyttingham Esq;
- 18 Richard Witherton Esq;
- 19 Tho. Tyrell Esq; of Herongate.
- 20 Ralph Astley Esq; of Stondon.
- 21 Nicolas Morley Esq;
- 22 John Hende jun. Esq;
- 23 Thomas Tyrell Kt.
- 24 Tho. Pygot Esq; of Roxwell.
- 25 Tho. Baude Esq; of Coringham.
- 26 John Hende jun. Esq;
- 27 George Langham Esq; of Panfield.
- 28 Geoffrey Rockhole Esq; of Hempstead.
- 29 Philip Boteler Esq; of Woodhall in Watton.
- 30 Tho. Barington Esq; of Hatfield Regis.
- 31 John Godmanston Esq;
- 32 Tho. Cobham Kt. of Woodham-Walter.
- 33 Humfrey Bohun Esq; of Kelvedon.
- 34 Ralph Bothe Esq;
- 35 John Hende jun.
- 36 Lodoic John Esq;
- 37 Robert Darcy Kt.
- 38 Tho. Tyrell Kt. Banneret.

16. EDWARD IV. A. D. 1460.

- 1 Thomas Juys.
- 2 Thomas Langley Esq; for 2 years.
- 4 John Clay Esq; of Stifford.
- 5 Roger Ree Esq; of Bardolphs in Watton.
- 6 Laurence Raynsford Kt.
- 7 Henry Barlee Esq;
- 8 William Pyrton Kt.
- 9 Walter Writtle Esq; of Astlyns in H. Ongar.
- 10 Ralph Baude Esq;
- 11 Walter Writtle Esq;
- 12 Roger Ree Kt.
- 13 Alured Cornburgh Esq;
- 14 John Sturgeon Esq; of Hitchin.
- 15 Richard Haute Esq; of Danbury.
- 16 Henry Langley Esq;
- 17 William Grene Esq;
- 18 Alured Cornburgh Esq;
- 19 John Wode Esq;
- 20 John Sturgeon Esq;
- 21 Thomas Tyrell Esq;
- 22 John Fortescue Esq; of Rivenham.

17. 18. EDW. V. and RIC. III. A. D. 1483.

- 1 William Saye, Kt. of the Bath, of Broxbourne.
- 2 John Sturgeon Esq;
- 3 Robert Percy Kt.

19 HENRY VII. A. D. 1485.

Reg.

- 1 John Fortescue Kt.
- 2 Henry Marney Esq;
- 3 William Pyrton Kt.
- 4 Henry Teye Esq; of Old-holt in Messing.
- 5 John Boteler Esq;
- 6 Rob. Turberville Esq; of St. Stephens.
- 7 John Bardfield Esq; of Margareting.
- 8 Henry Marney Esq; afterwards Ld. Marney.
- 9 Richard Fitz-Lewis Kt.
- 10 Robert Plomer Esq;
- 11 William Pulter Esq; of Hitchin.
- 12 Robert Newport Esq; of Furneaux Pelham.
- 13 Tho. Peryent Esq; of Digswell.
- 14 John Verney Kt. of Penley.
- 15 Roger Wentworth Kt. of Wethersfield.
- 16 Henry Teye Kt.
- 17 William Pyrton Esq;
- 18 Humfrey Torell Esq;
- 19 William Skypwith Esq; of St. Albans, for 2 years.
- 21 Roger Darcy Esq;
- 22 John Bocket, Esq; of Bishop's Hatfield, for 2 years.
- 24 Humfrey Torell Esq;

20. HENRY VIII. 1509.

- 1 John Leventhorpe Esq; of Sabridgeworth.
- 2 William Lytton Esq; of Knebworth.
- 3 Anthony Darcy Esq;
- 4 Edward Tyrell Esq;
- 5 John St. Clere Esq;
- 6 William Fitzwilliam Esq; of Theydon Gernon.
- 7 John Vere Kt.
- 8 Winstan Browne Kt. of Abbots Roding.
- 9 Tho. Tyrell Kt. of Herongate.
- 10 John Cutts Kt. of Thackstead.
- 11 John Vere Kt.
- 12 Tho. Bonham Esq; of Stanway.
- 13 Tho. Teye Knt. of Pygots in Ardleigh.
- 14 John Christmas Esq; of Bradwell near the Sea.
- 15 Henry Barlee Esq;
- 16 John Vere Kt.
- 17 Thomas Leventhorpe Esq;
- 18 Tho. Bonham Esq;
- 19 Edw. Tyrell Esq;
- 20 Giles Capel Kt. of Rayne, and Hadham.
- 21 John Bolle Esq; of Wallington.
- 22 John Bocket, Esq;
- 23 John Smyth Esq; of Saffron-Walden.
- 24 Philip Boteler Kt.
- 25 Bryan Tuke Kt. of Layer-Marney.
- 26 William West Kt. of Debden.
- 27 Tho. Peryent Esq;
- 28 Henry Parker Kt. of Radwell.
- 29 John Raynsford Kt.
- 30 John Smyth Esq;
- 31 Philip Boteler Kt.
- 32 John Mordaunt Kt. of the Bath, of West Horndon.
- 33 Ralph Rawlet Esq; of Gorhambury, St. Albans.
- 34 John Bolle Esq; who dyed. In his room John Sewster Esq;
- 35 John Wentworth Esq;
- 36 Antony Cooke Esq; of Geddyng-hall.
- 37 Robert Lytton Esq;
- 38 John Coningsby Esq; of North Mymms.

21. EDWARD VI. A. D. 1547.

- 1 Edward Bocket Esq;
- 2 John Cocke Esq; of Broxbourne.
- 3 John Gate Kt. of Garnets in High-Ester.
- 4 George Norton Kt.
- 5 Henry Tyrell Kt. of Heron-gate.
- 6 Tho. Pope Kt. of Tittenhanger in Ridge.

22. MARY, and PHILIP. A. D. 1553.

Reg.

- 1 John Wentworth Kt.
- 2 Edward Brocket Esq;
- 3 William Harris Esq; of Cricksea. He dyed;
- Thomas Sylsden Esq; in his room.
- 4 John Boteler Kt.
- 5 Thomas Pope Kt.
- 6 Thomas Mildmay Esq; of Chelmsford.

23. ELIZABETH. A. D. 1558.

- 1 Ralph Rowlet Esq;
- 2 Edward Capel Kt.
- 3 Thomas Golding Kt.
- 4 Thomas Barington Esq;
- 5 Henry Fortescue Esq;
- 6 William Ayloffe, Esq; of Gr. Brackstead.
- 7 Robert Chester Kt. of Royston-Priory.
- 8 John Brocket Esq;

SHERIFFS of ESSEX alone.

- 9 Geo. Tuke Esq; of Layer-Marney.
- 10 Tho. Lucas Esq; of St. John's Colchester.
- 11 Tho. Golding Kt.
- 12 James Altham Esq; of Mark-hall in Latton.
- 13 Edw. Barret Esq; of Belhouse in Aveley.
- 14 Thomas Mildmay Kt. of Moulsham.
- 15 Arthur Harris Esq; of Cricksea.
- 16 Edmund Pyrton Esq;
- 17 John Petre Kt. of Writtle; and Ingatestone
- 18 Winstan Browne Esq; of S. Weald, and W. Roding.
- 19 Gabriel Poyntz Esq; of North Okingdon.
- 20 Edm. Hodleston Esq; of Newport-pond.
- 21 Henry Capel Esq; of Rayne.
- Thomas Barington Kt. and
- 22 Tho. Darcy Esq; of Tollethunt Darcy.
- 23 John Wentworth Esq; of Gosfield.
- 24 Thomas Teye Esq;
- 25 Tho. Lucas Kt.
- 26 Henry Apleton Esq; of South.
- 27 Bryan Darcy Esq; of S. Olith.
- 28 Arthur Harris Esq;
- 29 Robert Wroth Esq; of Loughton.
- 30 Edm. Hodleston Kt.
- 31 Gabriel Poyntz Esq;
- 32 Ralph Wiseman Esq; of Rivenhall.
- 33 Richard Warren Esq; of Claybury.
- 34 John Wentworth Esq;
- 35 Humfrey Mildmay Esq; of Danbury.
- 36 William Ayloffe Esq; of Gr. Brackstead.
- 37 Edward Sulyard Esq; of Runwell.
- 38 Geo. Hervey Esq; of Merks near Romford.
- 39 Thomas Mildmay Esq; of Moulsham.
- 40 William Harris Esq; of Cricksea.
- 41 Jerom Weston Esq; of Roxwell.
- 42 Tho. Mede Esq; of Wendon Lofts.
- 43 Henry Smith Esq; of Cressing-Temple.
- 44 Richard Franke Esq; of Malden Abbey.

24. JAMES I. A. D. 1602.

- 1 Henry Maynard Kt. of Little Easton.
- 2 Tho. Rawlyns Esq;
- 3 John Sammes Kt. of Little Totham.
- 4 Gamaliel Capel Kt. of Abbots Roding.
- 5 Henry Maxey Kt. of Gr. Saling.
- 6 Roger Apleton Esq;
- 7 Thomas Mildmay Kt.
- 8 John Deane Kt. of Gr. Maplestead.
- 9 Thomas Wiseman Kt.
- 10 Henry Leigh Kt.
- 11 Sir Robert Wroth Kt. He died: In his room
- Edw. Elrington Esq; of Theydon Boys.
- 12 Harbottle Grimston Kt. and Bart. of Bradfield.
- 13 William Smyth Esq; of Theydon Mount.
- 14 Thomas Lucas Esq;
- 15 Paul Bayning Bart. of Little Bentley.
- 16 Thomas Bendyshe Bart. of Steeple Bumstead.

Reg.

- 17 William Smyth Knt.
- 18 William Pert Esq; of Mountneys-ing.
- 19 Stephen Soame Kt. of Haydon.
- 20 Thomas Gournay Kt.
- 21 Charles Pratt Esq;
- 22 Edward Boteler Esq;

25. CHARLES I. A. D. 1625.

- 1 Arthur Harris Kt.
- 2 Hugh Everard Esq; of Gr. Waltham.
- 3 Thomas Nightingale Esq; of Newport-pond.
- 4 Henry Mildmay, Esq; of Woodham Walter.
- 5 Ed. Alleyn Bart. of Hatfeild-Peverell.
- 6 Thomas Bendyshe Bart.
- 7 John Mede Kt. or William Martin Kt.
- 8 Henry Smith Esq;
- 9 Richard Staltonfall Knt. of S. Okingdon.
- 10 Cranmer Harris Knt.
- 11 Humfrey Mildmay Kt. of Danbury.
- 12 John Lucas Esq;
- 13 William Luckyn Bart. of Little Waltham.
- 14 William Wiseman Bart. of Gr. Canfield.
- 15 Martin Lumley Esq; of Gr. Bardfield.
- 16 Richard Luckyn Esq; of Chicknall-Smeley.
- 17
- 18 Robert Smyth Esq; of Upton.
- 19 Benj. Ayloffe Bart.
- 20 Timo. Middleton Esq; of Stansted Montfichet.
- 21 Richard Everard Bart.
- 22 Richard Harlackenden Esq; of Earl's-Colne.
- 23 John Pyot Esq; of Low Leyton.
- Henameel Chibburne Esq; of Messing. He dyed:
- 24 In his room Robert Bourne Esq; of Bobbingworth.

26. K. CHARLES II. A. D. 1648. The Usurpation.

- 1 George Pyke Esq; of Bathon-end.
- 2 Samuel Tryon Bart. of Halstead.
- 3 John Trafford Esq; of Low-Leyton.
- 4 Thomas Abdy Bart. of Kelvedon.
- 5 Thomas Cambell Esq; of Clay-hall.
- 6 William Marten Kt. according to others
- Cuthbert Martyn Esq; of Netteswell.
- 7 John Barrington Kt. and Bart.
- 8 John Sparrow Esq; of Gr. Maplestead.
- 9
- 10 Thomas Middleton Esq; of Stansted M. f.
- 11 Thomas Wiseman, Knt. of Rivenhall.
- 12 William Wiseman Bart.

The Restoration.

- 13 Robert Abdy Kt. and Bart. of Stapleford.
- Sir Thomas Wiseman Bart. and
- 14 William Wiseman Bart.
- 15 Martin Lumley, Bart. of Gr. Bardfield.
- 16 Tho. Smyth Bart. of Theydon Mount.
- 17 William Luckyn Bart. of Messing.
- 18 Heneage Featherston Bart. of Stanford le Hops.
- 19 Stephen Soame Esq; of Heydon.
- 20 John Birch Esq; of Geddying-hall.
- 21 John James Kt. of Cresshall.
- 22 Thomas Gerrard Knt. of East-Ham.
- 23 Edward Lewen Esq;
- 24 Thomas Turner Esq; of Quendon.
- 25 John Howland Esq;
- 26 Thomas Chamber Kt.
- 27 Stephen White Kt.
- 28 Mark Guyon Esq; of Great Coggeshall.
- 29 John Morecroft Esq; of Shenfield.
- 30 Francis Osbaldeston Esq; of Little Ilford. He
- dyed 22 Apr. 1678. Will. Dyer Esq; the rest of
- the Year.
- 31 William Palmer Esq; of Stratford, or Lambourn.
- 32 Richard Barrett Esq; of Belhouse.
- 33 Edward Smyth Bart. of Hill-Hall.
- 34 Thomas Dawtreys Esq; of Doddinghurst.
- 35 William Glascock Kt. of Aldham.

Reg.

- 36 William Hicks Kt. and Bart. of Low Layton.
37 Joseph Smart Esq; of Theydon-Boys.

27. JAMES II. A. D. 1685.

- 1 Cane James Bart. of Cresshall.
2 William Peck, Esq; of Little Samford.
3 Thomas Manby Kt. of Southweald.
4 Benjamin Disborow Esq; of Downham.

28. WILLIAM and MARY, A. D. 1689.

- 1 Josias Child Bart. of Wanstead.
2 John La Mott Honeywood Esq; of Marks-hall.
3 John Cookes Esq; of Low Layton.
4 George Ford Esq;
5 Timothy Felton Esq; of Ovington.
6 John Lockey, Esq; of Albury-hatch.
7 John Littell Esq; of Ballington.
8 Edw. Bullock Esq; of Falbourne, or Charles Tyrell Bart. of Herongate.
9 Edmund Godwin Esq;
10 Samuel Moyer Esq; of Pitsey.
11 Samuel Wake, alias Jones Esq; of Waltham-Abbey.
12 George Pochin Esq; of Fyfield.
13 Edward Luther Esq; } of Stapleford Tany or Kel-
John Luther Esq; } vedon-hatch.

29. ANNE. A. D. 1701-2.

- 1 Peter Whitcombe Esq; of Brackstead.
2 Edward Bullock Esq; of Falkbourn.
3 Thomas Webster Esq; of Copped-hall.
4 William Peck Esq;
5 Dacre-Lennard Barrett Esq; of Belhouse.
6 John Olmuis Esq; of Braintree.
7 Daniel Wray Esq; or Kt.
8 Thomas Millington Esq; of Gosfield.
9 Justus Beck Esq;
10 Martyn Lumley Bart. of Gr. Bardfield.
11 Samuel Smith Esq; of South-Weald.
12 Fisher Tench Esq; of Low Layton.
13 Carew Hervey, alias Mildmay, Esq; of Marks.
14 Henry Featherstone Bart. of Stanford le hope.

30. GEORGE I. A. D. 1714.

- 1 Henry Featherstone, part of 1 Geo. I.
2 William Blackbourne, Esq; of Dagenham.
3 William Cole Esq; of Magdalen Laver.
4 David Gansel Esq; of Low-Layton.
5 Robert Dennet Esq; of Waltham-Stow.
6 William Lockey Esq; of Alborough-hatch.
7 Hugh Raymond Esq; of Saling.
8 Timothy Brand Esq; of Frierning.

Reg.

- 9 Richard Chamberlayne Esq; of Hatfield-Regis.
10 Josiah Kinsman Esq; of Horndon on the Hill.
11 James Braine Esq; of Matching.
12 John Turner Esq; of Widdington.
13 Edward Pearson Esq; of Upton.
14 Philip Hall Kt. of Upton.

31. GEORGE II. A. D. 1727.

- 1 William Ashurst Esq; of Hedingham-castle.
2 Catlin Thorogood Esq; of Lambourn.
3 John How Esq; of Stondon Marci.
4 William Peck Esq; of Little Samford.
5 Samuel Feake Esq; of Shering.
6 William Harvey Esq; of Chigwell.
7 Champion Bramfill Esq; of Upminster.
8 Thomas Ambrose Esq; of Shenfield.
9 William Dawtrey Esq; of Doddington.
10 Herbert Trist Esq; of Cranham.
11 Hugh Smith Esq; of Southweald.
12 Thomas Bowes Esq; of Upton.
13 Thomas Drury Bart. of Gr. Ilford.
14 James Hannot Esq; of Woodford-bridge.
15 Osmond Beauvoir Esq; of Downham.
16 Edward Stephenson Esq; of Gr. Bardfield.
17 Thomas Ashurst Esq; of Hedingham-castle.
18 Peter Du Cane Esq; of Gr. Coggeshall.
19 John Olmuis Esq; of Newhall.
20 Nicolas Corfellis Esq; of Wivenhou.
21 Bailey Heath Esq; of Stansted-Montfichet.
22 John Fishpool Esq; of Billerica.
23 John Tyrell Bart. of Herongate.
24 Peter le Fevre Esq; of Walthamstow.
25 Edmund Alleyn Bart. of Hatfield Peverell.
26 William Hunt Esq; of Woodford.
27 Richard Benion Esq; of Geddyng-hall.
28 Richard Chiswell Esq; of Depden.
29 Edward Emmet Esq; of Alborough-hatch.
30 Humfrey Bellamy Esq; of Waltham-stow.
31 John Henniker Esq; of Dunmow.
32 Jasper Kinsman Esq; of Stifford.
33 Thomas Towers Esq; of South-weald.

32. GEORGE III. A. D. 1760.

- 1 Charles Smith Bart. of Theyden.
2 Richard Newman Esq; of West-ham.
3 William Sheldon of Walthamstow Esq;
4 John Wilkes of Wendon Loughts Esq;
5 Sir William Mildmay, Bart.
6 Joseph Keeling Esq; of Fingringhou.
7 Thomas Fytch Esq; of Danbury.
8 Richard-Lomas Clay, of Loughton Esq;

§ II. LORD LIEUTENANTS

Were introduced about the reign of King Henry VIII, as standing representatives of the Crown, to keep the Counties in military order, upon the suppression of Monasteries. They were appointed by Statute 2 and 3 Edw. VI. c. 2. and 4 and 5 Ph. and Mar. c. 3. Mr. Camden speaks of them, in the Time of Qu. Elizabeth, as extraordinary Magistrates, constituted only in times of difficulty and danger (q). They were confirmed by Statute 13 and 14 Caro. II. c. 3.

- John Lord Petre.
Thomas Darcy, Lord Viscount Colchester.
1641. Robert Rich, Earl of Warwick.
George Monk, Duke of Albemarle.
Christopher, his son.
1714. Oct. 14. Henry Howard, Earl of Suffolk and Bindon.
1719. Oct. 29. Charles - William Howard, Earl of Suffolk.
Henry O-Brian, Earl of Thomond.
Benjamin Mildmay, Earl Fitz-walter.
William-Henry Zulestein de Nassau, Earl of Rochford.

(q) Camden, Britann. Dr. Blackstone's Comment. on the Laws of England, p. 398.

§ 12. KNIGHTS or Representatives in PARLIAMENT for this County.

The Origin of the House of Commons in its present form, is a point that hath been agitated with great Earnestness, if not Violence, by some interested Writers. For our part, having in the course of many Years, and by a diligent perusal of our ancient Historians, and other Authors, examined the subject thoroughly, we shall make no difficulty of fixing the Beginning of the House of Commons in its present form to the reign of K. Henry III.

Before that time, the constituent Members of the Great Council of the Nation, were, the Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots and Priors, Earls, Barons; and All that held of the King, in capite, or chief; as Sir Henry Spelman, and Sir William Dugdale, two of our best English Antiquarians, have shewn (r) [E].

There is a clause in Magna Charta, which is quite decisive upon this point. It is as follows. 'Et ad habendum Commune Consilium regni de auxilio assidendo, aliter quam in tribus casibus predictis, vel de scutagio assidendo, summoneri faciemus Archiepiscopos, Episcopos, Abbates, Comites, & majores Barones sigillatim per literas nostras: et preterea faciemus summoneri in generali per Vicecomites & Ballivos nostros, omnes illos qui de nobis tenent in capite, ad certum diem scilicet ad terminum quadraginta dierum ad minus, & ad certum locum; & in omnibus literis illius summonitionis causam summonitionis exprimemus. Et sic facta summonitione negotium ad diem assignatum procedat, secundum consilium illorum qui presentes fuerint, quamvis non omnes summoniti venerint.' i. e. 'And, in order to have, or hold, a Common Council of the Kingdom for assessing an Aid, except in the three cases aforesaid (s), or for assessing a scutage, we shall cause to be summoned the Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, Earls, and greater Barons, severally by our letters: And moreover we shall cause to be summoned in general by our Sheriffs and Bailiffs, all those who hold of us in capite to a certain day, namely at the end of forty days at the least from the summons, and to a certain place; and, in all the letters of summons, we shall express the cause of the summons. And, after the summons, business shall be proceeded upon on the day appointed, according to the advice of those present, though all that are summoned should not come [F].'

Here being no mention of Knights of Shires, or Burgeesses of Burghs, for so important an affair as the granting of money, we may very justly conclude, that there were then none such as are now; the Tenants in capite being the Representatives of the Commons. And indeed so are they in effect still; for what are our present Electors of the Knights of Shires, but the remains of the Tenants in capite, minc'd into small Freeholds?

If it should be asked, How were the Burghs then represented? I answer, They either belonged to the King; or the chief part of the Estates, and real property in them, belonged to the greater Barons, or to the Tenants in capite; and they were their Representatives.

I have the Pleasure of having my thoughts on this subject confirmed by the testimony of a very eminent Lawyer (t). His words are, 'It is generally agreed, that in the main the constitution of Parliament, as it now stands, was marked out so long ago as the 17th year of K. John A.D. 1215. in the Great Charter granted by that Prince; wherein he promises to summon all Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, Earls, and greater Barons, personally, and all other Tenants in chief under the Crown, by the Sheriff and bailiffs; to meet at a certain place, within 40 days notice, to assess aids and scutages when necessary. And this constitution has subsisted in fact at least from the year 1266, 49 Hen. III. [G].'

EDWARD I. 1290.

- 18 P. at West. John le Bretun, John Filiol.
- 23 Ibid. John Filiol, Ranulf de Arden.
- 25 Lond. John Filiol, Henry Grapenel.
- 26 York, Henricus de Blount, Willielmus Du-reem.
- 28 (Prÿnne) Hugo de Blount,
- 29 Linc. Johannes de Fillol, Miles.

(r) Sir Henry Spelman in his Glossary, under the word Parliamentum; and in his Posthumous Works. — Dugdale, Origin. Jurid. c. 5. and Preface to his Baronage, Vol. I. making his eldest son a Knight; and marrying his eldest Daughter once. (s) Namely, to redeem the King if taken Prisoner; for the Laws, &c. 4^o p. 143, 145. (t) Dr. Blackstone's Commentaries on [E] Besides the Clause in Magna Charta set down above, if the Reader will be pleased to give himself the trouble to look into our ancient English Historians, he will find who were the constituent Members of our Legislature. We shall only refer him to Matthew Paris, one of our best and exactest Historians, Lond. edit. 1640, p. 63. 71. 100, 101. 143. 191. 209. 316, 317. 321. 367. 372. 377. 389. 580, 581. and there it appears, that the Colloquia, as he calls the Parliaments, consisted of the Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, Priors, Earls, and Barons; which he calls sometimes, in general words, Magnates Angliæ; Barones; Proceres regni; totius Angliæ Nobilitas; totius Regni tam cleri quam militiæ generatis universitas; omnes Nobiles Angliæ, tam viri ecclesiastici quam seculares. He uses the word Parlamentum in 1246 and 1257. And, in page 1002, the words electa personæ are used; which is remarkable. I have by me very large Collections upon the subject.

[F] Here, as Sir Henry Spelman observes, is laid forth the Members, the Matter, and the Manner of summoning of a Common Council of the Kingdom; which, as it seemeth, was not yet in the records of State called a Parliament. Posthumous Works, p. 63. It was so call'd first in Clauf. 28 Hen. III. memb. 12. dorso. — The first time the word Parlamentum occurs in our ancient Historians, Bromton, col. 1058, and the rest, is under the year 1164. — Matt. Paris uses it first in 1246. p. 696. edit. 1640.

[G] The County of Essex: and Colchester sent from the year 1290. Chelmsford return'd once to a Council. Bradfeild, Rawleigh, and Thaxted, are also styl'd Boroughs. Br. Willis, p. 31. 34.

- 30 West. Reyner de Arden, Alan de Dunelm, Milit.
 33 Johannes Tany, Will. de Wawton.
 34 Coun. West. Johannes de Sutton, Radus Bygatt, or Byatt.
 35 P. at Carlisle. Johannes de Tany, Johannes de la Lee.

EDWARD II.

- 1 North'ton. Johannes de Ripariis, Petrus de Sutchurch, Milit.
 2 West. Willielmus de Havingfeld, Nicolaus de Barentone, Milit.
 4 Lond. Willielmus de Wantone, Johannes de Tany, Milit.
 5 West. Willielmus de Wanton, Johannes de Tany.
 6
 6 Woodft. Johannes Dyn, Willielmus de Teye, Milit.
 6 Radus Bygod, Jocellanus de Duresme.
 7 Willielmus Havingfeld, Nicolaus de Barenton.
 8 York. Walt. Filius Humfr. Ricardus de la Rivere.
 8 Spalding. Johannes de Lifton, Johannes de Enefeld, Milit.
 9 Linc. Benedictus de Cokefeld, Johannes de la Lee, Nicolaus de Wokingdon, al. loc.
 10 Coun. Linc. Benedictus de Cokefeld, Johannes de Brokesburne.
 12 P. York. Johannes de Enefeld, Philipus de Virly, Milit.
 13 at York. John de l'Isle, John de Enefeld.
 15 Thomas Grobion, Simon Kynardfley, Milit.
 16 Rippon. Nomina legenda non sunt, Johannes de Enefeld.
 17 West. Willielmus de la Beche, Johannes de Lifton.
 18 Lond.
 19 West. Johannes de Lyfton, Robertus de Haghham.
 20 Johannes de Brokesbourn, Johannes Dyn.

EDWARD III.

- 1 Linc. Thomas Gobioun, Willielmus Baud, Milit.
 2 (Pryn.)
 1 North.
 2 Cl. Simon de Kynardfley, Willielmus Boteveleyn, Robertus de Bouffer.
 2 York. Thomas Gobioun, Will. le Baud.
 3 New Sarum. John de Kinardfley.
 4 Westm. Robertus de Bouffer, Johannes Dyn.
 4 Winch. Robertus de Bouffer, Johannes Barentone.
 5 (Elth. Pryn.) Johannes Dyn, Robertus de Chedworth.
 6 (York. Pryn.) Robertus de Bouffer, Thomas de Bourgh, Milit.
 6 (West. Pryn.) Johannes Dyn, Robertus de Chedworth.
 6
 7 York. Adam le Bloy, Johannes de Coggeshale, Milit.
 7 West. Robertus de Bouffer, Thomas de Burgh.
 8 Johannes Dyn, Adam de Bloye, Ricardus de Kellefhull, Johannes de Coggeshale.
 9 York. Johannes de Coggeshale, Willielmus de Teye.
 Do. (Westm. Pr.) Thomas Gobioun.
 10 West. Johannes de Coggeshale.
 10 Robertus de Cheddeworth, Richardus de Kellefhull.

- 11 P. West. Henricus Gernett, Robertus de Chedworth, Johannes Dyn.
 11 Coun. West. Thomas Gobioun, Bartholomeus Langreg. Milit.
 11 (Pr.) Johannes Dyn.
 12 Coun. North'ton, } Willielmus Crochman.
 (Walton, Pryn.) }
 12 P. West. Johannes de Infula, Henry Gernet, Johannes de Enefeld, Johannes Dyn.
 13 Ricardus de Bouffer, Johannes de Coggeshale.
 13 Robertus de Bouffer, Willielmus Crochman.
 14 Johannes de Enefeld, Willielmus de la Beche.
 14 (Herewyr. Pryn.) Edmund Durem, Robertus de Haghham.
 14 Robertus de Haghham, Willielmus de Teye.
 14 Edmundus Durem, vel de Duresme, Robertus de Haghham, Thomas Gobionn.
 15 (Woodstocke, Pryn.) Johannes de Wauton, Edmund de Duresme.
 17 Willielmus de la Beche, Johannes de Coggeshale, Johannes de Lifton, Willielmus de Teye.
 18 Benedictus de Colefeld, Willielmus Crochman, Robertus de Haghham, Thomas de Belhous.
 20 P. West. Johannes Fermer, Willielmus Crochman.
 21 Humfridus de Walden, Robertus de Haghham.
 22 Robertus de Haghham, Humfrey de Walden, Benedictus Dytton, Robertus de Haghham.
 24 Thomas de Lacy, Johannes de Goldingham.
 25
 26 Johannes de Depeden, Miles. But one Knight by the Writs.
 26 Coun. West. Johannes de Haveryng, Hugo le Blount.
 27 Johan. Haveryng.
 28 P. West. Johannes de Haveryng, Thomas Tyrell, Hugo le Blount.
 29
 31 Johannes de Coggeshale, Johannes de Depeden, Johannes de Haveryng, Thomas Tyrell.
 31 (Pryn.) Johannes de Tany,
 32 Johannes de Bampton, Johannes de Coggeshale, Johannes Oliver, Johannes de Haveryng.
 33 Willielmus de Wanton.
 34 Johannes Sudbury, Thomas Tyrell.
 34 Hugo de Badewe, Johannes de Haveryng.
 35 Hugo de Badewe, Johannes de Haveryng.
 36 Johannes Sudbury, Johannes de Brampton, vel Bampton.
 37 Henry de Coggeshale, Willielmus de Wanton.
 38 (39 Pryn.) Johannes de Sutton, Thomas Tyrell.
 39 Thomas Tyrell, Johannes de Brampton.
 42 Johannes de Bampton, Johannes Olyver.
 43 Thomas Tyrell, Robertus de Marvy, vel Marny.
 43
 45 Robertus le Marny, Robertus le Teye.
 45 Coun. Winch. Robertus Marney.
 46 P. West. Thomas Tyrell, Johannes de Brampton.
 47 Henricus de Coggeshale, Thomas Tyrell.
 47
 51 (50 Pryn.) Robertus de Swinburn, Robertus de Marny, Johannes de Brampton, Robertus de Teye, Chivaler.

INTRODUCTION.

xiii

RICHARD II.

- 1 Par. West. Robertus de Marny Chivaler, Johannes de Bampton.
- 2 Glouc. Thomas Symond, Alexander Goldingham Chivaler.
- 2 West. Robertus de Marney, Robertus de Swynbourn.
- 3 Johannes Gildesburgh Chivalr: Ricardus Lions.
- 4 Robertus Marny, Johannes Gildesburgh Chivalr.
- 5 Johannes de Sutton, Willielmus Berland, Thomas de Maundevill, Alex: Goldingham.
- 6 Johannes Gildesburgh, Willielmus Berland.
- 6 Robertus Swineburne, Robertus Marny.
- 6 Johannes Gildesburgh, Willielmus Berland.
- 7 Robertus Marny, Alexander Goldenham, or Goldington.
- 7 New Sarum, Radus Seyntlegier, Johannes Fitz-Simonds.
- 8 West. Robertus Swinburn, Robertus Marny.
- 9 West. Johannes Gildesburgh, Johannes Fitz-Simond.
- 10 Robertus Marny Chivalr: Edmundus Brokesbourn.
- 11 Johannes Gildesburgh Chivaler: Thomas Coggeshale.
- 12 Cambr. Alex. de Walden, Johannes Fitz-Symond, Chivalers.
- 13 Robertus Swinburne, Robertus Marny, Chlrs.
- 14 Alex: de Walden Chivaler, Thomas Battail.
- 15 Winch. Willielmus Coggeshale, Walter Attelee, Chivalers.
- 16 Walterus atte Lee, Thomas Swinborn, Chivalers.
- 17 Walterus atte Lee Chivaler, Thomas Batayll.
- 18 Thomas Coggeshall, Johannes Doreward.
- 20 Willielmus Coggeshale Chivaler, Johannes Doreward.
- 21 Johannes Howard Chivaler, Robertus de Teye.

HENRY IV.

- 1 West. Thomas Coggeshale, Johannes Doreward.
- 2 Willielmus Coggeshale, Robertus Teye, Chivalers.
- 3 Gerard Braybroks, Willielmus Coggeshale.
- 4 Gerardus Braybrok, Willielmus Coggeshale.
- 5 Willielmus Bourghchier Chivaler, Johannes Doreward.
- 6 Coventry, Willielmus Coggeshale, Robertus Litton, Chivalers.
- 8 West. Helmingus Leget, Ricardus Barnard.
- 9 (12 Pryn.) Glouc. Willielmus Coggeshale, Willielmus Marny Chivaler, Johannes Tyrell, per Indent. Helmingus Leget.

HENRY V.

- 1 P. West. Johannes Doreward, Johannes Tyrell, per Indent.
- 2 Willielmus Swinburn, Ricardus Baynard per Indent.
- 2 Leic. Willielmus Coggeshale Chivaler, Johannes Doreward.
- 3 West. Robertus Darcy, Johannes Tyrell per Indent.

- 5 Gerardus Braybroks, Walterus Tyrell per Indent.
- 8 Glouc. Willielmus Marny, Helming. Leget, per Indent.
- 9 (8 Pryn.) West. Willielmus Coggeshal, Lodovicus Johan. per Indent.
- 9 Willielmus Coggeshal Miles, Ricardus Baynard per Indent.

HENRY VI.

- 1 P. West. Willielmus Coggeshale Chlr: Johannes Tyrell per Indent.
- 3 Johannes Tirrel, Robertus Darcy per Indent.
- 4 (5 Pryn.) Leic. Ricardus Baynard, } or Lewis John, Edward Tirrel per } Robt: Darcy.
Indent.
- 6 West.
- 8 (7 Pryn.) Johannes Tyrell, Thomas Tyrell Armig: per Indent.
- 9 John Tyrell, Lewis John.
- 12
- 13 Edward Tirell, Thomas Tozell per Indent.
- 15 Cambr.
- 20 West. Thomas Tirell Armig. Thomas Tozell Armig. per Indent.
- 25 Camb. Thomas Tyrell, Thomas Finderne per Indent.
- 27 West. Thomas Tyrell Miles, Johannes Godmanston Armig. per Indent.
- 28 West. Clement Spyce, Armig: Willielmus Tyrell jun: Armig: per Indent.
- 29 West. Willielmus Tyrell Armig. Willielmus Dury Armig. per Indent.
- 31 Reading, Thomas Thorp, John Doreward.
- 33 Willielmus Tyrell, Johannes Grene, per Indent.
- 38 West. Thomas Tyrell, Lewis John.
- 39 West. John Bishop.

EDWARD IV.

- 7 (6 Pryn.) West. Thomas Montgomery Miles, Willielmus Wryttell Armig: per Indent.
- 12 Ricardus Home Armig: Walterus Wryttell Armig: per Indent.
- 17 Thomas Montgomery, Kt. Thomas Tyrell.

The Writs, Returns, and Indentures, from 17 Edw. IV. to the 1st of Edw. VI. (except an imperfect Bundle of 33 H. VIII.) are all lost throughout England.

HENRY VIII.

- 31 P. West.
- 33 William Petre.
- EDWARD VI.
- 1 P. West. William Petre Knt. Tho. Darcy Esq;
- 7 John Gate, Kt. William Petre, Kt.

MARY.

- 1 P. West. Rob. Rochester Esq; William Petre Kt.
- 1 P. at Oxford. The same.

PHILIP and MARY.

- 1 & 2 The same.
- 2 & 3 P. West. The same.
- 4 & 5 Will. Petre Kt. Edw. Walgrave Kt.

ELIZABETH.

- 1 P. West. William Petre Kt. Antony Cooke, Kt.
- 5 The same.
- 13 Tho. Smith Kt. Tho. Mildmay Kt.

INTRODUCTION.

14	Tho. Smith Kt.	Tho. Barrington Kt.	7
27	Tho. Henneage Kt.	John Petre Kt.	8
28	The same.		8
31	Tho. Heneage Kt.	Henry Gray Kt.	9
35	Tho. Heneage Kt.	Ric. Warren Esq;
39	Will. Petre Esq;	John Wentworth, Esq;	12
43	Hen. Maynard Esq;
	Franc. Barrington Esq;

JAMES I.

1	P. West.	Edw. Denny Kt.	Franc. Barrington Kt.
12		Theophilus Ld.	Howard of Walden.
		Gamaliel Capel Kt.
18		Francis Barrington Bart.
		John Deane Kt.
21		Franc. Barrington Kt. and Bart.
		Tho. Cheke Kt.

CHARLES I.

1	P. West.	Franc. Barrington Kt. and Bart.
		Arthur Harris Kt.
1		Franc. Barrington Kt. and Bart.
		Harbottle Grimston Kt. and Bart.
3		The same.
15		The same.
16		Martin Lumley Kt. and Bart.
		William Maffam Bart.
1654		Thirteen Knights were then chose for the County.
1656		Thirteen Knights, as above.
		Chosen Sept. 12. To meet Sept. 17.
1658-9		Chosen Jan. 18. To meet the 27th.

CHARLES II.

		The writ was directed from the Keepers of the Liberty of England, by authority of Parliament. Two Knights only chosen.
12	P. West.	John Bramston, Edward Turnor, Esqrs.
13		Sir Benjamin Ayloffe Bart. John Bramston Esq; Banistre Maynard, Sir John Bramston Kt. of the Bath.
31		Sir Eliab Harvey Kt.
		Henry Mildmay Esq;
31		Henry Mildmay Esq;
		John-Lamotte Honywood Esq;
32	P. Oxford,	Henry Mildmay Esq;
		John-Lamotte Honywood Esq;

JAMES II.

1	P. West.	Sir William Maynard Bart.
		Sir Thomas Fanshaw Kt.

WILLIAM and MARY.

1	P. West.	Henry Mildmay, John Wroth Esqrs.
		Henry Mildmay deceased, in whose room John-Lamotte Honywood.
2		Sir Francis Maffam
		Sir Charles Barrington Bart.

WILLIAM III.

7	P. West.	Sir Charles Barrington Bart.
		Sir Francis Maffam Bart.
10		Sir Charles Barrington Bart.
		Edw. Bullock, Esq;
12		Sir Charles Barrington Bart.
		Sir Francis Maffam Bart.
13		The same.

ANNE.

1	P. West.	Sir Charles Barrington Bart.
		Sir Francis Maffam Bart.
4		Sir Francis Maffam Bart.
		Henry Lord Walden, a Peer, in his room,
		Tho. Middleton Esq;

	Sir Francis Maffam Bart.
	Thomas Middleton Esq;
	The same.
	Sir Richard Child Bart.
	Thomas Middleton Esq;
	Sir Richard Child Bart.
	Sir Charles Barrington Bart.

GEORGE I.

1	P. West.	Sir Ric. Child Bart. Visc. Castlemaine
		Thomas Middleton Esq; dyed. }
		Robert Honywood Esq; }
8		William Harvey Esq;
		Robert Honywood Esq;

GEORGE II.

1	P. West.	Sir Rich. Child Lord Visc. Castlemaine.
		Sir Robert Abdy Bart.
1734		Sir Robert Abdy Bart.
		Thomas Bramston Esq;
1741		The same.
1747		Sir Robert Abdy Bart.
		William Harvey Esq;
1754		Sir John Abdy Bart.
		William Harvey Esq;
		In the room of Sir J. Abdy, deceased,
		Sir Wm. Maynard Bart.

GEORGE III.

1761		Sir William Maynard Bart.
		William Harvey Esq;
1763		In the room of Wm. Harvey, deceased,
		John Luther Esq;

BURGESSES for MALDEN.

EDWARD III.

2	P. North.	Johannes Palmere,
		Willielmus de Halle.
6		Willielmus de Packesham,
		Rogerus de Maldon.
7		Willielmus de Packesham,
		Johannes Ivot.
8		The same.
9	P. West.	Willielmus de Pakesham,
		Johannes de Brotewell.
9		Johannes Ivot,
		Johannes de London.
10	Counc. Nott.	Willielmus de Packesham,
		Thomas Beler.
10		Willielmus de Pakefham,
		Johannes de Brotewell.
11		Willielmus de Pakefham,
		Johannes Hyronn.
11	P. West.	Willielmus Packeshame,
		Johannes Ivot.
11		Willielmus Pakefeshame,
		Johannes Palmere.
12		Robertus de Maldon,
		Willielmus Pakeshame,
12		Willielmus Pakesham,
		Willielmus Chapman.
14		Willielmus de Pakesham,
		Petrus le Palmer.
14		The same.
15		Willielmus Pakeshame,
		Willielmus Chapman.

INTRODUCTION.

xv

20 Petrus Palmer,
Johannes Auger.
21 The same.
22 Johannes Long,
Amefius le Palmer.
29 Willielmus Malden,
Johannes Auger.
31 Johannes Parker,
Thomas Short.
34 Johannes Parkere,
Johannes Cobbe.
34 Johannes Hancock,
Thomas Short.
36 Willielmus Malden,
Willielmus Halle.
37 Johannes Parker,
Johannes Mepham.
38 Johannes Palmere.
39 Johannes Grete,
Willielmus Halle.
43 Johannes Banbury,
Willielmus Halle.
45 Johannes Palmere,
Willielmus de Halle.
47 Willielmus Sherward,
Henricus Hales.
51 Johannes Crakebone.
Henricus Hale.

RICHARD II.

2 Robertus Wightman,
Petrus Goldington,
3 Thomas de Malden,
Johannes Reed.
6 Thomas Walden,
Thomas Wrenche.
7 Petrus le Man,
Johannes Dyere.
7 Thomas Wrench,
Thomas Maldon.
8 Thomas Maldon,
Ricardus Bushe.
9 Ricardus Bushe,
Johannes Crakebone.
10 Ricardus Bushe,
Johannes Glover.
Johannes Dyer,
Henricus Hales.
13 Johannes Skinner,
Johannes Joce.
15 Johannes Wells,
Johannes Page.
16 Johannes Skinner,
Johannes Glover.
20 Johannes Glover,
Johannes Joce.

HENRY IV.

1 Johannes Joce,
Johannes Crakebone.
3 Johannes Page.
4 Thomas Maldon,
Johannes Page,
Thomas Paffe.
5 Johannes Burgeys,
Thomas Paffe.
12 Johannes Floure,
Johannes Burgeys.

HENRY V.

1 Johannes Burgeys,
Ricardus Galon.
2 Johannes Floure,
Johannes Hotofte.
3 Johannes Burgeys,
Ricardus Galon. The same again.

5 Thomas Paffe,
Ricardus Coupere.
7 Johannes Flour,
Robertus Peynter.
8 Johannes Burgeys,
Ricardus Gallon.
9 Willielmus Burgh,
Willielmus Gore.

HENRY VI.

1 Robertus Darcy,
Ricardus Gallon.
2 Ricardus Gallon,
Rogerus Bowd.
3 Johannes Cooper,
Ricardus Gallon.
6 Johannes Burgeys,
Johannes Tyrell.
7 Willielmus Allewyne,
Johannes Burgeys.
11 Willielmus Allewene,
Ricardus Gallon.
13 Thomas Lamb,
Ricardus King.
20 Johannes Swayne,
Willielmus Holcote.
25 Robertus Burgeys,
Ricardus Sillingham.
27 Johannes Swayne,
Johannes Worthy.
28 Robertus Burgeys,
Willielmus Howote.
29 Johannes Swayne,
Johannes Worthy.
33 Walterus Writell,
Thomas Fuller.

EDWARD IV.

7 Thomas Drakys,
Jacobus Wright.
12 Willielmus Pestell, Willielmus Alben.

EDWARD VI.

1 Clem. Smyth Kt.
Hen. Dawes Gent.
7 Henry Fortescue Esq;
Walter Mildmay Knt. in whose place,
deceased; Antony Browne Esq;

MARY.

1 Ant. Browne,
Johan. Raymer.
1 Tho. Hungate Esq;
Edw. Tirrell Esq;
1, 2 Ant. Browne Esq;
John Wiseman of Canfield.
2, 3 Hen. Radcliff Kt.
Richard Weston Esq;
4 and 5 Roger Appleton,
Edw. Tyrrell Esq; in whose place, deceased, Hen. Golding Esq;

ELIZABETH.

1 Humfrey Radcliff,
Henry Golding.
5 John Latham,
Richard Argell Gent.
Geo. Blithe Gent.
Gabriel Crofts Esq;
13 Tho. Gente Esq;
Vinc. Harris Esq; In his room deceased,
Edw. Sulyard Esq;
Edw. Lewkner Esq;
27 Will. Wiseman Esq;

28 John Butler Esq;
Edw. Lewknor Esq;
31 John Butler Esq;
William Verdon Esq;
35 Tho. Mildmay Esq; Son of Sir Thomas;
Edw. Lewknor Esq;
39 Tho. Herry's Esq;
William Wiseman Esq;
43 William Wiseman Esq;
Richard Weston Esq;

JAMES I.

1 Edw. Lewknor. In his place, deceased,
Theophilus, Lord Howard of Walden, William Wiseman Esq; In his place, deceased, John Sandys Kt.
12 Edward Lewknor Kt.
Robert Rich Kt. in Lord Walden's room, chosen for Essex.
18 Tho. Cheek Kt.
Edw. Grimston Esq;
21 Arthur Harris Kt.
William Mafham Bart.

CHARLES I.

1 William Mafham Bart.
Hen. Mildmay Kt.
1 William Mafham Bart.
Tho. Cheke Kt.
3 Henry Mildmay Kt.
Arthur Harris Kt.
15 Henry Mildmay Kt.
John Porter Esq; Recorder.
16 Henry Mildmay Kt.
John Clotworthy Kt.
1654 One Burge's only.
1656 The same.

CHARLES II.

12 Edward Harris,
Hen. Mildmay Kt.
Sir Richard Wiseman Kt. and Bart.
Sir John Tyrell Bart.
31 Sir Richard Wiseman,
Sir John Braham.
31 Sir Richard Wiseman,
Sir Thomas Darcy Bart.

JAMES II.

1 John Bramston Esq;
Sir Thomas Darcy,

WILLIAM and MARY.

1 Sir Thomas Darcy,
Charles Montague Esq;
2 Charles Montague,
Sir Eliab Harvey Kt.

WILLIAM III.

Irby Montague Esq;
Sir Eliab Harvey.
7 The same.
10 The same.
12 William Fytch,
John Comyns, Esquires.
13 The same.

ANNE.

1 William Fytch Esq;
John Comyns Esq;
4 The same.
7 Sir Richard Child Bart.
Thomas Richmond Esq;

8 John Comyns Esq;
Tho. Richmond Esq; died,
William Fytch Esq;
9 John Comyns Esq;
Thomas Bramston Esq;
12 The same.

GEORGE I.

1 P. West. Thomas Bramston Esq;
Samuel Tufnell Esq;
8 John Comyns, Serjeant at Law,
Thomas Bramston Esq;

GEORGE II.

1 Thomas Bramston Esq;
Henry Parsons Esq;
7 Henry Parsons Esq;
Col. Bladen.
14 Sir Thomas Drury Bart.
Robert Colebrook Esq;
20 Sir Richard Lloyd Kt.
R. Colebrook Esq;
27 R. Colebrook Esq;
John Bullock Esq;

GEORGE III.

1 John Bullock Esq;
Bamber Gascoigne Esq;
Upon vacating it by a Place,
John Huske Esq;

BURGESSES for HARWICH.

This Burgh, which was made so in 1319, (13 Edw. II.) having made one Return in 1343, was impriviledged by K. James I. 1604, through the Means of Sir Edward Coke, Kt. to send Members to Parliament.

EDWARD III.

17 Joh. But,
Thomas de Eton, Burg. Ville de Herewico.

JAMES I.

21 Westm. Nath. Rich Kt.
Christopher Harris Esq;

CHARLES I.

1 Edmund Sawyer Kt.
Christopher Harris Esq;
1 Nath. Rich Kt.
Christopher Harris Esq;
3 The same.
15 Tho. Cheke Kt.
John Jacobs Kt.
16 Harbottle Grimston Kt. and Bart.
Thomas Cheke Kt.
Capell Luckyn Esq;

CHARLES II.

12 Capell Luckyn Esq;
Henry Wright Esq;
13 Henry Wright Kt. and Bart.
Tho. King Esq;
30 Antony Deane Esq;
Samuel Pepys Esq;
31 Thomas Middleton Kt.
Philip Parker Kt.
32 Oxford. Philip Parker Bart.
Tho. Middleton Kt.

JAMES II.		9	Kendrick Edisberry Esq;
1 West.	Antony Deane Esq;	12	Thomas Frankland Esq;
	Samuel Pepys Esq;		Carew Harvey, al' Mildmay, Esq;
			Sir Thomas Davall. In his place, unduly elected, Kend. Edisberry, Esq;
WILLIAM and MARY.
1	Thomas Middleton Kt.	1	GEORGE I.
	John Eldred Esq;		Benedict-Leonard Calvert Esq;
2	Hon. Charles Cheyne, Visc. Newhaven.		Tho. Heath Esq;
	Thomas Middleton Kt.		In Calvert's place,
		8	Sir Philip Parker Bart.
			Philip Parker Bart.
			Humfrey Parsons Esq;
WILLIAM III.
7	Thomas Davall,		GEORGE II.
	Tho. Middleton, Kts.		Philip Parker Bart.
10	Thomas Davall Kt.		John Viscount Percival.
	Samuel Atkinson, Esq; Expelled the	1	Carteret Leathes,
	House, and chosen in his room		Charles Stanhope, Esquires.
	Thomas Middleton Kt.	7	John Philipson,
12	Thomas Davall Kt.		Hill Muffenden, Esquires.
	Dennis Lyddell Esq;	14	John Philipson Esq;
13	The same.	20	Lord Coke.
			Wenman Coke,
		27	Thomas Sewell, Esquires.
ANNE.
1	Thomas Davall Kt.		GEORGE III.
	John Ellis Esq;		Charles Townshend,
4	The same,		John Roberts, Esquires.
7	John Leake Kt.	1	In Townshend's place, deceased,
	Tho. Frankland Esq;		Thomas Bradshaw Esq;
	Tho. Davall, in Sir John Leake's place, chosen for Rochester.

§ 13. The several DIVISIONS of the COUNTY.

The largest DIVISION is into Twenty Parts, Fourteen of which are called Hundreds, Five Half-Hundreds, and a Royal Liberty, that of Havering.

The XIV HUNDREDS are,

Barstable	—	—	32
Chafford	—	—	14
Chelmsford	—	—	30
Dengey	—	—	23
Dunmow	—	—	26
Hinckford	—	—	47
Lexden	—	—	30
Ongar	—	—	26
Rochford	—	—	24
Tendring	—	—	31
Thurstable	—	—	10
Utlesford	—	—	26
Winstree	—	—	12
Witham	—	—	14

The V Half-Hundreds, are

Becontree	—	9
Clavering	—	5
Froshwell	—	9
Harlow	—	11
Waltham	—	4

To which add

Havering Liberty.	—	1 [H]
-------------------	---	-------

These are subdivided into Parishes and Towns.

The PARISHES are in Number Four Hundred, including the Sixteen in Colchester [I].

The TOWNS are Berking, Billerca, Braintree, Burntwood, Chelmsford, Chipping-Ongar, Coggeshall, Colchester, Dunmow, Epping, Greys-Thurrock, Halsted, Harlow, Harwich, Hatfeild-Broad-Oak, Ingatestone, Maldon, Maningtree, Rayley, Rochford, Romford, Thaxted, Walden, Waltham-Abbey, and Witham.

They are all stiled Market-Towns; but some of the inland ones, particularly Harlow, Hatfeild, and Thaxted, hardly deserve that name.

In the ancientest Division of Britain mentioned by Historians, this District was part of the Kingdom of the Trinobantes.

The Romans, after they had conquered and driven them into the western and northern inaccessible parts of the Island, divided their Acquisitions into Britannia Prima, and Secunda; which was done by the Emperor Severus. Afterwards Constantine the Great divided them into Four parts, subdividing Britannia Prima into Flavia Caesariensis, and Maxima Caesariensis. To which Theodosius, General under the Emperor Valens, added a fifth Province, and called it Valencia (u).

(u) See Camden's Britan. in the Introduct. and History of Colchester, p. 27. 33.

[H] The figures after them denote the number of Parishes in each.

[I] Br. Willis, in his Parochiale Anglicanum, p. 42, makes the Total of Churches and Chapels in this County to be 424; but, even according to his list, there are but 400 Parish Churches, and 18 Chapels.

This District was then within Flavia Casariensis.

Upon the final departure of the Romans from this Island in the Year 434, the old Inhabitants returned again to their former Habitations. But it being their natural Temper to be always upon the extremes, and not to keep to that due Moderation, which is the foundation of all Virtue as well as Happiness; they soon broke into furious Factions, and being grown ungovernable and lawless, the direful expedient was devised by their King Vortigern, to call in the Saxons to his protection and assistance, in the year 449.

But the Saxons, from Auxiliaries growing soon Masters of the Country, they divided it among themselves, on or about the year 477. And by degrees made so absolute a Conquest, as hardly was ever known. For they did not only drive the old inhabitants into corners and the remotest parts, and planted themselves into their seats; not by small colonies, but as it were by whole swarms; a point in great conquests rarely done: But they abolished the old names of Cities, Towns, and whole Countries, imposing new ones of their own. Nay, the Language itself they not only altered, but utterly abolished; and for a perfect consummation of their Conquest, they did at last also change the name of the whole Island itself from Britain to England (w).

The present allotments and boundaries of the Parishes, with the Names of them, are therefore all in general Saxon, and were fixed by that people.

This leads me to give some Account and Explanation of the Names of the Parishes.

The Woods and the Rivers, according to Mr. Thoresby, retained their ancient British appellations (x); and therefore the names taken from them must consequently be also British.

These form sometimes the first Part of the Names, which are also taken from some ancient owners or lords; but, upon the whole, they are not so easily discoverable as the latter part, or the Terminations. These are usually taken from, and denote, the Situation of the Place, or the nature of the Soil.

For instance, some end in Bridge, where there is or hath been one.

Burg, Burh, or Byrig, denoting a city, fortification, court, or house.

Burn, or Bourn, a brook.

Den, a valley.

Dun, or Don, a hill.

Ea, or Ey, water; or island, from ige.

Feild.

Ford, where there was a noted or well-known one.

Hall, a hall, or capital mansion.

Ham, a house, a village, a town, a farm; whence the word home.

Heath, a heath.

Hou, or Hoo, a hill, rising ground.

Hyrst, a wood.

Ing, a meadow, or low pasture.

Land.

Ley, upland pasture, untilled ground; still called the Lays in many places.

Lowe, an artificial mound, or hill.

Mere, or More, a fen, or pool.

Minster, a church, or monastery.

Oak.

Sted, and Stow, place.

Stack, stocks or trunks of trees.

Tun, or Ton, a town, village, fence, inclosure, farm, dwelling.

Weald, a wood.

Well, a well.

Wic, a castle, fortress, dairy-farm.

Wood.

Worth, from worthig, a village, a street, a croft.

In Ford, in Ham, in Ley, and Tun,

The most of English surnames run. (y)

§ 14. The Number of INHABITANTS could best be guess'd at, by having the exact Number of Houses, or rather Families; which I have not been able to obtain.

According to Dr. Templeman's Survey, the number of Houses in Essex, is 34,819; and the number of Souls, 208,800.

Others make the number of Houses to amount to 40,545. Rather than decreasing they have increased in some places, as near London, at the Thorn in Mistley, &c.

According to the Militia Act, all that were able to bear Arms in this County, by the first List, were 29,590. And by the second List, 23,751.

The Number of Freeholders that voted for Knights of the Shire in 1724, was 4683—in 1763, 5125.

The whole Number of Voters, in the Polls printed in 1711 and 1734, are not particularly specified.

§ 15. This County is RATED high to the Land-tax, which bears very hard upon some decayed Towns and Places. In 1691, the Inhabitants having more Zeal than Foresight, and being made to believe, That the Land-tax would be but of short continuance, were induced thereby to give high Estimates of their Estates. But where the Lands have been much improved within these 50 years past, the Land-tax is very easy.

By a List often printed, Essex pays 24 Parts, of the 513 Parts all the Counties in England are rated at.

The Sum the whole County pays, at 1 s. in the pound, is 22,358 l. 19 s. 10 d. $\frac{3}{4}$.

And the several Hundreds, as follows:

			l.	s.	d.
Barstable	—	—	1321	18	0
Becontree	—	—	1617	14	9
Chafford	—	—	775	9	9
Chelmsford	—	—	1879	9	6 $\frac{1}{2}$
Clavering	—	—	354	13	3
Dengey	—	—	1021	11	9

(w) See W. Hakewill, in Collection of curious Discourses, p. 5, 6.
(y) Verstegan, p. 295.

(x) History of Leedes, Preface, p. 9.

INTRODUCTION.

xix

	l.	s.	d.
Dunmow	1263	13	0
Froshwell	596	0	10
Harlow	885	10	4
Hinckford	2936	1	0
Lexden	2083	4	11½
Ongar	1459	18	9
Rochford	932	6	6
Tendring	1160	16	5½
Thurstable	357	18	7¼
Utlesford	1226	5	4
Waltham, with its several Hamlets,	780	18	2
Winstree	382	0	7½
Witham	806	2	7½
Havering Liberty, with its several Wards,	517	5	7

Not having been able to procure this List before the Hundreds of Chelmsford, Witham, and Lexden were printed; by which means the Sums each Parish pays to the Land-tax are not set down in those Hundreds as in the rest of the Book, I shall set down here the Sum each Parish pays at 1 s. in the Pound, from whence may be calculated what they are rated at.

Chelmsford Hundred.

	l.	s.	d.
Badow-Great	117	18	6
Badow-Little	36	8	9
Blackmore	76	5	0
Boreham	88	16	0
Bromfeild	43	14	0
Chelmsford	131	12	3
Chicknall St. James	20	0	0
Chicknall Smeeley	9	16	6
Danbury	31	5	0
Frierning	43	17	0
Haningfeild East	45	18	0
Haningfeild West	59	8	0
Haningfeild South	21	17	0
Ingatstone	63	7	0
Lees Great	20	17	0
Lees Little	19	7	0
Margaret-ing	54	6	0
Mountneys-ing	78	9	0
Moultham	52	4	0
Rettingdon	55	17	0
Roxwell	85	2	6½
Newlands Fee Hamlet there	9	16	0
Runwell	31	18	0
Sandon	44	15	0
Springfeild	88	6	6
Stock, and Butsbury	84	18	0
Waltham-Great	165	9	0
Waltham-Little	46	16	0
Widford	14	3	0
Woodham-Ferrers	52	4	0
Writtle	184	18	6

Witham Hundred.

	l.	s.	d.
Bradwell	20	8	0
Braxsted Great	42	11	4½
Braxsted Little	11	13	0
Chatley Hamlet	31	10	0
Coggeshall Hamlet	42	19	4½

	l.	s.	d.
Creffing	48	5	6
Fairsted	31	8	6
Falkborn	21	8	0
Hatfeild Peverell	97	16	8
Kelvedon	83	13	3
Notley-Black	43	1	0
Notley-White	49	14	6
Rivenhall	62	10	0
Terling	60	15	6
Ulting	28	8	9
Witham	129	19	2½

Lexden Hundred.

	l.	s.	d.
Aldham	37	9	3
Bergholt West	42	7	6
Birch	48	7	3
Boxted	57	7	6
Bures, ad mont.	30	12	6
Chapel	25	17	6
Coggeshal, Great	129	13	7½
Colchester	711	6	6¼
Colne-Earls	68	7	6
Colne-Engain	50	4	6
Colne-Wake	49	16	1½
Colne-White	30	17	0
Copford	47	8	3
Dedham	107	10	10½
Doniland, East	17	9	0
Eastthorp	21	8	3
Feering	71	16	0
Fordham	53	15	7½
Horksley, Great	55	3	9
Horksley, Little	20	8	0
Inworth	22	2	6
Langham	56	7	6½
Markshall	12	5	0
Messing	45	4	5¾
Pattiswick	30	8	3
Stanway	40	9	6
Tey, Great and Little	65	11	6
Tey, Marks	26	6	0
Wivenhou	56	8	7½
Wormingford	51	5	0
Halsted	189	4	11½

High-Roding, which was omitted, in Vol. II. p. 467, is rated to the land-tax at 1047 l. 2s. 6d.

Some parts are rated by themselves, as Doddinghurst-list, and the Geldables; concerning which, see the First Volume, of this History, p. 192, 255.

When Ship-money was imposed in the last century, the proportion charged on Essex was,

	l.
One Ship of 640 tons, 256 men	8000
Burrough of Thaxted	40
Town and parish of Walden	80
Town of Colchester	400
Burrough of Malden	80
Burrough of Harwich	20

§ 16. The ANCIENTEST STATE of this County is very little known. All that can be said concerning it must be deduced from the Manners and Customs of the first Planters.

This

This part of the Kingdom was peopled by Colonies of Celts and Gauls from the opposite Continent. In conformity to what we read of those people, we may take it for granted, that this Country was divided into several States, or Principalities; governed by Magistrates, which in some places were annually chosen. But, in case of war, they elected a General, or Commander in chief. They had a Senate, or Public Council: naturally were infinitely fond of Liberty, and abhorred and detested Slavery. And Parties and Factions, the effect of Liberty, prevailed in all their communities, villages, and even houses (z).

As they had no writers or historians of their own; therefore all we know concerning this Country, must be taken from their first Conquerors, the Romans; especially from Julius Cæsar.

What occurs in him and the other Roman and Greek Historians concerning Britain, or this District in particular, is collected together in the History of Colchester (a); consequently it would be superfluous to repeat it here: Especially as I propose to have that History bound in the first Volume of this, after the Introduction.

The ROMAN Conquest was one of the four grand Revolutions in this Kingdom, and in this County among the rest.

The three others were caused by the Saxons, the Danes, and the Normans.

§ 17. For a more particular account of the SAXON Revolution, I beg leave also to refer to the History of Colchester.

I shall only here observe, That this Country having been extorted from Vortigern by Hengist, after the Massacre of the British Lords, was erected into a Kingdom by Erchenwin, the first King; who began his reign in 527, and dyed in 587. His successors, were,

Sledda, who dyed	_____	in
Sæbyrht,	_____	in	616
Saxred, Siward, and Sigebriht, kill'd		in	623
Sigebriht the Little, dyed		about	653
Sigebright the Good, assassinated		in	655
Swithelm

(z) Cæsar de Bello Gallico, l. iii. c. 10. 17. 22. Lib. iv. c. 6. 11. Lib. v. c. 5. & 27. Lib. vi. c. 11. 20. Lib. vii. c. 63. (a) Book I.

[K] How much was paid for Danegeld, see in this Volume, p. 229. Note.

[L] To describe it in Mr. James Thomson's elegant lines:

‘ Compendious war! (on Britain's glory bent,
 ‘ So fate ordain'd) in that decisive day,
 ‘ The haughty Norman seiz'd at once an isle,
 ‘ For which, thro' many a century, in vain,
 ‘ The Roman, Saxon, Dane, had toil'd, and bled.
 ‘ Awhile my Spirit slept; the land awhile,
 ‘ Affrighted, droop'd beneath despotic rage.
 ‘ Instead of Edward's equal gentle laws,
 ‘ The furious victor's partial will prevail'd.
 ‘ All prostrate lay; and in the secret shade,
 ‘ Deep-stung but fearful indignation gnash'd
 ‘ His teeth. Of Freedom, Property, despoil'd,
 ‘ And of their bulwark, Arms; with Castles crush'd,
 ‘ With Ruffians quarter'd o'er the bridled land;
 ‘ The shivering wretches, at the Curfew sound,
 ‘ Dejected shrunk into their fordid beds,
 ‘ And, thro' the mournful gloom, of antient times
 ‘ Mus'd sad, or dreamt of better. Even to seed

Sibbi and Sighere. The latter dyed	in	683
Sibbi turned Monk	in	694
Sigehard and Senfrid dyed	about	705
Offa, turned Monk	in	707
Selred killed	in	746
Swithred

After him, there were a few other Kings, whose names are not recorded. For, of all the Kingdoms of the Saxon Heptarchy, there is none whose History is so imperfect as that of the Kingdom of Essex.

After the Dissolution of the Heptarchy, it submitted to K. Ecbryht with the rest, in 823: and continued under the dominion of his successors, Ethelwulph; Ethelbald, and Ethelbert; Ethelred; Alfred; Edward, the elder; Athelstan; Edmund; Edred; Edwi; Edgar; Edward, the younger; and Ethelred.

§ 18. From the year 787 to 1013, it was cruelly harassed by the frequent Descents and Depredations of the DANES; to whom they meanly submitted to pay tribute [K]. At length they became Masters of England, which from 1016 to 1042 was governed by four of their Kings, Swægn; Edmund Ironside; Cnut; Harold; and Hardicnut.

But they do not appear to have made any considerable Alteration in the Saxon Government, or Policy.

Under Edward the Confessor, and Harold II. the Saxon line was restored in this Kingdom: But unhappily was of too short a continuance.

§ 19. The greatest Revolution, and the most sensible Alteration of Property in this Kingdom, was by the NORMAN Conquest of William the Bastard, in 1066 [L].

Warm Disputes there have been about the Point, Whether he really conquered this Kingdom [M].

He was not so impolitic indeed as to come here under the odious name of a Conqueror, but invented, or made use, of a pretended Nomination, or illegal Will, of that weak Prince, K. Edward the Confessor [N]. ‘ And, as other

‘ A tyrant's idle sport the peasant starv'd:
 ‘ To the wild herd, the pasture of the tame,
 ‘ The chearful hamlet, spiry town, was given,
 ‘ And the brown forest roughen'd wide around!’

Liberty, Part IV. ver. 737, &c.

[M] See Cook's Argumentum Anti-Normannicum, Dr. R. Brady's Answer to it, in his Introduction to the Old English History, p. 235, &c. Ja. Tyrrell's Introduction to his Second Volume of the History of England.

[N] That most elegant Writer, the Right Hon. Lord Lytelton, rightly observes, that William the Conqueror's claim was grounded upon so weak or false a foundation, as the supposititious Promise or Nomination of that weak Prince Edward the Confessor, not even authenticated by his last will, and his will itself, had it been made in favour of William, without the ratification of the Great Council, would not have been obligatory to the people of England. It is therefore most evident, that the attempt of the Duke of Normandy was an unjust violation of the rights of the English. — So far was he from grounding his own title to the Crown upon a supposed Right of Conquest, that he used his utmost endea

‘ Usurpers

‘ Usurpers had done before him, helped out a bad Title, and hallowed an enterprize very unjust in itself, by the Papal benediction (b).’

However, That he really Conquered the English, is undeniable: for, if to land into a Kingdom with a numerous armed Force; if to kill and destroy all that oppose him, if to take possession by those violent Means of the Government, and seize the Possessions of the former Inhabitants, the rightful Owners, be not a Conquest, I know not what is.

But, as real Matter of Fact is the best Proof, I shall shew that all the Lords or Owners of the Lands in this County, except one or two, were dispossessed of them by that usurping Tyrant. And for this I shall appeal to an unquestionable Authority, that of Domesday-book [O].

But how can it be pretended, that William made no Conquest, when there hath been such a lasting Proof it in the Military Tenures he instituted; and still remaining in the Copyholds; which, if there had been any Justice in the then Legislature, when the other Tenures were taken away, ought to have been thus far abolished, as to have been made redeemable, and to be enfranchised at any time, upon a certain set and reasonable Price tendered and paid?

Not only the Civil, but also the Ecclesiastical Constitution, underwent a great Alteration at the Norman Conquest [P]. His fawning Chaplain, William Pictavenfis, of Poitiers, or Poictou, indeed says, That nothing was given by him to any Frenchman, which was unjustly taken from the English [Q]. But to so interested a Writer we shall oppose the Authority of a number of more credible Witnesses: Particularly that of Ingulph, his contemporary, who affirms, that he distributed all the Counties, Baronies, Bishoprics, and Prelacies, among the Normans, and hardly permitted any Englishman to enjoy any place of honor or trust [R].

The very name of Conquest was at certain times such a Bug-bear, that it could not even be mentioned without the utmost danger. For Bishop Burnet having asserted, in a Pastoral Letter (c), That, ‘ upon the Prince of Orange’s coming, here was a war begun upon just and lawful grounds, and a war being so begun, it is the uncontroverted opinion of all Lawyers, “ That the success of a just war gives a lawful title to that which is acquired in the progress of it.” Therefore King James having so far sunk in the war, that he both abandoned his People, and deserted the Government, all his Right and Title did accrue to the King [William] in the right of a Conquest over him.’ For this passage, that Letter was ordered by the House of Commons, 21 January 1692-3, to be publickly burnt; with a Book then newly published, by . . . Blount, intitled King William and Qu. Mary Conquerors.

(b) Lord Lyttelton, Life of K. Henry II. Vol. I. p. 10. Rt. Rev. Father in God Gilbert, Lord Bishop of Sarum, to the and Supremacy to K. William and Q. Mary. Lond. 1689. 4°. The passage is in page 21. It seems the Bishop’s Letter was sacrificed to a pun; for some of the members having call’d vours to establish the notion of his being heir to K. Edward, from the appointment of that monarch.——He soon afterwards confiscated the estates of all the English who had fought against him at Hastings, and gave them to the Normans, and other foreigners in his service. Life of Henry II. vol. I. p. 8, 9. 28, 29.

(c) The title of it was, A Pastoral Letter writ by the Clergy of his Diocese, concerning the Oaths of Allegiance. The passage is in page 21. It seems the Bishop’s Letter out Burn-it, the cry went immediately round the House.

[O] According to that valuable Record, the Lords and Owners of all the Lands in this County, were, Tit. 1. W. Rex Anglorum. 2. Scā Trinitas Cantorbiria. 3. Episcopus Londoniensis. 4. Feudum ejusdem Episcopi. 5. Canonici Scī Pauli. 6. Abbatia de Westmonasterio. 7. Episcopus Dunelmensis. 8. Canonici de Waltham. 9. Abbatia de Berchingis. 10. Abbatia de Eli. 11. Abbatia Scī Edmundi. 12. Canonici Scī Martini Londoniensis. 13. Abbatia de Bello. 14. Scūs Walericus. 15. Abbatia Scē Trinitatis de Cadomo. 16. Abbatia Scī Stephani de eodem. 17. Abbatia Scī Andoeni. 18. Episcopus Baiocensis. 19. Episcopus Herefordensis. 20. Comes Eustachius. 21. Comes Alanus. 22. W. de Warena. 23. Ricardus filius Comitiss Gisleberti. 24. Suenus de Exelfia. 25. Eudo Dapifer. 26. Rogerus de Oubervilla. 27. Hugo de Montfort. 28. Hamo Dapifer. 29. Henricus de Ferrariis. 30. Goisfridus de Magna villa. 31. Comes de Ou. 32. Robertus Greno. 33. Radulfus Baignard. 34. Ranulfus Piperellus. 35. Albericus de Ver. 36. Petrus Valonienfis. 37. Ranulfus frater Igeri. 38. Tiliellus Brito. 39. Rogerus de Ramis. 40. Johannes filius Walerami. 41. Robertus filius Corbutionis. 42. Galterus Diaconus. 43. Rogerus Bigotus. 44. Robertus Malet. 45. Willielmus de Scobies. 46. Rogerus Pictaviensis. 47. Hugo de Gurnai. 48. Willielmus Piperellus. 49. Radulfus de Limefio. 50. Robertus de Todeneio. 51. Radulfus de Todeneio. 52. Walterus de Doai. 53. Matheus Mauritanienfis. 54. Conitissa de Albamarla. 55. Judith Comitissa. 56. Frodo frater Abbatis. 57. Saisselinus. 58. Gislebertus filius Turoldi. 59. Willielmus Leuric. 60. Hugo de Scō Quintino. 61. Edmundus filius Aigoti. 62. Rogerus Marefcallus. 63. Adamus filius Durandi. 64. Goscelinus Loremaris. 65. Johannes nepos Walerami. 66. Willielmus Diaconus. 67. Galterus Cocus. 68. Moquinus. 69. Ilbodo. 70. Haghebern. 71. Tedricus Poincel. 72. Rogerus Deus salvet Dominas. 73. Gislebertus filius Salomonis. 74. Willielmus filius Constantini. 75. An-garus Cocus. 76. Robertus filius Roscelini. 77. Radulfus Linel. 78. Robertus filius Goberti. 79. Rainaldus Balistarius. 80. Gonduinus. 81. Otto Aurifaber. 82. Gislebertus Presbyter. 83. Grimus Prepositus. 84. Ulueva uxor Phin. 85. Eduardus filius Suani. 86. Turchillus Prepositus. 87. Stanardus. 88. Goduinus Diaconus. 89. Liberi Homines Regis. 90. Invasiones super Regem in Excessa.

Some of these Names found like Saxon; namely Moduin, Haghebern, Gonduin, Ulueva, and Stanard: But if we look into the places where they are mention’d, it will appear, that they had the estates of Saxons dispossest.

[P] For he separated the Civil and Ecclesiastical Jurisdctions, which the Saxon Bishops and Earls had exercised jointly in the County Courts, by giving the Bishops a Court of their own.—And the lands of the Bishops and greater Abbots, which had been held before in frank almoigne, or free alms, were by the authority of the whole legislature, in the reign of this Prince, declared to be Baronies, and bound to the same obligations of homage and military service, as the civil Tenures of the like nature, agreeably to the practice in Normandy and France. Lord Lyttelton, p. 43. 50.

That tyrannical usurper’s true character is thus drawn by the same noble Author, in these nervous lines. ‘ Attila himself did not more justly deserve to be named the Scourge of God, than this merciless Norman.—A lust of power, which no regard to justice would limit; the most unrelenting cruelty, and the most insatiable avarice, possessed his soul. —Where he had no advantage nor pride in forgiving, his nature discovered itself to be utterly void of all sense of compassion; and some barbarities which he committed, exceeded the bounds that even tyrants and conquerors prescribed to themselves.’ Idem, p. 50.

[Q] Nulli tamen Gallo datum est, quod Anglo cuiquam injuste fuerit ablatum. Scriptores Normannici, p. 208.

I suppose he thought every thing was justly taken from the English.

[R] Ingulph, ed. 1604. p. 70. See also Saxon Chronic. p. 188. 190, 191. Henry of Huntingdon, p. 370, 371. Matth. Paris, p. 4. 9. 999. Matt. Westm. p. 1. 3. 4. 9. 10. Radmer, p. 6. Sim. Dunelm. col. 201, 202. Bromton, col. 952, 963. 981. W. Malmsb. p. 93. Knyghton, col. 2343.

The Panick was certainly without foundation : For how could the Conquest made in 1066, influence or affect the Government of this Nation ; after the Boundaries between the Prerogative and the Rights and Liberties of Subjects, had been settled and ascertained, by the many subsequent Coronation-oaths ; by the Charters of K. Henry I. K. Stephen, K. Henry II. by the Magna Charta of King John, and K. Henry III. by the repeated Confirmations of it, and of other Liberties, in Statutes 25 and 28 Edw. I. 10 and 14 Edw. III. 1 Henry IV. 4 Henry V. &c. by the Petition and Bill of Right in 1628 ; by the Act of Settlement in 1689 ; by the Statute of Treason ; by the Habeas Corpus Act ; and other salutary Statutes.

So heavy was the burden of Military Tenures [S], that even those Normans, at least their Posterity, who under them enjoyed immense Possessions, were always struggling for some abatement and mollification. This produced several bloody Wars between the Kings and the Barons ; but no very great alteration in the Estates in this County.

§ 20. It appears in the course of this History, what large and valuable possessions the noble Family of BOHUN, Earls of Hereford, Essex, and Northampton had in this County. It will undoubtedly be a pleasure to the Reader to see how they were divided between the two coheirs of that Family, K. Henry V. and Anne Countess of Stafford, in 1421 [T]. By an Act of parliament in 1414, all the Honours, Castles, Maners, and other Estates once belonging to the Bohun family, and which descended to K. Henry V, were severed from the Crown of England, and joined, annexed, and united to the Dutchy of Lancaster for ever.

At present the Revenues of that Dutchy in Essex and Hertfordshire, are 1000 l. a year.

§ 21. The cruel WARS between the Houses of York and Lancaster [U] occasioned several Confiscations, as the respective contending Parties prevailed. Among the rest, it ruined the noble Family of De Vere, Earls of Oxford, and exalted that of Bourchier to the highest degree of power and riches (d).

§ 22. Among other considerable Alterations in Property, one was, The Founding and Endowing great numbers of MONASTERIES, which brought so many capital Estates into mortmain, or dead hands.

In this county there were Forty-seven ; namely, Two mitred Abbies, Waltham Holy-Crofs, and St. John's, Colchester : and six other Abbies, Biley, Coggeshall, St. Osith, Stratford-Langthorn, Tiltey, and Walden.

And twenty-two Priories, Berden, Blackmore, St. Botolph's Colchester, Bycknacre, Carmelites at Maldon, Chelmsford, Grey Friars in Colchester, Earls-Colne, Little Dunmow, Hatfeild-Broad-oak, and - - Peverell, Little Horkley, Latton, Little Lees, West Mersey, Pantfeild, Prittlewell, Stansgate, Takeley, Tiptre, Toby, and Thremhall.

Three Nunneries, Berking, Hedingham-castle, Wickes.

Nine Hospitals, Bocking, Brook-street in South-Weald, Crouched Friars, and St. Mary Magdalen in Colchester, Hedingham-Castle, Horn-Church, Gr. Ilford, St. Giles's in Maldon, Newport.

Three Colleges, Halsted, Pleshey, Layer-Marney.

Two Præceptories of Templars, Cressing, and Little Maplested.

Of all these, and their endowments, an account is given under the respective Parishes in which they lay.

§ 23. The DISSOLUTION of these Houses spread their large Possessions into many hands, and caused a great Alteration in the Property of this County.

The yearly Revenues of them, amounted to upwards of 7500 l. which, considering the present increase of the Value of Land, rises to a prodigious Sum, as the Reader may judge.

I will not say here, who mostly shared the Plunder in this County ; for the following History shews it under the respective Parishes where the Monasteries lay.

Some intention there was of applying part of those Estates towards the Public Service, which I shall relate in the words of the Author by whom it is mentioned.

' The general plausible project, which caused
' the Parliament consent unto the Reformation,
' or alteration of the Monasteries, was that the ' King's Exchequer should for ever be enriched,
' the Kingdome and Nobility strengthened and
' encreased, and the common Subjects acquitted
' and freed from all former Services and Taxes,
' to wit, that the Abbots, Monks, Fryers and
' Nunnes being suppressed, that then in their ' places should be created forty Earles, three-

(d) See this Volume, p. 144. 400. and Vol. II. p. 48. 254. 293.

[S] How they were introduced by him in imitation of those in Normandy, see in an excellent Book, intituled, Anciennes Loix des Francois, &c. par D. Houard, Rouen, 1766. 2 vols. 4°.

[T] The King's part, exclusive of the fees and advowsons which were in gross, and not appendent, were, The maner of Walden, worth 72 l. 2 s. 3 d. ob. per ann. with a park. Depden, 31 l. 11 s. ob. with a wood. Quendon, 11 l. 16 s. ob. qa. with a wood. Leighs, 21 l. 11 s. 2 d. ob. with two woods, and one grove. Dunmow, 34 l. 8 s. 5 d. with a park, and one wood. Masseheby, 13 l. 19 s. 3 d. with a wood. Badewe, 33 l. 5 s. 8 d. with a park, and two groves. The castle and maner of Plesy, 106 l. 8 s. with a park. Hieghestre, 50 l. with a park. Waltham, 50 l. with two parks. Wykes, 26 l. 13 s. 4 d. with a park. Shene-field, 22 l. Chishull, 4 s. that is, the view of frank-pledge. The Court of the Honor of High-Estre, 4 l. Farnham, 19 l.

The Fee of the County of Essex, 40 l. 10 s. 10 d. — Total, 435 l. 14 s. 1 d. qa.

The part of Anne Countess Stafford, exclusive of the fees and advowsons which were in gross and not appendent, were, The maner of Hatfield, 8 l. 4 s. 7 d. ob. with a forest, one park, two outer woods. Halyngbury, 27 l. 13 s. 4 d. Wrytell, 87 l. 19 s. with two parks, and one outer wood. Chighenhale, 10 l. 3 s. 9 d. with a wood. Ramsden, 14 l. 9 s. with a park. Estlee, 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. Wakering, 86 l. 7 s. 5 d. with a wood. Polmersh, 13 l. 6 s. 8 d. Southorp, 22 l. Haydon, 100 s. Fobbyng, 43 l. 14 s. 5 d. ob. Norton, 24 l. Bernmersh, 20 l. — Total 442 l. 11 s. 7 d.

[U] They were occasioned by the assumed overgrown Power of a King's uncle, John of Gaunt, who exalted his posterity to the throne, in prejudice to the line of his elder brother, Edward the Black Prince.

score Barons, and three thousand Knights, and forty thousand Souldiours, with skilful Captaines, and competent maintenance for them all, ever out of the ancient Churches revenues, so as in so doing the King and Successors should never want of Treasure of their owne, nor have cause to be beholding to the common Subjects, neither should the people be any more charged with Loanes, Subsidies and Fifteens. Since which time, there have beene more Statute Lawes, Subsidies, and Fifteenes, then five hundred yeeres before. And not long after that, the King had Subsidies granted, and borrowed great Summes of money, and dyed in debt (e). To which I shall add, That he was under a necessity of debasing his coin.

Such a Provision as is here mentioned would have been a lasting Sinking Fund, and prevented those numberless burdensome and vexatious Taxes, the weight of which this Nation groans under.

But that luxurious King's extravagance, and the Rapaciousness of those about him, squander'd away, and swallowed, what might have been made a Public Good.

Some of the Monasteries might have been saved for Hospitals, especially in large Towns.

The scanty Allowance left for poor Vicarages deserves some consideration. Half of the Tithes at least would have been but reasonable.

§ 24. In K. Edward the VIth's reign, the reign, the Suppression of CHANTRIES dispersed a great deal of landed Property among individuals; though the endowments of them generally consisted of small parcels. But some of them were considerable; Joseph Elianor's Chantry in Colchester, for instance, having above 100 acres.

§ 25. In the same reign, a great deal flowed from another Source, little known or observed; and that was from the VISITATIONS of CHURCHES. The Commissioners for that purpose were, Sir Richard Riche, George Norton, T. Josselyn, and Edmund Mordaunt. From an original of their Proceedings, in Walden and Sandford Deanries; formerly in the possession of Humfrey Ferrers Esq; now in the valuable Collection of Thomas Astle Esq; F.R.S. I shall give a Specimen of what great Sums were raised by that means [W].

(e) Edm. Howes's Preface to Stow's Annales.

[W] Walden. This inventorie made and indented bytwene the right honorable, Sir Richard Riche knight lorde Riche, Sir George Norton, knight, Sir Thomas Joslyn, knight, and Edmund Mordaunt, esquire, Commissyoners allotted and sev'd unto the hundreth of Uttlesford within the Countie of Essex, for the execution of the kings Ma'ties Commissyon for the churche goods of thone partie, And Chrystopher Thedre, vicar of the p'ishe aforesayde, Will'm Sely, Richard Turnor, Thomas Roper, John Claydon, Richard Lyon, John Wenham, John Gamedge, John Dowson, and John Fuller sen' presenters, of thother p'tie, Witnesseth that the sayde presenters have presented unto us the vth of October in the vith yere of the reigne of o' Sov'eigne Lorde Edward the vith by the grace of God kinge of Englande Fraunce and Irelande Defender of the faith & of the churche of England & also of Ireland in yerth the supreme heade, The true Inventorie of all Copes, vestmts, plate Juells & other Implemts belonginge to the sayde churche in maner and forme folowinge.

Goods Plate Juells and other Implemts not alienated delivered into thands and custodie of Thomas Byrde sen' of the sayde pariske yeoman, A challis of silver parcell gilte of xv ounces, a cope of white damaske, a cope of red fatten, ii alter clothes of black velvet, ii small Latten candlesticks, a egle or Lecterne of latten, v bells by estimacō of v score hundreth and ii, a sancts bell and the clock, Also there remaineth in thands of Thomas Marten of the church stock at the last accompte xlii. vii s. xi d.

Goods Plate Juells and other Implemts folde

Imp'mis John Pomfrett now deceased folde and Willm Strachie sen' folde a challis of xliiii ounces di' & quarter, at lii s. liii d. the ownc for xlix s. ii d. Thomas Boyton & Will'm Gamedge being churchwardens sold a challis of xxxlii ounces di. for lii l. xlii s. liii d. John Fuller & Thomas Rowham being churchwardens sold a croffe of lxxxii ounces, a senser of silver of l ounces, and a challis of xv ounces di. at lii s. x d. the ownc, for xxi l. xii s. Robert Turnor and John Hubbard being churchwardens with the Councell of Thomas Boyton treatorer and the retydue of his bretherne folde a croffe of sylver gilte of foure and eighteen ounces & a quarter, a senser with the pan of xxxviii ounces, a cupp of silver & gilte & a peace of silver & a pix with a berill stone therto belonging of xlv i ounces di. ii candlesticks of silver of xxxvi ounces, a crysmatorie of silver of xviii ounces, ii crwetts of silver of viii ounces, a shipp of silver with a spon of viii ounces, a paxe of silver & gilte of x ounces, a challis of xxxviii ounces di. a challis of xv ounces q'ter, a challis of silver of x ounces, a pix of xlii ounces, a hallywater stock of lxi ounces, for lxxxvi l. xix s. vi d. or thereabouts. Also the sayd Robt Turnor & John Huberd folde a vestment of fatten abrigs for vs. vi d.—ii red copes of fatten abrigs for vii s. liii d.—ii tunacles of oystris fethers for xxi s.—a red cope for ii s. viii d. to Thomas Birde. Also sold ii red tunacles of fatten abrigs for ix s.—ii tunacles of white Damaske for xvi s. liii d. to Will'm Calton sen'. Also iii olde vestments of saynte amores worsted for liii s.—ii red copes of fatten abrigs for xis. viii d.—a cope of oystrige fethers for lii s. liii d. A candilstick of Latten of xviii lb. weight for lii s.—liii candlesticks of xvi l. for ii s. vi d.—x l. of bras for vi s. viii d.—Candilstick with other bras for xliii s. viii d. The cristofer & the george for xxx s. liii d. certen Images for vii s.—John Huberd & John Pomfrett, churchwardens, with the consent of the treasorer & his companie, ii copes of white damaske, and a vestment of white damask, for liii l. liii s. a cope & a vestment the one of red velvett, & thother of white damaske, for ls.—ii tunacles & a corporas for xii s. a cope and a corporas case for vs. a vestment of clothe a golde to John Smythe jun. for xxxlii s. liii d. a vestment of grene velvet, ii blwe copes of velvet, & a vestment of white Damask, for vi l. xliii s. a cope of black velvett, and a sute of black fatten abridgs, and ii white vestments of Damaske for lix s.—ii alter clothes of braunched damaske for xx s.—a vestment of blewe velvett for xxviii s. viii d. Certen Images for vi s. viii d.—ii churche boks for v s.—iii bells for lii s. liii d. A olde hutche for lii s. liii d. John Pomfrett and Willm Pomfrett, with the consent of the Treasorer and his companie, ii copes of red velvett, and ii tunacles with red lyons, for vi l. a cope of blwe velvett for xxxlii s. liii d. a cope of red velvett, a cope of blwe velvett, ii tunacles of blwe velvett & an alter clothe of red velvett, for vi l. xviii s. a cope of red fatten abrigs, for xxs. a vestment of red filke, for xlii s. liii d.—ii of fatten abrigs, for xix s. a cope of black fatten, and a seling with a curtayne, for xv s. ii d.—ii curtaynes for viii s. Certen organ pypes for lii s. liii d. certain more organ pipes for xxv s. James Cowle, & Richard Goodwyn, churchwardens, by the advyse of the Treasorer and his brethren, a orgayn case for xv s. Also we are informed that Willm Pomfrett hath a hutche, and James Cowle another, what they paid for them we know not.

Goods delivered for the ministracion of the devyne service.

To James Cowle, & Thomas Marten, Churchwardens, a challis of silver & gilte, of xv ounces, a cope of red velvett, a carpett of blwe velvett, for the Communion table, and vii linnen clothes for the same, a little rownd boxe to carye the Sacrament in, with a purse to putt it in, and all the surplices.

George Norton.

T. Josselyn.

Edmund Mordaunt.

§ 26. The WARS and Troubles in the last century did not, in some respects, so deeply affect this County as they did some others.

Indeed, as the lower Sort are always too much inclined to plunder; In 1642, 'divers Assemblies of people gathered together in great bodies, who much damnified the houses, and took the goods of divers persons, [Sir John Lucas among the rest,] without Law or other Authority (f).'

The same year, the Counties of Essex, Suffolk, Norfolk, Cambridge, Hertfordshire, the isle of Ely, and the city of Norwich entered into an Association with one another, for the mayntenance and preservation of the Peace of the said Counties (g).

The Parliament Committee acting for that purpose, were, in 1642, Sir Tho. Barrington, Sir Mart. Lumley, Sir Har. Grimston, Bart. Sir Henry Mildmay, Sir Wm. Masham, Sir Ric. Everard, Sir Tho. Honywood, Jo. Sayer, Hen. Holcroft, Wilm. Martin.—In 1643, Jo. Atwood, Rob. Smyth, Sam. Plume, Samuel Freeborne, Fr. Nicholson.—In 1644, Ol. Raymond, Jo. Sorell, Ric. Wiseman, Robt. Kempe, Edm. Birkhead, Car. H. Mildmay, John Meade, John Barrington, Deane Tindal, A. Luther, T. Middleton Vicecom. Wm. Atwood, Will. Hickes, Isaac Wincoll, Will. Collard, J. Mathewes, Henry Clitherowe, W. Rowe.—In 1645, Sam. Sheffeld, Will. Harlakenden.—In 1655, T. Trafford, Jo. Sparrow, Jo. Symonds, John Brewster, Edm. Mounte (h).

The Committee named in Essex, 'for the weekly raising of money for the maintenance of the Army and Forces, by a weekly assessment upon every County,' were Sir Harbottle Grimston, Bart. Sir Tho. Cheeke, Kt. Henry Wiseman, Robert Smith, Robert Bourne, Wil. Attwood, Nath. Bacon, Jo. Meade, Robert Wiseman, of Mayland, Isaac Alleyn, of Haseley, Samuel Freebourne, Peter Whitcombe, Robert Young, Esq; Jeremy Aylet, Gent. Henry Farre, Esq; Wil. Collard, Gent. Robert Crane, Gent. Robert Calthropp, Gent. Jo. Eldred, Esquire (i).

The sums assessed by them upon this County, were, at first the weekly sum of Eleven hundred and twenty-five pounds; next of Sixteen hundred and eighty-seven pounds, also weekly: Then, Six thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds monthly; the same year, Sixteen hundred and forty-two pounds, likewise monthly; and finally Two thousand and eighty-eight Pounds; and so in proportion upon the rest of the Kingdom. And now also it was that the name of New Impost, or Excise, was first invented and laid upon this Nation; to which several Additions were made afterwards.

Such Inhabitants of this County as refused to join the prevailing Powers, being stigmatized by them with odious Names, were either spoiled of their Estates by Sequestrations; or forced to redeem them by hard and arbitrary Compositions.

For the carrying on the Sequestrations, there were Committees appointed in every County, who treated all Delinquents, [for so they styled such as would not side with them,] "seizing all the Money, Goods, Chattels, Debts and personal Estate; as also all and every the Manors, Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, Rents, Revenues, and Profits belonging to them (k):" allowing only the Fifth Part for the maintenance of their Wives and Families; which also was substracted afterwards. By which rigorous means, many persons throughout the Kingdom were entirely impoverished, reduced to inexpressible distress, if not brought into total ruin and destruction. At length, they were permitted to enjoy their own again; but not without grievous Fines and severe Compositions, which, in some respects, was almost as bad as being entirely and at once deprived of their Possessions. The Sums raised by these oppressive Methods were so great and exorbitant, that they may appear almost incredible to any person who hath not seen the particulars of them; they amounting to some millions of money (l).

The List of those that were admitted to pay their Compositions in this County, were as follows.

	l.	s.	d.
Altham, James, of Markhall	500	0	0
Appleton, Henry, of S. Bemfleet	456	0	0
Audeley, Sir Henry, of Bere- church	1600	0	0
Audeley, Robert, of Woodham Fer.	238	0	0
Aylet, John, Magdalen Laver	460	0	0
Ayloff, Sir Benjamin, & William his son, of Braxsted	2000	0	0
Bailes Wm. Hortham q.	45	0	0
Bendish, Sir Tho. prisoner in the Tower	1000	0	0
Benson, John, of Quendon	300	0	0
Birom, Geo. of Chinceford, M. D.	100	0	0
Bockenham, Antony, and Henry his brother, of Dedham	90	0	0
Brockett, Antony, Willingale	1	0	0
Brown Antony of S. Weld	3	6	8
Browning, Tho. of Malden, Cl.	818	0	0
Capel, Lord	4706	0	0
Clark, Sir Henry, Pleshey	400	0	0
Laurence, of the same	320	0	0
Corney Hastings, Huntington, of Staple Barton q.	130	0	0
Eyre, Henry, of Chapel Henlot	45	0	0
Fanshaw, John, of Parslew Esq; with 40l. per ann. settled	250	0	0
Fanshaw, Tho. of Jenkins, with 80l. per ann. settled	500	0	0

(f) Declaration of the Lords and Commons, in Husbands's Collection, 4^o. p. 605.

of Ordinances, &c. 4^o. p. 805.

(i) Husbands's Collection, &c. p. 949.

Sequestrations.

(l) See Catalogue of the Lords Knights and Gentlemen that have compounded for their Estates, Lond. 1655. I have a very valuable copy of it, collated with the Journals of Parliament; and with several MS. additions at the end.

	l.	s.	d.
Freeman, John, late of Chelmsford, by , or for , his late Wife Lady Helen Tounge	16	0	0
Freeman, John, of Chelmsford	108	15	0
Freeman, Tho. of Chelmsford	62	10	0
Frutter, Edm. of Prittlewell	20	0	0
Gardner, Tho. of Westham	120	0	0
Green, John, of Epping	200	0	0
Harris, Dame Anne, Writtle	1642	3	0
Harris, William, Much Badow	1	0	0
Christopher, Ibid	1	0	0
Howard, Sir William, Tollesbury	928	0	0
Leming, Henry, of Chesterford	280	0	0
Lucas, Sir John, of Shenfield	3634	0	0
Lucas, Sir Charles, of Horfley, Knt.	508	10	0
Lucas, Sir Robert, of Lexden, Kt.	637	0	0
Lynne, John, of Horfley, Gent.	330	13	0
May, Adrian, of L. Dunmow, Esq; with 40 l. per ann. settled	252	0	0
Maynard, William, of Low-Leyton	50	0	0
Mildmay, Sir Humfrey, of Danbury	1275	0	0
Neale, John, of Theydon Mount	130	0	0
Nevil, Henry, of Creffing Temple, Esq;	6000	0	0
Nevil, William, of the same, Esq;	211	13	4
Reniger, Samuel, of Prittlewell	22	0	0
Rock, Tho. of Mountney's Ing, Esq;	372	0	0
Salmon Robert, of Leigh, Gent.	120	0	0
Searle, John, of Epping, Gent.	200	0	0
Strutt, Sir Denner, of Little Warley, Kt. and Bart.	1350	0	0
Sulyard, Sir Edward, of Runwell-Rec.	682	13	4
Sydenham, Sir Edward, of Giddy-hall, Knight-Marshall	295	0	0
Symonds, Richard, of Bl. Notley	295	0	0
Talkerne, John, Bumpsted	100	0	0
Turner, William, of Walden	1	10	0
Tyrell, Sir John, of E. Horndon	600	0	0

In 1645, Sixteen thousand nine hundred and seventy pounds, nine shillings and ten pence, were received by them, for rents, wood-sales, and timber, of the Lady Dowager Rivers (m).

Since the Restoration, no very considerable Disturbances, or Alterations have happened in this County; and may it always remain quiet and peaceable.

§ 27. The NATURAL PRODUCTS of this County are Corn in great plenty; good Fruits; Cattle, and delicate Meat, of which Veal is excellent to a proverb: Fish of all sorts, especially Soles, Whittings; and much esteemed Oysters, in the Royalty of Colne-river belonging to the Corporation of Colchester; Wall-fleet in other Creeks about the County, &c.

At Goldangre, Kirby, and other parts along the Coast, are many Decoys, which yield plenty of wild Fowl of all kinds.

Among the natural Products must also be reckoned Saffron, Hops, and many Plants and Herbs, for a particular account of which I beg leave to refer to the learned John Ray's History of Plants; to the List, extracted from him, and printed at the end of Camden's Description of this County in his Britannia; and especially to S. Dale's History of Harwich.

Eringo, tho' not peculiar to this County, must not be forgot, which is candied at Colchester.

This County not having any large and high Mountains, the usual parents and beds of Metals and Minerals, none of them are therefore to be look'd for here.

Attempts have been made to discover Medicinal Waters, and some have been so called, as at Chigwell, Upminster, Witham, Woodford, &c. but none have kept up their reputation, except Tilbury-water. See this History, Vol. I. p. 39, 110, 164. and Vol. II. p. 112.

§ 28. What I call ARTIFICIAL is the Trade and Buildings.

The Clothing Trade formerly flourished in Colchester, Dedham, and other parts of Essex. Ever since Qu. Elizabeth's reign, Bays, and Says, have been chiefly manufactured, in Colchester, Dedham, Coggeshall, Bocking, and Braintree, Dunmow, Halsted, Hedingham, &c. And for the supply of those manufactures, the Poor are employed in Spinning wool, in most parts of the County. [For a more particular account, see the History of Colchester, p. 75, &c.]

Sacking cloth is also wove at Chelmsford.

As to the BUILDINGS, in almost every Parish there are Seats, or capital Mansions, of which I give an account under the respective Parishes.

This County indeed is not replenished with so many Seats as some other Counties in the kingdom: But, within a small distance of the metropolis, there are many good Houses belonging to Citizens.

Of the Churches; Thaxted only I think hath a stone Spire: The rest have either square or round Towers of stone and brick, or flints, and often rubbish, embattled; or wooden Belfreys; with spires leaded or shingled. There are not many that can be called large and handsome, unless to Thaxted we join those at Walden, Chelmsford, Writtle, and a few others.

With respect to the Castles, here are four that may be called Royal, as belonging once, or now, to the Crown; namely those at Colchester, Hadley, Landguard Fort, and Tilbury Fort.

Eight others were castellated Mansions of the greater Nobility; viz. Canfeild, and Hedingham, belonging to the noble Family of De Vere: Clavering, and Raley, to Suene of Essex: Ongar to the family of Lucy: Pleshey to the family of Mandeville, and of Bohun Earls of Essex, and High Constables of England: Stansted Montfichet to that of Gernon, otherwise de Montfichet: And Walden to that of Mandeville.

Except Colchester-castle, they are all ruinous or demolished.

And so are the Monasteries; except part of St. Osith's.

Layer-Marney Tower is one of the finest remains we have.

§ 29. There are but few ANTIQUITIES in this County.

The greater quantity of Roman Remains are at Colchester: Namely, an infinite number of their Bricks, mostly eleven inches long, eight broad, and two thick: Urns: Tessellated Pavements: And British and Roman Coins are found there in such plenty, that in the thirty years of my residence in that Town, I have collected upwards of thirteen hundred. [See History of Colchester.]

Roman Remains there are also at Leyton, Wansted, Great Burghsted, Tolleshunt Knights, West Mersey, Harwich, and other places.

And Tumuli, or Barrows, at Lexden, Bures ad Montem, West Mersey, Wigborough.

Stone is very scarce in this County, and therefore Inscriptions so plentiful in the Northern parts, seldom occur here.

Mr. Horsey, in his excellent Britannia Romana, hath not any.

One was found a few years ago in the parish of St. Mary at the Wall, and brought to me, which is now in the possession of my most worthy Friend Charles Gray Esq; and deposited in his Castle. This Inscription is given below in the Note [X]. It is sufficiently plain, except the fourth line, which hath puzzled the most knowing. Some fancy that it relates to Anderida Silva, and Cogidunus; or to Coccium mentioned in the 10th Iter of Antonine.

§ 30. FOSSILS are found in divers parts of the County, but no where in such quantities as in Harwich-cliff.

They are as follows; Petrified Wood, either loose in the layers of the Cliff, or inclosed in a layer of stone. It is incombustible, tho' it retains the grain of the wood.

Stalagmites: Yellow Spar like bees wax: Ludus Helmontii, or the waxen Vein: Amber: Selenites, or mock Crystal: Bezoar-mineral, &c.

But what is found in greatest quantity, is the Copperas stone, or Pyrites. The way of preparing it for use is as follows. They lay the stones upon a large bed or floor in the open air, underneath which there are gutters or troughs disposed to receive and carry the liquor impregnated with the Mineral to a cistern, where it is reserved. For, the air and weather dissolving the stones, the rain that falls upon them carries away with it the vitrioline juice, or salt dissolved. This liquor they boil in large leaden Pans, putting in a good quantity of old iron: When it is sufficiently evaporated, they pour it into large troughs wherein it cools; the Vitriol crystallizing to the sides of the troughs, and to cross bars put into them. The liquor that remains after the Vitriol is crystallized they call the Mother, and reserve it to be again evaporated by boiling. (n)

The Petrified Shells are either Univalve, Tubulous, or Bivalve.

The Univalve, are the Patella, or Limpet: the Tubuli Vermiculares, Worm-shells, fistulous cases of some Insects bred therein: Cochlea, cockle-shells; and those Turbinated, especially fourteen sorts of the Buccina, or Whelks; Turbo fossilis, &c. Cochlea fossilis, &c.—The Buccina, or Whelks, I am informed, have this singularity; that the spiral or twist goes to the right, and all the live ones of the same kind and form, found on the beach and near the shore, are twisted to the left.

The Bivalve Shells are, Pecten, the small Scallop, Pectunculi, the Clam, Purrs, &c. several sorts of them; Conchitæ, some triangular, and some round; oyster-shells, &c.

Odontopetra, the teeth of Elephants, or bones of some fish of the cetaceous kind, &c.

For a more particular account of these and other Fossils, be pleased to consult S. Dale's Appendix to the History of Harwich; and Dr. M. Lister's Historia Conchyliorum.

Those great Men that bore the Title of EARLS of ESSEX, in the Saxon times, were, Brituulf, in 897; Brithnoth; Harold; Alfgar; and Edwin.

Since the Conquest, this County hath given the title of EARL to the Families of Magnaville, or Mandeville; Fitz-Piers; de Bohun; Thomas of Woodstock; the Bouchier Family; Thomas Cromwell; the Family of Devereux; and finally to the Capel Family, in 1661, which still enjoys that title, William-Anne-Holles Capel being the present Earl.

(n) J. Ray's Collection of English Words, &c. p. 198.

[X] NVMINIB
AVG
ET MERCV. DEO
ANDESCOCI
VOV CO MI
LICO-AESVRI
LINI LIBERTVS
ARAM OPERE
MARONIO
DSD

*H*und de beuentreu. Berchingas tenet sep sca. m. p. xxx. hid.
 Te. m. car. indmō. m. m. p. m. possē fieri. Te. lxx. car. hom. m. lxxm.
 Te. c. mlt. m. c. xl. Te. l. bor m. lxxx. Te. x. ser. m. vi. Silh. m. porē.
 .c. ac. p. q. n. mot. i. p. sc. n. p. unc. xxxm. an. cl. por. exm. oues.
 xviii. cap. x. vasa apū.

DOMESDAY-BOOK making a considerable part of this History, I thought the curious Reader would be pleased to see an exact Specimen of it as it is in the Original: accordingly I have had a Fac simile of it taken, and placed here, being the first article in this Volume. It is to be read thus. ‘Hundred de Beuentreu. Berchingas tenet semper Sancta Maria pro xxx hidis. Tunc iii carucate in dominio, modo iii, & iii^a possēt fieri. Tunc lxx carucate hominum, modo lxxiii. Tunc c villani, modo cxi. Tunc l bordarii, modo lxxx. Tunc x servi, modo vi. Silva m porcis. c acre prati. ii molen. dinamo i piscina. ii runcini. xxxiii animalia. cl porci. cxiii oves. xiii capre. x vasa apium.’ An explanation of some of the terms in that Book, may be acceptable to the Reader.

Manerium denotes the Lord’s capital Mansion house, where he dwelt; with the land round it, in his own occupation. ‘Villas quas a manendo Manerios vulgo vocamus,’ as Ordericus Vitalis expresses it: (o) According to that derivation, I have chosen to write the word, Maner, and not Manor, which is plainly derived from the French word Manoir. Bracton gives this description (p); ‘Sciendum est, quod manerium poterit esse per se ex pluribus ædificiis coadunatum, sive villis & hamlettis adjacentibus. . . . Poterit etiam esse per se manerium capitale, & plura continere sub se maneria non capitalia, & plures villas, & plures hamletas quasi sub uno capite aut Dominio uno.’—In the following History, several Estates are called Maners, which are not acknowledged for such now. But so they are styled in the Inquisitions post mortem, and I thought it best to adhere to those authorities.

In dominio, or Demefne, is what in many Maners is called the Lordship; land round the capital Mansion, which the Lord of the Maner kept in his own hands.

Geld, is a Saxon word, Leld, signifying Tax, or Tribute, as Dane-geld &c.

Hide, is a quantity of land, that varied in different places; and therefore cannot be exactly limited to a certain number. Some think it was 100 acres; others as much as could be ploughed with one plough in a year; or as much as would maintain a family. A tax was laid on by Hides, most like our Land-tax.

Carucates, from the French word, Charue, or as pronounced in some Provinces, Carue. A plough-land; 120 acr. or 60 acr. according to some. J. Stow makes Carucata, Plough-land and Hide, the same, viz. 100 acres (Annales, ed. 1631. p. 163. col. 2.) Caruca was 60 acres. By Statute 7 & 8 Will. III. a Plough-land is 50 acres.

(o) Scriptores Normannici, p. 523.

(p) L. 4. fol. 212.

[Y] In the Cottonian Library, there is the form in which this Survey was taken; beginning thus, ‘Hic subscribitur Inquisitio terrarum, quomodo Barones Regis inquisiverunt: videlicet per sacramentum Vicecomitis Sciræ, & omnium Baronum, & eorum Francigenarum, & totius Centuriatus, Homines, were the capital Tenants under the Lord.

Of the Liberi homines, some could sell their lands, and go where they pleased, poterant abire quo vellent, sine licentia; others could not, non poterant recedere sine licentia. See this History, Vol. I. p. 295. 389. 400. 434. 439. The liberi homines were sometimes reduced to the condition of villans. See Vol. I. p. 260. note.

Villans, are those that dwelt, not under the Lord’s roof, as the Servi, but in the Village; in Little Houses not absolutely their own, but holden at the will of the Lord, like our Copy-holders; for which they performed several customary Services of Husbandry, &c. They were appendent and belonging to the Maner, and past along with it to every new Lord.

Bordars, held a little house of Husbandry on the Bords, or out-skirts of the Maner, with some land, on condition of supplying the Lord with certain provisions for his Board, or Table.

The Servi were in effect in a slavish condition; not at their own disposal, but retainers of the Lord’s Family; and as much part of the stock of the Maner, as the cattle &c. And so were their children.

Coliberti, were such of the former as were enfranchised, but still paid some duties to the superior Lords.

Runcini, were working Horses.

Animalia, bullocks, cows, and other black cattle.

Hundred, denotes the Jury by which the Survey in Domesday Book was made. It consisted partly of Normans, and partly of the ancient English or Saxon inhabitants. The manner in which they took this Survey, was thus. The King issued his Writ to the Sheriff of each County, commanding him to call before him all the Barons, and the French or Norman ones, the Reves of the Hundreds, the Clergy, and six Villans out of each parish, or district. They were to give, upon oath, an account of all the Estates; the nature of them; the quantity of hides and carucates they contained; and the occupiers, of different denominations and degrees, whether King’s thegns, freemen, sochmen, or villans, bordars, slaves, with the stock of cattle, and even of bees, upon each: the quantity of wood for panage, &c. All which was set down at length, and returned by the Sheriff into the Exchequer, and from these returns Domesday-book was compiled. One of these returns is extant in the Library of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and nowhere else that we can find. [Y] ‘Presbiteri, Præpositi, sex villani uniuscujusque villæ.’ Each article concludes in these words, — ‘& alii omnes Franci & Angli de Hoc Hundredo juraverunt.’ Cott. Lib. Tib. A. vi. It is printed in S. Gale’s Appendix to his Richmondshire, p. 5.

Opera Villanorum.

G. S. tenet quoddam tenementum nativum vocat' Snowes, et pro eodem tenem' arrabit ad semen filiginis 2 acr' ad rubinaco'em 2 acr' & ad semen avene 2 acr' et habebit allocationem 2 operum pro cujuslibet acre arrura si fecerit, et si non fecerit dabit domino pro cujuslibet acre arrura 6 d. Et faciet qualibet septimana per annum 2 opera dim' precium operis ob. exceptis quindecima Natalis Domini, Sept' Pasche, & Sept' Pentecost' in quibus non operabitur; & triturbabit & vannabit pro hujusmodi opere tres buffel' frumenti, aut 4 buff' filiginis, vel 4 buff' ordeï rafa mansura, aut 1 quarter' avene mensura cumulata. Et si operetur in minutis operibus, ut claudendo, feno spargendo, stramine strekeando, aqua pro coopertura vel crestura portanda, aut sarclando, 1 opus allocabitur ei per dim' diem, vel per totum diem 2 opera. Et veniet ad manerium cum 1 caretta, 1 equo, & 1 homine, pro finis domini extra in campum cariad' cum aliis custumar' quum ad hoc per ballivum vel alium ministrum domini ibidem premonitus fuerit, et habebit allocationem unius operis pro quolibet dimidio die. Et metet, in autumpno 2 acr' frumenti, vel 2 acr' avene vocat' Gavelrep, sine aliqua allocatione pro eodem percipienda. Et ulterius metet, per totum autumpnum, dum dominus habet bladum ad metendum infra dominium hujus manerii, die operabili dim' acr' frumenti vel dim' acr' avene, si ad hoc per ballivum aut alium ministrum domini premonitus fuerit, & habebit allocationem 2 operum pro cujuslibet acre messione. Et falcabit in certis pratis domini pertinentibus manerio, videlicet in Newemad, Melnemad, & Herboldmad, quandocunque domino placuerit, sine allocatione operum, cum ceteris custumariis ejusdem tenur' inferius scriptis, & non aliter, nec alibi: Et sciendum est, quod omnes Custumarii qui falcabunt dicta prata domini, habebunt pro falcatione eorundem secundum meliorem multonem in fold domini eodem tempore, & secundum caseum meliorem in domo lactag' sine aliquo pro eodem solvendo. Et similiter habebunt predicti falcatores unam carettatam subbosci, & falem grossum plenum hujus moot in quo dictus caseus fiebat. Et dictus G. . . a' uabit pro eodem tenemento cum 1 homine & 1 equo qualibet die Dominica per annum, si necesse fuerit, de isto manerio usque Abbatiam Colc' Grenstede, aut Wyleghe, cum 3 buff' frumenti, vel 4 buff' filiginis, aut 3 buff' ordeï, vel 6 buff' avene de blado crescente super dominium hujus manerii, & non aliter; Et habebit pro quolibet av'ag' quam fecerit de cons' panem coquinam & cervisiam sufficientem pro suo jentaculo. Et reddet inde per ann' 4 buff' avene foddercorn ad festum Purificationis, 25 ova gallinarum ad Pascha, et 8s. argenti ad 4 anni terminos usuales equaliter (q).

Walda, i. e. South-Weald.

Will's Tannator tenet 6 acr. reddendo p' ann. 29 d. & duos Wardpanes. Veniet ad preces Carucar tam ad semen hiemele quam ad quadragesimale eum eo q^d jungit & h'ebit Cibum suum. Si nichil jungit non tenebitur venire. Veniet cum 1 Equo ad harciand in Quadrag', si habet Equum; si non habet usq; ad 9^{am} et Herciator habebit Matinellū suum: Et si non habet, non tenebitur venire. Levabit fenum quotiens opus fu'it sine cibo. Sarcclabit 1 die a mane usq; ad 5^{am} & h'ebit Cibum semel in die. Mittet 1 ho'iem ad quamlt' p'cariam de tribus. Ad suam p'cariam h'ebit Cibum semel in die. Ligabit & foccabit cujuslt' gen'is bladum totum q^d messuerit sine cibo. Mittet 1 ho'iem ad nuces colligendas una die a mane usq; ad 5^{am} sine cibo. Ducet fenū cum Carro uno die usq; ad 9^{am} & h'ebit Cibum. Si non habet equum veniet cum Instrumento suo ad auxiliand'. Dabit 1 Gall' ad Natal (r).

Manumissio Nativi, sive Villani.

Omnib' Christi fidelib' ad quos presens scriptum pervenerit, Walterus permissione divina Abbas Monasterii Scī Johā Colec' & ejusdem loci Conventus, Salutem in Domino sempiternam. Noveritis nos, unanimi assensu totius Capituli nostri, per presens scriptum nostrum manumisisse; & liberum fecisse; ab omni jugo servitutis, nativitatē, & villenagii, imperpetuum liberasse, absolvisse, & quietum clamasse, Ricardum Hankyn . . . cum tota sequela sua procreat' & procreand' ac omnibus bonis & catallis suis. Volentes & concedentes pro nobis et successorib' nostris quod idem Ricardus cum tota sequela sua procreata & procreanda liber & libere conditionis existat, & ubicunque sibi placuerit cum omnibus bonis & catallis suis se divertat, absque clameo & calumpnia nostra aut successorum nostrorum. Ita quod nec nos nec successores nostri in p'dc Ricardi corpore, persona, aut alicujus ejus procreati aut procreandi exigere aut vendicare poterimus in futurum. . . . In cujus rei testimonium presentibus Sigillum commune Domus nostre fecimus apponi. Dat' in domo nostra capitulari. . . . Anno Domini MCCCCLXXXVII, et Anno regni regis Henrici Septimi tercio (s).

(q) Minus Reg. Abb. D. Johann. Colcestr. penes perhon. Com. Hardwick, fol. 77.

Waltham, in Cott. Libr. Tib. fol. 200.

(s) Minus Reg. D. Joh. Colcestr. fol. 234. b.

(r) Reg. Abbatie de

The North Prospect of COLCHESTER.

- | | | | | |
|---------------------------|----------------------------|------------------------------|----------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| 1. The Baldock Hill..... | 4. St. Peter's Church..... | 7. St. Runwald's Church..... | 10. St. Helen's Lane..... | 13. St. James's Church..... |
| 2. St. Mary's Church..... | 5. The Mole-hall..... | 8. Angel-lane..... | 11. The Castle..... | 14. Magdalen Street..... |
| 3. North Hill..... | 6. St. Trinity Church..... | 9. St. Nicolas's Church..... | 12. All Saints Church..... | 15. St. Leonard's Church at St. High. |

To the Hon^{ble} RICHARD SAVAGE N. ASS. AD ESQ. one of the Representatives in Parliament for the Borough of COLCHESTER,

J. Deane Delin. J. Mynde Sc.

This Plate is most humbly Inscribed

THE

HISTORY and ANTIQUITIES

Of the most ancient TOWN and BOROUGH of

COLCHESTER

In the COUNTY of

ESSEX.

IN THREE BOOKS.

Collected chiefly from MANUSCRIPTS.

With an APPENDIX of RECORDS and ORIGINAL PAPERS.

By PHILIP MORANT, M. A.

Rector of ST. MARY'S COLCHESTER, and of ALDHAM near the same;
and Fellow of the Society of ANTIQUARIES.

Adorned and Illustrated with Sculptures.

THE SECOND EDITION, IMPROVED.

L O N D O N:

Printed for T. OSBORNE, in Gray's-Inn; J. WHISTON, in Fleet-Street; S. BAKER, in York-Street; L. DAVIS and C. REYMERS, in Holborn; and B. WHITE, in Fleet-Street.

MDCCLXVIII.

T O T H E

R I G H T R E V E R E N D F A T H E R I N G O D , R I C H A R D

L O R D B I S H O P O F L O N D O N ,

A N D

D E A N O F H I S M A J E S T Y ' S R O Y A L C H A P E L S ,

This Book is, with all Respect,

D E D I C A T E D ,

By his most Dutiful,

Obedient, and

Humble Servant,

P H I L I P M O R A N T .

T H E
HISTORY and ANTIQUITIES
O F
COLCHESTER.

B O O K I.

C H A P. I.

General Account of the Place.

THE ancient Town of COLCHESTER lies in the North-east part of the County of Essex; in the 51st degree, 55 minutes, of Northern Latitude; and the first degree of Longitude East from the first Meridian, when placed at London; distant between 50 and 51, measured, or post-miles, from the metropolis of the Kingdom, the city of London [A].

The SITUATION of it is, upon all accounts, very convenient: For it stands so near the Sea, as to have all the Advantages of it, excellent Fish, especially Soles and Oysters; and Water-carriage, the Hoys and Lighters coming up to St. Leonard's, or the Hyth. And it lies far enough from the Sea [B] to be free from Damps and all noxious Vapours. It is also an easy day's Journey from London, to which a Coach goes daily, except Sundays, and another returns from thence at the same time [C]. The Post likewise goes to London every day, at five in the afternoon, but Saturdays; and comes in from that place about one in the afternoon, every day except Mondays.

This Town stands upon the North-side of a fine Eminence, rising gradually from the River Colne, which waters the North and East sides of it, to a height of about a hundred and twelve feet above the Surface of the River. By that means agreeable Prospects appear on every side, some extending even several miles into the country. And that position greatly contributes, at the same time, to the Healthfulness, as well as Pleasantness of the place.

The SOIL, as in most other places, is various. Within the Walls, it is sandy, chiefly a rich black sand; which is very suitable for Gardening, and all sorts of Roots. And, for that reason, the Town is better supplied with things of that nature than most places in the kingdom, except London. In St. James's it is gravelly towards Ardley, and so it is Greenstead, and in some part of the Borough-fields. In Mile-end, it is loam and clay. But in general the Soil is sandy, and upon that account a wet season is most agreeable, and it suffers much in a drought.

I have not had an opportunity of examining the several Strata with sufficient accuracy. But, as far as my observation reaches, it is a Sand within the walls for Ten or Twelve feet into the earth. In one place that I have had an opportunity of examining more particularly, it is a fine yellow gravel, Sixty foot from the surface of the ground.

Tho' the Town stands on the side of a high hill, yet it is well supplied with water. The North and lowest part of it is washed by the river Colne. Many fine SPRINGS rise in divers places, particularly one near Magdalen-street called Childwell: Another in the Castlelands: Another down the Balkon-hill, &c. But none are medicinal. Wells are also common even in the highest parts of the Town, and well supplied, tho' some are Twenty yards from the surface of the ground. But the Water in many is hard. The Springs in all the Wells, are observed in general to come from the North and North-west.

However, these Springs not being thought sufficient to supply the place upon all occasions, means have been long ago invented, to bring WATER from some parts adjoining: Especially from a fine Spring in St. Mary's parish, rising in a meadow named Chiswell-meadow. I cannot trace out when Water was first conveyed from thence to this Town. But I find, that in the year 1536, May 8; Robert Leche, one of the Aldermen, and Thomas Nuthal the elder, Masters

[A] The Obelisk, or 51 Mile-Stone, is about the middle of the Town within the Walls. But the outermost bounds of the Corporation, or Banlieu, towards London, begin at the Ramparts on Lexden-heath, between 48 and 49 miles from London.

[B] About Eight miles from Mersey-island; Twelve from Clackton, and St. Osith; and Eighteen from Harwich.

[C] Both set out at five o'clock in the morning, and arrive about two. There is also a Machine, which sets out from London at seven o'clock, and from hence at nine, in the morning; performing the journey in about eight hours. And Coaches from Norwich, Ipswich, and Harwich, pass likewise through this Town.

and Governors of the Gild of Jesus Masse kept in the parish Church of St. Peter in Colchester; with the consent of all the parishioners, did, by Lease (a), grant leave and full power, to Henry Webbe, of the said parish of St. Peter, and to his heirs and assigns for ever, To have the head-spring, and concourse of water, rising in Chiswell, meadow belonging to the Gild of Jesus Masse aforementioned; to be conveyed for ever, under and through the grounds of that Meadow, unto the Mansion-house of the said Henry Webbe, in North-street, within North-gate [D]: Paying to the foresaid Masters, and their Successors, the yearly Sum of Four pence, at Michaelmas.

I also find, that when Windmill-field, adjoyn- ing to Chiswell-meadow, was lett by the Corporation, in 1620, to Thomas Thurston, one of the Aldermen, Liberty was reserved to lay Pipes or Trunks for the conveying of the water from Chiswell-meadow (b).

Ralph Fynche, in his will, ordered, among other things, " That his Executors should convey the Waters from the Cisterne, to run in the ground in Pipes of Lead into the washing place at the Balkon; so that the Water should come into it clean, and not soyled with any kind of cattle or fowles, but onely to be made for the necessarie occupying, and the same Waters for all persons as aforetime they had done, wherein the said Water had his course then, into the said washing place for ever."

But to return to Chiswell-meadow, and Windmill-field. The Cistern, or Reservoir, into which Water was conveyed from that Meadow, stood in the highest part of this Field, within the last century: And from thence several parts of the Town were supplied. But there being many inconveniencies found in that situation, John Potter, Esq; an ingenious and public-spirited man, who had been several times Mayor of this Town, and was concerned in the former Water-works [E]; undertook to supply the deficiencies of the same, well judging it would be of considerable advantage to the Town. The Field belonging to the Parsonage of St. Mary's, within and adjoining to the Town-wall, being the highest and most convenient spot of ground whereon to fix the Cistern or Reservoir, an application was made to Dr. Henry Compton, Bishop of London, Patron and Diocefan of the Rectory of St. Mary's, for his consent to place it there. Whereupon, his Lordship issued out a Commission to Six persons, To view that Field, and certify in what part of it the Cistern and Passage for the Water was most conveniently to be made; in what manner; and of what dimensions: Whether the making thereof would be any prejudice to the Rector of that parish, and his Successors; and what yearly recompence should be made to them? Accordingly, they certified, That the fittest place for the Cistern was near the North-west corner of that field, and would take up about Twenty four feet square of ground: That, from thence the Pipes should be laid cross the field, and a carpenter's yard adjoyn- ing, about Twenty rods in length; and so down St. Mary's lane into the Town. And, by way of recompence to the Rector for his Licence, Water for all necessary uses should be conveyed to the Parsonage-house, at the charge of the said Mr. Potter, or his assigns, which was reckoned as good as Twenty shillings a year. In pursuance of this Certificate, the Bishop granted his Licence, dated 20 Septemb. 1707. And, five days after, the Rev. Mr. Middleton, then Rector, entered into a Lease for Seventy seven years [F] with Mr. Potter, wherein he gave him leave, to dig and break up the ground to lay the Pipes, &c. Soon after, the Cistern was built; but it not being found capacious enough, another was erected by the side of it; both which contained about Two hundred and forty hogshheads. Into them the Water was forced from Chiswell-meadow, above-mentioned, and convey'd by Pipes under ground; which, passing through one of the Arches at the Balkon into the Threecrowns Garden, ended in the Cisterns; from whence the chief part of the Town was supplied with excellent Spring-water.

These Water-works continued in a flourishing condition for about Thirty years, namely, till 1737. But the Owner of them being indolent, and more profitably employed; and his Servant careless, and extremely dishonest: Likewise, the Town growing poor, and not well able to pay; And, especially, this affair not having been settled, as it ought to have been, by Act of Parliament, They were neglected, and soon came to nothing, to the great prejudice of the Inha-

(a) This Lease was in the possession of Mr. William Harrison.

(b) Book of Assemblies, 4 Dec. 1620.

[D] In that Lease, Henry Webbe did moreover covenant and promise, for himself, his heirs and assigns, possessors and owners of the said Tenement, with the appurtenances, That if any loss, hurt, or harm, should fortune to be done, to the hindrance, and losse, of the owners of the said Meadow, in the searching, digging, and breaking of the ground there, That then the same Henry Webbe, his heirs, and assigns, possessors, and owners of the said Tenement, should pay or cause to be paid to the foresaid Masters, and to their successors, owners of the said Meadow, all such sum or sums of money, as should be lawfully and indifferently adjudged, by three or four honest men, forthwith after such judgment was given, upon pain of forfeiting of the said Liberty before granted: And should also, at his and their only costs and charges, fill up, repair, and make plain the ground there, at every searching as neede should require.

[E] On the 3d of February, 1687, a Lease for 98 years was granted by Anne Munk of Colchester, to John Potter Alderman of Colchester, Draper, John Wheely jun. Bra- sier, and Tim. Cooke Innholder, of those several Messu- ages, Tenements, and Rentaries, with the yards, gardens, waters, &c. And also of all that piece or parcel of pa- sture, or Meadow-ground, adjoining to the said Messuages or Tenements, commonly called Cheese [Chiswell] mea- dow, situate and being in the parish of Saint Mary.—And likewise the free use and benefit of all that way or pas- sage leading to the said Messuages or Tenements by and through a Field commonly called or known by the name of the Windmill-field, and then in the occupation of Joseph Andrews, lying in the afore said parish of St. Mary's.

[F] This Lease was void ipso facto from the first, as be- ing contrary to Statute 13 Elizab: c. 10. Accordingly, bitants, bitants, and the inexpressible danger of the Town in case a Fire should happen [G].

The river Colne, as we have said above, waters the North and East-sides of the Town. Over the River there are Three BRIDGES; North-Bridge, leading to North-gate; East-Bridge, to East-gate; and the Hyth-Bridge, at the Hyth. The two former are of timber, and the latter of brick. It was first made about the year 1473 [H], and new-built in the year 1737. These Bridges are now kept up by the Chamberlain, at the charge of the Corporation: But have sometimes been repaired by Rates assessed on the several Parishes [I]. And a Pontage, or Toll for repairing the Bridges, was granted for 14 years by the Second Charter of K. Charles I. [K].

I come now to give an account of the STREETS [L] and LANES of this Town; which, tho' but a dry Subject, serves to shew the Extent and Considerableness of the place, and may be useful upon many occasions.

I. The great or main Streets.

The first street, as you come into the Town from London, is Crouch-street, so called from the Hospital of the Holy-Cross (or Crouch) which stood near it. That part which is continued in a straight line beyond Head-gate, is Gutter-street.

The first Street within Head-gate [M], as far as the Three Crowns, is Head-street; called in old writings, Haved, Heved, or Hevedgate-street.

From thence to North-gate, is North-hill. The street leading from North-gate to North-bridge, is, the Middle-Burgh.

when the Lessees of the Water-works did not find their account in keeping them up, they would not stand to this agreement, and could not be compell'd to do so.

[G] The Rector of St. Mary's having given a small consideration to the Lessee, took up the Bricks of the Cisterns in 1738, and therewith repaired the End of the Parsonage-House, &c.

[H] See the Appendix, No. I.

[I] See Book of Assemblies, 22 May 1610, and 1 Oct. 1611, &c.—In 1610, May 22, a Rate was made for repairing the Highways, Causeys, and Bridges within this Town and the Liberties. The most substantial Inhabitants of each parish, were assess'd at 3 s. 4 d. some at 2 s. and none under 1 s. The Rate was made by the Bailiffs, Aldermen, and Common Council.—But it is a question, whether by Bridges here, is not meant Foot-bridges. For, the Chamberlain hath been presented, many years past, for not repairing North Bridge, East-bridge, &c. See the Presentments at the Quarterly Sessions, or Law hundred Courts.

[K] This Pontage was settled, 17 Aug. 1635, in the following manner:

For every Cart laden, and going out of the Liberties of the Town, if the Cart and Goods be not a Freeman's,	d.
Every Cart laden with logs, brush, ostrey, billet, spray, and broom, furze and linke,	4
—Laden with wool, charcoal, timber, and barke, either into or out of the Liberties, unless it be both the Cart and Goods of a freeman,	1
—laden with straw, hay, and corn in the straw,	4
—laden with clay, or sand,	1
—laden with bricks, tiles, and pavements,	1
Every Load of hops coming in or going out,	4

From the Bridge towards Mile-end, North-street; alias Cow-lane.

The great or main street, from the Three Crowns to East-gate, is,

The Highstreet, or Market-Place. Part of it was formerly called Corn-hill. Near All-Saints Church, it is named King-street. And that part of it which runs along the Wall of the late Grey-friers, was anciently call'd, Frere or Freris-street.

Without East-gate, is East-hill.

Beyond that East-street.

From the High-street, by the East-end of All-Saints-Church to St. Botolph's-gate, is, Queen's-street; formerly called South-gate-street.

Without that gate, St. Botolph's Street; sometimes called South-street. The long street, leading from thence to the Hyth, is called Magdalen-street; because part of it lieth in the parish of St. Mary Magdalen. Tho' in reality the greater part of it is in the parishes of St. Botolph's, St. Giles's, and St. Runwald's. It was anciently called Heth-street, because it leads to the Hyth. But, when it first turns out of St. Botolph's street, it is called Grub-street.

From the High-street, by the East-end of St. Nicolas's Church winding to St. Botolph's-gate, is Wyre, or Wier-Street.

Stone-well, or Stanwell-street, is that which leads, East, South-east, from Gutter-street, or Schere-gate, to St. John's Green.

II. The Lanes, and Alleys.

I. In Crouch-street,

Every Load of Household-stuff and implements of household, and such like things carried out of the Liberties of the Town,	d.
Every horse laden with a pack of Wool, coming into or going out of the Town, except both be a freeman's,	4
Every pack of Wool going out of the Town or Liberties (from an inhabitant of the town or Liberties) to Spinners,	2
Every horse coming in or going out of the Town, laden with a mantle,	1
All Corn and Victuals, of what kind or nature soever, coming into the town upon the Market-days to serve the Market, to be free from Pontage for those days only.	1
All other Carts laden, coming in or going out of the town, (the Carts laden, before-mentioned, only excepted) to pay,	4
On the 30th of July 1635, the Pontage of North-Bridge was ordered to be lett to William Maynard for 40 l. a year; and that of East-Bridge to Rob. Downes for the same rent. But the Pontage of North-Bridge was lett, Oct. 26, 1635, to Richard Daniel, Apothec. for 20 l. a year; and that of East-Bridge, Dec. 24, 1635, to George Harrison, at the same rate. Book of Assemblies.

[L] As most things in this Town have a relation to Helen; and her finding the Cross, so have the Streets in particular: The main Street representing the Shaft or Body of it, and Head-street and North-hill the Transverse part of the same.

[M] Head-street, North-hill, and the High-street, are wide and spacious; and as handsome as any in most Cities and Towns in England.

... [On

... [On the North-side]

The Plough-Alley, by the Plough-Ale-house.
The Balkon, Balkerne, or Balkorne-lane, leading along the Balkon, or chief Bastion, in the Town-wall.

... [On the South-side]

Maldon-lane, leading towards that town. The upper part of it was called Schrebbe-street.

Butt-lane, in which were formerly the Butts for shooting at with bows and arrows. It was anciently called Holmer, Holmere, and Holmer's-lane; and also Lyard-lane, because leading to Layer, which used to be sometimes written Lyard.

2. In Head-street,

... [On the West-side]

Church-lane, near Head-gate;

And higher up,

St. Mary's-lane; both leading to St. Mary's Church.

... [On the East-side]

Sir Isaac Rebow's Walk; a lane leading from Head-gate towards Schere-gate, gravell'd and made handsome by Sir Isaac Rebow.

Culver-lane, or the Back-lane, reaching from this street as far as Queen's-street. There come into it,

Trinity-lane, or Schere-street, going by the Westend of Trinity-Church, and leading to Scheregate:

The Lion-walk, facing the back-gate of the Red-Lion-inn. 'Twas formerly called Cat-lane:

Also part of Wyre-street.

By Trinity-Poors-Row, There is
Alms-house-lane. And, East of the same,
Elde-lane, which falls into Wyre-street.

3. On North-hill.

... [On the East-side]

Duck-lane; near which is the Cistern-yard, wherein Water is brought by leaden Pipes from Chifwell-meadow.

At the end of Duck-lane, more East, is Little-Hill.

... [On the West-side]

There are only a few yards with Houses;
but without any authentic names.

4. Without North-Gate,

... [On the East-side] there is;

Dead, or Deadman's, lane.

Down-fall-yard.

... [On the West-side]

The Balkon-lane; in which there is

The Shepen, or Rayner's, lane.

Water-lane.

(c) So nam'd from one William Pelham, a noted man, who had his Shop in it. He was one of the Common-Counsel and Assistants from Oct. 9, 1623, to Dec. 29, 1643. Books of Assemblies.

[N] I have also met in Records with the Names of the following Streets and Lanes, which I know not where to place.

Thelstrete. Rot. Cur. 8 Hen. IV. rot. 2. Perhaps the same as Eld-lane.

Hakeney-lane, in St. James's parish. Ib. and elsewhere.

Cheldebury lane. Rot. Cur. 36 Hen. VI. rot. 13.

Small-lane. Rot. 38 Hen. VI. rot. 3.

Soap-house-yard.

5. The Lanes in the High street,

... [On the North-side] are,

Angel-lane, anciently called West-stockwell-street.

Bear-lane, or St. Martin's-lane, formerly called East-stockwell-street.

The George-yard.

St. Helen's-lane, in which stands St. Helen's Chapel. 'Tis vulgarly called Tennant's-lane;
but anciently was named Maidenburgh-street.

Two nameless Lanes, leading into the Castle-bailey. There formerly stood a strong wall belonging to the Castle.

... [On the South-side]

Pelham's-lane (c), formerly called Whitfote'slane: the further end whereof comes into Culver-lane.

6. The Lanes and Yards in Angel lane,

... [On the East-side]

The Dromedary, or Ostrich-yard.

Quaker's-Alley, along the North-side of St.
Martin's-Church. Made within the memory of man.

... [On the West-side]

The Hospital-yard.

At the bottom of St. Martin's-lane,

The Ball-Alley.

Between St. Martin's-lane, and St. Helen's, Bucklersbury-lane; otherwise Peacock's-Alley, or Meeting-house-Alley.

7. The Lanes upon East-hill.

... [On the South-side]

More, or More-Elms-lane, running along the outside of the Town-wall, and falling into St.
Botolph's-street. So named from the More, or Garden, thereto adjoining, and belonging to St. Botolph's-Priory.

On the South-east-side of it, there is,

Childwell-lane, leading to Childwell.

Opposite to the West-end of More-lane, in St. Botolph's-street, is Black-boy-lane; anciently called Beer-lane.

8. In East-street.

Water-lane, leading to Magdalen-Green; on the South-side of that street.

9. In Magdalen-street.

... [On the South-side]

Wimbles-lane, leading from Magdalen-Green towards Canwick-mill.

Hog-lane, by Wenock's Alms-Houses.

Lodder's-lane, or, as vulgarly called, Ladder-lane, leads, Southerly, from Gutter-street, or Schere-gate, to St. John's Green [N].

Tobyswick-lane.

Woods lane, sometimes named Fuller- } Rot. 7 Hen.

lane. } VIII. rot. 11.

Webbes-street, and Isabelles-Gate, at the Old-Hyth. Rot.

6 Hen. IV. rot. 2.

North-lane, prope ripam. Ibid. rot. 11.

Foweleslane, extra Northgate. Rot. 3 Edw. III. rot. 3.

Silver-street, in the Parish of All-Saints. Inqu. 5 Caro.

When

Part of Leaden Parish

Here formerly was Part of Leaden Park

The ICHNOGRAPHY of COLCHESTER.

Part of Mile-end Parish

To the Honourable PHILIP DORRIS Esq. and his Consort
The Lady Marchioness of Grey this Plate is most humbly inscribed

REFERENCES
a. a. a. The Balkon Lane.	x. x. x. More Lane.
b. Gutter Street.	y. St. Botolph's Street.
c. Head Street.	z. Black-boy, or Been Lane.
d. North Hill.	a. Grub Street.
e. The Middleburgh.	6. Hog Lane.
f. Cornhill.	1. St. Mary's Church.
g. g. The high Street.	2. St. Peters.
h. Angel Lane.	3. St. Martins
i. St. Martins Lane.	4. St. Runwald's
k. St. Helen's Lane & y George	5. St. Trinity.
l. Trinity, or Schore gate, Street.	6. St. Nicolass.
m. m. m. Culver Lane	7. All Saints.
n. St. Isaac Robens Walk.	8. St. James's.
o. Cat Lane.	9. Remains of St. Botolphs.
p. Wire Street.	10. St. Giles's.
q. Queen's Street.	11. St. Mary Magdalens, and
r. Eld lane & Alms-hous Lane	12. St. Leonards, at the Flyth.
s. Stannwell Street.	13. The Castle.
t. Ladders, or. Clothiers, Lane.	14. 14. St. Johns Abbey Gate
u. Kings Street.	and Site of the Abbey.
v. Frere Street.	*. *. Duck Lane & Little Hill

To face p. 4. of Book I.

When these Streets and Lanes were first paved, I cannot exactly determine. But I find, that in the year 1473, a man was presented for breaking up the Pavement [Pavimentum] in Wire-street (d): which is a certain proof that this street was then pav'd; as were undoubtedly some others.

But the whole Town was not effectually Paved till the reign of K. James I. For that purpose; an Act was passed in the year 1623, wherein it was enacted, That all and every person and persons, bodies politique and corporate; their heirs and successors, immediate owners or landlords, of any Messuages, Tenements, Yards, Gardens, and Orchards within the said Town, or the Suburbs of the same, and of any Estate or Estates in fee-simple, fee-tail, for life; or for term of years; from time to time; and all times, at the assignment and appointment of the Bailiffs and Commonalty of the said town of Colchester, or the more part of them, should well and sufficiently Pave, or cause to be paved, with paving stone, all and every the Streets, Lanes, and Highways, lying directly before their said Messuages, &c. sett and being in the Streets and Lanes of the said Borough and Town: Every person and persons, as is abovesaid, to Pave such Part and Quantity of the said Ways, Streets and Lanes; and in Length, as his or their Messuages, &c. do lye and extend against the said Ways, Streets, and Lanes. And every person and persons charged and chargeable with the paving of the said Streets, Ways, and Lanes as abovesaid, or which ought to pave the same by this Act, to forfeit to the Bailiffs of the said Town for the time being Twelve-pence for every Yard-square not paved in form abovesaid. And that all persons should from time to time maintain, support, repair, and make, all and every the said Pavements over and against their Houses, Messuages, &c. from time to time, and so often as need should, upon pain to forfeit for every Yard-square Eight-pence of like money. And that the said Owners or Landlords, &c. and their heirs, successors, and assigns, should sufficiently from time to time, maintain and repair, so often as it should be needful, the Pavement of the said street and streets so adjoining, with like Stone, against all and every the Messuages, &c. in like manner as is above said; upon pain of Forfeiture for every Yard-square not sufficiently repaired and amended, Twelve-pence of like money. And where need should be, of pavement of any streets adjoining to any Churches or Church-yards within the said Town or Suburbs; the same street and streets should be paved from time to time with like stone, and from thenceforth, at the charges of the Parishioners of every such Church, &c. the Charges thereof to be indifferently rated by the Bayliffs and Aldermen of the said Town, or the more part of them. And, that the said Forfeitures should be to the use of the Bayliffs and Commonalty of the said town of Colchester, and their Successors, to be employed and converted for the amendment of the Haven, River, and Channel there.

But the Penalty was so small, that few could be constrained thereby to keep their Pavements in due repair [O]. And, during the suspension of our Charter, there were no persons legally authorized to enforce the Act. So that at length the Streets grew so ruinous, and in many places dangerous, that it was found necessary to obtain a new Act, in 1750, of which the principal Clause is as follows.

“Whereas the Streets and Lanes in the Town of Colchester, and the Liberties thereof, have, for several years last past, been much out of repair, and are now in so bad and ruinous a condition, that it is dangerous for persons to pass and repass through the said Town, for the effectual Repairing and Amending thereof for the future, It is enacted, That all and every Landlord or Owner, Landlords or Owners, of any Dwelling-house, Shop, Ware-house, Coach-house, Building, Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments, being contiguous to, adjoining upon, fronting, or lying along, the Sides of such Streets and Lanes, in this Town, as have been formerly paved, should from time to time; and at all times, after the commencement of this Act, at his, her, and their own Costs and Charges, sufficiently repair, pave with Stone, and amend the Street or Lane, before and lying over-against his, her, or their House or Houses, Buildings, Walls, Fences, Grounds, or Lands, so far as his, her, or their House or Houses, Buildings, Walls, Fences, Grounds, or Lands, extend unto the Middle of the same Street or Lane.”

And effectually to prevent all Decays in the Pavement, it is further enacted, That after a presentment at a special Sessions, and proper Notice, if the Pavement is not repaired within twenty days, the Surveyor or Surveyors within the respective Parishes, shall and may cause the said Decays to be repaired and amended; and shall be reimbursed what Charges and Expences he or they shall be reasonably at in so doing, by the Party or Parties who should or ought to have done the same. To be levied by distress, in case of neglect or refusal of Payment [P].

The WALLS of this Town are still standing, but very much decayed in some places, particularly on the North-side. They are built of Stone, such as is found on our Eastern Coast; with a mixture of Roman Bricks. The Cement is excellent, and incredibly strong [Q]; but it suffers much in winter, especially in great rains, attended with sudden frosts and thaws. Where the Wall remains perfect, 'tis faced either with Roman Brick, or square Stones about seven or eight inches in diameter. The Thickness of it is various, in most parts Seven or Eight foot thick [R]; but, about the Gates and Posterns it is much thicker. The Circumference of the whole Wall was measured in August 1746, and found to be as follows.

(d) Rot. cur. 13. Edw. IV. rot. 2.

[O] See this Act more at length in the Appendix, No. II.

[P] A yard-square of Pavement cannot be done well, now, for less than Three shillings.

[Q] The Italians at this day, and much more the Ancients, did burn their firmest Stone, and even Fragments of Marble when it was copious, which in time became almost marble again, or at least of indissoluble durability. Sir H. Wotton's Elements of Architecture, in Reliquiæ Wottonianæ. Edit. 1654. p. 293.

[R] The Roman Wall in Cumberland and Northumberland, is between Seven and Eight foot thick; or a Roman pace and a half. Britannia Romana, p. 122. Bede says, it was Eight foot broad, and twelve high. Eccl. Hist. L. i. c. 12.

		Yards
West-End.	From the South-west Corner to the West Postern.	100
	From that Postern to the beginning of the Balkon.	107
	The Balkon itself.	43
North-side.	From the Balkon to the North-west Corner.	265
	The rounding, or winding, of the Corner.	60
	From that Corner to North-Gate.	130
	From North-Gate to Rye-gate.	343
East-End.	From Rye-gate to the North-east Corner.	500
	From the North-east Corner to East-gate.	345
	From East-Gate to the South-east Corner, where it begins to wind.	180
	The winding Corner, or obtuse Angle, as far as the Bastion in Bery-field.	80
South-side.	From this Bastion to the next in a Garden of Mr. Gray's.	165
	From that Bastion to St. Botolph's-gate.	85
	From St. Botolph's-Gate to Schere-Gate.	300
	From Schere-Gate to Head-gate.	225
	From Head-Gate to the South-west Corner.	165

3093

That is, in the whole, 9280 feet and a half, or 3093 yards one foot and a half, or 1856 paces; equal to 562 Rods, seven feet and a half; very little more than a Mile and three quarters.

Within that compass there are contained a hundred and eight acres, two roods, and five perches of ground.

The Form of the Walls is near a trapezium, the longest sides whereof are the North and South: As may be seen in the Ichnography.

Colchester being unquestionably a Roman Town, 'tis very probable that the Walls were originally built by the Romans. However, of this we have no certain and positive Evidence: as we have, that they were built long before the Norman times. For, in the year 921, K. Edward the Elder repaired the Walls, which had been battered and damaged the same year, when he took this Town from the Danes (e).

This Town-wall being look'd upon as the chief Strength and Security of the place, great care was taken for its preservation. Accordingly such persons as beat off, or meddled with, any of the Stones belonging thereto, or dug any pits or holes under or near it, were constantly indicted (f).

But more Care seems to have been taken to repair and keep it up, in the time of K. Richard II. than in any other reign. For, notice is taken in the Oath-book (5^o Ric. II.) that the Bailiffs and Commonalty were daily repairing the Stone-walls of the Town, where they most wanted [S]. And that King, in the 6th, 12th and 17th of his reign, did, of his special grace and favour, exempt the Burgeses of Colchester, from the charge of sending Representatives to Parliament [T]; for three years, on the 6th and 17th; and for five years on the 12th; upon account of the great Expences they were at in repairing their Wall with lime and stone, for the safety of the Town against all Invaders (g). The same King, in the 16th of his reign, granted his royal License to Ralph Algar, Stephen Baron, and Henry Boffe, empowering them to grant and assign Two Messuages, Four acres of land, and the Advowson of the Hospital of the Holy Cross, to the Bailiffs and Commonalty and their Successors, as a help towards mending and repairing the Walls of the Town [U].

The like Exemption as that above-mentioned, of sending Members to Parliament, and on the same account, was granted to the Free burgeses by K. Henry IV, in 1403, for six years; And by K. Henry V, in the year 1421 (b).

Thus, through the care of our Magistracy, these Walls continued in a tolerable condition; and, on account of them, the Town was look'd upon as a place of some Strength, before those murdering Engines, Canons and Mortars, were brought to their full perfection. But then, as it could make but little resistance, it became less considerable. The unhappy Siege, in 1648, (e) Chronic. Saxon. ad an. dcccxxi, p. 108, 109.

Rot. 49 Edw. III. rot. 1. Rot. 7 Hen. VI. rot. 13. Rot. 13 Edw. IV. rot. 10. Rot. 16 Edw. IV. rot. 21. And in many other instances.

(g) Rot. Pat. 6 Ric. II. p. 2. m. 26.—12 Ric. II. p. 1. m. 22.—17 Ric. II. p. 2. m. 31.

Patent. 5. Hen. IV. p. 1. m. 2.—& Rot. Pat. 9 Hen. V. p. 1. m. 19.

(b) Rot.

[S] Ballivi & Communitas de novo faciunt de die in diem muros lapideos [leg. lapideos] dicte ville reparari, prout maxime indiget. p. 55. col. 2. Vide etiam Rotul. Cur. 5^o Ric. II. rot. 37.

[T] Tho' the Representatives are now at great charges, both in their Elections and Attendance on Parliament, the Case formerly was quite otherwise. For the Counties, Cities, and Boroughs were wont to maintain their Representatives during the time of their attendance in Parliament. See Statut. 23 Henr. VI. c. 11. and 35 Henr. VIII. c. 11. and Prynn's Brev. Parliament. Some of our Members of Parliament took wages from the Town so low as Qu. Elizabeth's reign. See List of Members below. Book I. ch. v. § 6.

[U] The words of the Record are as follows.—Ricardus Rex Anglie post conquestum secundus, per literas suas patentes, quarum Dat. est apud Noryngham tertio decimo die Septembris anno regni sui sextodecimo, de gratia sua speciali, ac pro viginti marcis quas tunc Ballivi & Communitas Ville predictę eidem Regi solverunt, concessit & licentiam dedit pro se & heredibus suis quantum in ipso fuit, Radulpho Algar, Stephano Baron, & Henrico Boffe, quod ipsi duo Messuagia & Quatuor acras terre cum pertinentiis in Colcestria, ac Advocationem Hospitalis Ste Crucis in eadem villa que de eodem Rege non tenebantur Dare possent & assignare prefatis tunc Ballivis; Habendum & tenendum videlicet predicta Messuagia & Terram eidem Ballivis & Communitati & successoribus suis, in auxilium Reparationis & Emendationis Murorum ville predictę, Et predictam Advocationem sibi & successoribus suis imperpetuum.—These two Messuages, and Four acres of Land, were afterwards granted by the Bailiffs and Commonalty to the Monastery of the Holy Cross. See below Book II. ch. 4. § 3. p. 42. col. 1.

W. Green del. & J. P. Colpe.

THE SOUTH EAST VIEW OF COLCHESTER CASTLE.

To William Coston, Esq. (One of His Majesty's Justices, for the County of Middlesex.)
(This PLATE is Humbly Inscribed.)

was a great hurt to them; as it was also to the rest of the Town (i). And at present, instead of being duly repaired by the Chamberlains, as usual [W], they are chiefly kept up as a fence by those that have Gardens or other grounds adjoining thereto,

In these Walls there are four GATES,

1. Head-gate, called in Records Heved or Haved-Gate; and in Latin Porta Capitalis. [Now taken down.] 2. North-Gate. 3. East-Gate. And 4. St. Botolph's-Gate, anciently called South-Gate. East-Gate fell down in 1651 [X], and in the place where it stood were afterwards erected two brick Pillars; and the like where Head-gate stood.

There are also Three Posterns. 1. The West Postern, in St. Mary's Church-yard [Y]: But when the Church was rebuilt, that Postern being low and inconvenient, part of the Wall was taken down in order to enlarge the Passage, and Stone-steps made, instead of the sloping ascent there.

2. Schere-gate; called in Records South-Scherde, or South-Postern. 3. Rye-gate, as it is vulgarly called; or rather Rhee or Rea-Gate, that is the River-Gate, as leading to the River. It was anciently named the North, or King's Scherde. 'Twas taken down in the year 1659 [Z].

I shall now proceed to give as exact and particular an account of the CASTLE as I can.

This stately pile stands on the North-side of the High-street, almost opposite to All-Saints Church. 'Tis a square of about Two hundred and twenty four yards in circumference on the out-side, all projections and windings included. The Four sides lie nearly to the four principal points of the compass. The Building consists, of the outer Walls 12 feet thick in the lower story, and 11 in the upper, flanked at the corners, with strong and lofty Towers: On the inside there run, North and South, two strong parallel Walls, which served for partitions and supports to the several Apartments; but the greatest part of the Westernmost wall is taken down. The Easternmost is built in the Roman, i. e. the herring-bone fashion. The Lodgings were all at the upper part, and there still remain two good chimneys on the West, and the same number on the East-side, turned with a handsome Roman arch, as indeed all the Doors and Windows are. Each chimney has a double funnel.

The Gate of the Castle is on the South-side; and within, on the left hand, and in the South West Tower, is the grand Stair-case, which is still pretty entire: The top of it was ruinous, but hath been lately closed by a Dome built of rough materials, as like as may be to the rest of the Castle. On the right hand as you go in, is a large Vault above ground, well arched; partly over which stands a spacious and handsome Room, built by Charles Gray Esq; for a Library; and through a piazza along the side of it, is the passage into the Chapel; which being now repaired, and the ancient Stair-case covered, as hath been observed, the South side of the Castle is in some degree restored. The Chapel stands in the South-East Tower, or rather Bastion, being strongly arched at the top. The length of it from East to West is Forty seven feet; the width of it from North to South Forty feet, where widest; and the height proportionable. Below it is a good arched Vault, used for a Prison, or Bridewell: which has been left for a great many years past to this County for that purpose.

Within the ground, under the greatest part of the Castle, there are fine and spacious Vaults. They were discovered not above fifty years ago, being full of sand on which the arches were turned: The sand was taken out at a considerable expence, by John Wheely, who was endeavouring to pull the Castle down: And, to carry off the sand, he cut a cart-way through the foundation-wall near the North-east corner, now closed up, where the Wall is thirty feet in thickness, but it did not answer expectation. The partition in these Vaults supporting the arches, is exactly in the form of a Cross.

There was originally no other Gate to the Castle, but that one above-mentioned, (except a small Sally-port on the North-side;) for the two Gates and Doors that now are on the North and East-sides, have been cut, with great labour, out of the solid Walls.

The whole Building is a mixture of stone and Roman bricks; But most of the Roman bricks are in broken pieces, taken from the Ruins of more ancient Edifices formerly standing in this town. The Corners of the Walls, and Sides of the Doors, Windows, &c. are of free stone.

It suffered extremely from the ill-judged Attempt of John Wheely, who purchased it of the late Robert Northfolk, Esq; with intent and upon condition to demolish it entirely, and make money of the materials. For this purpose, many of the Roman Bricks were taken away and sold, with most part of the free stone at the coins and in the inward arches of the building. A fine Well was destroyed, and the tops of the Towers and Walls forced down with screws, or blown up with gun-powder, and thrown upon the heads of the arched Vaults below, in such heavy weights, and with so great violence, as to break

(i) See the History of the Sieges. Ch. II. § 7.

[W] See Rot. Cur. 21 Henr. VI. rot. 2.

[X] For I find, that Febr. 1652, It was ordered, That the Chamberlain should be allowed out of the Town-revenues Six pounds, for the carrying away of the Rubbish of the East-Gate that was fallen down, and to make the Way passable for Carts and Horses that should have occasion to pass that way: And the Chamberlain to have such stones, lead, and iron, as belonged to that Gate, for his own use. But it seems to have been repaired again. For 10 January 1675, the following order was made. "By reason East-Gate is out of repair, and so dangerous that it is believed it will suddenly fall, whereby great mischief may be done, ordered, That Mr. Mayor, and three of the Aldermen, together with the Chamberlain, taking with them such

"workmen as to them shall seeme convenient, shall view and survey the said Gate and pull down soe much thereof as they shall thinke in danger of falling, and the Rubbish to be disposed of as they shall think fitt." (Book of Assemblies.)

[Y] It is sometimes called the Postern near Colkynges castell. Rot. Cur. 15 Hen. VI. rot. 2. and Rot. Cur. 35 Hen. VIII. rot. 12.

[Z] It was sold by the Town, in the beginning of the year 1659, and John Woodroffe had 40 shillings allowed him out of the sale of it, towards the Charges he was at about the pitching of the Red-Row. (Book of Assemblies)—Undoubtedly, this Postern, as well as East-Gate, were much battered and damaged during the Siege.

one of the finest of them. But, after great devastations, the remaining part of the Walls being so strongly cemented, that the profit did not answer the charge of further demolition, he was forced to desist. 'Tis now carefully preserved by the present worthy owner Charles Gray Esq;

The Castle-yard, Bailey, or Baylywick, was formerly encompassed on the South and West-sides by a strong Wall, in which were two Gates. That on the South was the chief. This Wall was taken down by Robert Northfolk, Esq; who erected in the room of it a range of Houses, now standing in the High-street. The West-wall reached as far as the East-side of St. Helen's-lane (k). On the North and East-sides, the Castle was secured by a deep Ditch, and strong Rampart of earth, which are now taken into the gardens of Charles Gray Esq; This Rampart is thrown upon a Wall, that formerly encompass'd either the Castle, or the Palace of Coel on the site whereof the Castle is built; the buttresses and other parts of which wall have been lately discovered.

The Tithes wherewith the Chapel in the Castle was originally endowed, belonged afterwards to St. John's Abbey; for Eudo Dapifer founder of that Monastery granted unto it, among other things, omnes proventus Capelle in Castello de Colecestria, (l) i. e. "all the profits of "the Chapel in the castle of Colchester:" Which was confirm'd afterwards by K. Richard I. under the title of Capellam Castellum Colcestre, cum decimis & obventionibus (*). i. e. "the Chapel "of the Castle of Colchester, with the Tithes "and obventions." From what lands these Tithes accrued, appears from this authentic List of them (m).

The Castell Baylie with the Gardens adjoining next the strete.

The great Garden on the North-side of the Castell.

Mr. Symnell's field on the North-side of his house. One acre of Grass in the King's meade.

Two parcells of Lande next the King's meade, now or late in the tenure of Mr. John Bird.

Two acres of Grass in the Rowin meade.

One parcell of meadowe by Rowin meade, late in the hands of William Moulde.

Fourteen acres of land belonging to St. Helens.

The tithe of a parcell of meade next Rye-Gate belonging to St. Helens.

One other parcell of meadow next the Myddell Mill.

The Myddell Mill.

One parcell of Wood.

The Hofte.

Sholand over-against the Spittell house.

Litell Sholand next adjoining towards the South.

The Bromefields beyond Sholand on the South.

The longe strake on the other side of the waye.

In consideration of these Tithes, the Abbot of St. John's was obliged to find a Chaplain, to officiate three days in every week, either in St. Helen's Chapel, or in the Chapel within the Castle; as appears by the Exemplification of a Judgment passed in the Exchequer, in the year 1290, between the King and the Bayliffs of Colchester of the one part, and the Abbot of St. John's of the other part. And the Abbot was then fined twelve marks, for six years neglect of that service [A]. After the dissolution of the Monasteries, these Tithes were leased by K. Henry VIII. 29 Novemb. 1542, to Edward Cole for 21 years; and afterwards the reversion of them granted, among others, by Q. Elizabeth, in the 2d year of her reign to Sir Francis Jobson, Kt. (n); whose son Edward dyed seized thereof in 1590. After some intermediate possessors, they came into the hands of Sir James Northfolk; of his son—and son-in-law—Robert Northfolk, and Hope Gifford, Esquires, and of the Rev. Fr. Powell; now of Charles Gray Esq;

This Castle is said by Norden (o) to have been built by Edward the Elder. He repaired indeed the Town-walls (p), as hath been observ'd above. And if there was any remains of Coel's palace, he might perhaps bestow some pains in repairing of that too, and making it a kind of fortification. But the Castle in the manner it now stands, was undoubtedly built after the Norman Conquest, when Fortresses were erected in most of the considerable Towns in England, in order to awe the Inhabitants and keep them in subjection (q). Possibly too it was founded by Eudo, as 'tis asserted in the Monasticon (r), and in fundo palatii Coelis quondam Regis, according to our Colchester Chronicle, anno 1076. The original Proprietor of it, was the King; and it continued in the Crown till the year (s), when the Empress Maud granted it to Alberic de Vere, ancestor of the noble Family of the De Veres Earls of Oxford; but, in all probability, tho' she gave him the title, it was not in her power to give him possession.

It therefore remained, as far as we can learn, in the Crown [B] till the year 1214, when K. John granted it, with the Hundred of Tending, and the Borough, to Stephen Harengood during pleasure (t).

K. Henry III. in the year 1256, granted the Castle of Colchester, with its appertinances, and the Hundred and Demesnes, worth 28 l.

(k) See Cur. Rotul. 37 Hen. VI. Rot. 16.

(m) MSS. W. Ram.

1692. p. 108, 109.

(l) As, at Exeter, Nottingham, Warwick, York, Lincoln, Huntingdon, Cambridge, Durham, (n) Pat. 20 Elizab.

(o) Survey of Essex.

(p) Pat. 16 Joh. p. 1. m. 7.

(q) As, at Exeter, Nottingham, Warwick, York, Lincoln, Huntingdon, Cambridge, Durham, (r) Vol. I. p. 724.

(s) See our ancient English Historians.

(t) Pat. 16 Joh. p. 1. m. 7.

(*) Pat. 1. Ric. I.

(u) Pat. 16 Joh. p. 1. m. 7.

[A] This Exemplification was made in the 2d of Hen. VI. and the passage refer'd to, is as follows.---Et quoad subtractionem Capellani dicunt, Quod predictus Abbas & Abbates ejusdem loci qui pro tempore fuerint, invenire debent & semper solebant, pro predictis Decimis, Unum Capellanum celebrantem per tres dies in qualibet septimana in Capella Ste Helene de Colcestre. vel in Capella Regis in Castro de Colecestre. ad voluntatem Constabularii ejusdem Castri, five alterius custodiam predicti Castri habentis . . . See Lesser Reg. of St. John's, fol. 33.

[B] In an old Roll, in the time of K. Richard or K. John, is this presentment: Quot & que Dominica Maneria Rex habet in manu sua, &c. Dicunt, Quod Castrum Colecestre. cum Hundr. de Tendinge est in manu Dni Regis, & in custodia Vicecomitis Essex nunc. (Penes n. e.)

per an. together with the fee-farm of the Town, which the Burgeſſes uſed to pay to the King, viz. 32*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* $\frac{1}{2}$. and 32 ſhillings and ſeven-pence half penny for blanch, to Guido de Rupeforti, or Rochfort, for his ſupport; and all the Eſcheats that would have fallen to the Crown, if the King had held the caſtle in his own hands: Reſerving to himſelf and heirs, his wood of Kingſwood, the Judaifm of the Town, and Liberty for the Sheriffs to enter the Town and Hundred, in order to levy the Dues which were to be raiſed by ſummonce from the Exchequer, and there account for them; and to diſtrain for the Debts of the Jews, as they uſed to do. And that the ſaid Guido ſhould keep the Caſtle in the ſame ſtate it was then in and after his deceaſe the Caſtle and appertenance ſhould revert to the Crown. The Patent is dated June 12. at Weſtmiſter (u). But Guido having, in 1258, grievouſly offended the King and the Barons, was baniſhed, and deprived of all his goods (w).

On the 18th of December, 1273, K. Edw. I. granted this Caſtle, with the Hundred of Tendring, to John de Burgh for life (x). But he did not enjoy it ſo long; For

In 1275, it was granted to Richard de Holebrook (y). His enjoyment of it was very ſhort; ſince we find it given, 25 December the ſame year, to Laurence de Scaccario, Sheriff of Eſſex, for the County-gaol; and the demefnes belonging thereto were ordered to be plough'd and ſown, by the ſaid Richard, for the King's uſe (z).

The next poſſeſſor of it was Robert de Benhall, Kt. to whom it was given by K. Edw. III. for life, together with 27 acres of meadow, 180 acres of arable, and two parts of a water-mill, in Colcheſter; and the hundred of Tendring, with thirty ſhillings rent, in Eſſex (a).

In 1404, Octob. 22. K. Henry IV. granted this caſtle, with the Fee-farm of the town of Colcheſter, and the Hundred of Tendring, to his ſon Henry Duke of Lancaſter, and the heirs male of his body for ever; which grant was confirm'd by the Parliament holden at Coventry Octob. 21 (b).

K. Henry VI, in the 25th year of his reign, gave this caſtle and lordſhip of Colcheſter with the Hundred of Tendring, and 25*l.* a year out of the fee-farm of the Town, to his Queen Margaret for her life (c).

Sir John Howard, Kt. is the next to whom it was granted, by K. Edward IV. 6 July 1461, for the term of his life; together with a mill of two parts, and the Hundred of Tendring (d).

Thomas Kendale, 20 Septemb. 1485, obtained from K. Henry VII. the conſtableſhip and cuſtody of this caſtle; and of the King's demefnes in Colcheſter, viz. 180 acres of arable, 27 acres of meadow, 30 ſhillings rent, the Hundred of Tendring, and two parts of a water-mill for his life (e): but, in the 11th of the ſame king, he ſurrendred his Patent into Chancery, to be cancelled; Upon which the conſtableſhip and cuſtody of the Caſtle aforeſaid, &c. were granted 5 Novemb. 1496, to John de Vere Earl of Oxford (f). This grant was ratified and confirmed by K. Henry VIII. 16 May 1509.

The next poſſeſſors of it were, Sir Thomas, afterwards, Lord Darcy, to whom the cuſtody of it was granted for life, 4 June 1541.

Qu. Mary granted it, 25 Novemb. 1553, to her beloved Servant Antony Kempe Eſq; for life.

Without taking notice of this grant, Qu. Elizabeth granted it, 14 December 1558, to Henry Mackwilliam Eſq; for the term of his life.

On the 14th of December 1599, Sir John Stanhope obtained a grant of the cuſtody of this Caſtle, with 180 acres of land, arable and paſture, 27 acres of meadow, the Hundred of Tendring, two parts of a Water-mill, and the rent of thirty ſhillings per ann. after the death of Henry Mackwilliam, whoſe eldeſt daughter Margaret he had married; and during the life of Mary Lady Cheek, relict of Sir John Cheek, and then wife of the ſaid Henry (g). But in 1603, he ſurrendred his Letters Patent, whereupon the premiſſes were granted to him, for his own and his ſon's life, in as full and ample a manner as they had been enjoy'd by Thomas Lord Darcy, John Earl of Oxford, and Henry Mackwilliam (h). He and his ſon ſurrendred them again in 1607, whereupon K. James I. made them a new Grant, 7 April 1607, of the cuſtody of the Caſtle, &c. for their two lives.

In the year 1629, Aug. 5. James Hay Earl of Carlisle obtained of K. Charles I. the reversion, to him and his heirs for ever, of the caſtle of Colcheſter, &c. after the death of Charles Lord Stanhope, to be held of the Maner of Eaſt-Greenwich in common ſocage. On the 11th of May 1633, the Earl of Carlisle mortgaged the premiſſes for 1000*l.* to Archibald Hay Eſq; and releaſed the ſame to him 12 April 1636. Archibald becoming a priſoner in the King's Bench, and making his eſcape from thence, was forced to compound for that fault by yielding and conveying this Caſtle &c. to Sir John Lenthall Kt. Maſter of the King's Bench. The 15th of April 1656, Lenthall conveyed them to James Northfolk Eſq; Serjeant at Arms to the Houſe of Commons. But tho' an ejection was brought againſt the Lord Stanhope, in the name of the Crown, under pretence of his being concerned in ſome fraudulent dealings, Northfolk could not get quiet poſſeſſion. So that he was forced to buy the Caſtle, with the demefnes of it, and the Hundred of Tendring, of Charles Lord Stanhope, and Symon Potter of Nocton in Lincolnſhire, Clerk, 17 Janu. 1661, for the ſum of 2575*l.* and a Fine was paſſed before the Barons of the Exchequer (k) [C]. His ſon (u) Pat. 40 Hen. III. m. 9. (w) M. Paris, p. 980. (x) Pat. 4 Edw. I. m. 24. (y) Pat. 5 Edw. I. m. 23.

(z) Pat. 4 Edw. I. m. 35. Caſtrum Colceſtr. liberatum eſt Laurent. de Scaccario Vic. Eſſex pro cuſtodia priſonarum; ita quod Dominica Regis ad Caſtr. & Hundr. pertinentia excolantur, & ſeminentur ad commodum Regis. (a) Eſc. 38 Edw. III.
(b) Oath-book. (c) Pat. 25 Hen. VI. p. 2. m. 27. (d) Pat. 1 Ed. IV. p. 4. m. 7. (e) Pat. 1 & 12 Hen. VII. p. 1. (f) Pat. 1 Hen. 8. p. 1. m. 26. Dugdale's Baron. Vol. I. p. 198. (g) Pat. 1 Mar. & 1 & 42 Elizab.
(h) Pat. 1 Jac. I. p. 1. (i) Pat. 5 Car. I. p. 5. (k) MSS. penes C. Gray armig.

[C] In his time, it was ſtill uſed for the common goal of the County. (Brief of Suit between Sir J. Rebow, &c.)--- Sir James, whoſe dwelling place was at Cranbrooke-houſe in Ilford, and ſometimes at Romford, dyed the latter end of October, or the beginning of November, 1680. (Anſw. to Bill in Chancery, penes me.)---He is ſaid to have been ſo

C Robert

Robert Northfolk Esq; enjoyed it after him. But having impoverished himself by building the range of Houses on the South-side of the Castle-Bailey; he sold it [D], on the 9th of May 1683, to

John Wheely, who purchas'd it in order to pull it down; and articted so to do. But not gaining theteby so much as he expected, he sold it to

Sir Isaac Rebow, Kt. and of his grandson Charles Chamberlain Rebow, Esq; it was bought by Charles Gray, Esq; the present possessor: Who hath also purchased of Northfolk's heirs, the Upper and Nether Bailey, and some other lands adjoining, as also Sholands, &c. formerly parcel of the Castle demefnes.

Governors or Constables of Colchester-Castle, as far as can be found upon Record.

Hen. II. { H. . . . de St. Clare [E]. Whose only daughter became the wife of Rich. I. { William de Lanvallei. He gave K. 2°. Johan. { John 200 marks, for the custody of it, as he had held it under K. Richard I. [F].

1215. William de Lanvallei, the Son. His only daughter Hawylfe was put under the wardship of —Hubert de Burgh, who married her to his son John de Burgh, and was made Constable of this Castle. But being disgraced, and displaced, in the year 1232. Stephen de Segrave was put into his room.

In the year 1265, or 1266, Thomas de Clare, was made Constable of this Castle (l).

1274. William de Wayland appears to have been the next possessor of it; for he was then ordered to deliver the same to John de Burgh (m).

1406. William Dych was Keeper of this Castle (n).

(l) Dugdale's Baronage, Vol. I. p. 633. 638. 696. 216. rot. 2. (o) J. Fox's Martyrol. Vol. III. p. 637.

great a sufferer on account of K. Charles II, that. in 1656, he was forced to mortgage his Estate at Plumsted. (Ibid) But he had sufficiently complied with the usurping Powers, having been made one of the Serjeants at Arms to the House of Commons, 20 April 1646. Whitelocke's Mem. p. 201. 261. From several Letters and other Papers of his that have come to my hands, he appears to have been a very incroaching and unjust man.

[D] That is, only the Castle, with the Soil on which it stands, containing in measure Half an acre, twelve rods, and one quarter of a Rod. He gave 110*l.* for it. But the Lands that had been granted with the Castle, descended to Martha fifter and heir of Robert Northfolk above-mentioned, the wife of Hope Gifford, Esq;

About the time John Wheely purchased the Castle, there was a part of the ground on the South-side of it, about three quarters of an acre, made into a Bowling-green; and fenced off from the other part of the Castle-Bailey with a high fence of deal boards.

[E] Richard le Wel was Constable of this Castle, in the reign of K. Richard I. or K. John. But in what year, I am not able to determinē. (Rot. antiq. penes me.)

[F] This particular we learn from the industrious John Stow, whose account he pleased to take at length. "In a certain assiege at Bridgenorth, against Hugh de Mortemere, [A° 1165.] when the King [Henry II.] was shot at by one of the enemies, a valiant man Hubert de Saint Clare, Constable of Colchester, did thrust himself betwixt the King and the danger of the stroke, and so received death for him; whose onely daughter the King taking into his custody, hee gave her in marriage to William de Langvale, with her father's inheritance, who begat on her a sonne, 1419. William Bardulph.

In the year 1428 John Exeter, and Jacolet Germaine, were Keepers of the Castle of Colchester (o).

1485. Thomas Kendale.

1509. John Earl of Oxford (p).

The Lands belonging to the Castle, or that have been generally granted by Patent with it, are as follows.

	acr.
The Upper Bayly, in which the Castle stands.	8
The Nether Bayly, or Sheepef-endfield	5
Near the Grey-friers wall	5
The Middle-mill, with an acre of meadow	1
A meadow, abutting north on East river	3
In King's meadow	6
—In the same	3
—Parson's acre, in the same	1
The Castle lands	50
Rowin mead	22
In St. Mary's In-Mile- end parish. at the Wall.
{ Abutting south on King's meadow	6
{ Near the same—(all arable)	5
{ The Castle-grove—now Pasture	10
{ Great Sholand	12
{ Little Sholand	8
{ The Bromfield, abutting east on Maldon-lane	12
{ The long strake on the other side of that lane	2
{ The Bayliff's acre, in the parish of Tending	1
	160

Besides several Quit-rents, amounting in the whole to 2*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.*

This Castle, with the Bailey, is independent of the Corporation, and not within the Bounds of any one of the Parishes [G]. But the same cannot be said of the Lands and Demefnes be-

(m) Pat. 2 Edw. I. m. 24. (n) Rotul. 3 Hen. IV. (p) Pat. 1 Hen. VII. & 1 Hen. VIII.

"bearing the name and surname of his grandfather." (Annales, Edit. 1631. p. 152.)

[G] In a paper, in my possession, are the following Arguments, to prove that the Castle does not belong to Colchester: It cannot be found by any Records, that any Castle did or does belong to any Corporation; particularly the Tower of London is exempted from the City jurisdiction.—Also the Castle of Norwich stands in the middle of the City, yet is wholly exempted from it; and what ground is about it, belongs to a parish some miles distant.—The same of Worcester castle; which, as far as the bounds thereof go, is out of the Corporation.

In K. Charles the First's time, when Tobacco was monopolized, so that none might be sold in any Corporation, but by a Patent; one Edw. Legg built a Shop within the Liberty of the Castle, and could not be hindred. A° 1647. Jonas Whale, a Baker and a Foreigner, set up in that Liberty; and Nath. Gilson and John Kirby, bakers, did what they could to prevent his trading there: but it being out of the Town-liberty, they could not hinder him.—The same case happened by Tho. Bacon, about the year 1670. John Hicham, about 1654, being a Servant in the Castle, and dying there, his child, by an order from Chelmsford, was maintained by Doniland parish.

By searching the Parish Books, and Rates, it doth not appear that either the Castle, or the Bailey, were taken in any of the Parishes. Nor were the Tenants, or Occupiers, taken in as Parishioners any where; except one Peter Alvis, about the year 1678. But this was reckoned unusual and irregular.

N. B. Hope Gifford, Esq; had a notion, that the Castle, or some of its demefnes, were in East Doniland: For, in longing

longing thereto, or of which the Chapel there received Tithes, as some have falsely imagined; for they lie in several parishes, and ought to be rated in them: All pretensions to the contrary being entirely groundless.

The town of Colchester hath heretofore been feudatory to the Castle, by Rents and many other Duties and Services; but a discharge and exemption was purchased from Q. Elizabeth, and confirmed by Parliament in the beginning of her reign (q).

The Donation of the office of Steward of the Hundred of Tendring in Essex, and the nomination of the Bailiff of that Hundred, hath appertain'd to the proprietor of this Castle. And within, and for that Hundred, there is, and hath been from time immemorial, a Court holden always from three weeks to three weeks, by the Steward. View of Frank Pledge hath also been held by prescription, within twelve days next after the Nativity of Christ, every year, by the Steward of the Hundred aforesaid, or his Deputy, in the parishes of Ardleigh, Lawford, Mistle, Little Bromley, Tendring, Beaumont, and Allesford. The waste grounds, and Woods thereupon growing, within the precinct of the view of Frank Pledge aforesaid, belong to the owners of the said Castle of Colchester; and those that fell these woods, or incroach upon the wastes, have been punished at that Court. The Steward hath likewise kept the Sheriff's Torne twice in every year, according to the form of the Statute, at Tendring; to which Sheriff's Torne the following Towns, or Parishes, within the said Hundred and County, do owe suit and service, viz. Ardley, Lawford, Little Bromley, Elmstead, Allesford, Bentley magna, Fratinge, Tendringe, Mistle, Beaumont, Great and Little Okeley, Great Holland, Wrabnes, Ramsey, Weeks, and Bradfield (r).

CHAP. II.

§ 1. Name of Colchester, whence derived.

WHAT NAME was given to this Town by the ancient Britans, is not perfectly known; except it was Camudolhan (s), or Camalaunuidun (t), [H] from whence was afterwards formed the word Camulodunum, or Camalodunum. The Romans, after having settled themselves therein, gave it the name of Colonia, and Colonia-Camulodunum (u) as I shall endeavour to prove under Section 3. From this word Colonia, the Britans formed Colon, to which prefixing the word Caer, or Kair, that, in their own language, signifies a Town or City, they called it Cair-Colun (w), Kair-Collon (x), Kaer-Coluin (y), and Caer-golden (z).

To the word Colon above-mentioned the Saxons adding Eaſtæn, formed from the Latin word Castrum, or Castra, and given by them to most places where the Romans had fixed their Camps or Stations [I], they formed the name Eolne-eaſtæn (a), from whence is derived the present appellation of Colchester. And so from Colonia, both this Town, and the river Colne running by it, took their names. But others affirm (b), that it took its name from Coel, Captain or Governor of the same in the time of the Emperor Aurelian; who repaired and beautified it, and gave it the name of Kayr-coel, as is asserted in the most ancient Record, which at present remains in this place.

§ 2. There is great reason to believe, that here was a Town even in the earliest times; if we consider the Healthfulness and pleasant Situation of the Place, and its Conveniency for all the Uses and Pleasures of Life; and if we consider also, that the Country was all covered with woods. For, the first inhabitants of this island were wont generally to fix their abode on dry and hilly grounds; not like the Monks afterwards, in low bottoms for the advantage of fish, which was their chief nourishment.

The Country's being covered with woods, is likewise no improbable Argument of a Town's being here: Either on account of Strength, or of Religion. For, according to J. Cæsar, the strong Towns or fortified Places, of the Britans were only thick Woods, fenced with a ditch and a rampart; and rendered thereby difficult of access either to horse or foot [K]. The word used by that author [L] signifies a strong or

(q) MSS. penes C. Gray armig. (r) MS. penes C. Gray armig. (s) H. Lhuyd Fragment. Britann. Descript. Edit. Col. Agrip. 1572. 12^o. fol. 18. (t) W. Baxteri Glossar. Antiquit. Brit. sub voce CAMULODUNUM. (u) Antonini Itinerar. V. & IX. (w) Nennii Hist. Briton. cap. 65. Edit. T. Gale. Oxon. 1691. p. 115. & p. 135, 136. (x) Henric. Huntingdon. Edit. Francof. 1601. p. 298. inter nomina Civitatum quondam nobilissim. quibus insignita erat Britannia. (y) Galfr. Monum. Hist. Reg. Brit. lib. v. c. 6. (z) Alured. Beverlac. . . . Ranulph Higden. p. 197. (a) Chronicon Saxonum. p. 108, 109. (b) Ran. Higden, p. 216, 217.

1693, when he granted to Jeremy Spurgeon a Lease, of a messuage or tenement adjoining to the dwelling house of Israel Ram, called or known by the name or signe of the Castle-inn; He thus describes it,—“scituate and being in Colchester aforesaid, in the parish of All-Saints, or East Doniland.” But he was wrong.

[H] Cam-a-laün-uidun; which word, in the British language, signifies a Temple, or Town on a Hill, at the winding of a River; as it really is here. And the learned Mr. W. Baxter thence infers, that the ancient name of the River was Alaun. Mr. Camden says (Britannia, in Essex) “He durst not venture to affirm, that this place was so called from the God Camulus; and yet, that Mars was worship'd under this name appears (saith he) from an old Stone at Rome in the House of the Colloti, and from Altars that have been found with this Inscription, Camulo Deo Sancto et Fortissimo.” But, as this is not confirm'd by the concurrent Testimony of any ancient Author, there is much reason to call it in question. And it is much more probable, that those Inscriptions were made in honour of Claudius, who had a Temple, and was worshipped as a God, at Camulodunum. See below, Ch. iii. § 2. and N. Salmon's Hist. of Essex, p. 263. Vide etiam Lipsii Notas in Taciti Ann. l. xii. et Ursini Notas. ibid.

[I] It is to be observed, that all places ending in Chester, fashioned in the Saxon times, arise from the ruins of the old Roman Castra. W. Burton's Comment, on Antonine's Itinerar, p. 41. Castrum was a name used by the Romans to signify or expresse any castle or fortress; which the Saxons, upon their admission into this island, finding imposed upon all places of strength and importance, adopted it into their dialect, and from the word Castrum extracted the word Cæster. T. Philipott's Villare Cantianum, p. 384.

[K] Oppidum autem Britannii vocant, quum silvas impeditas vallo atque fossa munierunt, quo, incurſionis hostium vitandæ causſa, convenire consueverunt. De bello Gallico, lib. v. c. 21.

[L] Oppidum; vide Lexicograph. According to Varro and Festus, it is deriv'd from Opis, that is the mutual Help men, gathered into Towns, gave to one another, and the Works made for their security and defence..

fortified

fortified Town as well as a Town in general; and in the former sense he uses it here, as is plain by the description he gives of such a place [M].

Next, if we reflect on the Religion of the ancient Britans, the Woodiness of this place was quite suited and agreeable thereto. It is well known, that Woods, especially of Oaks, were the Habitations of the Druids, and their places of religious worship. Here all their Mysteries were transacted, and their Sacrifices offered. Here their much admired and celebrated Mistletoe grew, which they gathered with so much solemnity and ceremony [N]. And, as they were the Instructors of Youth, the Houses for their schools were situated in the midst of pleasant Groves; tho' they had withal little arch'd, round, stone-buildings, capable only of holding one Person, where the retir'd and contemplative Druid sat, when his Oak could not shelter him from the Weather (c). The very name of Druid is deriv'd from the Celtic word Deru, i. e. the Oak, which they so much venerated, and under which they dwelt (d).

Here are indeed no remains of Druidical Temples or Altars, as there are in other Countries [O], but that is to be imputed to the many Revolutions and Changes which this place and neighbourhood have undergone; and the thorough Cultivation of it. For such Monuments are chiefly standing now in the remotest and less cultivated places. Those that were here, have been demolish'd to make room for other Edifices, or even for the sake of the Stones to be employed in building.

It can be no Objection to what I have here said, That the Country is now but thinly wooded. For it must be considered what great Alterations must have happened in the surface of the Earth in a course of above 2000 years. Even within the two hundred years last past, King's Wood made a considerable appearance on the North-side of this Town, but is entirely gone: And smaller parcels are cleared round it almost every year. On the West side of the same, the Royal Forest reached as far as Lexden; but in the fifth of K. John, the whole North part of it, lying between Suffolk and the road that leads from Colchester to Bishop's-Stortford, was disafforested, as appears by the Record below [P]. Notwithstanding which, this County is still fuller of Wood than many others.

§. 3. Whether this Town were the ancient Camulodunum?

I come now to discuss the Question, Whe-

(c) Hist. of the Druids by J. Toland, in his Posthumous Works, Vol. I. p. 107.

(d) See H. Rowlands's Mona

[M] In all probability, the strong Holds or defensible Places of the ancient Inhabitants of this Island, were then no other than such as he there describes, [as they have been also in many other Countries,] namely, like "Cassibelines" "forrest campe, or fastnesse, misnamed a towne," to use the ingenious Mr. Edm. Bolton's words, (Nero Cæsar, p. 78.) But it is wrong to infer from thence, that the Britans had no other but such sorts of Towns and Habitations in woods, and lived only a little degree better than wild beasts. For it appears from J. Cæsar himself, That when he invaded this Eastern part of the Island, there was in it an infinite multitude of people, and houses very thick, built like those of the Gauls. Hominum est infinita multitudo, creberrimæque ædificia fere Gallicis consimilia: pecoris magnus numerus. De bello Gall. l. v. c. 12. Whatever therefore is said of the mean and scattered cottages of the Britans, (Diodor. Sicul. l. iv. & Strabonis Geog. l. iv.) might in some measure be true of the more inland, remote, and uncultivated Places; but the country nearer the sea, which maintain'd a commerce with Gaul, had better Towns, and was more polite. Their Houses however were then but of timber; for it was the Romans that taught them the art of building with brick and stone. Tacit. Vit. Agricol.

[N]—Nihil habent Druidæ visco, & arbore in qua gignantur, (si modo sit Robur) sacratius. Jam per se Roborum eligunt Lucos: nec ulla Sacra sine ea fronde conficiunt— C. Plinii Nat. Hist. l. xvi. cap. ult. See Lucan l. i & iii. Tacit. Ann. l. xiv. Claudian de laudib. Stilic. l. i.

[O] By the Druidical Temples and Akars, I mean those stupendous and massy stones, either standing single, or in circles, or in rows, with others of an enormous bulk, set up horizontally, or on two or more of them: Such as are those at Stoneheng, and Abury, in Wiltshire; Biscawoon, in Cornwall; Nevern, Kereg drudion, Lhanhammulch, Anglesey, &c. in Wales; in the Western Isles, and other parts of Scotland; in Ireland; in the isle of Jersey; and many other places; and are called Carns, Kistieu-vaen, Cromlechu, &c. The true use of them was first discovered by John Aubrey, Esq; and the curious Reader may satisfy himself fully on that point, by perusing the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of London's last edition of Camden's Britannia, the Rev. H. Rowland's Mona antiqua restaurata, J. Toland's Posthumous Works, Vol. I. M. Martin's Description of the Western Islands of Scotland, the Rev. Ph. Falle's Account of Jersey; and especially the learned Dr. W. Stukeley's most curious Works on that Subject.—It is really surprizing, how stones of that enormous bulk could be dragged up in the places where they are seen; generally upon a natural or artificial hill, and raised on two or more supporters, about five feet above the ground. In the year 1731, I measured one of them in the isle of Jersey, that was 15 foot long, 10½ broad, 3½ thick. And another, which was 11 foot ½ long, 10 foot broad, 2 foot thick at the East and North sides, about 1 foot and a half thick on the West side. There are many of those Monuments of the Religion of our Ancestors, still standing in that Island.

[P] *Johannes Dei gratia Rex Anglie, Dominus Hibernie, Dux Normannie & Aquitanie, & Comes Andegavie, Archiepiscopis, Episcopis, Abbatibus, Comitibus, Baronibus, Justiciariis, Vice-comitibus, Forestariis, Prepositis, & omnibus Ballivis & fidelibus suis, salutem; Sciatis nos deafforestasse Forestam de Effex que est inter [ultra] Calceam versus aquilonem que tendit de Stertesford versus Colcestr. usque ad boscum de Wydehaia ubi caput fossati quod dicitur Hayditch jungitur predictæ Calcee, & exinde versus aquilonem sicut via tendit usque ad Novum Pontem; et exinde sicut magnum Cheminum tendit usque in Eyland: Ita quod dicta foresta ultra [infra] predictas metas contenta, & homines in ea manentes, & heredes eorum sint deafforestati & liberi, soluti & quieti, imperpetuum de nobis & heredibus nostris de omnibus que ad forestam & forestarios pertinent, & quod capiant & habeant omnimodam venationem quam capere infra predictas metas [poterunt.] Quare volumus & firmiter precipimus quod predicta foresta infra predictas metas, & homines in ea manentes, & eorum heredes sint deafforestati, soluti & quieti de nobis & heredibus nostris imperpetuum, de omnibus que ad forestam & forestarios pertinent, & quod commodam [omnimodam] venationem infra predictas metas capiant & habeant quam capere potuerunt sicut predictum est. Testib. Dno H. Cantuar. Archiep. C. Elien. J. Norwic. et W. London Epif. G. filio Petri Comit. Effex, &c. Dat. per manum Simonis prepositi Bevlaci et Archid. Well. apud Westm. 25 die Marcii Anno r. n. quinto. (Per Inspex. 10 July secundo Her. III. Oath-book fol. 77.)—They gave 500 marks, and five horses, to K. John for this favour; as appears by the following Record; Homines de Effex [debent] 2 marcas & v palefridos, pro deafforestanda Foresta de Effex quæ est ultra calceam inter Colecestriam & Storteford, per metas quæ in Carta quam inde habent continentur. [Mag. rot. 6. J. rot. 3. b. Effex & Hurtf. See T. Madox Hist. of the Exchequer, p. 279. note (r)].—The words within cro-* ther this Town was the ancient Camulodunum? And, not to throw confusedly what is to be said upon that Subject, but to reduce it into some order, I shall place it in the following method.

ther

I. I shall examine and compare all that is said concerning Camulodunum in any of the ancient authentic Writers.

II. Consider more particularly the Itinerary which goes under the name of Antoninus.

III. Bring together the Opinions of our most learned Antiquaries [2].

I begin with examining and comparing all that is said concerning Camulodunum, in any of the ancient authentic Writers.

The first time we find it mentioned in History, is, when it was conquered by the Emperor Claudius, A^o. U. C. 796. A^o. Chr. 44. That Emperor had sent before his Lieutenant A. Plautius, to reduce Britain; with instructions, That if he found himself too weak, or too hard pressed, he should send him notice of it. Plautius doing so, the Emperor resolves to come over in person. Accordingly he embarks at Ostia, with a large army of horse, foot, and elephants (e): but being frightened, and his transports probably damaged, with a great tempest, he disembark'd at Marseilles, and marched from thence by land cross Gaul to Gessoriacum (f). There shipping again his forces, he landed in Britain, without doubt in Kent; and went and joined Plautius and Vespasian near the Thames. Having taken upon himself the command of the whole army, he passed the River; where the Britans boldly encountred him, and began the fight, which for a long time they bravely maintained, till great numbers of them were slain. At length being over-powered they fled into the woods, and some were subdued by force, and others yielded upon terms. Claudius pursuing his victory, took Camulodunum, the royal seat of the late King Cunobeline, where he placed a Colony of Veterans [R], and reduced this part of the Isle into the form of a Province. But he behaved with so much lenity towards the Britans, that he only disarmed the most refractory, and confiscated their Goods; which confiscation he also remitted to such as made their submission. And This so endeared him to them, that they erected a Temple and an Altar to him at Camulodunum, and honour'd him as a God (g).

One very material circumstance there is in this relation, which seems an undeniable and convincing proof of this Town's being Camulodunum: And that is, Camulodunum's being expressly said to be the royal seat, or residence of King Cunobeline [S]. Now, more of his Coins have been, and are daily found at Colchester, than in any other part of the kingdom, both in gold, silver, and brass. I have been myself so happy, in the short time I have lived here, to get one of gold, and several of copper, very curious and valuable. Charles Gray, Esq; has also two very valuable ones. The late Rev. Mr. Robert Turner had likewise two very fine ones. And scarce a Collection hath been made in this town, without some of them. They generally have on one side CAMV, and on the other CVNOB. One of mine, a very curious and scarce one, has on one side Cunobeline's head, CVNOB...REX: On the reverse a Horse feeding, and below it...MV. Which sufficiently indicates Camulodunum to have been the royal seat or capital of that Prince. And by their being found here in greater quantities than any where else in England, it is at least extremely probable, if not demonstratively certain, that this very spot was That Ancient Camulodunum.

At the same time, it appears from them, that the right name of the place is Camu-and not Cama-lodunum.

The next time we find it mentioned, is by the excellent Historian C. Tacitus (b), who relates, That the colony at Camulodunum, reinforced with a strong body of veterans, was quartered in the new conquests, on purpose to hinder the Silures from making incursions. But they soon returned, it seems, to Camulodunum, or else others were planted in their room. Which way soever it were, they behaved with intolerable Insolence towards the natives; turning them out of their houses, dispossessing them of their fields, and calling them captives and slaves. Moreover, the Priests that served in the Temple erected here in honour of Claudius, did, under pretence of Religion, swallow their whole fortunes. And the Temple itself was looked upon with a very evil eye, as a Fortress built to keep them in everlasting bondage.

These were some of the motives which induced the old Inhabitants to join the brave virago Boadicea; when, provoked by the brutish and unnatural usage of the Romans, she made a vigorous effort to shake off their galling yoke. The particulars will be related under Chap. III. § 2. of this book. They needed no persuasions to be zealous in her interest, spurr'd on as they were by their most violent hatred against the veterans [T]. And they thought it no difficult matter to cut off the Colony, as it was defended by no walls or fortifications: which the Roman officers had very imprudently neglected, consulting the pleasant situation rather than the Strength of the place. Nay, even at the approach of danger, they did not so much as take the precaution to encompass the town with a Rampart and a Ditch; nor to turn out the old people, and the women. Thus remaining as careless and unconcern'd as in profound peace, they were

(e) Dion Cassius l. ix. p. 779.

Αποκολοκύνωνος, p. 766. Edit. Lipsii Antu. 1605. fol.

(f) Sueton, in T. Claudio, c. 17.

(b) Annal. l. xii. c. 32.

(g) Seneca, Claudii Cæsaris

[2] The different Opinions about the Situation of Colonia-Camulodunum, are as follows. — Rob. Talbott, Humphrey Lhuyd, J. Leland, Bp. Stillingfleet, and W. Baxter, place it at Colchester. — W. Camden, Edm. Bolton, W. Burton, &c. place it at Maldon. — Dr. Tho. Gale, at Walden. — N. Salmon at Castle Camps in Cambridgeshire. — Hector Boethius in Scotland. — Polydore-Vergil at Doncaster, or Pontefract, &c. N. B. The reader is to observe, That, according to Ptolemy, there was a Camunlodunum (Καμυνλόδουνον) among the Brigantes, where was quartered Legio Sexta Victrix, which some have confounded with our Camulodunum: This last [now Colchester] is called by Ptolemy Camudolanum.

[R] Colonia Gemina Martia Victrix. E. Boulton.

[S] Καμυνλόδουνον τὸ τῷ Κυνοβελίνῳ βασιλεῖον. Dion Cass. l. ix. p. 781.

[T] — Acerrimo in Veteranos odio. Tacit. ibid.

suddenly surrounded by the Britans: Which, like an over-flowing torrent swept all before them, and put whatever stood in their way to fire and sword. The strength of the Garrison consisted only of a moderate number of soldiers, which threw themselves into the Temple, but were taken in that place, and made prisoners after a two days siege. The procurator Catus Decianus sent them a small reinforcement of two hundred men very ill-armed. And the Ninth Legion coming to their relief, was routed, and all the infantry of it killed; the horse escaping to the camp: which Camp is justly supposed to have been the same as is still to be seen on Lexden-Heath.

From this whole account of Tacitus the following Observations naturally will arise.

1. The Amoenity and pleasant situation of the place, particularly taken notice of by that noble Historian, do plainly point at this most agreeable spot of ground. Healthfulness and good air, always regarded by the wise and elegant Romans, doth not by any means agree with Maldon, seated in one of the most unhealthy corners of the kingdom; but agrees very well with Colchester. For, to apply what the learned Dr. T. Gale improperly celebrates (i) that less considerable place Walden for [U]; “The situation of this town [Colchester] is so wholesome and pleasant, that nothing can be more so. The Fields every where smile with the plenteous Harvest, which is represented by a Wheat-ear upon a Coin of Cunobeline, who had his palace at this place. There is about it an agreeable variety of hills, groves, and champain-plains, well adapted for the Pleasures of Riding, which is pretty clearly indicated by the Horse on the coins of Cunobeline.”

2. This agreeable Situation the Romans improved into a charming retirement, consulting their pleasure more than advantage: Which is a concurrent proof that it must have been rather here than at Maldon. Be pleased to take the following account of it from an ingenious author. “Camalodunum, the standing court or palace-roiall of their Kings, while Cunobeline lived, was now become the center of pleasant retirements for the Romans, not the rendezvous of their power.—The outward state of the towne seemed very flourishing. For, besides the old palace, and other buildings of the Britanns (for the Romans, saith Sigonius, did not use to destroy the buildings they found) it had a senate house for consultations, a theater for playes, that goodlie temple of Claudius, and as well they, as the rest undoubtedlie answerable in some measure to the Roman magnificence.—The “colonie lay open on all sides, the better to enjoy free walkes and aër about—Yet safety was not altogether neglected, though pleasure was rather sought than strength. It had no trench, no palisado, nor other defence about itselfe, but it had the majestie of the Roman name (a reputed wall of brasse) the awe of a fresh conquest, and sundrie strengths in the marches, or pale of the province, where the Roman garrisons watcht, and warded in castles, sconces, and other presidarie places (k).”

3. It is more natural to suppose, that the Romans would fix themselves, at their first Coming over, in a place not far from the Sea, whence they might have an easy retreat to the Continent; than go and entangle themselves so far as Walden [where Dr. T. Gale places Camulodunum] among a new People, on whose lasting Friendship they had no sufficient reason to depend; as the event sufficiently shewed.

4. This stood much more in the way between the Iceni [Suffolk and Norfolk] and that great trading place London, than a town at Maldon would have done: And therefore the Britans made their first irruption through it, and laid it even with the ground, that they might not leave an enemy at their backs. Whereas going to that place now called Maldon, would have been fetching too great a compass on the left; and would have entangled them among the meadows and morasses, that are on the north of that place; And over which it may be supposed there was then no Causey erected.

Finally, That this was a very considerable Roman Town, and that here was fixed their celebrated Colonia, we have all the intrinsic evidence that can be desired. For, to apply again Dr. T. Gale's words, “It is seated near the military Stone way, from whence the neighbouring parish of Stanway took its name”. There are every where hereabouts many and remarkable Monuments of the Romans [W]: Sepulchres, and Tombs [X]: Urns and the like Vessels filled with burnt bones, dug in the adjacent fields: innumerable Coins [Y]: Garrisons and Camps, (Castra and Castella) at Lexden particularly; and Forts, such as Tacitus mentions to have been placed about Colonia-Camulodunum [Z]: though it was itself no walled or strongly fortified Town. To which add, That at Colchester there are to this day such immense quantities of Roman Bricks to be seen, and other footsteps of that people; as evidently shew, that very great Numbers of Roman edifices were formerly standing here. The Churches, the Town walls, and the Castle, are half-built with Roman materials, and in se-

(i) Comment. in Antonini Itinerar. p. 111.

(k) Edm. Bolton, Nero Cæsar. p. 120, 121.

[U] Which derived all its fame and glory from the rich and noble Abbey there. It was not so much as a Burgh at the time of William the Conqueror's Survey.

[W] See Book III. ch. iv.

[X] The Sepulchres and Tombs at Barklow, or rather Ashdon, taken notice of by the Doctor, are undeniably English or Danish. See Magna Britannia, Vol. I. p. 670.

[Y] A great argument of the flourishing thereof under the Roman times and command; as Mr. W. Burton observes, Comment, on Antoninus's Itinerary, p. 199.

[Z] Cerialis cum equitibus evasit in Castra, & munitis defensus est. Tacit. Annal. l. xiv. c. 32.—Sumpserunt universi bellum: ac sparsos per Castella milites consecrati, expugnatis præfidiis, ipsam Coloniam invasere, ut sedem servitutis. Id. vit. Agric. c. 16.—As for the other passage cited by Dr. Gale,—Foeminâ duce exurere Coloniam, expugnare Castra potuere—it is nothing to the purpose; for it is said of the Brigantes. See Tacit. Agric. c. 31. Q. Whether it should be Trinobantes? But see Boulton's Nero Cæsar, p. 159.

veral parts of them the Roman workmanship is also copied. Roman Pavements are still found almost all over the town; and a most magnificent one is at Mersea, which was very probably the Roman landing-place; it being upon a bold open shore, and proper for the purpose; whereas they could not get to the place now called Maldon, but by way of a creek up the Country, quite dangerous to Invaders.

Now, if Colchester, which hath still all the aforefaid marks of ruined Grandeur, be not the ancient Camulodunum; What was then the Roman name of this Station? It was long inhabited by those Conquerors of Britain, as appears by the reasons just now alledged. And is it probable that a Place so grand, so near London, and so exactly answering the description given by Tacitus, should have no name at all; and that Maldon, which has no remains, nor appearances of such a Colony, should be the Camulodunum; [much less Walden?] For as Dr. T. Gale rightly observes, Let those persons who are for fixing this Colony at Maldon, by reason of some little resemblance in the Sound, shew the least mark or footstep of the Roman elegance in that place [A].

The finding of one gold Coin of Nero and Agrippina there, is far from being a conclusive argument: For I was once possessed of the like in silver, found in this Town. And a beautiful one of Tiberius was found some years ago at Earls-Colne; late in the possession of the Rev. Mr. Rob. Turner, and now of the Rev. Mr. Myers. And yet no one will thence immediately conclude, That Earls-Colne was a very considerable Roman Station, though it is far preferable to Maldon for situation.

After all, there is not so great a Necessity of fetching the name of Maldon from Cama-or Camu-lodunum, as Mr. Camden and others have imagined; upon a kind of presumption that it could not so well admit of any other derivation. For it is plainly a Saxon name, formed from the two words Mael a cross, or boundary, and dun a hill. As if you should say Cross-Hill [B]: The occasion of which name, as of many others, is at present unknown. Nor does the very Name so plainly point it out, that any blind man may discover [C]: since the first syllable must be entirely dropped, and the next turned into Ma, instead of Mu; which, by the Coins, appears to be the true reading, though it hath been adulterated by several Authors, who had never seen any of [A] But what the Doctor says in the same place, "that Ceres is so averse to the Inhabitants of Maldon, that, for the most part, they are under a necessity of fetching their Corn from a great distance,"—is contrary to matter of fact. For the Country about Maldon produces now very good Corn, whatever it might do formerly.

[B] See the Saxon Glossaries; and Dr. N. Salmon's Hist. of Essex, p. 419. 162. The right Saxon name of Maldon is Mælbune, (Saxon Chron. p. 106. 108.) and not Mælbune and Mæalbune, as Mr. Camden affirms, Britannia, Edit. 1722. Vol. I. col. 4. 6.

[C] They are Mr. Camden's word's; Britannia, in Essex.

[D] The Distance of Maldon from Mona, (as mentioned by Pliny, Nat. Hist. l. II. c. 75.) which Mr. Camden looks upon as a plain proof of the former's being Camulodunum, is of no weight: Since it is equally applicable Cunobeline's Coins [D].

By laying all which Circumstances together, it may appear to any unprejudiced person, that Colchester hath a better right to reclaim Camulodunum as its own, than any other place wherein it has been fixed by Writers ancient or modern.

II. Next, If we examine the Itinerary that passes under the name of Antoninus, it will most plainly appear, That the Distances therein set down between London and Colonia, or Camulodunum, agree as exactly as possible with Colchester, but not so well with Maldon, or any other town, where that Colony hath been attempted to be placed by several modern Authors.

To render it more evident, I shall set down here part of the two Itinera, or Journeys, wherein Colonia and Camulodunum are mentioned.

Iter V.

A Londino Luguvallium ad Vallum.

CÆSAROMAGVM. M. P. XXVIII.

COLONIAM. M. P. XXIV.

Tot. LII.

Miles.

i. e. From London to Cæsaromagus } 28
[Writtle or Chelmsford]
From Cæsaromagus to Colonia [Col- } 24 chester]

Tot. 52

Iter IX.

A Venta Icenorum Londinium.

CAMVLODVNO

CANONIVM M. P. IX.

CAESAROMAGVM M. P. XII.

DVROLITVM M. P. XVI.

LONDINIVM M. P. XV.

For the better understanding of this last, I shall invert the order of it in the following method, which will make it quite clear.

A LONDINIO DVROLITVM M. P. XV.
CÆSAROMAGVM M. P. XVI.
CANONIVM M. P. XII.
CAMVLODVNVNVM M. P. IX.

Tot. LII.

Miles.

i. e. From London to Durolitum [E] } 15 about Brentwood — — }

15

to Colchester, they lying nearly under the same degree of Longitude.

I have not taken notice of Dr. N. Salmon's Opinion; since nothing but an affectation of saying something New, could induce him to place Camulodunum at Castle-Camps: Which had the name of Castle, from a Castle, or Seat, of the De Veres Earls of Oxford, who had some time their residence there; And Camps, from the Incampments of the English and Danes, about the time the decisive Battle was fought between K. Ethelred and Canute, A. D. 1016.

[E] I will not pretend to determine where Durolitum stood: But, that it could not be at the place called Low-Layton, only 7 miles distant from London (and so named from the river Liga, Lygean, or Lea) is undeniable. R. Talbot places it at Brentwood. Similitude of Names is often a very deceitful rule.

From

	Miles.
Brought over — — —	15
From Durolitum to Cæsaromagus } [Chelmsford, or Writtle] — — —	16
From Cæsaromagus to Canonium } [about Keldon] — — —	12
From Canonium to Camulodunum — — —	9

Tot. 52

Now from London to Colehester is 51 post or measured Miles, which are as near the Roman or Italian Miles, as can be.

I hope I may be excused, if I do not spend more time about these difficiles nugæ, which so many great Names have bestowed their labours upon; and I think, after all, not to the Reader's entire Satisfaction. Those that have entered last upon this Journey, seem to have missed their way, and to have bewildered themselves more than their predecessors.

III. If we lay together the Opinions of our most learned Antiquaries, we shall find them much in our favour. And there is reason to hope, that the Consent of Authors, eminent for their great Learning, and other valuable Qualifications; which in most cases is reckoned of no small weight, will be treated with due respect upon the present Subject.

Robert Talbott then [F], John Leland [G], Humphrey Lhuyd [H], William Harrison [I], Bishop Stillingfleet, and William Baxter [K], agree in placing the Colonia and Camulodunum at Colchester [L]. Bishop Stillingfleet being the fullest upon this point, I shall therefore conclude this Chapter and Section, with his own words:

“Cair Colun or Colon; which by the interpretation of H. Huntingdon and Alfred is said to be Colchester, called in the Roman Itinerary Colonia, as appears by the distances and scope of the Fifth Iter; which is from London to Carlisle, not direct, but with a great compass to the East, and then to Lindum. And the sixth Iter from London to Lindum, is very different. So that the Iti“nerary doth not shew the shortest ways, but “the roads which lay fittest for business, especially for the Roman Magistrates taking their “progress through the several Cities and Colonies inhabited by the Romans, or Natives of “the Country, for the administration of Justice among them; so these Itineraries seem to be “framed here in Britain, to shew the several “stages and distances between them; much “like our Circuits for the Itinerant Judges.

“Thus, from London to Lindum they set “out Eastwards, and so went into Essex, part
“of Suffolk, Cambridge, Huntingdon, and so
“by Casterton to Lindum; but being there,
“the Sixth road shews how they might pass “thence by Ancaster to Leicester, and thence,
“by several places mentioned, to Verulam and “so back to London. So that the design of “the Itinerary is to shew, what Places were “visited in the several progresses; and no doubt
“there were Roman Ways then to all these “places, and therefore they were most convenient for travelling; although the great “Roads called Viæ Stratæ were more remarkable than the rest; which Hieron. Surita (l) “saith, ought to be reckoned among the “greatest works of Mankind, being made “through all the Provinces of the Roman Empire. To this purpose the Romans made “use of their own Souldiers, and the Inhabitants of the several Provinces: So Galgacus “complains, that the Romans did wear out the “Bodies of Britains in Paving of Bogs and “Woods [M]; and Bede saith (m), the Romans were known here by their Cities, and “Temples, and Bridges, and Highways. It “seems, Bede had not heard of the Four famous “Ways made by Belinus the son of Malmutius, called Watling Street, the Fosse, “Ermin-street, and Ickneld-street (n); about “which our Antiquaries have been so puzzled, “that they know not where to begin and end
“them. For in truth, they were no other, but “such as led from one Roman Town to another. And although Camden saith, he could

(l) In Antonin. p. 161.

(m) L. i. c. 11.

(n) Galfr. Monum. l. i. c. 11.

[F] In his Commentary on Antoninus's Itinerary. MS.

[G] Commentar. in Cygneam Cantionem, Edit. Lond. 1658. p. 126. & Syllabus Diction. antiq. ad calcem Genethlaci Eadu. Principis. p. XLII. Constat, Ptolemæo autore, Trenovantes gentem fuisse maritimam ad orientem, ubi nunc Medio-Saxones & Ostro-Saxones. Inter quos fuere duæ illustres tantum Urbes, quarum prima recentiori sæculo, Romanis in Britannia imperantibus, Londinium a Cornelio Tacito dictum est: Secunda vero Camudolanum, quæ rectius Colunodunum a Coluno fluvio, — nisi quis sentiat eam a Colonia, cujus forsitan titulo enituit, appellationem accepisse.

[H] Britann. Descript. Fragment. Edit. Col. Agrip. 1572. 12°. fol. 18. After having cited Dion's Account of Claudius's taking Camulodunum, he adds, Hinc facile apparet Camelodunum non procul a Tamesi sitam esse, quo loco etiam Ptolemæus Camudolan constituit. Hanc quoque fuisse Coloniam illam Claudii Cæsaris Templo celebrem, quam nunc Colcestriam vocant, antiquumque nomen a Fluvio & Phano coaluisse credo: cum hoc Britannis usitatissimum sit, ut Henlhan, vetus phanum, &c. — ita ut facile crediderim, loca quæ a Latinis in lan vel lam desinunt vel incipiunt, olim a phanis Britannicè dicta fuisse. —

[I] At the beginning of the 1st Vol. of Raphaël Holinshed's Chronicle, 2d Edit. in Antoninus's Itinerary.

[K] Glossar. Antiq. Britann sub voce Camulodunum. — Verum voluit Vir magnus [Camden] Coloniam Camulodunum esse Maldon, parum advertens Othonam validissimam stationem, esse ferè in conspectu tantæ urbis a se ipso positam; quod sane inutile foret & supervacaneum. Redeat igitur Camulodunum quo & Talbottus & magnus Stillingfleet illud posuere, Colecestriam scilicet; cujus vel ipsum nomen, cum cognomine fluvio Colne, Coloniam sibi vendicat. Sunt etiam ingentia Castrorum vestigia in vico vel hodie de Legione vocato Lexdon, circa duo millia passuum citra Colecestriam; parte tamen maxima in egregio Ericeto dicto Stanyway Heath, five Lapideæ viæ Ericeto, ubi & ingens Puteus, vulgo dictus Coili Regis Culina. — Even Mr. W. Burton, though he makes Camulodunum to be Maldon, says, “that “all our Antiquaries acknowledge Colchester to be the “Place where Colonia some time had its being.” (Comm. on Antoninus, p. 192) — But that Colonia and Camulodunum were one and the same place, we have, among others, the concurrent Evidence of the learned Dr. T. Gale. “Antoninus Camalodunum & Coloniam non pro diversis “locis habet: — & Ravennas ex veritate Camulodunum “jungit Coloniam, ita enim scribendum est pro Camulodulo.” Comm. in Antonin. p. 111.

[L] Dr. T. Gale contends, That the right name of this Station was Colanea, not Colonia; but brings no proof of it. Colonia is placed by Ptolemy among the Damnii, between Lancashire and Yorkshire. See W. Burton on Antoninus, p. 199.

[M] Corpora ipsa ac manus, filvis ac paludibus emundis — conerunt. Tacit. vit. Agric. c. 31.

“find

“ find no Footsteps of such Ways in Essex,
 “ time having worn them out; yet it is cer“ tain, according to the course of the Itinerary,
 “ and the Peutinger-Tables, there had been “ such; for, according to both of them, there “ was a Road from Venta Icenorum to London,
 “ by Sitomagus, Combretonium, Camalodu-
 “ num, Cæsaromagus, &c. and again from Lon“ don to Cæsaromagus, Colonia, Villa Fauftini, “ Ictani, Camboricum, and so to Lindum. In “ the Fifth Iter, we find Colonia mentioned,
 “ in the Ninth Camalodunum, but not Colo“ nia; which makes me think the same place is “ meant in both, because they both lie at almost “ an equal distance in the Itinerary from Cæsa-“ romagus, and all persons yield the Num“ bers to be much corrupted; and in the Peu“ tinger Tables, Camalodunum is set down but “ not Colonia; upon which reasons I am very “ inclinable to Leland’s Opinion, that Colche“ ster was both Colonia and Camalodunum. I “ know Mr. Camden, whose Sagacity and Judg“ ment were extraordinary, hath pitched upon “ Maldon, rather than Colchester, because of “ the Affinity of the Name; which is a very “ deceitful way in such a Corruption of Langua“ ges in Britain, to judge of the original of a “ Town. But, which is far more observable, “ at Maldon, Camden takes no notice of any “ Roman Antiquities, but such as suppose it
 “ to have been the Colony; but at Colchester,
 “ he saith (o), an infinite Number of Roman “ Coins were found; and as to the name, Col“ chester hath as much remaining of Colonia, “ Chester being the Saxon Addition, as Maldon
 “ of Camalodunum.”

CHAP. III.

§ I. State of the Town, under the Britans.

THIS Island was inhabited long before J.
 Cæsar’s Invasion (p): And I think it

(o) Britannia, in Essex, (p) J. Cæsar. Comment. de Bello Gallico lib. v. c. 12, Edit. Davissii. (q) See J. Cæsar de Bello Gall. l. iii. c. 17. & 22. Lib. iv. c. 6. Lib. v. 5. & 27. Lib. vi. c. 20. Lib. i. c. 16. & Strabonis Geograph. l. iv. (r) J. Cæsar de Bello Gall. l. vii. c. 63.

[N] Maritima pars [incolitur] ab iis, qui, prædæ ac belli inferendi causa, ex Belgio transierant, qui omnes fere iis nominibus civitatum appellantur, quibus orti ex civitatibus eo pervenerunt, & bello illato ibi remanserunt, atque agros colere cœperunt. Hominum est infinita multitudo, creberimaque ædificia fere Gallicis confimilia: pecoris magnus numerus. J. Cæsar. ibid. Tacit. Vit. Agricol. c. 11. As for the Tradition, Of the more inland inhabitants having sprouted out of the ground like so many mushrooms—natos in insula ipsa,—as J. Cæsar expresses it, (Ibid.) or of being Indigenæ, which is the word used by Tacitus; it is so absurd, as to require no confutation.

[O] Ubiorum—Principes ac Senatus. Id. l. iv. c. 11. Totius Galliæ Concilium Bibracte indicitur. Eodem conveniunt undique frequentes: multitudinis suffragiis res perimitur. Id. l. vii. c. 63.

[P] Omnes autem homines [Gallos scil.] natura Liberati studere, & conditionem servitutis odisse—Id. l. iii. c. 10.

[Q] In Gallia non solum in omnibus civitatibus, atque pagis, partibusque, sed pene etiam in singulis domibus, factiones sunt: earumque factionum sunt principes, qui summam auctoritatem eorum iudicio habere existimantur, &c. Id. l. vi. c. 11.

[R] Ἦσαν δὲ ἐκ αὐτόνομου, ἀλλ’ ἄλλοις βασιλεῦσι προσελαγμένοι. Dio. l. 60.—Singulos sibi olim Reges fuisse, &c. Tacit. vit. Agric. c. 15.—Principesque undique convenere, & se, civitatesque suas Cæsari commendarunt. J. Cæsar de Bell. Gal. l. iv. c. 27.—Principes Britannia—inter may be laid down for a rule, That the Inhabitants did not live without some Form of Government or other. Undoubtedly it was the same as their neighbours the Celts, or Gauls, from whom they derived their origin. For I shall, once for all, take it for granted, That England, especially the Eastern parts of it, were peopled from the opposite Continent of Gaul [N]. What the Gaulish Government was, we learn from J. Cæsar: which is to this effect; That the Country was divided into several small States, or Principalities; governed by Magistrates, which in some places were annually chosen (q). But, in case of war, they chose a General, or Commander in chief (r). That they had a Senate, or Public Council [O]: naturally were infinitely fond of Liberty, and detested and abhorred Slavery [P]. And Parties and Factions, the effect of Liberty, prevailed in all their communities, villages, and even houses [Q].

In conformity to this, It is most probable, that Britain was divided into several Districts or Governments; who had their petty Kings [R], and chose a General from amongst themselves in time of war [S]. But under these petty Kings, or otherwise, what the particular state of this Town and County was, we are not able to determine, for want of memoirs, or monuments.

The story of Brute and his Trojans coming to people this Country after the destruction of Troy, is now universally exploded. Yet I think it carries in it too strong a prejudice, to condemn in the gross Geoffrey of Monmouth who hath handed that story down to posterity; and boldly to assert, as some have done, that the whole Twelve Books of his History are a mere fiction void of all truth or even probability.

We shall therefore set down below, by way of Note [T], the Names of the several Princes recorded by him to have reigned in South-Brite collocuti, &c. Ibid. c. 30. There were then four such Kings in Kent, viz. Cingetorix, Carnilius, Taximagulus, & Segonax. Id. l. v. c. 22, N. B. The word Civitas, so often used by J. Cæsar, doth not signify only one Town or City; but the People under one Government. (Bp. Stillingfleet Orig. Britan. p. 65.) Populus eodem jure utens—(Camdeni Brit. in Trinobant.)

[S] Summa imperii Bellique administrandi, communi consilio, permixta est Cassivellauno—Huic superiori tempore cum reliquis civitatibus continentia bella interceferant: Sed nostro adventu permoti Britanni, hunc toti bello imperioque præfecerant. J. Cæsar de Bello Gall. l. v. c. 11.

[T]

A. M.		Reigned years.
2874	Lochrine,	20
2894	Guendolene,	15
2909	Maddan, son of Lochrine,	40
2949	Mempric,	20
2969	Ebrauc, or Ebrank,	40
3009	Brute, Green-shield,	12
3021	Leil,	25
3046	Rud-Hudibras,	39
3085	Bladud,	20
3105	Leire,	60
3165	Cordeilla, Leire’s daughter,	5
3170	Morgan, and Cunedag,	33
3203	Riwalhon,	46
3249	Gurgust,	37

tain,

rain, under whose Government, or of some of them at least, this Town was, as soon as it had a being.

Hely, or Beli-Mawr, the last mentioned King, had three Sons, Lud, Caffivellaun, and Nennius.

His eldest son and successor Lud, who is thought (s) to be the same as J. Cæsar calls Imanuentius (t); was a great restorer of the city of London (u). After having reigned several years, he was murdered by his brother Caffivellaun, who seized his Dominions, to the prejudice of Lud's two sons, Mandubrace, and Tenuant or Theomant. The former fled to Julius Cæsar in Gaul for protection (w); But what became at first of the youngest, we cannot learn.

Before I pass on to the next Section, I shall recommend these few Observations to the Reader's serious consideration.

There is no Historian of any note, not a contemporary one at least, during the first part of this period, that could record or bear witness to these transactions. Britain was then unknown to the Romans [U]; it was looked upon as a place out of the world [W] and no one knew or concerned themselves with what passed therein. Even from neighbouring Gaul few passed over here, except Merchants, and they visited only the Eastern coasts, and those Towns and Districts that were opposite to their own Country (x). For though the Britans were well situated for Trade, they neither had large vessels, nor ventured to sea beyond the Coasts of Gaul. Their chief commerce was with the Phœnician Merchants, who after the discovery of the island, exported every year great quantities of Tin, with which they drove a very gainful Trade with distant Nations (y): The Greeks discovered it at length, and came and traded also to the same place. But this commerce being carried on in the furthest parts of Cornwall only, foreign Merchants had no opportunity to know exactly the state of the island. And for this reason we are ignorant of many particulars concerning the Religion and Government of the Britans, that probably would have been transmitted down to us, if other Nations had met with information (z). No wonder therefore that the name of Britans should be heard of so late among the Greeks and the Romans; since they were such strangers to them.

As for the pretended Difficulty which seems to attend this part of our British History, namely, That these many Kings and their Actions are not mentioned by the ancient and so much admired Writers, such as Herodotus, &c. it is certainly of no weight. For how many of the most interesting Parts of History have no Greek or Roman Author to confirm or corroborate them? And yet God forbid they should notwithstanding be rejected.

Finally, let it be considered, That if nothing is to be credited but what is written in classical Latin, or in a fine flowing elegant style, we must then give up the most valuable Parts of our History; Namely, Those which convey to us the Nature and Origin of our excellent Government, and the Foundation of those glorious Privileges brought hither by our Saxon Ancestors; which are the Honour and the Happiness of the British Name, and which that they may be conveyed to our latest Posterity, ought to be the ardent Wish and the earnest Endeavour of every Briton.

§ 2. State of this Town and Country under the Romans.

C JULIUS CÆSAR, as appears by his own relation, never visited these parts in his two Expeditions. He landed in Kent, and crossing that countrey, and what is now called Surrey, forded the Thames between Kingston and London; and penetrating into Cassivellaun's capital, extended his Conquests no farther than part of Hertfordshire, and of Buckingham and Berkshires. Satisfied with that small exploit, unworthy of his fame and of the Roman Name [X], he returned with a few ho-

(s) J. Selden Analesta Anglo-Britan. c. 2. (t) De Bello Gallico, l. v. c. 20. (u) Galfr. Monum. l. iii. c. 20. (w) Cæsar. ibid. (x) Cæsar de Bello Gall. l. iv. c. 20. (y) Strabo l. iii. (z) Rapin's Hist. of England, Vol. I. Edit. 1732. Introd. p. v.

A. M.	Reigned years.
3286 Sifill,	49
3335 Jago,	28
3363 Kynmarc,	54
Civil Wars ensued for several years. Part of the time, Ymner reigned in Loegria, or South-Britain.
3529 Dunwallo Molmutius,	40
3569 Belin, and Brennus,	26
3595 Gurgiunt Brabtruc,	19
3614 Gwithelin,	27
3641 Sifill,	7
3648 Kimar,	3
Danus,
3651 Elan,	8
3659 Morind,	8
3667 Gorbionian,	10
3677 Archigallo, or Arthgallo,	1
3678 Elidur,	5
3683 Archigallo, restored,	10
3693 Elidur again,	1
3684 Vigen, or Oen, and Peredur,	8
3702 Elidur again,	4

After which there was a Succession of 33 Princes, in the following order, for about 185 years. Rhefa; Margan; Enniaun or Eneon; Edual, or Idwallo; Runno; Geruntius; Catell; Coill; Porrex; Cherin; Fulgen; Eldad; Andrage; Urian; Eliud; Cleauc; Cleton, or Clotin; Gurgint; Merian; Bledun; Cap; Oen; Sifill; Blegabred; Arthmail; Eldol; Redion; Rederch; Samuil Penifiel; Pir; Capoir; Cligueill; Hely, or Beli-Mawr.

[U] Καὶ τοῖς μὲν πάνυ πρώτοις καὶ Ἑλλήνων καὶ Ῥωμαίων ἔδοξε εἶναι ἐγγινώσκοντο. τοῖς δὲ ἑπειτα, εἰς ἀμφισβήτησιν, εἰ τε ἡπειροῦ εἴτε καὶ νῆσοι εἴη, ἀφίκετο καὶ πολλοὶς ἐφ' ἑκάτερον εἰδῆσαι μὲν ἔδδεν αὐτὴ μὴτ' αὐτόπλαις μὴτ' αὐτηκόσι. τῶν ἐπιχωρίων γενομένων τεκμαιρομένοις δὲ, ὡς ἕκαστοι σχολῆς ἢ καὶ φιλοτιμίας εἶχον συγγραφαί. προϊόντων δὲ δὴ τῶ χρόνῳ, πρότερον τε ἐπ' Ἀρχικόλῳ ἀντιστρατήγῳ, καὶ νῦν ἐπὶ Σεβήρῳ αὐτοκράτορος νῆσοι ἔσασα σαφῶς ἐλέγεσθαι. Dion Cassius l. xxxix. Edit. H. Stephen. p. 119.

[W] Et penitus toto divisos orbe Britannos.

Virgil. Eclog. i. y. 67.

Serves iturum Cæsarem in ultimos

Orbis Britannos—Horat. Carm. l. i. od. 35. ver. 29, 30.

[X] Μηδὲν μὲτε ἐκ τῆς Βρετανίας μὲτε ἑαυτῶ μὲτε τῇ πόλει προσκτεσάμενοι, πλὴν τῶ ἐσραευκέναι ἐπ' αὐτὰς δοῦσαι. Dion Cass. l. xxxix. p. 120.

stages into Gaul, and never saw again the British dominions [X].

Among those that appeared in arms against him, were undoubtedly some of the Inhabitants of this town, and Country. For Cassivellaun, the British General, was King of the Trinobantes [Z], whereof what is now called Essex was then a part. But what share they bore in this Expedition, is not expressly mentioned. However, after this their King had dismissed the bulk of his forces, and retained only small bodies with him to watch the enemies motions; the Trinobantes, styled by J. Cæsar the most valiant people in the country, sent Embassadors to him, with offers of submission. Desiring him, at the same, to protect Mandubrace [whom some name Androgeus (a), or Androgorius (b),] from Cassivellaun's attempts and insults, and to send him to be their King or Governor (c). Cæsar sent him accordingly, and received from them Corn and Hostages which he had required.

Such was the end of J. Cæsar's mighty exploits here, which some flatterers extolled to the skies [A]. But others who spoke more moderately, did not scruple to own that he hardly touch'd Britain [B]; nay, that he shewed his back to the Britans [C].

After J. Cæsar's departure from this island, the Britans continued unmolested for a space of above ninety years [D], being governed by their own kings, and paying tribute to the Romans (d).

Mandubrace, or Androgeus, was, as we have observed, sent by J. Cæsar, to take possession of the Kingdom of the Trinobantes. But some authors say (e), he went along with J. Cæsar to Rome; and that Cassivellaun remained possessed of that kingdom, which he enjoyed seven years, and then peaceably died. His successor was Tenuant, Lud's second son, of whom nothing memorable is recorded. He was succeeded by his son Cunobelin, or Cunobeline, (for his name is written both ways upon his coins) otherwise Kymbeline, who had a great friendship for the Romans, and punctually paid them tribute, though he might have withheld it during the civil wars between M. Antony and Augustus [E]. Many of this King's coins have been found in this town, which is a strong argument of its having been his capital, and not Maldon, as some have imagined.

C. Jul. C. Octavianus Augustus, second Emperor of Rome, long neglected Britain. At length [A^o U. C. 720.] roused either by some outrages of the Britans, of which History makes no mention, or by their refusing to pay the customary tribute; he advanced as far as Gaul, with a full resolution to chastise the inhabitants; but was diverted by a rebellion in Dalmatia and Pannonia. Seven years after, he came again to Gaul, in his way to Britain, where he intended to make war. But some of our Kings appeased him, and obtained his favour by embassies, and presents they sent to the Capitol; and made almost the whole country familiar and well known to the Romans (f).

Tiberius, the third Emperor, was for contracting rather than enlarging the bounds of the Roman Empire; and therefore left the Britans unmolested within their own Seas.

C. Caligula was as extravagant with regard to Britain, as in all his other actions. Adminius son of Cunobeline, having been banished by his father, with some companions of his, went and made his submission to the Emperor then in Gallia Belgica. Upon which C. Caligula, as if he had been put in possession of the whole island, wrote boasting letters to Rome; and charged the messenger to drive up as far as the forum and senate-house, and not to deliver them to the Consuls, but in the Temple of Mars, and before the whole Senate (g). Shortly after, [A. D. 37.] advancing to the Sea, and drawing up his army on the shore, he embarked on board a galley, as if he had intended to make a descent on these parts: Having caused himself to be rowed a little way, he returned; and standing on a high place, gave the signal for battle, and commanded an alarm to be sounded. But on a sudden, he ordered the soldiers to fill their helmets and bosoms with shells, calling them the spoils of the ocean, due to the capitol and the palace. Then highly praising and rewarding his soldiers, he set out with the shells for Rome, carrying his galleys mostly by land. For this signal victory he required a greater triumph than ever had been (h): and, to perpetuate the memory of it, built a pharos or tower, supposed to be Brittenhuis, on the coast of Holland.

(a) Galfr. Monum. l. iii. c. 20.

(b) Orosius l. vi. c. 9.

(c) Cæsar de Bello Gall. iv. 20. — 37. & lib. v. c.

8. — 23.

(d) Dion. Cass. l. lx.

(e) G. Monum. l. iii. c. 20.

(f) Dion. Cass. l. xlix. p. 473. § 86

Strabo l. iv. p. 138. Sueton. in Oct. Aug. Ed. Pitisc. p. 665.

Horat. Od. 35. l. i. & Ode 5. l. iii.

(g) Sueton. in Caligula, c. 44. 46.

(h) J. Xiphilin. Epit. Dionis, p. 139.

[X] — Quamquam prospera pugna terruerit incolas, ac litore potitus sit, potest videri ostendisse posteris, non tradidisse. Tacit. vit. Agricol. c. 13.

[Z] Mr. W. Baxter derives this name from the British Words Tri, or Tre, a town, Nou, new, and Hant, Hent, or Hynt, a place much frequented; from which he forms the name Trinouante, signifying the inhabitants of a new Town, i. e. London, which, according to him, was built by the Belgæ. — Cassivellaun was at first only King of the Cassii, [now part of Hertford and Buckingham shires.] But, having slain his brother Immanuentius, (otherwise called Lud, as is said above, p. 18. col. 1.) he seized his Dominions, and by that means became King of the Trinobantes; as he was at the time of J. Cæsar's invasion. On account of these violent proceedings it was, that the Trinobantes came in so readily to J. Cæsar, and desired him to send Mandubrace their late King's son, to govern them. Vide J. Cæsar. de Bello Gallico, l. v. c. 20. Edit. Davissii.

[A] Τάτω γὰρ καὶ ἰσχυρῶς αὐτὸς ἐσεμνύνετο, καὶ οἱ οἱκοὶ Πρωμαῖοι θαυμαστῶς ἐμεγαλύνοντο. Ibid. p. 120. vid. Vellei. Patercol. l. ii. c. 46, 47.

[B] Intactus aut Britannus ut descenderet

Sacra catenatus via. Horat. Epod. 7.

[C] Territa quæsitis ostendit terga Britannis.

Lucan. Pharf. l. ii. 5. 2.

[D] Ac longa oblivio Britannia, etiam in pace. Tacit. Agricol. c. 13. — Suetonius speaking of Britain, in T. Claud. c. 17. says, — neque tentatam ulli post Divum Julium.

[E] Id. l. iv. c. 11. 'Tis said, that he attended Augustus in his Wars; and so well behaved himself, that he grew into particular Favour with the Emperor, and accompanied him to Rome, where he was saluted by the name of Friend of the Commonwealth: and that, during his residence there, Tenuant paid no tribute.

Cunobeline was then reigning in Britain and died about the 42d year of the Christian æra (i). Besides Adminius above-mentioned, he had two sons, Guider or Togodumnus, and Caractacus who succeeded him, and according to some Arviragus (k).

Caligula dying, after a short reign of four years, had Claudius Drusus for successor in the Imperial dignity; and he enjoyed it from the year of Christ 41 to 52. He was the first that may be styled a Conqueror of any part of the British dominions. And he was put upon that undertaking by Adminius and other fugitives; among whom was one Bericus, who had been newly obliged to quit his native country, on account of a sedition [F]. These impious and deluded wretches were always pressing the Emperor to send over an army (l), and make himself master of Britain, which they represented as a very easy conquest. For it hath always been the unhappiness of Britain, to abound with fordid traitors; who, to gratify their own ambition or revenge, would involve it in endless ruin. Claudius, easily persuaded to what he had a strong inclination for, sends A. Plautius, a Roman senator, and an experienced General, to take the command of the army, [A. D. 42.] with orders to transport it into Britain. But the soldiers could hardly be prevailed upon to embark, saying, They would not make war out of the world [G]: However, after many persuasions and debates, they declared their readiness to follow Plautius wherever he went. Upon that, they were embarked; and in three divisions, left coming all into one place, they might be hindered from landing. At their first setting out, they were driven by contrary winds; but putting out again to sea, they arrived in this island without any resistance: [and very probably in Kent, where J. Cæsar had landed before.] For, the Britans, informed of their mutinous disposition, had not prepared to oppose their landing; and therefore, surprized at their arrival, retired, without uniting or making head, into their own fens and woods, in hopes of wearing out the Romans by delays (m). After great search and trouble, Plautius found them out, and overthrew singly their two kings Togodumnus and Caractacus: [A. D. 43.] who flying before him, part of the Boduni [now Oxford and Gloucester-shires] surrendered, being at that time subject to the Catuellani or Cattieuchlani. [The inhabitants of Bucks, Bedford, and Hertfordshires.] Leaving a garrison there, he marched towards a certain river, which the Britans imagining he could not pass without a Bridge, they lay careless and negligent in their camp on the other side. But Plautius sent over some of his German soldiers, who were accustomed to swim through the strongest current in their arms. These, surprising the Britans, struck not at the men, but at the horses in their chariots, and by that means put their whole Force into disorder. Fl. Vespasian, who was afterwards Emperor, passing, next, the river with a considerable body, suddenly attacked the Britans, and killed some, and took more. However the rest did not fly; but, rallying their dispersed forces, they encountered the enemy so vigorously the next day, that the victory was long doubtful; but the Romans at length remained conquerors (n). In this conflict, Vespasian being encompassed by the Britans was in great danger either to have been killed or taken, had not his son Titus opportunely rescued him; who was a tribune, and began early to manifest his valour (o).

After this defeat, the Britans retreated to the river Thames, near its mouth [H], where it falls into the sea, and overflowing makes lakes or shallows. These they easily passed over, knowing where they were firm at the bottom and fordable. But the Romans unacquainted therewith, ran great hazards in pursuing them. However, the Germans swimming over, and some others passing by a bridge a little above, attacked at once the Britans on all sides, and killed great numbers of them; but in the heat of the pursuit, they fell among bogs, and lost many of their own men. In this battle Togodumnus was slain; which so enraged the Britans, instead of disheartening them, that they raised new forces in divers parts of the island, [A. D. 44.]

Plautius, afraid of their strength, proceeded no further: but securing the places he had conquered, he sent for the Emperor over, as he had been ordered, if he found himself too hard pressed [I]. Thereupon Claudius embarks at Ostia with a large army of horse, foot, and elephants; and disembarking at Marseilles, marches from thence by land to Gessoriacum; [Boulogne] where shipping again his forces he landed in Britain, [A. D. 44. U. C. 796.] and came and joined Plautius and Vespasian near the Thames. Having taken upon himself the command of the army, he passes the river where the Britans boldly encounter him, and begin the fight, which for a long time they bravely maintained till great numbers of them were slain. At length being over-powered, they fled into the woods [K], and some were subdued by force, and others yielded upon terms. Claudius pursuing his victory, took Camulodunum, [afterwards named Colchester] the royal seat of the late King Cunobeline, where he placed a COLONY of Veterans, [L]

(i) Dion. p. 779.
780, &c.

(k) G. Mon. l. iv. c. 12, 13.

(l) Dion ibid.

(m) Dion Cass. l. lxx. l. 779,

(n) Dion Cass. ibid.

(o) Sueton. in Tito Vesp. c. 4.

[F] Ἐπεσον ἐκ τῆς νόσου κατὰ τάσιν. (Dion. ibid.) This sedition was occasioned by the Emperor's refusing to deliver the Fugitives, which ambassadors had been sent to demand. (Sueton. in Claudio. c. 17.) Upon that the Britans withheld the usual Tribute, by way of retaliation and revenge. G. Mon. l. iv. c. 12.

[G] Ἐξω τῆς οἰκισμένης στρατεύουνης ἡφανίσθησαν. Dion. p. 779.

[H] That is, in those parts which are now the Southern boundaries of the county of Essex.

[I] Εἰ τι βιάσθητον γίνεσθαι. Dion, ubi supra.

[K] See above Ch. II. § 2.

[L] Colonia Gemina Martia Victrix, or Victricensis. Edm. Bolton's Nero-Cæsar, p. 122. Consisting of those Troops, whom Tacitus styles the Conquerors of Britain, Domitores Britannicæ. Hist. l. v. c. 16. — The Colony (from

(from whence the town came to be called COLONIA by way of eminence) and reduced this part of the isle into the form of a PROVINCE [M].

In honor of this victory, Claudius was divers times saluted Imperator, contrary to the Roman custom, which permitted it but once in one expedition. After this he ordered the Britans to be disarmed: But to those that yielded he remitted the confiscation of their goods; which so endeared him to them, that they erected a Temple and an Altar to him at Camulodunum, and honoured him as a God [N]. Having thus settled this part of the island [O], he left it under the government of Plautius, with orders to subdue the rest (p).

The Emperor's stay in this island was but sixteen days; and his absence from Rome upon this expedition only six months in all. For this victory, anniversary games [P], triumphal arches both at Rome and Gessoriacum, and lastly a glorious triumph were decreed him by the Senate: And the surname of Britannicus was entailed upon his family (q).

Plautius, who, as we have said, was left the Emperor's Lieutenant in Britain, diligently prosecuted the war, [A. D. 45. &c.] and extended his conquests as far as the Western parts of the island. Wherein he was greatly assisted by T. Fl. Vespasian, who, partly under him, and partly under the conduct of Claudius himself, fought thirty battles with the Britans, subdued two of the most powerful nations, took above twenty towns, and conquered the isle of Wight (r).

About the year of Christ 48 Plautius being recalled (s), P. Ostorius Scapula is sent in his room, who was the second Pro-prator, or Lieutenant. At his arrival here, he found things in great disorder; the Britans that were yet unconquered making inroads into the territories of those that were in alliance with the Romans: and the more outrageously, because they supposed that the new General, unacquainted with the army, would hardly take the field in the beginning of winter. But Ostorius being sensible, that first events either beget fear or confidence, advanced against them with such forces as were ready; and putting those that resisted to the sword, so dispersed the rest, that they could not rally again. And because an unsafe and treacherous peace would be no security to the General or his army, he disarmed those that were suspicious; and, to check them, placed garrisons on the rivers Antona [Nen] and Sabrina [Severn.]

This check and confinement the Icenii were the first to dislike; a powerful nation, and not yet weakned with war, because they had voluntarily entered into alliance with the Romans. By their persuasion, the adjoining Nations rise in arms, and intrench themselves in a convenient place, fenced with a rude rampart of earth, and accessible by a narrow passage only, to prevent the entrance of the horse. Ostorius, tho' he wanted the strength of his legions, attempted that fence with the auxiliaries only: and having placed both horse and foot in due order, they broke down the rampart and attacked the Britans pent up as they were in their own entrenchments. However, conscious of their guilt in rebelling, and having no way to escape, they fought desperately, and behaved themselves with great bravery.

By this defeat of the Icenii, other States, that were fluctuating between war and peace, being settled and confirmed; Ostorius led his army against the Cangi [now Somersetshire] whose country he wasted as far as the coast of the Irish sea. But he was recalled thence by a sedition among the Brigantes [i. e. the inhabitants of Yorkshire, Lancashire, &c.] As for the Silures [the inhabitants of South-Wales] he found they were to be reduced neither by severity nor clemency, without a war and garnies planted by the Romans were of three sorts; 1. Civil. 2. Military. 3. Mixt. The Civil Colonies consisted only of Roman citizens, drawn out of the City, and planted in such places as the former inhabitants were removed from. These had all the Privileges of the City of Rome, the same sort of Magistrates and Government. (A. Gellius, l. xvi. c. 13.) 2. Military Colonies, were such, as the Veteran Soldiers were settled in, for a reward of long service. Of this kind were the Colony here at Camulodunum, and the Colonies at York, Chester, Caerleon, &c. 3. The Mixt Colonies, were those wherein the Roman citizens and the natives were mixt together; and though they had not the name, yet had the privileges of a Colony. Of this kind Bp. Stillingfleet concludes London to have been; which was mobile emporium, in Tacitus's time, (Ann. l. xiv. c. 74.) a place of mighty advantage by its situation for trade, and therefore apt to draw both Romans and natives together. (Bp. Stillingfleet's Discourse of the true antiquity of London, p. 533. &c.)—The planting of the Colony here at Camulodunum is commemorated in a fine Medal of Claudius; having, on one side, the Emperor's effigies with this inscription, TI. CLAUD. CAES. AVG. GER. P. M. TR. P. XII. IMP. XIIX. Reverse, a Plough drawn by an ox and a cow yoked, driven by a man: Above them, COL. CAMALODVN. AVG. (Camden.)

(p) Dion Cass. l. lx. p. 780. &c. (q) Dion Cass. ubi sup. Sueton. in T. Claudio, c. 17. (r) Sueton, in T. Vespasian, c. 4. (s) Tacit. Ann. l. xii. c. 31.

[M] By being made a Roman Province, is to be understood, That it was deprived of all its ancient Liberties and Privileges, new-modelled according to the pleasure of the conquerors, and subjected to the command of Governors sent from Rome, who levied such Taxes and Contributions as the senate thought fit to impose. These Governors, with the rest of the Officers, were, the Legatus or Proprætor, the Procurator, Quæstor, Tribuni, &c. of all which a large and curious account may be seen in Wolfgangi Lazii Commentariorum Reipub. Romanæ illius, in exteris provinciis, bello acquisitis, constitutæ, libri duodecim. Basil. &c.

[N] Parum est quod Templum in Britannia habet, quod hunc Barbari colunt, & ut Deum orant. Seneca, Claudii Cæs. ἀπομολοκίντωσις. Edit. Lipsii Antv. 1605. p. 766. The conjecture of Dr. N. Salmon, with regard to this Temple of Claudius, is both ingenious and extremely probable. Mr. Camden (Britannia in Essex) would have inferred from this inscription Camulo Deo Sancto et Fortissimo, That Camulodunum was so called from Camulus, another name under which Mars was worshipped. But, says N. Salmon, (Hist. of Essex, p. 263, col. 1.) "As Claudius was deified, and had a Temple here,—Camulo may stand for Camuloduni, according to the Roman practice of cutting words short. And Claudius may be the Deus Sanctus and Fortissimus, whose Altar was at this place."

[O] He left the 2d, 9th, and 14th. Legions to retain his martial purchase. E. Bolton, ubi supra, p. 86.

[P] In some of these Games, he represented the taking and plundering of the town Camulodunum (as Mr. rison

rifons. The more easily to effect this, the colony at Camulodunum, reinforced with a strong body of veterans, was quartered in the new conquest; to be ready to quell any rebellion, and to inure the Allies to law and good order. After which followed the defeat of the Silures, and of their brave general Caractacus, or Caradoc (i); but as the inhabitants of these districts do not appear to have been concerned in that war, the scene of action being quite at the further side of the island, we shall not relate the particulars of that expedition [Q].

Ostorius dying A. D. 55. had for successor A. Didius, the third Pro-prætor in Britain; who being old and infirm managed the war by his officers. However, he took care to keep what had been gained by his predecessors, and enlarged the extent of his frontier-garrisons a little, that he might be said to have made some addition to the old conquests (u).

In his time, A. D. 55, the Emperor Claudius departed this life; being succeeded by Cn. Domit. Nero. As this wicked Prince was not at all of a warlike temper, he thought to draw the Roman army out of Britain; and would certainly have done it, if it had not been for the shame of seeming to detract from his adoptive father Claudius's glory (w).

Didius had for successor [A. D. 57] Veranius, the 4th Pro-prætor of Britain, who died within the year (x).

After whom came [A. D. 61.] Suetonius Paulinus, a man of great conduct and reputation: who continued two years in his office (y). His first exploit was to reduce the isle of Anglesey, which had been a common place of refuge to the poor Britans, harrassed and driven out of their habitations by the invading Romans, and at that time the seat, and the last residence of the Druids (z). While he was employed in this conquest, the Roman Province, whereof this Town and County were a part, rose in arms, in order to revenge the avarice and cruelty of their new tyrannical masters. The occasion was this: Prasutagus, king of the Iceni, famous a long time for his great riches, had left the Emperor co-heir with his two daughters; hoping, by this compliment, to secure both his kingdom and family from insults. But it happened quite otherwise; for, (under pretence of taking possession of the Emperor's new inheritance) the kingdom became a prey to the centurions, and his house to their servants and under-officers. His wife Boadicea was whipped, and his daughters ravished. As if the whole country had been given to the Romans, the chief of the Iceni were deprived of their paternal estates, and those of the Blood-royal treated as the meanest slaves. Upon this insult, and for fear of worse, since they were now reduced to a Province (a);

the people began to reflect on the miseries of their slavery, to compare each other's misfortunes, and to aggravate every thing by the worst construction. "That their patience and easiness would only encourage their enemies to lay heavier burthens upon them. Heretofore every State had its own king, now they were subjected to two, the Lieutenant and the Procurator [R]: the first preyed upon their Blood, the second upon their Estates. That the enmity and friendship of the governours proved equally pernicious; the one oppressed them with soldiers and officers, the other with violence and affronts. Nothing escaped their covetousness or lust. In war, the bravest had the spoil; but now they were pillaged by cowards and weaklings. These were the wretches that bereft them of their children, and pressed them at their pleasure for foreign service; as if the Britans could fight and die for any country but their own. For what vast numbers would they appear to have transported, if the Britans were to take account of their present strength? Thus Germany had shaken off the yoke, which has only a river to defend it and not an ocean: That they had their country, their wives, and parents, to fight for, and inspirit them; while the others had only avarice and luxury. These would retreat as Julius Cæsar did, if the Britans would but imitate the bravery of their ancestors: and that the issue of one or two battles ought not to terrify them. That fierceness and resolution were the natural effects of misery. And even, the Gods took compassion of them, in removing the Roman General, and keeping his army as it were banished in another island. That the most dangerous part of the design was what they were upon, namely deliberating; and it would be worse to be discovered in the plot, than to attempt the execution (b)."

Some of these complaints were but too well grounded. For Catus Decianus the Procurator endeavoured to bring all their goods and estates under a new confiscation, tho' Claudius had generously remitted it to them. And Seneca [a philosopher only in his writings, as one (c) rightly observes] had drawn them in to borrow of him vast sums, upon fair promises of an easy loan, and for repayment to take their own time; but he compelled them on a sudden to repay him at once, to their utter ruin (d).

Highly provoked at these and the like outrages, the Iceni take arms; [A. D. 62.] drawing over the Trinobantes to revolt with them, and such others as were not yet inur'd to slavery: who secretly conspired to recover their Liberty, with the utmost spight against the veterans. For these being newly planted in the colony Camulodunum, thrust the inhabitants from their

(i) Tacit. Ann. l. xii. c. 32—39

(x) Tacit. vit. Agric. c. 14.

(b) Tacit. vit. Agricol. c. 15.

lini Epit. Dionis, p. 169.

(u) Ibid. c. 40. & vit. Agr. c. 14.

(y) Idem, Annal. l. xiv. c. 29.

(c) J. Tyrrell, Hist. of England, Vol. I. p. 47.

(w) Suetonius, in Nerone, c. 18.

(z) Ibid.

(a) Tacit. Annal. l. xiv.

(d) J. Xiphi-

Bolton understood it, Nero-Cæsar, p. 121.) and the Kings of Britain coming and making their submission to him. Sueton, in T. Claudio, c. 21.

[Q] Crebra hinc prælia, & sæpius in modum latrocinii: per saltus, per paludes; ut cuique fors, aut virtus; temere, proviso; ob iram, ob prædam; jussu, & aliquando ignavis ducibus. Tacit. l. xii. c. 39.

[R] The Legatus, or Lieutenant, had not only the command of the Army, but also was the Emperor's immediate Deputy, and had power of life and death. The Procurator's office was to receive and regulate the public revenue, and to dispose of it at the Emperor's command.

houses, and dispossessed them of their lands, calling them captives and slaves; and were encouraged in such outrages by the younger soldiers, as well through a likeness in manners and profession, as in hopes of the same licentiousness. Moreover, the Britans looked upon the Temple built at Camulodunum in honour of Claudius, as the foundation, or pledge, of a perpetual Tyranny; and the Priests who served therein, under a shew of religion consumed their whole estates (e). The Colony itself the Britans considered as the seat of slavery (f); and fancied, there could be no great difficulty in overthrowing it, as it had no forts nor castles. For the Roman commanders had been so imprudent, as to consult pleasure rather than use and service. The Britans, it seems, were mightily encouraged by some pretended prodigies [S], which, on the other hand, threw the veterans into the utmost consternation. In this distress, as Suetonius was at so great a distance, they applied to Catus Decianus their Procurator for help: Who sent them not above two hundred men, and those ill-armed. There was but a moderate garrison in the town, who relied wholly upon the strength and protection of the Temple; and some that were privy to the conspiracy, had so perplexed their counsels, that they had neither made trench nor ditch round it for their own defence, nor sent away the old people and women, reserving the youth only. Thus living secure and careless as in a profound peace, they were surprised and surrounded by the Britans [T]. What things stood defenceless, were immediately over-run and plundered, or consumed by fire; the Temple, wherein the soldiers were crowded, stood a two days siege, and then was forced to yield. The victorious Britans meeting Petilius Cerialis, Lieutenant of the Ninth Legion, who was coming to the Colony's assistance, routed the Legion, and put what foot there was [U] to the sword: Cerialis escaped with the horse into the Camp, where he defended himself by the help of the fortifications. Catus the procurator, whose covetousness, and the hatred of the Province that ensued upon it, had been the cause of this calamity, cowardly fled into Gaul.

But Suetonius, with prodigious resolution, marched through the midst of the enemies to London; which was not honoured with the name of a Colony, but was very famous for the concourse of merchants, and the great plenty of all things. Being come thither, he could not presently resolve, whether to make that the seat of war, or not; but considering his want of soldiers, and how much Petilius had suffered for his rashness, he determined to sacrifice this one town to the safety of the rest. And not relenting at the cries and tears of the inhabitants, who implored his aid and protection, he gave orders to march, receiving such as followed him into his army. Those who by weakness of sex or age were obliged to stay, and such as allured by the pleasantness of the place chose to remain behind, were destroyed by the enemy. The municipium of Verulam [W] was involved in the like destruction; for the Britans passing by the forts and castles, pillaged the richest and weakest places; being intent upon the spoil, and regardless of the rest. About seventy thousand of the Romans and their allies were slain. For the Britans would give no quarter, nor cumber themselves with prisoners, or ransom or exchange any, according to the laws of war; but did kill, burn, hang, crucify by way of retaliation, and in such haste, as if they foresaw it would cruelly be returned upon them.

Suetonius having with him the fourteenth legion, and the vexillarii of the twentieth [X], together with some auxiliaries from the neighbouring places, almost to the number of ten thousand fighting men [Y], resolved immediately to engage the Britans. For that purpose, he chose for the field of battle, a place accessible by one narrow passage only [Z], and fenced in the rear by a wood; as sensible, he should then have no enemy but in front, and the plain being open there would be no danger of ambuscades. He drew up the Legion close in the middle, with the light-arm'd soldiers on both sides, and the horse on the two wings. The British forces were drawn up in smaller bodies and squadrons (g), to the amount of about 230,000 men (h): And had placed their wives on chariots, round the field of battle, to be witnesses of the victory. Boadicea riding about in a chariot, with her daughters, addressed herself to the several British nations that composed her army, to this effect: "That it was no new thing for the Britans to fight under the conduct of women: but now she went not, as one royally descended, to fight for empire or riches, but as one of the com(e) Tacit. Ann. l. xiv. c. 31. Epit. Dion. p. 173.

(f) Idem vit. Agric. c. 16.

(g) Tacit. Ann. l. xiv. c. 31—34. J. Xiphilin

(h) Bolton, ubi supra, p. 158. Lipsius reckons them at 120,000. Not. in Tacit.

[S] They are thus described by Tacitus. "The image of the goddess Victory, at Camulodunum, without any visible cause, fell down, and turned backward, as if yielding to the enemy. Several enthusiastick women foretold the approaching destruction. Strange noises were heard in the Court, and howlings resounded in the theatre; and an apparition was seen in the æstuary of the Thames, of a Colony destroyed. Moreover, the sea looked bloody; and in the ebb, the effigies of human bodies were left upon the shore." Annal. l. xiv. c. 32. See also Dion Cassius, ubi supra.

[T] Mr. Bolton supposes, that the Colony, including wives, children, servants, tradesmen, &c. could not amount to so few in all as ten or twenty thousand. Ubi supra, p. 122.

[U] About two thousand. Ibid. p. 126.

[W] A Municipium, was a place, whose inhabitants were made honorary citizens of Rome, without having any abridgement or alteration made in their ancient Government, Laws, or Liberties. A. Gellius l. xvi. c. 13.

[X] The Vexillarii were a detached body of Legionary Soldiers, who fought under a vexillum, or standard, of their own, distinct from the Eagle, which was the standard of the Legions. Vide Pichenam Not. in Tacit. Annal. l. i. c. 38.

[Y] Mr. Bolton computes, that they were in all about 19000. Ibid. p. 156, 157.

[Z] By comparing all accounts and circumstances, I am persuaded, that the field of battle was between Waltham and Epping, or thereabouts; not far from London. Mr. Bolton thinks that it was in September the battle was fought, p. 162. See History of Essex in Waltham H.

mon people for lost liberty; to revenge the stripes she had received from them, and the dishonour they had done her daughters. That the Romans lust was grown so exorbitant and unruly, that neither old nor young escaped its pollutions. However the Gods had already begun to punish them according to their deserts;—for one Legion, which durst hazard a battle, had been cut in pieces, and the rest skulk'd in their Camp, or fled for their lives. So that they could not endure the noise and shouts of so many thousands, much less be able to stand their attacks. If the Britans would but consider the number of their own forces, and the motives of the war, they must either conquer or die. Such was her own resolution, tho' she was but a woman; as for the men, they might, if they pleased, live and be slaves." Suetonius also animated his soldiers, and advised them to keep close together; and, after they had discharged their darts, to continue the slaughter with their pikes and swords, and not heed the booty.

When the engagement began, the Roman Legion remained firm and unmoved, and kept within the narrow passage abovementioned for their security and defence. But, after the enemy had spent their darts, they sallied out in a wedge [A] upon them; and the horse with their spears, broke whatever came in their way, and made resistance. The rest fled, but escaped with difficulty, because the passes quite round were blocked up by the wagons. Then a dreadful carnage began, the soldiers not sparing even the tender sex; nay the very horses were slain, and increased the heaps of carcases. It was computed, that no less than fourscore thousand of the Britans were slain; and the Roman authors say, they lost but about 400 men and had not much above that number wounded. Boadicea finding her affairs ruined, ended her life by poison (i); or, according to others, by sickness (k).

The Roman army, after a general review, took the field again, to put an end to this war. And Nero reinforced it with a supply of two thousand Legionaries from Germany, eight auxiliary cohorts, and a thousand horse; by which the ninth Legion was compleated. These cohorts, and some others, were sent into winter-quarters; and the countries that were either enemies or neuter, were wasted with fire and sword. To compleat the misery of the distressed Britans, they were afflicted with a fore famine, which they had brought upon themselves by neglecting to till the ground (l).

I have dwelt the longer upon this action, because it was the last vigorous Effort the oppressed Britans made for the recovery of their lost Liberty. And it shews, that even a small body of regular forces, can easily rout and disperse a raw and undisciplin'd multitude, tho' infinitely superior in number.

By this compleat victory, the chief part of South-Britain came absolutely under the Romans dominion; and their chains were thereby firmly rivetted upon the inhabitants, who were thenceforward awed and kept in order by a large standing Military force; as I shall shew more particularly when I come to Domitian's reign.

The Colony here being destroyed as is related above, another was undoubtedly planted in their room, and the Town repaired, very soon after this fatal overthrow (m). For great numbers of Roman coins, even of Claudius himself, and of Vespasian, Titus, Domitian, and their several successors, are found daily in and about this place. Not in heaps, pots, or large quantities together, as if they had been designedly buried; but dispersed all about, as if accidentally lost at different times. Bushels, I may say, have been found in this Town and Suburbs; chiefly in the highest parts, namely about St. Mary's, the Burgh-fields, St. John's garden, &c. a certain sign that the Roman City stood there.

To return to Suetonius: He did not make the advantage that might have been expected from his late great victory; because he behaved with arrogance towards those that submitted, and imposed very harsh terms upon the vanquished: And disputes also having arisen between him and the new procurator Julius Classicianus, Nero sent over his freedman Polycletus to reconcile their difference, and to incline at the same time the discontented Britans to a quiet behaviour. Polycletus coming over with a grand retinue, made himself formidable to the Roman army; but contemptible to the Britans, who still retaining a warm affection for Liberty, were unacquainted with this power of freed-men; and thought it strange, that a General and his army, after such great exploits, should be subject to slaves. However, he gave such a favorable account to the Emperor, that Suetonius was continued in his post. But, shortly after, having lost some gallies on the shore with their crews, he received orders to deliver up the command of the army [A. D. 63.] to Petronius Turpillianus. He being indolent, and doing nothing memorable, delivered up his government, after two years possession, to Trebellius Maximus; who being of a very unactive temper, and unexperienced in military affairs, governed the Province in a gentle manner. But a quarrel between him, and Cælius commander of the twentieth legion, obliged him to quit Britain (n).

Nero putting an end, the year following, to his own infamous life; no Pro-prætor was appointed during the short reigns of Galba, and Otho. Notwithstanding which, this Province continued quiet and peaceable; being governed by the Lieutenants of the Legions, all of equal authority, tho' Cælius assumed the most power (o).

Vitellius having obtained the Empire, [A. D. 68.] sent Vettius Bolanus Pro-prætor into this island. He was a little troublesome to the

(i) Tacit. Ann. l. xiv. c. 29—37.
(m) Vid. Plin. Nat. Hist. l. xi. c. 75.
Hist. l. i. c. 60.

(k) J. Xiphilini Epit. Dionis, p. 176.

(n) Tacit. Hist. l. i. c. 60. & Lib. ii. c. 65. & vit. Agric. c. 16.

(l) Tacit. Ann. l. xiv. c. 37, 38.

(o) Tacit.

[A] Velut cuneo erupit. Tacit. Which words signify the closeness and compactness, not the form of the Squadron. See Bolton, p. 175.

Britans as his predecessor. 'Tis observable, that, during the contests for dominion between Vitellius and Vespasian, there were no mutinies in the army here: And indeed, in all the civil wars of the Empire, the troops quarter'd in this isle were more peaceable and quiet than in any other Province. The fourteenth Legion, called the Conqueror of Britain, had been removed from hence to the Caspian war by Nero; and after, while they sided with Otho, defeated: They were sent into Britain again by Vitellius, but recalled by a Letter from Mucianus (p).

The great esteem which this Province had for T. Vespasian, who had commanded here the second Legion under Claudius, as is related above, induced Britain to declare for him. About which time Vespasian had incited the Brigantes [inhabitants of the North] to a revolt; but 'tis most probable this part of the island had no concern therein (q).

As soon as Vespasian was quietly possessed of the Imperial dignity, [A. D. 71.] he sent over famous Generals, and excellent armies, which quickly restored peace in this island.

Petilius Cerialis, his Lieutenant, [A. D. 73.] a man of Consular dignity, conquered the Brigantes then the most populous nation in the whole Province. When he had eclipsed the fame as well as prevented the care of a Successor, Julius Frontinus was sent to command in his room. [A. D. 75.] He subdued the powerful and warlike Silures. [i. e. now the Eastern part of Wales] (r).

But Julius Agricola, the next Lieutenant, abundantly surpassed the glory of all his predecessors. He was Pro-prætor here from the 9th year of Vespasian to the 5th or 6th of Domitian (s), i. e. from the year of Christ 81 to 92; In which time, he commanded in chief in seven campaigns; subdued the Ordovices [North-Wales;] and reduced the isle of Mona, or Anglesey; built forts in several places, to awe the natives; extended his conquests beyond the Fyrths of Glotta and Bodotria, [Dunbritton and Edinburgh] and, upon the neck of land between them, raised forts, and planted garrisons, for the security of the Roman Province, which he had extended thus far; caused his fleet to sail round about the north parts of Britain: And inur'd the Britans to the Roman manners, fashions, customs, and ways of building [B]. Besides several other useful regulations [C]; which tended as much to his honour, as to the ornament, welfare, and happiness of the country.

These particulars I have but slightly touched on, because the Trinobantes seem to have had little or no share in them; but whoever desires to see them more at length, will be pleased to consult the Life of Agricola, written by his son-in-law C. Tacitus.

The exploits of that renowned General, glorious to himself, and beneficial to the Roman name, were ill-requited by that monster Domitian; who envied his bravery, and was an enemy to all virtue. For he recalled him under pretence of appointing him governor of Syria; but soon after caused him to be poisoned, as was supposed (t). Thus died the famous Agricola, who carried the Roman eagles to the furthest bounds of Britain: Conquering more nations than all his predecessors had done; and he intended also to have subdued Ireland, had he not been so recalled (u).

South-Britain, now parted from Caledonia by Agricola's ramparts, was reduced to a COMPLEAT PROVINCE; not governed by Consular or Proconsular Deputies, but accounted Pre-fidial, and appropriated to the Emperors, as being annexed to the Empire, after the division of Provinces by Augustus, and having Pro-prætors of its own. To keep it in subjection, there were four Legions at least [D], quartered in different parts, especially upon the frontiers; to stop the incursions of the poor natives, who were now cooped up in the Western and Northern extremities of the isle. And undoubtedly these Stations and Garrisons of the Legions proved very often the foundations of considerable towns and cities; whose names generally end in Chester, or Cester, from the Latin word Castra (w).

In this manner was the Yoke first laid upon the Britans, by standing forces and garrisons. And to keep them humble and obedient, they were loaded with tribute, and heavy imposts: for the gathering of which Publicans were maintained, who exacted the tribute, &c. with great rigour, and greedily sucked the very vitals of the natives. Moreover, they were not permitted to enjoy their ancient laws and government; but were put under the jurisdiction of Magistrates, sent by the Romans with their rods and axes, to administer justice [E]. But, as l. v. c. 16. 19. & vit. Agric. 17.

(p) Ibid. l. ii. c. 11. & 66. l. iii. c. 13. l. iv. c. 68. 76. l. iv. c. 41, 45. (r) Idem vit. Agric. c. 16, 17. Agric. c. 32 (u) Tacit. vit. Agric. c. 24. &c.

(q) Tacit. Hist.

(s) D. Hen. Savile in Agricola vit.

(t) Tacit vit.

(w) Camden's Britannia, in the Introduct. Vol. I. col. 78.

[B] The Britans being disposed to break out into open war upon every occasion; that he might by pleasures induce them to be quiet, he exhorted them privately, and also assisted them, to build temples, forums and fine houses; those who were forward, he commended; those who were slow and backward, he reprov'd. Moreover, he took care to have the sons of their Princes, or chief men, brought up in the liberal arts; preferring the wit and parts of the Britans before those of the Gauls; so that they, who but lately despised the Roman language, did now effect eloquence. From that time also, the Roman fashions and dresses became in request among them; and the Toga, or gown, was commonly worn. By degrees, they came to those incitements to debauchery, Portico's, Baths, and Banquets; which went by the name of Genteelness among the ignorant, when they were indeed but badges of slavery. Tacit. vit. Agric. c. 31.

[C] See an account of them in Tacitus, vit Agric. c. 19.

[D] Josephus de bello Jud. l. ii. But Dion Cassius says, in his time, there were only three; namely, in the East or Northern parts of Britain, ἡ ἑκτὴ ῥωμαίων, Legio Sexta Victrix: And in the West, or upper part of Britan, ἡ δευτέρα ῥωμαίων; Secunda Legio Augusta; & Vigesima Valeriana Victrix, p. 645, 646. See Camden, in the Introduct. col. 78. & 222.

[E] The Prætor, in particular, held a kind of Assize once every year, and then decided all causes of more than ordinary consequence; sitting in great state upon a high tribunal, with his lictors round him, bearing rods for the backs, and axes for the necks of the people. Ibid. See above, note [S].

a sort of recompence for the loss of their Liberty (and indeed nothing can be a sufficient recompence for it) the Britans were polished and civilized by their conquerors. For the Romans, by planting their colonies here, and reducing the natives under the rules of good government; by instructing them in the liberal arts, and sending them into Gaul to learn the laws of the Roman Empire; did at last so reform and civilize them, that in their dress and manner of living they became no way inferior to the inhabitants of the other Provinces. Their buildings and other works were so very magnificent, that, as one expresses it (*), we view the remains of them at this day with great veneration.

To secure their conquest, the Romans took a most effectual method; that was, To draw the flower of the British youth out of this island; which forming into twelve large bodies, or more, they sent into the most distant provinces, and continually recruited them from Britain. This was no less than draining the strength and vigor of this island; and depriving the inhabitants of all disposition, at least of all power, of shaking off their yoke. A most infallible method to keep a mutinous and revolting Province in due subjection (x)!

But to return: Towards the end of Domitian's reign, we find mention of Arvirag, a British king (y). Where his dominions lay we do not understand. Probably, he was one of those Princes that were conquered by J. Agricola; or that caused an insurrection after his return. He died about the year of Christ 91, and was succeeded by his son Marius, or Meurig, who died about the year 132 (z).

The next Proprætors of Britain after J. Agricola, were, Cn. Trebellius, and Sallustius Lucullus [A. D. 92.]; of whom nothing is recorded. Nor is there any mention made of this island under the short reign of C. Nerva [A. D. 94, 95.]

In good N. Trajan's reign, [A. D. 96.] some of the Britans revolted against the Romans, but were soon reduced again to obedience (a). And in his time it was, if we are rightly informed (b), that those Public Ways leading from one station or colony to another, were first made. Though, upon the whole, 'tis more probable, that they were the work of more than one reign.

The Proprætors under the Emperor Hadrian, were, Cn. Trebellius, Priscus Licinius [A. D. 117.], and Julius Severus.

In the first year of this Emperor, the Caledonians, or Northern Britans (c), made irruptions into the Roman Province; and even the Britans in general made great efforts for throwing off the galling yoke under which they groaned [F]. They had very near succeeded, had not the Emperor come over in person

[A. D. 120.] to secure this conquest. In order to prevent future incursions, he threw up a Rampart of Earth, faced with large planks fixed in the ground and joined to one another; from the mouth of the Tine to Solway-frith, fourscore miles in length, and quite cross the country from East to West (d). Great numbers of his coins, and very fair and valuable ones, have been found in this place.

His successor Antoninus Pius. [A. D. 136.] at his first coming to the throne made a law, That all who were within the bounds of the Roman Empire, should be citizens of Rome [G]; of which South-Britain received the benefit. However the North-Britans uneasy within the confinement of Hadrian's rampart, broke it down in several places, and ravaged the Roman Province. But Lollius Urbicus, the Proprætor, drove them back again into their wild and inhospitable mountains and deserts. And to restrain them from future irruptions, he raised another Rampart of earth and piles between the fyrths of Glota and Bodotria [Dunbritton and Edinburgh] where Agricola had before built his fortresses [H]. By means of this rampart, and a camp at a little distance where troops were kept ready to march upon occasion, he compelled the Caledonians to remain quiet in their country.

Under Marc. Aurel. Antoninus, the Britans, impatient of foreign subjection, again raised new commotions: for the appeasing whereof Calpurnius Agricola was sent over; who, partly by prudence, and partly by force, settled the minds of those who seemed most uneasy under the Romans dominion (e).

In this reign, Coel I. a British king, tributary to the Romans, dying, left his son Lucius for his successor; who is otherwise called Lhes, and surnamed Lever Maur, the great light, because he is said to have received, and very much encouraged here, the light of the Gospel (f).

In Commodus's time, [A. D. 183.] the Caledonians passing over the rampart, cut off the Roman General and his army; and committed terrible ravages throughout the Province (g). Ulpus Marcellus is therefore sent to reduce them within bounds: which he effected by his bravery and conduct. But being envied for his virtues, by Commodus who hrd none, he was recalled. Whereupon the army mutinied, and threatned to elect another Emperor (h): However, they were appeased by Helvius Pertinax, promoted afterwards to the Imperial dignity; who had been a soldier here in M. Aurel. Antoninus's reign (i).

Clodius Albinus was the next Proprætor appointed by Commodus, who offered also to create him Cæsar, but he declined that honour. Not long after, a false report being spread that Commodus was slain, Albinus, in a speech to (*) Camden's Britannia, ibid.

(z) G. Monem. l. iv. c. 16, 17.

fleet's Orig. Britan. p. 283.

(f) G. Monem. l. iv. c. 18, 19.

(i) J. Capitolin. in Pertin. p. 155.

(x) Camden, ibid. Introd. col. cvii.

(a) Camden Britan. Introd. col. Lxxx.

(d) Spartian, in Hadriano, p. 16.

(g) J. Xiphilin Epi. Dion. p. 286.

(y) Juvenal, Satire, iv. § 127.

(b) G. Monem. l. iii. c. 5.

(c) Bp. Stilling-

(e) Jul. Capitolin. in M. Aurel. Anton. p. 71.

(h) Æl. Lamprid. in Commod. p. 138.

[F] Britanni teneri sub Romana ditione non poterant. —Spartian, Edit. Boxhornii, Lugd. Bat. 1632. 12°. in Hadriano, p. 8.

[G] So Camden's Britan. Introd. col. Lxxxi. But Span-heim has since proved this law to have been made by Antoninus Caracalla. See Orb. Rom. Exerc. ii.

[H] Alio muro cespiticio, submotis barbaris, ducto. J. Capitolin. p. 52.

his soldiers, inveigh'd against the male administration of Nero and other Emperors, meaning Commodus; and extolled the Senatorian power. Which coming to the Emperor's ear, he appointed [A.D. 192.]

Junius Severus Proprætor in Albinus's room: but the latter refused to give up that office. Not long after, Commodus being poisoned and strangled (k), [A.D. 198.] Helvius Pertinax, his successor, confirmed Albinus in the government of Britain (l): Which he enjoyed during that Emperor's short reign of two months and 26 days.

After the violent death of Pertinax, Didius Julianus purchased the Empire, which was set to sale by the soldiers: But Pescennius Niger is proclaimed Emperor by his army in Syria; And, at the same time Septimius Severus in Pannonia, and Albinus here in Britain, receive the same honour from their respective armies. But Severus having procured himself to be confirmed Emperor at Rome, by the unanimous consent of the soldiers and senate (m), resolves to dispatch his three competitors, one after another. Accordingly D. Julianus is murdered by Severus himself (n); or by his order. And that he might not have both the others to deal with at once, he soothes Albinus by the specious pretence of making him his partner in the Empire; erecting statues to him, stamping his image on the coins, and conferring upon him the consulship. Having thus lulled him asleep, he marches against Pescennius, who is vanquished in battle, and soon after slain. Then he employs assassins to murder Albinus; which wicked design failing he declares him an enemy of the State, and advances against him with the utmost expedition. Albinus had passed into Gaul, with the flower of the British army to oppose his competitor's progress; but being defeated, he puts an end to his own life (o).

Severus now sole master of the Empire, finding that Britain was too great and powerful a province to be trusted into the hands of one man, he divided it into Two Governments [A.D. 208]; committing the Southern part to Heracitus, or Heracianus; and the North to Virius Lupus, under the title of Proprætor or President of Britain; who repaired many castles in this island. But being extremely harassed by the Meateæ [the people on the confines of Scotland] he was forced to buy a peace of them at a dear rate. Notwithstanding which, they and the Caledonians continuing their irruptions, Lupus desired the Emperor either to send more force, or to come in person to his assistance (p). Severus, though above sixty years old, and much troubled with the gout, joyfully resolved upon this expedition; both that he might wean his sons Bassianus and Geta, who grew very debauched, from the pleasures of the city, and also add the name of Britannicus to his other titles. He came over therefore to Britain with numerous forces, and penetrated to the furthest parts of the island. But in this laborious expedition he lost above 50,000 men (q). However, he compelled at last the enemies, and their king Fulgentius, to sue for peace, and to give up to the Romans all the country between the two Walls. But Severus finding it not tenable without a great army always on the spot, he abandoned it soon after; and, to prevent for the future the incursions of the Caledonians into the Roman territories, he built, in the place where Hadrian's rampart stood, a Wall (r) of free-stone; sixty eight miles and three furlongs in length from beyond Newcastle to Boulneis, about eight feet thick and twelve high, and secured with castles and turrets at proper distances [I]. One of the stupendous monuments of Roman greatness!

Severus seems also to have divided the Roman Conquests here into two Provinces, by a line drawn from Clausentum to Gabrosentum [i. e. from Southampton to Gateshead by New castle;] so that all the country on the East side of the line was called Britannia Prima, as lying nearer to the sea and Rome, and having been first conquered; as all on the West side was named Britannia Secunda (s).

Notwithstanding the peace, the Caledonians began to revolt, and committed hostilities; which so enraged Severus, that, in a Speech to his soldiers, he recommended the utter extirpation of them [K]. But death put a stop to his cruel purpose. He died at York, aged sixty six years, A.D. 209.

His eldest son, Bassianus, or Antoninus Caracalla, continued for some little time to prosecute the remains of the war by his officers; but he soon made a peace with the Caledonians, and slighting the forts and garrisons, left Britain, together with his brother Geta [A.D. 211.]. And yet so vain was he, that he assumed the name of Britannicus Maximus, as Geta did that of Britannicus (t).

From this time till the beginning of the reign of P. Lic. Gallienus, i. e. from the year 211 to 260, we meet with nothing particularly relating to Britain, nor the Lieutenants names; except that Mæcilius Fuscus, Cne. Lucilianus, and Nonius Philippus were Proprætors here in the reign of Gordianus junior (u). But this long chasm in the Roman and British history, is more for want of historians, than of matter.

Gallienus, already mentioned, being given up to idleness, luxury, and riot, the Empire was not only invaded on all sides by its barbarous neighbours, but also full of convulsions within its own bowels. For, thirty of the Governors of the Provinces assumed the imperial (k) Herodian, lib. i. sub fin. (l) Idem lib. ii. and J. Xiphilin. p. 307. (m) Idem, p. 308. & Spartian in D. Juliano, & Severo. (n) Aurel. Victoris Epit. ed. Pitif. p. 100. vid. Spartian in D. Juliano. (o) Herodian, lib. iii. (p) J. Xiphilin. p. 339. (q) Ibid. & Herodian. l. iii. (r) Spartian in Severo. (s) Magna. Britannia, &c. Vol. I. p. 74, 75. (t) Camden's Brit. Introd. col. lxxxviii. lxxxix. (u) J. Horsely's Britan. Rom.

[I] See an exact account of it in Mr. J. Horsely's Britannia Romana; a most curious and valuable work.

[K] Repeating some verses of Homer, which are thus englisht. Il. Z. ver. 57. &c.

. . . Let none your mercy share,
Let none escape the fury of the war;
Children unborn shall die. . . .

purple, in different parts; who are called by historians the Thirty Tyrants. Six of them, namely, Lollianus Victorinus, Posthumus, the two Tetrici, and Marius, particularly, are supposed to have been Governors in this island; for their coins are daily found in great numbers, especially about this town of Colchester (w).

To these times of confusion, may also be referred what we find in our Colchester-Chronicle. Namely, That in the year 238. Coel II, General or Governor of this district under the Romans, (who did much repair and beautify this town, and gave it the name of Kayr-Coel,) seized the Government of those parts now known by the names of Essex and Hertfordshire: That, a°. 242, his daughter Helena was born at Colchester: That, a°. 260, Constantius the Roman General in Spain, came and besieged Colchester, held by Coel against the Romans. But, after the siege had continued long, it was raised upon Constantius's betrothing Helena. And by her, a°. 265, he had his son Constantine, born before the solemnization of the nuptials [L]. And though these things are not mentioned in the Roman writers, yet there is nothing impossible or improbable, in them. So far from it, that the main parts of this relation are confirmed by writers of undoubted credit.—That her name was Helen, is universally allowed.—That she was a concubine, is affirmed not only in this chronicle, but also by the Emperor Julian [M], Eusebius, Orosius, and St. Jerom [N], Cassiodorus [O], Zosimus [P], Beda [Q]; and indirectly by Eutropius [R], and the author of the collections concerning Constantius and Constantine, (w) Camden's Britan. in Essex: and Introd. col. xc.

[L] This short Chronicle is entered in the beginning of our ancient Record-book, commonly called the Oath-book; and, by the hand, appears to have been written about the beginning of K. Edward III's reign. Part of it is as follows.

A. D.

238 Coel Dux Colcestr' cepit regnare super Essex' & Hertford'.

242 Helena filia Coelis nascitur in Colocestria.

260 Constantius Dux Romanor' in Hispaniis, Britanniam navigans, civitatem Colocestriam obcedit triennio.

264 Soluta est obsidio sponfacione nuptiarum Helene filie Coelis.

265 Constantinus filius Constantii nascit' in Colocestria ex Helena adhuc concubina.

288 Constantius cum Galerrio Cesar appellat' Galliarum.

290 Coel Dux Colcestr' occiso Asclepiodoto tiranno, regnavit sup. totam Britanniam, sub tributo tum Romanor'.

297 Coel Rex Britonum fortissimus obiit Colocestrie mense 2do.

298 Constantius Colocestrie rediens de Galliis disponit de regno.

299 Constantius imperator obiit Eboraci anno Imperii sui xvi.

303 Helena mortuo Constantio perpetuam vovit viduitatem.

[M] Ἐξ Ἑλένης φαύλης τινὸς γυναικὸς καὶ ἀσκήμ. Ἀἰὲτα Artemii apud Metaphr. Oët. 20.

[N] My authority for this, is from L. Ellies du Pin's Nouv. Bibliotheque des Auteurs Ecclesiastiq. Tom II. under the article Constantin: note b. but I have not been able to find it in Eusebius.

[O] Qui natus dicitur ex Helena concubina. M. Aur. Cassiodori Chronicon, sub Diocletiano.

[P] Κωνσταντῖνος ἐξ ὁμιλίας γυναικὸς ἑ σκεμνῆς ἐδὲ κατὰ νόμον συνελθούσης Κωνσταντίου τῷ βασιλεῖ γεγεννημένος. Zosim. edit. Oxon. p. 78. . . . ἐξ ἀσκήμης μητρὸς γεγονότι. Id. p. 79.

[Q] Eccl. Hist. l. I. c. 8. . . . Constantinum filium ex concubina Helena.

[R] Constantinus ex obscuriore matrimonio ejus filius. Eutrop. l. x.

at the end of Amm. Marcellinus [S].

Next, That Britain was her own, as well as her son Constantine's native place, is, according to Mr. Camden (x), what all Historians who have written on that subject, except Cedrenus and Nicephorus, affirm with one voice. And, indeed, the constant Tradition among us hath always been, That Helen was the daughter of Coel II. king of this district [T]; who, first, revolted against the Romans, and afterwards became tributary to them: and that Constantius being sent here to reduce him to obedience, fell in love with his daughter Helen, and had by her his son Constantine, born before marriage; but, soon after the birth, he married her, and adopted him. This Tradition is preserved in the old British Memoirs, published, though in a very confused and imperfect manner, by Geoffrey of Monmouth. And it is followed not only by our ancientest English writers, but also by great numbers of Historians and other authors of various nations, and at different times, of whom no less than lxx. are cited by Michael Alford, alias Griffith, who hath professedly written on this subject [U].

What some modern Writers pretend to oppose to it, is grounded upon the authority of one obscure writer or two [W], who have asserted, That Constantine was born at Naissus in Dardania; or that Naissus, a town in Thrace, was his country [X]. But, those who are for fetching him from the East are far from agreeing about the true place of his nativity. For some fix it at Tharsus, or Tarsus near Nicomedia in Bithynia [Y]: others at a certain village in the same country, which he afterwards con-

(x) Camdeni Epistola, Edit, 1691. 4°. p. 64. &c.

[S] At the end of Valesius's and Gronovius's Edit, — Constantinus natus Helena matre vilissima.

[T] See above, p. 11. and Stillingfleet's Orig. Brit. p. 63.

[U] In a book intituled, Britannia Illustrata, sive Lucii, Helenæ, Constantini, Patria et Fides. Antwerp. 1641. 4°.

[W] Namely, the Author of the Excerpta, or Collections at the end of Ammianus Marcellinus, mentioned above, see note [T].—And Stephanus Byzantinus, or rather his abbreviator Hermolaus the Grammarian.—As for the first; H. Valesius who published them at the end of his edition of A. Marcellinus, calls them ancient Collections of an author unknown: (Præfat. ad Lectorem) but how ancient they were, he doth not tell us. They might not be above two or three hundred years old; and taken from late writers of no veracity.—With regard to Stephanus; what is published under his name, is only a sorry Abridgment, made by Hermolaus the grammarian, a man of little judgment; who retrenched a thousand good things, and soited in many interpolations of his own. (See Bayle's Dictionary, under the article STEPHANUS BYZANT.)

To them might also be added Constantinus Porphyrogenitus; but he lived in the 10th century, and therefore too long after the time.

[X] Hermolaus's words are Ναῖσος ὁρῶντος ἡσῖμα καὶ πατρὸς Κωνσταντίνου τῷ βασιλεῖ. Stephan. voce Ναῖσος. Constantinus Porphyrogenitus says also much the same, Ναῖσος ἡ πατρὸς τῷ μεγάλῳ Κωνσταντίνῳ. Themast. ix. lib. ii. p. 98. But it is a question, whether πατρὸς signifies always a native place; and not sometimes also, that a person is derived from thence by his father; or that his family was settled there. Vide Alford, ubi supra, p. 100.

[Y] For this, Julius Firmicus junior is quoted; (Mathes. l. i. c. 4.) and J. Lipsius lays a great stress upon his words, thinking them very conclusive. (Not. ad lib. iv. de Magnitud. Rom.) The words of Firmicus are, --- Dominus & Augustus noster, ac totius orbis Imperator, pius felix ac providus princeps, Constantinus scilicet maximus, Divi Constantini filius, . . . apud Tharsum genitus . . . &c. Edit. Basil. 1533. p. 14. But Mr. Camden hath shewn, that they are not

verted

verted into a city, and named Helenopolis [Z]: others at a town in Dacia [A]: others at Drepanum in Nicomedia [B]: others at Capharphacar near Edeffa [C]. So that our opposers are far from having in this case the Consent of Historians, much less of contemporary Historians; some of those here referred to having lived even a thousand years after Constantine's birth, and being writers of very slender reputation. And therefore what little stress ought to be laid upon their contradictory accounts, let any impartial person judge [D]. If indeed Eusebius, or some other credible contemporary Historian, had asserted in express terms, that Constantine was born at Naifus, or was not born in Britain, the point would be decided at once. But, as R. Gale Esq; observes (y), neither Eusebius, nor the rest of "the Ecclesiastical Historians, nor any other writer near that Emperor's time, give us the name of the town where he came into the world, either being ignorant of it, or thinking it no great honor to him."

However, we are not destitute of Arguments, drawn from contemporary writers, or such as lived a very little while after, to prove that Britain was his native country. For the author of a Panegyric spoken before Maximian and Constantine the Great, thus addresses himself to the latter. "He [i. e. Constantius, the father] freed Britain from slavery: and You have ennobled it by being born there [E]."

There is another passage in Eumenius's panegyric spoken before Constantine, which hath been used as an argument to prove that Britain was Constantine's native place; and it is comprised in the following words. "O fortunate Britain, and now happier than the rest of the Earth, which first saw Constantine Cæsar." And then he descants on the excellencies of this island in a very florid strain [F]. Some learned men (z) have suggested, that these words do not relate to Constantine's Birth, but to his being declared Cæsar. But if he was not declared Cæsar in Britain but in Gaul; as Archbishop Usher, Bishop Stillingfleet, and Justus Lipsius contend (a), then why does his contemporary Eumenius call Britain fortunate for what it had no share in? or with what propriety doth he celebrate its praises on that account? That is such an inconsistency as cannot easily be reconciled. But allowing Britain to have been the Emperor's native country, [as we are assured he was not declared Cæsar here] then the Panegyrist's words are pertinent, and not otherwise.

Another author, whose words serve to prove that Britain was the native place of Helen and her son, is Fl. Lucius Dexter, who lived about the end of the 4th century [G], and who says, That Constantine surnamed the Great, succeeded his father Constantius Chlorus, a°. 306, in the Empire, and in the Government of Spain, being the son of Helen, a chief woman of Britain [H].

Aldhelm, bishop of Sherborn in the VIIth century, affirms also, That Constantine was the son of Constantius, born in Britain of the concu-

(y) In a Letter to N. Salmon.

(a) Usher, de Britannic. Eccl. Primord. c. 8. Stillingfleet, Orig. Britann. p. 90. J. Lipsii Admiranda urbis Romæ, lib. iv. c. 11.

(z) J. Livineius notæ in Panegyric. J. Lipsius, Admiranda, &c. l. 4. c. 11.

to be understood of Constantine the Great, but of his son Constantius by Fausta Augusta. (Epist. p. 65.) And the MSS. have Naifus instead of Tharsus, where it seems this Constantius was born: (See Ap. Usher, de Primordiis Britan. Eccl. c. 8. and Alford, ubi supra, p. 37. 46. &c.) as was also Flav. Constantius, the famous General, who married Galla Placidia, sister to the Emperor Theodosius. (Olympiodor. apud Photium.) And from hence may have arisen the mistake among later writers. For the words Constantinus, Constantius, and Constans are often confounded in the Greek Historians. See Nicephor. Callistus, &c.

[Z] Procopius Cæsariensis, an author of the 6th century. Lib. v. de Edificiis Justiniani; (but see Dr. Cave's Hist. Literar. P. 1.) It is surprising that Mr. Dupin should run into the same error: (Bibliotheq. ubi supra.) For, the Historians who relate, that Constantine named that city Helenopolis, in honor of his mother, do not say that she was born there. See Socrates Schol. Eccl. Hist. l. i. c. 17. Sozomen, l. ii. c. 1. Alford, ubi supra, p. 139. Usher, ubi supra.

[A] Cedrenus, an historian in the XIth century; whose words are, Ἐγέννητο Κωνσταντῖνος πρὸς τῆς τῆς Δακίας πόλιν.—But as J. Lipsius observes, Quoties vanitatum manifestus ille auctor; De Magnit. Rom. l. iv. c. 11.

[B] Nicephorus Callistus, Eccl. Hist. l. vii. c. 17. a fabulous Historian in the XIVth century; full of visions, and other improbabilities: And therefore styled Fabularum architectus. Oïzel. Theaur. Numism. See Alford, ubi supra, p. 33. &c.

[C] Eutychii Annales. He was patriarch of Alexandria in the 9th century.

[D] Even J. Lipsius, that hath so warmly espoused the Opinion of those which affirm that Constantine was not born in Britain, is forced to give up these Historians. Fateor ingenuè in illo ævo, paucitate Scriptorum, aut incuria, aut etiam imperitia, tenebras & ambagines esse nulla unquam cura satis ad certum aut liquidum perducendas. (Not. ad libr. de Magnit. Romana sub finem.)

H

[E] Liberavit ille Britannias servitute: tu etiam nobiles illic Oriendo fecisti. That the word Orior signifies to be born, is plain from the best and purest Latin writers. And therefore, as Bp. Stillingfleet observes (Origines Britan. p. 90.) there is "no reason to decline the most natural and proper sense, viz. That he brought a great honour to Britain by being born in it."

[F] O fortunata, & nunc omnibus beatior terris Britannia, quæ Constantinum Cæsarem prima vidisti. Merito te omnibus cæli ac soli bonis Natura donavit; in qua nec rigor est nimius hyemis, nec ardor æstatis; in qua segetum tanta fecunditas, ut muneribus utriusque sufficiat & Cereris & Liberi, in qua nemora sine immanibus bestiis, terra sine serpentibus noxiis, contra pecorum mitium innumerabilis multitudo lacte distenta & onusta velleribus: certè quod propter vitam diligitur, longissimæ dies, & nullæ sine aliqua luce noctes, dum illa littorum extrema planities non attollit umbras, noctisque metam cæli & siderum transit aspectus: ut sol ipse, qui nobis videtur occidere, ibi appareat præterire. Di boni, quid hoc est quod semper ex aliquo supremo fine mundi nova Deum numina universo orbi colenda descendunt. Sic Mercurius a Nilo, cujus fluminis origo nescitur: sic Liber ab Indis prope consociis solis orientis, Deos se gentibus ostendere præsentis. Panegyric.—Bp. Stillingfleet, after mentioning this passage, observes thus upon it. "If this were Constantine's own country, this was done like an Orator; if not, to what purpose is all this? And then he parallels Britain with Egypt where Mercury was born; which shews that he spake of the place of his Nativity." The Bishop concludes his observations thus: "So that this one testimony of the Panegyrist weighs more with me than ten Cedrenus's or Nicephorus's, who say he was born in the East." Orig. Brit. p. 90.

[G] Vide Voss. de Histor. Lat. Edit 1651. p. 204.

[H] Ab anno 306. successerat in imperio, gubernationeque Hispaniæ, Constantio patri Constantinus filius cognomento Magnus, ex Helena foemina primaria Britannicæ—Chronic ad A. C. 311.

bine

bine Helen [I]. And the same is asserted by many other writers: who fix particularly his native place at Colchester [K].

But, notwithstanding all that can be said on this subject, Roger Gale Esq; in a letter to the Antiquarian Society [L], has thought fit to declare, That “it is very improbable that Constantine the Great was born in Britain. And his reasons are chiefly grounded upon a Chronological view of the time when he and his father Constantius Chlorus lived, which he thinks will set the matter in a true light. According to him, “Constantius Chlorus was born A. D. 250

 “Constantine the Great 272
 “Constantius Chlorus was sent to Bri- }
 “tain against Carausius, } 292
 “So that, says he, Constantine was twenty years “old when his Father came into Britain, and “consequently it is highly improbable that he “should be born there.”

To support this opinion, Mr. Gale says, That it is “without any authority some suppose, that Constantius came a soldier into Britain under Aurelian; for no Roman Historian whatever mentions Aurelian’s being there. And Vopiscus, who fully enumerates all his wars, mentions no such thing; by which ’tis evident that he never was employed there [M].”

But, in answer to this, let it be observed in the first place, That, to argue from the Silence of Historians, is only a Negative Argument, which is far from being conclusive.

Next, who are those Roman Historians to whom Mr. Gale pays so great a compliment, as to depend wholly upon their authority, whether Constantius came to Britain under Aurelian, or no? And we find, they are only those little trifling Historians, styled Historiæ Augustæ Scriptores, that may justly be suspected not to have related Half of what had happened within the period they treat of [N]; and who are read only because there are no better.

But even from them we learn, that Aurelian was very much employed in Gaul [O]; that he stopped the IncurSIONS of the Franks who ranged over that whole country, and utterly defeated them; on which account he is styled the Restorer of Gaul [P]. And being so near Britain, which was then also full of Troubles and Commotions; it is no way improbable, that he should either come over himself, or send some forces, and amongst them a person of such growing virtues as Constantius; who was great nephew of the Emperor Claudius [Q], of a warlike disposition, and adorned with many other shining qualities, that could not fail of distinguishing, and recommending him to the Emperor’s esteem.

Mr. Gale goes on thus, “Others suppose with as little foundation, that Constantius Chlorus was sent thither in the year 271. to pacify some disturbances, and that He then married Helena the daughter of Coel king of Britain. —The Roman history is entirely silent, about this time, for 17 years as to the Affairs of Britain. Which shews, that all things in that island were then quiet, or neglected by the Romans, which is the same thing to my argument.” But though the Roman History doth not mention Constantius his being early in Britain, and his marriage with Helena [R], yet as they tell us nothing of what passed in the Interval of 17 years mentioned by Mr. Gale, I can see no reason why we should not rather follow the account given, by the British authors, of this occurrence within that period of time; than leave such a chasm in our History, merely because other writers, who do not professedly treat of the affairs of Britain, but only mention them occasionally and in a very imperfect manner, say nothing of this marriage.

What Mr. Gale adds, [“Neither can it be imagined, that Aurelian would have sent a youth of 20 or 21 years of age to have pacified a tumultuous or rebellious Province, had there been occasion”] will not appear conclusive to any person, who remembers with pleasure the Trophies of the victorious Duke of Cumberland at Culloden, when he was but a very few years older.

But still Mr. Gale contends that Constantius “rather seems at that time to have been in the army of Probus one of Aurelian’s Generals. —But it does not appear that Probus was ever in Britain. On the contrary, as the scenes of his Actions lie in other parts of the world, it is much more probable that Constantius was fighting under his banners, than commanding an army, and pacifying Troubles in a disordered Province.”

This is more than can be proved, nay there are some circumstances which render it extremely probable that Probus was here. The

[I] In his treatise De laudibus virginitatis — His words are, Dum Constantinus, Constantii filius, in Britannia ex pellice Helena genitus, sceptris imperii potiretur, &c.

[K] Many of them equal in time to, if not ancients than, those who say he was born at Naifus.

[L] Entered in their Register, 7 July 1736.

[M] Colchester is very unfortunate, in having two such potent Adversaries as the most learned Dean Gale, and his learned son Roger Gale Esq; the former of whom would place Camulodunum any where but here: and the latter is for depriving Colchester of the Honour of having given Birth to Constantine the Great.

[N] What Vopiscus, or Tiberianus, says of Pollio, one of those writers, is but too applicable to all the rest. Pollio multa incuriose, multa breviter prodidit. Edit. Boxhorn 1632. 12°. p. 608. He also observes, Neminem Scriptorum quantum ad historiam pertinet, non aliquid mentitum. Ibid. & p. 607. 629. 669. 678. 684. 708. 716. — And what he says of his own account of Aurelian, deserves great notice. Multa ejus magna & præclara, tam facta quam dicta sunt:

sed omnia libro innectere nec possumus, fastidii evitacione, nec volumus: sed ad intelligendos mores atque virtutem, pauca libanda sunt. p. 629. He hints elsewhere, that he studied very great Brevity — Volumini quod brevissimum promisi — p. 708. See also p. 716.

[O] See Vopiscus, p. 612. 639. 642. 648.

[P] Ille Galliarum Restitutor. Ibid. p. 615.

[Q] Ex Crispi [Divi Claudii fratris] filia Claudiâ, et Eutropio nobilissimo gentis Dardanæ viro, Constantius Cæsar est genitus. (Trebel. Pollio. p. 599.) Constantius per filiam nepos Claudii traditur. (Eutrop. Hist. Rom. l. ix.)

[R] The Reader is to observe, That the Life of Constantius is not written separately by any one ancient Roman author; on which account most of his actions in the former part of his Life are buried in oblivion. For, he is not much taken notice of, or mentioned, till after he had been declared Cæsar. One Claudius Eusthenius writ his life, but what is become of it we know not. Flav. Vopiscus, p. 740.

Britans not only had a particular regard and affection for him, but they were very instrumental in his obtaining those many signal victories in Gaul; wherein he defeated in several battles the Franks, Vandals, and Burgundians that had invaded the Roman territories, slew 400,000 of them at different times, and took 70 of their towns. Moreover he planted many of those conquered Barbarians in Britain, which shews he had a perfect notion of the Island. And, as a reward for the Natives services, permitted them to plant vines, and to have wine to rejoice their hearts [S].

Mr. Gale would have it believed, that Probus was all his reign employed in places distant from Britain, by saying that "the scenes of his Actions lie in other parts of the world." But his exploits just now mentioned plainly shew that he was sufficiently employed in these parts of the world.

Moreover, let it be considered, That Constantius his chusing Britain for part of his Province, preferably to Italy, which comprehended Rome, the capital of the world; shews that he had a very particular affection for Britain.

To which add, That Constantine seems to have known very little of the Greek language, and therefore 'tis very improbable that it should be his mother-tongue; for when he spoke in public, it was always in Latin (b).

Upon the whole; The silence of Historians (especially of such Historians as have treated of this period) is no way conclusive: And, as it doth not make for me, so neither doth it make against me.

In order to pronounce with certainty, where Constantius was, or was not, in any part of his life, we should have a better Account of him than we have. For (undoubtedly to the Reader's astonishment) during the 56 years of his life we have only these few Particulars of him, recorded in credible Historians (c). That he reduced Spain; came into Britain; fought under the banners of Probus; was President of Dalmatia under Carus; came to reduce Carausius; was declared Cæsar in 292, and after that, being sent into Gaul, defeated above 60,000 of the Franks, who had invaded Batavia and the countries west of the Rhine; came again into Britain to reduce the Caledonians to obedience, and died at York 25 July, A. D. 306.

I shall conclude with observing, that whatever Inconsistencies or Anachronisms are pretended to be found in those writers which affirm that Constantine was born in Britain, and at Colchester; there are as great, if not greater, in those who affirm that he was born at Naïsus: Witness Nicephorus, &c.

The Reader will be pleased to remember, That I do not contend for these things tanquam pro aris & focus: but the Love and Respect I have for this Place, to which I owe a great part of my Happiness; and the due Regard I bear to Truth, have drawn these observations from me. And if they can satisfy the unprejudiced, or engage some learned and ingenious person in the further examination and clearing of this point, it will give me great satisfaction.

But to return:

The reigns of Claudius II. and Quintilius were so short, that nothing memorable happened under them.

L. Dom. Aurelian being chosen Emperor, [A. D. 270.] set himself immediately to bring the Empire under one head. Tetricus, one of the Thirty Tyrants, was then possessed of Britain and Gaul: But the Emperor's arms soon reduced him to obedience; and he was led in triumph, though permitted afterwards to enjoy his life, and some places of profit and honour (d). Constantius Chlorus was employed against him, or at least in Britain; which had then some share in the commotions wherewith the whole Empire was shaken, as hath been already shewn (e).

Bonofus, a notorious drunkard, who made himself Emperor about this time, was a Britan by birth. He endeavoured, jointly with Proculus, to seize Britain, Spain and part of Gaul; but being defeated near Agrippina [Cologne] he hanged himself. And it was said of him by way of joke, Here hangs a hoghead, not a man. Aurelian also used to say of him, That he was born, not to live, but to drink (f).

Probus (Emperor after Tacitus, who was Aurelian's immediate successor) gave the people of this Province, as well as the Gauls and Spaniards, leave to plant vines (g): which it must be supposed were unknown before, or at least very scarce, in this island—But they have not turned to so good account here as in the two other Provinces, which enjoy a kinder climate, and a warmer sun. One saying of his is memorable, That in a short time standing armies should not be wanted or necessary. Which declaration, together with his strictness to the soldiers, provoked them to murder that worthy Prince (h).

Carus who succeeded Probus, [A. D. 282.] gave the government of Britain, with Gaul, Italy, Illyricum, Spain, and Africa, to his eldest son Carinus; who by his riot and luxury very much wasted this Province. But he was shortly after defeated and slain by Dioclesian, [A. D. 284.] who was advanced to the Empire by the Eastern army; and adopted M. Aur. Maximianus surnamed Herculius, as his associate in the Empire (i).

In the beginning of this Emperor's reign, Carausius, an Irishman [T], who had, by his

(b) Euseb. vit. Constantini, passim.

(c) Chronic. Colcestr. Eutropius. Fl. Vopiscus. Aurel. Victor. Zosimus. Panegyrici.

(d) Trebellius Pollio, in Tetrico sen. p. 567, 568.

(e) Camden's Britannia, in the Introduct. col. xcii, xciii.

(f) Vopiscus in Bonoso, p. 698. 720, 721.

(g) Ibid. p. 699.

(h) Ibid. p. 700.

(i) Fl. Vopiscus in Caro, p. 728. & Carino. p. 738, 739. Aur. Victor de Cæsarib. c. 39.

[S] Fl. Vopiscus, in Probo passim. Vide præsertim, p. 692, 693, 694, 698, 699. And yet Vopiscus professes to give but a very concise account of this Emperor's actions, p. 614. In one place he intimates, as if most of them were forgotten, for want of writers. Probum principem cujus imperio Oriens, Occidens, Meridies, Septentrio omnesque orbis partes in totam securitatem redactæ sunt, Scriptorum inopia jam pæne nescimus. Occidit, pro pudor! tanti viri & talis historia, p. 678.—Quinquennio Imperii sui per totum Orbem terrarum tot bella gessit, p. 702.

[T] So O. Walker calls him. (Of coins and medals, p. 316.) Aurelius Victor (cap. 39.) styles him Manapia civis. Now Menapia, or Manapia according to Ptolemy, was not in the Low-countries but in Ireland; being the skill in navigation, and his courage and bravery, acquired great reputation was appointed governor of Bononia [Boulogne,] with a commission to secure the Belgic and Armoric shores [i. e. the narrow seas] against the Saxon and Frank [U] pirates. But, as he appropriated what he took to his own use; and did not restore it to the right owners, or send it into the Emperor's treasury; Maximian therefore gave orders to have him dispatched out of the way. But Carausius receiving intelligence of it, assumed the imperial dignity, and seized Britain (k). Thither he brought the fleet which he was entrusted with for the defence of Gaul, built more vessels after the Roman model, was joined by the Roman forces here, kept out foreign troops, pressed the merchants trading here into his service, garrisoned Bononia, and converted the revenues of Britain, and Batavia [Holland] to his own use. Moreover he engaged many of the neighbouring nations into his interest, particularly the Franks, whom he had trained up to the sea service [W]. Maximian surprised at his boldness, marched against him as far as Gaul. But finding him too well established, and having no conveniency to transport over his forces, he entered into treaty with him, and taking him his partner in the Empire, left him Britain for his share, which he was the fittest to defend against all invasions (l). He governed it about seven years, with great authority, and in perfect peace (m); repaired the Wall between the two Fyrths; and fortified it with seven castles (n).

In the mean time, the whole Roman Empire being full of revolts and commotions, Dioclesian and Maximian associated to themselves Fl. Valer. Constantius Chlorus, and Galerius Maximianus surnamed Armentarius, in the government, and declared them Cæsars. They made them also divorce their wives, and Constantius putting away Helena, married Theodora Maximian's daughter-in-law; as Galerius did Valeria daughter of Dioclesian (o).

Maximian, notwithstanding his treaty with Carausius, having still a great desire to get rid of his hated associate, sent Constantius with an army against him (p). He came with incredible speed to Bononia [X], which Carausius had strongly fortified, and invested that place. But while he was engaged in the siege, Carausius was treacherously killed by Allectus, his bosom friend and prime minister: who thereupon usurped the government, and held it three years (q): But was encountered and slain by Asclepiodotus, captain of the life guard (r); who also taking upon him the Imperial dignity, was afterwards slain in battle.

I have dwelt the longer upon Carausius, because he seems to have been much conversant about Colchester, many of his Coins being found in and about this place. See Dr. Stukeley's History.

Dioclesian and Maximian resigning the Empire both on the same day, [A. D. 304.] though in different places, (a most uncommon and memorable event!) were succeeded by the two Cæsars above-mentioned, F. Constantius Chlorus, and Galerius M. Armentarius. They divided the Empire between them, and Constantius had to his share the Western Provinces, namely Italy, Africa, Spain, Gaul, and Britain: But he yielded the two first to Galerius, and contented himself with Spain, Gaul, and Britain (s). He spent some time in Britain, more time it seems than our trifling and superficial Historians either knew, or have thought fit to transmit to posterity [Y]. And he was employed in an expedition against the Caledonians, when he was seized with his last illness at York. His son, who had been for a considerable time kept by Galerius as an hostage or kind of prisoner [Z]; escaping by a stratagem, and killing all the post-horses he used in his journey, to prevent being pursued (t), came to his father just as he was sailing from Gesforiacum to Britain, according to some (u); or, according to others (w), as he lay on his death-bed at York, and was by him declared Cæsar, or appointed his successor. Constantius died A. D. 206, July 25, in the 56 year of his age.

(k) Aur. Victor de Cæsarib. & Epitom. c. 39. Eutropius, l. ix.

(m) Eutropius, l. ix.

(l) Aur. Victor de Cæsarib. c. 39. Eutropius, l. ix.

(s) Eutropius, l. x. sub init.

(w) Eusebius vit. Constant. l. i. c. 18. 21. Eutropius, l. x.

(l) Eumenius Paneg. Aur. Victor de Cæsarib. c.

(o) Eutrop. l. ix.

(p) Bedæ Hist.

(r) Eumenius Paneg. Eutrop. l. ix.

(u) Eumenius in Panegy. Zosim. l. 2.

same place as is now called Wexford; the capital of the ancient Menapii; derived, according to Mr. Camden (Britan. Vol. II. col. 1359.) from the ancient Menapii in the Low-countrys near the Maese, now part of Flanders, Brabant, &c. Eutropius says, Carausius was vilissime natus, but does not name the place or countrey. Lib. ix.

[U] The ancient Franks, or Franci, were seated along the Rhine, from the Meine to the Lippe. But Tiberius transplanted them from thence into Gaul; about Picardy, Normandy, &c. — The Saxons were then spread as far as what is now part of Flanders and Holland.

[W] He also drew the Picts into an alliance with him; to whom, as being lately come out of Scythia, he gave Albania [part of North-Britain, or Scotland,] to inhabit. And it is indeed observable, that about this time the Picts are found to be first mentioned by Eumenius, in his panegyrick to the Emperor Maximian. See G. Monm. l. v. c. 3. and J. Tyrrell's Hist. of Engl. Vol. I. p. 83.

[X] Now called Boulogne.

[Y] Καὶ τὴν Βρυτανίαν συνεχίζοντες ἐνδημῶντες. Zosimus, l. ii. p. 78. Edit. Oxon. Suidas also says the same, voce Καὶ τὴν Βρυτανίαν.

[Z] The reason of his confinement was, the Emperor's jealousy of him on account of his distinguished merit and growing virtues; and his having too openly expressed his resentment, because he was not declared Cæsar at the same time with Severus and Maximinus. Galerius Maximianus, therefore, sensible of his ambition, and afraid of his enterprising genius, kept him as an hostage, or a kind of prisoner. And exposed him not only to all the dangers of war, particularly against the Sarmatians, whom he entirely defeated; but also obliged him to combat with wild beasts, in hopes of destroying him. In all these, Constantine acquitted himself with the greatest bravery and success; and in one of the latter killed a fierce lion let loose against him: which glorious action is represented on a Medal of his; upon the reverse of which is represented Hercules fighting the monster, with an inscription denoting the Emperor Constantine's valour, VIRTUS PERPETVA AVG. R. Gale's letter, as above. Aur. Victor de Cæsaribus, c. 40. Euseb. Constantin. l. i. c. 20. Excerpta de Constant. &c.

Imme-

Immediately after this excellent Emperor's decease, his eldest son Flav. Valer. Constantine, just now mentioned, (surnamed the Great) was saluted Emperor by the army; but he did not accept that high dignity till it was actually conferred upon him by Maximian (x). However, as soon as he was invested with it, he prosecuted those wars against the Picts and other Caledonians, which his father had begun. Being resolved to leave all quiet in this island before he left it, he penetrated even to the furthest parts of the same: and conquered some by force, others he won with money and civil and kind offices. Then crossing the sea, he conquered the Franks in Batavia [Holland] and other German nations, that were endeavouring to withdraw themselves from the Romans obedience. Not long after, [A. D. 310.] he returned into Britain (y), to appease some commotions raised by one Octavius, who had endeavoured to make himself master of this country (z).

In the mean time, Maxentius, son of M. Aur. Maximianus Herculus above-mentioned, having laid claim to the Empire, at Rome; Constantine drew a very large army out of Britain, Gaul, and Germany, amounting to 90,000 foot and 8000 horse, and marched into Italy [A. D. 311.] against Maxentius, whom he totally defeated (a). Constantine's drawing such large forces out of Britain, proved of pernicious consequence to this country; as will presently be shewn. Prodigious quantities of this Emperor's coins are daily found in and about this town; which is a proof of his having been much in these parts.

One very great Alteration he made in the government of the whole Empire, which we must here explain; because this town and country were included in that new regulation. He divided the Roman Empire into Four Præfectures; viz Italy, Gaul, Illyricum, and the East; which, as to civil affairs, contained under them fourteen large Dioceses or Provinces. Britain, one of the fourteen, was subject to the Præfect [A] of Gaul, and governed by a Vicar, or deputy; the first of which was Pacatianus. Under him were two Consular deputies, answerable to the number of the Provinces (Britannia prima, & secunda;) and three Presidents, who were to determine all causes criminal and civil.

As for the Military Government, there were in the Empire two Generalissimo's [B], one for the East, and the other for the West. Britain was under the Generalissimo of the West; and to him were subject, the Count of Britain, the Count of the Saxon shore throughout Britain, and the Duke of Britain. The Count of Britain took care of the inland parts of the island; and had the command of seven companies of foot, [about 3000 in number] and nine troops of horse, [about 600.] The Count of the Saxon shore, who was to guard the Eastern and Southern coasts from the Saxon piracies [C], had under him seven companies of foot [about 2200] two troops of horse, [about 200] the second legion, and a cohort. The Duke of Britain, who was to defend the borders or marches against the Caledonians, Picts, Scots, &c. had the command of thirty eight garrisons consisting in all of Fourteen thousand foot, and Nine hundred horse. So that the standing Roman forces in Britain were, Nineteen thousand Two hundred foot, and about Seventeen hundred horse (b).

There were besides, in this establishment, many other officers; as the Count of the Imperial Largesses [D], who distributed the Emperor's gifts, or largesses; and had under him here, a receiver-general [E]; a Treasurer [F]; an overseer of the Gynesium, i. e. of the place where the cloaths of the Emperor and Army were woven [G]. Here was also a Keeper of the privy purse [H], who had under him a private Auditor [I]. And the Vicar's court swarmed with Officers, too tedious to be mentioned in this place [K], who pilled, and enriched themselves at the expence of, the Province.

Besides this regulation, Constantine altered the former Division of Britain. We have seen that the Emperor Severus divided it into two Provinces. But Constantine divided it into Four; viz. Britannia Prima, bounded by the Thames, the Severn, and the British Channel: Britannia Secunda, being what is now called Wales: Flavia Caesariensis, the midland parts of the isle, wherein lay Colonia-Camulodunum [Colchester:] Maxima Caesariensis, all the Northern parts as far as Severus's wall. To which Theodosius, General under the Emperor Valens, added a fifth Province, and called it Valentia, comprehending the country between Severus's wall, and Lollius Urbicus's rampart (c).

I should have observed before, to Constantine's immortal honour, that he was the first Roman Emperor, who made public profession of the Christian religion, and protected and encouraged it by wholesom Laws. His father Constantius had secretly favoured the Christians, and stopped the persecution against them. But Constantine declared himself their protector; and, jointly with Licinius, published an edict in their favour, at Milan, in the year 313 (d).

The Christian Religion had been planted in this island, even in the Apostolical times, and very probably by St. Paul, as hath been proved (x) Anonymi Panegyri. I.—quum tibi pater imperium reliquisset, Cæsaris tamen appellatione contentus, expectare malueris, ut idem te qui illum declarat Augustum. (y) Euseb. vit. Constant. l. i. c. 25. Edit. Valesii. (z) G. Monm. l. v. c. 8. (a) Zosim. l. ii. c. 25. τὸς ἀπὸ τῆς Βρετανίας συνειλεγμένους. (b) Notitia Imperii Occident. Pancirolli. (c) Camden's Britan. in the Introduc. (d) Eusebii Hist. Eccl. l. x. c. 5. Lactant.

[A] Præfectus Prætorio.
[B] Magistri peditum.
[C] Comes littoris or limitis Saxonici per Britanniam.
[D] Comes sacrarum largitionum.
[E] Rationalis summarum Britanniarum.

[F] Præpositus Thesaurorum Augustensium.
[G] Procuratores Gynesienses, or Gynegii.
[H] Comes rerum privatarum.
[I] Rationalis rei privatæ.
[K] See Notitia Imperii Occidentalis, Pancirolli.

by Archbishop Usher (e), and Bishop Stillingfleet (f). However, it seems not to have taken much root here, since K. Lucius, a petty Prince, whose dominions are supposed to lye in Britannia prima, between the Thames and the Channel [L], sent Elvan and Medwin to Eleutherius bishop of Rome, A. D. 167, desiring him to send over some persons to instruct him in the Christian religion (g). Eleutherius sent him accordingly Damian, Fagan, and Aaron, who instructed him in Christianity, and baptized him, with as many as would embrace that holy religion (h). Lucius founded St. Peter's Church in Cornhill, and made it an Archiepiscopal see; of which Thean, or Theon, was the first Archbishop: Who had for his successors, before the Saxons arrival, Elvan; Cadar, or Cadoc; Obin, or Owin; Conan; Palud, or Palladius; Iltut; Dedwin, or Theodwin; Thedred, or Theodred; Hilary; Gwythelin, or Guidelin (i).

Bishops and Archbishops sees were also, in process of time, fixed in xxvii other considerable cities, which were then in Britain; among which was Cair-colon [Colchester] (k). But the names of the Bishops that presided over this town are not recorded; nor any of them mentioned any where till the year 314; when three British Bishops were at the council of Arles, viz. Eborius of York, Restitutius of London, and Adelfius of the city Colon [M]. Some British Bishops were also at the council of Sardica in 347 and at the council of Arminum in 359; and, among the rest, unquestionably, the Bishops of this city (l).

Thus Christianity flourished in this City and neighbourhood for many years, as we have reason to presume; especially under the auspicious reigns of Constantius, and Constantine the Great, and through the favour and encouragement of the most pious Helena [N], who undoubtedly shewed a tender regard to this her native place, and built St. Helen's Chapel (m). But the barbarous and beatbenish Saxons, who became early possessed of these parts, banished Christianity from hence for a while; as I shall shew under the next section.

Another remarkable event in the life of Constantine, was, His removing the seat of the Empire from Rome to Byzantium, [A. D. 330.] called from him Constantinople. This proved pernicious not only to Rome, to Italy, and to all these Western parts, but to Britain itself. For he wanting very large armies, to oppose the Persians who threatened the Eastern parts of the Empire, not only drew away the Legions out of the Frontier-garrisons here, building forts and castles to supply the want of them; but also carried away such prodigious numbers of the choicest and best of the Britans, to serve in his armies, as left this island weak and defenceless, and a prey both to the Pict and Scot plunderers, and moreover to the Saxon pirates (n).

Constantine, after having arrived to the age of 66, died at Achyron near Nicomedia (o), May 22, a. d. 337. A. U. C. 1089. And was consecrated after his decease [O].

We are too much interested in Helena, to let her pass without giving a further account of her. She was the beautifullest woman in the country, extremely well skilled in music, and adorned with all other, acquired as well as natural, accomplishments. Her father, having no other child, had caused her to be educated in such a manner as might best fit her to govern (p). Withal she was a woman of uncommon charity and piety; and had been converted to Christianity by her son (q), who committed the oversight of the several churches he was building to her care; wherein she acquitted herself in the most laudable manner (r). Having a very great desire to visit the place where our Saviour had suffered, she made a voyage to Jerusalem, tho' she was near fourscore. In her journey, she dispensed very considerable gifts and benefactions to many persons, towns, and societies (s). Finding that the Heathens (offended at the superstitious veneration paid to the place of Jesus Christ's burial) had covered the tomb with a great quantity of earth, and erected over it a Temple consecrated to Venus (t); she ordered that Temple to be pulled down, and the earth to be removed, in order to build there a magnificent Church (u). While the workmen were preparing the place for the foundation, they discovered, on the 3d of May, 319, three Crosses, whereon Jesus Christ and the two thieves had been crucified. Helena, overjoyed at the finding of so great a treasure, sent part of the Cross of Christ to her son as a most valuable present, and left the rest at Jerusalem (w). This occurrence, or invention, is what hath raised the reputation of St. Helen so high, and rendered her so extremely venerable among the worshippers of the cross: And for this very reason it is, that the Arms of Colchester, her native place, are a Cross between three crowns, or coronets. However, this pious Princess died at Rome, in her son's arms, 18 Aug. a^o 327 (x).

(e) De Britannicarum Ecclesiarum primordiis, Præfat. & Cap. 1. &c.

(g) Usher de Primord. c. 4.

Stillingsfleet's Origines Britannicæ, p. 346.

Briton. c. 65.

(l) Sulpitius Severus, l. ii.

cratis Hist. Eccl. l. i. c. 16.

vit. Constant. l. iii. c. 47.

c. 44.

ibid. c. 47.

(o) Aurel. Victor, de Cæsar. c. 41.

(r) Theodoret Hist. Eccl. l. i. c. 18.

(s) Euseb. vit. Const.

(t) Ibid. c. 26, 27.

(u) Socratis Hist. Eccles. lib. i. c. 17.

(x) Theophan. Pagi. n. 91.

(f) Origines Britannicæ, Chap. i. p. 35.

(h) Idem, ibid. Rad. Niger, ad a. m. 5358.

(i) Usher, c. 5. and Bp. Stillingsfleet's Orig. Brit. p. 78.

(m) Chron. Colcestr.

(n) G. Monm. l. v. c. 9.

(q) Euseb.

(s) Vit. Constant. l. iii.

(w) Euseb.

[L] Supposed to be a successor of Cogidunus. For the Romans thought it no ill policy in some cases to continue the same Royal dignity to the children of those who deserved well of them as Cogidunus had done. Stillingsfleet, ibid. p. 63. See Usher, c. 3.

[M] Adelfius Episcopus de civitate Colonia Londinensium. Sirmondi Edit. Concil. Gallie. Tom. I. Paris 1629. p. 9. See Usher de Primord. c. 8. Bishop Stillingsfleet conjectures,

That, instead of Colonia Londinensium, we should read Col. Leg. ii. i. e. Caer-Leon. But it is only a conjecture, without proof. Orig. Brit. p. 76.

[N] Venerabilis & Piissima Augusta; as she is called in old Inscriptions. See Camden Britan. in the Introd. col. xciii.

[O] Atque inter divos meruit referri. Eutrop. l. x.

In order just to continue the thread of the History, I shall go on, in the remainder of this section, to give a brief Account of the Decline of the Roman Affairs in this Island, and of the several Ravages the poor Inhabitants were continually exposed to; wherein these Parts had but too great a share.

Constantine left three Sons; Constantine junior, Constans, and Constantius; who divided the Empire between themselves, according to their father's direction. The first had all on this side the Alps, namely Spain, Gaul, and Britain: The second, Rome, Italy, Afric, Illyricum, Macedonia, Peloponnesus, and Greece: The third, Asia, and the East. Annibalianus Delmatius, nephew of Constantine the Great, had Armenia and the neighbouring Provinces (y). Delmatius was slain, some time after, by his soldiers (z). Constantine, not satisfied with his share, seized on part of Italy, but was defeated and slain by Constans's army near Aquileia; [A. D. 340.] (a). Whereupon Constans, exalted with his victory, possessed himself of Britain, and Constantine's other Provinces; and came hither with his brother Constantius, in the midst of winter, [A. D. 343.] to quiet some commotions of the Scots and Picts (b). But Constans giving up himself wholly to his pleasures, particularly to hunting, so disgusted his subjects, that some of them conspired against him; and Magnentius, commander of the Joviani and Herculiani, assumed the imperial Dignity. Constans, hearing of it, endeavoured to consult for his safety by flight; but was overtaken and slain at a town called Helena, near the Pyrenees (c).

Thereupon Britain declared for Magnentius, whose father was a native of this isle, though an inhabitant of Gaul; but Constantius defeated him in a bloody battle in Pannonia: and afterwards pressed him so close, that he murdered himself at Lugdunum [A. D. 353.] after a short reign of three years and a half (d). Many fair Coins of his are frequently found about this town.

At this time Gratian, surnamed Funarius, was General of the Forces throughout Britain; but having countenanced Magnentius, he was recalled, and punished with a severe confiscation. Constantius, now without a rival, and in whose time a whisper was a crime, acted in the same rigorous manner towards all those in Britain that had espoused Magnentius's party. His detested instrument was one Paul, a notary, and a sordid flatterer; who committed numberless extortions and cruelties (e).

In the mean time, this country being miserably harrassed with the incursions of the Picts and Scots [P], Lupicinus, master of the armory, a warlike man, and an expert soldier, was ordered with forces to Britain; who accordingly repaired, in the midst of winter, to London, in order to concert proper measures for the security of the Province (f).

In Julian's time, Alypius was Vicar of Britain, which is all we know of him (g).

In the reign of Valentinian I. [A. D. 364.] the whole world being full of wars and tumults, Britain was also infested with the continual incursions of the Picts, and Saxons, Scots and Attacots (h). And, by confederacies among them, this country was reduced to extreme misery. For, Neftaridus Count of the Saxon shore was slain; and Fullofaudes the General surprised and destroyed (i). In this exigency and distress, Theodosius, eminent for his valour and good fortune, was dispatched hither [A. D. 368.] He landed at Rutupia [Richborough] with a brave army, and marched directly to London. The Picts, then divided into the Dicaledonæ [or Deucaledonii] and the Vecturiones; the Attacotti [Q] and the Scots, ranged over the whole country for spoil and plunder. At the same time, the Franks and Saxons were perpetually pirating, and committing depredations on our coasts. Theodosius having therefore divided his army into several bodies, fell upon the enemies, which were roving up and down laden with spoil. Soon were they routed, and forced to leave their booty behind, consisting of cattle and prisoners they had taken from the Roman subjects. After he had restored the booty to the respective owners, saving only some small part to refresh his army; he entered London in a kind of triumph, which, though in the utmost distress before that time, revived in hopes of future safety and protection. This success spurred him on to greater designs; yet he cautiously considered, that so large and mixt a multitude as the Enemy, composed of various and very fierce nations, was not to be routed but by stratagem and surprise. Having therefore published an Act of indemnity, he ordered all deserters, and others dispersed up and down the country for provisions, to repair to him. This brought in many; upon the strength of which reinforcement he thought to take the field, but deferred it upon several accounts, till Civilis was come, whom he had desired to be sent over as Deputy-Præfect of Britain; and also Dulcitius a gallant and experienced Captain (k). Then having with uncommon diligence, gathered together a good army, he marched out of London, and took in all such places as could favour him in cutting off the enemy by ambuscades. Defeating by these means several rapacious clans, who presuming upon security, had the insolence to invade the Roman territories, he laid the foundation of a lasting peace: rebuilding and repairing the Cities, Castles, and Garrisons, which had been exceedingly damaged (This, we may suppose, among the rest) and strengthening the frontiers with watch-towers and intrenchments. After

(y) Aur. Victoris Epitome, c. 41. Zosim. l. ii.

(b) Libanius, & J. Firmicus. See Stillington Orig. Brit. p. 287.

c. 41. (d) Ibid.

l. xxix. c. 1.

(b) Idem, l. xxvi. c. 4.

(e) Ammian. Marcellinus, l. xiv. c. 5. l. xxii. c. 4.

(i) Idem, l. xxvii. c. 8.

(z) Ibid.

(a) Aur. Victor. ibid. ii. Eutropius, l. x.

(c) Zosim. l. ii. Eutrop. l. x. Aur. Victor. Epit.

(f) Idem, l. xx. c. 1.

(g) Idem,

(k) Idem, l. xxvii. c. 8.

[P] Ammianus Marcellinus, from whom we have these particulars, is the first Roman Author, who mentions the Scots. See J. Tyrrell's Hist. of England, Vol. I. p. 91.

[Q] The Attacotti were the wild Britons, the Highlanders. See Bp. Stillington's Orig. Brit. p. 287.

these and the like excellent regulations, he was sent for to court, and left the Provinces here in a joyful and flourishing condition, A. D. 369 (l).

Valentinian I. died in 374. His son and successor Gratian, who shared the Western Empire with his brother Valentinian II, did, in the 5th year of his reign, give the Empire of the East to Theodosius, son of the brave General lately mentioned. But Magnus Maximus, descended from Constantine the Great, and according to some [R], born in Britain, commander of the Roman forces here, thinking himself more worthy of that honour than Theodosius, resolved to assume the title of Emperor (m). He defeated first the Picts and Scots, who were making continual inroads into these Provinces. And having either put it out of their power to continue their ravages, or sown division between them; He embarked for Gaul, carrying with him a very large Army, which never returned: Whereby Britain was robbed of her military forces, of her rulers, and of her numerous youth; and, thus drained of all that could bear arms, became afterwards an easier prey to her rapacious Invaders (n). Maximus with his forces went and fixed his court at Treves; spread one of his wings into Italy, the other as far as Spain; and, with the terror of his name, brought under subjection the yet-unconquered Germans (o). Gratian advanced against this usurper; but, after several skirmishes, being deserted by his own soldiers, he was assassinated by the procurement of Maximus: who having also dethroned Valentinian II. was himself vanquished, and beheaded by Theodosius, A. D. 387. The latter restored Valentinian, but he was soon after murdered by Arbogastes (p).

After the death of Theodosius I, [A. D. 395.] the Empire was divided between his two sons. Arcadius was made Emperor of the East, and Honorius of the West. As the latter was but ten years old, the famous Fl. Stilico was Regent during his minority. His first care was to send Victorinus, a man of a fierce temper, with a Legion into Britain to awe the Northern invaders (q). He killed great numbers of them, and drove the rest out of the Roman Provinces; and so delivered the inhabitants from spoil and captivity (r).

But, shortly after [viz. A. D. 403.] the Roman Empire being hard pressed on all sides, and Alaric King of the Goths threatening even Rome itself; the Roman forces were drawn from the extremities, to save that capital, the heart of the Empire. Among the rest, Victorinus was recalled with the Legions: Whereupon the barbarous Picts and Scots entered the Roman Provinces, and committed terrible devastations every where (s).

The Britans finding themselves thus harrassed by their rapacious neighbours, and despairing of any assistance from Rome, resolved to elect an Emperor of their own [A. D. 407.]; and, for that purpose, pitched upon an Officer of great credit among them, called Marcus (t): But not having the good fortune to be generally liked, he is quickly slain or dethroned; and another, called Gratian, a countryman of theirs, was chosen in his room. Being a man of a cruel and bloody disposition, he meets, four months after his election, with the same fate as Marcus (u).

Constantine, a common soldier, was next raised to the Imperial Dignity, purely for the sake of his name, which was thought to carry a good omen. He being a man of courage, and of a genius far above his former condition, beat back the northern people into their country, and then concluded a peace with them. This success inspiring him with a higher conceit of his merit and fortune, he was not content to reign in Britain, but formed the design of becoming master of the whole Empire. To that end, passing over into Gaul, with the remains of the British army as well natives as Romans, he sends word of his election to Honorius; who being then hard pressed by the Goths, was forced to own him for his associate in the Empire. Constantine fixed his residence at Arles, which he named Constantina, and made it his capital. But, soon after, his Ambition admitting of no bounds, he formed the project of becoming master of the whole Roman Empire, and marched towards Italy to dethrone Honorius. But being taken, he was sent to the Emperor, and beheaded (w).

The Britans thus left to themselves, and destitute of the Romans assistance, forthwith took arms; and resolving to stand on their own defence, renounced all further obedience to the Roman Empire; which they believed they might justly do, as it could no longer afford them any protection [S]. And they beginning to be a Burden to the Emperor Honorius, that he might free himself at once from their future importunities, he voluntarily resigned the Sovereignty of the Island, and discharged the inhabitants from their Allegiance to the Empire (x), A. D. 410.

But soon did the distressed Britans feel the great want of the Romans protection. For, the Picts and Scots, encouraged by their absence, renewed their ravages and incursions with greater fury than ever. Upon which the Britans sent to implore the Romans assistance, with promise of perpetual Submission and Allegiance to the Empire. Accordingly, a Legion was dispatched hither, which slew great numbers of the rapacious enemies, and obliged the rest to fly with precipitation into their mountains.

(l) Idem. l. xxviii c. 3. (m) Zosim. l. iv. (n) Gildas, Hist. §. 11. (o) Ibid. §. 10. (p) Zosim. l. iv. Bede, Ecc. Hist. l. i. c. 9. (q) Gildas ubi supra. §. 12. (r) Zosim. l. iv. Bede, l. i. c. 12. (s) Gildas, §. 13. Paulus Diacon. l. xiv. (t) Zosim. l. vi. (u) Gildas, §. 13. Bede, l. i. c. 11. G. Monum. l. ii. c. 4. Oros. l. vii. c. 40. (w) Zosim. l. v. & vi. Olympiodorus. Bede, l. i. c. 11. (x) Zosim. l. vi.

[R] Germen suæ plantationis, Gildas, ib. §. 10.

[S] All the country of Armorica, (wherein the forces transported from Britain by Maximus had seated themselves) and the other Provinces of Gaul, followed their example, and resumed their freedom; casting out the Roman Governors, and forming themselves into such Governments as they best liked. Zosim. l. vi. p. 376.

However, upon the Legion's departure, they repeated again their devastations; which obliged the Britans to send Embassadors, with clothes rent and sand upon their bare heads, to beg assistance once more of their old protectors the Romans (y). This was about the beginning of Valentinian the III'd's reign; when the Roman affairs being somewhat restored by the victories of the famous Aëtius over the Wisigoths and Burgundians, this General, out of pity for the wretched condition of the Britans, sent them one Legion commanded by Gallio of Ravenna, or, as some say, by Maximian (z). This aid arriving unexpectedly in autumn, made great slaughter among the enemy (a), and drove the rest beyond the Walls. But the Romans not being able to stay, plainly told the Britans, That they could not any more undertake such laborious Expeditions for their defence: And advised them to inure themselves to arms, and to fight for their country, estates, wives, children, and liberties; and boldly encounter their enemies, who could not overcome them, unless they gave themselves up to cowardice and laziness. They also exhort them to repair the Wall of Severus with stone; and assist them in that work with all diligence, making it eight feet thick and twelve high. Moreover, they build Towers on the Southern coast, at proper distances, to hinder the enemies landing. Then leaving the inhabitants patterns how to make their weapons; and using proper encouragements, to spirit up that lazy people, they took their last farewell of Britain (b) [T]. This was in the year of Christ 434, and 489 years from Julius Cæsar's first landing in this island, or 391 from the more absolute Conquest of it by Claudius.

§. 2. State of Colchester under the Saxons.

UPON the final departure of the Roman forces from this island, the condition of the Inhabitants of that part now called England, became much worse than ever. The Picts, Scots, and other Barbarians [U], then without controul ranged over every part. They possessed themselves not only of all the North, but extended their ravages throughout every corner of the kingdom. So that, by continual devastations and troubles, the miserable Britans were brought into such horrible distress, that they were starved, or forced to rob one another for present subsistence (c). This Famine obliged even the hungry Picts and Scots to leave this country quiet for a while. And during that respite, through the natural Goodness of the British soil, there ensued such an agreeable Plenty of all things, as was never remembered in any Age before (d). In which quiet interval, the Britans formed themselves into several Governments, and elected Kings of their own; [though, for want of memoirs, we know the names only of very few (e); and to which of them this part of the Island was subject, cannot be determined.] But, instead of making a thankful and proper use of their present Happiness and Prosperity, the inhabitants of South-Britain grew vicious, and ran into all manner of Luxury and Extravagance (f); too common a failing in human Nature, and in this Nation in particular. As a just Punishment for which, a dreadful Plague raged amongst them, and swept off such numbers that the living could scarce be sufficient to bury the dead. At the same time, their old Invaders were preparing to renew their incursions; whereupon they had recourse once more to the Romans for assistance (g). But Attila having entered the Empire with a most formidable army, the Britans most moving entreaties could not be regarded. Being thus left without refuge, they followed the same method as their ancestors were wont to do in times of common danger; that is, they elected a Monarch [W]. But the Discord that reigned among the principal members of the State, prevented the good effects of this choice. For, several great men having fortified themselves in divers parts, acted like Sovereigns. All these petty Tyrants, jealous of one another, far from owning the Monarch elect, sought only to destroy him, in order to be chosen in his room. Thus the Britans, whilst they endeavoured to unite themselves under one Head, were plunged the deeper into anarchy and confusion.

We know not the names of these Monarchs till Vortigern, Count or King of the Dunmonii, elected in the year 445 [X]. He was by no means qualified to restore the affairs of the Britans: For, as he attained to the supreme Dignity by artifice and cabal, and by the murder of his predecessor Constans (b), he wholly bent his thoughts to maintain himself in the throne by the same wicked methods, regardless of the general welfare of his subjects. Living thus in equal Dread of the enemies of the State, and of his own Subjects, he devised an Expedient to free himself, as he imagined, from the Danger of the one, and the Plots of the other. That was, to call in the Saxons; instead of permitting the Picts to come and possess again South-Britain, to which they had a better title than any other Nation, as their ancestors had been unjustly dispossessed of the same by the Romans.

However, as Vortigern could not put his design in practice without the consent of the Bri-

(y) Gildas, § 12. Bedæ, l. i. c. 12. (z) Usher de Primord. c. 15. (a) Gildas, § 14. Bedæ, ibid. (b) Gildas, and Bedæ, ibid. G. Monm. l. vi. c. 2. (c) Gildas, ibid. § 15, 16. Bedæ, l. i. c. 12. (d) Gildas, § 19. Bedæ, c. 14. (e) Vide Epistol. Gildæ. (f) Gildæ Hist. & Bedæ, ibid. (g) Gildæ Hist. § 17. 20, 21. Bedæ, c. 13, 14. G. Monm. l. vi. c. 3. (h) G. Monm. l. vi. c. 7, 8, 9. Will. Malmesb. l. i. c. 1.

[T] Spoliata Britannia auro argentoque cum ære, & omni præciosa veste, & melle, cum magno triumpho revertantur. Nenn. c. 2.

[U] Tetri Scotorum Pictorumque greges, moribus ex parte dissidentes, & una eademque sanguinis fundendi aviditate concordes, furciferosque magis vultus pilis, quam corporum puðenda, pudendis proxima, vestibus tegentes. Gildas, Hist. § 15.

[W] See above, Book i. p. 17. col. 2.

[X] Gildas calls him Gurthrigern. (Hist. § 23.) and Nennius Gorthigern, Guorthigirn, and Vortigirn. c. 28. 36, 37. He was a Christian.

tans, he summons a general Assembly; and, after describing the extreme Misery of the Nation, occasioned by the Enemies repeated Devastations, he proposes the calling in the warlike Saxons to their assistance; by whose means they would soon be in a condition, not only to resist, but also to attack in their turn, their cruel and constant oppressors (i).

This Proposal being approved of, it was agreed, after some debates, That the Saxons should have the isle of Thanet in Kent, as a proper place to land their forces, and also convenient whenever they might want to return into their country: And that the Saxon soldiers should be allowed pay, as settled by agreement on both sides.

Thereupon Embassadors are sent [A. D. 449.] to Witigifil, General of the Saxons, who were then in possession of what is now called Holland. After hearing the cause of their coming, Witigifil assured them, That the Saxons would stand by the British nation in their pressing necessities. Accordingly a supply of 9000 men was granted for that service, on the conditions above-mentioned. But the Saxons not thinking fit to send over at once so considerable a body of troops, to a country they had but an imperfect knowledge of; therefore, under pretence that they were not all ready, they shipped off only a part of them, on board three kiules, or long boats, with their commanders Hengist and Horfa, sons of Witigifil (k). The nature of those vessels shews, the men could not be above 1000 in number. They arrived at Ebbsfleet in the isle of Thanet; where Vortigern stood ready on the shore, and received them with all demonstrations of joy and respect imaginable, putting them in immediate possession of the island according to agreement. After they had refreshed themselves, Vortigern led them against the Picts and Scots, that were advanced as far as the place now called Stanford in Lincolnshire, and whom they utterly routed (l). They constantly defeated them afterwards in several encounters (m): So that the enemies being discouraged by these frequent defeats, abandoned their conquests by degrees, and retired into their own country; dreading nothing so much as meeting with the Saxons.

Vortigern overjoyed to see his projects thus far happily succeed; in order the more effectually to engage Hengist and Horfa to support him in his power, presents them with some lands in Lincolnshire, near the place where they had defeated the Picts and Scots. And there they shortly after built Thong-caster, to secure the booty they should take from the enemy (n).

The Britans growing uneasy at this settlement of the Saxons, Hengist and Horfa send for the remainder of the 9000 men (o); which came over in sixteen large vessels, [A. D. 450.] and among them Escus, and Rowena, eldest son and daughter of Hengist.

Hengist having now formed the project of settling in Britain, to which he was encouraged by the fruitfulness of the place, and the indolence and luxury of the inhabitants (p); makes use of his daughter Rowena to accomplish his ambitious designs. Having observed that love and pleasure were Vortigern's predominant passions, he invites him to a feast; and so manages, that this lascivious Prince falls in love with Rowena, and desires her in marriage, though he had a wife living and several children. But he could not obtain her father's consent, without giving up Kent to him (q), which he peopled some time after with Jutes (r): and of which he took upon him the name of King in 455 [X].

Though Hengist had a good body of troops here under his command, he did not think it sufficient to execute his vast projects. The Britans therefore freely venting their complaints against him, and Vortigern; he thence took occasion to persuade that weak Monarch, to let him send for more forces over (s). Which having done, Octa brother of Hengist comes over with forty ships, bringing with him his son Ebusa, and a great number of Saxon troops, [A. D. 452.] These, first ravaged the Orcades; then making a descent on the coasts of the Picts, obliged them to retire Northwards. As soon as the Picts had thus deserted part of their country, the Saxons fixed themselves there so strongly, that it was not possible to dispossess them. At first they settled on the north side of the Tine towards the East [now Northumberland;] and afterwards advancing towards the South, drove, by degrees, the Britans beyond the Humber. With these fresh supplies Hengist found himself strong enough to be in no great fear of any attempt from the Britans: Nay he began to shew less regard for Vortigern; and, under colour of wanting frequent recruits to keep up the number of his forces, sent for continual supplies from Germany, without asking his leave (t). At length he throws away the mask, and demands larger allowances for his troops [Z]; declaring, unless it was granted him, he would break the treaty, and waste the whole country (u). The Britans greatly surprized and provoked at these menaces, not only refused to comply with the Saxons unreasonable demands, but also began to rouse themselves, and think of means to free their country from these insolent guests, whom they now looked upon as their mortal enemies. For that purpose, justly deeming Vortigern unworthy of the supreme command, the chief of

(i) Gildas, § 23. Bedæ, l. i. c. 14. (k) Bedæ Hist. Eccl. l. i. c. 15. Gildas, Hist. § 23. Chronic. Saxon. W. Malmesb. l. i. c. 1. (l) G. Monm. l. vi. c. 10. Henr. Huntingdon, p. 309. edit. Francof. p. 1601. (m) Chronic. Saxon. W. Malmesb. l. i. c. 1. (n) G. Monm. l. vi. c. 11. (o) Idem, ibid. c. 11, 12. Nennius, c. 36. (p) Bedæ, l. i. c. 15. W. Malmesb. l. i. c. 1. Henr. Hutind. l. ii. (q) Nennius, c. 36. G. Monm. l. vi. c. 12. (r) Bedæ, l. i. c. 15. (s) Nennius, c. 37. G. Monm. ut supra, c. 13. W. Malmesb. l. i. c. 1. (t) Nennius, c. 37. Will. Malmesb. ubi supra. (u) Gildæ Hist. § 23. Bedæ, l. i. c. 15. Galfri. Monum. l. vi. c. 13.

[X] Hengest fenz to nice. Chron. Saxon.

[Z] Item queruntur non affluenter sibi epimenia contrahi, occasiones de industria colorantes, & nisi profusior eis munificentia cumularetur, testantur se cuncta insulæ rupto foedere depopulatuos. Gildæ. Hist. § 23.

the Britans entered into a confederacy, and suddenly compelled him to make his son partner with him in the government, and to leave the administration of affairs to his care: So that on a sudden Vortimer was invested with the whole royal authority, leaving his father only the empty title of King without any power (w). Hengist, finding he was like to have a fierce war upon his hands, hastily concluded a peace with the Picts (x); and then made a powerful diversion in the North, by means of them, and the Saxons settled in those parts.

The course of the wars between him and the Britans are not very distinctly related. Only we find, that in the years 455, 456, and 457, three battles were fought, in Kent, between the Britans and the Saxons: The first near the river Derevent [Darent;] the second near Episford, or Eglesford, [Aylesford,] in which Horfa, and Catigern Vortimer's second son, were slain (y); and the last near Crecanford [Crayford,] wherein Vortimer was entirely defeated, with the loss of more than 4000 men, and his best officers (z): So that, not being able to keep the field, he was forced to shut himself up in London (a). In the mean while, the barbarous Saxons having no opposition committed terrible ravages and unheard-of cruelties [A]; of which these parts undoubtedly had an unhappy share. What might have saved the Britans, proved, through their unreasonable factions and animosities, their further ruin. For, Aldroen king of Armorica having sent 10,000 men to their assistance under the command of Aurelius Ambrosius [B], second son of his brother Constantine (b); Vortimer's party represented him as an usurper, who was come to seize the Crown, under colour of defending it. Both sides having at length wrought themselves up into the utmost fury, a civil war ensued, which lasted seven or eight years (c). And thus the miserable Britans, always a prey to their intestine divisions, instead of uniting against the common enemy, destroyed one another. At length, the wisest of both parties considering, that their dissension would be the cause of their common ruin; an end was put to it, by parting the kingdom between the contending Princes: Vortigern and Vortimer had the Eastern (and this Town and Country among the rest), and Ambrosius the Western part; divided from one another by the Roman highway called afterwards Watling-street.

The civil dissensions among the Britans being thus appeased, both sides re-united against the common enemy; and the war began again [A. D. 466.] It was carried on with various success till the year 473; when a battle won by Hengist, gave him an opportunity of enlarging his territories (d). Vortimer, the principal promoter of the war, died in 475 (e). He had always strenuously opposed a peace, fearing, when the war was over with the Saxons, he should be obliged to begin another with Ambrosius: But, upon his death, both sides, after a twenty years war, began to shew an inclination for peace (f). And so it was concluded [A. D. 475.] upon these terms, That each party should keep what he possessed (g).

Hengist, who had for many years past entertained strong hopes of becoming master of Britain, finding himself obliged, after a twenty years war, to sit down contented with Kent, and some few other small districts, was the most uneasy party at this peace. But being a man of unbounded ambition, and void of all principles of honour and justice, he resolved to extort by fraud and violence, what he could not obtain by fair and honourable means. For that purpose, putting on a peaceable and contented disposition, he invited Vortigern (who was, as we have observed, a man of pleasure) to a splendid entertainment [A. D. 477.] Vortigern went thither, attended with 300 of his principal subjects; and unarmed, as suspecting no treachery: But, towards the end of the feast, a quarrel being designedly raised by Hengist; at a certain signal given [C], the British Lords were all murdered by the Saxons, who had concealed daggers, or short swords, for that purpose (b). Vortigern's life was spared, and he was only made prisoner: But he could not purchase his Liberty without delivering up to the Saxons a great tract of land bordering upon Kent, which Hengist added to his small territories. This was afterwards divided into three Provinces, and peopled with old Saxons (i). Those that were planted East with regard to the rest, they named Eaſt Sexa or Eaſt Seaxe, Essex: those that were South of the same, Soð-Seaxe, Suffex: and those that were in the middle between them, Middel-Seaxe, Middlesex.

From this time, Essex remained in the peaceable possession of the Saxons, as far as we can find: And, since it was not involved in the calamities and distractions, that prevailed in the other parts of Britain for some years, we shall have no occasion to attend the Saxons in their several motions; at least till the year

(w) G. Monm. l. vi. c. 13.
c. 13. W. Malmesb. ubi supra.
Monm. l. v. c. 4, 5, 6.
Malmesb. l. i. c. 1.
Will. Malmesb. l. i. c. 1.

(x) Beda, l. i. c. 15.
(z) Florent. Wigorn. ed. 1601. p. 543.
(c) Gildæ epistola. Beda, l. i. c. 16.
(f) Nennius, c. 47.
(i) Chronic. Saxon. p. 13.

(y) Chronic. Saxon. Nennius, c. 46. G. Monm. l. vi.
(a) Henr. Huntind. p. 311.
(d) Chronic. Saxon.
(b) Nennius, c. 48. G. Mon. l. vi. c. 15.

[A] They wasted the country from the Eastern to the Western sea, none being able to hinder them. The buildings, as well publick as private, were ruined: the priests were commonly slain at the very altars, and the bishops destroyed, without any respect, together with the people; and there were scarce any left to bury the dead. Some miserable remains, that had fled to the mountains, were pursued, and slaughtered in heaps. Others, to avoid starving, were forced to surrender themselves to the enemies, thinking themselves happy if they could but purchase their lives with the loss of their liberty. Others fled into foreign countries for safety. And such as remained at home, led a poor and miserable life, in perpetual hurry and fear, among the woods and mountains. Beda, l. i. c. 15. Gildæ Hist. § 24, 25.

[B] Qui solus fuit Comes fidelis, fortis, veraxque forte Romanæ gentis, qui tantæ tempestatis collisione, occisis in eadem parentibus purpura nimirum indutis, superfuera, cujus nunc temporibus nostris soboles magnopere avita bonitate degeneravit. Gildæ Hist. § 25.

[C] The signal was, Nimed eue Saxas; i. e. Draw your daggers. Nenn. c. 48.

527, when Essex was erected into a distinct kingdom, one of the Heptarchy.

In the mean time, as our Constitution is built upon the Saxon foundation, more than some persons imagine [D]; It will be useful and necessary to shew, 1. In what manner that people divided the Country they were settled in: 2. The several orders and degrees amongst them: and 3. What government they established here.

They first indeed came over as Auxiliaries, and for pay: But as soon as they had made any part of the Country their own, we may suppose, they divided and settled it in the same manner they were accustomed to in their own country. What Form of Government these Saxons particularly had, we cannot precisely determine, for want of monuments. But, as the Saxons, Jutes, and Angles [E], who peopled South-Britain, were all inhabitants of Germany, and for the most part went under the general appellation of Germans, let us therefore examine what account Tacitus, one of the best ancient Historians, who hath professedly treated of the Germans, gives of their Policy.

When they were overstocked with inhabitants, they used to send out Colonies, to make conquests upon their neighbours, and obtain settlements for themselves [F]. These adventurers were a voluntary Society; joint-partners in the expedition, and not hired for pay, as at present. Therefore the property of the new-acquired territories was in the whole collective body of the conquerors. They so divided their acquisitions, as to place the same families or neighbourhoods together; who being linked by several relations and affinities, were the most likely to sit down together peaceably, and be united in the same interests. They had no fixed inheritance; but severally enjoyed the lands by turns, according to the number of the occupiers; and divided them amongst themselves in proportion to their dignity or eminence. The largeness of the fields made the partition easy. Every year they changed their arable lands, and yet had ground enough to spare: For they did not value either gardens or orchards, but only corn-fields (k). Julius Cæsar more fully expresses this particular, in the following words: "No man had any certain quantity of land to his own use; but their magistrates and princes did every year allot a certain portion of land to kindreds and tribes inhabiting together, as much, and in such places, as they thought fit, and the next year appointed them a new place. For which they assigned many reasons: viz. Left they should be led away by continual use from the practice of war to husbandry: Left they should much enlarge their territories, and the stronger deprive the weaker of their possessions: Left they should grow too nice in their houses, and unaccustom themselves to bear heat and cold: Left they should learn covetousness, the source of factions and dissensions: And that by this equal disposition they might content and satisfy the common people, when they observed the equality between their revenues and the possessions of the great ones (l)."

They were divided into these Four Orders of men; the Æthelings, or Nobility; freolice, Freemen; frioletan, Freedmen; and lazzos, servants, or slaves. From the Nobility they chose their Governors, or Ealdormen, called by the Roman writers Reges, or Kings; for they had not Kings originally, though they established some in their new acquisitions here (m). Their power was limited (n). By way of honor, and also for their maintainance, they received from every man, within the cities or districts under their jurisdiction, a quantity of cattle or corn: which was the beginning of Fees and Feudal Tenures (o). The neighbouring Nations, under their amity and protection, sent them also choice horses, arms, &c. that were in great esteem amongst them (p). But some tell us, that, in time of peace, the German nations had no common superior of the several cantons each nation was divided into, but upon any war one was chosen [with power of life and death (q)] to command the army: and continued in that station so long only as the war lasted; for, as soon as it was at an end, his name and dignity of King ceased, and he became as before (r). These Generals, or Heretoghan, were chosen purely on account of their known bravery; and directed the troops more by their example than by their command and authority (s). The Freemen were the Thanes of the second and third classes; merchants, artificers, and countrymen, possessed of back-land, i. e. such state as they could convey by will or otherwise (t). The Freedmen were but one degree above the slaves; seldom considered in their master's house, and never employed in any publick office. Of the Lazzos, or ceorls, some were perfect slaves, and reckoned part of their owner's substance, and employed in family-drudgeries and services. Others were so far free, that each managed his own house and family: But they furnished their Lords with a certain quantity of grain, cattle, and apparel, which they required of them as husbandmen, and no more. And their wives and children performed all the other services of the house (u). Their Princes, Geresas or Graves (w), determined matters of less consequence, but the whole community was consulted in affairs of greater moment. And such things, as were determinable by the people, were also taken in-

(k) C. Taciti Germania, c. 26. (l) J. Cæsar de Bello Gall. l. vi. c. 22. (m) Taciti Germania, c. 7. 43, 44. Historical Essay on the Legislative Power of England, &c. by Geo. St. Amand Esq; Lond. 1725. 8^{vo} p. 1. 28. (n) Tacit. Germ. c. 7. (o) Ibid. c. 15. St. Amand. (p) Tacit. Germ. c. 15. (q) J. Cæsar, l. vi. c. 23. (r) St. Amand, ubi supra, p. 52. (s) Tacit. German. c. 6. (t) St. Amand, p. 76. (u) Tacit. Germ. c. 25. (w) St. Amand, ubi supra, p. 19.

[D] For, the main of our Constitution, our Language, great part of our common Law and many of our Manners and Customs, are plainly derived from our Saxon ancestors.

[E] They differed more in Name than Nation, and are in good authors but synonymies of the same country people, as

Mr. Selden hath rightly observed. Epinomis, c. 3. See Bp. Stillingfleet's Orig. Britan. p. 305, 306.

[F] Their Kings having many children, they thought them best employed abroad, in seeking other countries, and getting spoils at sea. Stillingfleet, ibid. p. 247.

to consideration by the Princes. They held their stated assemblies on certain days, either at the new or full moon; and sat armed in those councils as the commonalty liked. Silence was enjoined by the Priests, who were chairmen here, and had a coercive right. Then the King, Gerefa, or other person, according to his age, nobility, reputation in arms, or eloquence, delivered his sentiments, in a persuasive more than commanding manner. If the speech was disapproved, the assembly testified their dislike by a rude and confused noise: If the proposal was approved, they rustled their spears together; which was the most honorable kind of assent. Accusations were also preferred, and judgments, or trials, for capital crimes held, before these great councils. Their punishments were proportionable to the offence: traytors and deserters they hanged upon trees; and drowned flug-gards, or infamous persons. For slighter faults they imposed mulcts of horses and other cattle, part of which went to the Gerefa or State, and part to the sufferer, or his relations. In these same assemblies were chief men [Cent-graves, Bur-graves, and Tun-graves] chosen, to administer justice in the several territories and villages (x). Each of these had a Hundred assessors, or associates, out of the people or commonalty, for their counsel and authority (y). In the Burghs, the community of Burgesses exercised the self-same prerogatives and powers, that the Comes, Earl, or Lord of the manor, afterwards did within his county, or manor, and being generally Lords of the district of land whereof the Burgh consisted, they exercised therein not only a judicial but also a legislative power. Their chief magistrate was usually called Port-gerefa, contracted afterwards into Port-reve; and sometimes Burgrave, or Burgmeister. From these ancient customs of the Germans in general may be deduced the Grounds and Rudiments of the Saxon Laws, Government, and Policy established in this nation. Particularly, in imitation of the Great Council mentioned here, they formed a Mycel, or Wittena, Gemot in each of the Seven Kingdoms, and a general one of the whole Heptarchy: answerable to our Parliament. They also introduced the several Courts of the Tything, Hundred, Trything, Shire-gemot or Folcmote, Burghmote, &c.

The present allotments and boundaries of the Parishes, with the Names of them, are all likewise in general Saxon, and were fixed by that people: who brought us also our excellent Constitution, and that glorious Liberty, which we have hitherto preserved, and hope shall ever maintain inviolable; while most of our neighbouring nations, who were derived from the same original, groan under a grievous and unhappy state of Slavery.

But to return: From the time Hengist had peopled Essex and Middlesex with Saxons and Jutes, they had been governed by a deputy under the king of Kent (z). But the condition of them, and of this Town together, was altered in the year 527 (a), when the Kingdom of the East-Saxons, or Essex, was erected. This kingdom comprehended not only the present county of Essex [G], but also Middlesex, and part of Hertfordshire; much the same district as what is now the Diocese of London, or the ancient kingdom of the Trinobantes. The principal cities therein were Colchester, and London its capital, which afterwards became the metropolis of all England. The founder of this kingdom was Erchenwin, son of Offa; descended from Woden the common parent of the Saxon Kings (b). Our ancient historians tell us nothing of this Prince, except his name, and pedigree; relating neither the number of his forces, the place of his landing, nor so much as the least encounter he had with the Britans (c). Probably, he was governor under Osta king of Kent, and taking advantage of his weakness, engaged the people to acknowledge him for king (d). He died in 587 (e).

His successors in the throne of Essex were, Sledda; Sæbyrht; Saxred, Sitward, and Sigebriht, who reigned jointly; Sigebriht the little; Sigebriht the good; Swithelm; Sibbi; and Sighere; Sigebard and Senfrid; Offa; Selred; and Swithred.

Sæbyrht, son and successor of Sledda, was the first Christian king of the East-Saxons. For those people, at the time of their first settling here, were Heathens; and cruelly persecuted all such as professed Christianity. But, A. D. 604, Mellitus being sent by Augustine the monk, to preach the gospel to the East-Saxons, especially at London, Sæbyrht was converted by his preaching, and the example and influence of his uncle Æthelbyrht, king of Kent; who built the cathedral church of St. Pauls at London (f), and removed the see thither from St. Peter's in Cornhill. And then this Town and Country were made part of the see of London (g). Sæbyrht himself was noted for his piety, and zeal for Religion; and founded [A. D. 611.] the Church and Abbey of Thorney, near that city, which lying West of the same, was for that reason named Westminster (h).

Sigebriht the Good restored Christianity in his dominions, from whence it had been banished ever since the death of Sæbyrht. He was convinced of the absurdities of Idolatry by his intimate friend Oswi king of Northumberland, whom he used frequently to visit; and, by his good instructions, being persuaded (with the consent of his people) to make open profession of the Christian religion, was baptized by Finan bishop of Lindisfarne. Upon his return to his dominions, he desired Oswi to send him some teachers, to instruct his subjects in the faith of Christ. Accordingly, Cedd, and another priest, came and preached the gospel in these parts (x) St. Amand, ibid. p. 21. (y) Tacit. German. c. 12. (z) Rapin's Hist. Vol. I. fol. p. 38. (a) H. Huntingd. p. 313. (b) Ibid. But W. Malmesbur. (p. 34.) makes him the tenth; and Florence of Worcester, the eighth, from Woden. p. 688. (c) Rapin. ibid. (d) Ibid. (e) M. Westmon. ad ann 587. (f) Bede l. xi. c. 3. Chronic. Saxon. p. 24. Flor. Wigorn. p. 555. (g) See Newcourt's Repertor. Vol. i. p. 6. (h) Monastic. Anglic. T. i. p. 5. Chronica Gervasii, col. 1633.

[G] During the Heptarchy, England was not divided into Counties, but into Hides; and the Kingdom of Essex was then reckoned to contain 7000 hides. (Camden Britan. Introd. col. 225.) But afterwards the whole kingdom was cantled out into Counties, Hundreds, Ridings, Wapentakes, and Tythings: not indeed all at once, but by degrees; and were so settled by K. Alfred the Great.

with very good success. Cedd finding the number of Christians increasing, took a journey to Lindisfarne, and was consecrated bishop of the East-Saxons; and then returning into these parts, erected [H] Churches in many places, and consecrated priests and deacons, to assist him in the work of the ministry. He exercised it chiefly in the most unhealthy, and, as we may suppose, the most ignorant, parts of this country; about Ithancester, and Tilbury, or the present Hundreds of Dengy and Rochford (i). The other better and more populous places are not mentioned, probably because they did not so much want his instructions; as many Christians had undoubtedly been established there ever since Sæbyrht's reign, or even long before Austin's coming.

After the death of Swithred, the last king of Essex mentioned above, there were some few other Kings [I], but their names are not recorded any where; for the history of this kingdom is the most imperfect of any. All we know, is, That after Kent had been conquered by Ecbyrht, this kingdom among the rest, submitted to him [A. D. 823.] And so it was dissolved, the Heph-tarchy being converted into a Monarchy.

Under Ecbyrht's successors, this Town and Country, now become part of the Kingdom of England, remained without any great alterations; especially after the several Distributions of it were finally settled by Alfred the Great. But from the year 787 to 1013, it was miserably harassed by the piracies and depredations of the Danes (k); and came successively under the power and government of Four of their Kings; namely, Swægn; Edmund Ironside; Cnut; and Hardicnut. And this leads us to consider,

§. 3. The State of this Town under the Danes.

THESE Danes were possessed not only of the present kingdom of Denmark, but also of some part of the coast of Holland, and of Norway. Thus conveniently situated for navigation, they became very powerful at sea; and as trade was not then much in fashion, they chiefly employed themselves in Piracies; and ravaged the coasts of Europe, particularly of England, France, and the Low-Countries.

Their first descent in England, was upon the Western coasts in the year 787 (l). They repeated their descents again in those parts, in the years 789 (m), 833, 835, 837, 840, 845, 851, 860, 876 (n).

Kent, East-Anglia, Lincolnshire, and even London itself, the metropolis of the whole kingdom, were likewise exposed to their depredations, for several years, as may be more particularly seen in the Note [K]:

Northumberland, and the other parts adjoining, felt also their cruel ravages; and, in the end, they made themselves masters not only of the country north of the Humber, but of all the heart of England, which used to compose the kingdom of Mercia, wherein London was then included. They even reduced Alfred the Great to such straits, that, being deserted by his troops, he was forced to lye hid for a while in the isle of Athelney, till he could assemble sufficient forces together, and recover part of his dominions by dint of sword in 878 (o).

But, to take more particular notice of this District, and neighbourhood: In 866, the Danes came and wintered among the East-Angles [in Suffolk and Norfolk.] However, they seem not to have entered Essex at that time, but to have spread themselves Northward and West-ward. But coming back in 870, they slew Edmund, tributary king of the East-Angles, from whom St. Edmund's-bury took its name; and ravaging all that country, made themselves masters of it, killing great numbers of the inhabitants, and burning the Monasteries of Bardney, Croyland, Peterburgh, and Eley (p): for those brutish plunderers were still heathens. K. Æthered fought nine pitched battles with them in 871, but still they kept their ground; and having brought East-Anglia wholly into their own power, settled there in 879, under the government of God-run (q): who, the year before, entered into a treaty with K. Ælfred, and embraced Christianity (r). By this treaty the Danes engaged never to invade Wessex again. But they remained in possession of the whole country north of the Humber, and of the late kingdom of Mercia; as also of Essex, as bounded by the rivers Thames and Lea, and with it of this Town in particular: that is, of above one part in three of England.

Alfred, sensible that a powerful Fleet was the best security against future Danish invasions, took the opportunity of this peace to furnish himself with a considerable one; and putting out to sea, destroyed those rovers where-ever he could meet them. Particularly some of his vessels that were sailing from the coast of Kent northward, surprised sixteen of the enemies ships at the Sture's-mouth [near Harwich] took them all, and put the men to the sword. But, in their return, they fell among a stronger fleet of Danes, set out by the East-Angles, who had broke the peace with K. Ælfred; and they not only took and destroyed those ships of his, but also many others about the Thames mouth (s). Notwith-

(i) Beda, l. iii. c. 22. W. Malmesb. l. i. c. 6. H. Huntind. l. iii. Flor. Wigorn. p. 560. (k) Chronic. Saxon.
(l) Chronic. Saxon. (m) Asserii Annal p. 154. (n) Chronic. Saxon. (o) Chronic. Saxon. and the rest of our ancient Historians. (p) Chronic. Saxon. Ingulph. p. 14-24. (q) Chronic. Saxon. (r) Leges Anglo-Saxon.
Edit. D. Wilkins. (s) Chronic. Saxon.

[H]—Fecit per loca Ecclesias. Beda, l. iii. c. 22.

[I] Cujus post mortem, reges pauci super East-Saxones regnare proprii. Flor. Wigorn. p. 691.

[K] In 832 they ravaged the isle of Shepey; and wintered there in 854. In 838 they landed in Lincolnshire, East Anglia, and Kent, with an army; over-ran those countries; and extended their ravages as far as Canterbury, Rochester, and London. In 851, they wintered in the isle of Tenet; and, the next spring, coming up the Thames with 350 ships, landed near London, where they committed great ravages, as they did also at Canterbury, but were defeated by K. Ethelwulph and Athelstan at Aclea, or Okley in Surrey: as they were again by Ealhere, in 853, in the isle of Tenet; notwithstanding which, they wintered there again in 865. The Kentishmen offered them a sum of money, to go off quietly, but the treacherous barbarians, after the agreement, ravaged the country with fire and sword. In 872 they wintered at London; as they did at Fulham in 879. And besieged Rochester in 885, but could not take it. Chronic. Saxon. under those respective years.

standing this advantage, Ælfred retook London from them, which he repaired and fortified, "as he did also many other places and towns in "the kingdom" (t). Godrun died in 890; whereupon this Town and country came again into Ælfred's possession, who made Bertheolf Earl of the same (u).

The Danish pirates had left our coasts unmolested from the year 885 to 893, and turned their arms against France. But in 893, a band of them came with 250 ships to Romney, and entrenched themselves at Appledore: Another band landing shortly after in the Thames-mouth, built a fortification at Middletun [Milton,] and ravaged the adjoining country in a merciless manner (w).

Before K. Alfred marched against them, he endeavoured to secure the rest of their countrymen settled in Northumbria and East-Anglia to his obedience, by exacting a new oath of fidelity from them, and taking hostages from the latter: But, notwithstanding such engagements, these faithless barbarians joined the new-come rovers, upon every occasion, in their plunders and ravages (x).

Alfred, in order to prevent the junction of the two bands that had landed in Kent, went and posted himself between them [A. D. 894.] and though he thereby prevented their junction, he could not hinder their robbing in small parties. When they had got a good booty together, they attempted to carry it over the Thames into Essex, to their ships that lay at anchor on that coast: but the King's forces over-took them at Farnham, and having dispersed them, recovered the booty. Thence the rovers fled over the Thames, and up the river Colne into a certain island [L], where the King's army besieged them as long as their provisions lasted: When they were spent, they returned home. And the King went and supplied their place with the forces of the county [M]; but the Danes remained there blocked up, because their king having been wounded in the late battle, was not fit to be removed. In the mean time, the treacherous Northumbrian and East-Anglian Danes, notwithstanding their engagements, finding their countrymen here too hard pressed, made a diversion in their favour, with two fleets. One of 40 sail, going round the north of Scotland, went and attacked a fort on the north coast of Devonshire: the other of 100 ships, going down the Channel, laid siege to Exeter. Alfred, informed of this, flew to the relief of that place, with a large army; leaving some forces to block up the Danes here. Another party of English, reinforced by the Londoners, came and attacked a fort at South Bemfleet; where Hæsten, and the other Danish band, had posted themselves from Middleton and Appledore, it being stronger by nature than those places. The fort was soon taken with all the booty therein, and razed. And of the Danish ships stationed there, some were broken to pieces, others burnt, and the rest carried to Rochester and London (y).

Shortly after, the remains of these Danes, and such as had retired into the island in the river Colne, as above-mentioned, assembled at South-Shoebury, and built a castle there, to secure their booty and shipping, according to their usual method: And then made incursions quite through England, as far as the Severn; where they were either starved, or mostly destroyed by the King's forces. The remnant of them fled into this county, and retired to their castles or entrenchments [N], and to their shipping. And gathering together a large army before winter, chiefly out of the Northumbrians and East-Angles, and leaving their wives, ships, and money in East-Anglia, they renewed their incursions, and penetrated as far as Chester. When they could subsist no longer there, they retired [A. D. 895.] through Northumbria and East-Anglia into this country; with so much precipitation that the King's forces could not come up with them. And even these cowardly plunderers, for their further security, sheltered themselves in Merefige [Mersey,] an island at the mouth of the Colne: where not caring, or not being able, to winter, they sailed up the Thames, and drew their ships up the river Lea, about twenty miles north of London [at Hertford, as is supposed] and there erected a castle or fortification for their defence [A. D. 896.] But K. Alfred having made several cuts through what is now called Hackney-marsh, and turned the current of the river from Oldford through Stratford, deprived them of all opportunity of getting them off again. Whereupon the Danes quitted them, and retired to the Severn. The year following [A. D. 897.] a plague that raged in England drove them over into France, after they had made greater devastations than that dreadful distemper. To keep them off from the coasts for the future, K. Alfred invented new galleys, by the help of which he destroyed as many as attempted to land afterwards. Whereupon the Danes settled here, submitted to him, and acknowledged him for sovereign of all England. But this great and renowned king enjoyed peace and quietness only a very short time; for he departed this life in 901, after a troublesome, though glorious, reign of 29 years and a half.

His death brought fresh Troubles, particularly to this Town and country. For his son Edward, surnamed the Elder, having succeeded him; Æthelwald, eldest son of Ethelbriht king Alfred's elder brother, resolved to dispute the crown with him, and landed in Essex [A. D. 904.] with an army of Danes and Normans, which soon made themselves masters of these parts. But Æthelwald being slain, the year following, in an engagement near Bradenstoke in Wiltshire, peace was restored to this kingdom; the Danes here settled acknowledging Edward for sovereign, as they had done his father, and the Normans re(t) After. (u) J. Spelman's Life of Alfred, p. 91. Chronic. Saxon.

(y) Chronic. Saxon.

(w) Chronic. Saxon.

(x) Ibid.

[L] Speed says, it was Brecklesey (p. 358,) where their ships undoubtedly were stationed.

[M] This shews, that the King's army then consisted of the Militia; which by their Tenures were obliged to serve only so many days together.

[N] gepeonce. Chronic. Saxon. p. 95.

turning home. And, about this time, he became again master of the best part of Essex, which had been many years in subjection to the Danes (z).

In order to secure the possession of it, and to awe the wavering inhabitants, K. Edward came, in the beginning of the year 913, to Maeldune [Maldon,] and encamped there the whole summer, whilst a town was building and fortifying at Witham. In 920 [O], he came again to Maeldune, which he rebuilt, and fortified; for we may suppose it had suffered much during the Danes depredations. All this while Colchester, as being a stronger place, remained in the hands of the Danes: but, in 921, a large army of English assembled together, in autumn, as well from this county, as from Kent, Surrey, and the neighbouring towns; and coming to Colneceaster, [Colchester] besieged this Town till they took it. After which they plundered it, and killed all the Danes that were therein, except a few that escaped over the wall. Immediately after, the Danes drew together a large army out of East-Anglia [Suffolk, and Norfolk,] taking also some pirates to their assistance; and, in order to revenge their late defeat, went and laid siege to Maeldune. But multitudes coming to the relief of that place, the Danes quitted the siege, and fled: And being pursued, many hundreds of them were slain. In the beginning of November following, K. Edward came to Colchester with an army of West-Saxons, and repaired or rebuilt the wall where it was necessary [P]. Then many in this country, as well as East-Anglia, that had been under the Danes power; and especially the Danish army there, and at Cambridge, submitted to K. Edward, and swore fealty to him (a).

After seventy years rest, these part began to be disturbed again by the Danes. For, in 991, they landed in Suffolk, and plundered Gypefwic [Ipswich,] the forces that were sent against them not being able to stop their ravages. In the end, to prevail upon them to desist, an unhappy expedient was devised by Siric Archbishop of Canterbury; which was attended with very pernicious consequences, as it served only to encourage them in their invasions: Namely, The giving them a large sum of money [Q], styled in process of time Danegeld (b). Much better would that money have been laid out in fortifying the Kingdom against their insults!

In 993 they landed again, and pillaged Gypefwic; and thence [passing by this Town, which probably they were not strong enough to attack,] they advanced to Maeldune, where having overthrown Byrhtnoth the king's ealdorman, they remained masters of the field of battle: so that Æthelred was forced to make a peace with them.

The year following, having attempted in vain to become masters of London, they ravaged the coasts of Essex, and Kent, &c. and wintered at Southampton. For several years after, they ravaged many places with fire and sword, and committed horrible barbarities (c).

As their countrymen settled here were joining them upon all occasions, Æthelred ordered a general massacre of them; which was executed the 13th of November 1002, with implacable fury and cruelty, on those that were dispers'd in Wesssex and Mercia. But this was severely revenged afterwards. Though a large fleet was fitted out by the English in 1008, they could not hinder another roving band of Danes from wintering, the very next year, in the Thames; which drew their subsistence from this county and parts adjacent. And, by the end of the year 1011, they were become masters not only of this county, but of Middlesex, East-Anglia, and twelve other counties (d). The decisive battle of Assandune, or Ashdon near Bartlow, in 1016, fixed their dominion here for a while [R].

From the year 1016, till the Conquest, or Acquisition of William the Bastard, in 1066, we find nothing particular relating to this Town or County.

§ 6. The state of Colchester and Essex, under the Norman Kings, and their Successors.

THAT great and unexpected Revolution, one would have thought could have made no great Alteration in the Saxon Laws and Constitution; since both Normans and Saxons were originally of the same Northern Stock, and therefore may be supposed to have agreed in the Essentials of Government and Policy. The Religion of both Nations was likewise the same, with its manifold Errors, and Deviations from true and genuine Christianity. Thus far therefore there could be no great Alteration.

But almost a total one was made in Property, and the Possessors of the Lands; the Saxon Owners being in general deprived of their Maners and Lands, which were given to the Norman Chiefs and Adventurers. This is plainly evident from Domesday-book, wherein very few Names appear in the List of the Owners of the Lands within this County, that look like, or can be supposed to be, the ancient Saxon Possessors. See the List of them in the Introduction to the History of Essex.

The lower sort of People indeed that could not make proper resistance, or quietly submitted, were not massacred, but protected. But then let it be remembered, that they had no property, nor any thing to lose, being considered only as Appendages, or part of the Stock, if I may so express it, of the respective Maners.

When the Survey, entered in Domesday-book, was taken, the Lordship and Demesnes of this Town belonged to the King; and there is in that Survey a long List of the King's Burgeffes, or Tenants, that paid him rent; which by their Names appear to be Saxon.

(z) Chronic. Saxon. Florent. Wigorn.
(d) Ibid.

(a) Chronic. Saxon.

(b) Chronic. Saxon.

(c) Chronic. Saxon.

[O] Florence of Worcester says, it was in 917.

[P] 7 gebet þa buph 7 georneopade þær hioær to brocen þær. Chronic. Saxon. p. 109.

[Q] At first 10,000 l. but they rose afterwards so much in their demands, that in the year 1118, it was 83,000 l. Chron. Saxon.

[R] Namely, for 24 years, under Swægn, Edmund Ironside, Cnut, and Hardicnut.

Most probably, nay certainly, the Conqueror did not chuse to unpeople his Towns at once, as he must have done had he turned out the Saxon Inhabitants. For the Normans were then unskill'd in Trade, and the quiet Manual Arts; nay they slighted and under-valued them, esteeming nothing honorable but a rapacious, wandring, Military Life [S].

However, what the state of Colchester was in the time of K. William I, will appear by the following Extract of that original Survey, commonly called Domesday-book, of which an exact copy, as far as relates to this Town, is given in the Appendix [T]. Now by that it appears (e), That the Bishop of London had in Colchester 14 houses and four acres, paying no rent except scot, unless it was to the Bishop. In the same, Hugh held of the Bishop, two hides and one acre, for which he paid rent. Always two carucates in demesne, and one plough-land for the Tenents, and two villans, and 11 bordars, and one servant, six acres and a half of meadow. Now one mill, Then and afterwards it was worth 40 shillings now 50.

The next article in that Book (f), relating to Colchester, begins with Greenstead, of which an abstract is given below in the account of that parish.---After which it is said, That the Burgeses claimed custom and scot out of Lexden, lying near the land which Godric held.

Then follows a List of the King's Burgeses, who paid rent.

The number of those Burgeses was 276, who had 355 houses, and 1296 acres of land; besides 51 acres of meadow.

After that, we have an account of some great Men, who had possessions in this Town.

Hamo Dapifer had one house, and one court, or Hall, and one hide of land, and 15 Burgeses, holden by his predecessor Thurbern in Edward the Confessor's time; All which used then to pay rent, except the Hall: And the Burgeses still paid so much a head, but nothing for their arable land, and the hide they held of Hamo. In the hide there was then one carucate, or plough-land, but at the time of the Survey none. Six acres of Meadow. All which was worth in K. Edward's time iv l. and some time the like was paid afterwards, but now 40 s.

Manfune two houses and four acres. Goda one house. Eudo Dapifer five houses, and 40 acres of land, which the Burgeses held in K. Edward's time, and paid all the rent usually paid by Burgeses, but now pay only by poll. All this, with the fourth part of St. Peter's Church, pays 30 s.

Hugh de Montfort one house, which his predecessor Godric held in K. Edward's time, and then paid the King's rent, but now none.

(e) Folio 111.

[S] 'The Towns were situated either within the demesnes of the King, or the Lands of the great Barons, and were almost entirely subjected to the absolute will of their master. The languishing state of Commerce kept the inhabitants poor and contemptible; and the political institutions were calculated to render that Poverty perpetual. The Barons and Gentry, living in rustic plenty and hospitality, gave no encouragement to the Arts, and had no demand for any of the more elaborate produce of Manufactures: Every profession was held in contempt but that of Arms.—It appears from Domesday, that the Boroughs were, at the time of the Con-

M

Roger Pictaviensis one house, which his predecessor Alstet held in the time of K. Edward, and paid the Kings rent, but now doth not, nor hath done since Roger became possessed of it.

Earl Eustace 12 houses, besides one which Engelric hath seized. In K. Edward's time they paid the King's rent; but now do not, nor have done since Eustace hath enjoyed them. They are worth 12 shillings.

William, the Bishop's nephew, two houses, which Turchil holds, and pays rent.

Otto the Goldsmith, three houses lying at Esceldeforde, which the Countess Alueva held, and they paid the King's rent, but now do not. And this is part of the Queen's land.

The Abbat of Westminster four houses, which Earl Harold held at Ferigens, and they paid then rent, but now do not.

Goisfrid de Magnaville two houses, which Geny at Erlige held in K. Edward's time, and they paid rent, but now do not.

Sueno one house, which Goda held at Elme-stade in K. Edward's time: It then paid the King's rent, but now they pay only head-money.

William de Wateville, one house of his own name, which Robert Wimarc held in K. Edward's time; and it paid rent, but now doth not.

Turstin Wiscard three houses of John Fitz-Waleram, and half a hide of land, which two Burgeses held in K. Edward's time; and they paid the King's rent, but now pay none. That half hide was then worth 10 shillings, and he sometimes hath received six shillings, now five.

Ranulf Piperell five houses, which Ailmar at Terlinge held; in the time of K. Edward; and they paid rent, but now do not: one of them is without the walls.

Radulf Baignart one house, which Ailmar Melc at Tollenfum held in K. Edward's time; and it then paid rent, but now does not.

The Abbess of Berchingis three houses, and she then paid rent, but not now.

Alberic de Ver two houses and three acres of land, which Ulwine his predecessor held in K. Edward's time; and they then paid rent.

The King's Demefnes in Colchester, 102 acres of land, of which ten are meadow, wherein are ten bordars, and besides that 240 acres between pasture and heath: And all this is let to ferm by the King.

In common among the Burgeses Fourscore acres of land, and eight perches round the wall, of all which the Burgeses have sixty shillings a year for the King's service, if need be; if not, they divide it in common.

And the Custom is, For the King's Burgeses to pay yearly, fifteen days after Easter, two Marks of silver; and that belongs to the King's ferm. Likewise six pence a year out of each house; quest, scarce more than country Villages; and that the inhabitants lived in entire dependance on the King or great Lords, and were of a station little better than servile. They were not then so much as incorporated; they formed no community; were not regarded as a body politic; and being really nothing but a number of low dependant tradesmen, living, without any particular civil tie, in neighbourhood together, were incapable of being represented in the states of the Kingdom.' . . . Dav. Hume's History of England, Appendix II.

(f) Folio 104.

[T] See Appendix to Book I. No. III.

which

which may be employed either for the maintenance of the King's soldiers, or for an expedition by sea or land: And that to be paid, whether the King hath soldiers, or undertakes an expedition.

And, for those Six pences, the whole City paid in K. Edward's time, in lieu of all debts, Fifteen pounds five shillings and three pence, a year. Of which the Moneyers paid Four pounds, in the time of K. Edward; and now Fourscore pounds, and four quarts of honey, or forty shillings and four pence: Besides 100 shillings fine to the Sheriff. And ten shillings and eight pence for the maintenance of Prebendaries.

Moreover, the Burgeses of Colchester, and of Meldune, pay 20 pounds for the privilege of coining money; which was settled by Waleram. And they appeal to the King, that he hath remitted them ten pounds. And Walchelin, the Bishops tenent, demands of them forty pounds.

Then follows an account of St. Peter's Church, of which an abstract is given below under that parish.

This is the Substance of that most ancient and valuable Record, styled Domestday-Book, as far as it has a relation to this Town.

COLCHESTER, now become a fixed and settled part of the English Monarchy, will not so much require a distinct History as it hath done hitherto. I shall therefore only set down, in order of time, what hath occurred in each King's reign, relating more immediately to this place.

Under K. William II, we find nothing remarkable concerning it: Only, that it was put by him under the care or government of Eudo Dapifer [U], the munificent Founder of St. John's Abbey (g).

K. Henry I. granted Letters patent to the Tenents of his Manor of Colchester. These Letters were preserved among our Records in Q. Elizabeth's reign (h), and undoubtedly were exceeding curious and valuable. But they are now lost.

In the reign of K. Stephen, and also in the 9th and 17th years of K. Henry II, the Crown was seized or possessed of this Town; and it was let in ferm to the Sheriff of Essex and Hertfordshire [W]. But, in the 32d and 33d of K. Henry II, and even before, it was granted to the Men or Burgeses of Colchester for a Fee-farm of 42 l. [X].

In the beginning of the same K. Henry's reign, the Burgeses were in possession of King's-wood-heath; which, for reasons not particularly mentioned, the King took again into his own hands in the 14th year of his reign (*). They had also then, and in the time of K. Henry I, the Customs, or Duties of the water, and of the banks or sides of the same (i).

K. Richard I, confirmed the ancient Privileges of this Town, and also enlarged them very much by his Charter; which is the most antient we have now extant (k).

During the fierce Conteſts between K. John and his Barons; in 1215, Saher de Quincy Earl of Winchester having brought an army of foreigners into this kingdom, besieged Colchester-castle; but hearing that the Barons at London were hastning to its relief, he withdrew to St. Edmund's-bury. However, he, or another party, soon made themselves masters of it; and plundered this Town as they had done Ipswich, and other places: But the king retook it, after a few days siege.

The year following, in the beginning of K. Henry the Third's reign, Lewis son of Philip II. king of France, having been invited over by the discontented Barons, made himself master, not only of this castle and town, but also of all the Eastern parts of England (l).

In the reign of K. Edward I, very large Sums were imposed and assessed upon this Nation [Y]. Particularly in the 1st and 8th of his reign, a Fifteenth was levied upon this Town and the Liberties; as appears by the Rolls, still preserved: And a Tallage, in the 4th of his reign, to which this Town paid 64 l. 18 s. 10 d. In the 24th of the same reign a Seventh was also raised, within the precinct and liberty of the Burgh of Colchester, on the goods and chattels every one had the Michaelmas before, by the oath of twelve of the Burgeses [Z]: Of the manner of which assessment be pleased to take these few instances, from the original Roll [A]: "Richard Tubbe had, the day aforesaid, 1 quarter and a half of

(g) Monastic. Anglic. Vol. II. p. 889. (h) MS. List of Records in the strong chest. Penes me. (*) Carta Henric. VIII. regis, de Kingeswood heath. (i) Carta Ric. I. (k) See Book I. c. 5. § 1. (l) Mat. Paris, edit. 1640. p. 286. M. Westm. p. 298. Stow's Annales, p. 173. 176.

[U] He is generally thought to have been Dapifer of Normandy; as Hamo was of England. T. Madox Hist. of the Exchequer, p. 34.

[W] Hamo de Sto. Claro reddit compotum de Firma civitatis Coleceſtre. In Thesauro xxxviii l. & xiv s. & x d. et debet xxiii s. & x d. Bl. (Mag. Rot. 5 Step. rot. 4. T. Madox's Hist. of the Excheq. p. 226.) Ricardus de Luci r. c. de Veteri Firma Coleceſtrie. In thesauo liberavit; Et compotus inde redditus est Regi. Et Q. e. (Ibid. p. 705. & 226, 227.)—The Reader is to observe, That in the Saxon Times, many Towns and Burghs were the Demesnes of the King, or of some other Lord, or Patron. (Brady of Burghs, p. 17. 39, 40.) In the early times after the coming in of the Normans, most of these Towns and Burghs were let out at the King's pleasure [This for instance to the Sheriff.] In the succeeding ages, some were let out in Fee, or as they called it, in Fee-ferm, particularly to the Men or Burgeses of the respective Towns: Which Custom so far prevailed, that in process of time most of the Towns and Burghs in England came to be let to the respective Townsmen or Burgeses at Fee-farm. (T. Madox, ibid. p. 230. and Firma Burgi, p. 1, 3, 4, 7, 8.—Ferm signifies Rent; and Fee perpetuity, or perpetual. Ibid.)

[X] Out of which sum they had the following allowances: For the want of King's-wood 40 s. For the want of four moneyers, or coiners 4 l. To the Monks of Colchester, 20 s. Oath b. G.

[Y] See General History of Taxes by J. Stevens, p. 77.

[Z] The title of this Taxation-roll was in these words. Burgus Coleceſtr' Anno regni Regis Edwardi filii Regis Henric viceſimo quarto, Taxatio facta fuit infra p'cinctum & libertatem Burgi Colec' de bonis & catallis cui libet habitis die Sci Michis ultimo p'terit' assessis ad opem domino Regi E p'dco gratant' concessam ad tuicois regni & Guerre sue subsidium nup' incoate contr' inimicos suos & nostros Francye seditiosos, p xii Burgens' Coleceſtr' videlic'—Qui dicunt super sacramentum suum. qd. &c. The number of persons taxed was 218.

[A] Ricardus Tubbe habuit die p'dco i q'rt' & dimid. fri. p't' q'ter' dimid' marc'. iii q'rt' orde'i p't' q'rt' iii s. iii q'rt' avene p't' q'rt' ii s. xx. li lane p't' li. ii s. i p'vam peciam panni p't' iii s. i lectu p't' iii s. ii boves, p't' bovis di' marc'. ii ster' p't' ster vi s. ii affros p't' affri iii s. i vaccam p't' v s. ii equos cu' carecta p't' i m'rc'. fenū ad eold' p't' ii s. enenum p't' iii s.

Sma. vi li. xvi s. viii d.—Inde vii s. xix s. vi d. ga.

wheat,

wheat, at half a mark per quarter; 4 quarters of barley, at 4s. a quarter; 4 quarters of oats, at 2s. a quarter; 20 pounds of wool, at 2s. a pound; a little piece of clothe, price 4s. a bed, pr. 4s. 2 oxen, each half a mark; 2 steers, each 6s. 2. bullocks, each 3s. 1 cow, 5s. 2 horses, with a cart, price 1 mark; hay for the same, pr. 2s. a brass pot, pr. 3s.

Sum 6*l*. 16*s*. 8*d*.---The seventh of that 19*s*. 6*d*. qu.

Henry Godyar had, on the day aforesaid, 5 quarters of rye, at 5s. a quarter---4 hogs, pr. 5*s*. 1 silver cup, pr. 5*s*.---2 silver spoons, each worth 10*d*. &c.

Robert Lord Fitz-Walter had, the day aforesaid at his manor in the vill of Lexden, 8 quarters of rye, pr. of each quarter 5*s*. &c."

But the most minute and remarkable Taxation was as follows; viz. In the 18th of this same king, the Parliament having granted his Majesty a Fifteenth of all the Moveables in England; which Grant was afterwards repeated, and extended to all the Cities and burghs (*): Colchester was accordingly assessed thereto, among the rest, on the 29th of that King, anno 1300. The original Taxation for that year is still extant. The number of Persons therein assessed in this Town and the Liberties, was Three hundred and ninety; and the whole Sum they were taxed at amounted to 34*l*. 12*s*. 7*d*. As the manner of assessing these Fifteenths is but little known, I shall lay a specimen of it before the Reader, from this curious Roll [B].

"1. Roger the Dyer had, on Michaelmas day last, in his treasury, or cup-board, 1 silver-buckle, price 18*d*. 1 cup of mazer [maple] pr. 18*d*. In his chamber, 2 gowns, pr. 20*s*.---2 beds, pr. half a mark---1 napkin and 1 towel, pr. 2*s*. In his house, 1 ewer with a bason, pr.

14*d*.---1 andiron, pr. 8*d*. In his kitchen, 1 brass-pot, pr. 20*d*.---1 brass-skillet, pr. 6*d*.---1 brass-pipkin, pr. 8*d*.---1 trivet, pr. 4*d*. In his brew-house, 1 quarter of oats, pr. 2*s*.---wood-ashes, pr. half a mark.---1 great fat for dying, pr. 2*s*. 6*d*. Item, 1 cow, pr. 5*s*.---1 calf, pr. 2*s*.---2 pigs, pr. 2*s*.---each 12*d*.---1 fow, pr. 15*d*. Billet-wood and fagots for firing, pr. 1 mark.

Sum. 71*s*. 5*d*.---The Fifteenth of that, 4*s*. 9*d*. qu. [C].

William the Miller had, the day aforesaid, In ready money 1 marc of silver. In his cupboard, a silver-buckle, pr. 9*d*.---1 ring, pr. 12*d*.---In his granary, 1 quarter of wheat, pr. 4*s*.---1 quarter of barley, pr. 3*s*.---2 quarters of oats malted, pr. 4*s*. each quarter 2*s*.---2 hogs, 10*s*. each 5*s*.---2 pigs, 3*s*. each 18*d*.---1 pound of wooll, pr. 3*s*. &c.

The Abbat of St. John's Colchester had, the day aforesaid, at Grensted, 8 quarters of rye, pr. 24*s*. at 3*s*. a quarter.---Item. 4 stallions, pr. 24*s*. each 6*s*.---4 oxen, pr. 40*s*. each 10*s*.---24 sheep, 24*s*. 12*d*. each, &c.

Robert Lord Fitz-walter had, the day aforesaid, in his manor of Lexden, 10 quarters of rye, pr. 30*s*. each quarter 3*s*.---20 quarters of small oats, 23*s*. 4*d*. at 20*d*. a quarter---6 heifers, pr. 18*s*. at 3*s*. each, &c."

And they did not spare even the poorest persons; as appears by this, among many other the like instances. "John Fitz-elias, weaver, had, the day aforesaid 1 old coat, pr. 2*s*.---1 lamb, pr. 6*d*.

Sum 2*s*. 6*d*.---The Fifteenth of that 2*d*."

In the 6th of K. Edward II, a Tallage was assessed upon every particular person [or Master of a family] in this Town and the Liberties, according to the value of his chattels, or rents [D].

(*) R. Brady, Treatise of Burghs, p. 26, 27.

Henrics Godyar h' die p'dco' v q'ter' filigis p't' q't' v s. vii q'ter' orde' p't' q't' iii s. ii equoscu carecta p't' i marc. fenū ad eod' p't' iii s. iii porc' p't' v s. i cyphum argent' p't' v s. i lectu p't' iii s. ii cocklear' argent' p't' coklear' x*d*. eneam p't' iii s.

Sma iii li viii s. Inde vii xii s. vii d.

Dominus Robts fil' Walti h. dco die ad maner' suu in vill' de Lex. viii q't' filigis p't' q't' v s. viii q't' avene p't' q't' ii s. iii boves, p't' bovis di' marc. iii affros p't' affri iii s.

Sma iii li. xiii s. viii d.---Inde vii xiii s. vi d. qa.

[B] The title of this Roll, is; Taxatio quindezime Burgi Colecestr' & quatuor villatar' videlic' Lexeden, Miland, Grensted, West Donylond, infra Lib'tatem ejusd'm Burg' existenc' De bonis mobilibus ibidem hitis die sci Michis anno R. R. E. xxxº facta p Johem de la Pfordc, Sim' Lotun, Johem de Staneweya, Sahm le Parmenter, Sahm de Donylaunde, Willm le Chaloner, Radm Savara, Johem Pecocks, Johem le Teynturer, Mathm le Verrer, Jur' qui dicunt per sacrm suum qd. &c.

[C] Rog's Tinctor habuit die sci Michis ultio p'terit' in Thesauo i firmaculo argent' p't' xviii d' i ciphu de mazer p't' xviii d'. In Camera ii Robas p't' xx s' ii Lectos p't' di marc' i mappam & i manut'giu p't' ii s' In domo sua i Lavator' cum pelvi p't' xiii d' i ander' p't' viii d'. In coquina, i ollam eneam p't' xx d' i pocinetu eneam p't' vi d' i patellam eneam p't' viii d' i tripod' p't' iii d'. In bracio i q'ter' avene p't' ii s' cineres de Wad' p't' di' marc' i i cuvam magnam p' officio tincture p't' ii s. vi d' Itm i vaccam p't' vs' i boviculu p't' ii s' ii porcellos ii s. p't' capitis xii d'. i i fuem p't' xv d. Biletum & fagatts p' focal' p't' i marc'.

Sma. lxxi s. v d.---Inde xv xiii s. ix d. qa.

Wills Molendinar' huit die p'dco. In p'cuia num'ata i marc' argenti. In thesauo i firmacul' argenti p't' ix d' i anulu prec' xii d'. In camera i robam p't' x s' i lectum p't' iii s' i mappam p't' ix d' i manut'giu p't' vi d' In coquina i ollam eneam p't' ii s' i patell eneam p't' xii d' i pocinetu eneum p't' viii d' i ander' p't' vi d' i tripod' p't' iii d'. In granar' i q'ter' fri p't' iii s. i q'ter' ordi p't' iii s' ii q'ter' bras' aven' p't' iii s. p't' q'ter' ii s' ii porcos p't' x s. p't' porci v s' ii porcellos p't' iii s. p't' capitis xviii d' i libr'lane p't' iii s. i fagatts p' focali p't' ii s. vi d.

Sma. lxxi s.---Inde xv xiii s. 11 d. ob. qa.

Abbas sci Johis Colecestr' huit die p'dco apud Grensted viii q'ter' filiginis p't' xxiii s. p't' q'ter' iii s' xv q'ter' avene minute p't' xxv s. p't' q'ter' xx d' ffenu & fforagiū p't' v s. Item iii stottos p't' xxiv s. p't' capitis vi s. i iii boves p't' xl s. p't' capitis x s. i x vaccas & i taurum p't' lv s. p't' capitis v s. Itm ii vitulos p't' ii s. p't' capitis xii d' xxiii bidentes p't' xxiii s. p't' capitis xii d.

Sma. ix l. xix s.---Inde xv xiii s. iii d. qa.

Dus Robts fil Walti huit die p'dco in manerio suo ap'd Lexd' i x q'ter' filiginis pret' xxx s. p't' q'ter' iii s' xx q'ter' aven' minut' p't' xxiii s. iii d. p't' q'ter' xx d' i i juv'cas p't' xviii s. pret' capit. iii s. i iii boves p't' xl s. pret' cap' x s' i lx oves matt's p't' lx s. p't' cap' xii d' i xl agn' p't' xx s. pret' cap' vi d.

Sma. x li xvi d.---Inde xvma xiii s x d.

Dna Alianora Hovel huit die p'dc ap'd Miland. In camera sua i robam p't' i marc' i i lectos p't' i marc' i mappas & manut'gia p't' di marc'. Itm iii vaccas p't' xv s. p't' capitis v s. i ii bovic'los p't' vi s. p't' capitis iii s. In grangia nichil. nulla alia catalla.

Sma l. iii s. iii d.---Inde xvma. iii s. vii d. ob.

Johes fil Elye Textor huit die p'dco i supertunic' vet'em p't' ii s. i i agnu p't' vi d.

Sma ii s. vi d.---Inde xvma. ii d.

[D] The title of this Roll, is as follows. Taxacio fca in Colecestr' & in quatuor villat' adjacent' videli' Lexeden, Westodon, Grensted, & Miland, p' Brev' Dni Reg' anno D. R. E. filii Reg. E. viº. coram Dnis Willmo de Hanyngf' Robto de Maddyngle, Willo de Foleburne, & Johne de Borhm, ad assendend' Tallag' in Civitat' Burg' & D'nic' dci

The

The number of persons taxed, was 518. And the Value of each person's chattels was set down in one sum, not in the same minute manner as in the subsidy-taxations [E].

A Twelfth was also levied upon this Town and the Liberties, in the 13th of this reign; of which one instance or two are given in the Note [F].

In 1347, when K. Edward III. blocked up Calais by sea with a large fleet, Colchester furnished Five ships, and One hundred and seventy mariners (m). And, after the glorious victory won by that renowned Prince at Cressy, he sent some of his French prisoners to be kept here, as appears by the letter below [G].

In 1348, a violent plague raged in this Town; so that no less than an hundred and eleven wills were entered on the Town-rolls. There was a second plague again in the same reign a° 1360 (n).

Wat Tyler's Insurrection, which happened in the following reign, had some abettors in this town. For J. Ball, one of the chief incendiaries, calls himself some time St. Mary priest of York, and now of Colchester (o). And, after the chief ringleaders had been put to death, numbers that would not submit to the King's terms, came to this Town, and solicited the Inhabitants to a new Rebellion, but they were so wise as to remain quiet (p). In the 10th of the same reign, K. Richard being apprehensive of an Invasion from France, sent a Commission of Array, to put this Town and places adjacent in a posture of defence [H].

What part this Town took in the bloody Disputes between the Houses of York and Lancaster, doth not plainly appear. But it may be inferred, that the inhabitants were chiefly in the interest of the House of York: For K. Henry VI. deprived them of their most valuable Privilege, of the Fishery, and bestowed it on his favorite John de Vere Earl of Oxford [I]. And K. Edward IV. granted them the fullest Charter they ever had before or since.

However, they had Pardons from the several contending Kings [K]; which, probably, were things of course at that time.

August 5, 1445, K. Henry VI. came to Colchester; but the reason of his coming is not expressed (q).

The custom of this Town, in K. Edward IVth's time, as appears by one instance, was, Not to permit any person to abide forty days in Colchester, without swearing fealty to the King [L].

We do not find any remarkable particulars in the succeeding reigns till we come to K. Henry VIII. Tho' his father, K. Henry VII, left him no less than Eighteen hundred thousand pounds in ready money (r); an immense sum for those times! yet that wasteful and prodigal Monster soon squandered it away in shews, tournaments, and such other trifling amusements, without doing therewith the least service to the Kingdom (s).

(m) Cotton Libr. Titus F. iii. 18.
Richard II. by Sir R. Howard, p. 24.
p. 125.

(n) Oath-book, p. 20. 32.

(p) Tho. Walsingham, ed. Francof. 1603. p. 269.

(o) Stow's Annales, p. 294. Life of K.

(q) Oath-book,

(r) Fr. Lord Verulam's Life of Hen. VII. under the year 1508.

(s) Edw. Halle's Chronicle.

Dni Reg, p capita, vel in coi, in Com' Cantebreg' Huntynge' Hertfor' Effex assignati, p—12 homines.

[E] Be pleased to take these few instances.—Rector ecclie be Marie habet Cat' pt. xvii s.—Josep Alyanor ht. Cat' pt xl v s.—Dnus Robtus filius Walti ht in Manio suo de Lexdn catalla pret' c s. Et ht de Red. xl iii s. ix d.—Prior Sti Botulph' in Wyka Canoicor' [Canwyck] Cat' pt' x marc'. Et ht de Redd' in Colec' v l. 11 s.—Abbs Sti Johis ht in Manio de Grensted Catall' pt' x marc'. In Wyka de West-don' Cat' pt' x li. Et ht de Redd' infra libtatem Colec' xviii li. iii s. iii d.—Robts Whitfot ht Cat' pt' vi li. xiii s. iv d.—Those who had Revenues here, though they lived elsewhere, were also assessed in this place. e. g. Epus London vi s. &c. And it appears from this Roll, that the Hospital of Mapeltrested; the Abbies of Berking, Coggeshall, St. Edmundsbury; the Pories of Wykes, Colne, Tiptre, Tobbye, Campsey, St. Bartholomew's by Smithfield, had then revenues within the Liberties of Colchester.

[F] Josep Alyanor huit catall' ad valentia lx s.—Inde xii s. v s. Ada Rector Ecclie be Marie huit catall' ad valentia iii li. iii s. di. mrc'. Robts Rodebryght huit in Batayleswyk cat' ad valentia lx s.—Inde xii s. v s.

The sum of this xiith, amounted to 32 l. 12 s. 9a.

[G] Edward p la gr'ce de dieu Roy Dengleterre & de Fn'ce & Seignr Dirlande, A noz Bailliffs de nre ville de Colcestre saluz. Porce q' Johan Vanguoley nadgaires nre housage pur la citee de Bloys en Champaigne sen est departiz tout quites de son housage, hors de nre roialme de nre congie pmy la finance de deux centz marcs les queles il nous ad paieez' si volous q' vous soiez quites & deschargez de la garde du dit Johan & ent desempeschez en temps avenir. || Don' fouz nre prive seal a Westm' le xx jour d Octobre || lan de nre regne Denglet're quarante quart & de Fn'ce—(By writ of Privy-seal. Among the Town-Records.)

[H] Ricardus Dei gracia Rex Angl. & Franc & Dominus Hibernie dilectis & fidelibus suis Willielm Cooggeshale Chivaler & Waltere Godmanston ac Ballivis Ville Colcestr. Saltem. Sciatis quod cum certitudinaliter intellexerimus inimici nostri Francie & alii sibi adherentes inter se alligati & undique hostiliter congregati multimodo querant & conjecturent qualiter nos fideles nostros ac regnum nostrum Anglie miserabiliter conterere & destruere valeant, & ea maligna de causa dictum regnum nostrum accumulato toto posse suo ad idem regnum nostrum nosque & totam linguam Anglicanam subvertend. & destruend. invadere proponant infra breve nisi eis per nos gratia nobis favente divina caucius & virilius resistatur, Nos malicie hujusmodi inimicorum nostrorum gratia mediante divina resistere, ac pro salvatione & defensione ville predictae, que prope litus maris situat. contra aggressus dictorum inimicorum nostrorum disponere & ordinare volentes, & de fidelitate & circumspectione vestris plenius confidentes assignavimus vos conjunctim & divisim ad omnes homines defensabiles inter etates sexaginta & sexdecim annorum existentes arraiand, & ipsos & eorum quemlibet juxta statum & facultates suas armis competentibus muniri, & eos sic arraiatos & munitos in arraiatione hujusmodi teneri faciend. Ac etiam ad distringend. omnes illos qui in terris & bonis sunt potentes, & pro debilitate corporis ad laborandum impotentes, ad inveniendum armaturas juxta quantitatem terrarum & bonorum suorum, & prout rationabiliter portare poterunt; salvo statu suo, hominibus ad arma armatis, & sagittariis qui non habent armaturas de suo proprio, nec unde armaturas emere & providere poterunt ad resistendum malicie dictorum inimicorum nostrorum, si qui villam predictam seu partes adjacentes invadere presumpserint et ad omnes illos quos in hac parte contrarios inveneritis seu rebelles arraiand. & capiend. & prisionis nostris mancipand. in eisdem moratur. quousque pro eorum punitione aliter duxerimus ordinandum. Et ideo vobis mandamus districte injungentes, & super fide & ligeancia quibus nobis tenemini, & sub forisfactura omnium que nobis forisfacere poteritis, quod statim, visis presentibus, circa premissa diligenter intendatis & ea faciatis & exequamini in forma predicta, &c. In cujus rei testimonium has litteras nostras fieri facimus patentes. Teste meipso apud Westm. 18 die Septembr. Anno regni nostri decimo. BURTON.

(Among the Town-Records.)

[I] See below, ch. v. § 2.

[K] The Pardons of K. Henry IV. Henry V. Henry VI. and Edward IV. to this Town, under the Great Seal, are in the possession of Jeremiah Daniell Esq;

[L] For, in the year 1473, some persons were presented at the Law-hundred-court—quod moram fecerunt infra villam Colcestr' per 40 dies & ultra, & non fecerunt fidelitatem Domino Regi juxta consuetudinem ville predictae. Rot. Cur. 13 Edw. IV. rot. 19.

And though his first Parliaments had granted him very large sums, yet he was fain, in the 15th year of his reign, to have a Loan from his subjects. Upon which occasion, the inhabitants of this Borough did "lovingly avaunce to him a sum by "weye of Lone, for the maintenaunce of his "Grace and Warys ageynst Fraunce and Scott- "lond," as the words of the original schedule are [M], though the Parliament granted him at the same time very large and uncommon supplies [N].

In 1516 on the day before the feast of Corpus-Christi, Queen Catharine of Arragon came to this town, with a grand retinue, in her way to Walsingham, where she was going in pilgrimage to the famous Image of the Virgin Mary there. The Bailiffs, Aldermen, and a great number of the Burgeses went and met her at Lexden; and thence conducted her in state to St. John's Abbey, where she abode that night, and the day following. They made her a present of a purse with forty pounds; not that they were obliged to it, but to welcome her to this Town; and she made them a return. At her departure from hence, the Bailiffs, Aldermen, and Burgeses attended her; in the same state as before, to the further bounds of Mile-end parish (1).

In the year 1544, the following letter under the King's signet, came to the Bailiffs of this Town.

By the King.

Henry R.

"Trustie and welbeloved, we greate you well: And wheras betweene us and Themperor, upon provocation of manyfolde Injuries committed by the Frenche King unto us both particulerliē: And for his confederation with the Turke against thole common-wealth of Christendom, It is agreed, that eche of us aparte in persone with his puissant Armeý in severall parties this soommer shall invade the Realme of Fraunce; And being not yet furnyshed of such ample noomber of men as shall suffice for that purpose; For the good opinion we have in you to see us furnyshed as to our honour apperteyneth, We have appointed you to send us the nombre of xv hable fotemen, well furnyshed for the warres as apperteyneth, whereof three to be Archers, everye oone furnyshed with a good bowe in a cace, with xxiiii good arrowes in a cace, a good sworde and a dagger; and the rest

(1) Oath-book, p. 178.

[M] Some advanced 20s, others 26s. 14s. 12s. 10s. 4s. 2s. &c. And, for the repayment of them, the King sent his Privy-Seals, to this effect. "We Henry by the "grace of God king of England and of France defensor "of the feith and lorde of Ireland Promise by these presentis "truly to content and repay to all and singular suche persons of the Borough of Colchestre within our Countie "of Essex whose names and summes be conteigned in a "schedule indentid hereunto annexed, all and singular suche "particular summes of money as have bene by theym and "every of theym lovingly advanced unto us by the way of "loone for the defence of this our Realme and maintenance "of our warres against Fraunce and Scotland, amounting in "the hole to the summe of One hundred one pounds and "foure shilling ft. In witness whereof to these presents we "have caused our prively seale to be sette the xxviiiith day of "the moneth of Aprill. The xvth yere of our Reigne."

From the original, among the Town-records.

[N] Namely 2s. in the pound of every man's lands or to be bill men, having, besides theyre bills, a good sworde and a dagger: To be levied of your own servants and tenants. And that you put the faide nombre in such a redynes, furnished with cotes and hosen of such colours as is appointed for the Battell of our Armeý. As they faile not within oone howres warnyng to marche forward to suche place as shall be appointed accordinglye. Yeven undre our signet at our Palace of Westm' the vth daie of June the xxxvth yere of our Reigne" (u).

Towards the latter end of this reign, the Face of this town underwent a great Alteration for the worse. For the stately Church and Abbey of St. John's, the Priory of St. Botolph's, the Church and Hospital of the Crouched-Friers, &c. which were a great Ornament to this place, and a considerable Support to the Poor, were either demolished or permitted to grow ruinous. The Revenues undoubtedly came into more usefull hands. But, however, pity it is, that some of them were not applied to the public Benefit of the Kingdom; or reserved to make provision for the Poor, either by founding a good Hospital in this large Town, or by establishing a fund in every Parish for their better maintenance. But there were growing Families that wanted to raise large Estates at once. —Whatever cause it was owing to, I have not been able truly to discover: But certain it is, that the Town went then much to decay; so that twenty five houses, or tenements, were taken down in Headward only, and others were grown very ruinous; for which the owners of them were presented and prosecuted; a thing very uncommon and extraordinary, unless those had been Town-houses, which doth not appear.

In the reign of K. Edward VI, the Reformation was established in this Town, as in the rest of the Kingdom; and a rational Service set up, in the room of a burdensom load of superstition. But, according to the common Foible and Perverseness of Human Nature, Christians, instead of making a thankful Use of the glorious Liberty they were restored to, fell into violent Contentions and Quarrels about trifles; and, instead of uniting with meekness and decency in the regular and established Worship of God, embraced any thing, though full of the most palpable absurdities, or of the most blasphemous reflections on God's moral character; and did run into the wildest freaks of Enthusiasm, and what not [O].

(u) From the original.

goods, that was worth, or could spend 20l. &c. See E. Halle's Chron. fol. 100.

[O] In this Town, in particular, much about this time, (to use the Words of a contemporary Writer,) "least Satan should be thought to bee idle, &c. he styrred up divers Schismaticall spirits, which—sought to be teachers of that wherof they had no understanding, and thereby turned the knowledge of God's testimonies (which in many of them though it was small, yet somewhat) to vayne and contentious janglying, whereby the deare Saintes of God were not a little disquieted: at such tyme especially as some of them beyng condemned to death looked to tast of the same cup, whiche had bene in full measure powred out unto their brethren. [viz. in Q. Mary's time.] For not only in the private assemblies of the godly did these spider-catchers swarm together to pervert the right ways of the Lord, but also in divers prisons in London they kept a continual haunt, where they scattered their devilish coole of abominable herefies among such as were committed for the love of the Gospel." One of the busiest

To which must be added, That no tolerable maintenance was left in this, no more than in most other Towns, for a laborious and preaching Ministry. And therefore it is to be wished, that some Chantries, as Barwick's and Harmanfon's in St. Leonard's, which were partly founded for helping to serve the cure of that church, had been preserved for that use; as well as others; and not squandered away to no good purpose whatever.

In 1549, there was a Dearth in and about this Town; for the remedying of which, an Order of Council was sent down, the 20th of November, to the Justices and other Gentlemen of this County, to be communicated to the Mayor, Bailiffs, and other Head-officers of every market-town: Whereby they were impowered to search the barns, granaries, and houses of every farmer, and others, having corn to sell; and to oblige them to bring, every market-day, such a quantity of grain to market, as they could conveniently spare.

Upon pious K. Edward's decease, I find that Colchester declared for Q. Mary, in opposition to the learned and most deserving Lady Jane Grey. For Messengers were dispatched from hence, and provisions sent to Q. Mary, at Framlingham, of which the accounts are extant [P]. This Town was also put into a posture of defence against her opposers: And so well did she like the Magistrates Zeal, that she came to this place July 26, 1553. The Corporation made her a present of 20*l.* in gold; and of a cup of silver, with a cover, parcel gilt, weighing forty one ounces [Q]; and spent a great deal of money in treating her.

The 7th of March following, an Order of Council came to Colchester, to put in readiness 18 armed men, viz. 10 archers, and eight bill-men, well harneſſed and weaponed, to be ready at one hour's warning to be embarked at Brightlingsſey, for the service of her Majesty beyond the seas, at Calais or elsewhere, as they should be appointed.

During this cruel reign, the fire of Persecution raged in Colchester, as well as in other parts of the Kingdom. For March 29, John Lawrence; and June 14. 1555, Nicolas Chamberlayne, were burnt here (w). April 28, 1556,

John Mace apothecary, John Spence, weaver, Simon Joyne, sawyer, Richard Nichols, weaver, and John Hammond, tanner, were burnt in this town (x). As the June following, Elizabeth the wife of Thomas Pepper, and Edmund Hurst, both of St. James's Colchester, were burnt at Stratford-bow (y) August 2, 1557, William Bongeor of St. Nicolas, glazier, William Purcas, of Bocking, Thomas Benold, tallow chandler, Agnes Silverſide alias Smith, Helen Ewring, and Elizabeth Folks, were burnt in this place, without the Town-wall, in the morning: As were, in the afternoon of the same day, within the Castle-yard, William Munt, Alice Munt, John Johnson, and Rose Allin. And John Thurston died a prisoner in the Castle, for religion (z). About the same time, 14 men, and eight women, were apprehended, and (fastned all in a string) driven up, like a flock of sheep, to London, and imprisoned; but shortly after were released, upon their own easy submission (a). May 26, 1558, William Harris, Richard Day, and Christiana George, were burnt at Colchester, being the last that suffered this most unnatural punishment here (b). Eight others remained prisoners on account of Religion [R]; but were set at liberty the beginning of the year following, 1559 (c);

For, these cruel Fires were extinguished with that detested Monster Mary I.; and the Reformed Religion flourished again, upon the peaceable accession of Q. Elizabeth; who carried the English Name, Commerce, Discoveries, and Reputation to the highest pitch of Grandeur; and brought this Town into a more flourishing condition than it had been for some time before.

The first years of her reign do not furnish us with any occurrences, particularly relating to this place. But,

In 1571, the Dutch and Flemings first came and settled in Colchester, and brought with them the most valuable Trade of Bay and Say making, as I shall shew under Chap. IV. § I. of this Book.

In December 1578, there was a plague in this Town, and neighbourhood; which continued

(w) J. Foxe's Acts and Monuments, &c. edit. 1684, Vol. III. Reform. Part II. p. 307.

(y) J. Foxe, ibid. p. 593, 594.

(b) Ibid. p. 732.

(c) J. Strype's Annals of the Reformat. Vol. I. edit. 1725. p. 39.

(x) Ibid. p. 586. and Bishop Burnet's Hist. of the fellows of this kind here, was one Henry Harte. And in 1555, Christopher Vitels, a disciple of Henry Nicholas the founder of the Family of Love, coming from Delft, brought over and spread their Tenets in and about this Town. This fellow Vitels was a joyner by trade; but "being, as it seemed, weary of his occupation, he left his craft of joign-

(z) Ibid. p. 700.

(a) Ibid. p. 656, 657.

"yng, and took unto him a new trade of lyfe: so that of a "simple Scholer he became a great and learned Schole-maister
"of that doctrine." He is said to have "held many strange
"opinions." Confutation of the Family of Love, by William Wilkinſon. Lond. 1579. 4°.

[P] They sent her among otherthings, three tuns of beer, which cost 3*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.* And the carriage of the same, in six carts, came to 4*l.*

[Q] Which, at 7*s.* per ounce, amounted to 14*l.* 7*s.* And, among other expences on account of her being here, I find these particulars in the Chamberlain's account for that year. For 38 doz. of bread, 39*s.* For 59 gallons of claret-wine, 48*s.* Ten barrells of Beer. A quarter of beef weighing five score and ten pounds, 9*s.* 2*d.* A side of beef weighing seven score and five pounds, 12*s.* 1*d.* A veal, 4*s.* Half a veal, 2*s.* 4*d.* Two muttons, 9*s.* 4*d.* &c.

[R] It will be proper to add here, what Mr. Wilkinſon relates concerning the state of this Town, in these perillous times. "The auncient and famous Towne of Colchester was in the troublesome tyme of Queene Maries persecution a sweete and comfortable mother of the bodyes, and a tender nurse of the souls, of Gods children: which towne was the rather at that tyme frequented, because it afforded many godly and zealous Martyrs, whiche continually with their blood watered those feedes, which by the preaching of the worde had been sowne most plentifully in the hartes of Christians in the dayes of good Kyng Edward. This towne for the earnest profession of the Gospell became like unto a citie upon an hill, and as a candle upon a candleſticke gave great light to all those who for the comfort of their conscience came to conferre there from divers places of the Realme, and repaireing to common Innes had by night their Christian exercises, whiche in other places could not be gotten. For prooffe whereof I referre the Reader unto that which is truly reported by M. Foxe in his booke of Actes and Monuments: (1st Edit. p. 606. A.) that at the Kynges-head in Colchester, and at other Innes in the sayd Towne, the afflicted Christians had set places appointed for themselves to meet at."—A brief till till the August following, though useful Orders had been given to prevent the spreading of the infection.

The Queen took a progress through part of this County, and of Suffolk, in 1579 [S], and was here the 1st and 2d of September. For her better reception, the following orders were made. "That the Bayliffs and Aldermen, in the receipt of her Majestie, shall ride upon comely geldings, with foot-clothes, in damask or sattin cassocks or coats, or else jackets of the same, with sattin sleeves in their scarlet-gowns, with caps and black velvet tippets. The Councill to attend upon the Bayliffs and Aldermen at the same time, upon comely geldings, with foot-clothes, in grogram or silk cassock coats or jackets, with silk doublets, or sleeves at the least in their livery morray-gowns, with caps: &c. —That her Majesty shall be gratified from the Town with a Cup of silver double-gilt, of the value of 20 marks, or 10*l.* at the least, with 40 Angels in the same, and the Officers of her Majesty to be gratified as afore they have been. The Recorder for the time being, to make the Oration to her Majesty (d)."

Before the Art of Murdering was arrived to such a hellish pitch as it hath since, the Safety and Defence of this kingdom depended in a great measure upon the Militia; therefore the multering of them, in this as well as the foregoing reign, was a considerable Business, and duly and frequently performed. Q. Elizabeth, in particular, as she had chiefly, if not solely, the Hearts and Hands of her own Subjects to rely upon, took a zealous care to have them duly trained and exercised: Especially when she came to have apprehensions from the revengeful Spaniard. For that purpose, with regard to this Town, special Commissions were generally granted to the two Bailiffs, and a few other neighbouring Gentlemen [T], to take those Musters, somewhere within the precincts of our Liberties. And then the Bailiffs sent warrants to the High Constables of each ward; to warn, and command in the Queen's name, all able men, being not sick, impotent, or lame, from the age of 16 years to 60, resident, dwelling, or sojourning within each parish, hamlet, or village, within the said ward (all spiritual persons, Justices of either Bench, and all head-officers of every of the Queen's courts of record occupying judicial places in their own persons, only excepted) personally to appear and muster before, &c. As also all manner of persons, within the limits of the said ward, to bring, at the said day, upon able mens backs, all manner of armour and weapons for Foot-men, which either by the laws of this realm, or heretofore, by any new increase or order, they were bound or had promised to keep, or had in readiness. And to warn the petty Constables of every parish, to shew, upon able mens backs, all such common and Parish armour, which the whole parish by itself must find; scowered, and in all points perfect: With a schedule of the names and surnames of all able men within their several parishes, and the quality of their vocations; together with the names and surnames of all such persons as kept any armour or weapon.

The Queen, upon the earnest Entreaties of the States of the United Provinces, having promised them assistance; in order to raise sufficient Forces for that purpose, this county sent a hundred and fifty soldiers, in August 1585, under the command of Sir Walter Walker; towards which number this Town furnished Eight men, single persons, or such as might be best spared; provided as below [U]. The General of this body of auxiliaries, Robert Earl of Leicester, in his way to the Low-Countries, Decemb. 6. came to this Town; where he was honourably received by the Magistrates, and splendidly and generously entertained by Sir Thomas Lucas (e).

Upon the news and apprehensions of the intended Spanish Invasion in 1588, great and suitable preparations were made throughout the Kingdom. Among the rest, Colchester furnished Two ships, and a pinnace, for the Queen's service at this critical juncture. One of the ships, was the Foresight of London; the particular charge of which is set down in the Appendix [W]. The other ship, was the Margaret and John 80 tuns burden; owners Mrs. Turner, Mr. Richard Lambert, and—Chandler. And the pinnace, was the Mark Speedwell, owner, Tho. Lambert, 18 tuns bur-

(d) Book of Assemblies, 7 Jul. 20 Eliz.

(e) Stow's Annales, p. 710. col. 2.

Description of the first springing up of the Heresie, termed The Familie of Love, &c. by W. Wilkinson.

[S] Her Majesty's Stages, or Rests, were thus: Aug. 5. From Greenwich to Havering, and there 5 days: Aug. 10, to Woodcroft-hall, Mr. Weston Browne's, and there 2 days: Aug. 12, to Lees, the Lord Riche's, and there 3 days: Aug. 15, to Gosfelde, the Lady Matraver's, and there 5 days: Aug. 20 to Small-bridge, Mr. Walgraves, and there 2 days, Aug. 22, to Ipswich, and there 4 days: Aug. 26, to Harwich, there 3 days: Aug. 29, to the Lord Darcy's, and there 3 days: Septemb. 1, to Colchester, and there 2 days: Septemb. 3, to Leyr-marnoy, Mrs Tuke's, and there 2 days: Septemb. 5, to Malden, Mrs Harries, 2 days: Sept. 7, to Mousham, Sir Tho. Mildemay's, and there 4 days: Sept. 11, to the Lady Petre's at Ingatstone, and there 3 days: Sept. 14. to Havering. (From a MS.)

[T] A Commission in 1583, consisted of, Edward Earl of Oxford; Robert Lord Riche; Thomas Lord Darcy of Chiche; William Turner, Rob. Byrd, Bailiffs of Colchester; Sir Francis Walsingham, Kt. Recorder of the same; Sir William Waldegrave, Kt; Edm. Pyrton Esq; James

Morice Esq; Town-clark; Tho. Tey, Geo. Knightlye, John Ive, Esquires; Tho. Laurence, John Hunwick, Richard Lambart, John Byrd, Aldermen and Justices of the Peace of this Town; and Rob. Lambart, John Pye, Rob. Mott, Tho. Coek, Aldermen.

[U] Of these eight men, Six were Shott, and Two Pikemen. —Every Shott was furnished with a qualiver of the musket bore, mould and worm for the piece, morian, flask with six charges, flask-leather, touch-box, purse for pellets; all which furniture for each cost, 16*s.* 8*d.* for the whole six, 5*l.* And six swords, daggers and girdles for them, came to 53*s.* —Each of the two Pikemen was armed with a corselet and burgonet, which cost 26*s.* 8*d.* Their two Pikes came to 6*s.* 8*d.* And their two swords and daggers, with the buff-girdles to 18*s.* —Besides which, there was delivered to the Captain for Conduct-money, for every of the eight soldiers, 6*s.* 8*d.* —in the whole 53*s.* 4*d.* And to every one of the Soldiers themselves (besides 3*s.* 4*d.*) 26*s.* 8*d.* Item the charges of their eight blue coats or Mandilions, 6*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Total 21*l.* 18*s.* 8*d.*

[W] See No. IV.

den. They were furnished, for two months, with victuals, mariners, ammunition &c. and obliged by the 25th of April to join her Majesty's Navy on the seas for the defence of the kingdom. And in order to defray the charge of them, there was a Tax laid on all the Inhabitants within this Liberty, at 2s. in the pound on goods, and 3s. land (f).

The 11th of October following, her Majesty granted a Commission to Sir John Norris and Sir Francis Drake, to retaliate on the Spaniards. In pursuance of which, the Deputy-Lieutenants of the County of Essex sent a Letter to the Bailiffs of this Town; signifying to them, That in virtue of this Commission the said Sir John Norris and Sir Francis Drake had authority to levy within the several counties of this realm certain numbers of Soldiers and Pioners, to be employed in some special service committed to their charge; amongst which numbers, this county was proportioned to set forth 250 Soldiers, and 60 Pioners: So as by allotment it fell to this Borough to find and set forth 13 Soldiers and 4 Pioners: In the choice of whom, her Majesty's express command was, that great care should be taken they might be strong and serviceable persons. Her Majesty's further pleasure was, that there should be an allowance, at the common charge of the country, made to every Soldier of 13s. 4d. and to every Pioner 6s. 8d. which they were to see collected within this Borough, answerable to their proportion: And also so much conduct-money for every of the said Soldiers and Pioners, after the rate of 8d. by the day, as might suffice to bring them to Romford, to be there the 20th of that month, by 10 o'clock in the forenoon, delivered to their captain (g).

An Army being raised in England, on purpose to assist K. Henry IV. against the Leaguers; by order of Council, in January 1590-1, a hundred and fifty able men were levied and arrayed within this County, to be transported into Bretagne, which had been seized by the Leaguers and a body of Spaniards. Upon that occasion eight men, able of body, were raised in each Ward here; from such as might best be spared, and were newly come into the Town. Again, in March 1591-2, fourteen soldiers were pressed in this Borough for the same service: And, the July following, six men were likewise raised, armed, and put in readiness here, to be embarked at Harwich [with 144 more out of this county] for serving in Normandy; under the Earl of Essex, General of all those her Majesty's forces then sent abroad. The like number of six soldiers, part of 135 out of this county, was again raised in this Town, in Septemb. 1596, with the sum of 21l. for their arms, apparel, and furniture, at 3l. 10s. each: to be transported from Harwich into France.

In 1595, this Town, and the other ports in Essex, were ordered to furnish three ships, for the service of her Majesty, at Cadiz. And on this occasion, Colchester paid 200l. to the Vice-Admiral of Essex, towards the furnishing of one ship (h) [X].

In the year 1593, this Town began to be first charged with Purveiance, or Composition-service, for the Queen's Household; which the Corporation long refused to yield to, as thinking it inconsistent with their Charters and Privileges. But at length they were forced to submit thereto, towards the end of the year 1595 (i); and for the assessing of it, an account was taken of the Lands in every Parish within this Town and the Liberties, and renewed in 1599, of which the originals are in my possession. The sum paid by this Town for Composition-service, was only 6l. a year.

Upon the discovery of the Spanish Fleet on the coasts of France, in August 1599, an order was sent to the Bailiffs of this Town; straightly charging and commanding them, upon pain of death, presently and without delay on the receipt thereof, to give warning to all persons concerned, to repair with all possible speed, upon pain of death, to the place of rendezvous formerly appointed.

During the best part of Q. Elizabeth's reign, this Town had the Wisdom of chusing, and the Honour and Happiness of having, for their Recorder the great Sir Francis Walsingham, for whom they expressed a due regard; and, through his means, received from the Court all the Favour and Protection they could desire [Y].

The unactive reign of K. James I. affords but few materials.

The Plague which raged, at his accession, in the city of London, spread itself as far as this place, where it swept off great numbers in Octob. Novemb. Decemb. and January 1604 (k). The only times it hath appeared since in this Town, was in the years 1631 (l), and 1665 and 1666.

In 1608, there was a Dearth of Grain and

(f) Book of Assemblies Apr. 6. 15. 1588. and other MSS. (g) From the original. The other particulars not mentioned to be taken from printed Books, or not referred to in the margin, are likewise taken from MSS. (h) Book of Assemblies 7 Janu. and 9 March 1585. (i) Books of Assemblies, 1593. &c. (k) Register-book of St. Mary's. (l) Register Book of St. Mary's.

[X] But, in June 1591, when Ships were fitted out at the charge of the Ports, they pleaded Inability; as appears by this letter of theirs to Sir Thomas Henneage. "Right honourable (our most humble duties remembered) understandinge, that there are, or lyek to be, certen Shyps apoynted to some places to be provided presentlye for the service of her Majestie, we are bold to flye unto your Honour for the patronizing of our poor Towne therein: not for that the same ys unwilling to further any service of her highnes (which our whole Towne, to the uttermost of their powers hathe and wyle be most prone to accomplish) but in respect of the great Decay that this Towne ys fallen into, and the charge of thyrtyne score trained souldyers, besydes the great burthen in the last setting forth of one shipp, wherewith it was alone charged, and other Villages and Townes which weare apoynted to joyne with us, discharged; for which as yet this Towne ys indebted some hundred and fyfthe powndes, constrained to pay use for the same, by reason we are not able as yet to answer it; beseeching your Honor as sole patron of the good estate of this Corporation, to extend your honorable favor herein, &c."—22d of June 1591.

[Y] See Appendix to Book I. No. V.

In 1608, there was a dearth of grain and other victual about this, as well as other parts of the kingdom; for the preventing and remedying of which these uncommon measures were taken. The constables in each ward took an account, of the number of persons in every family that had corn by them, what number of acres they had sown; what bargains they had made with any person for any kind of grain to be sold, by, or to them; and what quantity of any manner of grain they had in their barns, granaries, &c. Also what number of kidders, malt-makers, bakers, common brewers, or tiplers, dwelt in each parish. And, according to that survey, every person was ordered to bring weekly to market, so many quarters or bushels of corn, as they had not directly sold to the poor artificers or day-labourers of the parish within which they dwelt [Z].

In 1609, this town paid 46l. for the aid for making the King's eldest son, Prince Henry, a Knight: And, in 1612, they paid 63l. 6s. 8d. for marrying the King's daughter, the Princess Elizabeth, to P. Frederick, Elector Palatine (m). These respective sums were levied upon the Burgage-lands in this town, for which purpose an account was taken of them: and is still extant, though not quite perfect.

In 1611, money was raised in this and other places by Privy-seals; a method always unpopular and disagreeable.

This reign abounded with Patents and Proclamations. Of the first kind I shall give an instance in the Note, concerning the Patent of Inns [A], which though remonstrated against by the Parliament, and frequently mentioned by our Historians, yet is no where duly explained. But, notwithstanding these Patents, Ale-houses continued to be licensed by, and under the direction of, the Justices of Peace, as before.

K. Charles I. at his accession to the Crown, found the nation engaged in a war with Spain; the causes of which it is not needful here to enquire into.

About the beginning of the summer, in 1625, the Spaniards had 28 sail at Dunkirk; which threatened a descent on our coasts, and greatly alarmed all these parts (n). Whereupon, orders from the Privy-Council, and from the Deputy-Lieutenants of Essex, were sent on the 10th of June, to the Magistrates of this town, To take present care, as well for their own safety as that of the whole county, that this Corporation should be well furnished with all military provisions fitting for the defence thereof; always well manned; and the trained bands, and others fit to bear arms, exercised, and in readiness. And, moreover, great numbers were sent down to Harwich, and parts adjacent; which were furnished from hence with necessaries [as beer at a quart a penny, &c.] and all the military Engines this town had, or could procure; these forces having no other remedy but to have recourse to this town, and Ipswich. Our Magistrates likewise sent a light vessel unto the coast of Flanders, to espy the enemies motions; which brought word, that they were blocked up by 40 sail of Dutch (o).

The 2d of September a fleet of the enemies was discovered off Harwich, as appears by the letter below [B]: but it only occasioned a panick, without any real danger.

However, the town of Newcastle upon Tyne, and the northern coasts of England, continued a long time exposed to the outrages of the men of war of Dunkirk; for preventing which inconveniencies for the future, and setting out shipping for the guarding and defending of those coasts, his Majesty not only assigned a great part of the revenues of his crown accruing by the forfeitures and fines of Recusants in the counties north of the Trent; but also consented to have a contribution of Six-pence, on every chaldron of coals that should be transported from Newcastle into any of his dominions, or

(m) From the Receipt; and Order.

(n) J. Rushworth's Histor. Collect. p. 195.

(o) From the Lord

[Z] The Orders issued by the King, by reason of this dearth, are in print—By the account taken in this Town, it appears, That Sir Tho. Lucas had about 30 persons in family; and Robert Audeley Esq; 24, besides many extraordinary comers: That some brewers brewed 30 or 40 quarters of malt in a week; and some bakers baked 5 quarters of flower weekly, &c.

[A] James, by the grace of God, &c. Knowe ye that We for and in consideration of the somme of five poundes of lawfull money of England well and truly paid to our use into the office of the Receiver of our rents, synes, and profits of licenses of Innkeepers by Thomas Benne of Colchester in the county of Essex yeoman, are contented and pleased, and by these presents of our especiall grace, &c. doe give and graunte full and free liberty, license, power, and authority, unto the said Thomas Benne and his assignes during the lives of Thomas Benne the younger, James Benne, and Frederick Benne his sonnes, and the life of the longest liver of them, to keep an Inne or common Hosterie in the house of the said Tho. Benne the elder in Colchester aforesaid, wherein Elizeus Benne, his brother, nowe dwelleth, and to continue for a signe there the signe of the Shipp. Yielding and paying therefore yearly during the said terme to us, our heirs, and successors the yearly rent of tenne shillings of lawfull English money, The same to be paid to the handes of the Receiver of us our heirs and successors constituted and appointed to receive the same, at the feasts of the annunciation of the blest Virgin Mary, and St. Michaell the archangell, by even and equal portions. Provided alwaies that if the said rent be behinde and unpaid in parte or in all by the space of forty daies next after either of the said feasts wherein the same ought to be paid as aforesaid, that then this present license to be voyd. Provided also that the said Thomas Benne and his assignes doe keepe the assizes of bread, beere, and ale, and measures according to the lawes and statutes of this realme. And further doe observe and keepe the prices of horse-meate by our Justices of assize sett downe, or from tyme to tyme to be sett downe at the generall assizes to be holden for the said county of Essex. In witnes whereof we have caused these our letters to be made patent. Witnes ourselfe at Westminster the 28th day of February, in the 17th yeere of our raigne of England, &c. Per warran' Commissionar' Yonge and Pye. On the back, Intra't die & anno infrascripto per me P. Bassano Registr' pro Rege.

It was usual in this reign, for our Corporation to make presents of sugar-loaves, to persons of rank and estates, from whom they expected Favour and Protection: And from the Chamberlain's accounts we learn, that in 1607 in particular, the best refined sugar was 2s. 2d. and the next best 1s. 10d. a pound.

[B] "Mr. Bayliffs, By all presumption a great Fleete of enemies are bownd for England, and are descried upon the coast of Harwich. The Town is weakly provided to defend itselfe, and the countre-foldiers destitute of powder, beyond the seas into foreign parts: as appears by a letter under the King's signet in the Appendix [C], sent to the Bayliffs, Burgeffes, and members of the Town of Colchester, being a curious original.

About the beginning of the year 1627, forces were transported from these parts to the King of Denmark's assistance; but they went so much against their will, that the militia was sent from this town, to restrain their mutinies.

The October following, 100 men were impressed within this county, to be sent to Plymouth, for the expedition against France; of which number ten able men were raised in this town, with eight pounds in money [D]. And likewise 150*l.* towards the expedition against the pirates of Algiers and Tunis.

In 1634, ship-money was first imposed upon This and other maritime towns; and the Writ, under the great seal, directed, that the chief Magistrates of Ipswich, Orford, Aldburgh, Dunwich, Southold, Colchester, Malden, and Harwich, should by a time therein limited, assess and levie upon their said citie, townes, &c. such sum or sums of money as should be sufficient for the providing and setting out of a ship of 700 tons furnished in all points. But it appears by two orders of council, of the 9th of December and the 21st of January following, to hasten the levy, that this town was very backward in raising their proportion. And in the second order, directed to the Sheriffs of Essex and Suffolk, the King was graciously pleased to offer, that since these two counties had not a ship of 700 tons burden meet for that employment, his Majesty would furnish them with one, so as they caused the full sum of 6615*l.* to be forthwith levied, and sent up.

The next year, 1635, this County, with the severall corporate towns therein, were ordered to pay 8000*l.* towards the setting forth of a ship of 800 tons burden; The proportion of which charged upon Colchester was 400*l.* But this town refused to pay their share, alledging the demand thereof to be an intrusion upon their privileges [E]; as appears by an order of council, 18 May 1636 [F]. And, so long after as 1639, they petitioned the Privy-Council for ease thereof, on account of the deadness of trade in the town, and other reasons, which rendered them unable to pay so large a sum (p).

Whether owing to this, or to the general disaffection which had spread itself almost throughout the southern parts of this kingdom, especially among traders; it is certain, that a spirit of sedition and disloyalty, began early to break forth in Colchester. For, as soon as January 1641-2, a Petition from thence was presented to the House of Commons, against Bishops, and for Liberty of Conscience; desiring, that Church-Discipline might be established according to the word of God, and the town better fortified (q). In compliance with the latter part of which petition, the Parliament granted 1500*l.* for making the town of Colchester, and the Blockhouse at Mersey defensible (r). From petitioning, the Inhabitants here proceeded to more flagrant overt-acts of disloyalty and violence. For, August 22, 1642, they seized Sir John Lucas, who was preparing, with about 10 or 12 horse, and some arms, to go to King Charles into the North; barbarously used his mother and Lady, with his chaplain, Mr. Thomas Newcomen, Rector of H. Trinity here; robbed and plundered his house at St. John's [G], not sparing even the ashes and remains of his ancestors in the Church of St. Giles adjoining; and carried him, and Mr. Newcomen, prisoners up to London (*).

But, excepting these outrages, this town had at first very little share in the dreadful calamities, the cruel plunderings and ravages, the murders and bloody battles, which brought the rest of the kingdom almost to the brink of destruction.

For, the major part of the chief inhabitants of this county of Essex, being in the Parliament's interest; they entered, as early as December 1642, into an association with the counties of Suffolk, Norfolk, Hertford, and Cambridge, [including the Isle of Ely;] wherein they engaged to aid, succour, and assist one another in the mutual defence and preservation of themselves, and of the peace of the said Counties from all rapines, plunderings, &c. For that purpose, large subscriptions were made, arms provided, the trained bands formed into companies and regiments, officers appointed, and all proper means of safety and defence used by the Lord-Lieutenants and Deputy-Lieutenants (s). This was called the Eastern-Association.

Some months before, the governing party in this town had very readily complied with the propositions and orders of the Parliament, for the bringing in of money and plate, or subscribing to maintain horse and arms, for the prefer-bullets, and many other necessities for such an important service. I thinke you shall doe very well to drawe your Trained band to Harwich, and to come so well provided of all manner of munition, as that you may help supplie the wants of your neighbors. This requireth much hast, for dangers are not to be dallied with—This I write in the absence of Sir Harbottell, who is allredie gone to Harwich, with some few forces, but hath left order for a letter to be brought to this purpose. —

(p) Book of Assemblies, 26 Dec. 1639. (q) Sir W. Dugdale's View of the Troubles, &c. p. 85. (r) Sir Harb. Grimston's Letter of Novemb. 5, 1642. MS. (*) Mercurius Rust. p. 1. and Vicars's Chronic. p. 144. (s) Exact Collection of Remonstrances, p. 807, &c.

From Bradfield-hall, this second of Sept. 1625.

Your loving neighbour, and friend,

Willm. Lynne.

[C] See the Appendix to Book I. No. vi.

[D] For the coating and conducting of them: Which money was disbursed by the Country, according to precedents of former times, and levied by a rate upon the inhabitants, with as much equality as possible. (Order of the Deputy-Lieutenants.)

[E] However they paid some part of it, as appears by a Receipt of Cranmer Herries Esq; Sheriff of this County, dated 17 July 1635, to one of the Bayliffs of this Town, for 9*l.* 8*s.* in part of the foresaid sum. (Penes me.)

[F] This Order is signed only by Guil. London, Lenos, Hamilton, Sterling, Traquair, Tho. Jermyn, J. Coke, and Fran. Windebank. (Orig. penes me.)

[G] Some of these Plunderers were confined, and sent up to the Parliament; but the Representatives for this Town, and the prevailing Party in the House of Commons, so far interested themselves in their behalf, that they escaped without punishment. Harb. Grimston's Letter Feb. 24, 1642-3; and his and Sir Tho. Barrington's vation vation of the public peace (i). And how much they were cajoled and complimented for this their forward zeal, will appear by the following original letter to Mr. Wade, Mayor, and the rest of the Aldermen.

“ Gentlemen, Wee have acquainted the Parliament with your extraordinary Care and Paines in advancing the Proposicions for the raisinge of horse, armes, money and plate for the defence of the Kinge, Parliament, and kingdome; how well your services are accepted of and what thanks we are enjoined to give yourselves and the rest of the gentlemen, free-houlders and others of your towne for your zeales therein, and how farre they have engaged themselves for the protection and defence of the county: the order of both Houses of Parliament will better speake it then our letter, and for your better satisfactions, to that wee must for the present referre yee which Mr. Grimeston will acquaint you with. The perfectinge of that worke begunne by you with soe great affection, and wherein you have mett with soe much incouragement both from the Parliament and people, is the occasion of this letter. And in the first place wee are commanded to desire yee to send away the money and plate subscribed for, with all the speede yee can. And likewise to give particular notice to them that have ingaged themselves for the findinge of horses, to bringe them upp to London, where there is order taken for the present in-rollinge and vallueinge of them. Many Lords doe want horse, to make upp their troupes, and the service and safety of the kingdome doe much depend uppon your activitie and dispatch herein which wee have cause to bee very confident of. And soe with the remembrance of our kindest respects, &c. wee rest your assured lovinge friends, Tho. Barrington. Mart. Lumley.

Aug. 22, Henry Mildmay. Wm. Masham.
1642. Har. Grimston.”

Shortly after, the Committee of the Lords and Commons for the safety of the kingdom, made use of the “activitie and dispatch” of the leading men in this place, jointly with the inhabitants of the other towns in this county, and in Suffolk, to raise 2000 horse for dragoons [H]. Which they not only did [I]; but also sent, at several times, large supplies of Men and Money, for the Parliament’s service, in opposition to the King.

The chief Supplies of Men they furnished, were,

1. One company sent towards London, in the beginning of November 1642, under the command of Capt. John Langley, when his Majesty was then entered Middlesex [K], and threatening that city. And they were at the charge of their pay and maintenance for thirty days, which amounted to 285*l.* 10*s.*—

2. One compleat Company they also impressed, in the beginning of the year 1643, for the Earl of Manchester’s use: and sent it to Cambridge [L], the rendezvous of the Forces raised in

(i) Ibid. p. 339, &c.

Letter, Feb. 21, 1642-3. MS. See also an exact Collection of all Remonstrances, &c. Lond. 1643. 4^o. p. 592. 605. and J. Vicars’s Parliamentary Chronicle, p. 144.

[H] The Order of the Committee began in this manner; “ 28 Octob. 1642. Whereas the Lords and Commons in Parliament have chosen the Earl of Warwicke Generall of the Forces now to be raised in the Cittie of London and adjacent Countyes for the service of the King and Parliament, Six thousand whereof are immediatlie to be sent to his Excellencie the Earle of Essex: And in regard of the season of the yeare, they cannot well march on foote, nor do that service that otherwise they might if they were horsed, It is therefore ordered, that the Maior and Aldermen of Colchester, the Bailiffs and townsmen of Chelmsford, Malden, Braintree, Bocking, Coxhall, Dunmow, Dedham in the County of Essex: and also the Bayliffs and townsmen of Ipswich, Woodbridge, Edmundsbury, Framingham, Saxmundham in the Countie of Suffolke, shall forthwith procure and raise in the said severall townes, and other places adjacent, two thousand horses for dragoons, or as manie as possibly they may, for the service aforesaid, and with all possible speed to send them up to London unto Thomas Browne Grocer, and Maximilian Beard Girdler, by us appointed to lift horses for the service aforesaid; Which horses so sent up shal be valued by the Commissaries appointed for that purpose; and satisfaction shall be made to the severall owners, according to the propositions of monie, plate, and raising horses.”

&c. — Subscribed by

Northumberland. Warwick. Pembroke, W. Say and Seal. Wharton. J^{no} Pym. Gilbert Gerrard, Anthony Nicholl,”

And the Warrant thereupon from the Committee of Parliament, or Deputy-Lieutenants of this County to the Mayor, &c. of this Town. for putting that Order in execution, concluded with these urgent words. — “ And all high Constables, petty Constables, and other officers are hereby required to obey your directions in this service, and to be aydinge and assistinge to you therein, as persons in whom the Parliament hath reposed great trust and authority for the defence of this county: and yee are all hereby desired for God’s sake, and as you tender the safety of your lives, estates, and, that which is dearest of all, your Religion, and the government of this kingdome, to execute this warrant with all possible expedition, wherein we are confident noe good subject or honest Christian will be wantinge. Given under our hands this 29th of Oct. 1642.

Tho. Barrington. Henry Mildmay. Ric. Everarde,
Tho. Honeywood. Jo. Sayer. Har. Grimston.
Ti. Middleton.” (From the originals.)

[I] And very amply and readily, as Mr. John Sayer, of Bouchier’s hall, acknowledges in his letter to them of Novemb. 4. 1642.—“ I understand you have bene very “ forward and active in the service: And that your Towne “ have sent up a large number.”—

[K] Upon that occasion, the following letter was sent throughout this County. “ All you of the County of Essex that are well affected to the Parliament and City of London; know, That the King’s army under the pretence of peace and accommodation are marchyng upp within seven myles of London, and are now in fight with my Lord of Essex, And intends to surprize the City this night; you are therefore desired with all possible speed, as you tender your Religion, lives, and liberties; Repair forthwith with your Trained bands and Volentiers to the City of London to defend the Parliament City yourselves and the kingdome against our Enimys to be commanded by his Excellency the Earle of Warwicke.”

Subscribed by

Isaac Pennington, Major. Henry Mildmay.
Tho. Atkin. John Wollaston. John Towse.
John Fowke. William Gibbs, and four more.
London 12th Nov. 1642. — [with trembling hands, and in a great hurry.]

[L] The following Letter of the famous Oliv. Cromwell, giving some account of this Company, may not be unacceptable to the Reader; whom I shall leave to make proper reflexions upon it. “ Gentlemen, Upon the cominge down of your townsmen to Cambride, Capt. Langlie not knowinge how to dispose of them, desired mee to nominate a fitt Captaine, which I did, an honest, religious, valliant Gentleman, Capt. Dodsworth the bearer heereof. Hee hath diligently attended the service, and much im-raised

the Associated Counties: Which, during the whole continuance of the war, received from hence perpetual reinforcements and supplies, not only of men, but also of all kinds of ammunition.

3. But they exerted themselves mostly in June 1643, upon the earnest solicitations of the Earl of Essex, and of his Spur the ambitious Cromwell [M]. The Earl, in his first letter, after assuring "all Gentlemen, Freeholders, and other well-affected people in this town and county, of all the assistance that his army could afford, and his earnest desire to help them: [For they were then afraid, the Royal Army would have bent their course this way.] He desired such as had most interest in the Cause, to approve themselves in it; men of religious lives and affections, fittest to bear arms for the truth of religion; men of estates, to defend those estates; the employment not being too mean for the best men. Therefore he requested them, to provide themselves, as well as they could, with arms and necessaries, and to bring six weeks pay in their purses, considering that the march was long." Upon this order and at the repeated instances of the said Earl and of Oliver Cromwell, as contained in their letters in the Note; a general Subscription was made throughout this town, on the 26th of June 1643, whereby great numbers engaged to go in person; others to find men, horses, muskets, and pay: others subscribed 1, 3, 5, 10, 15, 20, 30, 40 s. even the women not being less generous than the men. Very few took time to consider, and fewer yet would give, or do, nothing [N]: So few proved his men in their exercise, But hath beene unhappie beyond others, in not receauinge any pay, for himselfe, and what Hee had for his souldiers, is out longe agoe. Hee hath by his prudence what with fayre, and winninge carriage, what with monie borrowed kept them together, Hee is able to do foe noe longer, they will presently disband if a course bee not taken, it's pittye it should bee foe, for I belieue they are brought into as good order as most companies in the Armie. Besid's at this instant there is great need to vse them, I having receaued a special command from my Lord Generall to aduance with what force wee can to putt an ende (if itt may bee) to this worke (God foe assistinge) from whome all helpe cometh. I beseech you therefore consider this gentleman, and the souldiers, and if itt bee possible, make up his companie a hundred and twenty, and send them away with what expedition is possible, itt may (through God's blessinge) proue very happie, one months pay may proue all your trouble. I speake to wise men, God direct you, I rest, yours to serve you,

OLIVER CROMWELL.
March 23, Directed, To the Maior of Colchester, 1642-3. and Captaine John Langley.

(From the Original.)

[M] Their Letters according to the order of time, were as follows. "Gent. I thought it my duty once more to write unto yow for more strength to be speedily sent unto us for this great service; I suppose yow heare of the great defeat given by my L. Fairfax to the Newcastle: Forces at Wakefield; it was a great mercy of God to us, and had it not bin bestowed upon us at this very present, my Lo: Fairfax had not knowne how to have subsisted: we assure yow, should the force we have miscarry, expect nothing but a speedy march of the enemy up unto yow; why yow should not strengthen us to make us subsist, judg yow the danger of the neglect, and how inconvenient this improvidence or unthrifty may be to yow; I shall never write but according to my judgment, I tell you againe it concerns yow exceedingly to be persuaded by me: My Lor: Newcastle is near 6000 foot and about 60 troopes of horse: my Lo: Fairfax is about 3000 foot and 9 troopes of horse; and we have about 24 troopes of horse and Dragooners:

Friends had the poor King here: or so few were there that chose or dared to declare for him!

Upon many other occasions, the inhabitants of Colchester furnished recruits, and gave assistance of every kind to the Parliamentarians.

But the most considerable and substantial assistance they gave them, was in very large Supplies of Money. The duplicates of the several sums assessed upon this town and the liberties, during the whole course of the civil war, are still extant, and in my possession. From which it appears, what great sums were levied here, particularly from 1642 to 1648, under these respective articles: For raising a body of horse for Sir William Waller; for the maintenance of the British army in Ireland; for the Scots; for the garrisons at Newport-pagnel, &c. For Sir Tho. Fairfax's army; for reducing Newark, &c. [C]. And the yearly amounts of them, were thus,

	l.	s.	d.
In the year 1642 — — —
being part of 18048l. 9s. 9d.
which was charged upon this County, as the proportion of	872
400,000l. imposed upon the whole kingdom.
In the year 1643 — — —	2833	1	8
In the year 1644 — — —	4405	16	6
In the year 1645 — — —	6279	19	4
In the year 1646 — — —	4283	10	7
In the year 1647 — — —	4829	13	8
In the year 1648 to Michaelmas	6673	0	7½

Besides which, here was collected in April 1643,

The enemy drawes more to the Lo: Fairfax; Our motion and yours must be exceeding speedy; or else it will doe you noe good at all; if yow send let your men come to Boston, I beseech you hasten the supply to us: forgett not monie. I presse not hard, though I doe foe need that I assure yow the foot and Dragooners are ready to mutiny: lay not too much upon the back of a poore Gentl' who desires without much noyse to lay downe his life, and bleed the last dropp to serve the Cause and yow: I aske not your monie for my selfe, if that were my end and hope (viz: the pay of my place,) I would not open my mouth at this time. I desire to denie my selfe, but others will not be satisfied: I beseech yow hasten supplies. Forget not your prayers. Gent' I am yours,

May 28, 1643. OLIVER CROMWELL.

Gent' The designe now resolved upon for the Kingdome service, for the advance of the Army, is of that concernment that I thought good to desire your assistance, in causing all the inhabitants of your Countie according to my warrant sent to your High Constables, presently with what Armes, Clubbs, and other instruments of warre, to march forthwith and to appoint a common rendezvowz at Chesham in Buckinghamsh. and to bring a monthes pay in their purses, and let them not doubt, but they shall have the Assistance of the Armie, and of what Commanders and Officers for their succour in this designe is fitt: I expect your furtherance by the power you have in the County, and that yow see the Warrants executed by those whome it concerns, and use your endeavours to make a Generall rising, and that you take notice of all those that shall refuse or discourage the worke; it being now a time wherein is necessary to be known who are friends to the Kingdome, and who are not: foe noe waile doubting of your encouraging this service, I rest

May 29, 1643. — See his Letter, of 9 June 1643, printed.

[N] From the original List of the Subscribers, in my possession.

[O] Such as were unwilling to pay, they compelled by fines, imprisonment, sequestration, and other violent means. MSS. penes me. See Exact Collection, &c. 4^o p. 642, 764.

towards the relief of the Protestants in Ireland, 630 l. In April 1644, a voluntary Loan to the Brethren of Scotland; and December 26, the like for Sir William Brereton. Sept. 16, the same year, a collection in each Parish from house to house towards buying shoes for the army under the Earl of Essex. And, May 1645, a collection of voluntary contributions for horse and foot for the garrison of Gloucester, and for the Counties of Gloucester, Hereford, Monmouth, Glamorgan, Brecknock, and Radnor (u).

From the Committee's and Sequestrators Books for this Town, and part of the County, I also learn, that considerable sums were raised by Sequestrations of the Estates of those termed Delinquents, that is, such as would not come into the Parliament's measures; the third part only being allowed to them. Of which number, in this Town and the Liberties, were Sir Thomas Lucas of Lexden, Sir Henry Audeley of Berechurch, Bestney Barker of Monkwick, Esq; Laurence Torkenton, Esq; Mr. Stephen Nettles Rector of Lexden, &c. — John Lord Lucas is not mentioned at all; forasmuch as, in all probability, he was not admitted to compound, but his estate was seized entirely.

Thus from the whole course of History it appears, that this Town, at least the Majority and the governing part of it, were in the Parliament's interests. So that they who, from the Resistance made by the Town of Colchester against the Parliament's Forces, should infer, that it was entirely loyal, would be greatly mistaken [*].

§ 7. History of the SIEGE.

WE are now come to the year 1648, and hitherto this Town and County had been exempt from the calamities of a Civil War, which had brought almost the whole Kingdom to the brink of destruction; but at last Colchester had its full share of them. For, in the year 1648, several persons of a public spirit, observing the mean and unworthy treatment of Majesty in distress, and finding that Ambition, and Self-seeking (to use one of the canting phrases of that time) was the grand motive, which Oliver, and other Desperadoes, were acted by, and not the real advantage of the Public, whatever they might outwardly pretend [P]: Therefore Major-general Langhorn, Sir John Owen, and Sir Nicolas Keymis, in Wales; James Duke of Hamilton, in Scotland; George Duke of Buckingham, and Henry Earl of Holland, at Kingston upon Thames; and others in divers parts, raised forces, in order to oblige the Parliament and army to restore peace to the Kingdom upon reasonable terms. The like endeavours were used in Kent, where great numbers took arms at the instigation of Edward Hales, and Roger Lestrange Esqrs. These headed by George Goring Earl of Norwich, and Sir William Waller, assembled near Rochester on the 24th of May; and thence marched to Blackheath, in expectation of being joined by the Londoners. But Thomas Lord Fairfax, the Parliament's General, advancing against them with great expedition, they drew back, and made several stands; till being too hard pressed, they divided; some retiring to Rochester, others to Maidstone. Fairfax, who had 6000 foot and 2000 horse, having, on the 2d of June, defeated these, consisting only of about 2000; the rest, under the Earl of Norwich, moved from Rochester to Blackheath, hoping still for assistance from London. But none coming, and a detachment of the enemy hastning after them, the greater number dispersed. Only about five or six hundred, with the Earl of Norwich, being denied a free passage through the city of London, ferried over the Thames at Greenwich into the Isle of Dogs, [most of them swimming their horses] and came and posted themselves at Mile-end heath, and quartered afterwards at Bow and Stratford (w). Here they continued till the 7th of June, in which time their numbers increased by the flocking in of many Kentish-men, and London-apprentices.

In the mean time, the Royal party were not idle in this county, but held private and public meetings, on purpose to promote the King's interest; at some whereof the Earl of Norwich assisted: And at Chelmsford they seized on the Committee of Parliament. Sir Charles Lucas, one of the most active Royalists, who had attended these meetings, having drawn together a considerable body, advanced to Brentwood; where the Kentish forces joined him June 8. And he earnestly persuaded them not to lay down their arms, as many were inclined to do, upon proclamation of an Indemnity from the Parliament (x).

The next day, June 9, they came all together to Chelmsford, where they were joined by Arthur Lord Capel, Henry Hastings Lord Loughborough, and divers other Gentlemen of quality from Hertfordshire, and other counties; which gave them great encouragement [Q]. That afternoon they were all drawn out to a rendezvous in Newhall-park; and the Earl of Norwich the General, and Sir Charles Lucas, held a consultation with the Gentlemen of both counties. At one time, they resolved to march away immediately, and fall upon a large party of horse and foot raised by Sir Thomas Honywood at Coggeshall [R]; but, upon a more serious deliberation, they altered their purpose, (u) MSS. and Book of Assemblies, Sept. 16, and Dec. 1644. and May 1645. of the Siege, and what was previous to it, is taken from Rushworth, Vol. VII. Whitlock's Memorials, Heath's Chronicle, Lord Clarendon, Matt. Carter, &c.

(x) Whitlock, Edit. 1732. p. 311.

[*] However, some began to stir here for the King, in May 1648. See Whitlock's Memor. p. 304. col. 1.

[P] This is the true light in which Affairs ought to be represented in the beginning of the year 1648. For, no man of an honest disposition, who is acquainted in the least with the History of those Times; or whose Principles do not lead him strongly to desire an utter subversion of the Constitution; can like or approve of the Measures taken at that period, and even a considerable time before, under the Tyranny of the Army.

[Q] There came in also a party of about fifty Gentlemen from London, by way of Epping; and the day following they were joined, in their march, by about an hundred and twenty horse from Hertfordshire and Bedfordshire.

[R] This party so much discouraged the country, that and orders were given for quartering in Chelmsford that night.
P and

The next morning, Saturday June 10, they marched towards Braintree, taking in their way Lees-house, the Earl of Warwick's seat. Here the General, and Sir Charles Lucas arrived about noon; and having first dined there, seized on the armory, where they found a good magazine of arms and ammunition of all sorts. They carried from thence two brass-field-pieces; about two or three hundred muskets, and as many pikes; with about sixty great saddles, and body-armour proportionable; some pistols, and carbines; a good quantity of match and ball; four barrels of powder (y), and divers other instruments and furniture of war. In the Park, beyond the House, they remained all the afternoon [S], and towards the evening marched on, and quartered that night at Braintree.

June 11, being Sunday, both parties, from Kent and Essex, were drawn into the field in the morning to rendezvous: And, after prayers, all the Gentlemen in the army were formed into troops, under the command of the Earl of Norwich, the Lord Capel, Lord Loughborough, and Sir Charles Lucas; that they might not only know how to dispose of themselves upon any alarm, but also for the conveniency of quartering upon every remove. About nine o'clock at night they marched from Braintree, and continued their march all night, making only one halt about day-break, till the next day at four o'clock in the afternoon: At which time they drew near Colchester, where, at a Council the night before (upon Sir Charles Lucas his desire, and belief of recruiting very much there) they unfortunately concluded to march, but not to stay above one night or two at the most; and therefore they moved in the night, to amuse the enemy, that he might not too suddenly follow them.

Thus, June 12, being come within five or six miles of Colchester, a party was sent before, Sir Charles Lucas having received intelligence that the Townsmen would not receive him in arms. He himself continued his march at the head of the army, but, before the Quarter-Master general went forwards, news came from the party, that the Town stood upon their guard, and were so far from giving them entrance, that they opposed it, and were too strong for them. Whereupon, Sir Charles, and, the Gentlemen with him, galloped full speed till they came within sight of the Town. Approaching nearer, they found that the inhabitants had shut the Gates, and drawn out about sixty horse in a very formal troop, well armed and accoutred; and some of their scouts stood without the Turnpike, by the Alms-houses or St. Catharine's hospital. Sir Charles made a stop here, and sent a messenger back to the army to hasten their march; but four or five Gentlemen keeping on their speed, drew their swords, and charged up to the scouts, whom they forced within the Turnpike: from whence they retreated to Head-gate, where their whole Troop was drawn up in order. The Gentlemen retreated again towards the Turnpike, and some of the Townsmen fell in amongst them, but did not fire till the Gentlemen were come out to the Turnpike; and one of these turning quick about, shot one of the Townsmen, which fell from his horse. But when they perceived the body of the army coming, and that Sir Charles Lucas had drawn up two or three troops of horse very near them, they sent out to treat with him; and, upon his engagement that the Town should not be plundered, nor any injury offered to the inhabitants for what they had done, they submitted themselves and engaged to deliver up their horses and arms, with the Town; so the Gates were opened, in a very inauspicious hour, such guests being always best at a distance, and the army began to quarter that night in the Town; "being about 4000, "whereof 600 horse, and about 2500 well "armed (z) [T]."

In the mean time, Thomas Lord Fairfax having entered Essex, as is said above, was advancing this way with the utmost speed; and, "being joined on the road by Col. Whalley and "Sir Thomas Honeywood with 2000 horse and "foot of the country (a)," came to Lexden-heath, June 13, the very next day after the Royalists had entered Colchester [U]. From that Heath he immediately sent the following summons to the Earl of Norwich, "My Lord, lock, ibid.

(y) Ar. Wilson's Life, in Peck's Desiderata Curiosa, Vol. II. b. 12. p. 33. (z) Whitelock, p. 312. (a) White-

they began to be very slack in their appearance to join the Royalists, and the reverse of what they were at their first arrival. Especially when they heard of the Lord Fairfax's being entered the county with his Forces; which he did by crossing from Gravesend, for the greater expedition. Mr. Carter, edit. 1650, p. 126. Whitelock, p. 311.

[S] And Col. Whalley, who had been sent after them by Lord Fairfax, rendezvoused very near the other side, and at night in the Park; but ventured not to appear all the day in sight of the Lord Norwich's army. Mr. Carter, p. 128, and Whitelock, p. 311.

[T] The particulars were thus. Of horse; the Regiments of Lord Goring, Lord Capel, Sir William Compton, Col. Slingsby, Sir Bernard Gascoigne, Col. Hammond, Col. Culpepper. Of foot; the Regiments of Sir Charles Lucas, Sir George Lisle, Col. Tilly, Col. Tuke, Col. Farre, Col. Gilbert, Col. Sir William Campian, Colonel Burd, Colonel Bowman, Col. Chester. And those who had no particular command; Lord Loughborough, Sir William Leyton, Sir Richard Hastings, Col. John Heath, Col. Lee of Kent, Col. Panton, Col. Cook, Col. Sir

Hugh Orlye, Col. William Maxey, Col. Pitman, Col. Beal, Lieutenant Col. Hatch, Major Jammot. (Diary.)

[U] He had with him these Forces. Four troops of his own regiment of horse, commanded by Major Desborough. Six troops of Col. Whalley's regiment. Five troops of Col. Fleetwood's, commanded by Major Coleman, three troops of Commissary general Ireton's, commanded by Capt. Cecil, two troops of dragoons, commanded by Capt. Freeman, and Capt. Barrington. — Of foot; Col. Barkstead's regiment, 10 companies, about 800 men, Col. Needham's regiment, 7 companies, about 400 men. Part of Col. Ingoldby's regiment, 4 companies, 320 men commanded by Capt. Grimes. — Of the Essex forces; Col. Harlackenden's regiment, 4 troops of horse, commanded by Major Rob. Sparrow, Capt. Turner's troop of Dragoons, Col. Henry Mildmay's regiment of horse, and two troops of dragoons. Part of Col. Carew Mildmay's regiment of foot, commanded by Major Bard. Besides Sir Tho. Honeywood's and Col. Cook's auxiliaries abovementioned. (Diary.)

"I am

"I am come hither with the Parliament's forces to reduce those under your command to the obedience of the Parliament. If your Lordship, and those under you, will instantly lay down your armes, there may be a prevention of much blood that is like to be spilt, and the Town preserved from plunder and ruine; the evil must lie upon you, if you refuse: I expect your present answer, and remaine your servant, Tho. Fairfax (b)." But this summons was slighted by the Earl of Norwich, who asked the Trumpeter that brought it, "How his General did, telling him, that he heard he was ill of the gout, but he would cure him of all diseases [W]." Which scoffing answer highly enraged the soldiers; and was thought, as Mr. Whitelock informs us (c), to have cost the lives of many. For, incensed greatly at this unsuitable Answer, the cholerick Fairfax came rushing with the utmost fury against this place; and, about one or two o'clock in the afternoon, his forlorns engaged with the out-guards of the Royalists in the suburbs. These doubled immediately their Guards, and were soon as ready to receive, as the others to assault, them: And the Royalists being drawn up to their colours, sent out fresh parties both of horse and foot under the conduct of Colonel Farre [X], to assist the Guards; which made a brave resistance against the Parliamentarians, that advanced strongly on all parts of that side next Lexden, and fired up to the very hedges and Guards of the others foot; till at last some of the Guards wanting ammunition to maintain the heat of the Service, about St. Catharine's-hospital, and the late Crouched-Friers, [then Sir Harbottle Grimston's house] were overpowered with numbers, who threw their shot upon them like hail, and being forced to retreat, gave their Enemies the liberty of possessing themselves of all that ground called Sholand, and Boroughfield: Col. Barkstead, with his regiment, pushing on, fell upon other Out-guards near Schere-gate; whereupon all the guards were ordered to retire within the Town. But before this retreat could be made, the Dispute grew so close and hot, that great numbers, mostly of Col. Farre's regiment, were shut out, and taken prisoners. The Parliamentarians still endeavoured to force their way into the Town, firing under Head-gate, and throwing stones over it; but met with very obstinate resistance. At length being sorely galled by the forces, within the Town, and out of St. Mary's Church-yard and the gardens adjoining; they became so disabled, that, after seven or eight hours fighting, they were forced to a dishonourable retreat, leaving behind them one brass-gun, which they brought to force open the Gate, twelve of their train-horses that were shot within twenty yards space of ground, and above five hundred arms, which the next morning were brought into the Town. Their retreat was in such disorder, as the Royalists affirm (d), that had they sallied out with a fresh party upon them, as was once intended, they had cut their whole army off, or at least the greatest part, as many of them acknowledge.

The King's forces, by their enemies confession (e), "made good resistance." Even the Gentlemen of distinction amongst them, performed the duty of the meanest and inferior officers, and run the hazard of the privatest foldier. When their horses were not of immediate service, they took their pikes in their hands, and mixed among the croud, to give all proper encouragement and direction to the whole body. Arthur Lord Capel, in particular, charged with a pike at Head-gate, where the greatest struggle was, till the gate could be shut; which at last was fastened with his cane only.

The account of the loss on both sides is various, according to custom: both parties magnifying their enemies losses, and making as little as possible of their own. The Parliamentarians affirm, "That there were slain of the King's forces, Col. Sir William Campian [Y], Col. Cooke, and divers officers of quality, and about 80 private soldiers.—And wounded, Col. Panton, Captains Brunkard, Clifford, Workfop, and divers other officers. On General Fairfax's side, Col. Needham, Capt. Lawrence of horse, Capt. Cox of foot, and near 100 private soldiers and inferior Officers slain." The Royalists, on the other hand, relate, That they themselves lost Sir William Campian, and Col. Cooke, men of unblemished honour; also one Lieutenant, and about 30 or 40 private soldiers; and many more were wounded. And the prisoners taken from them, were Sir William Layton, Lieutenant-Col. George Rawlins, and about 80 men more; many of whom, upon the confused retreat of the Parliamentarians, got off again, and came safe into the Town.—But they make their enemies whole loss to amount to upwards of 700 men; among whom were Col. Needham, and divers other prime officers, besides many wounded, and above 130 taken prisoners, and brought into the Town. Many of their slain were thrown into wells, some buried in ditches, others carried off, and considerable numbers left behind [Z].

(b) From papers printed by Authority. (c) Ib. p. 312. (d) M. Carter, p. 133. (e) Diary of the Siege, with the Print. What I take out of that Diary is distinguished by inverted comma's.

[W] The Lord Clarendon gives this Character of the Earl of Norwich, that he was of "a frolick and pleasant humour,—of a jovial nature." (Hist. Book XI.) and Mr. Whitelock, that he was too much addicted to jest and droll (p. 312.) But, adds Lord Clarendon, "he had no experience or knowledge of the war, nor knew how to exercise the office he had taken upon him of General."

[X] He was Lieutenant-Colonel to the Earl of Warwick; and, under him had the Government of Landguard-fort but he now quitted the Parliament's service.

[Y] Of Kent: He was buried in St. Peter's chancel.

[Z] Two days after, when the Royalists sent to Lord Fairfax for a List of the Prisoners taken from them, he sent them as follows. Sir William Leiton Colonel, Lieutenant Colonel Roberts, Capt. Gregory Baker, Capt. Christmas, George Rawlins Esq; Lieut. Thomas Outing, Lieut. Francis Bland, and sixteen Gentlemen more. Sir John Dorrell, Col. Francis Clark, Geo. May Gent: these three taken before the fight, with 320 private soldiers. (Papers printed by authority.)

Night coming on, and it proving darkish, the Parliamentarians made use of that opportunity for retreating: But, before they drew off, set some houses on fire near Headgate, hoping the wind would so force the fire inwards, that it might burn the whole Town; but the diligence of the soldiers proved as great in defending it from fire, as before from plunder and the sword, guarding it from an enemy merciless in the one, and insatiable in the other, as the suburbs in the Town witnessed [A].

General Fairfax being thus disappointed in his first attack upon this Town, and not having forces enough to storm it at once; he resolved, June 14, to sit down before it, in order to starve the Royalists, that had shut themselves up therein, into a compliance [B]. For that purpose, he “fixed his head-quarters at Lexden, “in the road to London; where he ordered “the main body to lye, to prevent any Assistance coming from that quarter to the Lord Goring: And he sent a strong guard of horse, “on the W. Bergholt, or Cambridge road, that “the Besieged might not escape that way Northward, and go and join Sir Marmaduke Langdale; thus leaving them no place open except towards the sea. But, to deprive them also of that refuge, “he dispatched a party of Horse “to secure Mersey-island, that the King’s ships “should not come up the river to relieve the “Town: The Royalists sent Col. Tuke, with “a strong party an hour after, but he came too “late.”

June 25. The Besiegers, in the night, began to carry on their approaches nearer, “and to “make a Fort,” or Battery, in the Sholand, which they named Fort Effex [C]. The Besieged, on their part, erected “the Royal Fort at St. Mary’s, from whence they fired hard, and “killed some of the workmen employed in “making Fort-Effex; and others as they were “stragling the fields;” three more were slain “the next day with a cannon-ball”.

The night following, they broke ground upon a Hill, then called the Warren and now the Hanging-field, where they placed a strong guard. And so every night broke up fresh ground in several places, which they thought most advantageous, running their Line by degrees from one redoubt and fort to another.

This gave the Royalists just occasion to believe that the Lord Fairfax and his army intended to plant themselves before them for a longer continuance than they had imagined, and to block them up. And that induced them to provide for their own future security; which then consisted in the greatest care for virtualling and fortifying; the only two things to be first thought on in such a case; especially in a Town then deficient in both. And therefore when they first came, their intention was only to quarter a night or two here.

But this engagement having forced them to it, every man, enlivened with a cheerful behaviour, began to forward all things requisite for the business: for march away now they could not, having no way to proceed, without falling into a champian country, where, they being unavoidably weak, and the enemy very strong, in horse, would have cut them off in an instant, their foot being no such experienced soldiers as to maintain a charge of themselves, against both horse and foot, without hedges to guard and shelter them from the horse.

However, by the incomparable diligence of all parties, though no one at first knew where to find provision of any sort, more than belonged to every private family for their ordinary sustenance, yet they found in a short time, in several parts of the town, and particularly at the Hythe, many private stores of corn, and wine of all sorts, (more than had been known there within the memory of man) with much salt, some fish; and a good quantity of powder, the want whereof would suddenly have thrown them into absolute ruin, having very much exhausted their magazine by the last day’s business. All this, being much more than indeed they could have hoped for, was conveyed into the town with expedition and secrecy, the enemy being so favourable as not to endeavour to cut them off from that place, till they had almost drained the honey from the comb; which they might easily have done, had they known what the others were doing.

[A] The people whereof, chiefly poor Weavers; rather seemed to oppose, than to assist or help the Royalists in all they did: yet the next morning, they found scarce a house unplundered, from the one end to the other, and many poor Men dead in their houses, and the women and children fled. Amongst the rest, M. Carter received this account the next morning by break of day: Just over-against the Almes-houses, lived a poor Weaver, whose dwelling he happened to ride by, and seeing a woman heavily bemoaning herself demanded the cause of so much grief: whereupon she answered him, that the last night, some of the soldiers who fought against the town, came violently into her house, and took what they pleased; and that they were no sooner gone, but others came in, and not finding any thing left in the house that pleased them, came to her husband at work in the loom, and demanded money of him, who told them, that he had been worth but little, and that what he had, the Soldiers that came before them had taken from him, excepting only a small sum in his purse, which he would willingly give them, if they would be satisfied with it; but that not answering their expectations, they told him, he was a Cavalier-rogue, and had more money, which they would have, or kill him; both which he denying, one of them shot him through the body, so that he died immediately: At which noise his son coming in, they fell to cutting of him, and had so cruelly wounded him, that he lay more likely to die than live many days. p. 137.

[B] ’Tis somewhat unaccountable, that the Lord Fairfax should undertake a formal siege, or spend so much Time in a Blockade against so weak and ill-provided a Town as this was. Mr. Rapin hath invented a far-fetched reason for it; namely, that his Lordship “would not have been “sorry to see Cromwell defeated by the Scots; in expectation that, if he were slain, or lost his reputation, it “would be easier to make Peace.” (Vol. II. under the year 1648.) But his Lordship’s answer to the Earl of Norwich, presently mentioned, shews, that he had no inclination for Peace. And his proceedings before and since demonstrate, That he had an entire Love and Attachment for Oliver Cromwell, to whom he made himself a thorough Tool. The chief motive in his sitting down thus obstinately before Colchester, appears to me, to have been an inveterate Pique against Sir Charles Lucas, whom he was resolved to destroy at any rate.

[C] This fort was filled up and levelled about Michaelmas 1742. It was about 8 rods long, and 3 broad.

Whilst

Whilst they were thus active in preventing the dangers which might happen, by strengthening the walls of the town, fortifying those places which were most defenceless, and casting up ramparts and counterscarps, as a great part of the town required; the enemy was as busy without in running their trenches, making their approaches, and casting up forts and batteries against them, and they as diligent and laborious within: not without great necessity on their part; the Town being in all places very weak, neither had it any more than one flanker about it, and that very bad too, which was called the Old Fort, or Balkon [C].

Shortly after the Parliamentarians received a great reinforcement from Suffolk and Norfolk; being Colonel Gurdon's Regiment of Horse; and Sir Thomas Barnardiston's, Colonel Fothergill's, Colonel Harvey's, and Colonel Bloy's Regiments of Foot; which lay at Neyland, Stratford, Cataway-bridge, and other passes over the river Stoure: so that the Besieged could not have forced their passage on that side, in case they had attempted it, without being attacked by their enemy in the rear, and forced to engage both ways, to the hazard of their immediate destruction.

Saturday, June 17, Sir Charles Lucas sent a Trumpet, proposing an exchange of prisoners, but General Fairfax answered, "That Sir Charles had forfeited his parole, his honour, and faith, being his prisoner upon parole, and therefore not capable of command, or trust in martial affairs (g)." But I wish Mr. Whitelock had cleared this point: For I have perused, I think, every thing material that was published about these times, and never could find when Sir Charles was thus made a prisoner upon his parole, to the Lord Fairfax. It behoves therefore the Lord Fairfax's admirers to explain this insolent Reply, which his Lordship has not thought fit to mention in his short Memorials.

June 18. The Parliament ships at Harwich took "two frigats, one of 11, the other of 10 guns," that lay there to assist the King's party in this Town. And, the same day "Col. Ewer came up to the siege with six companies from Chepstow-castle." A reinforcement that was coming to the Royalists, under the command of "Major Muschamp, was defeated at Linton by Sparrow and Wallingford, sent from before this town by Lord Fairfax, wherein the Major was slain, some taken "prisoners, and the rest, about five hundred, dispersed."

June 19. The Committee of Parliament that had been seized at Chelmsford, as is said above, and was under restraint in this Town, (being Sir William Rowe, Sir William Mafham, Joh. Eden, Samuel Sheffeld, J. Langley, Ti. Middleton, Tho. Ayloff, Robert Smith, J. Barnardiston, and Robert Crane) "upon their humble request for it to the Lord Norwich, Lord Capel, and Sir Charles Lucas, obtained leave of them, that they, the said Committee, might make it their humble Proposal to the Lord Fairfax, that there might be a Treaty between both Armies for a Peace." To which the Lords Norwich, and Capel, and Sir Charles Lucas, added these words, "It is the general Peace of the Kindome we contend for, and therefore we are content, that the Committee shall send their above-written Proposall to the Lord Fairfax, according unto their Request made unto us." The Lord Fairfax's answer was thus, "My Lords, The Paper sent to me, inclosed in the letter from your Lordships, and Sir Charles Lucas, of the 19th instant, seems in the first part of it so drawn, as that I could not well understand it, what kind of Treaty, or for what Peace it meant. But the latter part, under-written by your Lordships, and Sir Charles Lucas, seems to explain your own meaning; so, as if you meant a Treaty betwixt the Armies for the generall Peace of the Kingdom, and not otherwise for yourselves, or your garrison: And to the Contents of it in that sense, I can only say, That such a Treaty and for such a Peace, is not the proper work of myself, or the Army, but theirs that have employed us: But if the English be, to make a way for conditions to your Garrison, I shall, without the trouble of a Treaty, let you know what yourselves, and those under you may expect from me, which for the restoring of quiet to this County, and the Kingdom, without more blood-shed, and for the saving of so eminent a Town from the chance of War, I shall offer, viz. That if yourselves, and the rest with you in Colchester, shall, within twenty-four houres after notice hereof, lay down armes, the common souldiers, and men of that rank, shall have liberty to depart to their several homes, and there quietly to remain submitting unto the Authority of Parliament: (And this I shall make good however, to so many of that sort respectively, as shall accept thereof, and do accord-

(g) Whitelock, p. 313.

[C] The Royalists give these reasons, why they did not come and fight the Lord Fairfax's army. "We had hopes of speedy Relief, both from the Scots, and divers other places, who were at the same time in action: Besides, it was judged the greatest piece of policy, to keep the Enemy in a lingering action, to give a Remora to their designs, and ruin them by long delays; by which means, we should gain liberty, and an opportunity to others, who were then in action, to work their designs without interruption; and not to run the hazard of an immediate ruin, by giving them battle: For, had we fought with them, it must have been upon infinite disadvantages. First, in the inequality of the number of infantry. Secondly, because we had no considerable party of cavalry in respect of theirs, whose greatest strength consisted in horse. And it was no rash or fond supposition to think, that, could we hold what we had till the rest of the Kingdom should rise, we should then do as good service as the immediate victory; we supposed we might possibly hold out a month, and were resolved on it, though it concluded in our own ruin, by which time, if not sooner, we could not but expect to be relieved. By this design, we were also certain to give liberty to the Scots to march quietly into the Kingdom, being then, most assuredly, upon their march, and near the borders. Neither was this all the hopes we cherished by this resolution; for there remained a possibility of a victory over that army, by delaying to fight with them, till some more fit opportunity should offer itself; or the tediousness of the service weaken them by hard duty, constant action, and unreasonable lying in the field, in respect of the weather." See the Appendix, No.

Q

ingly.)

ingly.) Yourself, and the Officers and Gentlemen engaged with you in the Town, shall have liberty, and Passes to go beyond sea, with equipage befitting their qualities (engaging themselves not to return into this kingdom without leave from the Parliament.) And all of both sorts, with the inhabitants of the Town, shall be free from plunder, or violence of the souldiers, their arms, ammunition, and furniture of war within the town, and also their horses employed in militarie service (except such horses and swords as shall be fit to be allowed to Captaines, or superior Officers, and Gentlemen of quality, for their removall) being first delivered up without imbezlement, in an orderly manner, as shall be further set down, and the forces under my command, or such as I shall appoint, being admitted a peaceable entrance into the Town. I desire the Gentlemen of the Committee of Parliament now in your hands (who by their subscriptions to part of the Paper, and by your sending of it, as from them, or at their request, are concerned to know what my answer is) may be acquainted herewith, and indeed, if it be concealed from any that are concerned in it, the blame thereof from God and man is like to fall on their heads, who shall be the authors of such concealment."

The substance of this Answer was published, two days after, by beat of drum, and sound of trumpet, in the head of every Troop and Regiment of the Parliamentarian army before Colchester.

On the 21st of June, the Earl of Norwich, Lord Capel, and Sir Charles Lucas returned this answer to the Lord Fairfax. "My Lord, We have received yours of the 20th, which takes notice of the Paper of the 19th, subscribed by the Committee, and of our permission to have it delivered to you. You have very justly apprehended our intentions to be the Publique Peace of the Kingdom, and we againe own that sence, and no other, as befitting the duty of English-Men; And we believe, if both Armie were accorded in such an indeavour, it were the most pious, easie, and honourable action, wherein they could be engaged; but why you have taken occasion by that act of ours, to offer Conditions in particular to us, we understand not, nor can it be supposed, without straying and offering violence to our manner of proceeding. Those Conditions you proffer to the Officers and souldiers on our part, we doe hereby make offer of to the Officers and souldiers on your part. We shall in this occasion deale frankly and plainly. We doe not, without evident reason, conceive ourselves to be in a condition able to entertain all the force you can make, and thereby to give courage and opportunity to all true-hearted English-men, to recover their ancient and knowne Lawes; or, if you shall adventure to attaque us, we doubt not but by the mercy and assistance of Almighty God to give you such a repulse, as shall give Testimony of our force and courage, and at how high a rate we value the Generall Peace of the Kingdome. You doe with more then usual earnestnesse desire, that your Answer should be communicated to the Committee, and whom else it may concerne; we apprehend you chiefly intend the Inhabitants of Colchester; We were very unworthy persons if any should exceed us in our Care for this good Towne, and we doubt not but God will recompence the kindness we have received from them, and that he hath a reward in store for them suitable to the loyalty and fidelity they have hitherto in this occasion manifested toward the King, and knowne Lawes of the Kingdome: and because you apprehend it so important and necessary to divulge the proceedings in this affaire, we will therefore put it into your power: And therefore we desire your Lordship, to cause the Paper signed by the Committee of the 19. and our answer subsigned, the answer of your Lordship to us of the 20. and this our reply of the 21. to be all printed, and as many of the prints as you shall send to us, we will disperse in Colchester, and those parts of the Country under our power, and to each person of the Committee one (b)."

The same day a letter from the Lord Goring, with a Petition from the Inhabitants, was presented to the Lord Fairfax, "That liberty might be granted to the Bay and Say-makers in the town, to have a free trade with London during the siege." His Lordship answered, "That they should have considered this, and divers other inconveniences of war before they had admitted the Forces in their town: That the present interruption of their Trade was brought upon them not by his default, but by those whome the Town had harboured; and that to grant liberty of Trade to persons besieged, was such a motion as was never granted: That there were with him sundry Gentlemen of quality, and townsmen of good estates and eminent in trade, who offered to buy all the Bays and Says in the town at the usual prices, and to pay for them within a fortnight after the Town should be rendered, or quitted to him: And, though it were without example to a besieged town, yet he would give leave to their commodities to be brought to Lexden Heath near the town, to be bargained, or returned back, as there should be occasion."

About the 20th of June, divers Gentlemen were dispatched privately by the Royalists, with Commissions to raise men in Norfolk, Suffolk, and Cambridgeshire; but the Country forces strictly watching the passes, and having broken down the bridges; and the Besiegers withal taken Mersey-fort, which commanded the passage into that Island, there was no way left open for them, so they were forced to return back; which they did securely, though through the enemy's Quarters, not a Man being taken.

The next night, parties of horse and foot were commanded to go into the Hundred of Tendring, for the bringing in of Provisions; which returned safe the day following, with about a hundred sheep, and sixty oxen, that were all delivered to the Commissary for the general store. And so in like manner, provisions were brought to the public store-houses every night.

(b) From Papers printed by Authority.

Two or three days after, part of the country rose to join with them; but the Captain, who by commission from Sir Charles Lucas was to levy and command them, would have betrayed them to their enemy, in order to ingratiate himself with the prevailing Power: but his design was discovered, and himself seized on by the countrymen, till Sir Charles Lucas's pleasure should be further known concerning him, and them: To whom they sent two sufficient men, to give him an account of the affair, making it their earnest request, that he would send a party of horse and foot to assist them in their rising, and to conduct them safe into the Town. Accordingly, a party was drawn out, and marched away in the night, who stayed there about a week, and then returned safe with what men they had raised, through the Quarters of the Suffolk foot, who were drawn over the river Stoure. And Another party was commanded out in the night, which marching out at north-Gate, forced through their quarters, and in the morning returned safe, losing not above two men, for which Loss they gained livelihood for many more, by bringing in with them above fifty oxen and cows, besides sheep, some corn, and other provisions. They might have brought more, but Sir Charles Lucas being tender of injuring his countrymen, would not permit them to drive from any, but those he knew to be actual enemies; though his tenderness proved a very great inconveniency and prejudice to the people in the Town. For, after that time, they never obtained the like opportunity, the enemy drawing immediately nearer, and confining them within narrow bounds, being vexed and angry, amongst themselves, that they should suffer them to march through their quarters upon a sally, and return again safe. They yet secured the Hythe, as a final refuge for provision, from whence they conveyed daily, such necessaries as it would afford, by keeping a constant guard there; which the enemy did not endeavour to hinder them of, till they had very little left there of any use.

June 22. The Parliamentarians were hard at work upon "Colonel Ewer's fort, near the Shepen; which 100 of the Royalists sallied out in the night to view, but were instantly beaten in again. However, their cannon killed two of the besiegers." This day the Lords Goring and Capel, and Sir Charles Lucas, sent a summons to the Suffolk-forces at Cataway-bridge and Stratford; assuring them, that their intents were levelled at the restoring the known Laws of the land, the proper interest both of King and subjects, and a well-grounded Peace: But the Suffolk men refused to join them.

"Friday, the 23d, the Besiegers Guns began to play from Fort-Ingoldsbey, which much annoyed the Besieged at North-bridge." And the next day, June 24, "a gunner belonging to the latter was killed." The same day, "the Suffolk-forces, though unwillingly, advanced out of "that Country, and took up their Quarters at Mile-end, over-against North-gate, being about 2000 foot and 500 horse, leaving a guard at Cataway and Neyland, to secure those passes." Soon after, they fell upon a party of the Royalists, killed two, and took twenty prisoners: Some of whom are said to have had in their pockets chewed bullets, rolled in sand. And two Affidavits being made by Deserters, that they were delivered out of the stores by the Earl of Norwich's and the other Officers directions; those noble persons denied any such command or practice; but, for rough-cast slugs, they said they were the best they could send on the sudden (i).

On the 26th the Besieged being drawn "out in Crouch-street, a party of Col. Barkstead's foot beat them out of their hedges, and from their court of guard, fired the guard-house, and brought away the hour-glass by which they stood century."

Wednesday, the 28th, "early in the morning, the Besieged, with a party of horse, attempted the Parliamentarians, Horse-guards near St. Mary's, and shot a scout, but were instantly beaten back." The day following, as the Enemies were busy in making Barkstead's Fort, on the West-side of Maldon-lane, the Besieged did annoy them as much as possible, not only with their great cannon, but also with small shot out of Sir Harbottle Grimston's house, [formerly the Crouched-Friers.] Whereupon General Fairfax's great cannon shooting through and through that house, obliged the Royalists to retire, which they leisurely did, setting first the said House on fire. "At night they also fired Mr. Barrington's house," where now stands Mr. Winsley's Hospital:] And a "party of their horse advancing over East-bridge, whither an embuscade was laid for them by the enemies dragoons, Lieut. Col. Hatcher, and divers other officers and soldiers of the Royalists were slain."

Saturday, July 1, "Col. Whaley possessed himself of Greenstead-church," and erected a strong battery in the Church-yard.

On Wednesday, July 5, the Royalists council of war published a proclamation, for calling all such town's-men, as would serve upon the line for the security of the Town, to enlist themselves, under the several Captains and Officers deputed by Sir Charles Lucas to command them; and all others, to bring in their arms to be delivered into the magazine; those who refused to enlist themselves, not to keep any arms in their houses, on pain of death, and forfeiture of their goods to the benefit and use of the Town.

About this time, the Besiegers encroached so near by their approaches, notwithstanding the daily sallies and skirmishes from within, that they fell into East-street, seized the water-mill, and placed a strong guard there; which guard, (in hopes of firing all that part of the street betwixt them and the Town, because many of the Royalists both quartered and guarded there also) set fire to a Tanner's house and barn, and

(i) Whitelock, p. 315, 316.

M. Carter, p. 210. last edit.

consumed them with all the goods therein. They also began to be very busy and troublesome to the others guards; whereupon, at the next council of war, a resolution was taken for a grand sally on that part of the Town; which was accordingly performed. Sir Charles Lucas commanded in chief, marching at the head of the horse, and Sir George Lisle commanded the foot; the whole party consisted of five hundred foot, and two hundred horse, out of which, a forlorn party being drawn, they first marched down towards the river, whilst the Besiegers guard was placed on both sides of the street, and a barricade a-crofs; from whence, with case-shot from their Drakes, and small shot from the barricado and guard-houses, they played very thick upon the forlorn, which had no other passage over the river, than a foot bridge, the end whereof reached within five feet of the enemy's barricado. But, as if it had been only a sporting skirmish amongst tame soldiers, at a general muster, they ran in a single file over the bridge, and some for haste through the river, mounted their barricado, and beat the enemy off in an instant. Having once gained that, they overturned the Drakes, charged upon other parties that still fired upon them in the street, passed by the guard houses, till they had cleared a great part of the street; and surrounding them, charged upon them, who having neither possibility of relief, retreat, or escape, yielded upon quarter. So they took the Captain, Lieutenant, Ensign, and about eighty private soldiers, with all the other inferior officers. Many were also killed in the adjacent houses, the whole street being almost full of soldiers: They overturned the Drakes, and threw one of them into the river, but not having teams ready, could not bring them off.

The whole party being now advanced, and having thus surprised the guard, they marched on, and made good the charge till they had cleared the whole street; which gave so great an alarm to all the Parliamentarians Leaguer, that they immediately rallied together all the foot and horse on that side of the river, and marched down the hill from behind the East Windmill, to the top of another hill, near St. Anne's, in a very full and orderly body, leaving only their colours and pikes, with a reserve behind the Windmill. But the party having gained almost the top of the first hill, followed their charge so smartly, that they soon forced the Besiegers to a disorderly retreat. So that the fields were overspread with confused and dispersed soldiers, both of horse and foot. The Royalists being thereby encouraged, prosecuted their success, till they had beat the enemies up beyond the Windmill; and forced reserve, colours, and all they had, or that could rally, to quit the ground, and so to disperse themselves, that they were forced to divide their horse into three squadrons or bodies; one division to keep the field against the Party, who had now made a stand in better order; and the other two constantly wheeled up and down, beating up their foot as they ran away. But having now gotten a very thick hedge for a shelter, and being thus forced up, they began to make a stand; and the others foot, more out of heat of courage than mature policy, still ran on, till they gained an old thin hedge, opposite to their enemy, beyond the Windmill, where they still fired upon the enemy, maintaining the said hedge, whilst a party of Col. Whaley's horse, wheeled about the field between them: Which party accidentally discovered they had spent all their ammunition, by hearing a soldier foolishly call out for some; and thereupon suddenly clapping spurs to their horses made a full charge, through the hedge, upon the Royalists, who not having ammunition, nor time to retreat, were most of them killed, or taken; till which time they had lost very few in the charge, though many were wounded, as could not otherwise be avoided in so smart an engagement. However, the body of the Royalists party being upon their retreat, and perceiving what had happened, faced about again, and forced their pursuers once more to a speedy retreat; and so marched easily into the town again, in very good order.

In this Action, Sir George Lisle was once taken prisoner, but immediately rescued; and in all, the Royalists affirm they lost one Captain, one Lieutenant, and about thirty [D] private soldiers, who were taken at the broken hedge, but very few killed.

Of the Parliamentarians upwards of eighty [E] were brought into the town prisoners, and between two and three hundred killed; amongst whom was Colonel Shambrooke that had succeeded Colonel Needham in the command of his regiment; and many were wounded, of which very few escaped, but died within a very short time, either through the neglect of the Surgeons (in which both parties suffered very much) or through the severity of the weather [F]. Inso-much that divers which came into the town afterwards, and these men too, that had been formerly in the King's service, affirmed, that the attack was at the least 500 men loss to them; besides many that left the siege upon it, some coming into the town, three or four in a day, and often more, for a long time together; and others stealing away to their own habitations.

After which sally, the country-men employed amongst the Besiegers began to be displeased with the service, and thought it hard duty to lie so long in the trenches, and were glad to entertain all comers who would perform their duty for them, allowing them ten shillings a week, constant pay, to be excused themselves: By which means, many who came from London, and other places, with a design to have joined the Royalists, not being able to come into the town, entered themselves in the army; that they might have an opportunity more easily to come to them, had they marched out into the field, as they declared.

The next night, the enemy strengthening

[D] The Diary hath eighty.

[E] Forty, in the Diary.

[F] The weather was strangely cold and rainy for that time of the year; and there were great floods. See Whitelock, p. 314, 318.

their Leaguer on that part of the Town, came into East-street again with a stronger party than before; possessed themselves of their former guards and ground, and began a second time to fire the houses on the West-side of the river next the Town; in order to drive away the Royalists guards, by whom they were much incommoded.

Then Colonel Whalley set fire to all the Wind-mills near the town, to hinder the Besieged from grinding their corn; but they soon had a remedy for that: for having found at the Hythe, by the river side, many Mill-stones lying ready for exportation, they brought some into the town, and set up Horse-mills, which proved very servicable during the remainder of the siege. From this day to the 11th the Besieged sallied almost every night, being encouraged by their successes; and they constantly cut off some of the Enemy, but not without loss also on their own side. About this time they received by a spy, the bad news of the defeat of the King's friends almost in all parts of England, and especially several Parties which wished well to the gentlemen, and intended to relieve them.

Their Batteries from St. Maries-Fort and Steeple, and from the N. Bridge, greatly annoyed the enemy. Particularly, a one-eyed Gunner, was placed in St. Mary's steeple; whose memory is still celebrated, for having singled out and killed many of the Parliamentarians. Here a platforme was made in the frame of the bells, and a brass saker planted, which flanking their trench, did them much injury: Besides, a Centinel was kept in that place, which discovered their motions night and day. Therefore, as soon as they had drawn their Line near the Lord Lucas's house, they planted two demi-cannons against St. Mary's Church, and fired threescore and odd great shot at the steeple; but did very little hurt. For, with as much speed as could be, a battery was raised upon the curtain, from whence the Royalists had not fired above four times, before one of the Besiegers best gunners, and about six men more fell. Whereupon, they drew off their guns from that place, finding it too hot for continuance.

July 14. The Besiegers attacked and took the Hyth Church, with a small work which the Besieged had there, but the Defenders retired in time; some were taken Prisoners in the Church, but not in the Fort. Next John Lord Lucas's House at St. John's, was attacked by a great body of the Besiegers; the Party which was in the Gate-house, being about 100 in number, defended themselves with good Resolution for some time, 'till two or three hand-granadoes thrown in by the assailants having fired the Magazine, the House was blown up, and most of the gallant Defenders buried in the Ruins. This was a great blow to the Royalists, for it was a very strong Pass, and always well guarded.

The Besiegers having thus possessed themselves of the Lord Lucas's house, and the Hythe, began to draw their Line closer, and very streightly to surround and block up the Town. Then they brought their biggest pieces of Battery, being two demi-cannons, and two whole culverines, upon St. John's Green; and, battering again St. Mary's Steeple, beat down one side of it, in a short time, with a great part of the Church, breaking the saker that was planted there. The Gunner, and one of the matrosses, were killed.

July 15. The Lord Fairfax sent offers of Honourable Conditions to the souldiers of the Garrison, if they would surrender, or quit the service. Upon which the Lords Goring and Capel and Sir Charles Lucas returned an answer signed with their own Hands, That it was not Honourable or agreeable to the usage of war to offer Conditions separately to the soldiers, exclusive of their officers, and therefore civilly desired his Lordship to send no more such messages or proposals; or if he did, that he would not take it ill if they hanged the Messenger.

This Evening, all the Gentlemen volunteers, with all the Horse of the Garrison, headed by Sir Charles Lucas, Sir George Lisle, and Sir Bernard Gascoign, resolved to break through the Leaguer, and forcing a Pass, to advance into Suffolk by Neyland Bridge. For this purpose, they passed the River by Middle-mill; but their Guides, one of whom was the miller, having missed them, the Besiegers took the alarm; upon which the Royalists Guides and some Pioneers which they had with them to open the hedges and level the banks for their passing to Boxted, ran away: so the Horse were obliged to retreat. The Enemy pretended to pursue, but thinking they had retreated by the North-bridge they missed them; upon which being enraged, they fired the suburbs without the Bridge, and burned them quite down.

July 18. Some of the Horse attempted to escape the same way, and, had the whole Body been there as before, they had effected it: but there being but two troops they were obliged to retire.

Now the Town began to be greatly distressed, provisions failing, and the Town's People, which were numerous, being very uneasy; and no way of breaking through being found practicable, the Royalists would have joyned in any attempt wherein they might die gallantly with their swords in their hands, but nothing presented; they often sallied and cut off many of the Enemy, but their numbers were continually supplied, and the Besieged diminished: their Horses also sunk and became unfit for service, having very little hay and no corn, and at length they were forced to kill them for Food, so that they began to be in a miserable condition, and the souldiers deserted every day in great numbers, not being able to bear the want of Food, as being almost starved with Hunger.

July 22. The Lord Fairfax offered again an exchange of Prisoners, but the Lord Goring rejected it, because they refused Conditions to the chief Gentlemen of the Garrison.

" This day, a Horse was roasted whole, near R " North-

"North-gate; to make the Soldiers merry at the entrance into such diet."

During this Time, two troops of the Royal horse sallied out in the night, resolving to break through, or die: They first rode up full gallop to the Enemies Horse-guards on the side of Maldon Road, and exchanged their pistols with the advanced troops, wheeling as if they would retire into the Town; but finding they were not pursued, they wheeled about to the right, and passing another guard at a distance, without being perfectly discovered, they went clean off, and passing towards Tiptree Heath, and having good Guides, they made their escape towards Cambridgeshire. In which length of way they found means to disperse, without being attacked, and went every man his own way as fate directed, and few of them were taken: They were led, as we are informed, by Sir Bernard Gascoin.

Upon these attempts of the Horse to break out, the Enemy built a small fort in the meadow, right against the ford in the River at Middlemill, and on the 26th set that mill on fire, but it was extinguished without much damage; however, the fort prevented any more attempts that way.

July 22. The Lord Fairfax General sent in a trumpet, to propose again the Exchange of Prisoners, offering the Lord Capel's son for one, and Mr. Ashburnham for Sir William Masham; But the Lord Capel, Lord Goring, and the rest of the Gentlemen, rejected it; and Lord Capel in particular sent the Lord Fairfax word, it was inhuman to surprise his son, who was not in arms, and offer him to insult a Father's affection, but that he might murder his son if he pleased, he would leave his blood to be revenged as Heaven should give opportunity; and the Lord Goring sent word, that as they had reduced the King's servants to eat Horse-flesh, the Prisoners should feed as they fed.

The Parliamentarians sent again to complain of the Royalists shooting poisoned Bullets, and sent two affidavits made by two Deserters, swearing it was done by the Lord Norwich's direction; The Generals in the Town returned, under all their Hands, that they never gave any such Command or Direction; that they disowned the Practice; and that the Fellows who swore it were perjured before in running from their Colours, and the service of their King, and not to be credited again: But they added, that for shooting rough cast slugs they must excuse them, as things stood with them at that time.

About this time a Porter in a souldier's habit got through the Enemies Leaguer, and passing their out-guards in the Dark, got into the Town and brought Letters from London, assuring the Royalists, that there were so many strong Parties up in arms for the King, and in so many Places, that they would be very suddenly relieved: This they caused to be read to the souldiers to encourage them; and particularly it related to the Rising of the Earl of Holland and the Duke of Buckingham, who with 500 Horse were got together in arms about Kingston in Surrey. But the Besieged had notice in a few days after that they were defeated, and the Earl of Holland taken, who was afterwards beheaded.

July 26. The Enemy now began to batter the walls and especially on the West side from St. Mary's toward the N. Gate; and the Besieged were assured they intended a storm; on which the Engineers were directed to make Trenches behind the walls where the Breaches should be made; that in case of a storm they might meet with a warm reception: Upon this they gave over the design of storming. The Lord Goring, finding that the Enemy had set the suburbs on fire right against the Hythe, ordered the remaining Houses which were empty of Inhabitants, from whence their Musketeers fired against the Town, to be burnt also.

July 31. A Body of foot sallied out at Midnight, to discover what the Enemy were doing at a place where they thought a new fort raising; they fell in amongst the Workmen, and put them to flight, cut in pieces several of the Guard, and brought in the officer who commanded them.

August 2. The Town was now in a miserable Condition; the souldiers searched and rifled the Houses of the Inhabitants for victuals; they had lived on horseflesh since July 20, and most of that also as lean as carrion, which not being well salted bred worms; this want of Diet made the souldiers sickly, and many died of Fluxes, yet they boldly rejected all offers of surrender, unless with safety of their officers: However, great numbers got out, and either passed the Besiegers Guards, or surrendered to them and took passes.

Aug. 7. The Town's people became very uneasy to the soldiers, and the Mayor of the Town with the Aldermen waited upon the General, desiring leave to send to the Lord Fairfax, for leave to all the Inhabitants to come out of the Town, that they might not perish; to which the Lord Goring consented; but Lord Fairfax refused them.

By this time, Horse-flesh began to be as precious to the distressed Royalists as the choicest meats before: The Souldiers in general, and all Officers and Gentlemen, from the Lords to the lowest degree or quality, eating nothing else, unless Cats and Dogs. And so great were their necessities, that the Horses could scarce be secure in the Stables, but every morning one Stable or other was robbed, and the horses knocked on the head, and sold in the shambles by the pound. Nor was there in a short time a Dog left; for it was the custom of the Souldiers, to reserve half their ammunition-loaf, and in a morning walk the streets, and if they discovered a dog, to drop a piece of bread, and so draw him on till within their reach; then with the butt-end of their musket kill him, and carry him to their quarter. Six shillings was known to be given for the side of a Dog, and yet but a small one neither.

Aug. 12. The poor people got together in great crouds about the Lord Goring's Quarters, clamouring for a surrender. This they did every Evening: bringing women and children, who lay howling and crying on the Ground for Bread: The souldiers beat off the men, but the women and children would not stir, bidding the souldiers kill them, saying, They had rather be shot than starved.

Aug. 16. The General, moved by the cries and distrefs of the poor inhabitants, sent out a trumpet to the Lord Fairfax, demanding leave to send to the Prince, who was with a fleet of 19 men of war in the mouth of the Thames, offering to surrender if they were not relieved in 20 Days. The Lord Fairfax refused it, and sent them word he would be in the town in Person and visit them in less than 20 Days, intimating, that they were preparing for a storm. Some tart Messages and Answers were exchanged on this occasion. The Lord Goring sent word, they were willing, in Compassion to the poor Townspeople, and to save that effusion of Blood, to surrender upon honourable Terms; but as for the storming them as they had threatened, they might come on when they thought fit, for they (the Royalists) were ready for them. This held to the 19th.

Aug. 20. The Lord Fairfax returned, what he said was his last answer, and should be the last offer of Mercy: The Conditions offered were, That upon a peaceable surrender, all souldiers and officers under the degree of a Captain in Commission, should have their lives, be exempted from plunder, and have passes to go to their respective dwellings: all the Captains and superior officers with all the Lords and Gentlemen as well in Commission as Volunteers, to surrender Prisoners at discretion, only that they should not be plundered by the Souldiers.

Aug. 21. The Generals rejected those offers, and when the People came about them again for Bread, set open one of the Gates, and bid them go out to the enemy, which a great many did willingly: Upon which the Lord Goring ordered all the rest that came about his door to be turned out after them: But when the People came to the Lord Fairfax's Camp, the outguards were ordered to fire at them, and drive them all back again to the Gate; which the Lord Goring seeing, he ordered them to be received in again. And now though the Generals and Souldiers also were resolute to die with their swords in their hands rather than yield, and had maturely resolved to abide a storm; yet the Mayor and Aldermen having petitioned them, jointly with the Inhabitants; being wearied with the importunities of the distressed People, and pitying the deplorable Condition they were reduced to, they agreed to enter upon a Treaty. Accordingly they sent out Dr. Glisson, a Physician, then living in the Town, to the Lord Fairfax, to treat; but he would not make the least alteration in his last Offers.

Upon the return of the said Messenger with General Fairfax's Terms, the Lord Goring and the rest sent out a letter, declaring they would die with their swords in their hands, rather than yield without Quarter for Life; and sent a paper of Articles, on which they were willing to surrender: but in the very interim of this Treaty, news came that the Scotch army under Duke Hamilton, which was entered Lancashire, and was joined by the Royalists in that Country, making 21,000 men, were intirely defeated. After this, the Lord Fairfax would not grant any abatement of Articles, viz. To have all above Lieutenants surrender at mercy.

Tuesday the 22d, early in the morning, more arrows were shot into the town at several places of the Line, with papers fastened to them; wherein was written as followeth:

August 21, 1648. "Whereas on Sunday last, in a letter to the Lord Goring, Lord Capel, and Sir Charles Lucas, Conditions were offered to all private Souldiers, and inferior officers under Captains, to have liberty to go to their severall homes, without injury or violence; and all superior Officers, Lords and Gentlemen, to submit to Mercy. And whereas the same hath been concealed from the Souldiers and inferior Officers aforesaid; Nevertheless, if they will before Thursday next lay hold on the said Conditions, and come away in a body from the enemy, the same conditions shall be performed to them which have been offered; but in case they shall suffer the Town's People (whom we shall not receive) to be turned out of the town, and suffer them to perish under the Walls, they must expect no Mercy; and if the Town's men in arms shall joyne with the soldiery, in coming forth in a body as aforesaid, they shall also be free from violence." This little stratagem, they thought, would have infused such a mutiny in the brains of the mob, as would in an instant invite the Souldiery to deliver their Officers up as a sacrifice, to obtain their own liberty. But their hopes were also disappointed in this: for instead of a compliant Acceptance of these Propositions, they resolved to accept of no conditions wherein their Officers should not receive a benefit, as well as themselves.

The council of war having the day before permitted Dr. Glisson to go out again, with Mr. Sheffield (one of the Committee-men, then Prisoner in the Town, brought from Chelmsford) to mediate with the General for the people of the Town, sent also by him, other Letters concerning the Souldiery, for Conditions of Surrender; but the following Answer was returned: "That they had given them a former account of what Conditions they would give them, and those they would stand to, and no other must they expect."

And now the poor Royalists were drawn to a sad exigency, and plunged into very great extremities. They had scarce one Cat or Dog left uneaten in the Town. Some Horses they had yet alive, but not many, for there were at that time in the Commissary's Account, a list of seven hundred and thirty horses, which had been killed by him, and orderly distributed out; besides those that the souldiers had stolen out out of the stables and killed, and others that Gentlemen had slaughtered for their own tables, which made the number above eight hundred. And as for Bread, there was not corn left for one day's provision; and many mouths to feed; and they had made all kind of corn the town did afford, as malt, barley, oats, wheat, rye, pease, and all they could recover, into bread, for eight weeks together, to lengthen their store, still contented to undergo any hardship that might probably tend to the advancement of the general Good; but their hopes were now quite dissolved into absolute fear of unavoidable ruin.

However, their Enemies ill usage, instead of breaking their Spirits, served only to stir them all up, from the highest to the lowest, to some vigorous Resolutions; and either to extricate themselves at any rate out of their most uneasy situation, or to perish in the attempt. And, that there might be no misunderstanding between the Souldiers and their Officers, upon putting any design in execution, the following Engagement was drawn up, and signed by all the Officers and Gentlemen thro' the quarters. "We whose Names are hereunto written, do, in the presence of Almighty God, protest against all Conditions that are or shall be sent from the Enemy, by which our Liberties may be infringed, and our Honours blemished. And we do upon our Honours solemnly engage ourselves, not to desert one another, nor the foot, till by God's assistance, we have forced our passage through all that shall oppose us, or to perish in the act, which we attest this three and twentieth of August, one thousand six hundred and forty-eight."

Then the Town was again searched, in order to find what provisions were left, of which upon a severe account given, and all private stores taken and brought to the Commissaries, leaving to every family that had most, but one peck of corn of all or any sorts; yet, after all, the whole would scarce amount to one day's provision of bread.

The next day, Thursday, the 24th, the Besiegers sent a paper kite into the town, which hovering a good while over it, that the souldiers might take notice thereof, at last they let it drop in the midst of the town, with many papers fixt to it, to the same purpose as those before shot in with the arrows, and with them, a book containing, The Relation of a great Victory over the Scots, and their general rout: Within two hours after they made a general triumph through the whole Leaguer, giving a volley both of small and great shot: Which the Besieged thought the beginning of a Storm. But their assurances were so strong, of gaining a Victory without Blows, that they supposed it (as indeed it was) the best Policy to forbear, though they had drawn their approaches so near the Line under Berry-Fields, by the shelter of the Town-wall, that their Souldiers from the trenches, and those of the Besieged from the Line, might talk together, and throw Stones at one another, both which they frequently did.

On Friday the 25th, the Council of war met again early in the morning, at which it was resolved to send General Fairfax word into the Leaguer, "That since he denied to treat upon any conditions that were honourable, notwithstanding their actions and demeanours in the service had been nothing but what became their Honour and Fidelity, if he were pleased to make an attempt of attacking them, he should not need to spring any Mine (as he boasted he had ready) but that any Gate about the town that he should make choice of, should be set open, and his entrance disputed afterwards." But he thought himself now sure of having them at an easier rate than the loss of so much blood as such a Surprise must have cost him, had he carried it, which he would hardly have done. For the Besieged had strongly provided and armed themselves against a Storm, by Scythes fitted with long handles, and also with scalding Pitch, which was kept boyling in iron pots, and caldrons every night round the Line, with long ladles to cast it over the rampire upon the enemies, had they begun storming.

Wherefore the distressed Royalists considering the melancholy Condition they were plunged into, as they could expect no relief or assistance from any quarter; and the want they were in of provision to subsist withal, not having any hopes of holding out two days longer unless without Bread, which was impossible; it was the final resolution of the council of war, To draw out the whole party that night to their arms, both horse and foot, with what ammunition was left, which was not much, and as many short scaling ladders as could be procured in the interim; and, in the dearest time, when they might be least expected, to set open two of the Gates, and march out and storm the enemy's Line, and so fall into their head-quarters, beat up their whole army, and relieve themselves; or force their march through all opposition; or perish in the attempt. And if the private Soldiers should entertain any suspicion, that the Gentlemen and Officers who had yet horses, should seek for their own safety by flight, and leave them engaged, every man (excepting only the General and the Major-general) to pistol his own horse at the head of them. This design being agreed on, secrecy enjoined, and every one receiving his orders according to his duty in the undertaking, the council broke up, and every man betook himself, with the utmost endeavours, to the making preparation in the day-time for the intended expedition at night.

The Enemy had this day planted four great pieces of battering cannon against Berry-Fields, and fired about 140 great shot in the forenoon, against the Town-wall, but did very little hurt, only beat off the tops of two old ruined Towers upon it, and killed three men. This was taken as a fit alarm for calling the Souldiers in general to the Line, where they might unexpectedly be in a readiness for the intended sally at night, without bag or baggage. And in the mean time, the Officers gave the Souldiers burnt claret, claret, raisins, and good words, to make them join heartily in the work (k). All things were got in readiness before night came on, and the ammunition and scaling ladders brought to a particular place, ready to be carried to the Line. But, a little before the project was to be put in execution, certain Officers started objections against it; and, the same night, so strong a mutiny arose amongst the private Soldiers, that many threatened to cast their Officers over the Line, or to kill them if they offered to stir out; and the greater part left their guards, and sent a deputation of Thirty to the Council of war, to know their intentions: Declaring, "That if they would not make conditions for them, and such as they should like of, they would article for themselves over the Line, and leave their Officers to shift for themselves, as they understood the Officers would have done by them." This put the Council into great disorder and confusion. But at length, through the industry and good management of the Lords concerned in the Engagement with Sir Charles Lucas, Sir William Compton, and Sir George Lisle, the Mutiny was appeased; especially upon the Lord Goring's making this Declaration to the Soldiers: "That they were so far from deserting them, or seeking any good, that should not extend in as great a measure to the meanest Soldier amongst them as to themselves; that they were thoroughly resolved to become a prey to their enemies mercy, and cast themselves into the greatest inconveniences that the cruelty of a bloody enemy could oppress them with, if thereby they might free the inferior Soldiery from suffering: And that it was their desires, to deliver themselves up prisoners to the Enemy, to purchase them an honorable Liberty; to which end, they were Commissioning Gentlemen to the Lord Fairfax to treat for it." Whereupon, the Soldiers returned to their posts, with many affectionate expressions of the utmost readiness to serve their officers again.

But, by this experiment, the Lords and other Officers found so little Reliance was to be had on the common Soldiers, that they immediately resolved to send a Gentleman to treat with General Fairfax for Conditions; being frustrated of all hopes of longer subsistence or security, or possibility of further attempting any design. Whereupon Col. Samuel Tuke, a man of Honour and Integrity, was immediately sent out (with J. Barnardiston one of the Committee-men brought from Chelmsford) to treat upon what had been offered before by the Lord Fairfax (l), together with full power to accept of any Conditions he could obtain, and to conclude before he came back. He returned not till very late that night, yet time enough to let the Royalists know the sad conclusion they were like to have. For General Fairfax (at the instigation of his council of war) was fallen from those conditions which formerly he had offered; and now beginning to insult over the Miseries of those whom the Fortune of war, and the Defection of the Kingdom, had put in his power; He insisted, That in regard the inferior Officers and Soldiers in the Town had slipt their opportunity; they should now only have fair quarter: That the Lords, general Officers, Captains, &c. should be rendered up to Mercy: That the Committee-men under restraint in the Town should be forthwith released; And, upon that condition, a Treaty should be admitted for the clearing and orderly performance of the fair quarter offered; and to treat as to securing the Town from plunder (m).

The next morning, being Sunday the 27th of August, the council of war met again, and this account being given in, there was no refuge, nor remedy left, nor any thing to trust to, but what conditions their enemies would give them. The Committee was therefore immediately dispatched, and Colonel Tuke, with five other officers, sent out again to the Parliamentarians, to confirm and sign Articles for surrender, and the manner of delivery.

The Soldiers of both Armies were already mixed on many places of the Line, and no fire given on either side, as if the Royalists had been absolute prisoners, long before any conclusion was made.

Towards night they came back, and brought with them the following Articles, which were to be put in execution the next morning.

Articles agreed upon the 27th of August, 1648, by and betweene the Commissioners of his Excellency the Lord Generall Fairfax, on the one Part; and the Commissioners of the Earl of Norwich, Lord Capell, and Sir Charles Lucas, on the other part; for and concerning the Rendition of the Town and Garrison of Colchester.

I. THAT all the horses belonging to the Officers, Souldiers, and Gentlemen, ingaged in Colchester, with Saddles and Bridles to them, shall be brought into Maries Church-yard, by 9 of the clock to-morrow morning, and the spare Saddles and Bridles into that Church, and delivered without wilful spoyle to such as the Lord Generall shall appoint to take charge of them.

II. That all the Arms, Colours, and Drums belonging to any of the persons in Colchester above-mentioned, shall be brought into St. James Church, by ten of the clock to-morrow-morning, and delivered without wilful spoyle or imbeazlement to such as the Lord Generall shall appoint to take charge of them.

III. That all private Souldiers and Officers under Captains, shall be drawne together into the Fryers Yard, adjoyning to the East-Gate, by ten of the clock to-morrow morning, with their Cloathes and Baggage, their persons to be rendred into the custody of such as the Lord Generall shall appoint to take charge of them, and that they shall have faire Quarter, according to the explanation made in the answer to the first Quære of the Commissioners from Colchester, which is hereunto annexed.

IV. That the Lords, and all Captaines, and superiour Officers, and Gentlemen of quality, ingaged in Colchester, shall be drawne toge-their to the King's Head, with their Clothes and Baggage, by eleven of the clock to-morrow morning, and there render themselves to the mercy of the Lord Generall, into the hands of such as he shall appoint to take charge of them, and that a List of the names of all the generall Officers, and Field Officers, now in command in the Towne, be sent out to the Lord Generall by nine of the clock in the morning.

(k) Whitelock, p. 333.

(l) Whitelock, ibid.

(m) Whitelock, ibid.

V. That all the Guards within the Towne of Colchester shall be withdrawne from the Line, Forts, and other places, by eight of the clock to-morrow morning, and such as the Lord Generall shall appoint shall thereupon come into their roomes.

VI. That all the Ammunition shall be preserved in the places where it lyes, to be delivered to the Comptroller of his Excellencies Traine by ten of the clock to-morrow morning; and all the Waggones belonging to the Souldery, or Persons engaged, with the Harnesse belonging thereunto, shall be brought to some convenient place neare the Ammunition, to be delivered to the same person by the same houre.

VII. That such as are wounded and sick in the Towne shall be there kept and provided for, with accommodation requisite for men in their condition, and not removed thence, untill they be recovered, or able without prejudice to their healths to remove, and shall have such Chyrurgions allowed to look to them as are now in the Towne.

VIII. That all Ordnance in the Towne with their appurtenances shall, without wilful spoyle, be left at the severall platformes, or places where they are now planted, and so delivered to his Excellencies Guard, that shall take the charge of those places respectively.

IX. That from henceforth there shall be a Cessation of Arms on both parts, but the Forces within the Town to keep their own Guards, and the Lord Generalls to keepe theirs, untill they shall be removed according to the Articles foregoing.

Signed by us,

The Commissioners on the behalf of his Excellency the Lord
Fairfax.

The Commissioners on the behalf of the E.
of Norwich, the L.
Capel, and Sir Charles
Lucas.

Tho. Honeywood
H. Ireton
Tho. Rainborowe
Edward Whalley
Wil. Bloys
Bram. Gurdon
J. Sparrow
Isaac Ewer
Tho. Cooke
G. Barnardiston.

William Compton
Ab. Shipman
Edw. Hammond
S. Tuke
William Ayloffe.

[G] Mercy, without Compassion!

[H] They were as follows. George Goring Earl of Norwich, Col. Arthur Lord Capel, Henry Hastings Lord Loughborough, Sir Charles Lucas, Col. Sir William Compton, Col. Sir George Lisle, Sir Bernard Gascoyne, Sir Abraham Shipman, Sir John Watts, Sir Lodowick Dyer, Sir Hen. Apleton, Sir Dennard Strutt, Sir Hugh Oriley, Sir Richard Maulyverer [made his escape, but re-

Heith, August 27, 1648.

Quæries propounded by the Commissioners from Colchester, to the Commissioners of his Excellency the Lord Fairfax, upon the Conditions sent into the Towne.

I. WHAT is meant by faire Quarter? 2. What by rendring to Mercy? Answ. To the first, By faire Quarter we understand, That with Quarter for their lives they shall be free from wounding or beating; shall enjoy warme clothes to cover them and keep them warme; shall be maintained with victuals fit for prisoners while they shall be kept prisoners. To the 2d, By rendring to Mercy we understand, That they be rendred or render themselves to the Lord Generall or whom he shall appoint, without certaine assurance of Quarter, so as the Lord Generall, may be free to put some immediately to the sword [G] (if he see cause) although his Excellency intends chiefly and for the generality of those under that condition, to surrender them to the mercy of the Parliament and Generall. There hath been large experience, neither hath his Excellency given cause to doubt of his civility to such as he shall retain prisoners, although by their being rendred to mercy, he stands not engaged thereby.

Upon return of these Answers, the Commissioners from Colchester propounded these two further Quæries.

1. Whether these that were surrendred to Mercy, shall enjoy their wearing cloathes, as well those on their backs, as what other change they have. 2. Whether the Noblemen and Officers shall have use of their owne Horses to the places where they shall be confined? To which was answered by his Excellencies Commissioners. To the first, It is intended that those who shall be rendred and received to mercy, shall enjoy the wearing clothes on their backs; but for more the Generall will not be ingaged. To the second, It is expected (in case of surrender upon Treaty) That all Horses as well as Arms be delivered up, and for circumstances thereof there is to be an Article, yet for the Gentlemen and Officers under this condition in question, (when any of them shall be removed to the places of confinement) his Excellency will take care for Horses to carry them (with respect to their qualities), but for allowing their owne Horses he will not be ingaged.

The next morning, the Articles were duly performed in every part; and the Lords and Gentlemen met at the King's-Head, and the rest of the Army at their appointed places: the number of prisoners of all sorts amounting to 3531 [H]. When they surrendred, they had only one Barrel and a half of Powder left: But many great shot remained in the Lord Capel's Quarters, which, as they were fired into the taken] Quarter-master-general Carter, Col. Gilburne, Col. Farr [escaped, but retaken] Col. Hammond, Col. Chester, Col. Till, Col. Heath, Col. Tuke, Col. Ayloffe, Col. Sawyer. — Lieutenant-Colonels Culpepper, Lancaster, Gough, Powell, Ashton, Baggeley, Wiseman, Smith. — Majors Aescot, Smith, Armstrong, Warde, Bayley, Reade, Scarrow, Blyncott, Genings. — Captains Wicks, Pits, Buley, Burdge, Bartrope, Lynsey, Myldmay, Osbodston, Estwick, Town, Town, the Soldiers had gathered, and sold to him for six pence a-piece.

About two o'clock in the afternoon the Lord Fairfax entered the town, and rid round it, to view the Line, and shew himself in triumph to the inferior soldiers; wondering how the place could hold out so long against him. Then he went to his Quarters in the town; and, according to his appointment, a Council of war immediately met at the Mote-hall. As soon as they were assembled, they sent Col. Ewer, to the King's-head; who coming up into the chamber where the Officers were confined, first saluted the Lords, and then addressing himself to Sir Charles Lucas in a slighting gesture, told him, That the General desired to speak with him at the Council of war, with Sir George Lisle, Sir Bernard Gascoigne, and Col. Farre, [but the latter had made his escape.] Whereupon Sir Charles Lucas, as foreseeing his approaching fate, took his solemn leave of the Lords and other his fellow-prisoners, and calling to Sir George Lisle, (who was in discourse and heard not what was said by Col. Ewer,) they and Sir Bernard Gascoigne, went along with the Colonel, and were locked up in an apartment belonging to the Hall; a strong guard being placed at the door. After a short debate in the council of war, they were brought forth, and told by the council, "That after so long and obstinate a defence until they found it necessary to deliver themselves up to Mercy, it was necessary, for the example of others, and that the peace of the Kingdom might be no more disturbed in that manner, that some Military justice should be executed; and therefore the Council had determined they three should be presently shot to death." (n) Forthwith they were conducted thence to the castle, which in those times was the county-gaol. Soon after which, Col. Ireton came and bade them prepare for Death. Sir Charles asked him, "By what Law they were to dye, or whether by an Ordinance of Parliament, by the Council of war, or by the command of the General." To which Ireton made answer, "That it was by the Vote of the Council of war, according to an Order of Parliament; by which Order all that were found in arms were to be proceeded against as Traytors *." Then Sir Charles replied, "Alas! you deceive yourselves, Me you cannot; but we are conquered, and must be what you please to make us." He then desired time till the next morning, in order to settle some things in this world, and especially to prepare and fit his soul for another: But that request being denied him, he went on again thus. "Sir, Do not think I make this request out of any desire I have to live; or escape the death you have doomed me to, for I scorn to ask life at your hands; but that I might have time to make some addressees to God above, and settle some things below, that I might not be thrown out of this world with all my sins about me. But since it will not be by your charity, I must submit to the mercy of God, whose holy will be done. Do your worst, I shall soon be ready for execution." Sir George Lisle said very little, only in the like manner desired a little respite, that he might have time to write to his father and mother, but was also denied.

The two injured Knights having thus received their doom without a legal tryal, sent and desired that the Lord Capel's chaplain should attend them [I]: And spent the short remains of life they were allowed to enjoy, in fervent prayer and devotion, and in receiving the communion.

About seven o'clock in the evening (o), they were brought forth, and conducted to a green spot of ground on the North-side of the Castle, a few paces from the wall; where they were received by the three Colonels, Ireton, Rainbrowe, and Whaley, with three files of musqueteers, who were to dispatch them. Sir Charles Lucas was fixed upon to be the first to suffer, and being placed for that purpose, he said, "I have often faced death in the field, and now you shall see I dare die." Then he fell upon his knees, and after having continued a few minutes in that posture, rose up with a cheerful countenance; and opening his doublet shewed the Soldiers his breast, then setting his hands to his sides, called out to them, "See, I am ready for you; now, Rebels, do your worst." At the pronouncing of which words they fired, and shot him in four places, so that he fell down dead.

Sir George Lisle, who during the execution had been carried a little aside, being brought to the same place, and viewing the dead body of his friend, which then lay bleeding on the ground, he kneeled down and kissed him, praising his unspotted honour. Then, after some filial expressions of duty to his father and mother, and recommendations to some other friends, turning to the spectators he said, "Oh! how many of your lives here have I saved in hot blood, and must now myself be most barbarously murdered in cold blood? But what dare not they do, that would willingly cut the throat of my dear King, whom they have already imprisoned; and for whose deliverance, and Peace to this unfortunate nation, I dedicate my last prayers to Heaven." Next, looking those in the face who were to execute him, and thinking they stood at too great a distance, (n) Lord Clarendon; Book xi. p. 305. col. 1.

(o) J. Heath's Chronicle, edit. 1676. fol. p. 179.

(*) See Whitelocke's Mem.

Lovell, Cooper, Blunt, Snelgrave, Dynors, Duffen, Ward, Busbey, Payne, Hemor, Smith, Kenington, Heath, Rawson, Bayley, Stephens, Gennings, Lodge, Lynne. Captain-Lieutenant Caninge. Captain-Lieutenant White.—Edw. Goodyeare, Marshall-general. Commissary general Trouley. Francis Lovelesse, Master of the Ordnance. Waggon-master general Gravidsen. Servants attending upon the Lords and Gentlemen, 65. Lieutenants 72. Ensigns and Cornets 69. Serjeants 183. Private Souldiers 3067. (From the account published by John Wright, 2 Septemb. 1648).

[I] Upon that, the confined Lords and Gentlemen desiring that no man might be a particular sufferer in so general a cause, called up Capt. Cannon an Officer of the enemies, and intreated him to hasten to the council of war, and desire them in the behalf of the prisoners; that they would not make those Gentlemen, they had taken from them, any greater sufferers than they intended to all; who being all equally concerned in condition, desired also to be so in suffering. M. Carter, p. 194. He was the Quarter-master-general, mentioned above in the list of the prisoners.

he desired them to come nearer. To which one of them said, "I'll warrant you, Sir, we'll hit you." But he answered smiling, "Friends, I have been nearer you, when you have missed me." (p) And so, after a short prayer upon his knees, he rose up and said, "Now, traitors, do your worst." Whereupon they shot him dead [K].

Sir Bernard Gascoigne, or Guasconi, a Florentine, was also sentenced to death by the council of war. But was reprieved; for which some reasons are assigned by our Historians [L], but not I think the true one.

The bodies of the two Knights were conveyed to St. Giles's church in this Town, and privately interred together in a vault under the North isle of that church, belonging to the noble family of Lucas. But their Funerals were afterwards solemnized in a magnificent manner, on the 7th of June 1661 (q). And, about the same time, a black marble-stone was laid over the Vault, with this inscription, cut in very deep and large characters;

"Under this Marble ly the Bodies of the two "most valiant Captains, Sir Charles Lucas, and
"Sir George Lisle, Knights, who, for their emi"nent Loyalty to their Soverain, were on the "28th day of August 1648, by the command
"of Sir Thomas Fairfax, the General of the "Parliament army, in cold blood barbarously
"murdered [M]."

Let us now return and enquire what became of the rest of the Prisoners.—The Lords and Gentlemen, according to the Articles, were drawn to the King's-head, and thrust into one room; from whence if any did but step out, he was immediately stript stark naked by the unruly soldiers. About nine o'clock in the evening, Commissary-general Ireton, Col. Whalley, and Col. Ewer came to them [N], and saluting the Lords, said, "They were sent to them from the General and the rest of the Gentlemen, to tell them, that now (for they supposed it was not unknown what had been done) he did by them give an assurance, of what before they held doubtful, fair Quarter as prisoners of war." But the Lord Capel bluntly told them, "They should have given the General more thanks, if he had saved the lives of those two Knights whom they had already executed, than for the Grant of their own." Adding, they should do well to finish their work, and execute the same rigour upon the rest: Upon which two or three such sharp and bitter replies passed between him and Ireton, as were thought to have cost Him his life a few months after (r). That evening, the Lords and some other Gentlemen were conducted to Mr. Warren's house overagainst the King's-head; where they remained till the Tuesday following, when the Earl of Norwich, and Lord Capel, were sent prisoners to Windsor-castle: and the rest of the most considerable amongst them dispersed about, and transmitted to several prisons, as contrary and far distant from their own homes as they could contrive. Of the remainder of the Gentlemen and Officers, a certain number was distributed to every Regiment, to ransom themselves: and most of whom afterwards, as they were able, and according to the civility of those they were distributed to, bought their liberties, and returned home. As for the inferior Officers and private Soldiers, when they were drawn from their Line, they shut them up in the Churches, placing guards over them; and gave free liberty to their foot-soldiers to go in and pillage them: so that in a very short time there were very few left with any clothes, and hardly shirts on. In that miserable condition, they marched them away in a most violent and lasting rain; dragged them from place to place in the country, lodging them in churches, and such places, till many of them starved; and several, that could not march by reason of faintness, they pistoled in the highways: and finally some they sold to be transported into foreign countries from their wives and children.

General Fairfax having thus made himself master of this Town, and in some measure satiated his revenge, sent, on the 29th of August, a canting account of his Success to the Earl of Manchester, Speaker of the House of Peers; by some Expressions wherein, he seems to doubt, whether he had not, by the hasty execution of the two Knights, prejudiced the Honour and Justice of Parliament [O].

The hurt done by his means to the whole Town in general was inexpressible: But I find in particular, that the following number of houses were burnt down, &c. in some of the parishes, during the Siege.

In St. Mary's at the walls,	51	burnt and ruined.
In H. Trinity,	32	burnt and destroyed.
In St. Martin's,	5	pulled down.
In St. James's,	28	burnt.
In St. Botolph's,	53	burnt and ruined.
In St. Giles's,	17	burnt.

Besides Churches, loss of Goods, &c. (s)

(p) Lord Clarendon, Book xi. (q) Book of Assemblies. (r) Lord Clarendon, Book xi. (s) From some Assessments made soon after the Siege, wherein all the particulars are mentioned.

[K] Mr. Whitelock observes, That they both died with very much courage, p. 333.—There was for some time a vulgar notion, that the Grasse would not grow where these two Gentlemen were executed: But that was owing to the great resort of people to see the place. It is now covered with grass equally with the rest of the Castle-Bailey.

[L] See Lord Clarendon, ibid. and M. Carter, p. 197.

[M] There is a Tradition among us, That Geo. Villiers Duke of Buckingham, who had married the Lord Fairfax's only daughter, finding that this Epitaph reflected upon his father-in-law's memory, he applied to King Charles II. to have it erased. Whereupon the King mentioning it to the Lord Lucas, his Lordship said, He would readily obey his Majesty's command, provided his Majesty would be pleased to permit him to put in the room of it, "That Sir Charles Lucas and Sir George Lisle were barbarously murdered for their Loyalty to K. Charles I. and that his son K. Charles II. ordered this memorial of their loyalty to be erased." Whereupon, it is said, the King ordered the Epitaph to be cut in as deep as possible (as it is) instead of being erased.

[N] The Lord Clarendon says, the Lord Fairfax went with them, which is not probable. I chuse to follow the account of Quarter-master-general Carter, who was in the number of the Prisoners.

[O] His letter was as follows, "My Lord, I have herewith sent you the Articles, with the Explanations And,

And, not satisfied with the Breaches his Batteries had made in our Walls, he ordered some parts of them to be further demolished, that the place might not hereafter be able to make any manner of defence [P].

Moreover, to excuse the Town from being plundered, he imposed upon the Inhabitants, who had already too much suffered, an exorbitant Fine of 14000*l.* of which he was so very generous as to abate 2000*l.* Ten thousand pounds of it he divided amongst his Army [Q], and two thousand pounds were distributed by his order among the poor and sufferers in the siege [R]. Half of this sum was laid upon the Dutch Congregation; which they greatly complained of, as exorbitant and unequal [S]: And they expecting, for their Dutch poor, half of the 2000*l.* allowed by the Lord Fairfax for the sufferers in the siege, they could at last, and with some trouble, get of the Town but 100*l.* (t).

Such was the End of this unhappy Affair, which shattered and demolished a great part of "so eminent a Town" as this, as the Lord Fairfax called it at his first coming (u): Deprived it of the Advantage of the residence, annexed; upon which it hath pleased God in his best time to deliver the town of Colchester, and the enemy therein into your hands without further bloodshed, saving that (for some satisfaction to Military Justice; and in part of avenge for the innocent blood they have caused to be spilt, and the trouble, damage, and mischief they have brought upon the Towne, this Country, and the Kingdome) I have with the advice of a Counsell of Warre of the chiefe Officers both of the Country Forces and the Army, caused two of them who were rendred at mercy to be shot to death before any of them had Quarter assured them. The persons pitched upon for this example were, Sir Charles Lucas, and Sir George Lisle, in whose Military execution I hope your Lordships will not find cause to thinke your Honour or Justice prejudiced. As for the Lord Goring, Lord Capell, and the rest of the persons rendred to mercy, and now assured of Quarter; of whose names I have sent your Lordships a particular List, I doe hereby render to the Parliaments judgement for further publique Justice and Mercy to be used as you shall see cause. I desire God may have the glory of his multiplyed mercies towards you and the Kingdome in this kinde, and in the condition of instruments as to the service here, the Officers and Souldiers of Essex and Suffolke (who in this time of so dangerous defection have adhered constant to yours and the Kingdomes interest) for their faithfull demeanour and patient indurance in the hardships of this service are not to be forgotten.

(t) From papers in the possession of Mr. S. Mortier. in my possession.

Your Lordships most humble servant,

Hietb, 29 Aug.
1648.

T. FAIRFAX.

(Printed by authority.)

[P] For that purpose he sent the following order. "I desire Mr. Mair of Colchester to give present order for the bringing in and delivering unto Thomas Mathew Captain of the Pioneers, five hundred spades, pick-axes, shovells, pick-axes and hatchetts for the demolishing of the workes and part of the Walls about the towne of Colchester. Given under my hand the first of September 1648.

FAIRFAX.

(From the original in Counsellor Boys's hands.)

[Q] The original List of the Sums paid to Capt. Blackwell and Capt. Evanfon, out of Head and North Wards, are still extant, amounting to 3923*l.* which were paid in this manner; By Misteris Leming, 100*l.* Mr. Buckston, 500*l.* Mr. Thurston, 500*l.* Mr. Petar Johnson, 20*l.* Mr. Jeremy Daniell, 145*l.* Mr. Henary Lambe, 200*l.* Mr. Crefeld senyar, 200*l.* &c. (From the original in Mr. W. Mayhew's hands.)

[R] The original List of the distribution of 1484*l.* of this money is in my possession. By which it appears, that it was given in various sums, from 1*s.* to 5*l.* some laid out neighbourhood, beneficence, and protection of the considerable Families of Lucas, and Sir Harbottle Grimston, by destroying their Seats: Brought the Trading part, nay almost all the Inhabitants of it, into inexpressible poverty and distress; and plunged them into calamities, from which many were never able to recover themselves. Happy would it have been for Colchester, if the Royalists had not bent their course this way, or had dealt with a more expeditious or generous enemy than Fairfax! The Harm he occasioned to this Town by the formal and tedious manner he took to besiege or block it up, will render his Name among us for ever odious and detestable [T].

§. 8. THIS poor and unhappy Town, thus brought under the Tyranny of an Army, the most undesirable of Masters, and what is worse, of an Army of Enthusiasts, was many ways oppressed, and loaded with immense Taxes, which, from the Surrender of the Town to Oliver Cromwell's being invested with the Protectorate, i. e. in about five years (w), amounted to above 16000*l.* [U].

(u) Above, p. 57. col. 2. (w) From the Assessments, in clothes, looms, &c. and 110*l.* for building houses for the poor. The chief manager of it was John Furley.

[S] In a petition to the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commissioners for levying this fine, they represented, "That many of them had lost the chief, and many a great part of their estates; partly by firing, partly by scattering abroad of their commodities in the country, where their workmen and spinners had made sale of them: also the Poor of their Congregation were encreased to a great number, and their necessities very great." But their petition not being regarded, they were forced to raise 5980*l.* amongst themselves; of which, seven of the Surname of Taifpill paid 1470*l.* Jacob Burkin, 400*l.* Peter de Bart, 340*l.* Oliver Hendricx, 90*l.* John Rebow sen. 80*l.* &c. (From a List, penes me.)

[T] As he was accused by Sir George Lisle, and many others afterwards, of murdering Him and Sir Charles Lucas in cold blood, I was in hopes he would have vindicated his conduct in that particular better than he has done in his Memorial; which the Reader will be pleased to consult, p. 121. &c. Only I shall observe, that he says there, the Besieged were compelled after four Months close Siege to surrender; which is a great mistake; for it was neither 4 nor 3 months, being only from the 13th of June to the 27th of August. He adds, they were compelled to a Surrender upon Mercy;—and delivering upon Mercy, is to be understood that some are to Suffer, the rest to go Free. This is a strange kind of Mercy; Military Mercy!—These other words of his also deserve animadversion: "But Sir Charles Lucas, and Sir George Lisle, being mere Soldiers of Fortune, and falling into our hands by chance of war, were executed; and in this I did nothing but according to my Commission, and the Trust reposed in me." What his Commission was, who knows? why did he not give order it should be made publick, for his own vindication?—But what doth he mean by a Soldier of fortune? Is it not a Swift; a person that has nothing but his Sword to depend upon? which was not the case of Sir Charles Lucas in particular; for he had a fortune of his own, the Horkley-estate &c. and was heir to the Honour and Estate of his brother, John Lord Lucas. [See below, Book II. p. 20, 21. and Lord Clarendon's History, book xi.] And therefore this is great want of Knowledge, if not worse.—Observe further, that He says nothing there of Sir Charles's being his prisoner upon parole: which would have been a better reason for executing him, than any that appears. On which account, that particular may justly be looked upon as a falsehood. Concerning Sir Charles's Moderation during the Siege, See Mr. Whitelock, p. 318.

[U] By the accounts then taken, the Rents of the T And

And in how arbitrary a manner he governed it, will appear by the following Mandamus.

“ Oliver P.

There haveing beene of late severall Complaints from the Auncient Aldermen and divers other well-affected Inhabitants of the Towne of Colchester that for some tyme past elections have bin made of severall persons to the Government therof who are altogether unable of publike imployment to the great discouragement of many honest Men liveing in and about that Towne, wherupon we did the 28th day of June last order that their should be a forbearance of election of persons into the Magistracy, or Common Councell of the said Towne till we should otherwise determine: And forasmuch as we are informed that Arthur Barnadiston the Recorder of the said Towne is lately deceased, by which vacancy, and the not appointing of other Officers for this present yeere, the said Towne is under some streights and inconveniencies: And understanding that you are shortly to be at the said Towne, Our will and pleasure is, that at your coming thither you give directions to the Mayor, that whilst you are there, they proceede to the election of a Recorder and also of a Mayor and other officers for the present yeere, in which election you are to take speciall care that the Electors and elected be qualified according to our late Proclamation: And certifie the names of the persons soe elected unto us, that being approved they may be sworne accordingly, and also to give us a speedy account herin. Given at Whitehall the 4th of December 1655. For Major Haynes.”

For all these sufferings this Town doth not seem to have been specially considered at the Restoration of K. Charles II, tho’ some of its members were rewarded and preferred.

The dreadful Plague, which raged in London in the year 1665, began to appear in this Town the 14th of August 1665; where it continued till the 7th of Decemb. 1666; during which time there died of it 4731 persons, according to the following list:

From August 14 to Sept. 8,	—	214
From Sept. 8 to Oct. 6,	—	573
From Oct. 6 to Nov. 3,	—	392
From Nov. 3 to Dec. 1,	—	276
From Dec. 1 to the 29th,	—	180
From Dec. 29 to Janu. 26,	—	131

(x) Book of Assemblies. 1684. p. 215,

(y) Ibid. p. 296. &c.

Estates within this Town and the Liberties, in the beginning of 1651, were found to be 8503 l. 10 s. and the Stocks 51623 l. And in Decemb. 1652, the Rents were 8272 l. 19 s. and the Stocks 27418 l.

[W] Dr. Humphrey Henchman, Bishop of London, sent them 80 l. and appointed Fast-days in this town, wherein collections were made for the relief of the Poor infected. A weekly collection was also made on Sundays in every church in London, by order of his Majesty, of which this Town received 1311 l. 10 s. There was likewise 108 l. a month taxed upon the County five miles round this Town, for the same use: And the Justices made an additional order for 250 l. a month for three months, on Lexden, Dunmow, and Hinckford divisions. Besides which, 120 l. was remitted out of the other Divisions of the County. Moreover the following sums were received: From the bishop of Hereford 20 l. From the Dean and Chapter of Windfor 10 l. From Sir Harbottle Grimston

From Janu. 26 to Febr. 23,	—	115
From Feb. 23 to March 23,	—	164
From March 23 to Apr. 27,	—	387
From Apr. 27 to May 25,	—	584
From May 25 to June 29,	—	619
From June 29 to July 27,	—	611
From July 27 to Aug. 31,	—	368
From Aug. 31 to Sept. 28,	—	79
From Sept. 28 to Oct. 26,	—	25
From Oct. 26 to Novemb. 30,	—	12
From Nov. 30 to Dec. 7,	—	1

The highest number in any one week, was from the 15th to the 22d of June 1666, it then amounting to 195.

During this great affliction and distress, several methods were used for the relief and assistance of the Poor, and sums of money sent down here from divers quarters [W].

In the latter end of K. Charles II’s reign, namely June 23, 1684, this Town was deprived of its Charter, in a wicked and arbitrary manner, by the pretended Surrender of some tools and sycophants; who, under the specious names of “a testimony of their duty” and loyalty, agreed to lay the Charter of “this corporation at his Majesty’s feet, and” then humbly to beseech his Majesty, to confirm the antient Customs and Prescriptions of “this Burrough, and to regrant them such Privileges as his Majesty in his princely wisdom “should think meet (x).” Accordingly they were new-modelled by a new Charter of the 8th of November the same year: And further new-modelled afterwards by the Charter of K. James II, Sept. 15, 1688 [X], who placed and displaced the officers and members thereof, by his Mandates, at pleasure (y). In 1693, K. William and Q. Mary, (in effect annulling these two last) did absolutely restore and confirm the first Charter granted by K. Charles II, August 3, 1663, with a few additions; restoring and confirming, at the same time, to the Mayor and Commonalty and their successors, all manors, messuages, rents, lands, tenements, meadows, pastures, commons, fairs, prescriptions, liberties, franchises, &c. granted and confirmed to the said Mayor and Commonalty, or their predecessors, by any of the Kings of England. Under this Charter thus confirmed they acted, down to our times. But, through a very great and criminal neglect, no due care was taken, in Elections, to have a due majority according to Charter. At length some incautious Methods having given occasion to vexatious and oppressive Prosecutions, in order to make this Burgh thoroughly dependent, great advantage was taken of the undue manner of Elections thus long used. And Informations, in the nature of Quo-warranto's, having been thereupon brought against the Mayor and the Aldermen then living, they disclaimed, upon record in the King's-bench, April 6, 1742, their Rights of acting as Aldermen. But all was set right by the late new Charter; including a Confirmation of the former ones.

20 l. From Messing 7 l. 19 s. From Hadley 12 l. From a merchant in London unknown 20 l. From Mr. Warren a Merchant in London, 57 l. From Sir Sam. Browne, one of the Justices of the Common pleas 5 l. From Mr. G. Torriano 6 l. From Mr. Turgis 5 l. From Lord Chief Justice Bridgman 20 l. From Sir Jacob Garrard 20 l. From T. Clark of Ipswich 5 l.—William Moore, deputy Mayor, was then a most active and useful member; as also were Mr. Alderman Lamb, Mr. Alderman Boys, and Mr. Alderman Tenneth.—Afterwards, by way of some little acknowledgement, Oct. 31, 1666, there was collected in this Town for the relief of the poor Inhabitants in London, which by reason of the fire were destitute of their habitations, 103 l. 8 s. 9 d. (Book of Assemblies.)

[X] A Quo-warranto was brought against the former Charter, in April 1688. (Book of Assemblies, p. 293.) And it was surrendered the May following. Ibid. p. 294. b.

C H A P. IV.

§ 1. The Trade of this Town.

IN ancient Times, such was the Indolence or Unskillfulness of the Natives of this Isle, that they employed themselves very little in Manufactures; so that even our Wool, the staple-commodity of England, was exported to the opposite Continent, and wrought by the Flemings, and other neighbouring nations.

However, there was some little work'd here even in the time of K. Henry III, as appears by Statute 9 Henr. III. c. 25. which enjoyns, that there should be "one breadth of died Cloth, ruffets and haberjects, that is to say, two yards within the lists." And also in the beginning of K. Edward the Third's reign, a statute (2 Edw. III. c. 14.) limits the measure and affize of Cloths of ray and of colour. Which is a proof of some being then made in this kingdom.

So long as our English monarchs were possessed of large Provinces in France, as Normandy and Guienne, the exportation of our Wool thither, and from thence unavoidably into the adjacent Territories, was permitted, or connived at, at least: as was also the importation of their Goods here, to the great prejudice of this Nation. But when that wise and powerful Prince, K. Edward III, came to contend with Philip de Valois for the Crown of France; in order to deprive the French of that inexhaustible Source of Strength and Riches, our Wool and the Goods manufactured of the same, He caused it to be enacted, That it should be felony to carry any Wool out of the realm (z); That none should wear any cloth but such as was made in England; That no Merchant should bring or cause to be brought, privily nor apertly, into England, Ireland, Wales, and Scotland, any Cloths made in any other places. And by another Statute (a), He gave great encouragement to foreign cloth-workers to come and settle here. In 1353, for the better keeping of our Wool within the realm, the Statute of Staple was made; the ground of which, as the preamble sets forth, was, "for the damage which had notoriously come as well to the King and to the great men, as to the people of the realm of England and of the lands of Wales and Ireland, because that the Staple of Wool, Leather, and Wool-fells of the said realm and land had been holden out of them; and also for the great Profits which should come to them, if the Staple were holden within the same and not elsewhere, It was enacted, That the Staple of Wool, Leather, Wool-fells, and Lead, growing or coming forth within the said realm and lands, should be perpetually holden,—For England, at Newcastle upon Tyne, York, Lincoln, Norwich, Westminster, Canterbury, Chichester, Winchester, Exeter, and Bristow:—For Wales, at Kaermerdyn:—And for Ireland, at Dublin, Waterford, Cork, and Drogheda."

From this period therefore may be dated the Rise and Beginning of the Woollen Manufactures in this Kingdom: which have been encouraged and regulated since by several Statutes, from the 25th of Edward III to the 7th of K. George II, as appears by the Statute-books.

This Town had an early share in those Manufactures. For we find Wooll-mongers, Card-makers, Combers, Clothiers, Weavers, Fullers, Dyers, in the reigns of K. Edward III. and Richard II. (b) mentioned in the Oath-book, and the Court-Rolls; all plain proofs of the Clothing-trade here: Which extended itself into the neighbouring Towns and Villages, as Coggeshall, Dedham, Langham, and East-Bergholt.

When the Dutch, and with them the Trade of Bay and Say making, were first introduced into this Town, will appear by these two authentic Letters. "The Bailiffs of Colchester to the Privy Council, signifying the arrival of certain Dutchmen from Sandwich unto Colchester.

1570 1^o August.

To the Right Honourable our singular good Lords the Queens Majesties most honourable Privy Counsel, These be delivered.

"In most humble wise, Right Honourable, our singular good Lords; Whereas of late a number of Dutchmen have come to this Town of Colchester, about Eleaven Households, to the number of 50 Persons small and great, where they made their abode longer time than other Strangers have been accustomed. Wee therefore called before us certain of the best of them, and required to know the Cause of their coming, and so long tarrying there; Who answered, That they were Part of the dispersed Flock, of late driven out of Flanders, for that their Consciences were offended with the Masse: And, for fear of the Tyranny of the Duke D'Alva, to save their Lives, and keep their Consciences, they came into this Realm for protection. And said, they came from Sandwich, where for that divers others of their Countrymen came lately over, they thought good to give them place; and to see, if they could place themselves conveniently in this Town, and to that end they made request unto us. And further they said, that there were more of their Company at Sandwich, which, together with these, are to the number of Two hundred Souls, that minde also, if they may be permitted, to come hither to inhabit also: which persons are of such Sciences as are not usual with us, but weave sackcloth, make needles, parchment, weavours, and such like. So that they minde not (as they say) to use any kinde of Exercise that shall be any hinderance to any artificer, or man of occupation here. And this they offer, to bee obedient to all the Lawes of the Land, and Civil Constitutions of this Town. But we dare not presume to give them such Licens of ourselves, although the appearance shew, that great Proffit might arise to the common Estate of this Towne greatly decayed; as in Re-edifying of the same, and in many other special causes, which to recite unto Your Honours should be over-tedious. And therefore we have given them friendly Entertainment, untill that we might signifie the same their Request unto Your Honours. In which wee most humbly beseech Your Lordships to advertise us, what Your Honourable Pleasure is that we may do herein: which known we shall willingly accomplish. And this we cannot but greatly commend the same Strangers unto You; for sithence their first coming hither, we finde them to be very Honest, Godly, Civill, and well-ordered people; not given to any outrage or excess. Wherefore, if any should be allotted to be in this Town, we would rather chuse these, and such as they shall commend, than any other. But That we refer to your Honourable direction, as well for the Persons as the Number that You will assigne. And thus fearing to be over-tedious, we most humbly take our Leave of your Honours.

(z) Statut. 11 Edw. III. c. 1, 2, 3. (a) Ibid. c. 5. (b) Oath-book, p. 26. 28. Rot. Cur. 30 Edw. III. rot. 3 Rot. 34 ejusdem. Rot. 40 ejusd. rot 3. Rot. 48 and 49 ejusd. rot. 1. 17, 18, 19. &c. Rot. 6 Hen. IV. rot. 24. And in the Rolls, 80. and 130 Henr. IV. I find these particulars: Joh. Reve & Joh. Mildewel electi Supervisores & Magistri artis textorie. rot. 23. 25. as also 40 Henr. V. rot. 5.—And in Rot. 6. Hen. V. rot. 13, Magister Artis facture pannorum.—So likewise this presentment; Et quod Dutchmanni sunt alieni, & faciunt pannum laneum infra libertat. Colcestr. ad noc. Burgens. Rot. 21 Hen. VI. rot. 9.

Your Honours most bounden ever to command,

From Colchester in Essex, this first of Aug. 1570.

Robert Northern } Bay-
Richard Northey } liffs.

What Answer the Privy Council then returned, I could not find; but, some months after, that honourable Board sent the following Letter relating to them.

To our loving Friends the Bayliffs and Aldermen of the Town of Colchester.

“ After our hearty Commendations: Understanding by Your Letters, That the Strangers

[1] The Town seemed to be fully replenished with them in the year 1580. For on the 17th of October that year, at an Assembly, it was ordered “ That whereas there were a great number of strangers inhabiting within this Town, and supposed to be more than the Town could well sustain and bear, that from thenceforth there should be no more Strangers suffered to inhabit within this town, or the Li-of the Low-Countries, who are fled hither for refuge, in this Persecution for Religion begun in their Countries, and have now dwelled amongst You in your town of Colchester a certain time; do behave themselves so quietly amongst themselves, so conformably to the Laws of God, and obediently to the Laws and Statutes of the Realm, and so gratefully unto you, that they have deserved such commendations. As ye do acknowledge your Towne to be benefited by their being there, we are right glad that we first commended them unto you; and cannot but allow their conformity, your gentle handling of them, and the Concord betwixt you, the which we trust God will encrease with his benefits towards you: And we pray you so to continue towards them as ye have begun, that so long as the said Strangers shall so well follow their honest Trades and Exercises, to maintain themselves by their labour, according to God's Commandments and the Laws of this Realme, and shew such Quietness and Obedience, as they hitherto have done, ye do aid and help them in all things which may be commodious for them; and suffer them to enjoy such Traffique in buying, selling, planting, and other labouring, as hitherto you have done, and as shall not be contrary to the Laws and Statutes of this Realme. And if any shall goe about to molest or vex them wrongfully, we pray you to aid and assist them, and to see the wrong amended with so much speed as ye may: Thus we bid you well to fare.

*From Greenwich the Your Loving Friends.
24th of March 1570.*

R. Leicester.

N. Bacon, C. S.
T. Suffex.

Being thus admitted and settled here, they carried on their business with pleasure, alacrity, success, and safety, under the protection of that great Encourager of Trade Q. Elizabeth [2]; and her wise Ministers Sir Francis Walsingham, the Lord Burleigh, and the Earl of Salisbury: who found it necessary to cherish, support, and protect them, many times, against the natural Jealousy of the rude and meaner Inhabitants of these parts; which were often molesting them, or refused to submit to their Rules, and the Constitutions established by them, and allowed by the Queen and Privy Council, for the better carrying on their business.

K. James I. extended also in a most particular manner his Care and Protection to these useful Members of Society; who brought in an universal Industry, and by whose residence here, not only the Inhabitants, but also, “ the whole State of the Town in general received great benefit and advantage: by their being the occasion to maintain great numbers of people at erties of the same, but such as should be of the Congregation, whereof the Elders should make a book, and deliver to the Bailiffs, and the same to be entred by the Clark; and all such as were not then of the Congregation, to be avoided the Town before the nativitie of Christ next ensuing; upon pain of 20 s. a week on every owner of a house, where any not of the Congregation should inha-

work

work [Z], and by conforming themselves to all orders of Government, both for contributions to payments, and all other necessary Duties. Yet such was the Unthankfulness and Corruption of some of our English weavers, that they not only carried Complaints against them to the Privy-Council; but also indicted and presented them at two several Quarter-sessions of the peace here, for assembling themselves in a Company and Congregation in their Hall without the King's Subjects; and there making Orders and setting Fines upon his Majesty's subjects, contrary to statute 21 Henr. VIII. And also for using partiality and unjust dealing in their searches and orders concerning the New-Draperies (c). So that the Privy-Council were forced to interpose, in their Letter of December 31, 1603; as did also, by virtue of the same, Sir Thomas Lucas Kt. Edward Waldegrave Esq; and Henry Osborne, one of the Bailiffs of this Town, in an order of February 18, 1605, wherein they enjoined, That the said Indictments and Presentments should be no further proceeded in; nor the said Strangers from henceforth in any such sort molested.

Moreover, for their greater ease and security, K. James I. granted them his letters patent, Octob. 17, 1612; wherein he says, That the "privie Counsell being duly informed by the Justices, Bayliffs, and other Magistrates of the Towne of Colchester, howe beneficiall the Strangers of the Dutche Congregation had been and were unto the said towne, as well in replenishing and bewtifieing of it, as for their Trades which they daylie used there, setting on work manie of his poore People and subjects both within the saide Towne and in other Townes and Places thereabouts, And alsoe of the orderlie and peaceable Government of their Congregation for matter of Religion, withoute Novelty, Division, or Scandall, Did upon his Pleasure signified in that behaulf, by order of the 7th of August 1612, establishe and confirme unto them all Privilege, Liberties, Immunities and Freedoms containd as well in dyvers former orders as used and tollerated unto them for manie yeares in the raigne of the late Q. Elizabeth, and since: And now, the better to strengthen and testify the saide Order, and to suppress all Disturbances and Molestations offered, or that might bee offered, unto the saide Strangers of the Dutch Congregation in Colchester by anie factious or troublesome persons, and for the more free and quiet using of their Trade and Government in all respects and to all intents and purposes; His Majesty did, for himself, his heires and successors, or-deine, constitute, and establishe, That all Strangers of the Dutch Congregation in the towne of Colchester then being, should and might from henceforth peaceable and free use their Trade of Bay and Say-making and other forreine Draperies, and alsoe enjoye all such Privillidg Liberties and Immunities, and should be permitted to use their Assemblies and Congregacions in as free, large, and ample manner as had been heretofore practised, tollerated, or allowed unto them in the time of Q. Elizabeth, or at any time since. And that noe Information should be accepted against them, or anie of them, in anie courts or places of justice, for or concerning the exercise or execution of anie the premisses. And that all Informations, Indictments, and Presentments preferred against them or anie of them heretofore for the causes afore said should be presentlie discharged, and the names of such Informers and other persons as should presume hereafter to molest them in anie thing confirmed unto them by theis presents should be presented unto the Privie-Council; whereof the Bayliffs and Aldermen of Colchester were to take notice, and to see the same preciselie and carefullie performed for so much as concerned them and everie of them in their severall places and authoritie. Further, his Majesty, for himself, his heires, and successors, did give, graunte, and confirme unto the said Strangers of the Dutch Congregation then being, and to all and everie stranger and strangers which at anie time hereafter should be, inhabitt and reside within the precincts of the said towne of Colchester, and bee admitted of the Dutch Congregation there, That they and everie of them should and might have, holde and enjoye free Lycence, Libertie, and Authoritie to continue and inhabitt, and to use and exercise as well their Trade of Bay and Say making and other forraine Draperies, with their accustomed Meetings, and Orders for the avoyding of all fraudulent Dealeings therein requisite for the upholding of the Goodness, Estimacion and Credit of the Stuffs made by them, As alsoe their Orders in their Church and Assemblies there, tending to the good Government of the said Congregation, in as free, large and ample manner in all respects and to all intents, constructions, and purposes as heretofore they had used, and had been tollerated and allowed unto them."—But no further (d).

After that, though there were often small Differences between them and the Natives, yet they carried on their Trade with sufficient Quietness, and great Success and Advantage both to themselves and the Town [A], and many got considerable fortunes.

(c) Rot. Cur. 10 & 20 Jac. 1. rot. 5. in dorso.

(d) From the original in the possession of Mr. S. Mortier.

bit—Item. that from thenceforth there should be admitted no more Strangers to inhabit within this Town, without the consent of the Bailiffs and Aldermen for the time being, or the most part of them.—

[Z] This brought so much Employment for the Poor of this Town in the Wool-busines, that 21 Janu. 1590-1, it was ordered at an Assembly, That the Lady Judde her hundred pounds should be laid out in Wool for one whole year, and delivered to the Poor of the town, for spinning, carding, combing, &c. That the said Poor should of the same work spin but six knots of bay-yarn and the bay-warp, and seven knots of the Bay-woof of the yarn. And after Michaelmas-day 1591, none of the Poor to go a begging within the said town or Liberties, without the special license of the Bailiffs and four Aldermen,—and to be given to none but such as were not able to work.

[A] In 1609 the Town was so populous and full of Inhabitants, that there was not one House to be had at any

From

From the year 1617, till about the year 1716, they used to pay the Chamberlain of this Town 30*l.* 50*l.* and even as high as 90*l.* per ann. for the Bay and Say Hall, with the Seal; and 60*l.* as a foreign Fine.

Among other wise regulations to keep up the Goodness and Reputation of their Manufactures; they had this standing rule, That all Bays should be searched and surveyed at the Dutch Bay-Hall; by sworn Searchers maintained by their Company; and, according to the content and goodness of the said Bays, they were Sealed, whereby the Buyer or Merchant might know the length and goodness of every Bay. As soon therefore as every piece was finished, it was carried raw, directly from the loom, to an apartment called the Rawball; where it was halled and drawne over, or viewed and examined by proper Officers, and if it was not well and truly made, the maker was boted [B] or fined. Then, after it had been roughed, fulled, scoured, and thicked, it was carried, under a certain penalty, to another apartment called the White-Hall, to be again viewed and searched, that it might appear whether the same were well and sufficiently scoured and thicked. Within 21 days after, it was to be brought and shown again at the White-hall, and receive its final sentence. And if any default was in the Master, for not allowing sufficient materials, or using bad ones; or in the workmen, during the manufacturing, they were accordingly fined, and the fines constantly levied.

For the better management of these several articles, they had the following Officers (besides the Governors and Assistants of the Dutch Bay-hall) chosen yearly at Christmasts, and sworn in on the 1st or 2d of January; who inspected the Bays from the loom to the time of finishing them for the market, viz. 6 printers in the loom: 15 Raw-hallers: 12 White-hallers: 1 Measurer, and his Assistant: 2 High-measurers: 1 Hall-keeper, and Book-keeper, both of the raw and white-hall, and 1 Hall-keeper's assistant: 3 Hall-keeper's assistants for stamping: a Bayliff and his assistants, five in number: 10

Searchers of the Tenters: 3 provers of the Bays.—The last that were sworn in, were January 1, 1727-8 (e).

The manner in which these several Officers passed sentence on Bays, was, by affixing to them proper Seals. For the better explaining of which, it must be observed, That there were Four several sorts of Bays made in Colchester, which were allowed to be sealed, viz. Rents, Cuts, Crowns, and Crosses: and different leaden Seals were affixed to each, to shew what sort they were of. A Rent (so called because both the Selvages were rent off) had two leaden seals. A Cutt (so called because one end was cut sloping) had three seals. A Crown-bay, being the most common sort, had four seals. A Cross-bay, which was the best sort, had five broad leaden seals, whereof one was the same that was affixed to all sorts, the other four only to Cross-Bays. Of the four broad leaden seals affixed to the Crown-Bays; one had on the one side, three crowns without the cross, and this inscription in letters reverse: Dyts Colcestr Baye: on the other side a Griffin, with an inscription: This was commonly called a Letter-seal, and was affixed to all sorts of Bays. The other three Seals had the three Crowns, and this inscription, Dyts Colcester Crone bay round it, on one side; the reverse a Griffin with the inscription just now mentioned, round. All these Seals were marked 1571.

As to the five broad leaden seals affixed to the Cross-Bay; one was the same as the first mentioned for a Crown-Bay. The other four had on one side three Crowns and a cross-ragulé, with this inscription Dyts Colcester 100 Cross 1571. Reverse a Griffin.

There were, besides, the Aulnage-seal, and some other small ones. The latter were stamped while the Bay was in working, in the Weaver's, Miller's, or Rougher's hands: But the broad Seals were not affixed till judgment was passed on the Bay, whether it was a Cross, Crown, Cut, or Rent: And there was about 30*s.* difference in their values. Four of these smaller Seals were put upon every Dutch Colchester-Bay, whether Crosses, Crowns, Cutts, (e) Book of Assemblies; and Oath-book, where all their Oaths are.

rate. (MS. penes me). By an account taken in 1616, of the Dutch people, resident in our sixteen parishes; the number of those born abroad, was found to be 248, and of their children and Dutch servants, born here, 1023. of whom 583, lived in St. Peters parish. — N. B. They used to maintain their own Poor; and paid to the xth and xvth. in Q. Elizabeth's reign, only 3*l.*—I should have observed above, That before the year 1590 there were some Dutch Bay-makers settled in Halstead; but taking a dislike to that place, they came to Colchester, notwithstanding all endeavours of the Privy-council to the contrary. (MSS. penes me.)

[B] This is what was called Rawbotes, from the Saxon bore amends, or fine. Of which fines, all those that accrued from the English Bay-makers, were paid, by the Governors of the Dutch Hall, into the hands of the Bailiffs or Mayors of this town, for the benefit of the English poor in the several parishes; and distributed amongst them generally in cloth. What they amounted in several years appears by this list, which shews at the same time the state of the Trade. In 1640, 41*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.* In 1642, 24*l.* 19*s.* 1*d.* In 1643, 33*l.* 15*s.* In 1644, 46*l.* 3*s.* 10*d.* In 1645, 53*l.* In 1646, 42*l.* 6*s.* 2*d.* In 1647, 37*l.* 12*s.* In or Rent-bays. One was a print for a 100 Bay; upon the lead 100. The second for the Haller of Raw-Bays, to set the forfeiture of the weaver, for making bad workmanship. The third, for the sealers of the white Bays to imprint their sentence. The fourth for the measurer of the Bay, to print the length of it; i. e. how many ells long it was: And so no notice was taken of it in buying or selling, but only for the length.

1648, 32*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* In 1649, 67*l.* 7*s.* 3*d.* In 1650, 72*l.* 10*s.* In 1651, 48*l.* 13*s.* In 1652, 38*l.* 9*s.* In 1653, 41*l.* 7*s.* 5*d.* In 1654, 60*l.* 16*s.* 10*d.* In 1655, 58*l.* 14*s.* and so on, a few pounds above 50 till the Restoration. In 1660, 82*l.* 15*s.* 1*d.* In 1661, 86*l.* 5*s.* 7*d.* In 1662, 77*l.* 1*s.* 5*d.* In 1663, 94*l.* 5*s.* 8*d.* In 1664, 96*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.* In 1665, 91*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.* In 1666, 30*l.* 10*s.* 8*d.* In 1667, 60*l.* 18*s.* 7*d.* In 1668, 100*l.* 17*s.* 9*d.* In 1669, 115*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.* In 1670, 120*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.* In 1671, 124*l.* 16*s.* 5*d.* In 1672, 120*l.* 2*s.* 4*d.* In 1673, 140*l.* 8*s.* 6*d.* In 1674, 143*l.* 7*s.* 7*d.* And so on till 1680 between 100 and 140*l.* In 1680, 165*l.* 7*s.* 1*d.* In 1681, 188*l.* 8*s.* In 1682, 225*l.* 9*d.* In 1683, 248*l.* 5*s.* 3*d.* In 1684, 233*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* In 1685, 171*l.* 19*s.* In 1686, 198*l.* 2*d.* In 1687, 200*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.* In 1688, 213*l.* 12*s.* In 1689, 215*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.* In 1690, 187*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.* In 1691, 174*l.* 8*s.* 6*d.* In 1692, 143*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.* In 1693, 127*l.* 12*s.* 7*d.* In 1694, 197*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* In 1695, 200*l.* 7*s.* 7*d.* For the rest till 1698, when the Workhouse Corporation took it, about 170*l.* and so on less and less. A great loss to the present Poor!

The Bays being sold upon the credit and bare inspection of the Seals, without opening the packs, and examining the Length and Goodness of them; the exactest care possible was taken, to prevent all undue practices, and when discovered to punish them. By this laudable Diligence of the Governors and their Officers, the Bay-trade kept up its reputation for many years, as well, or better than any other Trade whatsoever.

But these Seals were, as early as the year 1588, counterfeited by the Bay-makers at Halstead (f), and afterwards in London (g); and even falsified in this very Town, i. e. taken from the Cross-Bays, and affixed to some of the meaner sorts. Which, together with the negligence of the Officers, [“to the scandal” of the whole Nation, and great prejudice to “this Town,”] procured sharp Reproofs from the Privy Council in 1635 (b).

The Act, 12 Car. II. for the regulating of the Trade of Bay-making in the Dutch Bay-Hall in Colchester; prevented in a great measure all fraudulent dealings therein, and it maintained its credit several years after. So that we are told, it brought a return here of 30,000*l.* weekly (i): but it is more certain, that 1000 or 1200 Bays at least were made weekly here, even within the memory of man [C]. This Trade was first most sensibly hurt by our Wars with Spain, especially by Q. Anne's Wars, more glorious than profitable to England. By which means, and other disagreeable concurrent causes, the Dutch Congregation not being able to carry it on, dissolved themselves in 1728 []. But 'tis undeniable, that it was Queen Anne's Wars which gave it the fatal blow. Since which, besides what the French have stolen from us, it is removed in a great measure into the West and Northern parts of this Kingdom, where Provisions are cheaper, the poor more easily satisfied, and Coals are very plentiful. However, we have not been all along without some tolerable share of it, though a Spanish war always hurts us extremely. But, upon the re-establishment of a general Peace it is now greatly flourishing again: And it is hoped, that the immense Quantity of Riches, which Trade causes to flow into this Nation; will be used with Thankfulness, Humility, and Prudence; employed in the general Good of the Public; and not degenerate into the most criminal Luxury, Arrogance, Selfishness, and Dissipation; the too natural Effects of Over-abundance.

Some inconsiderate people have indeed been wishing that it were entirely out of the place: But herein they neither show their Judgment, nor Affection to this Town. For, in that case, the Workmen would remove with it, and not stay here and starve. And then what would become of our Houses? Must they not be taken down, as too many have been since the decline of Trade; and what an ineffimable loss would that be both to the public and to private persons? To the latter, whose only subsistence, in many instances, depends upon the Rents of those Houses: And to the Public and our Royal Master, which would be very great losers in the Taxes.

Moreover what would become of the great Quantities of Provisions, which through God's goodness plentifully grow all around; and by proper encouragement, and a quick consumption, are industriously cultivated, and brought to our markets? There would then be an end of them. The Rents of our lands would fall; universal Poverty would ensue; and this flourishing Town would be reduced to a despicable village.

And not only this Town, but also the greatest part of this noble and populous County, of which the poorer sort are almost universally employed in Spinning the Wool, would be reduced to inexpressible streights and misery: For what Employment could be immediately substituted in its room?

Supposing the generality of our numerous Poor were to stay here, and inhabit our Houses; yet how would they be employed, or live, till some other business was established among us; and how long might it not be before they could learn it, or before it could turn to a tolerable account?

The Riches of a Kingdom, and of every part of the same, consist in the Number of People. And there they will always throng where there is Business and Wages. Therefore, the way to bring Riches and Plenty in this place, is, Not to take all base methods imaginable to (f) Letter of Sir Fr. Walsingham, and other MSS. penes me.

(g) Rushworth, Vol. III. Appendix p. 102.

(b) From the original Letter of Council, penes me.

(i) Magna Britannia, &c. by the Rev. T. Cox, in Essex, p. 707.

[C] April 30, 1638. It was ordered at an Assembly, That no Bay-maker within this Town or the Liberties, should at any time, after the last day of June next coming, make above Threescore pieces of Hall-Bays in one quarter of a year. (Book of Assemblies.) And a By-law, made by the Governors of the Dutch Bay-hall in 1711, enjoined, That no Bay-maker in Colchester should rough, either by themselves or any of their own family, above 130 Bays in any one quarter of a year; nor make, or cause to be made, above 234 Colchester-Bays in any one quarter of a year.

[] While that Congregation subsisted here, they had Ministers, whose names follow. Joannis Meggrodine, Jo- nas Prooft, Tho. Cole, Joannis Kuiting, Joan. Hue, Samuel Bischof, Joan. Smit, Joan. Vosburg, Adrian Hoyer, Samuel Trefel, Jacobus Harding, Peter Cornelius Schrevelius, Martinus Vanderwint. For some time they had the use of St. Giles's, and then of All-Saints Church: And at last had a Chapel of their own, in St. Mary's lane, in part of the late Mr. Geo. Gray's house, now Mr. Theoph. Hall's.

banish Trade from hence; but to use all honest and proper means, nay to strive to the utmost, to make it flourish: which may be done by Sobriety, Contentment, and due Diligence on one hand; and by Justice, Humanity, and not an immoderate Greediness of Gain, on the other.

Bating the pernicious Consequences which Dr. B. Mandeville hath drawn from some Maxims laid down by him, Nothing can certainly be more true nor useful than his general Doctrine, That the person who employs most hands is the greatest Friend and Benefactor to Society: And such are our Bay-makers, and all Manufacturers of wool. So that they are infinitely more to be valued, cherished, and encouraged, than such Dealers, or rather Corrupters, as are only subservient to people's Luxury and Pride, which line the streets of every Town, and manage their business, though never so profitable, only with three or four hands.

§. 2. Other intident matters: Market-days; Fairs; &c.

KING Richard I. enjoined, in his Charter, That Colchester-market should not be hindered by any other Market, but that the Markets and Customs here should remain in the same state as when they were confirmed upon the oath of the Burgeſſes of Colchester, before the Justices itinerant of K. Henry II. But no notice is taken, on what day, or days, Colchester-market was then held.

At present we have Three Market-days in every week, viz. on Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday; and one on every second Tuesday. By whom the three first were granted is unknown, but K. William III. granted the last in his Charter [D]: And a Wool-market was also held weekly on that day, for many years.

Saturday is the most considerable Market-day [E], being for Meat [F], and all manner of provisions, and none is better furnished on that day; though it was yet plentiful, while the Town was more populous. The same day, and Wednesday, is for Fruit, Fowls, and all country goods: As the latter, and Friday, used to be the best Fish-days. But now there is not so great a certainty: for Fish is almost daily brought to market from Maningtree and Wivenhoo, as it is caught.

Anciently there seemed to have been a Market held here every day [G]: and very great care was taken, that no Markets in the neighbourhood should interfere with, or hurt this [H].

July 31, 1529. It was ordered, that from thenceforth the pease and root-market, with the onions, garlick, and cucumbers, and other garden stuff and wares, should be holden and kept from the Lyon-sign downward towards St. Nicolas church, and in no place else. Renewed March 9, 1620 (k). And it hath continued thereabouts ever since.

June 18, 1660. The Fish-market was ordered, after the 14th of July following, to be kept in Wire-street. But, in July 1697, a convenient Structure was ordered to be erected for a Fish-market, by the side of the Butchers shambles; where it hath been kept ever since (l).

Before Shops were daily kept open, and so well furnished as they are now; most Things were bought at Fairs, as is still practised in Germany, and not to be had elsewhere, or at any other time; so that in K. Henry the 2d's time, some of his children's clothes were bought at Winchester-Fair [I]. And this is what rendered Fairs so considerable, and so much desired as a very valuable Grant or Favour.

We have five Fairs in this Town; viz. one in April; one in June; two in July; and one in October.

1. That in April, is comprised in the following clause of the Charter of Incorporation of the Taylors of this Town, granted by K. William III. Decemb. 15, 1699.—“And further We do grant to the Mayor and Commonalty of the Burrough and Corporation of Colchester, and their successors for ever, That he the said Mayor and his successors may hold and keepe yearly for ever one Fair or Mart in a certain place within the Burrough aforesaid neare St. Annes in the parish of St. James,—for the buying and selling of all and singular live cattle, goods, wares, and merchandizes. To be begun and holden in and upon the second Tuesday in every month of Aprill, and to last and

(k) Book of Assemblies.

(l) Ibid.

[D] The words of the Charter are—infra Burgum predic' annuatim imperpetuum Unum mercat' super diem Martis semel in duabus septimanis pro emptione & venditione omnium & singul' Bonor' Mercimon' et Merchandiz'—

[E] Nov. 1, 1653. At an Assembly, it was ordered, That Mr. Mayor and Mr. Greene shall do what in them lieth, for the altering of the Market of this Town from the Saturday to the Friday:” For which no reason is assigned. Probably it was at the instance of the Sabbatarians.

[F] Besides what is killed in the Town, there is a great deal brought in by the Country-Butchers all around. By an order of Assembly in 1574, they were allowed to stay only till 2 o'clock in the afternoon from All Saints to Easter, and till 4 the rest of the year. But Sept. 23, 1617, their time was enlarged to 5 o'clock in the afternoon from All Saints to Shrove-tuesday, and till after 7 the rest of the year. Ever since 1656, they have been allowed to stay, from Michaelmas to Lady-day, till 8: and the rest of the year till 9. In 1623, there were but 14 country-butchers stalls, let for 18*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per ann. But January 13,

1697-8 the Butchers stalls were lett to Jacob Johnson for 60*l.* a year, and a fine of 265*l.* And Sept. 17, 1739, to Nicholas Lues at 55*l.* per ann. Apr. 5, 1670, they were ordered to be removed every Saturday night by 12 o'clock, under a penalty of 10*s.*—June 12, 1660, the ground in the High-street for the Market-place, from the White-hart to the Red-Lion, and on the other side from the Library to the Motehall, was leased to Joseph Brand, for 40*l.* per ann. (Book of Assemblies.)

[G] This I infer from the words—ratione Mercatibilib, in eadem villa omni die habiti—Rot. Cur. 36 Henr. vi. rot. 22.

[H] In the Charter to the College of Higham-ferrers for the manor of Fyngerynghoo, it is expressly provided, That no common Market for victuals or any other merchandize, shall be kept in that vill or manor, &c.

[I] Mag. Rot. 18 Hen. 2. rot. 6. b. Et Ailwardo Camerario xx*l.* ad emendam Robam filii Regis in Nundinis Wintonie, per breve regis. T. Madox Hist. of the Exchequer, p. 251.

continue for the Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday then next following. 'Tis vulgarly called the Taylors Fair.

2. The Fair in June, or Midsummer-fair, was granted, among other gifts, to the Abbot and Monks of St. John's, by Eudo founder of that Abey [K]. It lasted anciently four days, viz. June 23, 24. (St. John Baptist's Day) 25, and 26; but now continues only One day, viz. July 5. 'Tis held on St. John's Green, and the Lord of Monk-wic maner presumes to take the profits of the same; but the Corporation seems to have the best right to them [L]. If not, then I think the owner of the site of the Abbey.

3. The next Fair (the first in July) was granted by K. William and Q. Mary, in their Charter to this Corporation anno 1693. It began the 12th, now the 23d day of July, and continues the two whole days next following [M]. But if the said day of July happens to be on a Sunday, then the fair begins on the Monday, and lasts the two days following: If the 23d of July falls on a Friday or Saturday, the fair begins on the Thursday immediately foregoing, and lasts three days, as is already said. It is held in the same place near St. Anne's, as the other just now mentioned; and is called the New Fair.

4. The other fair in July, was granted by K. Richard I. Decemb. 8, 1189, to the Lepers of St. Mary Magdalene in Colchester (l). It used to last two days, namely, the vigil and the day of St. Mary Magdalene, July 21st and 22d, but now only one; which, since the alteration of the style, is August 2. 'Tis kept on Magalengreen. The Master of the Hospital there receives the profits of it.

5. The fair in October, or St. Dennis's-fair, was granted to this Corporation by K. Edward II. in his Charter, dated Febr. 4, 1318. He directed, it should last, the eve of St. Dennis, St. Dennis's day [Octob. 9.] and the six days following [N]. And so it continued till 1635, when some of the Burgeses having insinuated to K. Charles I. that it would be an advantage to this Town, to have that fair reduced to four days: He ordered, in his second Charter dated July 9, that year, That it should continue four days only, namely, the eve and the day of St. Dennis, and the two days immediately following. It is kept in the North-side of the High-street, from the Exchange to the Market-cross, where booths are built for that purpose: But, by an order made about it in 1563, it appears, That it began then "bene the Berye-feild-gate, and extended upwards to the farther corner of the "Corne-markett, by the towne-well [or K. "Coel's pump] and so downward to the other "side towards the pyllorye, on both sides of the "waye:" The first day is a fair for live cattle, kept in Berye-field. Anciently, the Sunday after St. Dennis's day, corruptly called Pardon-Sunday, was accounted the chief day of the fair; but, at an Assembly 17 March 1577, it was ordered, That St. Dennys day should always be the chief day, except it fell upon a Sunday, and then the Monday after to be the chief day of the Fair (m). Since the alteration of the style, this Fair begins the 20th of October: and in the Charters of K. Charles I. and of K. William and Qu. Mary was limited to four days only, as it is also in the last Charter.

§ 5. Bishops of Colchester:
Viscounts; Taxes.

By statute 26 Hen. VIII. c. 14. Colchester was one of those Towns which were to be taken and accepted for fees of Bishops Suffragans to be made in this realm. There never were but two consecrated for this place; namely, 1. William Moore, Rector of West Tilbury and Bradwell juxta mare, and Vicar of Walden; consecrated Octob. 20, 1536, and died in 1540 (n). 2. John Sterne, B. D. Vicar of Witham, consecrated Nov. 12, 1592. He died in Febr. 1607 (o).

As to Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction, this Town is under the government of the Bishop of London; and gives denomination to one of the Five Archdeacons of that see, whose Archdeaconry comprehends the Deanries of Colchester, Lexden, Tendring, Witham, Samford, and Newport. The present Archdeacon is the Rev.

It hath also given the Title of Viscount to the noble Families of Darcy of Chiche, and Savage. For, July 5, 1621. Thomas Baron Darcy was created Viscount Colchester, [with a grant of 8l. out of the Fee-farm of this Town] to him and the heirs male of his body: and, for default or such issue, with remainder to Sir Thomas Savage of Rock-savage, Bart. who had married his eldest daughter Elizabeth; and to their joint heirs. The said Thomas Lord Darcy was also advanced to the title of Earl Rivers, Nov. 4, 1626. And dying Feb. 21, 1639, was succeeded in his titles by his grandson John Savage: who was succeeded therein by his two sons, Thomas, and Richard, one after the other. Thomas died in Septemb. 1694, and Richard August 18, 1712, both without issue-male: so that the title of Viscount Colchester is extinct.

I have not enlarged upon the Taxes raised upon this Town, with the rest of the Kingdom, in early times, because they continued much the same for a long while. They were levied by Tenths and Fifteenths. This Burgh, with the four Hamletts, was taxed to a Fifteenth, and a Tenth, at 26l. 2s. 9d. [O] which was a fixed and certain sum. In the 37th of Q. Eli-

(l) Monastic. Anglic. ubi supra, p. 396. p. 85. &c.

(o) Ibid. p. 162.

(m) Book of Assemblies.

(n) Newcourt's Rep. Vol. II.

[K] Et feriam quatuor dierum ad Nativitatem Sti. Johannis. Carta Eudonis, Monastic. Anglic. Vol. ii. p. 892, 893.

[L] See below, Book II. p. 19.

[M] Ac etiam unam Feriam sive Nundin' per annum, singulis annis imperpetuum, incipiend' in & supra Duodecimum diem Julii, et per duos dies integros tunc proxime sequentes duraturam; &c.

[N] Et quod predicti Burghenses & eorum heredes & successores imperpetuum habeant in Burgo predicto Unam feriam singulis annis per octo dies duraturam, videlicet in vigilia & in die sancti Dionisii & per sex dies sequentes.—

[O] This appears from the following curious Exemplification. Henricus [vi] Dei gra' Rex Angl' & Franc' & zabeth, zabeth, each parish paid towards that sum according to the proportion below [P]. When a large sum was wanted, several Tenths and Fifteenths were granted at once, to be levied within two or three years, &c. A Subsidy was of a different nature: for it was laid upon Lands, Goods, and Polls, without fixing the whole to a certain sum [Q]; and seems to have been a Fifth. A Subsidy upon the 16 parishes here, in the 37th of Queen Elizabeth, produced 227 l. 10 s. 8 d.

At present the Land-tax charged upon this Town and the Liberties, at 4 s. in the pound, is 2845 l. 6 s. 3 d. And considering the want of the Aulnage, which was rated at 400 l. per ann. &c. and the great fall in the Rents of the Houses, it is extremely difficult, to raise that very large sum. In Queen Elizabeth's Subsidy-Acts, 6000 l. was allowed "in relief, comfort, and discharge of the poore Townes, Cities, and Broughs of this realme wasted, desolate, or destroyed, or over greatly impoverished." And there appears no good reason, why the same Favour should not be extended to this and other decayed Towns.

CHAP. V.

§ I. Privileges, and Charters.

COLCHESTER having always been a very considerable Town, we may rest assured, That it ever merited and obtained the Regard and Favour of our Sovereigns; and that they granted it from the first several large Privileges and Immunities. What they were in the Saxon and earliest times, we can give no certain account, for want of Records. We must begin therefore after the Norman Conquest. In the reigns of K. Henry I. and II. they had Consuetudines Aquæ & Ripæ ex utraque parte, the Customs of the water and of the banks, or wharfs, on each side. And their Markets and Customs were confirmed in the reign of King

Henry II. by the Justices itinerant, upon the oath of the Burgeffes of the Town (p). But the first of our Kings who settled and confirmed their Liberties and Privileges by Charter, was K. Richard I. For, in his Charter, dated Decemb. 6. a^o 1189. 1^o regni, He granted and confirmed to his Burgeffes of Colchester, liberty to chuse Bailiffs from among themselves whom they would; and a Justice to hold pleas of the Crown, and to plead them within their own Burgh; Ordaining, that they should have no Justice but of their own chusing: And not plead any matter out of the Walls of their Burgh: Be free from Scot and Lot, Danegeld, and fine for Murder [R]; And whenever [or wheresoever] they were summoned before the Justices itinerant, they might be acquitted by four creditable men of the Burgh: And none of them should clear themselves by duel. If any of them was impleaded in a plea of the Crown, upon making oath that he had been indicted in the Burgh, he should be discharged: That none of the Royal family, or any other, should be lodged, by force, or by the Marshall's appointment, within the walls of the Burgh: That they should be exempt all over England, and the Seaports, from Toll, Lastage, Passage, Pontage [S], and all other customs [or duties] at all times and in all places: And that none of the Burgeffes should be amerced in a pecuniary sum, unless for their weere [T]: viz. a hundred shillings, in their Hundred [court] or at any other plea, within the Walls of the Burgh; the said amerciamento to be laid [or moderated] by the oath of the foresaid Burgeffes, and that he be no more molested. Also, that they should have all their lands, debts, and securities, whoever owed them: And if any person took toll or custom from them, the Burgeffes should take from that city, burgh, or town, in which the toll or custom had been taken, as much as the Burgeffs of Colchester had given for toll, or according to the damage he had suffered thereby. They

(p) Charter of K. Richard I. towards the end.

Drus Hib. Omnib' ad quos p'sentes lre p'ven'nt salm. Sciatis qd. inspecta quadam Indentura facta int' Abbem de Waleden & Johem de Marton clicum de singulis sumis concessis Regi E. ticio post conquestum per Coitates Burgor' ac hoim Villar' & Dnicor' Antiquor' in Comitatu Essex p' Decima & Quintadecima eidem Dno Regi in P'liamento suo apud Westm' ad diem lune p'x' post festum Exaltacois Ste Crucis anno regni sui octavo sumonito concessis, Comp'tum est in eadem Indentura videlt. in Hundr' de Lex' int' alia sic De Burgo Colecestr, cum Hamelett' de Lex' Miland, Grenefted & Westdonilond, que ad decimam taxant' xxvi li. iis. ix*d.* Quod ad p'secucioem Johis Beche & Robti Sylby Ballivor' Burgi Colcestr' sub sigillo scei nri duximus exemplificand'. In cujus rei testimoniu' has lras nras fieri fecimus patentes: Teste J. Juyn apud Westm' xiv die Februarii anno regni nri septimo P. Indenturam p'dcam in Thro existen' & p' Barones. (From the original.)

[P] St. Leonard,	2	7	2	St. Buttolph's,	1	13	10
Greenstead,	1	3	6	S. Trinity,	0	11	7
St. James,	2	13	1	Mary Magdalene,	0	5	4
The Duche Congregation,	3	0	0	St. Giles, and the Old Hich,	1	12	2
St. Nicholas,	2	8	11	St. Mary's,	0	19	6
All-Saints,	6	18	8	Miland,	1	8	10
St. Rumbald,	1	10	0	Lexden,	2	5	5
St. Martin,	0	10	8	West-doniland,	0	5	11
St. Peter,	3	7	6

[Q] Of which be pleased to take these few instances.

		Rated at		How much to pay.
		l.	l.	s.	d.
Lands,	Sir Tho. Lucas Knight,	60	—	12
	Mrs. Catherine Awdly. wid.	60	—	12
	Edward Barker, Esq; —	10	—	2
Goods,	John Walfare, Clerk —	20	s.	4
	Richard Fletcher —	3		8
Aliens	Tho. Reynold Alderm.	10	—	1	6 8
Goods,	Frederick Beck, —	2	—	1	10 1
Aliens	Anthony Clark and
bypolls	his wife, —			1	4

[R] By Scot and Lot are to be understood public Impositions, or Contribution.—Danegeld, was a Sum paid at first to the Danes, to leave England in quiet. (See above, p. 144.) But it was afterwards a Tax, continued even after the conquest. Essex paid to it 252 l. 6 s.—Murdrum, was a fine, or pecuniary punishment, imposed upon a place where a murder was committed; or for not producing the Murderer, if he was fled there.

[S] Lastage, a liberty for men to bring their Goods to fairs and markets, or to carry them where they pleased; paid by the Last.—Passage, money paid for passing to and fro, of persons or goods, in common shores, landing places, &c.—Pontage, toll paid for passage over Bridges, with horses, carriages, &c. or under them, with boats and ships.

[T] This word [derived from the Saxon per, man]; who who owed them [the Burgeſſes of Colcheſter] any thing ſhould well and fully pay it, or legally prove at Colcheſter, that they ought not to pay it. “ And if they reſuſed to pay it, “ and did not come to Colcheſter to prove “ they owed it not, the Burgeſſes to whom “ any thing was due ſhould take a diſtreſs “ from that County in which the Debtor dwelt, “ until he ſatiſfied the debt, or proved at Colcheſter by due courſe of law that he owed “ nothing” [U]. No Foreſter ſhould have power to moleſt any man within the Liberty, but all the Burgeſſes might hunt within the Liberty of Colcheſter, the fox, the hare, and the polecat [W]: And they ſhould have their Fiſhery from the North-Bridge as far as Weſtneſſe: And from North Bridge to Weſtneſſe (whoever poſſeſſed the lands adjoining) the ſaid Burgeſſes ſhould have the Cuſtoms of the water and banks on both ſides, to enable them to pay their fee-farm, as they enjoyed them in the time of K. Richard’s father and grandfather: And that Colcheſter-market, ſhould not be hind’red by any other market, but that their Markets and Cuſtoms ſhould remain in the ſame ſtate as when they were confirmed upon the oath of the Burgeſſes of Colcheſter, before the Juſtices itinerant of King Henry II.

Theſe great Privileges have been, at divers times, wholly and entirely confirmed by the Charters of ſubſequent Kings; namely, of Hen. III. Edward II. Edward III. Richard II. Henry IV. V. and VI. Edward IV. Henry VII. and VIII. Edward VI. Mary I. Elizabeth, K. James I. and the firſt Charter of K. Charles I. And thoſe ſeveral Princes did not barely confirm them, but moſt of them made thereto very conſiderable Additions.

For, K. Henry III. granted to the Burgeſſes of Colcheſter, That they and their heirs for ever ſhould have the Return of all Writs, in matters concerning the Liberty of this town.

K. Edward II. allowed them the full and free Enjoyment of ſuch Liberties, contained in their Charter, as they or their predeceſſors had not hitherto enjoyed: without any moleſtation from himſelf, or his heirs, his Juſtices, Eſcheators, Sheriffs, or any other his officers. Moreover, he granted the Burgeſſes of this Burgh an exemption for ever, from murage, picage, paage [X], and all other impoſitions on their Goods and Merchandiſes, throughout the Kingdom and other his dominions, and in all ſea-ports. And that none of them ſhould plead, or be impleaded without the Burgh, for any pleas, aſſiſes, or complaints; nor for any lands or tenements within the Burgh or its Liberties; nor for treſpaſſes, or contracts made within the ſaid Burgh or Liberties of the ſame: And that whenever any Aſſiſes, or Inqueſts were holden, denotes the fine that uſed anciently to be laid upon a perſon who had committed murder. For, among our anceſtors the Saxons, moſt crimes were puniſhed with mulcts and pecuniary fines. (See the Saxon Laws, of Dr. Wilkins’s edit. p. 3. n. 21.) So that I take this paſſage to mean, That if any of the Burgeſſes had committed murder, he ſhould be indicted for it no where elſe but at a Hundred, or any other Court within the Burgh, and be fined the uſual ſum of 100 ſhillings.

for any tenures, treſpaſſes, contracts, or felonies committed within the Burgh aforeſaid, or its Liberties, They ſhould not be made or holden by Foreigners, but by Burgeſſes of the Burgh; unleſs the affair concerned the King, his heirs or officers, or the community of the Burgh. He alſo granted, That the aforeſaid Burgeſſes, and their heirs and ſucceſſors for ever ſhould have in that Burgh one Fair every year to laſt eight days, namely, the day before St. Dennis, on St. Dennis’s day, and the fix days following; with all liberties and free cuſtoms belonging to ſuch a Fair: unleſs the Fair is a hindrance to other neighbouring ones.

K. Edward III. K. Richard II. and K. Henry IV. were content with eſta bliſhing our Privileges, without enlarging them.

K. Henry V. confirmed them, with the following Additions. That, for the greater ſafety of the Bailiffs, Burgeſſes, and Commonalty of this Town; and for avoiding all Ambiguities and Diſputes concerning the Liberties and Franchiſes aforeſaid; which might ariſe, either by wilfully miſtaking, or miſunderſtanding without deſign, ſome obſcure expreſſions in the Charters above-mentioned; therefore that the ſaid Bailiffs, Burgeſſes, and Commonalty, and their heirs, and ſucceſſors, ſhould have cognizance of all manner of Pleas concerning lands, tenements, rents and ſervices ariſing or happening within the Burgh, or the ſuburbs and liberties of the ſame: as well concerning Pleas of Aſſiſe of Novel Diſſeiſin, Mort d’Anceſter, Rediſſeiſin, Certifications of Aſſiſes and Attaints, as of all other Pleas real: And alſo of Pleas of Debt, Treſpaſs, Covenant, Detinue, Account, and all other Pleas perſonal whatſoever, within the Burgh aforeſaid, the ſuburbs, or liberties of the ſame; To be holden in the Motehalle of the Burgh, before the Bailiffs for the time being, as well in the preſence as in the abſence of the King and his heirs.—And likewise to have the executions of the ſaid Pleas. And that the aforeſaid Bailiffs and their ſucceſſors ſhould have the cognizance of all the Pleas aforeſaid; and that the ſame Pleas, before what Juſtices ſoever, or howſoever, begun, ſhould be proſecuted, determined, and finiſhed in the Court at the Motehalle of the Burgh aforeſaid, before the Bailiffs, and their ſucceſſors.

K. Henry VI. without annulling any cla uſe of the foregoing Charters, confirmed thoſe parts of the Charters of Richard I. Edward II. and Henry V. which did moſt eſpecially relate to the Election of Bailiffs, and a Juſticery; the holding of pleas within the Burgh; and Aſſiſes and Inqueſts by Burgeſſes, and not by Foreigners; and the hearing and determining all Pleas both real and perſonal, belonging to the Burgh and the Liberties, within the Motehall. — But, becauſe the Grants of former Kings [U] This cla uſe was excepted in the ſubſequent Charters.

[W] This Privilege the Burgeſſes had before by grant of K. Henry II. Cartæ antiq. in Turri Lond. N. N. 53.

[X] Murage, a duty collected [upon carts or horſes coming through a town] for building or repairing the walls thereof.—Picage, money paid for breaking up the ground to ſet up booths, ſtalls, &c. in fairs.—Paage, is ſuppoſed to be the ſame as paſſage, which ſee above note [O].

were

were not sufficiently clear and express, either for want of proper words, or through the obscurity of those used, He made the following explanations. That the Liberty, Suburbs, and Precincts of the Town of Colchester, which were not specified in former Charters, should extend throughout the said Town of Colchester, and the several Hamletts of Lexden, Mile-end, Grinsted, and Donyland, adjoining to the same town of Colchester; and from Northbridge as far as Westnesse; the foresaid Burgeses, and their predecessors Burgeses, of the Town of Colchester, having peaceably, and without interruption, used and enjoyed the said Hamletts as parcel of the Liberty, Suburbs, and Precincts of Colchester aforesaid, from time immemorial. Also, that the Bailiffs of the said Town of Colchester for the time being and their Successors might hold in the Motehall of that Town, before themselves, all kinds of Pleas, and all manner of Actions real, personal, and mixt, Suits, Complaints, and Demands, moved or to be moved within the said Town, or within the Liberty, Suburbs, or precincts, of the same; as well concerning any Lands, Tenements, Rents, Services, and other Possessions whatsoever, within the said Town, or the Liberty, Suburbs, or precincts of the same; as touching Debts, Detinue, Account, Covenant, and all manner of Contract for above Forty shillings, or under: and all manner of Trespasses, by force of arms, or otherwise committed; and all manner of offences and injuries not amounting to felony, done within the said Town or the Liberty Suburbs, or Precincts of the same, or any way happening, unless they concerned the King or his heirs, or the Bailiffs or Commonalty of the Town. And that the Bailiffs and Burgeses should have, levy, and receive with their own hands, and for their own proper use, all manner of issues, forfeitures, fines, and amerciaments adjudged or set before them, in all such pleas, actions, suits, complaints, and demands, happening within the Town of Colchester, or within the Liberty, Suburbs, or Precincts of the same. Also, That the Burgeses of the said Town should plead and be impleaded, within the same Town and not elsewhere, before the Bailiffs, for all the Pleas aforesaid. Moreover, he granted to the foresaid Burgeses their heirs and successors, That, yearly, at the time of the election of Bailiffs for the Town of Colchester according to ancient custom, they might chuse Four of the most worthy and discreet persons of the same Town, to be, jointly with the Bailiffs for the time being, Justices of the Peace for one whole year from the time of such Election, within the said Town, and the Liberty, Suburbs, and Precincts of the same. And that the said four Men, and the Bailiffs, Five, Four, Three, and Two of them, should be Justices of the Peace in that Town, and in the Liberty, Suburbs and Precincts thereof. And the Justices for the time being, Five, Four, Three or Two of them, to have full correction, punishment, power, and authority, of knowing, enquiring, hearing, and determining all things and matters, as well concerning felonies, trespasses, misprisions, and extortions, as of all other causes, quarrels, and misdeeds whatsoever within the said Town, and the Liberty, Suburbs, and Precincts of the same, for the future howsoever happening; as fully and amply, as the Justices of Peace; and the Justices appointed to hear and determine Felonies, Trespasses, and other Injuries; and the Justices who are to take care of weights and measures, hunters, servants, labourers, and artificers, have, in any county or place in this kingdom of England. And that no Justice of Peace in the County of Essex, or in any other county or place in the kingdom of England: but only the said four men and the Bailiffs, Five, Four, Three, or Two of them, should have power to correct, enquire, hear, and determine any thing done within the Town of Colchester, or within the Liberty, Suburbs, or Precincts of the same [2]. Moreover, that the Bailiffs and Burgeses of the said Town; and their successors for ever, should have all Fines, Issues, Forfeitures, and Amerciaments whatsoever, sett by the said Justices of the Peace within the Town aforesaid, and within the Liberty, Suburbs or Precincts of the same; and the goods and chattels of all Felons, Fugitives, and Out-laws, and of all persons condemned and in what manner soever convicted, as the same goods should happen to be found in the Town aforesaid, or in the Liberty, Suburbs, and Precincts of the same: And likewise the goods and chattels of all persons that lay violent hands on themselves, wheresoever found within the said Town, Liberty, Suburbs, or Precincts of the same. And if any person should commit a Trespass for which he ought to lose life or limb; or flies and will not abide judgment; or was guilty of any other offence for which he ought to lose his chattels; wheresoever justice ought to pass upon him, either in the King's Court, or in any other Court; all his goods and chattels thereby lost and forfeited to the King, should belong to the foresaid Bailiffs and Burgeses, and their Successors for ever; who might seize and take possession of the said chattels, within this Town, or within the Liberty, Suburbs, or Precincts of the same, for the use and behoof the Bailiffs and Burgeses of this Town, towards their support, and the payment of the large Fee-farm which they pay to the Crown; without any disturbance or impediment from the King, or his heirs; his Justices, Escheators, Sheriffs, or other his Bailiffs or Officers whatsoever.—He granted, moreover, that it should not be lawful for the Steward, and Marshall, or Clerk of the King's Household, or his Admiral, to enter or come into the Town of Colchester, or in the Liberty, Suburbs, and Precincts of it. And, that the Bailiffs thereof should have full power and authority, to enquire of all matters concerning the office of Clerk of the Market, that should happen within the said Town, or the Liberty, Suburbs, and Precincts of the same [Z].

[2] Upon receiving this Charter, the Bailiffs, Aldermen, &c. made some useful Orders, which are inserted in the Oath-book, fol. 73, &c.

K. Edward IV. not to be outdone by his Competitor, granted this Town a very full, long, and ample Charter; wherein, after confirming the Charters of King Richard I. Henry III. Edward II. Edward III. and Richard II. He says, that the Bailiffs and Burgeſſes of the Burgh of Colcheſter had repreſented to him, That although they and their predeceſſors, from time immemorial, had held and enjoyed all the Suburbs of that Burgh, and all the Hamletts of Lexden, Milend, Grenſtede, and Donylond, thereto adjoining; and all the Water or River from North-bridge to Weſtneſſe, together with the Banks on each ſide of the ſame water within the Liberty and Precinct of the ſaid Burgh; and that they at that time did hold, and their predeceſſors had held, all and ſingular the Liberties, Franchiſes, and Immunities aforeſaid, freely, peaceably, and quietly, ever ſince the making and confirming the Charters before-mentioned; yet they were in fear, that in time to come they might be diſturbed in the poſſeſſion of the Liberties and Precinct within the Hamletts, Water and Banks, and the Liberties, Franchiſes, and Immunities aforeſaid, or ſome of them; on account of the ambiguity, obſcurity, and difficulty of ſome words and general expreſſions uſed in the Charters aforeſaid, or for want of a due explanation of thoſe words; and eſpecially becauſe it was not expreſſly declared in thoſe Charters, How far the Liberty of this Burgh extended; which might hereafter occaſion trouble and vexation. Therefore his Maſteſty, conſidering that the Burgh of Colcheſter was one of the ancienteſt Burghs in the Kingdom of England; that it was ſeated near the Sea-coaſts, to oppoſe the attempts of his Enemies that were diſpoſed to invade the kingdom; and remembering the very great faithfulneſs and loyalty of the Burgeſſes of that Burgh both to himſelf and his predeceſſors, Kings of England.—He ratified and confirmed the Charters of Grants aforeſaid, and every part thereof, and the ſtate, title, and poſſeſſion, which the aforeſaid Bailiffs and Burgeſſes had in the Liberty and Precinct of and in the Hamletts, Water, River, and Banks aforeſaid; in the ampleſt manner doſſible.—Allowing them the full enjoyment of thoſe Franchiſes, Liberties, &c. though they had not hitherto fully enjoyed them, or had abuſed them, or any of them. Moreover, he made them the following gracious Conceſſions; That the Bailiffs and Burgeſſes of this Burgh, and their Succeſſors, conſiſting of two Bailiffs, and one Commonalty, ſhould for the future for ever be one perpetual Body and Commonalty in name and in deed, and have perpetual ſucceſſion: And incorporates them by the name of Bailiffs and Commonalty of the Burgh of Colcheſter; by which name, he declares them capable of purchaſing lands, and tenements, &c. to hold to them and their ſucceſſors for ever. And by the ſame name to plead and be impleaded in any of the King's courts; and to have and enjoy all and ſingular the liberties and franchiſes, comprized in the foregoing charters, as the Bailiffs and Burgeſſes, or the Burgeſſes of this Burgh, had enjoyed them before. He alſo authorizes them to uſe a Common Seal, for the affairs of their Burgh. And, in order to remove all manner of ambiguity, doubt, or difficulty concerning the Four Hamletts, and the Fiſhery; he granted to the Bailiffs and Commonalty and their ſucceſſors for ever, the ſaid Four Hamletts of Lexden, Milend, Grynſted, and Donylond, and the Water and River from the North-bridge of this Burgh as far as Weſtneſſe, together with the Banks on each ſide of the ſaid river, and all the Creeks adjoining and belonging to the ſame water, within the Precinct aforeſaid, as parcel of the Liberty of this Burgh: ſo that no perſon, of what degree or condition ſoever, might, without the will and licence of the Bailiffs and Commonalty and their ſucceſſors, make wharfs or cranes on the banks of the river or places aforeſaid; or wears, kidells, and engines for catching of fiſh; or fiſh in the ſame water: or preſume to ſell or buy any merchandiſes, in veſſels coming up the ſaid water, (proviſions only for people's houſholds excepted,) but at the New Hyth, upon pain of forfeiting the merchandiſes, and the veſſels or boats wherein they ſhould be bought or ſold. Moreover, he granted to the Bailiffs of this Burgh, to have the Return of all the King's writs and precepts, as well of aſſize of mort d'anceſtor, certificate of darrein preſentment, attaints, and all others, concerning the King, or any other perſon whatſoever; and the execution of the ſame, at the King's, or any other perſon's, ſuit, to be proſecuted within the Burgh, Liberty, and Precinct aforeſaid: ſo as that no Sheriff, or Coroner, except the King's Coroners to be choſen by the Bailiffs and Commonalty of this Burgh, nor any bailiff or other officer whatſoever, ſhould enter the Burgh, Liberty, and Precinct, aforeſaid, to execute any writ, precept, or mandate, though they concern the King's perſon, or any other; but the execution of them ſhall be in the Bailiffs, Coroners, or other officers of this Burgh for the time being. Likewise, that the Bailiffs of this Burgh ſhould have for ever the cognizance of all pleas, real, perſonal, and mixt, and others whatſoever concerning lands and tenements within this Burgh and Liberty: And of pleas of aſſize of novel diſſeiſin, &c.—in the manner granted before in the Charters of K. Henry V. and VI.—and of all other pleas whatſoever ariſing, or that ſhould ariſe, within the Burgh, Liberty, and Precinct aforeſaid; or before any of the King's Courts, whether of Chancery, Exchequer, Common Bench, Juſtices of Aſſize, or other the King's Juſtices and Officers whatſoever; All which pleas the Bailiffs of the Burgh aforeſaid ſhall hold and determine, in the Moothalle of their Burgh. Alſo that they ſhould hold in the ſame Moothall a Court every week, on Mondays and Thurfſdays: And hear and determine in that court all perſonal pleas, [Z] Theſe three Charters of K. Henry IV. V. and VI. were not taken notice of at all in the ſubſequent Charters, till K. James the firſt's Charter, wherein that of K. Henry VI. is infered at length.

by Plaint before the Bailiffs: and the persons, against whom such plaints shall be brought, to arrest, and their goods and chattels within the Burgh to attach and commit their bodies to prison. And to hold and determine, in the aforesaid court, all other pleas of lands and tenements, on Mondays, from fortnight to fortnight; and pleas of pie-powdered court; and to pass judgments, and cause executions to be made thereupon, in the manner and form before accustomed in the Burgh. Moreover, that the Bailiffs and Aldermen for that time being, and the Sixteen Burgeffes elected by them after the usual manner [A], together with Sixteen other discreet and honest Burgeffes of this Burgh, namely, Four out of each ward, chosen by the foresaid Bailiffs and Aldermen, &c. should be the Common Council of this town: which Common Council might make, from time to time, reasonable Ordinances and Constitutions for the Advantage and Government of the Burgh, and put them in execution: and likewise alter and revoke them whenever they should think it for the better. Also, that they might assess reasonable taxes, or tallages, upon the goods, rents, trades, and merchandises, of all persons dwelling within this Burgh and the Liberty and Precinct of the same, according to each person's ability: and levy them by reasonable distress, compelling such as refused to pay, (if need be) by arrest and imprisonment, without any obstruction from the King or his officers. To the Bailiffs also and Commonalty was committed the Assise of bread, wine, and beer; the Assay of weights, and measures, within the Burgh, Liberty, and Precinct aforesaid: in as full and ample a manner as the Clerk of the market of the King's household might perform the same; so as that neither the said Clerk of the market; nor the Admiral of England, his deputy, or officers; nor the Steward or the Marshal of the King's household, or their servants, might come into the Burgh, Liberty, or Precinct aforesaid, by land or by water, to discharge or execute any thing belonging to their office; but if they should attempt it, then it might be lawful for the Bailiffs and Commonalty of this Burgh, to resist, and not permit them upon any account to exercise any part of their office, without impeachment from the King, or any other person whatsoever. Further, he granted, That the Bailiffs of this Burgh for the time being, and some Lawyer [B], and four Burgeffes, to be chosen in the same manner as the Bailiffs, should for ever hereafter be, jointly and severally, Keepers of the Peace; and authorized, to enforce the observance of several statutes [C], for the quiet and good government of this Burgh, and Liberty of the same; and to chastise and punish all offenders against those statutes, according to the form therein prescribed. Likewise to oblige all persons that threaten mischief to any one, to give sufficient security for their good behaviour, and to imprison them till they have given such security. Moreover, that the said six, five, three, and two of them, (whereof the Lawyer to be always one) be Justices, to inquire, upon the oath of honest and legal men of the Burgh and Liberty aforesaid, of all manner of felonies, trespasses, forestallers, regraters, and extortions whatsoever, committed within this Burgh, Liberty, and Precinct and of all other matters and things done within the same, which fall under the cognizance of the Keepers of the Peace of any county in England, by virtue of any ordinance or statute, according to the law and custom of this realm: so that all writs, precepts, and mandates concerning the premises, be directed to, and executed by, the Officers of the said Burgh, and not the Sheriffs or Coroners of the county of Essex; who should no way intermeddle therein, nor come into this Burgh, Liberty, or Precinct, to execute any writ or precept, in any manner whatsoever. And, as an help towards the payment of their Fee-farm, King Edward granted moreover to the Bailiffs and Commonalty and their successors for ever, all fines, profits, ransoms, amerciaments, lost goods and forfeitures; arising, or set, by the Bailiffs, Keepers of the Peace, and Justices within the said Burgh; and all forfeitures and amerciaments imposed upon any of the inhabitants of this Burgh, in any court whatsoever; and all the goods and chattels, within this Burgh, Liberty, and Precinct, of persons convicted of treason, felony, contempt, trespass, or other action at the suit of the King; or any other whatsoever — In as full a manner as in the Charter of King Henry VI. — Finally, this Charter concluded with these very great Privileges; That no person dwelling and residing within this Burgh, Liberty, and Precinct, should be put or impanelled, against his will, in any Assises, Inquests, Attaints, or Recognizances whatsoever, out of the same Burgh, Liberty, and Precinct: nor be appointed assessor, taxer, or collector, without the same, of Tenths, Fifteenths, or other tallages, impositions, or subsidies whatsoever, granted to the King or his heirs, or of any part thereof; or collector of a reasonable aid to make the King's eldest son a knight, or marry his eldest daughter: nor be chosen Constable, or Bailiff; or compelled to bear any other office or employment against his will, out of the Burgh, Liberty, and Precinct aforesaid. And be no way liable to any fine or forfeiture, for refusing to take upon him those offices.

These very great Privileges have been confirmed by the subsequent Charters of K. Henry VII. K. Henry VIII. K. Edward VI. Queen Mary, Q. Elizabeth, K. James I. and the first Charter of K. Charles I. [D].

K. Henry VIII. in his Grant of Kingeswood or Kingeswood-heath, to the Bailiffes and Commonalty of this Town, made them also these gracious Concessions: That none of the Bur-

[A] See below, Chap. V. § 5.

[B] Afterwards called Recorder.

[C] Namely, the Statute of Winchester, Northampton and Winchester, for preserving the peace: the Statute of Cambridge, concerning labourers, artificers, travelling-men, &c. Statutes 1 and 2 Hen. IV. concerning Liveries, &c. Statute 2 Hen. V. against the Lollards. And Statute 3 Hen. V. against clipping, washing, and filing money.

[D] The charges of this first Charter of K. Charles, were 44 l. 5 s. In 1633, there was a Quo-warranto gesses

gesſes of the Burgh of Colcheſter, dwelling within the ſaid Town or Liberty of the ſame, ſhould be Sheriff or Eſcheator of any County within the realm of England : And, if named or choſen, that they might reſuſe to execute thoſe offices, without any moleſtation or puniſhment. Alſo, that the ſaid Bailiffs and Commonalty, and their ſucceſſors, ſhould have, and chuſe from amongſt themſelves, within the liberty and hamletts of this town, two Coroners, as they had anciently uſed to have ; which Coroners ſhould have and exerciſe the ſame power and auctority within the Town aforeſaid, and the Liberty and Hamletts of the ſame, as the Coroner of Eſſex, or of any other county in the realm : And that the Coroners of the county of Eſſex ſhould by no means preſume to come and perform any thing belonging to their office, within the ſaid town or burgh, and the liberty and hamletts thereof. The Bailiffs, and Commonalty, and their ſucceſſors, to have all the iſſues, fines, amerciaments, forfeitures, and other profits whatſoever, ariſing from, or belonging to, the office of Coroner.

The ſecond Charter of K. Charles I. dated July 9, 1635, was in a manner a quite new Charter. It begins with obſerving, That Colcheſter is one of the ancienteſt Burghs in the realm of England, and conveniently ſeated near the Sea-coaſt to oppoſe ſuch enemies as would invade the kingdom ; That it is large and populous, containing four wards, and inhabited by Burgeſſes induſtriouſly employed in the woollen manufacture and merchandizing ; who enjoy great Liberties and Privileges, as well by preſcription and cuſtom, as by the charters and letters patent of ſeveral Kings and Queens of England : And had upon many occaſions, and lately, ſhown themſelves grateful and loyal. Then, after juſt mentioning the Charter of K. Richard I. which empowered them to chuſe two Bailiffs ; and that of K. Edward IV. which incorporates them by the name of Bailiffs and Commonalty ; His Maſteſty grants and declares, that Colcheſter ſhall for ever hereafter be and remain a free Burgh of itſelf, through all its ancient Bounds and Limits : And incorporates the Men and Free-burgeſſes, and Bailiffs and Commonalty of the ſaid Burgh, and their ſucceſſors for ever, by the name of Mayor and Commonalty of the Burgh of Colcheſter in the county of Eſſex ; ſettling their government in the following order : That they ſhould have a Mayor, and 9 Aldermen beſides : 16 Aſſiſtants ; 16 Common-council-men (4 out of each ward) a High Steward, and a Recorder, both for life ; and a common Clerk, during the Recorder's pleaſure. The Mayor to be annually choſen by the Free-burgeſſes, or the greater part of them, on the Monday next after the decollation of St. John the Baptiſt [Auguſt 29] in the manner related below § 5. of this chapter, and to be ſworn on Michaelmas-day. In Elections, the Mayor to have a double or caſting vote. He, and the reſt of the officers, to appear in their proper gowns, on Sundays, and other ſolemnities. To hold Aſſemblies in the common Hall, and make good ; ſound, honeſt, uſeful, neceſſary, and reaſonable Laws, Conſtitutions, Orders, &c. and put them in execution, levy fines, &c. The Mayor, Recorder, laſt year's Mayor, and two other Aldermen annually choſen, to be Juſtices of peace ; and To hold quarterly Sessions of the peace. The Mayor and Recorder to hold weekly Courts on Mondays and Thurfſdays. And the Mayor and Commonalty to have cognizance of pleas of debts and offences within the Burgh belonging to the Admiral's juriſdiction, and to hold a Court every Thurfſday to hear and determine thoſe pleas ; But the Admiral of England, or his Deputy, to have the liberty of coming into the Burgh, to take care of his debts, and other concerns of the Admiralty. He orders alſo, that no perſon ſhould ſell Beer without licence ; and That a Perambulation ſhould be taken yearly of the bounds and limits of the Burgh ; that they might not be forgotten ; and to prevent diſputes. And he confirms the Cuſtom, Preſcription, and Liberty, from time immemorial uſed in this Town ; viz. That if any Foreigner, not free of this Burgh, buys or ſells any goods or merchandiſes, otherwiſe than by wholeſale, within this Burgh, Precinct, or Liberty ; thoſe Goods ſhould be ſeized, appraiſed, and converted to the uſe of the whole Commonalty of the Burgh, unleſs the owner of thoſe goods redeems them. His Maſteſty makes this further Grant to the Mayor and Commonalty, and their ſucceſſors, That no Foreigner [F] ſhould for the future uſe any meſtery, occupation, or manual trade within this Burgh, and the Liberty and Precinct of it ; nor buy or ſell within the ſame (except in the Fairs, and at Fair-time) any merchandiſes or goods, unleſs victuals by retail ; and that either the buyer or ſeller be a free burgeſs.—The reſt is a general confirmation of all and ſingular the Hamletts, Commons of Paſture, Fairs, Markets, Fisheries, &c. and all other Liberties and Privileges whatſoever, comprehended in the former Charters of K. Hen. VI. Ed. IV. &c. [G].

The firſt Charter of King Charles II. dated Auguſt 3, 1663, is in all points the ſame as this laſt, except as to the number of Officers, brought againſt it ; upon which they petitioned for, and obtained, this ſecond Charter.

[F] By a Foreigner is to be underſtood one who is not free of this Burgh. And that ſuch, if they carried on any buſineſs within this Town or the Liberties, without the Licence of the Bailiffs and Commonalty, and paying ſome acknowledgment ; have been conſtantly proſecuted and fined, is moſt undeniably plain from our Records, even from the Times of K. Edward II. to the year 1739. Rot. 4^o Edw. II. rot. 6, &c.) and enforced by a By-law March 27, 1712, confirmed the 29th of the ſame month by Sir Tho. Parker, and Sir John Powell. Nothing is more plainly or unqueſtionably evident, than a conſtant ſeries of payments made under the name of Foreign-fines, to the Chamberlains, for a very great number of years. Notwithſtanding which, this ancient Right was, through a very unaccountable management, lately given up, and diſcountenanced. But ſo ſtrictly was it kept up in Q. Elizabeth's time, that Sept. 13, 1599, It was ordered, That every foreiner that ſhould occupy any trade within the towne of Colcheſter, as well Engliſh as ſtrangers, to make a diſtinction between the Freemen of the towne and the foryners, ſhould erect and ſett up, all the length of their Shopp before their windows next the ſtreet, a lattice half a yard in height at the leaſt, upon pain to forfeit for every default therein 10 s. and beſides to have their ſhop-windows put by (Book of Aſſemblies.) But the Common Law diſallows of all ſuch kinds of Reſtrictions.

[G] The Protector Ol. Cromwell, and his ſon Richard, granted alſo Charters to this Town : but I have not been able to find them. (See Aſſembly-books.)

which

which are thus settled therein: 12 Aldermen, including the Mayor; 18 Assistants: and 18 Common-council-men.

Upon the unlawful surrender in 1684 [and, what is worse, made by persons who knew all the ill consequences of it] (q), a second Charter was granted by K. Charles II. with these alterations: A Mayor and 11 Aldermen; 15 Assistants, and 15 Common-council-men, were appointed: and the Mayor to be chosen only by the Assistants and Common council. Eighteen, or more of them, impowered to make By-laws, &c. All Elections to be made, of persons which within six months at least before their nomination had received the holy communion; and, before they were sworn in, to take the oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, and subscribe the Declaration in the Act for regulating corporations: Every election of Mayor, &c. made contrary to these directions, to be absolutely void. His Majesty also reserved to himself, his heirs, and successors, a Power, from time to time, and at all times, to remove, by Order of Privy Council, any officers; and the Mayor, Aldermen, &c. thereupon to proceed to a new Election. — The rest is almost literally the same as his first Charter.

K. James II. in his Charter, dated Sept. 15, 1688, not only omits all the clauses, which obliged the Officers here elected to receive the sacrament; and to take the oaths of supremacy, &c. But he expressly dispenseth with their taking the said oaths, and receiving the sacrament. And moreover, He abridges the number of Officers to 10 Aldermen, including the Mayor; 10 Assistants; and 10 Common-council-men. Impowering Fifteen or more of them to assemble in the common-hall, and make By-laws. And he reserved to himself, his heirs, and successors, full Power and Authority, to put in or remove at pleasure, by order of his Privy-council, any officer, or officers: And to put in, by Mandate, any person in the room of those so removed, or dead. — Bating these exceptions, He confirmed all the other Privileges, and Liberties, &c. of this Burgh in as ample a manner as they were confirmed by his predecessors [H].

At the Revolution, this Burgh was restored to its ancient Liberties; and upon the Attorney-General's Report, of the undue and ineffectual measures taken about the pretended surrender in 1648; K. William and Q. Mary, by their Letters Patents in 1693, reciting word for word the first Charter of K. Charles II. did absolutely and amply renew and confirm it; with the addition of the Fair, and Tuesday-market above-mentioned [I]. Under this Charter, the Corporation continued to act till 1741, but the officers not having been duly elected according to Charter, and vexatious prosecutions being brought against some of them, the rest disclaimed upon record in the Courts at Westminster. From that time the Charter was lost, or lay dormant, till 9 Septemb. 1763, when a New one, or a Renewal of the former ones, passed the Great Seal. It is almost literally the same as the Charters of K. Charles II. and K. William and Q. Mary; and therefore we think it unnecessary to insert it here, especially as it is in print, and may be purchased for one shilling.

Such are the great and ample Privileges, Liberties, and Immunities granted at divers times to this Burgh, by the gracious Munificence of the Kings and Queens of this Realm; and allowed and acknowledged not only by the Courts at Westminster, but also in other places, and upon the most important occasions [K].

But, besides these Privileges obtained by Grant and Charter, Colchester also enjoys some by Prescription and Custom; viz.

1. To be a Hundred or Liberty of itself. Accordingly a Hundred-court used to be very anciently held here (r): As also a Lawe-hundred-court, which in time gave place to the Quarterly Sessions of the peace.

2. A Femme covert may convey her Estate, within this Town, by Deed; being first solely and secretly examined before the Mayor, and declaring her consent; without passing a Fine. But both the Deed and her Examination must be enrolled in the Mayor's court.

3. By ancient usage, before any direction, or even the least mention, in any of our Charters about Aldermen, Common-council, &c. i. e. in the 46th of Edw. III. and in the 6th of K. Henry IV. &c. the Free-burgesses were wont to elect 7 or 8 Aldermen, 2 Chamberlains, 1 Town-clerk, 4 Claviers, (i. e. keepers of the keys of the Town-chest,) 2 Coroners, and 16 of the Council of the Town (s). How far that usage may go towards a Custom or Prescription, let the learned judge.

4. A Free-burgess of Colchester could not only bequeath by will what he had purchased; but also this Town had anciently the Probate and Inrolling of wills; especially when the lay-fee, or estate therein bequeathed or devised, lay any where within the Liberties of Colchester. And, in order to prevent frauds, this very commendable method was used: Proclamation was made in full court, that if any person had objections to make against the proving of that will, he should come and make them known at the next court. If no body then appeared, and objected against it, the will was proved [L]. They began to cease being proved here about the years 1550, or 1560 (t).

To return: Some of the Privileges above-

(q) T. Rufe's Letter, MS. and Rot. Cur. 6 Hen. IV. rot. 1 &c.

(r) Rot. Cur. 5^o & 6^o Edw. I. passim, & deinceps.

(s) Oath-book, p. 5, 6,

(t) See Oath-book.

[H] The charges of this Charter were 276*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*

[I] And the charges of this, 390*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.* (Carta penes C. Grey arm.)

[K] Placita Coronæ 11 & 12 Henr. iii. rot. 18. — 32. ejusd. rot. 2 — 52. ejusd. rot. 2. Placita Assis. 44 Henr. iii. rot. 32, 36. Placita in Banco comm. 31 Edw. i. rot. 2. Item 26 & 34. 36 Edw. iii. — 10 & 13 Ric. ii. — 27 & 28 Elizab. See the Oath-book, fol. 75. 82. 99. 100. 102. 104. 105. 227. See also Memoranda on the back of Q. Elizabeth's Charter.

[L] Et proclamatio facta fuit in pleno Hundredo, secundum consuetudinem Curie, Quod si quis pro se habeat vel dicere sciat quare executio testamenti predicti fieri non debeat — or, executoribus concedi non debeat, — quod sit hic ad proximum Hundredum proponendum quare, &c. — quod die quia nullus prosequitur — or, nihil propositum fuit — ideo concessa executio, &c. — Rot. Cur. 34 Edw. III. rot. 14. Rot. 8 Hen. IV. rot. 5. & Rot. 36 Hen. VI. rot. 27. It. Rot. 17 & 18 Edw. II.

mentioned deserve a more particular notice ; especially the Royalty of the river Colne.

As early as the reigns of K. Henry the first and second, we find, That the Burgesſes of this town had the Customs of the water, or river, and of the banks of the ſame on both ſides, from North-bridge to Weſtneſſe, whoever poſſeſſed the lands adjoining. Theſe were confirmed to them by K. Richard the 1ſt's Charter ; who alſo was moſt graciously pleaſed to grant unto the Burgesſes the Fiſhery from the North-bridge as far as Weſtneſſe. And this valuable Privilege hath been moſt amply and fully aſſured, explained, and confirmed by the ſubſequent Charters, eſpecially thoſe of K. Edward IV. &c.

This Fiſhery doth not include only the plain courſe of the river Colne, or water, but all the Fleets and Creeks it runs into, or that have an inlet or outlet therein ; namely, Pyefleet, Braſlett, or Bracefleet, Barnfleet, the North and South Gedens (Geedons or Geatons) the Paddock or Parroc, Skibhope, &c. that is, the whole Colne-water (as it is uſually called) from the North-bridge here, down to Weſt-Neſſe, upon the Warehead or Wellet-bar below Merſea blockhouſe.

A very exact menſuration, or ſurvey, was taken of this Colne-water, from North-bridge to Weſtneſſe, on March the 14th, 15th, 18th, 28th, and April 1ſt, May 2d, 3d, 4th, and 6th, 1703, of which the particulars are given below from the Town-Records [M]. And by an infinite number of Records, and other Papers

I have peruſed, it appears, That the Commonalty of the Town of Colcheſter are duly and legally intituled to the ſole, ſeveral, or ſeparate Fiſhery in the ſaid river or water of Colne, extending itſelf from the North-bridge of this Town unto the Neſſe point, commonly called Weſtneſſe, in or near the pariſh of Chich St. Oſith : And have ever had the full and ſole right of Fiſhing in the ſaid water or river, and all the Creeks and waters thereunto belonging, excluſive of all other perſons whatſoever without their liſenſe and authority : And have, and ever had, the full, ſole, and abſolute Power to have, take, and diſpoſe of to their own uſe, in ſuch a manner as they ſhould think proper, all Oyſters, and other Fiſh, within the ſaid River or Water [N].

For the better preſervation of this valuable Right, Courts of Admiralty or Conſervancy have been held almoſt every year in Colne-water, between the flowing and ebbing of the ſea to full tide ; wherein all offences committed between North-bridge and Eaſt-Merſea-ſtone, have been preſented by a Jury, and the offenders amerced. We have, among the Town-records, accounts of ſuch Courts holden from the time of Philip and Mary down to the year 1730 [O].

There are ſome Pariſhes adjoining to this Colne-water, whoſe Inhabitants are admitted, upon Liſenſe from the Mayor and Water-bayliſſ, to fiſh, and dredge Oyſters in this water. The pariſhes are Eaſt-Merſea, Chich St. Oſith,

[M]	Chain	Links
First ſtation, North-bridge ; — Breadth	1	24
2 ſtation 14 Chains, at Middle-mill	1	46
3 — 22 — — — —	0	40
4 — 10 — — — —	0	60
5 — 5 — 35 links.
6 — 11 — — — —
7 — 17 — 67
8 — 17 — 46 at Eaſt-mill.	0	64
9 — 7 — — — —
10 — 11 — — — —
11 — 10 — — — —
12 — 3 — 50
13 — 8 — — — —
14 — 4 — — — —
15 — 14 — 50
16 — 26 — — — —
17 — 35 — — — —
18 — 8 — 57
19 — 7 — 70
20 — 16 — — — —
21 — 15 — — — —
22 — 6 — — — —
23 — 8 — — — —
24 — 13 — — — —
25 — 22 — — — —
26 — 19 — — — —
27 — 22 — — — —
28 — 10 — — — —
29 — 12 — — — —
30 — 13 — Wigmore's houſe at Wivenhoo.
31 — 13 — — — —
32 — 15 — — — —
33 — 18 — 50
34 — 6 — — — —
35 — 26 — — — —
36 — 20 — — — —
37 — 17 — — — —
38 — 38 — — — —
39 — 38 — — — —
40 — 20 — — — —
41 — 26 — — — —
42 — 38 — — — —
43 — 36 — — — —

Stations.	chains.	links.
44 — — — —	16 — —
45 — — — —	14 — —
46 — — — —	7 — —
47 — — — —	20 — —	Brightlingſea point.
48 — — — —	26 — 40	St. Oſith point.
49 — — — —	22 — —	St. Oſith Cliff corner.
50 — — — —	38 — —	Cliff continued.
51 — — — —	24 — —	ditto.
52 — — — —	8 — —
53 — — — —	32 — 80	Blakeſtone.
54 — — — —	28 — —	ditto.
55 — — — —	12 — —	ditto.
56 — — — —	12 — —
57 — — — —	27 — —
58 — — — —	30 — —	Line croſs Weſt Neſs.
59 — — — —	170 — —	Eaſt Neſs point.

1191 Chains 45 Links : i. e.

14 miles, 71 chains, 45 links.

Or 14 miles, 7 furlongs, 5 perches, 13 feet $\frac{2}{10}$.

[N] Vide Rot. Cur. 3 Hen. IV. rot. 21. — Separalem piſcariam pertinent' Burgo ville Coleceſtr'. — Rot. 1 Hen. V. rot. 3. Rot. 7 Hen. VI. rot. 23. Rot. 16 Edw. IV. rot. 21. &c. &c.

[O] In thoſe which were held in the time of K. Philip and Q. Mary, there is mention of Weſtnas and Eaſtnas ; and of the Gedens. (Art. 17. 20. 53.) And the ſubſtance of the Preſentments made in them all is, For Dredging without liſenſe ; and at unſeaſonable times : For carrying away the brood, culch, and ſpitt, or deſtroying the ſame : For dredging oyſters in Pyefleet, and Paſfleet : For catching and ſelling fiſh under ſize, ſmall or underſized oyſters : For fiſhing with unlawful nets : For working with two dredges : For employing more than two dredges at one time in a boat, againſt the cuſtom of the town : For taking in an arm belonging to the river Colne ; and Barn-fleet, Paſfleet, the Geatons : For encroaching upon the Admiralty of Colcheſter, and engroſſing of gravel : For erecting a key within the royalty of Colcheſter, &c. The offenders were amerced, ſome as high as 5*l*. and the Fines levied, as appears by the Extracts, Chamberlains Accounts, &c.

Brightlingsea, Arlesford, Wivenhoo, Lagonhoo, Fingringhoo, and East-Doniland [P]. And no License ought to be granted to any person, but what is free of the trade, and whose full residence and legal settlement is in one of those parishes as usual (u).

In March or April yearly, Proclamation is or ought to be made on the river, near Merseastone within the jurisdiction of the town of Colchester, That the river Colne is shut, and all persons forbid and forewarned to dredge, or take any Oysters out of the said River, or the Creeks thereto appertaining, on any account whatsoever, before the feast of St. Mary Magdalen [July 22.] and then to come in and take Licenses: some single, and others double.—This is called Setting the Colne. And none are permitted to fish or dredge without those Licenses [Q].

To secure further this valuable Privilege, an Act of Parliament was obtained in for regulating, governing, preserving, and improving the Oyster Fishery in the River Colne and Waters thereto belonging.

Treasure trouvé, wrecks, waived Goods, and deodands in that river, or water, have also belonged always to the Corporation (w). And there are instances upon record, of money paid to them for Anchorage in the river Colne, against Merseystone, within the liberty of this town (x).

This Royalty of Colne-water being so very

(u) MSS and Presentments. (w) Charters of K. Henry VI. and Edward IV. &c. Oath-book, p. 4, 5, fol. 228. Rot. Cur. 4 & 5 Jac. i. rot. 1. Draughts of Law-hundred-courts, 7 Hen. VII. (x) Rot. Cur. 24 & 25 Elizab. rot. 8. in dorso. (y) From his pardon, and several other original papers among the Town-records. (z) Pat. 25 Hen. VI. p. i. m. 6. (a) Rot. Cancell. & Placita apud Westm. 26 Hen. VI. rot. 35. (b) Essex, Rot. 92.

[P] A license is also granted to one poor man for a summer's dredging out of each of those parishes, upon a short petition and certificate, signed by the Minister and chief Inhabitants; wherein they request the Mayor; That, according to the ancient custom of this Corporation, he will be pleased to grant unto —, a poor man of their parish, a summer's dredging—or to be their summer dredger, for this present year, &c.—Such Licenses have been granted upon record ever since Q. Elizabeth's reign. Rot. Cur. 24 and 25 Elizab. rot. 19. Rot. 43 Elizab. rot. 13.

[Q] Anciently, if any did meddle with the Fishery, or Colne-water, without the consent of the Commonalty, they were presented and amerced. See Rot. Cur. 5 Edw. I. Rot. 15 Edw. III. rot. 8. Rot. 29 Edw. III. rot. 4. Rot. 1 Henr. V. rot. 3. Rot. 6 ejusd. rot. i. Rot. 7 Hen. VI. rot. 23. Rot. 15 ejusd. rot. 2. Rot. 13. & 14 Edw. IV. rot. 1. Rot. 16 ejusd. rot. 21. Rot. 1 Ric. III. rot. 20. Rot. 17 Henr. VIII. But in latter times, if any have presumed to fish without the Mayor's License, their Boats and tackling are seized, and they are fined. Of this we have some instances in the Books of Assemblies, (Aug. 22, 1636, &c.) but I shall mention only one, which is very express. "July 3, 1679, Mem^t that John Ringe of East Mersey—and four others—being severally dredging in the river and water of Colne, without the Block-house, within the Liberties and Royalties of the Towne and Burrough of Colchester, the Water-serjeant of the said Towne, by warrant from the Mayor did arrest their severall Boates in which they soe dredged, and brought them upp to the New-Hyth. Whereupon the said persons appeared before the Mayor and the Aldermen at the Moothall, and humbly besought them, that their said boates might be discharged; which the Mayor (by the Advice of the Aldermen, and upon the said persons submission to the payment of several fines laid upon them) was pleased to grant; each of the said persons entering into a 50l. bond, to the Mayor and Commonaltie of the said towne and burrough, that they, nor either of them, should presume to fish within the Liberties or Royalties of Colchester, without Lycense of the Mayor for the time being,—July 7, John Ryme of Brightlingsea was served in the same manner.—July 25, Thomas Pilgrim of noble and valuable a Privilege, wicked attempts have been made at divers times to deprive and rob this poor Burgh of it.

The first attempt was, in K. Edward III's reign, by one Lionel de Bradenham, Lord of Lagonhoo-manor, who inclosed some parts of this river, endeavouring to appropriate them to himself. Whereupon a Commission being granted to Robert de Herle Lord Admiral, to enquire by a jury into this affair; after several sessions and adjournments it was adjudged, that all inclosures in this water should be wholly taken away [R]. Enraged at this, the covetous and ambitious L. de Bradenham came and besieged Colchester for a quarter of a year, attempting to burn it, and retained at his house in Lagonhoo, several thieves or robbers as his servants, and besides, caused some people to be drowned in the river Colne (y). For all which enormities he was fain to sue for a Pardon; and this affair seems to have proved his ruin, for shortly after he passed away his manor of Lagonhoo [S].

The next attempt upon this Royalty was by John Earl of Oxford, who obtained a Grant of it from thar poor weak Prince K. Henry VI. March 4, 1446 (z). But the Corporation not being disposed quietly to part with so valuable a Right, contested it with his Lordship: first by a Scire facias in Chancery (a); and, next, in a Tryal, at Westminster (b), in Mi-

Chich St. Osth was, with his boate taken dredging below the Block-house, within the Liberties and Royalties of this Towne. The Water-bayliffe arrested his boate and brought it to the New-hyth above-mentioned, and there it lay till the 27th of the same month. On which day the said T. P. appeared before the Mayor and Aldermen at the Moothall, pretending himself to be Fisherman to the Lord Colchester, and to be licensed by his Lordship to fish where he did, and brought with him this letter from his lordship to the Mayor. "Mr. Mayor, I understand by my servant and oyster-dredger, Thomas Pilgrim, that you have caused his boat that he dredges oysters with, to be taken away from him: He is my oyster-dredger, and I doe desire you to restore him his boate againe, at the request of your friend,

"St. Osth, 27 July 1679. COLCHESTER."

To which the Mayor, by advice of the Aldermen, immediately thus answered. "May it please your Lordshipp, "Thomas Pilgrim was taken dredging in Colne-water, and "pretends a power soe to doe: The place is part of the "Royalties of this Towne, and I hope your Lordshipp "will have me excused, if I vindicate the rights of this "Corporation. If Thomas Pilgrim will submit to a satisfaction for this trespassse, and disclayme his pretence, I "will doe my endeavour with my Brethren to moderate the "penalty. I am, My Lord, your Lordship's most humble "servant, JOHN RAYNER." Afterwards Pilgrim came in, submitted to a fine of 3l. entered into a bond as the rest had done, and his boate was discharged. (Book of Assemblies.

[R] Consideratum est quod omnes predicti pali, inclusiones, & manuoperationes extrahantur, eradicentur, & omnino amoveantur: Ita quod nullus de cetero inclusiones vel manuoperationes aliquas faciat in portu seu in brachiis predictis, contra terram suam propriam, nec alibi, ulterius quam depascere potest animalia sua in solo suo. — (Exemplificatio Processus coram Rob. de Harle Admirallo 37 Edw. III facta 28 die Aprilis 19 Ric. II. among the Town-records.)

[S] There is a very particular account of this whole affair among the Town-records.

chaelmas-

Michaelmas-term, 27^o Henr. VI. when the Jury confirmed the Corporation's Right. The Substance of their verdict is given below in the note [T]. Afterwards at an inquest of Nisi prius at Colchester, before William Yelverton Esq; one of the King's Justices, and his associate William Waites, the Jury decided the point in favour of the Corporation. The Jurors were Symon Neweman, John Cake, John Aunger, John Crullinge, William Stevyn, Thomas Baker, Thomas Leveron, John Wile, John Kinge, John Page, John Prentis, and John Marcell. But so mad was the Earl, because he could not obtain his unlawful desire, that by a very audacious attempt and highly prejudicial to the English Liberties, he brought an Attaint against this Jury: Whereupon a new tryal being obtained, the first judgment, or verdict, was affirmed against the Earl: And his letters patent were recalled and cancelled [U].

In 1629 and 1630, Sir Roger Townshend, Lord of Wivenhoo-maner, made another strong attack upon this right of the Fishery. But his ill concerted designs proved unsuccessful [W]: And some witnesses then proved, that it was plainly made out, at a court of conservancy held by Dr. Julius Cæsar in Q. Elizabeth's reign, that the bounds of the Liberties of Colchester in Colne-water and the Fleets and Creeks therein, extend as far as Westness in St. Osith. To evade which, it was pretended in this and some other tryals, that there are two Westnesses: namely, This just now mentioned, and another nigher the Town, being the point in East-Doniland against Wivenhoo. But it may be affirmed with certainty, that the Saxon name of Næse or Nesse, is never given to any points of land but such as advance into the sea; as St. Osith-point or Mersea-block-house, and not to projections in rivers. And the passage in the note below [X] determines, that it was always understood that Mersey-block-house lay between North-bridge and Westness.

Besides these, there have been some, other less considerable attempts, which have also proved ineffectual.

To which let me add, That Colchester liberty was always taken to be exempt from Admiral-Jurisdiction. And so it was expressly and particularly acknowledged in the 31st of K.

Henry VI. the 19th of K. Henry VIII. and in the reigns of K. Philip and Q. Mary, K. Charles-I. &c. (c). In the latter's second Charter the Magistrates being empowered to hold Admiralty-courts, they have frequently held such, and appointed Stewards with a yearly salary; viz. June 17, 1661, Sir Moundeford Brampton, and October 7, 1700, John Cook, LL. D. (d).

This account of the Fishery naturally leads me to say something of our Colchester-Oysters. They have been always very much esteemed and valued. Nay, Sir Aston Cokain poetically fancies, that they tempted Julius Cæsar to invade this island [Y]. However, 'tis more certain, that the right and genuine Colchester-oysters have constantly been thought a Present fit for persons of the highest quality [Z]. But the unfair tricks plaid by the London Fishmongers, who endeavour to engross them, and would permit none, if they could, to be vended in that city but what pass through their hands, have not served to enhance their value or reputation. For they not only mix stale and fresh, dishonestly, but also put off for them some coarse ones taken at a great distance, perhaps on the Western-coasts. The sort we most esteem here, is the Pye-fleet, a small thick Oyster with a transparent shell, and as full of a tender and delicious meat as it can well hold. But there are some other sorts also exceeding good.

The account given by Dr. T. Spratt, of the Generation of Oysters (e) is, I think, in general, so exact as to require little or no addition; and the substance of it is as follows. "In April and May, and again about Midsummer and Michaelmas, the Oysters cast their Spawn, which the Dredgers call their Spat: It is like the drop of a candle, and about the bigness of a small spangle. This Spat cleaves to stones, old oyster-shells, pieces of wood, and such like things at the bottom of the sea, which they call Culch. 'Tis probably conjectured, that the Spat in 24 hours begins to have a shell. The Oysters are sick after they have first spat; but in June and July they begin to mend, and in August are perfectly well. The male-oyster is black-sick (as the fishermen term it,) having a black substance in the fin: and the female white-sick, having a milky

(e) Oath-book, p. 4, 5. and MSS. penes me. Answer of the Bailiffs to the petition of some Fishermen, &c.
(d) Book of Assemblies. (e) Hist. of the Royal Society, Lond. 1702, p. 307.

[T] Burgenfes ejusdem ville a tempore quo non extat memoria senti fuer' de aqua five riparia cu' ptin' in Com' pdeo que se extendit a quodam loco vocat' le Northbrigge ville pdeo usq; ad quendam locum vocatum le Westness una cu' custodia et conservacoe ejusdem aque five riparie simul cum caigio, cranagio, wharvagio, ancoragio, sublevacoe blador', et tolreto, nec non de exit am' ciamen' forisf' uris p'ficiis et emolumentis quibuscunque inde pvenient' et aliis consuetudinibus ibm consuetis, ac potestate inquirendi de omnibus et singulis tngr' felonis & maleficiis & aliis rebus quibuscunq; in aqua pdea inter loca pdea quovismodo fcis five perpetrat' ac ea audiend' et omnia et singula pdea, felonis tantummodo exceptis terminand' corrigend' et puniend' et emendas inde capiend'. Et ea omnia et singula habuere, tenere, & gavisu fuere.

[U] A copy of the whole proceedings, out of the Nisi Prius office, is among the Town-records.

[W] He was forced to apply to the Bailiffs for Licenses for a Summer's dredging, as well as others. (From the original in my possession.)

[X] In 1458, some persons were presented for keeping a Fish-market at Mersey-stone, inter Northbrigge and Westness, contra libertates per diversos nuper Reges Anglie Burgenfibus ville concessas. Rot. Cur. 37 Hen. VI. rot. 1. —I take East-Nesse to be what is called the Naze by Walton.

[Y] The old luxurious Romans vaunts did make
Of gulfed Oysters took in Lucrine lake:
Your Essex better hath, and such perchance
As tempted Cæsar first to pass from France.

Poems, p. 170.

Suetonius says, the inducement to his coming was the hope of getting Pearls. Britanniam petisse spe margaritarum. —Jul. Cæs. c. 47. and it is well known they grow in a particular kind of oysters; but the breed of them here seems to be now lost. vide Plin. Hist. Nat. lib. ix. c. 35.

[Z] Our Magistrates used to send Presents of them to Robert Earl of Leicester, Sir F. Walsingham, and other Ministers of state, as appears by their original Letters in my possession.—N. B. A peck of the true and genuine Colchester Oyster, is seldom or never to had here under 4 s.

substance

substance in the fin." Dr. Lister accounts the white-sickness to be the milky sperm of the male; and the other, the eggs of the female newly effused in the fins (f). "In the Colne-water, the dredgers are limited to certain times, as is said above, but out of it they dredge all the year round. As they take the oysters, they gently raise with a knife the small brood from the cultch, and then throw the cultch in again to preserve the ground for the future; unless they be so newly spat that they cannot be safely severed from the cultch, in which case they are permitted to take the stone or shell the spat is upon; one shell, &c. having often twenty spats on. These small oysters thus taken they throw or lay into the channel, in places they call their Beds or Layers, where they grow and fatten, and in two or three years the smallest brood will be oysters of a legal size. And to determine that, there is a brash-oyster-size always kept by the magistrates.

After the month of May 'tis felony to carry away the cultch; and great penalties are laid by the Admiralty court upon those that destroy it at any time: The reason of which is, because they find, that, if the cultch be taken away, the Ouse will increase, and then muscles and cockles will breed there and destroy the oysters, they not having whereon to stick their spat.

What Dr. Spratt says, "That the oysters, when the tide comes in lye with their hollow shell downwards, and when it goes out they turn on the other side; and that they remove not from their place unless in cold weather, to cover themselves in the cliffs," is contrary to matter of fact. For, as R. Bradley well observes, they "are never capable of removing themselves from their first station (g)," but indeed, they sometimes lye with their hollow shell downwards, and sometimes upwards.

All oysters are naturally white in the body, and brown in the fins. In order to green them, they put them into Pits about two foot deep in the Salt-Marshes, which are overflowed only at Spring-tides, to which they have sluices, and let out the salt water until it is about a foot and half deep. These pits, from some quality in the soil, will become green, and communicate their colour to the oysters that are put into them in 4 or 5 days, tho' they commonly let them continue there 6 weeks or 2 months; in which time they will be of a dark green. It is very remarkable, that a pit within a foot of a green-pit will not green; and those that did green very well, will in time lose that quality. So that it is not done by copperas, or other green-stuffs, as some have imagined: Nor is it more true, as R. Bradley asserted (b), that they grow green by feeding upon a sort of crow-filk.

There are three points that still want to be cleared upon this subject. 1. Whether the greenness of the oysters is not occasioned by some insects breeding in the pits, and insinuating themselves into the oysters: which ought to be examined by a microscope. 2. Whether they are Androgynous, as R. Bradley fancied (for all creatures appear to be male and female)? 3. Whether they are not enabled by the help of the currents and tides to have some motion, and even in some measure to shift their places?

To the Colchester-oysters let me subjoin another thing which Colchester is famous for, viz: the excellent sweet-meats made of Eryngo-Roots. They were first candied in this town about the beginning of the last century by Robert Buxton, Apothecary. His apprentice Samuel Great, continued this business, and it hath been ever since carried on by the latter's posterity with universal liking and approbation.

Out of a due regard for honest and industrious merit, I took notice in the former edition of the admirable Auricula's raised by Henry Stow of Lexden: which the connoisseurs allowed to be the finest in the British dominions, if not in all Europe, some of them having no less than a hundred and thirty-three blossoms upon one stem. They were tainted and spoiled by a fine one, given him by a Gentleman, that had a worm in the root. But he has been as famous since for fine Tulips.

§ 2. Half-year-land.

THERE is another notable Privilege belonging to the Free-burgesses of Colchester, residing within the same, of which I have not yet taken notice; That is, the Benefit of commoning in certain Lands round the walls of the Town, from Lammas-day, or August 12, till the 14th of February. Those lands are said to contain about Five hundred acres [A].

The exact year when this privilege was granted to the Free-burgesses, I have not been able to trace out: but am credibly informed, that it was about the 14th of K. Henry II. It appears, that at the time of making Domesday-book, the Burgesses had Fourscore acres of land, and eight perches round the wall, in common [B]. And that the King's Demesnes in Colchester, were a Hundred and two acres of land, of which ten were meadow; and two hundred and forty acres besides between pasture and heath; all which was let to farm by the King.

(f) M. Lister.

(g) Philosophical Account of the Works of Nature, Ch. iv.

(b) Ibid.

[A] I have been informed by a Gentleman lately deceased [Mr. Joseph Duffield] who had been several times Mayor of this Corporation, and was let into all the secrets of it, That the Commons were not at first so extensive as they are now; but the religious Houses, and other owners, who had lands intermixed with them, thinking it a great advantage to intercommon with the Free-burgesses (when Tillage was not so much in use as now,) they mutually permitted therefore their Lands to lye open to each other. By which means the Commons were much enlarged by degrees, and the ancient boundaries of them neglected, or forgotten. — That the Religious Houses, particularly St. Botolph's, had a right of intercommoning in those lands, See Rot. Cur. 8 Hen. IV. rot. 2. — There were anciently such Lammas-grounds in the parishes of St. Margaret's and St. Martin's Westminster. See Stow's Survey, b. vi. p. 78. &c. Strype's.

[B] In commune Burgensium 1111xx acre terre, et circa murum viii perce, &c. fol. 107. a.

These royal Demesnes continued in the crown till about the 14th of K. Henry II. when he granted them in fee-farm, with a right of commonage; to the Free-burgesses of this town. But they appear to have been again in the crown, in the 1st of K. Richard I. (i).

Notwithstanding the most diligent search, I have not been able to find out any ancient orders or regulations about these Lammas-commons, as they are called; I mean from the time they were first granted till Qu. Elizabeth's reign: So that, if any such regulations were made, they are either lost or mislaid. All that appears upon record about them on our Town-rolls, is reducible to these several heads.

1. That this Right of Commoning doth not extend to Lands that are sown with Grain or Corn [B]: which is a Demonstration that the owners of those Lands may plough and sow them; notwithstanding whatever hath been pretended to the contrary: And so it hath been adjudged at the Assizes. And, indeed, if the owners might not sow, or do reasonably what they pleased with them; they would not be Half-year but Whole-year-lands, to the Free-burgesses.

2. It appears from our Records, That none but Free-burgesses have a Right to common in them. If others do it, they are presentable, and used to be amerced.

3. That they are not to overlay or surcharge them: That is, every one is allowed to put in a certain number of cattle, which none ought to exceed without being fined: Nor indeed at any rate. But that certain number is no where mentioned till the 15th of Qu. Elizabeth, as I shall presently shew.

4. That those which hold land upon the Commons are intitled to inter-common with the rest [C].

In the 15th of Q. Elizabeth, viz. A. D. 1573 Aug. 2. a Constitution or By-law was made about these Commons, at an Assembly, wherein it was ordained, "That noe Free-burgisse shold put upon the Halfe-yere common ground within this Towne to feede but three hedd of greate cattle, or in leue of everye of the said three hedd ten shepe, upon paine to forfeit for everye hedd 3 s. 4 d. And everye Forryner to forfeit for everye hedd of cattle that shold be putt upon the said Halfe-yere common to feede, Fyve shillings; which fynes weare apointed to be to th' use of the Towne."—To this By-law the following addition was made, August 6, 1627. "For the better reforming of the abuses that had hitherto been used in the overfeeding of those half-yere comon groundes, as well by the free-burgisses over and above their steate, as allsoe by Forryners whoe had noe right to feede the same: And that the benefitt theirow cominge might be employed for the use of the poore people within this town: It was therefore ordered, That the Bailiffs of this town for the tyme beinge, should, from tyme to tyme, in wrightinge under their hands, nominate and appointe in each of the fower wardes within this town 2, 3, or 4 free-burgisses, to dryve such cattle as should be put to feed upon the said Half-yere common groundes contrarie to the said Constitution, and to receive these severall somes, viz. For everye hedd of cattle of everye free-burgesse over and above his three hedd appointed and allowed 3 s. 4 d. and of everye forryner for every hedd 3 s. 4 d. And, in case of refusal of payment of those fynes, to impounde the cattle. The said fynes to be paid by the dryvers to the Bailiffs for the tyme beinge, within ten days after receipt thereof; and to be distributed by the Bailiffs and Aldermen, or the more part of them, amongst the Pore of this Town."

The 15th of the same month, It was ordered, That all Hogs and Swine (except boars and sucking pigs) that were suffered to go about the streets and lanes of this Town; or, upon the Half-year common grounds, and did root and tear up the soil and grafs, should be impounded; and every owner and owners thereof to pay 6d. for each.

But, at another assembly, May 25, 1629, these, and all other Constitutions and Orders made about the halfe-year common grounds, were repealed, and declared void; And a new one was made, importing, "That noe Free-burgisse should at anye tyme hereafter betwene the Feasts of St. Peter ad vincula called Lamas daye, and the Purification of the Virgin Marie, called Candlemas daye, yerelye, put into or upon the said half yere comon groundes to feede, but only Three hedd of great cattle, or in lieu of everye one of the said three hedd Ten sheepe; upon paine to forfeit for everye hedd, over and above the said three hedd, or ten shepe in lieu of every one of the said three hedd lymited and appointed as aforesaid, the some of 2 s. 6 d. And everye forryner to forfeit and pay for everye hedd of cattle that shall at anye tyme be founde or putt upon the said half-yere comon grounds between the feasts aforesaid, the some of 3 s. 4 d. All which forfeitures and somes of monie should be levied, compounded for, receaved and distributed unto and amongst the poore free-burgisses of this Towne, their wives, widowes, and children, and not to be disposed, leavied, or distributed to or for anie other use or purpose whatsoever. And for the better reforming the abuses heretofore used in the overfeeding of the said Half-yere comon groundes, and that the benefitt thereof comeing might be duly employed and distributed; It was enacted by the Bailiffs, Aldermen, &c. That the whole Commonalty or Free-burgisses, i. e. all manner of persons householders, dwelling within this borough, being sworne to the King and the borough, and bearing scott and lott at all times as occasion serves; yerely, upon the Monday next after the

(i) Mag. Rot. 1 Ric. i. 2, a Essex and Hertf.

[B] This evidently appears from several Presentments at the Law-hundred-courts, wherein it is said,—Quod Ballivi & Communitas ville predicte de jure Communitate debent in terris, &c.—cum animalibus suis, prout predicti Ballivi & Communitas, & omnes predecessores sui ibidem communitate solebant tempore vocato stray-time, viz. a festo Sti Petri vocato Lammesse usque ad festum Purificationis beate Marie,

A a

NISI ILLE TERRE CUM GRANIS FUERINT SEMINATE. Rot. Cur. in several instances. Or, Nisi terre seminentur. Rot. 5 Edw. I.

[C] As is manifest from this Presentment. Item presentant, quod R. Levegor depascit Communiam pasture Colc. cum lx bidentibus, & non est Burgensis, nec aliquid terre habet infra Communiam. Ideo in misf. vid. Rot. Cur. 14 Edw. iii.

feast

feast of St. Mary Magdalene, should assemble in the Moot-hall, (upon pain of every one's making default to forfeit 12 d.) and chuse Four Treasurers, one out of each ward, being a free-burgess, and an inhabitant within the said Ward: Every of whom might dispende in lands, tenements, and hereditaments the some of 5 l. by the yere, or be worthe in moveable goods 100 l. The said Treasurers so chosen, to nominate, the same day, yerely, out of everye of the wards Four other honest and discrete persons, free-burgesses of the said towne, and inhabitants within the said severall wards; to be Drivers of the said Commons [D]. And anie other free-burgiss, together with anie of the sixtene drivers so to be named and chosen as aforesaid, to drive the said Halfe-yere common grounds, and to impounde such cattle, as well of free-burgisses as forryners, as should be att anye tyme their founde feedinge, contrarie to this order. But it shall not be lawfull for the said Drivers or anie other person or persons, or anie of them, to receive anie monie or other thing whatsoever, for anie offence concerning those Halfe-yere comon grounds, but onelye the said fower Treasurers, soe to be nominated and chosen as aforesaid. And the said fower Tresurers only; or the more parte of them, from tyme to tyme to compound and agree with anie person or persons, for anie incroachment or offence whatsoever: And yerely, within fowertene daies next after th'ende of their yere, yield unto the Bailiffs and Aldermen of this towne, in the Moothalle, a true and perfect accounte in writinge, signed with their hands or marks, of all such some or somes of money and other profits, as they shall have received out of, or for, the said common grounds, upon payne of forfeiting 5 l. Which some, or somes, of money shall from tyme to tyme be distributed by the Bayliffs, and the said fower Treasurers, or the more parte of them, unto the poore free-burgisses, their wives, widows and children; but noe distribution to be made without the consent of the Bailiffs for the time being. — And that their shal be allowed and paid unto the Drivers, by the said Treasurers, for every hedd of cattle that shall be founde and compounded as aforesaid, the some of 2 d. out of the said forfeitures."

By two other Constitutions, made in August 1633 and 1635, it was ordered, That there should be a Heardsmen chosen out of each ward, to keep and look after the freemen's cattle, in the half-year and whole-year common Ground; and to have for their pains 1 d. weekly, for every head of great cattle, and every ten sheep they shall keep, to be paid by the owners of them (k). These are all the Constitutions that have been made at any time about the Commons of this Town.

Some parcels of these Commons have been made severall, or whole-year-land, at divers times, particularly the Lands about St. Anne's [E]; and some others. By which, and other instances among the Town-records, it appears, That the Bailiffs, Aldermen, Common-counsell, and Jury at the law-hundred courts, were enabled to discharge these lands of common of pasture.

And by certain original articles settled by Commissioners in 1549, it was ordered, That the Bailiffs, Aldermen, and Common-counsell, shall not at any tyme hereafter, alienate or sell any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, appertaining to this Borough or Corporation, or make severall, or sell any Common or Commons, &c. without the hole assent, consent, and agreement of the Bailiffs, Aldermen, and Common-counsell of this Town or Borough, or the most part of them [F].

This Privilege, as it hath been long managed, is a great hurt to many, and of advantage to very few. For it hinders the farmer from making such due improvements as he might. And it only authorizes some of the worst sort in general to keep beasts; for the sake of a few weeks feed; and to starve them, or to trespass upon their neighbours, the rest of the year: since the Commons are so surcharged, that the feed is gone in a very short time.

It is also of benefit but to a very few, namely, those who keep cattle: which is hardly one free-burgess in twenty. Whereas the majority and the poorer sort do not reap the least advantage from it. For the forfeitures that should be distributed among the widows and orphans, are embezzled in a very unworthy manner, as appears by the account of one of the Treasurers, which I shall give for a sample of the rest [G]. Besides, very few of the Treasurers ever give any account. It has therefore, as I am informed, been proposed more than once, To let

(k) Books of Assemblies.

[D] They had also a fifth in each Ward, called a foreign Driver; but by what right elected doth not appear.

[E] The Entry upon the Court-Rolls on that occasion, is thus: Ballivi, Aldermanni, totum Consilium, & Jurati predicti, pro salutari prosperitati ville, concesserunt pro se & successoribus suis, Quod Gardiani Gylde & Fraternalitatis Ste Anne matris Marie, & eorum successores, habeant & teneant de cetero quiete totam terram modo dicte Capelle adjacentem & pertinentem, liberam & separalem absque aliquo Communi inde habendo sive clamando. Reddendo Ballivis & successoribus suis pro qualibet acra 12 d. dim. per ann. (Rot. Hen. VIII. rot. 11.) There are other instances of the like nature on the Town rolls. — And by the Chamberlain's accounts, it appears, that some pieces in St. James's and St. Leonard's have also been exonerated from Common of pasture, for which small quit-rents are paid to the Town.

[F] These articles indentyde were made Apr. 30, in the 3d of Edward VI. by Sir John Raynforth, and Sir William Waldegrave, Knights, John Taye, William Morice, and Francis Jobson, Esqrs. Commissioners amongst others assyned by vertue of the said King's Wrytte unto theym directed, To heare, examine, and determyn certeyne matters of Controversie depending in Parliament amongst the Bailiffs, Aldermen, Comon Counsil and Comynaltie of his Corporation, &c. (From the original.)

[G] It was in the year 1722. The particulars stand thus.

	l.	s.	d.
Choice-day, and day after, in treats	1	10	0
Aug. 7. Expended on the drivers, for giving notice to the people concerned, or holding the commons,	0	5	0
Expended in a treat with the other Treasurers,	0	11	6
8. Expended at the receipt of the Moneys collected,	0	10	0
13. Six days, driving the Commons,	0	12	0
20. Gave the widow B. being ancient, in meat	0	0	7
Sept. 1. Gave T. M. being sick and weak,	0	3	0
4. Paid for shoes, for self and drivers,	1	7	6
11. and 17. Expended at the receipt of two persons moneys,	0	2	6
Remained in hand 3 l. 1 s. not accounted for.

the Free-burgesses lease them out to the Farmers for twenty-one years, or a less term, still retaining the Property of them: which would raise a very considerable yearly sum, that might be distributed amongst the meaner of the Free-burgesses, or else be applied for the better maintenance of the Poor [H]. And considering the height of the Poor-rates in most of the parishes, and the great numbers of the needy and indigent which can scarce be tolerably supported; it would be a very great ease, and nothing could be more reasonable. But things of a public nature or advantage are very slowly put in execution amongst us.

There is a much more advantagious and valuable Common belonging to the Town, even a whole-year one, which the Free-burgesses seem now to slight and neglect, viz. Mile-end-heath. But when it was first granted to them, they took a particular care to hinder foreigners from commoning there, and also that it should not be over-charged (l).

§ 3. Bounds and Extent of the Liberties.

THESE cannot be better described than in the four following Perambulations of them, taken at several different and distant times [I].

1. "The Liberty of Colchester begins at the outward Ditch of Wyldenhey, [i. e. the rampart on Lexden-heath] and goes to the New Cross of William Launvaley. And, from the said Cross extends to New Bridge: And from New-bridge to Todulnes-bridge: And from Todulnes-bridge to Tomas-bridge: And from Thomas-bridge as far as Blackbrook in Chestrewell: And, from Blackbrook in Chestrewell to the Brook under the corner of Langham-park: And, from this brook to Lenegores-bridge: And, from Lenegores-bridge to Dych-crouche: And, from the said Dych-crouche there runs from the Brook beneath a certain Water leading to Bere-church; and from Bere-church to Kyngsford: And, from Kyngsford, before the gate late Robert Marefcall's: And so on to the first Cross aforesaid where the Perambulation began."

(l) Presentments in the time of K. Henry VIII. and Q. Elizabeth, in my possession; and Rot. Cur 1° & 2° Jac. i. rot. 6. (m) Book of Assemblies, of that date.

[H] As the Rents reserved for the enclosing of any of them, and fines and amerciaments for the feeding of them, have upon some occasions. See Appendix to Book iii. no 3.

[I] These Perambulations include not only the Twelve Parishes within, and near the Walls: But also the four Parishes within the Liberties, viz. Lexden, Mile-end, Greenstead, and Bere-church or West-Doniland, — Baulenca [Banleuca] Colcestr. incipit ad forinsecum fossatum de Wyldenhey ad Novam Crucem Willi Launvaley (aliaque Baulenca irrotulata est in Itiner de foresta Dni Robti Passhehowe anno Dni regis H. fil. regis Johis tricesimo) Et extendit a p'dca cruce usq; ad Novum pontem; et de Novo ponte ad Todulnesbregge; & de Todulnesbregge usq; Thomas Bregge: Et de Thomas-Bregg, usq; ad Blakebrok in Cestreweild. Et de Blakbrok in Cestreweild usq; Brok sub corner parci de Langham. Et de p'dca Brok usq; Lenegoresbrigge. Et de Lenegoresbrigge usq; ad le Dych crouche. Et de p'dca Dychcrouche t'nit a Brook benethen quedam

2. A Declaration of a Perambulation of the Liberties of the towne of Colchester, Anno Dni 1563.

[Lambe Crosse [in the road to Fordstreet.]
Newbridge.
A brooke at the end of Westfield.
Todulnes Bredge, alias Botolphes Bredge.
Thomas Bredge.
Black-brookes in Chestreweill.
Brookes under Langham-parke.
Levegores Bredge.
Dyche Crouch.
Batells Brooke.
Bathes Brooke.
A Brooke at Sir Francis Joblon's gate.
Blacke Heathe corner being the North-corner, and so direct to the South-end of the Heath into the parke of Beere-church.
The corner of the same parke of Beere-church direct against Aberton-church, where the outmarke of the lymitts is the River banke by a great Alder there, Brownsford Bredg still to the River side.
Kingsford Bredg leaveing the Brooke alwaies on the lefte hand and Kirton Wood on the right hand goeing by Layer-mill, the north wheele whereof is said to be in Westdoniland parish within the liberties of Colchester.
To Oliver's gate.
Chestenfelde.
Parkefeilde by Mr. Motts howse.
Grymes Dyche.
Grymes Dyche by Pedders crosse.
Grimes Wrosen [K]:

From Colchester to

3. The preamble or curcuit of the Bounds of the Towne of Colchester and the Liberties thereof, taken the 18th daye of Sept. Anno. Dom. 1637, &c. (d).

Imprimis, From a ditch next the Channel in St. Giles parishe, that leadeth to Battells-brooke aqua & ducit ad Buerdecherche Et de Buerdecherche usq; ad Kynggesford Et de Kynggesforde ducit ante portam quondam Robti Mearescalli Et ita ducit usq; ad primam p'dcam Crucem ubi Baulenca primo incipit.

Ista parcella p'scriptur invenita in quodam antiquo Rotulo int, alia memoranda a^o regni regis E. fil. regis Henrici Sexto, tempore Saieri fil. Radi & Rici Prowett Ballior Colc' (Oath-book, fol. 3. a) There were also two other ancient Perambulations in the 35th and 47th of Edward III. (Oath-book, p. 34. 42.)

There was formerly among the Town-Records, An old Indenture for the Perambulation, in French.—The Perambulation of Colchester through Great Stanway.—And, An Indenture of Agreement between the Lord of Stanway, and the Town, for the Libertyes of Colchester. But they are now lost. MS. penes me. fol. 3. 4. 6.

[K] Oath-book, p. 45. towards the end.

in Donyland and from Battles-brooke to Barefbroke, and so to a lane that leadeth unto the Old Hyth upon the right hand, and so unto the Heath of East Donyland upon the lefte hand leaiving the Brooke alwaies upon the lefte hand, and so along till yee come at Mr. Befneye Barker's pond, which is the head of the brooke, and so alonge on the inside of the Parke-pale till yee come to the north corner of Black-Heath, and from the Tree that standeth in the East corner of the wood (at the south side of Mr. Barker's park) marked with a crosse, cross the said Black Heath by a Tree marked with a crosse, which standeth alone in, or about, the middest of the said Heath unto the South ende of the same Heath into the lane there: And then into Beere-church parke, keeping close by the said Park-pale till yee come right against Abberton-church, and so downe to the river-banke to a great alder-tree (standing upon the said river banke) marked with a cross, and so along the river to Brownsford-bridge, and from thence to Layer-mill (and the north-side of the mill-wheele of the said mill was said to bee within the Liberties of the said town of Colchester) and so alonge till yee come to Kingsford-bridge: And from thence alonge to Parkefield and so to Grymes Ditch, and so to Pedders-crosse, and so alonge the said Ditch to Lambes-crosse: And from thence to Newbridge (goinge in at the gate on the right hand, a little before yee come at Newbridge, in the grounds nowe in the occupation of Nicholas Ayleward) and so over Mott's-bridge, and so crosse the river by Nicholas Ayleward's howse, into the meadowe crosseinge over to the lower ende of West-fielde, and from thence to Buttolph's-brooke, leaiving the Brooke alwaies upon the left hand, and so along to Thomas Abridge (which is right against Robin Hood's oak) And from thence to Blacke-Brooke under Chesterwell, and so alonge the Rampiers by Horkefley-heath, to the Brooke that is under Langham-parke-corner, and from thence to the Greene leadinge to Skippinge-streete, and so along under the Severall-hedge, and so alonge by the inside of the hedge of Soame-wood, to Gore-bridge, and so to Crouch-ditch, and so along to Crockelford-mill, and so alonge the Ditch till yee come to Charne-wood, and so under the hedge up to Witmore-heath, and so crosse the Heath upon the right hand unto the high-waye, and so alonge till yee come to a Springe-head, that runneth thorough a wood, which sometymes was Mr. Cleere's wood, and so follow that springe thorough Clingo-hills, and so alonge the Ditch that runneth into the Channel righte against the place where Blober howse did stand (which Howse hath a long tyme been downe) [L].

[L] Then follow at the end the names of those that did ride and goe the boundes and circuit of the Towne and Liberties aforesaid, the day and yeere aforesaid. Robert Buxton, Mayor.—Daniel Cole, John Langley, Ralph Harrison, John Firley, Aldermen.—Will. Kinge, Sam. Seamer, John Coxe, John Shawe, John Waylett, Geo. Harrison, Will. Cooke, Affistants.—James Abrathat, Will. Hamond, Robert Wynniffe, Nicholas Beacon, Francis Burrowes, Common Council.—Will. Arwaker, Will. Hall, draper, Wolfstone Maie, Nathan Buskell, John Radhames, John

4. A Perambulation of the Bounds and Limitts of Colchester and the Liberties thereof, taken the 16th day of August, in the 23d year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord King Charles II. of England, &c. Annoq; Domini 1671, in the time of William Moore, Gent. Mayor, &c.

1. From the Moot-hall to a Ditch or Brooke in St. Giles's parish running into the Channel: which Brooke parteth Battelswick Marsh from Rowhedge, and over which there is a foote-bridge for footemen to passe from the Old Hithe to Rowhedge. Then from that Foot-bridge back to Battelswick yards, and soe through Battelswick-grounds to a new Fulling Mill of Mr. Christopher Sills standing over the said Brooke, upon the beame lying over the Damme of which Mill is cut a cross. And from thence over into the common roade that leads over Bares-brooke from Donyland-heath to the Old Hithe: which brooke is the same that runnes into the Channel, onely at this roade it is called Barefbrooke from Barefbrooke through which it runnes. And soe up to the three-way-leete, one of which waies points to the Old Hithe, another to Donyland-heath, and the other is an over-growne way of little use leading downe againe to the aforesaid brooke, by an auncient Howse called Wooddyers, in which one Mr. Laurence, somtimes an Alderman, dwelt. And soe downe along that over-growne way to the aforesaid brooke: And soe into and through the Moores adjoyning to, or parcel of, Middlewick, allwaies leaiving the brooke on the left hand) And soe through Middlewich grounds into the Roade leading from Bone, [or Bourn] ponds to Black-heath: And soe along the roade by Mr. Barker's Pond in his Ground, which formerly was called a Parke. And which Pond is the head or fountaine of the aforesaid Brooke, called Bare's-brooke, and Battell's-brook, that runnes into the Channell. And soe along to the North Corner or Entrance on to Black-heath, where there stands a Tree on Mr. Barker's banke, on the South-side of his Grounde marked with a Crosse. From thence crosse the said Black Heath, by the place whereon a Tree formerly stood alone, marked with a Crosse, in or neere to the middest of the said heath unto the South ende or corner of the same Heath; and then into the Lane there on the outside of Bear-church-Park-pale, and so along the said Pale through the Fields to a Gate leading into the said Parke, and through that into the said Park. And soe along the said Parke, goeing as neere to the pale as may be, down to the River-banks, and soe to a greate Poplar-tree standing on the said banke marked with a crosse. And soe along the Meadows by the water-side Reynoldes, John Merridale, Humfrie Merridale, John Stubbes, James Bloomfield, Matt. Pricknett, Geo. Harrison, jun. the son of Geo. Harrison, draper, Freeburgesses.—Thomas Greene, Francis Richards, Geo. Harrison, Serjeants at mace.—David Saunders, jun. Francis Saunders, the sonnes of David Saunders, the elder, dyer, Joseph Fuller, Foreigners.—And Will. Cockerell, Towne Clerk of the said Town of Colchester. The Number of persons were thirty and fixe, who dined all at Samuel Rams, in Lexden, the same daye.

to Brownesford-bridge, marked with a crosse, And to a Tree standing at the hithermost Ende thereof being likewise marked with a Crosse. And soe a-long the Meadows and Grounds to Layer-mill, the North side of the Wheele whereof is and hath beene said to be in Colchester; and the beame lying over the water that drives the said wheele, is marked with a crosse. And soe along to Kingsford-bridg: And from thence up along the roade home-wards on Kingsford-heath, under the wood called Oliver's Wood, and other Lands at the ende thereof adjoining to Kingsford-heath, to a Gate and Barres called Kingsford-heath-gate; through which is the turning out from the said heath to a lane or way leading by Gosbecks to Lexden-heath, all along by the side of the Hedg, under which there is a Ditch called Grymes Ditch, to Pedders Crosse; which is the three way-leeete, one of which points downe to Stanway-hall, another is the way wee went by Gosbecks, and the other to Colchester, by the Shrubb-wood side. And from thence along on Lexden-heath, under Mr. Mott's wood, to the North corner of the same wood, next to the said heath. And then up along by the North side of the said wood, and of a Broom-field of his by Lexden-heath to an old Oake adjoining to a Gate, leading out of his ground on to the said hath, which Oak is marked with a crosse. And soe on along under the hedg of a wood to the Ramper that parts Lexden-heath from Stanway-heath. And then into the Ramper, and thorough it, to the Lane leading from Lexden-heath to Lamb's-crosse: which Lamb's-crosse is the four-way lette, one of which points to Lexden, another to Ford-streete, another down to Newbridge by Shett's-hill, and the other to Lexden-heath (through which we came) and on a Tree standing on Mr. Leming's Ground at the elbow of his banke neer to this cros, is cut a crosse. And from thence down Shett's-hill to New-bridge, and then into the Fields in the occupation of Matth. Ayleward, and of auncient tyme of Nicolas Ayleward, through a gate a little above the Bridg: and soe along to Matth. Ayleward's Yard, crosse the River into Matth. Ayleward's Meadow, and crosse that Meadow into the lower part of Westfields, neare to which is a Foot-bridge crosse the River, which is called Mott's-bridge. And soe along through Westfields to a Gate in a lane at or neere the north ende of a Meadow of one Mrs. now in Samuel Duglet's occupation, which lane parts West-fields from Bergholt, as the Parsons of each Parish, whoe were both present, affirmed; and, upon a Tree standing neere to which Gate is set a crosse. And from thence to Buttolph's Brooke, leaving the Brooke alwaies upon the left hand; and soe along through Mr. Leming's Meadows and Woods at the ende of them to a Bridge, called Thomas Abridge, leading on to Horkefley-heath, which Bridge is right against Robin Hood's Oake, that stood on the pitch of the hill. And from thence along the Nayland Roade, over Horkefley-heath, to Blackbrooke, under Chesterwell, which Brooke runnes crosse the waye at the foote of Horkefley Cawfy; and upon an Oake, on the South side of which Brooke is in this perambulation set a cros: and which Chesterwell was affirmed to be in the Lands in Horkefley pertaineing to St. Peter's Church. And from that Brooke, crosse the Heath; to the Rammers on Boxted and Horkefley-Heath; and along those Rammers to a Brooke under Langham-Parke-corner, next to the corner of Boxted-heath; upon a Tree standing on which corner of Boxted-heath, is set a crosse. And from thence through the Fields, along the Severall-Hedge to the Greene leading to Skipping-streete. And then into Bullock-wood, and through that into Bullock-wood Playnes by a Tree, at the entrance into which Playnes is set a crosse. And soe along the inside the hedg of Soame Wood to Goresbridge, which is at the bottom of Beggars-oak-heath, leading to Ardly-streete from Gallow-greene, an Oake standing neare which Bridge is marked with a crosse. And soe to Crouch-ditch; and so to Gores-ditch, and the Bridge leading to Mosemill. And so along to Crockleford-mill. And then along the Ditch to Chirnewood; and under the hedge up to Whitmore-heath. And soe crosse the Heath upon the right hand unto the high-way, till you come to a Spring-head in the high-way, by the road-side, leading from Grinstead to Elmestead-market; which Brooke runnes crosse the said way into a Close upon Wivenhoe-heath, which Close was sometimes a Wood of Mr. Cleere's. And so follow that Spring through Clinghoe-hills: And so along the Ditch through which that Spring runnes into the Channel, right against the place where the Blobber-house did stand, that hath beene downe a long tyme (n) [M].

§ IV. Government of the Corporation.

THE most ancient Government of this Town, we may reasonably suppose, was (like that of the generality of other Corporations) by a Port-grave [N], appointed by the King, so long as it continued a royal demesne, and remained in the Crown. But when it came to be let to ferm to the Burgessees [O], particularly by K. Richard I. they were allowed to (n) Book of Assemblies, Aug. 16, 1671.

[M] At the first appearance at Battelsbrooke by Row-hedge, were present these whose names ensue. William Moore, Mayor.—Sir John Shaw, Knt. Recorder.—Thomas Talcot, William Flanner, George Hammond, Aldermen.—William Mott, John Shaw, jun. Francis Wheeler, Samuel Reynolds, Esquires.—Mr. Shelton, Clarke, Jonathan Sanders, Clarke, —Thomas Ruse, William Hall, Jonas Whale, Samuel Mott, Affistants.—Richard Boys, Henry Churchman, Richard Hawksbee, Alexander Hindmers, James Aylet, Common-council-men.—Samuel Shaw, Gent. Robert Moor, jun. Gent. Thomas Ruse, jun. Gent. William Dowling als Smith, Francis Gatton, Gent. Mr. John Rebow, Mr. Abraham Hedgthorne, Mr. Jacob Fromantele, William Aldred, Robert Petfield, Thomas Loveny, shoemaker, William Leech, John Lufkin, John Smith, barber, James Dunbar, John Waker, John Allen, Thomas Millbanke. Joseph Thurston, Chamberlain; Matthew Scrivener. And Mr. William Hammond, who went along the last Perambulation in 1637.

[N] From the Saxon portre, a port or harbour, and genepa, governour. See Book II. p. 23.

[O] See above, p. 46. note [W] Many of our Kings have assigned this Fee farm in whole, or in part, to several persons, viz. K. John to his mother Eleanor. K. Hen. III. to his Queen Eleanor. K. Edward III. to his mother Isabel. K. Henry V. to Humphrey Duke of Gloucester.

B b chuse

chuse for Bailiffs whom they pleased out of their own body, and a Justicier to administer justice within the Burgh.

How these Bailiffs were elected in that, and the four following reigns, we have no account. But in the 46th of Edward III. some ordinances were made (o), by which we learn the manner of their Election, which was thus:

In the first place, The whole Commonalty chose Four sufficient men [P], and of good conversation, that had never been Bailiffs, one out of each ward [Q]; and being sworn, they elected Five more out of each ward, that had never been Bailiffs, making up with themselves Twenty-four: After taking an oath, they proceeded to the election of the two Bailiffs; which was in Michaelmas weeke.

Next they elected eight Aldermen, otherwise called Auditors; and two Chamberlains, anciently styled Receivers. And, besides them, there was a Town-clerk, and Serjeants.

In Michaelmas-week, the said Bailiffs and Aldermen chose sixteen of the wisest and most understanding people in the Burgh, whose names were entered on the Court-rolls. And those sixteen, jointly with the Bailiffs and Aldermen, had the management of the affairs of the Burgh, and made Ordinances and Constitutions for the good of the town. They were to meet at least four times a year. And if any of the Burgessees had somewhat to propose, he was to deliver it to the Bailiffs in writing; and receive an answer at the next Assembly.

This form of Government continued, as far as I have observed, till Edward the IVth's reign; who directed in his Charter, That the Bailiffs and Aldermen, and the sixteen persons just now mentioned, should chuse sixteen other persons, viz. Four out of each ward, to be a Common Council [R]: Which Common Council should have power to make reasonable Ordinances and Constitutions for the good of the Burgh. And also, that the Bailiffs for the time being, some Lawyer [S], and four Burgessees; to be chosen and nominated in the same day and manner as the Bailiffs; should be Keepers of the Peace within the Burgh. But, even as high as King Henry IV. upon record (p), they elected also four Claviers [or keepers of the keys of the town-chest] and two Coroners.

The second Charter of K. Charles I. granted in 1635, made some alteration in this form of Government. For it incorporated the men and free-burgessees of Colchester by the name of Mayor and Commonalty: Directing, that they should chuse a Mayor and nine other Aldermen, sixteen Assistants, and sixteen Common-counsellmen, a High-Steward, a Recorder, and a common Clerk.

The first Charter of K. Charles II. ordered, that there should be 12 Aldermen including the Mayor, 18 Assistants, and 18 Common-counsellmen. But his second Charter restrained the number of Assistants and Common-counsell to 15 of each.

And King James II. lessened yet more the number of them, by appointing that there should be but 10 Aldermen including the Mayor, 10 Assistants, and 10 Common-counsellmen.

But the Charter of K. William and Q. Mary restored the same number as had been appointed in the first Charter of K. Charles II.

The other Officers of this Corporation, were The Steward of the Admiralty-Court: The Water-Bayliff, and Water-Serjeant: The Serjeants at mace, three, and afterwards four in number [T]: The Clerk of the market: Cryer: Ranger: Keeper of the Gaol. And, belonging to the Courts in particular, Counsellors, occasionally, and 4 Attorneys.

The Mayors, and other Annual Officers, were elected the Monday after the Decollation or beheading of St. John Baptist, i. e. the first Monday after the 29th of August. The manner of election was thus: Such of the Free-Burgessees as payd scot and lot, or the major part of them, in common Hall assembled [U], nominated and returned two Aldermen to the bench of Aldermen: who, retiring into the Council, or Record-room, chose one of the two to be Mayor for the year ensuing.

Next, for the Election, who were to chuse two Justices of Peace, two Coroners, four Claviers, and a Chamberlain: The Free-burgessees did elect Four Head-men, one out of each (o) Oath-book, p. 5, 6, &c.

(p) Rot. Cur. 6 Hen. IV. rot. 1.

K. Henry VI. eleven pounds out of it to Rob. Mansfeld, one of the ushers of his chamber. K. James to Thomas Viscount Colchester, 8l. as above. K. Charles II. to his Q. Catharine, 30l. Sir John Morden's college hath now, I think, this 30l. deducting taxes.

[P] They were afterwards called Headmen. Each of them was to be a free-burgesse, and an inhabitant of the respective wards for which they were chosen; and able to spend in lands, tenements, and hereditaments, 4l. a year, or be worth 40l. in moveables. And of every of the Five to be chosen by them, two at least were to be of the Common counsel.

[Q] This Town is divided into 4 wards. 1. Head-ward, comprehends the parishes of St. Mary's, Lexden, H. Trinity, part of St. Runwald's, and of St. Giles's. 2. South-ward, St. Botolph's, St. Mary Magdalen's, Bere-Church, part of St. Giles's. 3. North-ward, St. Peter's, St. Martin's, St. Nicholas's, part of St. Runwald's, Mile-end. 4. East-ward, All Saints, St. James's, St. Leonard's, Greenstead.

[R] The first sixteen were afterwards named Primum Concilium, and the latter Secundum Concilium, till Aug. 10, 1635, when these names were altered into those of Assistants and Common Counsell; though the name of Common Counsel was used before. See Books of Assemblies, 30 Oct. 1598, &c.

[S] Afterwards called Recorder. Some persons of the highest eminence have been pleased to accept of that office; as Richard Riche, afterwards Lord Chancellor; Sir Thomas Lucas, Kt. Sir Fr. Walsyngham, Sir Robert Cecil Earl of Salisbury; Tho. Earl of Suffolk; Henry Earl of Holland; Sir Harbottle Grimston; Earl Cowper, &c.

[T] There were only three in K. Edward III's time (Rot. Cur. 33 Edw. III. rot. 1.) but afterwards four: and a fifth was appointed in 1623, for the Execution of processes and arrests. They had formerly but 20 s. a year each, and a livery: but in 1731, 5l. per ann. was ordered to be paid to each quarterly.

[U] Except common Inn-keepers, Vintners, Bakers, Brewers, Butchers, Victuallers, Canikers; any journeyman drawer, or chamberlain in an inn or tavern, or a person serving for a salary; one that is not a house-keeper, or doth not pay scot and lot within the Burgh: the father of a bastard child, or one convicted of felony, adultery, fornication, drunkenness, common swearing, or that has been punished for the same; or that receives alms. Chart. of K. Charles I.

Ward;

Ward; who being severally chose and sworn, nominated for their fellows Five free-burgesses out of each Ward: And they being also sworn and assembled, (and, making with the Headmen, 24 in number) did elect

Two Justices of Peace: Two Coroners: Four Claviers: And a Chamberlain.

They were sworn on Michaelmas-day, and all took the oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, except the four Claviers.

The new Mayor, and the last year's Mayor, were also then sworn Justices of Peace: so that there were always Four in the Burgh, besides the Recorder, who was a perpetual Justice of Peace by his Office.

The Four Serjeants at Mace were elected on the Tuesday next after Michaelmas-day, in the very same manner as the Justices of Peace, Coroners, &c.

When any Vacancies happened in the House they were thus filled. — If it was in the Common-counsel, the Free-burgesses, residing in the Town, and paying scot and lot, nominated two Burgesses; one of which the Mayor, Aldermen, Assistants, and the rest of the Common-counsel for the time being, or the major part of them, chose into the vacant office of Common-counselman.

If the vacancy was among the Assistants, the said scottant and lottant Burgesses, or the greater part of them, chose one out of the Common-counsel into the vacant office of Assistant.

If the vacancy was among the Aldermen, the said scottant and lottant Burgesses, or the major part of them, nominated two of the Assistants; and the Mayor, the rest of the Aldermen then surviving, the rest of the Assistants, not nominated, and the Common-counsel for the time being, or the major part of them, chose one of those two Assistants into the vacant office of Alderman.

On the Election-day of Bailiffs and Mayors, there used formerly to be a public dinner, for the House, and the Electors. But as it generally ran to great expence, in lieu of it there was a certain small sum given to each of the electors [W]. However, on Michaelmas-day, the new Mayor, then sworn in, gave a public Entertainment at the Motehall [X].

The Expences of this Government were supported by an Income of 500 l. a year, one year with another; arising from these several articles:

Reserved rent in the lease of the severals, 120 l. per ann. clear. [But that estate is let to under-tenants for above 382 l.]

Water-baylship. See below, Book II.

Rents of several Estates and Houses belonging to the Corporation; and wool-hall, bay-hall, &c.

Reserved rents upon Leasehold houses, and parcels of waste, formerly held by copy of court-roll, but most of them have been sold: and purprestures, incroachments, &c. [Y].

Profits of law-hundred and other courts; and of markets, fairs, &c.

Fines, amerciaments, foreign fines, &c.

Out of which the following fixed Salaries were paid to the respective officers.

	l.	s.	d.
The Mayor's fee or salary,	—	20	0 0
The High Steward's	—	10	0 0
Recorder's	—	6	13 4
Common-clerk's	—	3	6 8
— his livery	—	0	15 0
— for pens, ink, paper, &c.	—	1	7 0
The Chamberlain's wages	—	0	13 4
— his livery	—	0	15 0
Four Serjeants	—	20	0 0
Water-Serjeant	—	2	0 0
Clerk of the market	—	2	0 0
Cryer	—	2	0 0
Gaol-keeper.	—	8	0 0

The rest was, in a great measure, laid out in taxes, repairs, and other incidents.

For the regular management of the affairs of this Burgh, Courts were always holden in the Mote-hall. At first there seems to have been no stated days for them, as appears in the note [Z]. But the Charter of K. Edward IV. and the second Charter of K. Charles I. directed, That Courts should be held for personal pleas, processes, real and mixed actions, &c. on Mondays and Thursdays in every week: and for pleas of lands and tenements every Monday fortnight. Also, for matters relating to the Admiral-jurisdiction, every Thursday.

And, upon many important occasions, the Mayor, High-Steward, Recorder, Assistants, and Common-counsel, were wont to hold Assemblies in the Mote-hall; as to elect officers, make by-laws, &c. Five and twenty of them made a full House, and those 25 might make any act, ordinance, constitution, &c. in as full large and ample manner and form, and to all intents and purposes, as if the Mayor, and all the Aldermen, Assistants, and Common-counsel were then personally present (q). But without 25 no act could legally be performed: If there were not so many, they were dismissed till a new summons [A].

(q) Assembly-book, Aug. 25, 1663.

[W] The custom of a public Dinner seems to have been altered in 1599, to spare the town-revenues; when it was ordered, that, instead of it, the Chamberlain should give the Floor 40 s. for their dinner, and to the Electors 26 s. 8 d. — Aug. 6, 1624, he was directed to pay to the Free-burgesses of the Floor, 8 l. to be divided into the four wards: And to the Electors 12 d. a-piece, viz. 24 s. and no more, for their dinner; of which it seems the Custom had crept in again. — Aug. 29, 1636, he had orders to pay 10 l. to the Free-burgesses for their Election-dinner. But in 1645, it was fixed at eights pence a-piece, as it continued ever since. (Books of Assemblies.)

[X] For those Entertainments they had great quantities of linen, and other conveniencies; and many pieces of plate given at different times, which in 1730 amounted to 298 ounces, but were all then (except a large gilt cup with a cover) laid out in buying a new Mace. (Ib. p. 264.)

[Y] Most of the certain Revenues belonging to this corporation, are now mortgaged to the heirs of Mr. Bernard the lessee of the Severals.

[Z] For I find on the Rolls of K. Edw. I. Placita die Lune, Martis, Veneris, Sabbati; Effonia. And on later Rolls, the Entries are thus, Lune querele, Martis, Hundredum, [generally on a Tuesday, sometimes on Monday] Jovis querele, Curia forinfeca [generally on a Thursday, sometimes on Friday] Veneris querele.

[A] Till October 17, 1659, the orders in the Books of Assemblies were signed by all the House then present: But

If

If any of the House, upon regular warning, did not appear at the Hall; or came after the door was shut; or refused to undertake the offices they were elected in; several fines were laid upon them, suitable to their degrees [B]; And, under the like penalties, they were obliged to appear in proper gowns at the Courts, and on Sundays and other Solemnities; for the honour of the Town, and for the greater state, regularity, and magnificence [C]

Another piece of grandeur they had, which is now almost entirely forgotten: That is, the Bailiffs, and afterwards the Mayor, had a Chaplain, styled the General or Common Preacher, or Lecturer: and the first was about the year 1564. He was generally some noted Preacher from Cambridge, chosen during the pleasure of the Bailiffs [or Mayor] and Commonalty; and presented to, approved, and licensed by the Bishop of London. His business was, to preach on Sundays in the afternoon, Wednesdays in the forenoon, on the greater festivals, and on the fast and fair days, coronation days, at elections, gaol-deliveries, &c. [D]. The names of them were as follows:

1580. Mr. Geo. Northye of Clare-hall.

1593. Richard Harrys, D. D.

Upon his resignation, Thomas Ravis, and George Abbot, Bishops of London, endeavoured to persuade the Bailiffs, to have the Lecture preached by the Ministers in the Town; who were "men of learning, integrity, and honest conversation; and whose maintenance was very small." But the Magistrates adhered to their old way. (r).

1609. William Ames, B. D. fellow of Christ's Coll. Camb.

1610. William Eyre, B. D. fellow of Emmanuel-Coll. [*].

1619. Francis Liddal, M. A. of the same Coll.

1628. Richard Maden, B. D. of Magdal. Coll. Camb.

1631. William Bridge, M. A. of Emmanuel Coll.

1632. Richard Maden, again.

1635. John Knowles, M. A. fellow of Catherine-hall.

1639. Robert Harmer, M. A. of St. John's Coll. Cambr.

(r) From the Bishop's original letters. (*) See Life of A. Bp. Usher, by Parr, p. 3. 34. 59. 62. 304. (t) Indentur. 12^o Edw. IV.—predicti Ballivi sigilla sua apposuerunt. (u) Book of Assemblies, of that date. (w) Resolution of the House of Commons, in 1714.

it being found inconvenient, to spend a great deal of time in calling the several Gentlemen of the House to subscribe their names, and scruples often arising concerning some Gentlemen subscribing orders when their particular votes were to the contrary; Therefore it was ordered, That the Town-clerk's name subscribed to the Orders should be as authentic and valid, as if they were subscribed by every particular Gentleman of the House. (Assembly-book.)

[B] As, for refusing the office of Alderman sometimes 80*l.* (Assemb. B. 19 Oct. 1586.) of Chamberlain, 5*l.* 10*l.* 50*l.* (Ibid. passim.) For the rest, 2*s.* 6*d.*—1*s.* &c. See Books of Assemblies, March 17, 1578. Aug. 10, 1635. Oct. 18, 1653. Nov. 12, 1660. Sept. 29, 1663. Oct. 24, 1693. Feb. 15, 1714. &c.

[C] Oct. 30, 1598, It was ordered, That all the Common-counsel should make their Livery-gowns of black puke cloth faced with badger, according to the fashions of the livery-gowns used in the City of London; and a comely hood of cloth of black and scarlet-colours, as used in the 1648. William Archer of Halstead.

1657. Owen Stockton, M. A. fellow of Gonvill and Caius, Coll.

1662. Richard Pulley, Rector of Much Fordham.

1668. Dr. William Cole.

1683. It was ordered to be preached by J. Edwards, W. Skelton, and Jos. Powell, three of the beneficed Clergymen of this town.

1700. Dr. John Edwards was chosen Lecturer, at a salary of 50*l.* per ann.

At length, the office of a General Preacher dwindled into a few Sermons, preached by some of the Clergy in the Town, at the election and swearing of a Mayor, &c.

There are still Lectures here on Sundays, preached by several Ministers; but they are wholly supported by contributions.

S E C T. V.

COLCHESTER is a Borough by Prescription, and hath sent Members to Parliament, upon record, even before the City of London itself: namely, from the 23^d of Edward I. to the present Times [E]. All our charters are entirely silent as to the Elections of Burgeses; not the least word being said in them upon that point. The Returns were formerly indorsed on the Sheriff's Precept [F]; but, ever since Statute 23 Hen. VI. c. 15. have been made by Indenture between the Bailiffs (and of late between the Mayor) and the Sheriff of the County. Anciently, the Bailiffs sealed one part with their own Seals (s), or with the Seal of their office (t): But, April 19, 1660, it was agreed, That the Indenture should be sealed with the common Seal of the Mayor and Commonalty (u); in whose names the Returns have been made ever since.

The Right of Electing the Representatives for this Burgh, is in the Mayor, Aldermen, Common-Council, and Free-Burgeses, not receiving alms (w). Three ways there are, by which these Free-Burgeses acquire their Freedom, or Right of voting. Namely, 1. By Servitude; that is, By being legally bound to, and duly serving a seven years apprenticeship with a Free-burges; and, at the end thereof, being sworn and admitted before the Mayor said city: And every Alderman a comely Gown of Scarlet-cloth, upon certain penalties. (Book of Assemblies. See May 20, 1660.)

[D] Their Maintenance at first was by Subscription: but, in 1576, a Salary of 40*l.* per ann. payable quarterly by the Chamberlain, was settled upon them. In 1593, it was increased to 100 marks, viz. 50*l.* by patent, and 16*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* by Subscription. To that, in 1610, an addition of 10*l.* was made for a house. In 1620, the salary was raised to 100*l.* besides the 10*l.* for a house. In 1662, it was reduced to 50*l.* but in 1663, an addition of 10*l.* was made thereto; and in 1668 another addition of 10*l.* (Books of Assemblies.)

[E] For, the first Representatives of the City of London, upon record, are 26^o Edw. I. See J. Stow's Survey of London, of J. Strype's, Edit. Vol. II. Second Appendix, p. 7.

[F] See Dr. R. Brady's Treatise of Burghs, &c. p. 63, 64, J. II.

and

and Common-Council, or one Alderman, paying 3*s.* 4*d.* to the Chamberlain, and 2*s.* 2*d.* to the Town-clerk. 2. By being the Son, or Descendent, of a Free-Burgess: This Descent is seldom, or never, traced higher than the Grandfather [G]. The 3*d* manner in which the Freedom of this Burgh is acquired, is, By being created a Free-burgess, though a Foreigner; that is, though not entitled thereto either by Birth or Service. This is a thing that hath been often practised: For there are in the Court-Rolls, in the Oath-book, and in the Books of Assemblies, numberless Instances of Foreigners admitted to their Freedoms, either for certain sums of Money, or for Honour, or Services done to the Corporation.

These Freedoms used to be conferred in the most public manner, at the Hundred, Law-hundred, and other Courts (x). But, in the last Century, the Mayor having, of his own authority, without consent of the Common-Council, presumed to make Foreigners free; In order to restrain that pernicious custom, it was ordered at an Assembly, Octob. 16, 1654, That, from henceforth, no Foreigner should be made a Free-burgess of this Town, Directly or Indirectly, nor any other, but only those that were born free; or, by being bound apprentice, should by their service deserve their Freedoms; without the consent of the greater part of the Mayor, Aldermen, Assistants, and Common-Council. This method was so strictly observed, that in 1694, Alderman Mott was disfranchised for several misdemeanors; and, among the rest, for making a person free without consent of the Common-Council (y). And, July 6, 1697, the above Order was enforced, by another, which enjoined, That no Person being a Foreigner, and not having a Right to his Freedom, should be admitted a Free-burgess of this Town, without the consent of the Free-burgesses assembled in the Common-Hall, or the major part of them (z). But, notwithstanding this Order, Mr. John Raynham, Mayor, in 1705, two days before the Election of Representatives for this Borough, admitted ninety-six Foreigners to their Freedoms, of his own authority; and swore them in privately without the Town-Clerk, who ought to swear Freemen publicly in the Moqt-hall. Therefore in the controverted Election, in 1710, they were disallowed by the Committee of the House of Commons, who then resolved, "That the Mayor of the Borough of Colchester cannot make Foreigners free of the said Borough, without consent of the majority of the Aldermen and Common-Council (a)." However, the then Government of the Corporation being desirous to preserve these Freemen at any rate; At an Assembly, of the Mayor, Aldermen, Assistants, and Common-Council, July 17, 1711, they repealed the above-mentioned order of July 6, 1697; and, in the order made for that purpose, recited, That, "whereas of late years diverse persons had been sworn and admitted Free-Burgesses of this Borough, some for Money paid to and for the use of the Mayor and Commonalty, and others in respect of some honour and service done or to be done to and for the Corporation, without any antecedent Right, either by Birth or Service, contrary to the above-repealed order; so that great controversies had arisen, and were like hereafter to arise and continue by reason thereof: For the preventing of which, and preservation of the peace and tranquillity of the Town for the future, They ordered, and enacted, That all and every person and persons whatsoever that had been admitted and sworn Free-burgesses of this Borough, by or before any Mayor of this Town for the time being, contrary to the order aforesaid, and should again take the usual Oath of a Free-Burgess before the Mayor for the time being, should be adjudged, deemed, and taken as duly admitted and sworn: And, they declared them Free-burgesses of this Borough to all intents and purposes whatsoever, any order, usage, act, omission, provision, or restriction to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding: But, that the swearing and admitting such number of persons to be free of this Town, as within some years past had been, might not be brought into precedent for the future, They further ordered, enacted, and declared, That if at any time or times hereafter, any person or persons whatsoever were admitted or sworn Free-Burgesses of this Borough, having no antecedent Right thereto, either by Birth, or actual service as an apprentice by Indenture, according to the good old custom, such swearing and admission should be ipso facto void.—Moreover, that no person whatsoever should be admitted and sworn a Free-Burgess of this Borough in any other place than the Common-Hall of this Town; nor, before such person had attained the full age of one and twenty years; unless by special order of the Mayor, Aldermen, Assistants, and Common-Council, in council assembled."

Soon forgetting the Clause of this Order, wherein they declared, "That, if, at any time hereafter, any person whatsoever were admitted or sworn a Free-Burgess of this Borough, having no antecedent Right thereto, either by Birth, or actual Service, — such swearing and admission should be ipso facto void;" at an assembly of the Mayor, Aldermen, Assistants, and Common-Council, to fill up the House [H], after the filling up a few places, the Free-Burgesses then remaining came to the following Resolution. "That the Freedom of this Borough might be sold to such persons, as by the Committee of the Mayor, Aldermen, Assistants, and Common-Council, (x) See the Rolls. for 1697, &c.

(y) See Proceedings of the Committee of Elections 1710.
(a) Proceedings, as above.

(z) Book of Assemblies,

[G] The Grandson of a Free-Burgess, whose Father was born before the Grandfather's Admission, has no right. Books of Assemblies, C. p. 165.

[H] That is, the Vacancies in the Assistants, &c. The Assembly summoned for this purpose, was only of the Burgesses paying Scot and Lot; and not of the Burgesses at large.—And this is said to have been a contrivance to serve the purpose of the ensuing Election to Parliament, on the 24th of August following.

or Five at the least, should be agreed with, for raising Monies for defending the Rights, and defraying the necessary Charges, of the Corporation." Accordingly seventy-two Freemen were admitted, for such sums of money as by the Committee aforesaid were agreed on. But, May 6, 1714, upon the Petition of William Gore and Nicolas Corfellis, Esqrs. complaining of an undue Election and Return for this Borough, the Committee of the House of Commons disallowed of the Foreigners made Free in 1705, and 1713, and resolved, "That the Right of making Foreigners (not having a Right of Freedom by Birth or Service) Free-men of the Borough of Colchester, is in the Mayor and Free-Burgesses of the said Borough in Common-Hall assembled." And this is the last Resolution of the House of Commons: Notwithstanding which, those new admitted Freemen, and their descendents, have voted ever since.

When the Government of this Corporation came into other hands, it was thought necessary to create a number of Honorary Freemen, in order to counterballance the Foreigners admitted in 1705, and 1713. For that purpose, October 31, 1728, "at an Assembly of the Mayor, Aldermen, Assistants, Common-Counsel, and Free-burgesses, in order to fill up the vacancies of the House; it was ordered and agreed by the Mayor and Free-Burgesses, That a number of Freedoms should be sold to raise a fund for defending the Rights and Privileges of the Corporation; and a Committee was appointed to ascertain the number and names of the persons to be admitted, and to agree with them for the sums they should pay at their admittance (b). In pursuance of which Eighty-three Freemen were made; and about ninety since.

The regular way of making Foreigners free, is, To call a common Floor, which consists of above Fifteen hundred Free-burgesses, who are summoned by Proclamation made by the Serjeants in the several Wards, by order of the Mayor. If the Free-Burgesses give consent, in a common floor, to the admitting any particular Foreigners, they may be admitted by the Mayor, and are good and legal Freemen.

The Sums of Money paid by Foreigners for their Freedoms, at different times, have been various, as appears in the Note [I].

Upon the whole, by observing the great numbers of Free-Burgesses created almost every year, (which are entered upon the Rolls, and in the Oath-book) born in the most distant parts of the Kingdom, and even beyond sea; it is most probable, that they were not created for the sake of their Votes, but that it was at their own motion, and earnest desire, for the sake of the great Privileges and Immunities which a Free-Burgess of Colchester was antiently entituled to by Charter; namely, Exemption, all over England and the Sea ports, from Toll, Pontage, Murage, and all other Duties and Impositions on their Goods and Merchandises [K].

It appears by several Instances, particularly in the Reign of King Edward III. That every Man born and baptized in this Borough had a Right to be Free of the same [L]: so that Birth, whether the Father was a Free-burgess or no, was then a Qualification for Freedom, though it might not be the only one.

There are also several Instances of Freemen disfranchised, or deprived of their Freedom, on account of ill-behaviour (c).

The Substance of the Oath taken by a Free-Burgess at his Admission, in the earliest Times, was [M], That he would be faithful to his Majesty N — and his heirs, as to life and limbs; and also maintain and promote the interest of the Burgh of Colchester with his body and goods; that he would faithfully keep the

(b) Book of Assemblies. (c) Oath-book, p. 179, 185, 187, 201, 208, and many other Instances since.

[I] In K. Edward I's reign, 2 s. — 5 s. — 10 s. In Edw. IId's. 6 s. 8 d. — 8 s. 2 d. In Edw. IId's. 10 s. — 13 s. 4 d. In Richard IId's. 26 s. 8 d. In Henry IVth's. 20 s. — 23 s. 4 d. — 24 s. — 26 s. 8 d. In Henry Vth's the same. In Henry VIth's. 33 s. 4 d. — 40 s. In Edw. IVth's. 23 s. 4 d. In Rich. IId's the same. In Henry VIIth's. 20 s. — 23 s. 4 d. — 26 s. 8 d. — 46 s. 8 d. In Henry VIIIth's. 15 s. 6 d. — 20 s. 6 d. In James I's. 30 s. — 36 s. 8 d. — 35 s. — 40 s. — 46 s. 8 d. — 54 s. — 3 l. Since that, various sums, even as high as 10 l. See the Rolls, and Oath-book, &c.

[K] See the Charters of Rich. I. Edw. II. &c. above.

[L] Joh. Dabber venit coram Ballivis ville Colecestr. in Hundredo predicto, & petit quod, ex quo natus fuit infra Libertatem Colec. admittatur Liber & Burgenfis absque customa perfolvenda firmariis ville: Qui quidem Ballivus conced. quod admittatur Liber — Rot. Cur. 30 Edw. III. rot. 4.

Inquisitio capta in Aula Communitatis ville ex officio Johannis atte Foord & Joh. Pebemarsh ejusdem ville Ballivorum, 28 Nov. 48 Edw. III. per sacramentum Petri Baker. — and 20 others. — Qui dicunt per sacramentum suum, inter alia eisdem per dictos Ballivos objecta — Quod Will. Cuk de Colc. in venella vocata Whytefooteslane, a matre sua cujus nomen ignorabatur, Natus fuit, & de sacro fonte in Ecclesia Sti Rumwoldi Colec. per compadres & commatrem ejusdem solemniter levatus extiterat, cujus mater in brevi postea decessit tempore, Et sic secundum consuetudinem ville Liber est. Rot. Cur. 48 Edw. III. rot. 4.

Inquisitio capta coram Joh. atte Foorde & Joh. Pebemarsh Ballivis ville Colcestr. in Aula Communitatis Colec. ex officio eorundem, die veneris &c. per — 12 homines — de Colec juratos, Qui dicunt per sacramentum suum, inter alia per dictos Ballivos eisdem objecta, Quod Johannes Note de Colec. Textor, viginti & septem annis elapsis in vico de Estrat, a matre sua, que in dicta Inquisitione presens erat, Natus fuit; Et quod dictus Johannes de sacro fonte in Ecclesia Sti Jacobi Colec. per Compadres & commatrem ejusdem Johannis Note, quorum nomina penitus ignorabant, levatus extiterat; Et sic, secundum consuetudinem ville, dictus Johannes Note liber est, sicut alii qui in eadem villa & libertate ejusdem oriuntur: Et sic ad libertatem suam per totam Communitatem admissus est. Rot. Cur. 49 Edw. III. rot. 17. See also Vol. II. of Indexes to the Town Records.

[M] A — intravit Burgagium Colecestr. et tactis sacrosanctis Evangeliiis juravit de Fidelitate ferenda Domino E. regi Anglie, & heredibus suis de vita & membris: ac etiam de Burgo Colecestr. & Libertatibus ejusdem cum corpore & catallis suis manutenend. & meliorand. Et quod obediens erit preceptis rationabilibus Ballivorum Colecestr. [Sometimes it is, — Consuetudines, & novellas ordinationes ac libertates, ejusdem ville pro posse suo manutenend.] Et Consilium dictum Burgum tangens fideliter celabit; Et tallagia, vel auxilia, ad que pro negotiis Burgi assidetur rationabiliter, solvet obedienter; ac dictum Burgum indempnem conservabit de omnibus dampnis que per ipsum evenire poterint. Et dat Communitati de fine pro ingressu — et ad securitatem in premissis faciendam hos plegios invenit — Vid. Rot. Cur. 4^o Edw. II. rot. 8. — Rot. 3^o Edw. III. rot. 3. & 49 Edw. III. rot. 18.

Counsel of the said Burgh; and maintain, to the utmost of his power, the Customs, new Ordinances, and Liberties of the same; and indemnify it from all harm and damages that might happen through him to the said Burgh. And, for his faithful performance of the premises ——— are his pledges. The modern Oath of Burgeffes at their Admission, is somewhat different, and may be seen in the Oath-book.

The number of Free-burgeffes, in-dwellers and out-dwellers, that have a right now to vote at the Elections of Representatives for this Borough, is upwards of Fifteen hundred.

In default of Bailiffs, or Mayor, the Sheriff of Essex is the presiding officer (d).

(d) Dr. R. Brady's Treatise of Cities and Burghs; p. 72. and the last Election.

A compleat List of the Members of Parliament for this Borough, from the 23d of EDW. I. to the present time. Communicated by that worthy and learned Antiquary, Browne Willis, Esq;

EDWARD I.

- 23 P. at West. Elias Fitz John de Colchester, Hubert de Colchester.
- 26 P. at York, Elias Fitz John, Roger de Tyrington.
- 28 Linc. Elias Fitz John, Will. Plumstead.
- 28 West. Elias Fitz John Ellis, Will. de Plumstead.
- 30 Lond. Adam Planting, Warin Fitz William.
- 33 West. Elias Fitz John.
- 34 Council at West. Will. Clerk.
- 35 P. at Carlisle, Elias Fitz John, John de Stratton.

EDWARD II.

- 1 P. at Northton, Will. Clerk, Rob. Olyver.
- 4 West. Will. le Plumstead, Will. le Clerk.
- 5 Lond. Will. le Clerk, Will. de Plumstead.
- 6 West. John de Rattlesden, Joseph Elianore.
- 7 West. Elias Fitz John, Warin Fitz William.
- 8 West. Elias Fitz John, Warin Fitz William.
- 12 York, Elias Fitz John, Warin Fitz William.
- 12 York, Rob. de Goldingham, John Parles.
- 15 West. Warin Fitz William, John Parles.
- 16 York, Peter de Aston, Elias Fitz John.
- 20 West. Elias Fitz John, Warin Fitz William.

EDWARD III.

- 1 P. at York, Elias Fitz John, John Parles.
- 2 New Sarum, Warin atte Welle John Jordayne.
- 2 Northton, John de Rattlesden, John Jordan.
- 4 Winchester, John Rattlesden, Ben. Bygod.
- 4 West. John Rattlesden, John Alianore.
- 6 York, John Rattlesden, Ric. Barbour.
- 6 West. John Rattlesden, Warin Fitz William.
- 7 York, Ralph Ode, Matth. Fitz Robert.
- 9 West. John Parles, John Rattlesden.
- 9 York, John Parles, John Rattlesden.
- 10 Council at Nott. John Parles, John Rattlesden.
- 11 P. at West. John Rattlesden, Warin atte Welle.
- 11 John Rattlesden, Matthew Glasfere.
- 11 Council at West. John Rattlesden, John Elianore, John Fynche.
- 12 P. at West. John Alianore, John Parles.
- 12 Council at Northton, John Rattlesden, Roger le Belch.
- 13 P. at West. John Alianore, John Parles.
- 13 John de Rattlesden, John Crud.
- 14 Warin Cade, Elias Fitz John.
- 14 John Rattlesden, Warin atte Welle.
- 15 John de Rattlesden, Will. de Hadely.
- 17 Elias Fitz John, Warin Fitz William.
- 20 Tho. Dedham, Will. Hadely.
- 21 Will. Haddelegh, John Parker.
- 22 Tho. de Dedham, Will. Hadlegh.
- 26 Will. Furnery, John Juscard.
- 29 Ric. Dyere, Rob. Beche.
- 31 John Attensford, John Hale.
- 34 John atte Ford, John Dyere.
- 34 John de la Ford, John Alayn.
- 34 John de Halle, Will. Rayne.

- 35 John de Halle, Rob. atte Ford.
- 36 John Halle, Rob. atte Ford.
- 37 John Halle, Will. Reyne.
- 38 John Halle, John atte Ford.
- 39 John atte Ford, John Halle.
- 42 John atte Ford, John Halle.
- 43 John Halle, John Keck.
- 45 Council at Winchester, John Halle.
- 46 P. at West. Alexander Coghere, Tho. Fraunceyes.
- 47 John Clerk, Simon Fordham.
- 50 Tho. Fraunceyes, Simon Fordham.

RICHARD II.

- 2 P. at Gloucester, Geoffrey Downe, Rob. atte Ford.
- 3 P. at West. Stephen Barber, John Pailles.
- 6 Michael Auger, John Leche.
- 6 Rich. Henn, John Latche.
- 7 Tho. Fraunceys, Ralph Algar.
- 7 P. at New Sarum, Tho. Fraunceys, Ralph Algar.
- 8 P. at West. John Christian, Alexander Coghere.
- 9 Tho. Fraunceyes, Ralph Algar.
- 10 Tho. Fraunceyes, Ralph Algar.
- 12 P. at Camb. Simon Fordham, Ralph Algar.
- 13 P. at West. Tho. Fraunceyes, Simon Ford.
- 15 Tho. Fraunceyes, John Christian.
- 20 Henry Bofs, John Scarburgh.

HENRY IV.

- 1 P. at West. Herman Godestone, Tho. Fraunceyes.
- 3 Tho. Godestone, Hen. Rofs.
- 8 P. at Gloucester, Tho. Godeston, Will. Mate.
- 12 P. at West. Tho. Godeston, John Pod.

HENRY V.

- 1 P. at West. Tho. Godestone, Tho. Fraunceyes.
- 2 John Godestone, Simon Mate.
- 3 John Ford, John Sumpter.
- 5 Tho. Godestone, John Ford.
- 7 P. at Gloucester, Hen. Bofs, Will. Mate.
- 8 P. at West. Tho. Godestone, John Simberleets.
- 9 Tho. Godestone, Will. Nottingham.

HENRY VI.

- 1 P. at West. Tho. Godestone, John Sumpter.
- 2 John Sumpter, Simon Mate.
- 3 Hen. Boffe, John Godestone.
- 4 P. at Leicester, Will. Nottingham, Tho. Offkin.
- 6 P. at West. Tho. Godestone, John Sumpter.
- 8 John Beeche, Tho. Ofkyne.
- 9 Rob. Pryour, Rob. Selby.
- 11 John Beeche, John Trewe.
- 13 John Beeche, Tho. Ofkyne.
- 15 P. at Camb. Rob. Selby, Walter Benfen.
- 20 P. at West. John Beeche, Tho. Ofkyne.
- 25 P. at Camb. Nic. Peck, John Forth.
- 27 P. West. John Ford, John Sancy.
- 28 John Rouge, William Letch.
- 29 Tho. Attewode, William Ford.
- 31 P. at Reading, ——— Pettworth, John Wright.
- 38 P. at West. John Baron, John Casthorp.
- 39 John Bishop.

EDWARD IV.

- 7 P. at West. Will. Ford, John Botiler.
 12 John Wright, John Bottiller.
 17 Rich. Markes, Tho. Smyth.
 The writs, returns, and indentures are all lost from 17 Edw. IV. to the 1st of Edw. VI. but I find 6 Hen. VIII. J. Clere (d).

EDWARD VI.

- 1 P. at West. John Ryther, Esq; John Lucas, Esq;
 6 Francis Jobson, Knt.

MARY.

- 1 P. at West. John [Ryther] John Best.
 1 P. at Oxford, Fran. Jobson, Kt. Will. Cardinal, Esq;

PHILIP and MARY.

- 1 & 2 P. at West. George Sayer, Robert Browne.
 2 & 3 Francis Jobson, Kt. John Herring.
 4 & 5 G. Chriftnas, Esq; Th. Lucas, Esq;

ELIZABETH.

- 1 P. at West. Francis Jobson, Kt. Will. Cardinal, Esq;
 The same.
 5 Henry Golding, Esq; Fran. Harvey, Esq;
 13 Rob. Chriftnas, Esq; Hen. Golding, Esq;
 14 In the room of H. Golding. deceased.
 Nicolas Clere, Alderman, 23 Mar. 1576.
 In Nicolas Clere's room, deceased, Rob.
 Middleton, 1579.
 27 James Morice, Esq; Fran. Harvey, Esq; nominated by Sir Fr. Walsingham (e).
 The same.
 28 James Morice, Ar. Throckmorton, Esq;
 31 James Morice, Esq; Martin Bethell, Alder.
 35 Rob. Barker, Richard Symnell, Gent. (f)
 39 The same.
 43

JAMES I.

- 1 P. West. Rob. Barker, Esq; Edw. Alforde, Esq;
 The same.
 12 Wil. Towse, Serjeant at law Town-clerk.
 18 Edw. Alforde, Esq;
 The same.
 21

CHARLES I.

- 1 P. West. Will. Towse, Esq; Edw. Alforde, Esq;
 1 Sir Harbottle Grimston, Kt. and Bart.
 Will. Towse, Esq; The first being chosen also for the County, made his election for it: Whereupon Sir Robt.
 Quarles, Kt. was chosen in his room.
 3 Sir Tho. Cheek, Kt. Edw. Alford, Esq;
 15 Sir Will. Masfham, Kt. and Bar. Harbottle
 Grimston, Esq;
 16 Sir Tho. Barrington, Kt. and Bart. Har-bottle Grimston, Esq; in the place of Sir Tho. Barrington, deceased, John Sayer, Esq; Oct. 14, 1645.
 1654 Col. Joh. Barkstead, Joh. Maydstone, Esq; 1656 Henry Laurence, John Maidstone, Esq; chosen by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-counsel. } Double
 John Shawe, Esq; Col. Biscoe, } return. chosen by the Free-burgeses.

- 1659 John Maidstone, Esq; Abraham
 Harrington, Esq;
 John Shawe, Esq; Abrah. Jonson, merchant, chosen as above. }

CHARLES II.

- 12 P. West. Sir Harbottle Grimston, Bart. John Shaw, Esq;
 13 The same.
 31 Sir Harbottle Gristmon, Bart. Sir Walter Clarges, Bart.
 31 The same.
 32 P. at Oxford, Sir Harb. Gristmon, Bart. Sam. Reynolds, Esq;

JAMES II.

- 1 P. West. { Sir Will. Maynard, Bart. Sir Tho. Fanshaw, Kt.
 Sir Walter Clarges, Bart. Nathanael
 Laurence Esq;
 Double return.

WILLIAM and MARY.

- 1 P. West. Hen. Mildmay, Esq; John Wroth, Esq;
 2 Sam. Reynolds, Esq; Edward Cary, Esq;
 In the room of E. Cary, deceased, Isaac
 Rebow, Esq; Nov. 12, 1692.
 7 Sir John Morden, Bart. Sir If. Rebow, Kt.
 10 Sir Tho. Cook, Kt. Sir Isaac Rebow, Kt.
 12 The same.
 13 The same.

ANNE.

- 1 P. West. Sir If. Rebow, Kt. Sir Tho. Cook, Kt.
 4 Sir If. Rebow, Kt. Edw. Bullock, Esq;
 7 Sir Tho. Webster, Bar. Sir If. Rebow, Kt.
 9 Sir If. Rebow, Kt. William Gore, Esq; †
 12 * Will. Gore, Esq; Nicolas Corfellis, Esq;

GEORGE I.

- 1 P. West. Sir Isaac Rebow, Kt. Rich. Ducane, Esq;
 8 Sir Tho. Webster, Bart. Matthew Martin, Esq;

GEORGE II.

- 1 P. West. Samuel Tufnell, Esq; Stamp Brooksbank, Esq;
 8 Matth. Martin, Esq; Isaac Leming Re-
 bow, Esq;
 In Isaac Rebow's room dec. Jacob
 Houblong, Esq; 1735.
 15 Charles Gray, Esq; Samuel Saville, Esq;
 21 The Hon. Richard Savage Nassau, Esq;
 Charles Gray, Esq;
 28 John Olmius, Esq;
 Charles Gray, Esq; upon petition.
 Isaac-Martin Rebow, Esq;

GEORGE III.

- 1 P. West. Charles Gray, Esq;
 Isaac-Martin Rebow, Esq;

(d) From an old paper.
 wages from the Corporation.
 unduly elected.

(e) Assembly-books.
 Assembly-books.

(f) Mr. Symnell and Mr. Throckmorton, took their † * Others were returned, but by Parliament were declared

THE
HISTORY and ANTIQUITIES
OF COLCHESTER.

BOOK II.

Containing a particular Account of the Place.

The several Parishes in Colchester.

THE whole Town, with the Liberties, is divided into Sixteen Parishes; whereof Eight are within the Walls; Four without; and Four within the Liberties. The Parishes within the Walls [A], are St. Mary's, St. Peter's, St. Runwald's, St. Martin's, Holy-Trinity, St. Nicolas's, All Saints, and St. James's; Without the Walls; St. Botolph's (of which a little part lies also within the Walls) St. Giles's, St. Mary Magdalen's, and St. Leonard's, or the Hyth: And within the Liberties; Lexden, St. Michael's Mile-end, Greenstead, and Bere-Church, or West Doniland.

When the Division of these Parishes was made, and the Churches built, we have no certain account.

That of St. Peter's was in being at the time of William the Conqueror's Survey (a); and the rest were undoubtedly erected about the Xth or XIth Centuries, when the pious inclination of building Churches chiefly prevailed; or very probably sooner, as This hath been always a considerable Town. Those belonging to the Religious Houses were not built till those Houses were founded, that is till about the XIIth Century, and some later.

The Churches are mostly built with old Roman Bricks, and the rubbish of other antienter edifices; and are in general but mean, except St. Mary's and St. Peter's, newly rebuilt, and St. James's, which is spacious, and regular, and handsome on the inside. That belonging to St. John's Abbey was large (b) and undoubtedly elegant; but not the least foot-step of it remains at this day: Nor is it known exactly where it stood, except by tradition. That of St. Botolph, now lying in ruins, was very large (c), and the western front adorned with a great deal of neat workmanship, and with two Towers at the north-west and south-west corners: Both, the great western door, and the arches between the pillars, still standing, are in the right Roman semicircular form, not in the Gothic taste. The Steeple of All-Saints Church is very neatly built with flints. That of St. Mary's might have been made much better and handsomer than it is, by erecting a neat Spire on the top of the Tower, which would have had a good effect, and been seen at a great distance. But the work falling into clumsy hands, it was made both heavy and as ugly as possible.

Of the Livings in general.

As the Churches are mean, so is likewise the maintenance of the Clergy. In the times of Popery, the fees for Confessions, Obits, Exequies, Soul-masses, and such other Perquisites and Offerings, which were then bountifully and readily paid, afforded the Incumbents a sufficient, nay a plentiful maintenance; and withal considering their obligation to remain unmarried, they lived well, even though their certain allowance was small (d). But those several Advantages falling off at the Reformation, which removed their superstitious foundations: And most of the Parishes in this Town having but very little land, whereof Tithes can arise; (some of that, too, Tithe-free [B]) and no other Fees or Perquisites

(a) See Domesday, above, Book I. Ch. iii. § 5.
description of it below.

(d) See Bishop Burnet's Preface to Vol. II. of the History of the Reformation.

[A] By the Parishes within the Walls, I mean those whose Churches stand within the Walls. But the Bounds of most of them are not confined therein, but extend without, and even run a considerable distance into the Country.

[B] Particularly the Lands wherewith the Chapel in the Castle was antiently endowed. (See above, in the account of the Castle, Book I. Ch. i. § 2.) And the Site of St. John's Abbey, &c.

left, but such as accrue from Marriages and Burials [C]; by that means, most of the Livings are become so inconsiderable, that One is worth but 25*l.* a year certain; another 15*l.* another 9*l.* another 6*l.* 10*s.* and finally another but 20*s.* [D]. But these three last are augmented.

Several methods have been attempted, at different times, to remedy this inconvenience, and render those Livings a tolerable maintenance. One hath been, by endeavouring to unite some of the Parishes together. Thus we find, that January 23, 1580, it was agreed at an Assembly (e), "That the Parishes within the Liberties of Colchester should be united into Syxe or Fyve Parishes, so as the Bailiffs and Commonalties might have the Presentation after every Vacation; and yf by Councell that might be obteyned, then a Byll to be preferred into the Parliament-house at the charge of the Towne, otherwise not to deale therein."

And, April 13, 1658, a Committee was appointed to consider and advise about the uniting of the Twelve Parishes within this Town and the Suburbs thereof, in reference to the maintenance of Ministers.

Again, June 28, 1660, It was ordered, That the Twelve Parishes within this Town and the Suburbs, might by the Parliament be united into Four Divisions; viz. St. Peter's, St. Runwald's, and St. Martin's in the first Division; St. Mary's at the Walls, Holy Trinity, and St. Giles's in the second; St. Nicolas, All-Saints, and St. James in the third; And St. Leonard's, St. Mary Magdalen, and St. Botolph's into the fourth; And that the Recorder should be intreated to move the Parliament for the uniting of the said Parishes respectively as aforesaid; and to give directions what was necessary in or about the attaining thereof (f). But this design came to nothing.

Another method taken, to raise a tolerable maintenance for the Clergy of this Town, hath been by a Rate upon Houses and Stocks. Thus we find, Feb. 23, 1646, it was ordered (g), "That all and every the Tenants, Farmers, or Occupiers of Messuages and Tenements within this Towne and the Liberties thereof, (that had not Lands belonging to them which paid Tithes) should yearly pay and allow after the rate of Twelve-pence in the pound, according to the Rent they paid for their houses, towards the maintenance of such godly orthodox Ministers that should preach the word of God, and administer the Sacraments, according to the Laws of this realm, or ordinances of parliament: and that the Mayor should write to the Recorder, to entreat him to procure an Ordinance of Parliament for the confirming thereof." Accordingly an ordinance passed in 1650 (h), intituled, An Act for the more frequent preaching of the Gospel, and better maintenance of the Ministers in the Town of Colchester; wherein it was enacted, "That it shall and maie be lawful to and for the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, and Common-Council of the said Town of Colchester in Common-Council assembled, to have power, and by the said Act authorized, from time to time to tax, rate, and assess, not exceeding the yearly sum of Six hundred pounds, upon the Rents, or true yearly value of all Houses, Shops, Ware-houses, Cellars, Stables, and all other Lands and Tenements whatsoever within the said Town and the Liberties thereof, excepting the four Hamlets of Lexden, Mile-end, Greenstead, and Bere-Church, the Tax not to exceed One Shilling per ann. in the pound, as the said Houses, Shops, Ware-houses, Cellars, Stables, and other Lands and Tenements, are or may be worth to be letted and leased yearly: and so for every Ten Shillings, Six-pence per ann. And where any person or persons shall be known to imploy a great Stock in trade, the said Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, and Common-Council, shall and may, and are by the said Act authorized to assess such person or persons for his or their stock employed as aforesaid, for every Hundred pounds, Three Shillings and Four-pence."

By virtue of this Act, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council, made a Rate, or Assessment, on the Houses and Stocks, &c. according to the proportions above-mentioned (i): Those Rates were collected by some of the Inhabitants in each parish, and the Money deposited into the hands of a Treasurer, who paid, quarterly, the sum of One hundred pounds a-piece to four Ministers, appointed to officiate in the whole Town (k). But this provision ceased, or was suppressed at the Restoration.

At an Assembly, October 7, 1700, it was agreed, That Six-pence in the pound should be laid upon Houses in this Town, towards the maintenance of Ministers in the said Town; but it did not take effect.

The only effectual Augmentations to the Livings in this place, and the most likely to last, are owing to the munificence of Mr. Henry Batchelor of Colchester, yeoman; and the Rev. Mr. Moses Cook, late Rector of Hedingham-Sibill, in this County. The former, by his Will bearing date Feb. 3, 1646-7, "bequeathed to three Preachers in Colchester, the sum of Threescore pounds a year, to be equally paid and divided between them by quarterly payments, so long as they should continue preaching in Colchester: Which threescore pounds (as Mr. Batchelor goes on in his said Will) is to be paid out of all those my Rents and Profits of all those my Copyhold Lands and Tenements in South-Minster and Woodham-Ferris, by Mr. Thomas Waterhouse, Mr. William Aylett, Mr. John Furlie junior, and William Stilliman, whom I make Feoffees in (e) Assembly-books. Sept. 16, 1650.

(f) Assembly-books.

(g) Assembly-book, Sept. 16, 1650.

(h) Book of Assemblies.

(i) Book of Assemblies.

Sept. 24, D^o Dec, 15, 1651, July 25, 1653.

(k) Ibid.

[C] The usual offerings at the Churching of Women, have either been dropt by the carelessness of former Incumbents; or else seem to be now taken by the Parish-clerks.

[D] 'Tis true there are tolerable Subscriptions and Contributions in some of the Parishes.

“ trust to receive the Rents and Profits of the “ said Lands, and to dispose of the same ac“ cording to this my Will. And, in case any “ of the said Three Ministers shall dye, or de“ part the Towne of Colchester, and shall not “ inhabite and continue preaching in Colchester “ as aforesaid, then my will and meaning is,
 “ that the said Thomas Waterhouse, William “ Aylett, John Furlye, and William Stilliman, “ or the greatest part of them, shall choose any “ one, two, or three Ministers in the roome of “ him or them so dying or departing, and not “ continuing common Preachers in the Towne
 “ of Colchester: And the said Threescore “ pounds to be devided and payd equally to “ such Ministers as shall from tyme to tyme
 “ be chosen by my said Feoffees, or the great“ est part of them, or their Executors shall “ choose, so long as they shall continue com“ mon Preachers of God's word in Colchester
 “ [E].”

As for the Rev. Mr. Moses Cook's Benefaction, it is comprised in the following clause of his Will. — “ I give also to my wife the “ Rents and Profits of the Farm called Hunt-“ mans, in Foxearth, during life, and from and “ after her decease I give and devise the said “ Messuage of Huntmans, with all the Barns, “ Houses, Stables, Buildings, Yards, Meadows, “ Lands, Pastures, Woods, and Wood-grounds “ thereunto belonging, now in the tenure of “ George Parsley, to the Governors of the “ Bounty of Queen Ann for the augmentation “ of the maintenance of the Poor Clergy, and
 “ to their Successors for ever, In confidence “ that the said Governors will please to order
 “ the Sum of Eight hundred pounds out of “ their Revenue to be added thereto and laid “ out for the augmentation of the Rectory of “ St. James's, with any other three Churches “ in the large Towne of Colchester which the “ Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of London “ shall appoint.”

The Parishes of St. Peter's, St. Martin's, St.
 Giles's, and St. Runwald's, do partake of Queen Anne's Bounty; but we shall give a more particular account thereof under those respective parishes.

(V) See Domesday above; and the Record thereto annexed.

[E] The Lands in Woodham Ferris are not Copyhold, but they pay a Quit-rent of six Shillings. They consist only of Nine Acres, on which there is a House and a Barn.
 The farm goes by the name of Creep-hedge-farm. —
 The Lands in Southminster, known by the name of Leigh-heath, Leigh-house, Leet-hine, or Leet-hyth, are Copy-hold, at the will of the Lords; (the Governors of the Charter-house) and pay a Quit-rent of 2*l.* 10*s.* 9*d.* ½. They contain only Seventy-four acres. But the rent of the whole Estate is now so much fallen, that it doth not amount at present to above 35*l.* per annum, which, with repairs, taxes, &c. doth not yield to the Three preaching Ministers that enjoy it now, above Eight or Nine pounds a year, a-piece, one year with another. — The Feoffees that have been admitted to the Copy-hold, are as follows.
 June 26, 1647, William Aylett. May 23, 1670, William Aylett, son of the former. June 10, 1671, Tho. Waterhouse, and John Furlye. — Tho. Waterhouse, Richard Daniel, Robert Carr. June 1, 1704, Tho. Ruse, Benjamin Cock. — Joseph Thurston, Esquire. May 26, 1730, Benjamin Cock, son of the former. June 1740, Daniel

S E C T. I.

St. MARY's at the Walls.

THIS Parish took its name from the Church, which is dedicated to St. Mary the Virgin. 'Tis generally called in Records
 St. Mary's at the Walls, ad murum, or muros; in contradistinction to the parish of St. Mary Magdalen, and because the Church stands near the South-west corner of the Walls of the Town.

The Site of it was part of the Barony of the Bishop of London (b); for which reason the Rectory hath been all along in the collation of the Bishops of that See: And it is subject to them, and their Commissaries; being wholly exempt from the Archdeacon's jurisdiction, to whom it pays neither Procurations nor Synodals.
 It stands charged 10*l.* for First-fruits in the King's books: And pays 4*s.* 6*d.* to the Bishop for Procurations, only when he visits.

The parish contains sixty-two Houses, Tenements, or Families within the Walls, and 174 without; and runs, West and South-west, about a Mile into the Country: but most of the land is Half-year ground. The chief part of it lyes within the manor of the Corporation; except what was anciently the Bishop of London's estate; and except also the north side of Crouch-street (from the late General Price's Stables to the Spittle or Almshouses) that is within the manor of Lexden, and held of the same by copy of Court-roll. But two Houses about the middle thereof, now possessed by the widow Spencer's heirs have been made free.

In 1692, three hundred and ninety-six persons were rated in this parish to the Poll-tax.

The streets and lanes in this parish, are,
 Crouch-street, Head-street, except the Northeast part from Culver-lane, to the Corner of the High-street; part of the South-side of Culver-lane as far as Mr. Seaman's walk; the greatest part of Gutter-street, and of Sir Isaac Rebow's walk; St. Mary's, and Church, Lanes; Buttlane, Maldon-lane, except a few houses in each,

Cock, Gent. — Martin, his son, the present and only Fe-offee.

It was some time before this Benefaction was settled according to the intent of the Giver. For I find the following entries in the Assembly-books. Jan. 16, 1653-4,
 It was ordered, That Mr. Chamberlain should forthwith lay out and disburse, towards the charges of the suit for the recovering of Mr. Batchelor's gift to the three Ministers within this Town, Ten pounds, which is to be repaid by the Feoffees upon the receipt of the first Rent, after the Gift is recovered. June 2, 1656, It was ordered,
 That — shall take care and inquire after the business of Mr. Batchelor's Gift, and to certify the House how the Case stands, and what they think fit to be done concerning the same, at the next meeting of this House. June 28, 1660, It was desired, That Mr. Recorder be intreated to endeavour to settle Mr. Batchelor's Gift upon the Town, so that the Rents of the Lands given to the three preaching Ministers may be disposed of according to the will and intent of the donor.

which

which are in the parish of Holy-Trinity; and the upper Balkon-lane.

The Church stands pleasantly in the highest part of the Town; and, as it is now, was rebuilt in the year 1713, and beginning of 1714. The old Church stood more in the middle of the Church-yard; the North-wall of it running parallel with that of the steeple; which then was at the North-west corner of the Church. How it was demolished, you have an account above (m). It remained in ruins till the year above-mentioned; when, at the instance of the Rev. Mr. Robert Middleton then Rector, and the encouragement of Sir Isaac Rebow, Knt. Joseph Thurston, Esquire, and other principal Inhabitants of the parish, the repairing of it was undertaken: But this not being found easily practicable, it was new built as it now stands. The petition to the Lord Chancellor for obtaining a Brief, bears date July 15, 1709 (n) [F]. And the Brief being soon after obtained, there was collected on it in the years 1710, 1711, &c. the sum of 1595*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* to which were added the Benefactions of the Right Reverend Father in God Henry Compton Lord Bishop of London, Sir Isaac Rebow, Knt. his son Lemyng Rebow, and Joseph Thurston, Esquires, who gave Fifty pounds a-piece (o). But there were considerable deductions [G]. However, the main article, Money, being thus collected together, Mr. John Price, an eminent architect of Richmond in Surrey, was applied to; and he gave in, on the first of April 1713, a draught and estimate amounting to 1250*l.* but, after some abatements and alterations, he agreed for 1154*l.* The Agreement thus made was immediately put in execution; for the work was begun in May 1713, and carried on with so much quickness and alacrity, that the new Church was opened on the 25th of March following, with divine Service, and a Sermon on Psalm cxxii. 1. It is a plain neat Church, but not so substantial as ancient edifices of that kind. The Dimensions of it will best appear by an abstract of the Estimate of the Scantlings and other particulars given in the note [H].

Besides the sum of 1154*l.* paid, as above, to the Builder, there was 180*l.* expended in pewing the Church, and repairing part of the Steeple, which was raised by a Rate of four shillings and six-pence in the pound on the inhabitants (p). Paving the Steeple and Alley cost moreover sixty pounds eight shillings and seven pence: which was raised by a Rate of eighteen-pence in the pound (q). The marble Font cost three pounds ten shillings, and the Cover to the same ten shillings (r). Next the Church-yard was levelled, in the year 1714 (s), and handsome gravel Walks made all round the Church, planted on each side with lime-trees; which being kept cut, are very shady and pleasant in summer: And they being the best Walks about the whole Town, were resorted to by people of the best fashion. The charge of making them, and planting the Trees, came to sixty-five pounds seventeen shillings and four-pence (l). In 1729 the steeple was raised Twelve foot with brick, as it now is; the charge of which with leading, &c. amounted to two hundred thirty four pounds nine shillings and two-pence [I], I (m) See Chapt. of the Siege.

that Church in the Parish-Chest.
(r) Book of the Trustees, as above.

(n) Sessions-Rolls Midsummer, 1709.

(o) Book of the Trustees for rebuilding

(p) See Parish-book, Sept. 8, 1713.
(s) See Parish-book, Aug. 16, 1714.

(q) Ibid. March 11, 1714.
(t) Parish book.

[F] The design then was, to build a much grander Church than the present one is: For the Petitioners set forth, "That the Charge of rebuilding the said Church would, upon a moderate computation, amount to the sum of six thousand one hundred and fifty-three pounds and upwards." Compare this with the Charges of it above.

[G] These Deductions were as follows.

1. The Charges of obtaining the Brief, &c. from the Lord Chancellor, &c. of which these were the particulars.

Petition to the Lord Chancellor	—	00	06	08
Fiat to his Secretary	—	38	10	00
To his Clerk	—	00	05	00
Mr. Roberts the Patentee, his fees	—	28	03	02
To his Clerk	—	00	05	00
Paper and printing the Briefs	—	21	10	00
Examining the Proof	—	00	05	00
Signing the Briefs	—	10	15	00
Bishop's letter, paper, and printing	—	08	11	00
Deputations for 24 Collectors	—	01	16	00
Boxes, Porters, and carriage to Stafford, and back to London	—	02	05	00
Register, and Printers porter	—	00	10	00
Solicitor	—	15	07	06
Drawing and ingrossing the Bond	—	00	05	00
Stamping the Briefs	—	14	05	00
Register's Servant	—	00	05	00
Letters in the whole	—	01	00	00
		144	04	04
Mr. Timothy Cooke charges also for a Book of accounts	—	04	06	00

Total 148 10 04

2. To the Collectors for collecting 10,671 Briefs, at 8 d. a-piece; and 245 in London, at 1 s. 6 d. each	374	01	06
3. Carrying the Bishop of London's circular letter	10	00	00
4. The Charges of Timothy Cook, one of the Trustees, and chief managers	14	08	00

Total, according to Mr. Cook's comput. 546 19 10

N. B. The Fees are now lower at most of the offices and the charge of collecting each brief is but 3*d.*

[H] The Building consists of a Nave and two aisles; and is in length, on the north and south sides, seventy feet, besides the break of the Chancel, which is ten feet by fifteen: The east and west ends are fifty feet wide on the outside. The foundation of the whole Building, is five feet deep for the cell of the front-doors; three bricks thick on the north and south sides; and two and a half at the east and west ends. The north and south walls are two bricks and a half thick; and the eastern and western but two bricks. And the walls all round are eighteen feet high, from the cells to the under side of the Plates of the Roof. There are in it nine regular windows, besides small round ones in the roof. And at the West end there is a Gallery.

[I] From the Bills in the Parish-Chest. Jos. Thurston, Esquire, left a Legacy of 25*l.* for that use; and Timothy Cooke, 5*l.* See Parish-book, Nov. 2, 1719, and April 14, 1729.

pass over some lesser sums laid out on the Church about the same time [K]. There is here but One Bell.

Within the Chapel of St. Thomas the Martyr in this Church (u), a Chantry was founded and well endowed by Joseph Elianore, in 1348, of which we shall give a full account below (w). There belonged to it a little House, of one room above and one below, called the Chapel or Chantrie-house; which stood adjoining (x) to the North side of the Church, in length a-cross the present walk between the Church and the Parsonage, and reaching from the place where is now the South-gate of the Parsonage-garden to the North-door of the Church. Some persons not long ago remembered it standing.

In 1514 there was a Design of uniting the Churches of St. Mary's and St. Nicolas, of which You will find an account under St. Nicolas, from Pope Leo's Bull obtained for that purpose.

The Parsonage-house of St. Mary's stands on the North side of the Church, directly behind, and in some respects too near it. But it hath a beautiful Prospect, on the West and North-west, for several miles into the Countrey. It was, I presume, beat down, or at least very much damaged during the Siege. The two Parlours, with the two Chambers, and Closet, over them, were built at the charge of Mr. Joseph Powel, Rector. The West end was rebuilt in 1739, by the present Incumbent, who hath also made some other improvements. The Barn stood formerly within the Garden, in the very place where is now the Avenue to the House. It was removed to where it stands at present by Mr. Powell; who pulled down at the same time Two Houses in St. Mary's-lane, adjoining Easterly to the little one still standing there, and ranging even with the same. The Front of them came out as far as the Pales of the Barn-yard do now, if not further (y).

The Glebe belonging to this Rectory, is in Ten small different parcels; and some at a considerable distance from the others; which is very inconvenient, and renders it not so valuable as it would otherwise be.

For a List of the Incumbents, I shall in this parish, as I design to do in the rest, refer the reader to Mr. Newcourt's Repertorium Ecclesiasticum: Only I shall continue his Lists down to the present time, and insert such particulars as may not have come to the knowledge of that most useful and industrious man.

Jordan Aignell or Augnell was Rector in 1286 (z).

Adam atte Welle, Rector in 1310 (a).

Richard de Borham, Rector in 1330 (b).

John Beltesford, in 1361, &c. (c).

John Canon, in 1403 (d).

Thomas Wilkinsoh.

John Walfare Rector between Hugo Allen and George Archer [L].

William Boissard put into the room of John Stephens, in 1644, by the Parliament's Commissioners.

Nom. Reg.

Libr.

Compton	(e) David Kenneir cl. 26 [M]	Feb. 1697, per mort. Powell.	Episc.
	(f) Robert Middleton A. M.	1707, per resign. Kenneir.
Gibson	(g) John Carleton D. D. 29 Mart.	1735, per mort. Middleton.	Lond.
	(h) Philip Morant A. M. 9 Mart.	1737, per mort. Carleton.

I intended at first to have set down, at the end of each Parish, an Account of the Monuments and Monumental Inscriptions in the respective Churches: But fearing lest they should appear tedious to some readers; and imagining on the other hand, that a total omission of them might be reckoned a defect: I have therefore chosen to place them together in the Appendix.

In the late Crouched-Friers within this parish, formerly resided the family of Stephens (i). John Stephens, Esq; Counsellor at Law, and Justice of Peace and of the Quorum, died 10 Febr. 1620. His Son, John Stephens, Esq; also a Counsellor at law, died April 28, 1625 (k). The heirs of that family are seated at Clower-wall in Gloucestershire. The Family's arms, are; Per Chevron, azure and ermine; in chief, two eagles displayed or. Crest, an Eagle towering, or, feeding on a lion's jambe erased, Gules.

Harbottle Grimston Esq; having bought the site of the same House, June 22, 1637, of James Barker, made it also the place of his residence. He was the son of Harbottle Grimston, born at Bradfield near Manningtree in this County, created a Baronet Novemb. 25, 1612, and a Free-burgess of Colchester in 1623 (l). He was also a Knight. Harbottle, the son, was bred up to the law, and being chosen one of the representatives for this Burgh in 1639, and 1640, spoke vehemently against those grievances which were then complained of. But when he saw worse Grievances thrust into the information of old persons.

(u) Bishop Fitz-James's Register.

(y) From the information of some old persons; and from the Rev. Fr. Powell, the said Mr. Powell's son.

rot. 21.

(b) Oath-book, p. 3.

(c) Ibid. p. 38.

(d) Ex antiquissimo Decimario.

(e) v. Abberton.

(f) v. Lagenhoo.

(g) v. Aldham.

(h) v. Shellow-bowells.

(i) R. Symonds's Collect. Vol. I. fol. 439.

(k) See Epitaphs in St. Mary's in the Appendix.

(l) Rot. Cur. i. Car. I. and List of Baronets.

[K] In April 1728, there was expended for leaden Gutter-pipes to the Church, 12*l.* 17*s.* 1*d.* And in April 1729, for putting up Bishop Compton's Arms into the Chancel window, and leading the same, 0*l.* 12*s.* 0*d.*

[L] This appears from the following entry in the parish Register, under the year 1616.

Johannes Walfare hujus olim Ecclesiæ Rector, quo Rec-tore ipse jam Ecclesiæ hujus Minister sacri fontis lavacro tinctus fui, anno ætatis suæ septimo supra octogesimum, & die mensis Junii decimo quinto, ex corpore hujus domicilio emigravit, cujus ossa matri terræ reddita & reliqua juxta funebria peracta die prædicti decimo septimo.

[M] And not the 6th as Mr. Newcourt hath it; for Mr. J. Powell did not dye till Feb. 17.

room of those which had been pretended to be redressed with so great an effusion of blood; especially after the murder of K. Charles I. and his House here having been burnt and much damaged during the siege, he quitted his place of Recorder of this Town, and went and travelled beyond sea (m). Afterwards, promoting the restoration of K. Charles II. he was chosen Speaker of the Healing Parliament April 15, 1660 (being one of the Representatives for this Burgh, which he continued to represent till his decease) and in the November following was constituted Master of the Rolls; which honourable office he discharged with great abilities and integrity, till his death in 1683. The present Lord Viscount Grimston, is Sir Harbottle's great grandson, by his eldest daughter, Mary, the wife of Sir Capel Luckyn, of Messing-hall, Bart. The Arms of Grimston, are, Argent, on a fesse sable, three mullets of six points pierced argent, in the dexter chief one spot of ermine.

In a very good House, just within Head-gate in this parish, lived also the late Sir Isaac Rebow. His ancestors came originally from the Low-Countries, and employed themselves in the Bay-Trade, and Merchandizing; whereby they acquired a plentiful fortune [N]. On the 27th of March 1693, Sir Isaac was knighted by King William, whom he had then the Honour to entertain in this House; as he did afterwards on the 29th of October following, and the 19th of October 1700. Sir Isaac was one of the Representatives for this Borough, in all the Parliaments of K. William, in the four first of Qu. Anne, and the first of K. George I. He was also High-Steward, and Recorder; and died in September 1726. His son Lemyng Rebow Esq; died 6 Septemb. 1717. And one of his grandsons Isaac Lemyng Rebow Esq; who had this House, having married Mary, daughter of Matthew Martin Esq; and dying in 1735, left only one son, named Isaac Martin, born Nov. 28, 1731. The arms of Rebow, are, Gules, two long bows bent and inter-laced in saltier, or, fringed Argent, between four Besants, each charged with a fleur de lis, azure.

The learned Physician Dr. Gliffon was also an Inhabitant of this parish for several years (n). But he removed afterwards to London, where he died in 1677 (o).

(m) Book of Assemblies, July 16, 1649. College of Physicians proceedings, &c. in the Preface. See Oath-book, in the old Rental, fol. 87.

[N] I find the name of Rebowe in this Town in the year 1617. Rot. Cur. 15 Jac. I. rot. 18. Indentur. inter Jacob. Nevel. M^{un}. & Petrum Rebowe apprentic.

[O] Though the Manor of the Corporation is at present almost unknown and lost; yet I am persuaded that there is such a thing. At the time of William the Conqueror's Survey, a great part of this Town was a Royal Manor, and there were in it abundance of Burgenses Regis, who paid Conuetudinem, i. e. Quit-rents to the Crown, for their Houses and Lands. [See Domeſday.] In the First of K. Richard I. this Manor was still in the King's hands, as appears by the Great Roll; [Mag. Rot. 1. Ric. I. 2. a. Essex & Hertf. and T. Madox's History of the Exchequer, p. 486.] And I think he granted it soon after to the Burgesses, with some Liberties and Immunities, for which they agreed to pay a yearly Fee-farm of 42 l. which in those days was a very considerable sum. From that time the Burgesses became Lords of the Soil, as far as

SECT. II.

St. PETER'S.

ADJOINING to St. Mary's on the North and East is the Parish of St. Peter's. It begins, on the East of St. Mary's, at Culver-Lane in Head-street, taking the North-side of that lane as far as Mr. Jerem. Daniel's house; And, on the south of the same lane, the walk to Mr. Seaman's stables, the yards belonging to the White-hart and to Mr. Daniel, and also part of Mr. Whaley's.—On the north side of the High-street, it goes as far as the Queen's-head gate-way.—Then at the West end of the High-street beginning at Mr. Dawes's house, it takes in all North-hill;—and Duck lane, as far as Mr. Thomas Woodroffe's house exclusively.—Without North-gate; the Middle-burgh, except two Houses between Water-lane and the river, which are in Lexden;—And all North-street, or Cow-lane, excepting also two tenements on the West side which are in the parish of Lexden; and at the further end of that street on the East, it is parted by a little Lane from Mile-end. The Baulkon-hill, and the Lower Baulkon-lane, are also in this parish, with a few parcels of meadow, pasture, and garden-grounds, about twenty acres in all.

This parish lies in the Manor of the Corporation [O], except Twelve Tenements on the East-side of the Middle-burgh, which are within Lexden-Manor.

Many houses have been of late, pulled down in this parish, as well as in other parts of the town; However, it still contains two hundred and ninety-eight tenements, or families.

In 1692, the number of Persons rated, in St. Peter's, to the Poll-tax, was Seven hundred and seven.

In this parish, south of the Church, is the Exchange, anciently known by the name of the Red-row; which, whilst the Bay-trade flourished amongst us, used to be daily frequented by great numbers of substantial Merchants; And over it was the Dutch Bay-Hall. On the same spot, was a Building first erected about the year 1369, by one William Reigne, or Reyne; which used to pay a Quit-rent of Three Shillings a year to the Town (p). Being grown the King had it before, and could grant it to them. So that "the Manor of this, as most other great Towns, is held from the Crown by the Corporation, by virtue of "ancient Grants," (as the learned Browne Willis, Esq; expresses himself in speaking of Bedford, Notit. Parliam. vol. i. 2d Edit. p. 14.) The Bailiffs and Commonalty thus become Lords of this Royal Manor, have granted, for many years, several parcels of the Soil; to be held at the will of the Bailiffs and Commonalty by the Rod, as is evident from these among many other instances.

(n) Town-Rates. (o) Dr. Goodal's Histor. Account of the City of Colchester. (p) On account of its being built on the Town-waste.

Will. Wyot in Hundred. die Lune prox. post festum Crucis Domini, sursum reddidit in manus dictorum Ballivorum domum constructam in quadam placea quam tenuit de dicta Communitate — ad opus Joh. Baker. Habend. & tenend. per Servic. xii. d. annuatim ad Hokeday. Et predicti Ballivi liberaverunt eidem Johanni seſſinam de dicta domo per virgam. Oath b. p. 1.

The Monument of George Sayer Esq.

To Face p. III.

*To the Rev.^d GEORGE SAYER D.D.
Dean of Bocking, & Archdeacon of Durham,
This plate is most humbly inscribed.*

very ruinous; it was repaired, about the beginning of K. Henry VIII's reign, by John Dowall Prior of the Monastery of the Holy Cross here. In consideration whereof, the Bailiffs and Commonalty granted it, anno 1517, to that House for ever (q). But, upon the dissolution of the Monasteries, it came again into the hands of the Corporation. Archbishop Harfnet's Library was at first placed at the East end of it: But, in 1668, the two Chambers wherein it used to stand (and from whence it was removed in 1664) were lett to Jonas Whale a baker, with the room under the stair-case, for twenty-one years: Upon condition, that he should take up the floor that was then in the Red-row, and pave it entirely with good and substantial Purbeck-stone. And with liberty to erect a building on the waste, now taken down. And pay, at the same time, ten shillings to the Chamberlain, towards setting up the King's-Arms in the Red-row, where they formerly were (r).

Near this Exchange, in the High-street, stands a Pump, called King Coel's Pump; which is repaired by some of the neighbours, who are thence supplied with water [P]. But there is no proof of the Well's being of so ancient a date as King Coel.

There was formerly a Water-mill near North-bridge, which is now down (s). Hence we learn the reason why Middle-mill was so called; viz. because it stood between this, and East-mill.

Thomas Duke of Norfolk had lands in this parish in Queen Elizabeth's reign, named Senf-downe (t).

The families of Sayer, and Browne, made anciently a considerable figure in this parish.

John Sayre, Alderman of this town, died Feb. 14, 1509. John Sayer, his son, died in the year 1563 (u). George Sayer, son of this last, was an Alderman of this Corporation (w); and one of the Bailiffs, in the years 1540, 1546, 1552, 1555, 1559, 1563, 1567. He died 19 May, 1577; possessed of several estates in this county [2]. By his first wife, Agnes daughter of Thomas Westden (which died in Novemb. 1556) he had four sons and three daughters. His second wife was Frances daughter of Thomas Sammon, by whom he had no children (x).—Richard his eldest son died in September 1610, having married first Alice Spooner, by whom he had one son, who left no issue: and secondly Ellen Lawrence, widow, by whom he had a daughter named Jane (y).—George, the second son, who departed this life 3 July 1596, married Rose, daughter of William Cardinall, of Great Bromley, by whom he had, among other children,—Thomas, seated at Bowton in Suffolk.—His younger son, Sir George, was of Colchester, and Aldham; and dyed in 1630. He married Dorothy, daughter of John Higham, of Norfolk, buried at Aldham, in 1651, aged 84, and had by her these six children. 1. John. 2. Anne. 3. Susan. 4. Higham. 5. Francis. 6. Richard.—John Sayer Esq; the eldest son, took to wife Hester, daughter of Robert Honeywood of Kent Esq; and had by her George, who was knighted; and a daughter named Dorothy, married to John Barnaby of Colchester. John Sayer Esq; dying in August 1658, aged about 70, was buried at Aldham. Sir George Sayer, Knt. his son, married Jane by whom he had Elizabeth-Charlot, baptized 13 April, 1647, and Esther, born 29 September, 1650. He dyed 11 July, 1650, and is buried at Aldham, with an epitaph.

The Arms of Sayer, were Gules, a chevron between three martlets, argent. A chief ermine. Crest, an Arm sleeved, cuffed, and scarfed, or and gules; holding in the hand proper a wolf's head erased, vert.

Next, as to the Browne-Family: Stephen Browne of Middlesex, had issue, Stephen, Hugh, and Walter. This last was seated at Higham in Suffolk; and by Eleanor Turner had Thomas Browne of Colchester, who married Agnes daughter of John Tuke of the same place. His son and heir, John Browne, married first Florentia daughter and heir of John Chartsey; and secondly Helen daughter of William Knightbridge. By the first he had William—Thomas—Richard and John. Clementia—Margaretta—and Catharine, wife of William Symnell.

Richard, the third son, was a Knight, and one of the Clerks of the Green-cloth. He seated himself at Dartford in Kent.

William, the eldest son and heir, married Margaret daughter of Robert Leeche, by whom he had six sons and two daughters. He died Jan. 20, 1572, and Margaret his wife died the 24th of September following (z). Robert, the second son, fixed at Colchester, and was twice married; 1st. to Anne daughter of George Sayer aforesaid, Esq; by whom he had Robert, that died with-

(q) Ex Indenturâ dat. 1 April Henric. Octavi 9°. (r) Assembly-Books. Novemb. 3, 1631, and June 7, 1664. and 17 August 1668. And Lease to J. Whale, among the Town-Records. (s) Rot. Cur. 3 Edw. III. rot. 3, &c. (t) Taxatio x. and xv. 8° Jacob. I. (u) Epitaphs, in the Appendix. (w) Oath-book, p. 207. (x) Epitaphs, in the Appendix. (y) Ibid. (z) See Epitaphs in St. Peter's, in the Appendix.

Ballivi & Communitas ville concesser. extra manus suas — per virgam, unam parcellam terre cum stall. carn. Reddend—imperpetuum 2s. pro omni servicio. Ib. p. 99. — Unum tenementum situat. juxta portam Castri Colchestr. ad voluntat. Domini per virgam. Redd. per ann. 2d. ibid. p. 100. — Quendam placeam vacuam terre per virgam secundum consuetudinem Burgi ville, Reddend. inde annuatim Ballivis & Communitati ville 4d. Ib. p. 101. There are numberless other like Instances in that valuable Volume.

[P] March 8, 1655. It was ordered at an assembly, that if the Parishioners of St. Peter's did well and truly repair King Coel's Pump near the Red Row, and keep it in repair, they should be paid Five pounds by the Chamberlain out of the Town-revenues.

[2] Namely,—The Manor of Little Fordham, in Aldham parish, called otherwise Bourchier's Hall.—A House and Land called Wotton's or Norton's; and certain Lands in Gestingthorp, Sible and Castle-Hedingham, and Great and Little Maplestead. The Manor of Abbots late belonging to Waltham Holy Cross, lying in Stanway, Fordham, Copford and Lexden.—The Manor of Motes, with lands belonging to it in Colchester, Lexden, Stanway, Fordham, and West-Bergholt; holden of the Earl of Suffex.—Messuage and Lands called Burdes, in Lexden; holden of the same Earl.—Four Messuages, and five Chambers, in Colchester.—An House and Water-mill, called Newbridge, with 12 acres of land, in West-Bergholt.—Hall-House in Thorington, belonging to St. John's College in Cambridge.—Two Messuages and Lands, called Marsh-house and Gryckes, lands called Ellyots, 16 acr. in Reads grove, and 12 acres of arable in Riddlestand feild, in St. Olith and Weeley, holden of the manor of Frowick belonging to John Aldrich, Gent.—Two Messuages, and lands called Bennets and Wymerks in Purley and Mundon.—The Manor of Odwell. These two last holden of the Queen. Inquisit. 19 Elizab. 22 Octob.

out issue; and 2dly. to Margaret daughter of ——— Vesey, of Weeks-Priory in this County. By this his second wife, he had William, his son and heir, who married Margaret daughter of John Prettyman of Thorndon in Suffolk, Gent. and had issue Robert, who was aged sixteen in 1634 — and a daughter named Rosa (a).

The Arms of Browne, were, Gules, a Griffin sejant, or; a Chief indented, or and ermine. Crest, On a Torse, or and gules, a Falcon proper, beaked and bellied, or; seizing on a fowl's jambe erased at the thigh top, or.

The Church of St. Peter's consists of a tyled nave or body, and two aisles (b). And the Chancel hath a north Chapel. The Tower stood between the Church and Chancel, supported by large pillars, till 1758, when it threatening ruin to the Church, it was taken down. Then the Church was thoroughly repaired with the help of a Brief; and the Tower afterwards built at the west end. In it is a good ring of eight Bells. In the year 1692, this Church was very near being thrown down by an Earthquake, as Mr. Robert Dickman then Vicar, hath noted in the Parish-Register [R]. But to return; the Church of St. Peter's is looked upon as the principal in the Town, wherein the Episcopal and Archidiaconal Visitations are held; and where the Mayor and Commonalty go to divine Service, on Sundays, and other solemn occasions [S]. There is in it an Organ, the only one in Town.

This Church was in being before the Norman Conquest, or Acquisition. It was held, in Edward the Confessor's reign, by two Priests, for a small quit-rent (c): And there were adjoining, or belonging, to it some parcels of ploughed land, and meadow, and a mill. But, after the Conquest, Robert Fitzralph of Hatinges, claimed three parts of it, and Eudo Dapifer had the fourth (d). In whom the Patronage of it originally was, we do not find. But, after the foundation of St. Botolph's Priory, it was given to that Convent, and continued in their gift as a Rectory till the year 1318. But, in that year, the Prior and Canons petitioned Richard Newport Bishop of London, to appropriate the same to their Priory, setting forth, That, by reason their profits, pensions, and portions were unjustly detained; that more contributions were imposed upon them than usual; that the charges of their hospitality were immoderate, on account of the great concourse of people to the town and castle of Colchester; and by reason of the grievous scarcity, which, for two years past and more, had miserably afflicted the whole land; they were greatly in debt. — The Bishop dying before he had considered of their petition, they applied themselves to Stephen Gravesend, his immediate successor; who being thoroughly satisfied with the contents of their petition, did, on the 16th of January 1318, appropriate this Church, with its appertinances, to the said Prior and Convent, and their Successors, to be converted to their own use, and be for ever possessed by them, reserving a power to himself to ordain a Vicarage here, and to endow it with a convenient portion according to the revenues of the Church (e). And from thenceforth, the Priors and Canons presented to it as a Vicarage.

Upon the dissolution of the Monasteries, K. Henry VIII. granted to Sir Thomas Audeley, in the year 1536, the site of St. Botolph's Priory, &c. and the Advowsons of the Parish-Churches of St. James, St. Peter, St. Martin, and Mile-end Colchester (f). Sir Thomas gave them to his brother Thomas, who was seated at Bere-Church within the Liberties of this Corporation: And the three first continued in his posterity [T] till after 1700, when Henry Audeley Esq; sold them to Bishop Compton, who intended to have settled them upon his Bishopric of London. But not doing it, his Executor, General Hatton Compton, sold them to Bishop Robinson; and St. Peter's and St. Martin's continued in the gift of his widow Mrs. Emma Robinson, till her decease. The Advowson of them belongs now to Bowater Vernon Esq;

Before the Reformation, there was a Chantry in this Church, founded by Richard Heynes: And a Gild of St. John's, called Jesus Masse; of both which an account will be given below (g).

There are two Sermons on Sundays in this Church; and Prayers on Wednesdays and Fridays, and some Holidays, at eleven o'clock: When the Revenues, or the Congregations, were a little better, here used to be Prayers every day.

This Church was rated in the King's Books 10*l.* for First-fruits, and 1*l.* for Tenths: From both which it was discharged by the Act 5th of Queen Anne (h).

In the year 1574, Nicolas Clere clothier, and William Hall woollen-draper, both inhabitants of St. Peter's, enfeoffed John Pye one of the Bailiffs, Thomas Turner one of the Aldermen of this Town, and several others, in lands, called Chamberleynes and Sprotts, in the parish and fields of Great Horkesleigh: and also in some tenements called Pages, and a croft of land thereto

(a) T. Jekyll's Geneal. MS.

(b) The word isle is derived from the French word aisle or aile, wing. (c) Elemosyna Regis. Domesday, b. We are informed, That it was a penny, which King Æthelred ordered to be paid for every Plough in England, towards the support of the Poor. Leg. Æthelred. c. i.

(d) See Domesday for Colchester, in the Appendix to Book I, N^o. 3. (e) Regist. Baudake, p. 42. Newcourt's Repertor, Eccl. Vol. II. p. 178. (f) Pat.

28 Hen. VIII. 4 prs. 186. (g) Book II. ch. v. § 1. (h) Sess. 2. c. 24.

[R] Memorandum,

That on Thursday September 8, 1692, there happened about two of the Clock in the afternoon for the space of a Minute or more an universal Earthquake all over England, France, Holland, and some parts of Germany: And particularly it was attested to me by the Masons that were then a plaistering the Steple of St. Peter's in this Town, and upon the uppermost Scaffold, That the Steple parted so wide in the midst, that they could have put their hand into the crack or cleft, and immediately shut up close again, without any Damage to the Workmen (who expected all would have fallen down) or to the Steple itself. Most of the Houses here and elsewhere shook, and part of a Chimney fell down on North-hill; and very many who were sensible of it were taken at the same time with a Giddyness in their heads for some short time. In witness of what is here related I have hereto set my hand.

Robert Dickman, Minister of St. Pet. Colchester.

[S] The Seat for the Mayor, and the Pews for the Aldermen, Assistants, and Common-Council, were made in 1701, and cost 25 l. 10 s. 8 d. Bill penes me.

[T] In 1629 the Bailiffs and Commonalty bought the next Presentation to this Living, for eight pounds. Carta penes me.

adjoining, called Pagiscroft, and a garden called Sprunt's-garden, all in Great Horkesleigh; and said in one place to contain forty acres or more, though it is not so much now;—in Trust (i). They have been possessed ever since by the Incumbents of this Church; and are now enjoyed by the present Vicar (k).

The Vicar hath also Three acres of Pasture in King's Meadow; and a field of ten acres formerly called Barbors grove, both lying in Mile-end, given by John Bryan. And an acre of Glebe in North-street, named the Golden acre: Besides the little piece without North-gate, on which formerly stood a tenement, as mentioned in Mr. Newcourt (l).

In the year 1719 Bishop Robinson augmented this Living with 200*l.* to which were added 200*l.* of Queen Anne's Bounty, of which the Vicar receives the interest. Notwithstanding which, this Vicarage affords no Income proportionable to the Duty. In 1707, it was certified to the Governours of Queen Anne's Bounty to be but 35*l.* per annum certain; the best part of which is the endowment of the Lands above-mentioned, lying in the parish of Great Horkesley.

On the east-side of the Church-yard, and adjoining thereto, is the Vicarage House, handsomely rebuilt by the present Incumbent, the Rev. Mr. William Smythies. There is behind it a little garden.

Robert Agnell, (m).

William Waryn was Rector of this parish in 1300 (n).

John de Colne, Rector in 1312 (o).

Richard ——— Vicar in 1359 (p).

Nom. Reg.
Libr.

Robinson {	Robert Turner, A. M. 24 June 1714. per mort. Benj. Smith.
Gibson {	Staunton Degg, A. M. 25 Sept. 1738. per cess. Turner.
- - - {	Thomas Halley, A. M. 13 Sept. 1739. per cess. Degge.
- - - {	William Smythies, A. M. 15 Febr. 1760, per mort. Halley.

Patroni.

Hon. Hatton Compton.
Emma Robinson. wid.
The same.

S E C T. III.

ST. RUNWALD'S.

EASTWARD of St. Peter's, and adjoining to the same in the High-street, is this Parish of St. Runwald's; so named from the Church, which is dedicated to that Saint. It is written different ways, as St. Rumbald, St. Rumbold, St. Romwold, or Rumwold (q), and sometimes St. Runwald.

As this Saxon Saint is not much known, it will be proper to give some account of him; and we have none but a legendary one. He is said to have been son to a king of Northumberland, by a Christian daughter of Penda king of Mercia. Being born at King's-Sutton, in Buckinghamshire, as soon as he came out of his mother's womb, he cryed three times, I am a Christian. Then making a plain confession of his faith, he desired to be baptized, chose his godfathers, and his own name Rumwald. He also directed, with his fingers, the standers-by to fetch him a great hollow stone for a font, which several of his father's servants tried in vain to bring, as much above their strength; till the two Priests, his designed Godfathers, did go and fetch it easily. Being baptized, he discoursed for three days of all the common-places of Popery, and having confirmed the truth of them (as the Legend pretends) he bequeathed his body to remain at Sutton one year, at Brackley two, and at Buckingham ever after. This done, he expired, and was buried in the place of his appointment; but he was chiefly honoured at Boxley, in Kent (r).

To return: This little parish, the least in Colchester, except St. Mary Magdalen's, stands in the heart of the town, and is the best situated of any for Trade. It begins, on the South-side of the High-street, at Mr. Jeremiah Daniell's house mentioned above in St. Peter's, and reaches thence eastward as far as the house inhabited by — Hooker. Culver-Lane is its southern boundary.—On the north-side of the High-street, it begins at the east end of Mr. Bernard's house, and extends from thence eastward as far as the Shoulder-of mutton-Ale-house. It hath also eight houses or dwellings in Angel-lane: And five in Magdalen-street. The whole number of houses or tenements it contains, is sixty-two. In the year 1692, two hundred and seventeen persons were rated here to the Poll-tax.

This Parish lyes in the Manor of the Corporation; and the Butchers Shambles, and other Buildings erected on the waste, pay rent or Acknowledgements to the Mayor and Commonalty.

In this Parish stands the Burgh's Court of Judicature, commonly called the Moot, or Mote, Hall, from the Saxon word mot-heal, a council-house, or place of Assembly [U]. Here the Courts are held, and all the public affairs of the Town transacted, as is related above under book I. Ch. v. § 5. The whole edifice contains, the Mote-hall itself; and, north of the same, a large room; over which is the Freemens cham-

(i) Ex Cart. penes Vicar.
but by what right is unknown.

(k) Rental of Horkess. man. Sprottysmarsh appears by this to be in other hands;
(l) Vol. II. p. 179. (m) Reg. D. Joh. Bapt. p. 270. (n) Taxatio

29 Edw. I. penes me. (o) Rotul. Tallagii 6 Edw. II. penes me. (p) Rot. Cur. 33 Edw. III. rot. 2.

(q) Oath-book, p. 4. 7. 114. 123. 167. Rot. 8 Edw. II. (r) Capgrave, Nova Legend. Angliæ, in S. Rumwold Confess. T. Fuller's Worthies, in Bucks, p. 128. Camden's Britannia, in Buckinghamshire, and Northamptonshire.

[U] It is called in Records Aula Communitatis. Rot. 48 & 49 Edw. III. rot. 19. And Guybalda. Rot. 7 Hen. V. rot. 32.

ber, where Entertainments are made upon Michaelmas-day, when the new Mayor is sworn in; and meetings are held upon particular occasions. Out of the large Room below is a lesser one inclosed, wherein the Records of the Town are kept. Adjoining to it is a Play-house.

Partly under, and partly adjoining to this Hall, is the Town-gaol: for the confinement of debtors, as also of malefactors. But part of it is now lett into shops.

Almost opposite to this Mote-hall stands the House whereon is the famous Date 1090, concerning which so much hath been written (s). 'Tis newly rebuilt; and, before it was so, the Front was judged to be between two or three hundred years old; but the inner parts were much ancients, nay reasonably deemed to be as ancient as the time of Eudo Dapifer [W]; by whom it is supposed to have been originally built, as well as the Mote-hall. For there were several arched passages in and about it, built in a very strong and elegant manner, which shewed not only signs of antiquity, but of grandeur. And there are some parts of the Mote-hall built in the same taste.

In this parish also stands a Public Building, erected about the year 1590; of which the Upper part was formerly a warehouse for wool and wool-yarn: And the lower is used for a fruit, butter, poultry, and leather-market. In this lower part, till of late years, was held a considerable wool-market, on Tuesdays; concerning which an Order, or By-law, was made June 2, 1595; and renewed and confirmed June 23, 1651; January 4, 1680, March 21, 1720-1, and September 29, 1732 (t), but now disused (u).

The Church stands inconveniently, and much in the way, in the middle of the High-street. The Body of it is of one small pace, and built of a mixture of brick and stone. But the Chancel is wholly of brick, and seems more modern than the rest. Adjoining to the Chancel is a north-aisle, or rather a Chapel; which, we find (w), was dedicated to St. Mary. In the middle of the Church stands a little wooden Turret, rough-cast with hair-mortar; formerly it had a leaded Spire [X], which, being decayed, was taken down. Here is but one Bell. The Church-yard is at a distance from the Church, on the West-side of Angel-lane.

The Patronage of this Church hath all along been in the family of Tey, or de Tey; which flourished for many generations in divers parts of this County [Y], particularly at Layer-marney and Birch (x). And is now in the worthy owner of Botingham-hall, which was part of the Tey's estate.

The Rector of this Parish had anciently a Parsonage-house in North street, or on North-hill [Z], as is evident from a passage in the Oath-book [A]. And, from a Presentment in the year 1476 [B], it may justly be inferred, that this Parish had some tenements in the same street. From the year 1544 till 1760, this Church was held by Sequestration. For though it was valued at 7*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* in Henry the Eighth's time, when the General Survey of all the Livings was made, in order to settle the First-fruits and Tenths; at present it hath nothing certain but the tithes of about seven acres of land in the Borough-field, and the interest of 600*l.* of Qu. Anne's Bounty.

Roger was Rector in 1296 (y).

John was Rector in 1375 (z).

John Faucett, Rector in 1529 (a).

He is by Mr. Newcourt called William.

Tho. Welch, B. A. 20 Feb. 1760. The King.

S E C T. IV.

St. MARTIN's.

WE come next to the Parish of St. Martin's; which on the south is bounded by St. Runwald's; on the west by St. Peter's; on the north by the Town-wall, and the meadows next to the river which are in St. Nicolas and All-saints; and on the east by the parish of St. Nicolas. It contains the greatest part of St. Martin's-lane, and Angel-lane, formerly called East and West Stockwell-streets: As also the eastern part of Duck-lane, as far as Mr. Thomas Woodroff's house inclusively; And

(s) See a full account of it, Book III. ch. iv. § 4.

B. I. ch. iv. § 1.

ann. 1533.

21 Hen. VIII.

(w) Rot. Cur. 21 Hen. VI. rot. 19.

(y) Taxatio 24 Edw. I.

(z) Rot. Cur. 49 Edw. III. rot. 15.

(t) See the Books of Assemblies, of those dates.

(x) See Oath-book, p. 170. anno 1498, and p. 196.

(a) Foul draught of Placita

[W] Mr. T. Luffkin thought, that "the backermost part of this House was an ancient Roman building." See Philosophical Transact. N^o 255. p. 287. and N^o 266. p. 667, and Lowthorp's Abridgment, Vol. I. p. 108. — In an old Deed in my possession, dat. 34 Edw. I. it is called a Stone messuage. — Totum illud Messuagium meum lapideum.

[X] Robert Pryour, in his Will, dated April 15, 1463, gave Three hundred weight of Lead, towards leading this Spire. Item lego fabricæ Campanilis Ecclesie predictæ 300 libras plumbi.

[Y] Robert de Teye had an estate in this parish in the year 1356. (Rot. Cur. 40 Edw. III. rot. 6.)

The same Robert de Teye, [or rather his Father] had lands in Fordham, Aldham, and Fering. (Inquis. 11, 13, and 34 Edw. III. p. 66. and Esc. 23 Edw. III.)

William de Teye was a Benefactor to the Priory of Lees. (Inquis. 13 Edw. III. p. 68.)

John Teye, Esq; had very great possessions in this County. (Rot. Cur. 37 Hen. VI. rot. i. et Inquis.)

Henry Teye, Esq; was Sheriff of Essex, in the 4th of K. Henry VII. and again in the 16th of the same reign, being then a Knight (Fuller's Worthies, in Essex, p. 344.) He died Sept. 9, 1510. (Inquis. N^o 59.)

Sir Thomas Teye was Sheriff of this County, in 1521: As was Thomas Tay, Esq; in the 24th of Q. Elizabeth. (T. Fuller, as above, p. 345.)

[Z] North-hill was anciently called North-street, as is undeniably manifest from several Instances in the Oath-book, and the Town-rolls.

[A] Old Rental in Oath-book, fol. 83. b. De Adam Cook de Bergholte-Sakevil. pro una placea terre ex opposito regie vie in North stret, ubi dictus Adam noviter edificavit ex opposito Rectorie Ecclesie Sti. Romwoldi; ex longitudine xv virgatarum & tertie partis unius virge de virga ferrea, 2d.

[B] Et quod Gardiani Ecclesie Sti Rumwoldi tenent unam Gutteram coram Rentariis suis in North-strete, ad nocumentum, &c. Rot. Cur. 16 Edw. IV. rot. 21.

the Quakers Alley (made within the memory of man) Ball-Alley, and part of Bucklesbury-lane.

The number of houses, tenements, or families in it, is One hundred and seventeen.

In 1692, Two hundred and seventy-nine Persons were rated here to the Poll-tax.

There are not above Four acres of Land in this Parish, besides a few Garden-grounds. By that means the Revenues of the Living are inconsiderable. They consisted, till of late, only of the interest of 600*l.* of Queen Anne's Bounty, which it obtained by rotation; and of some voluntary contributions. But with that bounty-money was purchased, in 1764, a farm in Ardley; and the Church having been repaired, divine service is performed in it every Sunday. There never was any Parsonage-house, or Glebe, belonging to the Rector [*]. In 1691 all the Lands rated in this parish to the Land-tax, were,

A Moore of 3 l.	} per annum [C].
A Meadow of 3 l.
Another Meadow of 3 l.

This Parish is within the Manor of the Corporation, from which a few Leaseholds are held; but anciently such Estates were held of the Corporation by Copy of Court-Roll.

East and West Stock-well-street in this Parish, take their names from a certain Spring rising in a little Lane between those two streets, called Stock-well, which hath been a common Well from time immemorial (b). In 1670, the Mayor and Commonalty, by their Indenture bearing date August the 15th, demised and granted for five hundred years, at the yearly rent of one penny, to Alice Lambe, Spinster, that Well or Fountain called Stockewell, situate in the common street and waste ground in the parish of St. Martin's Colchester, and so much of the waste ground on the north and west sides of that well, as might be sufficient for inclosing and fencing in of the said Well for the prevention of danger; To the intent, that the said Alice Lambe should set up a Pump in that Well, and permit and suffer the Neighbourhood thereabouts to pump and take water there for their necessary uses; they contributing and paying to the said Alice Lambe, her executors, or assigns, their competent shares and proportions towards the charge and maintenance, and repair of that Well and Pump, and of the fences thereof (c).

The Church of St. Martin's stands between East and West Stockwell-street, or Angel and Bear-lanes; the Church-yard extending to both. This Church consists of a Nave, and North Isle, both tyled. The Chancel is only of one single pace. The top of the Belfrey was damaged during the Siege (Fothergill's and Rainborough's Forts lying that way) and still continues in a ruinous condition. There is in it only one Bell; hanging a little way from the ground. The Living was in Mrs. Robinson's gift; as may be seen under St. Peter's.

Henry Tothé (not Toche as Mr. Newcourt has it) was Rector of St. Martin's in 1327 (d).

Peter Pake, not mentioned by Mr. Newcourt, was Rector of this parish in 1329 (e).

Gilbert Moyse Rector in 1392 (f).

John Grobie. He is called John Grove in the Town-Records, whereon his Will was enroll'd in 1437 (g).

John Hodgkin, M. A. 6 March 1760. . . . The King.

S E C T. V.

HOLY TRINITY.

THE parish of Holy Trinity is bounded on the west, by that of St. Mary's; on the south, by St. Giles's; on the east, by part of the same parish, and of St. Botolph's, and St. Nicolas's; And on the north, by part of the parishes of St. Nicolas, St. Runwald, and St. Peter. . . . Culver-lane, from Mr. Whaley's house to the Corner of the Lion-walk or Cat-lane, is its Northern boundary: As the same Mr. Whaley's house and garden, and the bottom of the late Sir Isaac Rebow's gardens, and thence cross the Town-wall and Gutter-street, as far as the extremity of the late Serjeant Price's gardens, terminate it on the west, and part of the south; And, on the rest of the south, Mr. William Boys's house, and yard. Cat-lane, and thence over the Town-wall as far as the sign of the Leopard, are its eastern bounds. So that it contains part of Culver-lane; all Trinity-street, the west side of Cat-lane, the lane by the Alms-houses; and part of Sir Isaac Rebow's walk, of Gutter-street, of Black-boy-lane, of Stanwell-street, and of Lodder-lane. It has also several parcels of Land; which, according to the Survey taken of them by the Parishioners, and entered in the Parish-book, amount to Sixty-nine acres.

In the year 1692, a hundred and eighty-nine persons were rated here to the Poll-tax.

The present number of Houses or Tenements in this parish, is One hundred and fourteen.

It is within the Manor of the Corporation;

(b) See Rot. 40 Edw. III. rot. 12. Will was enroll'd in 1327.

(c) Lease, among the Town-Records.

(e) Rot. Cur. 3 Edw. III. rot. 4.

(d) Oath-book, p. 1. His

(f) Oath-b. p. 67.

(g) Oath-b. p. 117.

[*] Una acra prati vocat' St. Martin's acre in King's meade, concess' Percivallo Bowes, &c. Pat. 10 Eliz. Some have fancied, that this acre was glebe, but it doth not appear that it was so.

[C] In a Taxation for a XVth, and a Xth, in the 28th of Q. Elizabeth, the following Lands were taxed in this parish.

Pro Prato Robt. Mott.	6 d.
Pro Mora nuper Tho. Reynolds	8 d.
Pro mora nuper pertinente Decano de Powles	8 d.
Pro Prato five Mora nuper le Woddhowse, nuper Winkin Greenrice	6 d.
Pro Prato vocato Marks-more, modo Mri. Mott.	8 d.

from

from which a few Tenements are held by a twenty-one years Lease: But anciently they were held by the Rod, in the nature of Copyholds.

The Church, which is dedicated to the Holy Trinity, stands in Trinity-street; and consists of a Body, and south-aisle, which is also continued the whole length of the Chancel: They are both tyled. The Tower is boarded at the top, and hath in it but one Bell.

Bere-Church, alias West-doniland, was many years a Chapel of ease to this Parish, and the Rectors of Holy Trinity were instituted to it with that Chapel annexed. But in the year 1536, the Lord Chancellor Audeley having obtained the Manor of Bere-Church-hall, and fixed his brother Thomas there, was desirous of converting the Chapel of that place into a parochial Church. For that purpose he procured the consent of William Jaye, then Rector of Holy Trinity, and of the Abbot and Convent of St. John's, patrons both of the Church and Chapel, to separate them one from another; having first obtained the King's Licence in order thereunto. And by way of recompence to the said William Jaye (who then averred, he made not Forty-three shillings a year of the profits of that Chapel) the Lord Chancellor Audeley settled on him, and his successors for ever, certain Messuage, Lands, and Hereditaments in Ardley and Dedham, or one of them [about Sixty acres in all] called Porters: and a portion of Tythes in Buers St. Mary's, being Ten shillings, parcel of the possessions of the late dissolved Priory of St. Botolph's (b).

This Church obtained also in 1739, the benefit of 200 l. of Queen Anne's Bounty, jointly with 200 l. part of a 1000 l. Legacy left by the Rev. Mr. Brooke, for the Augmentation of five small Livings in the gift of any Bishop, Dean and Chapter, or College. With those 400 l. and a sum added by the Rev. Mr. Lidgould the Rector, there was a Farm purchased at Walton in le Soken by the Governours of Queen Anne's Bounty, and settled for ever upon this Living.

The Patronage of this Church was, and continued in the Abbot and Convent of St. John's till their Suppression. Upon that it came to the Crown, and remained in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, till June 27, 1702; when George Earl of Northampton obtained it (with St. Nicolas and St. Leonard in this Town, and the Vicarage of Ewell in Surrey) from Queen Anne, in exchange for the Rectory of Chermcote, alias Serncote, in Wiltshire: And, the 19th of December following, conveyed them to his uncle Dr. Henry Compton, Bishop of London. This good Bishop, being Visitor of Balliol-college, had often declared, in the hearing of his nephew and executor General Hatton Compton, that he designed to leave those Advowsons to the College; but died without having fulfilled his intent. After the Bishop's death, the Executor endeavouring to perform what the Bishop, to his knowledge, intended; did discover, that the conveyance of the above-mentioned Churches to George Earl of Northampton was invalid and ineffectual, inasmuch as they were conveyed as Vicariages, being in realities Rectories. This being signified to George Earl of Northampton, he obtained a second Grant of Queen Anne, dated May 18, 1713, of the Rectories (not Vicariages) of St. Nicolas, St. Leonard, and Holy Trinity in Colchester: And, on the 5th of July 1714, the said Earl, and his kinsman the Hon. Hatton Compton, Esq; above-mentioned, executor of the last Will of Dr. Henry Compton Bishop of London, conveyed those three Rectories to Balliol College.

After the Church of St. Mary's had been laid in ruins, as is above related; this Church of Holy Trinity was held by Sequestration by the Rectors of St. Mary's, and served for a place of Divine Worship to both Parishes. The Rev. Mr. Middleton held it in the same manner, till his decease in 1734. But then Dennis Alanfon, B. A. obtained it from the Crown, and was inducted April 26, 1735. He dying February 4, 1735-6. The Rev.

Charles Lidgould, M. A. Rector of Little Bentley in this County, was presented by Balliol-College.

John Vivian, M. A. 30 Janu. 1766, per mort. Lidgould. Balliol Coll.

The Rector of this parish hath now no Parsonage-house. But, from the year 1349 to 1508, the Bailiffs and Commonalty used to grant to the Rector of this parish, generally during his life, a Messuage for his Rectory or Dwelling-house, opposite to the Church-yard; which was Copyhold, and held of them by the rod, at will; as appears by the entries below, taken from the Oath-book [D]. That Messuage, I guess, is now incorporated into those brick-houses which stand at the West-end of the Church in Trinity-street.

From these grants we learn the names of several Rectors of this Parish, not mentioned by Mr. Newcourt; viz.

John Goffe in 1349 (i).

(b) Pat. 28 Hen. VIII. prs. 1. and Bp. Stockesley's Register, 38.

(i) Oath-book, p. 24.

[D] Ballivi concesserunt Domino Johanni Goffe Rectori Ecclesie Ste. Trinitatis, illam Domum quam dicta Communitas habuit ex concessione Will. Maldone, Will. Bacon, Joh. Ruffel: Tenend. de Communitate quamdiu advixit.

Oath book, p. 24.

Ballivi concesserunt Ricardo Crowele Rectori Ecclesie Ste. Trinitatis Colcestrie, unum Tenementum cum suis * situatum in parochia Ecclesie Ste. Trinitatis Colcestrie videl. ex opposito Cimiterii Ecclesie predictae, videl. pro Rectoria sua Ecclesie sue Trinitatis antedictae; Tenendum de Ballivis & Communitate antedictis.

Redd. 2d. Oath-book, p. 70.

Ballivi & Communitas concesserunt extra manus suas Thome Banastre Rectori Ecclesie Ste. Trinitatis, unum Tenementum cum suis pertinentiis situatum juxta Cimiterium Ecclesie predictae, pro Rectoria Ecclesie sue predictae habendum. Tenendum de Ballivis & Communitate predicta per virgam ad voluntatem, secundum consuetudinem.

Ibid. p. 142.

The like grant was made to Tho. Kirkeham, Joh. Lokworth, and Edm. Squyer, p. 148, 149. 172.

[illegible]

J. Deane delin.

G. Vertue Sculp.

To face p. 117.

Richard Crowele, in 1393 (k).

John Mallyng in 1410 (l).

To which add, That

Robert was Rector in the 24th of K. Edward I. (m).

For the messuage above-mentioned, the Rector of H. Trinity owed suit at the Lawe-hundred Courts of this Borough (n).

This Parish had the honor of giving Birth to, and also of being the Seat and Residence of, the most learned Dr. William Gilbert, [E] author of the Book De Magnete, or of the Load-stone. And here it will not be improper to give some account of that great man. He was the son of Hierom Gylberd, Gent. born at Clare, in Suffolk, admitted a Free-burgess of Colchester in 1553 (o), and some time Recorder of the same (p). His great grandfather, Thomas Gilbert, born at Hintichissham in Suffolk, was also made a Burgess of this Town in 1428 (q). Dr. W. Gilbert was born in the year 1540 (r), and studied in both our Universities. Afterwards he travelled into foreign countries; where, probably, he had the Degree of Doctor in Physic conferred upon him, for he doth not appear to have taken it either at Oxford or Cambridge. At his return, being famed for his learning, great knowledge in Philosophy, and admirable skill in Chemistry, he became a Member of the College of Physicians, London; and also chief Physician to Qu. Elizabeth, who had so high a value for him, that she allowed him an annual pension, to encourage him in his studies. He was also chief Physician to K. James I. In 1600 he published his book, De Magnete, magneticisque corporibus, & de magno Magnete Tellure, Physiologia nova, Lond. 1600. fol. Of the Magnet, (or Load-stone) and 'magnetical Bodies, and of that great Magnet, 'the Earth.' He also left in manuscript, De Mundo nostro sublunari Philosophia nova, i. e. Of our sublunary World, which was published at Amsterdam, 1651. 4^{to}. from a MS. in the Library of Sir William Boswell, Knt. He likewise invented two most ingenious and necessary Instruments for Seamen, to find out the Latitude of any place without the help of the Sun, Moon, and Stars; made public by Tho. Blondeville at London, 1602, 4^{to}. Dr. Gilbert died Novem. 30, 1603, and was buried in the Chancel of this Church, where there is a Monument for him. By his Will, he gave all his Books in his Library, his Globes, Instruments, and Cabinet of Minerals, to the College of Physicians, London. His Picture is in the Schools-gallery at Oxford, which shews him to have been of stature tall, and of a chearful countenance. He had four brothers, Ambrose—William, a Proctor in the Arches.—Hierom—and George (s).

S E C T. VI.

St. NICOLAS.

ST. Nicolas's is the next Parish in order after Trinity. It joins to it, and to St. Runwald's, on the west; to St. Botolph's on the south; to All-Saints, on the east; and to part of this last, and to St. Martin's, on the north.—And it contains Part of the High-street, and of Culver-lane; Part of Wire-street, and of St. Martin's-lane; the east side of the Lion-walk; the George-lane, and St. Helen's-lane; the Quaker's-yard; and the Alms-houses in Bucklesbury-lane [F]. In all which there are an hundred and fifty-four houses or tenements.

By the Terrier taken in 1610, it appears, that there belonged then to this parish above twenty-two acres of land; But they have been mostly invaded by other Parishes; so that it retains at present only a piece in the Lion-walk, and a few gardens in Culver-lane, and St. Helen's-lane.

One Advantage it hath, viz. That standing conveniently, as it doth, in the High-street; it partakes, with St. Peter's and St. Runwald's, of a greater share of Trade than any other.

In 1692, Three hundred and thirty-three Persons were rated here to the Poll-tax.

This Parish lyes within the Manor of the Corporation; Only two Tenements in St. Helen's-lane, formerly parcel of the possessions of St. John's Abbey, are held of the Manor of West-Doniland, at the will of the Lord (t).

In St. Helen's-lane in this parish stands the Chapel of St. Helen, of which we shall give an Account below (u).

Not far from it in Bucklesbury-lane, stands also the Presbyterian Meeting-house, which was erected in the year 1693: And the new-built Independent Meeting, near Eld-lane.

There is an Alms-house, in Culver-lane in this parish, for Four poor persons, founded and endowed by Ralph Finch; of which you'll have a full account in Book III. ch. 2.

The Church of St. Nicolas stands on the south-side of the High street, about the middle of the Town. It consists of a Body, or Nave, tyled, and a south-aisle leaded. The Tower stands about the middle of the Body of the Church, being partly built on the north-wall. In it are Five Bells, and a Clock with a Dial projecting out into the street, which occasions This to be vulgarly called the Dial-Church. On the top of (k) Ibid. p. 70. (l) Ibid. p. 90. (m) Taxatio eod. anno. (n) Rot. Cur. 8 Hen. IV. rot. 11.

(o) Oath-book, p. 215. (p) See the Epitaphs in the Appendix. (q) Oath-book, p. 108. (r) See his Epitaph in the Appendix, and compare it with the time of his death. (s) A. Wood, Athenæ Oxon. Edit. 1721. Vol. I. col. 321. (t) Minutes of Court 11 Octob. 14 Jac. I. (u) Book II. ch. iv. § 5.

[E] So he writ his name; and not Gilbert, as it is generally written by others. His own House in this parish, anciently called Lanfeles, and Tymperley's, or Tympernell's (Old Taxation) is the same as Serjeant Price the late Recorder of this Borough lived in, and now belongs to Thomas Clamtree, Esq; George Horseman, and Frances his wife daughter and heir of Roger Tymperley, sold it in 1539 to Richard Weston, with a croft of an acre and a half, gardens, and 3 rentaries thereto adjoining, lying in Trinity and St. Mary's. Rot. Cur. 31 Hen. VIII. rot. 14.

[F] The particular Number of Houses, or Tenements in this parish, stands thus. In the High street; nineteen on the North, and seventeen on the South-side, besides the late Mr. C. Saunders's house, now the Rev. Mr. Kilby's. Eleven in Culver-lane, exclusive of R. Finche's Alms-houses: One in the Lion-walk: Three in the Church-yard: Seventeen in Wire street, Two in St. Martin's lane: Eleven in the George-lane: Fifty-one in St. Helen's-lane: Eight in the Quakers-yard: And the six Alms-houses in Bucklesbury-lane. That is, in all, a hundred and fifty-four Houses or Tenements.

G g the the Tower there is a small Bell in a lantern, for the Clock. About sixty years ago, the Tower being grown ruinous, a workman from London was employed to repair it. Accordingly he began; but, one day, as he was gone to dinner, the Tower fell upon the Body of the Church, and the Chancel, and beat the roof of both in. In 1721, the west-end of the Church was repaired, and new-pewed, at the charge of 68*l*. But the east-end, and the Chancel, still continue ruinous. A new Belfrey, built with timber and boards painted, was erected in 1729, in the manner described above, of which the charge amounted to 43*l*. (w). There are prayers in this Church daily at three o'clock in the afternoon; and one Sermon on Sundays.

This Rectory has been held many years by Sequestration, as it is at present.

The Rector hath a pretty good Parsonage-house in the High-street, close to the west-end of the Church. That part of it which joyns to the Church, and stands over the passage into the Church-yard, was repaired by the Parish in 1695, as appears by an inscription on the top of that passage. Besides the Rent of this House, the Rector hath at present no other certain Revenue, but depends upon Contributions.

There was, in 1514, a Design of uniting this Church with that of St. Mary's, as appears by the Note below [G].

S E C T. VII.

ALL-SAINTS or ALL-HALLOWS.

THE Parish of All-Saints, so named from the Church, which is dedicated to All the Saints in general, comes next in order. On the west, it is bounded by St. Nicolas's; on the south, by St. Botolph's; on the east, by St. James's, and part of St. Botolph's; and on the north, by Mile-end. It comprehends a good part of the High-street; namely, on the north-side of it, from Mrs. Duffield's house inclusive, to East-gate, and on the south-side of the same, from the sign of the Sea-horse to Mr. Wegg's stable-yard: Moreover it contains part of Queen-street, and of Culver-lane. The number of houses or tenements therein, is only a hundred and fourteen, because the Buildings do not stand so close as in other parts. But it hath several parcels of Land, in which the quantity of acres returned in the year 1595 was one hundred and ninety-five, and in 1599, an hundred and forty-three.

It is within the Manor of the Corporation, which receives Quit-rents for buildings and encroachments upon the waste. But some houses in Culver-lane are within the Manor of Shaw's.

In 1692, Two hundred and eighty-eight persons were rated in this parish to the Poll-tax.

The Castle is extraparochial, as hath been observed above in the Description of it; but it is taxed in this parish, together with Sheep's-end field, and the Castle-Bailey.

Sir John Shawe, who distinguished himself by his attachment to the Royal cause during Oliver Cromwell's Usurpation, lived in this parish. He was the son of John Shawe of Colchester, Gent. by Mary his wife daughter of ——— Lufkyn, of Ardley (x). Sir John being brought up to the Law, was, at the Restoration, made Recorder of Colchester; which he resigned 12 Nov. 1677. In the years 1659, 1660, and 1661, he was chosen one of the Representatives in Parliament for this Borough (y): And died in 1690, aged 73 (z). By his Lady, Thamar, daughter and heir of Samuel Lewis of Royden in Suffolk, Esq; he had issue—Sir John, his eldest son and heir.—Samuel, who died April 16, 1677.—Thomas, Rector of Greenstead, and Great Holland: He died May 3, 1692, aged 40.—Jeremy, father of Gabriel Shaw, Esq; of Thorpe. The daughters were—Thamar—Mary, mother of Joseph Thurston, Esq; late Recorder.—Abigail—Penelope, which died in 1699.—Hannah—and Elizabeth, who died July 16, 1683, aged 19.

Sir John Shaw the younger, was born in 1648 (†); he was called up to the degree of a Serjeant-at-law in 1677, and knighted (a); And died Janu. 13, 1681 (b). His son and heir

John Shaw, Esq; married, about 1677, Anne daughter of Thomas Broom, Esq; Serjeant-at-law, and had issue by her John Shaw, Esq; Anne, and Thomas. To his second wife he took, in 1703, Jane Lessingham, widow. He died in April 1708 (c).

John Shaw, last mentioned, died without issue about 1715. Whereupon the family-estate being directed by a decree in Chancery to be sold, Jane Shaw [formerly Lessingham] who had survived her husband, purchased the House in this parish. And her executors sold it to Mrs. Elizabeth Cornelisen, widow, who pulled it down, and caused a new one to be built at her own expence; which by Will she gave to her Niece, then the wife of Ralph Creffied, Esq; and married since to Charles Gray, Esq; who hath greatly improved the Gardens, by adding thereto the Castle-Hills, &c. Mrs. Gray dying 6 June 1751, Charles Gray Esq; married, in 1755, Mary eldest daughter of Randle Wilbraham Esq; member of parliament for Newton in Lancashire, &c.

In this parish also (in the house, late Alderman Boys's) formerly lived the learned Thomas Skinner, M. D. being then Physician to General Monk. He was author of Motus Compositi, The Life of General Monk, &c. and was buried at St. Mary's, 8 August 1679.

(w) Parish-book.

Representatives for this Borough.

(x) Sir Ed. Bysshe's Visitation of Essex, D. 21. fol. 80. a. Sir Edw. Bysshe's Visitat. ubi supra.

(y) See List of the

(z) Epitaphs in H. Trinity and Greenstead, in the Appendix.

(†) For he

(a) Sir Will. Dugdale's Chronica Series.

(b) Epitaph in H. Trinity.

(c) Register of H. Trinity.

[G] A Bull was obtained for that purpose from Pope Leo X. by Thomas Wilkinfon Rector of St. Nicolas; who, for the obtaining of it, represented—Quod si parochialis Ecclesia beatæ Mariæ Virginis ad muros Ecclesiæ Sti. Nicholai uniretur, & annecteretur, & incorporeretur, ex hoc profecto commoditatibus suis non parum consuleretur; Quare pro parte dicti Thomæ afferentis fructus, redditus, & proventus dictæ Ecclesiæ beatæ Mariæ Sex librarum ster- lingorum secundum communem existimatione esse.—Therefore the Pope granted him the desired Bull, which is dated Septemb. 15, 1514. It was once in the possession of Mr. Thomas Plume, of Maldon. An imperfect Copy of it is among the Collections of Richard Symonds of the Poole in Yeldham, Esq; Vol. I. fol. 445, which Collections are in the Heralds Office.

The Church stands on the south-side of the High-street, near the corner of Queen's-street. It consists of a Nave tyled, and a North-isle leaded, which extends the whole length both of the Church and Chancel. At the West-end, there is a handsome Tower, neatly built with flints; in which are five Bells. The south-wall of the Church is built in the Roman, that is the herring-bone, fashion.

There are Prayers in this Church Tuesdays and Thursdays at eleven o'clock; and one Sermon on Sundays.

The Patronage of this Church, before the Reformation, was in St. Botolph's Priory. Upon the dissolution of the same, the Advowson of this Church was granted to Sir Thomas Audeley Lord Chancellor of England, by the King's Letters Patents, dated May 26, 1537. Sir Thomas gave it to his brother Thomas, settled at Bere-Church: In whose posterity it continued, till the late Henry Audeley, Esq; sold it to Dr. Compton, Bishop of London; and he settled it, with the Rectory of Tendring, upon Balliol-college, Oxon, of which he was Visitor.

The Parish of St. Botolph's, and the several Portions of Tithes which the Prior and Convent used to receive in and about this Town, are united and annexed to this Rectory; (as will be shewn under St. Botolph's) which makes it a pretty good Living. By virtue of this Union, the Rector of All-Saints hath the great or inappropriate Tithes of St. Peter's in this Town: And, upon the same account, two parts in three of the Tithes of some Land in St. Mary's at the Walls, called Richbery-hawke, or Harpe, are paid to the Rector of All-Saints, as having the Impropriation of St. Peter's (d).

At the West-end of the Church, there is a Parsonage-house in a Garden of about half a rood; the west end of which was built by the late Dr. Abbot; and also a Stable. But the Barn, and the small House, adjoining to the Church, mentioned in the Terrier (e), are now down.

Richard atte Schawe was Rector of this parish in 1356 (f). And William Roby Rector in 1372 (g).

The first is not mentioned by Mr. Newcourt, and the name of the second is written by him otherwise than it is in our Records.

Nom. Reg. Lib.

Compton. { (b) John Dane, D. D. 1708. per mort. Hicketingill.
(i) Francis Powell, A. M. 26 June, 1713, per mort. Dane.
George Drake, M. A. 20 Decemb. 1749, per mort. Powell.
Charles Godwin, B. D. August 1752, per mort. Drake.
John Abbot, M. A. 1 August 1753, per refig. Godwin.
John Vivian, M. A. 22 Octob. 1760, per mort. Abbot.
Nath. Forster, M. A. 31 Janu. 1764, per refig. Vivian. }

Patroni.
} Episc.
} Lond.

Balliol Coll. Ox.

S E C T. VIII.

St. J A M E S.

THE eighth and last Parish, whose Church lyeth within the Walls, is this of St. James's. 'Tis bounded on the west by All-Saints, and part of St. Botolph's; on the south, partly by St. Botolph's, St. Giles's, and St. Mary Magdalen's; on the east, by St. Leonard's, Greenstead, and part of St. Botolph's; and on the north, by Mile-end.

It contains—Within the Walls, The Church; The House of George Wegg, Esq; his Garden east of the same, and part of his Field and Garden south of his said House, formerly called Berryfield: As also the Parish-Clerk's House by East-gate. — Without the Walls, it contains part of More-lane; East-hill, and East-street. In all which, by an account taken in December 1744, there were found to be 314 Houses and Tenements, and 1056 Souls. [But George Wegg Esq; has, since that, pulled down nine tenements.] It hath also two Houses, and Land, in Magdalen-street; And several Parcels of land in divers places, particularly five or six acres near Lexden: But the greatest quantity is on each side of East-hill, and East-street, being rich meadow-grounds; and near the Road to Ardley and Ipswich, pasture and ploughed land. Above seventy acres of the Meadows, are Castle-land; that is, some of the Demeines anciently belonging to the Castle.

In 1691, One hundred and eighty-eight pounds per annum, Land, were charged in this parish, to the King's Tax. And the year following Four hundred and twenty persons were rated to the Poll-tax.

Part of this parish lyes within the Manor of the Corporation, of which several Tenements, and pieces of ground, are held; and part within the Manor of Shaw's. But three Tenements, formerly belonging to St. John's Abbey, are held of the manor of West-Doniland, by copy of Court-roll, at the Will of the Lord (k).

In this parish, just without East-gate, lived Samuel Reynolds, Esq; who was one of the Representatives for this Borough in the last Parliament of K. Charles II. and in the 1st and 2d Parliaments of K. William and Q. Mary. He died August 23, 1694. His heirs have, since, parted with the House he lived in; but still had Estates in this County, particularly at Peldon, and Little Bentley; which Samuel Reynolds, Esq; gave to his sister's son, the Rev. Dr. Powell, Master of St. John's College, Cambridge. The Family's Arms are a chevron, chequy; between three crosses crosslets fitché.

The Town-gallows stood anciently in this Parish, even before the year 1378 (l); and there is a field, which to this day bears the name of Gallow-field.

(d) Decimar. B. Mariz ad Muros, ann. 1403.
Cur. 30 Edw. III. rot. 4. Colchester.

(g) Rot. 46 and 47 Edw. III. rot. 2.

(h) Minutes of Court 11 Octob. 14. Jac. I.

(i) R. Newcourt's Repertor. Vol. II. p. 163.

(j) v. Copford.

(k) Oath-book, p. 3. 50.

(l) Rot. v. St. Giles's.

The Church of St. James's, as I have observed above, is large, regular, and tolerably handsome. It consists of a Body tyled, and two Side-issles leaded, which do not reach above half-way the Chancel. At the west-end stands a square Tower, in which there is only one Bell, besides that on a Turret at the top, for the Clock to strike upon. Both Church and Tower are built of Roman Brick and Stone. But the Chancel is in a more elegant manner, with a mixture of polished stones and flint.

There is one Sermon in this Church on Sundays, and Prayers on Wednesdays and Fridays at eleven o'clock.

While the Monasteries subsisted, this Rectory continued in the gift of the Prior and Convent of St. Botolph's. But, upon the dissolution of that House, King Henry VIII. granted this Advowson, amongst others, in the year 1536, to Sir Thomas Audeley Lord Chancellor; who gave it to his brother Thomas Audeley of Bere-Church, Esq; In his family it continued till after the year 1700, when Henry Audeley Esq; sold it to Bishop Compton, as hath been already observed under St. PETER's. Of his Executor it was purchased by Bishop Robinson, and his Widow, Mrs. Robinson, sold it to Samuel Hill, Esq; who exchanged it, 17 August 1724, with the Crown, for the Vicarage of Shenston in Staffordshire, where Mr. Hill had an estate.

The pension of Ten Shillings per annum, out of the Rectory of St. Michael's Mile-end, mentioned by Mr. Newcourt, (m) hath not been paid for several years.

The Rector had formerly a Parsonage-house on the south-side of East-hill, just without East-gate, where lyes a piece of Glebe belonging to him: but it was beat down during the siege. He hath also another small parcel of Glebe. But the Castle-lands above-mentioned being exempted from Tithes, on account of their paying them anciently to the Chapel in the Castle: By that means, this Living is not a tolerable maintenance for a Clergyman. However, it is in the power of the Crown to make it so, by annexing thereto either Greenstead, St. Mary Magdalen's Hospital, or Abberton, which are all in his Majesty's gift.

The 31st of October 1699, It was ordered at an assembly of the Mayor, Aldermen, &c. That a Petition should be drawn and presented to My Lord Chancellor, in order that the Hospital of St. Mary Magdalen should be put to this Church of St. James; and that Sir Thomas Cooke should be desired to present the same to his Lordship. But this Petition was either not presented, or else rejected.

John — was Rector in the 4th of Edward II. (n).

John Wright Rector in 1429 (o).

Nom. Reg. Lib.

Robinson.	Barnabas (p) Symson, A. M. 13 Octob. 1716. per cess. Bennet.	Patroni. Episc. Lond.
Gibson.	{ John Milton, A. M. 5 May 1743. per mort. Symson.	{ Georg. II. Rex Ang.

(m) See Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 169. stead magna.

(n) Rot. Cur. 4^o Edw. II. 8.

(o) Oath-book, p. 110.

(p) v. Maple-

B O O K II.

C H A P. II.

I Come now to treat of those Parishes in Colchester, that lye without, but near, the Walls.

S E C T. I. Of these the First is

St. B O T O L P H's

And it is to be considered in a double view; as a Religious House, (which I shall do in Chap. IV. of this Book) and a distinct Parish. Considered as a separate Parish; It is bounded on the west by part of St. Nicolas's, of H. Trinity, and St. Giles's: On the south, by the same St. Giles's: On the east, by part of St. Mary Magdalen's, St. Leonard's, Greenstead, and St. James's: And on the north, by part of St. Nicolas's, All-Saints, St. James's, Mile-end, and Ardley.

What it comprehends, in the Town. —

[H] By a passage in the Court-Rolls, 4^o Edw. II. (anno 1310.) rot. 3. It appears that the Leather-market was then near St. Botolph's Priory. For Osbert the Tanner brings an action against Thomas de Hadleye, for removing his Stall

Within the Walls, is part of Queen-street, of Wire-street, and Eld-lane. — Without the Walls; St. Botolph's-street, part of Black-boy-lane, of More-lane, of Childwell-lane, and of Magdalen-street. There is a good quantity of Land in this parish; which, as far as appears to me, was originally the Endowment of the Priory, such as Dilbridge, &c. And, as the Prior and Convent did, so doth also the Rector of All-Saints now, by reason of the Endowment which I shall presently mention, receive portions of Tithes from Lands which lye in other parishes. The extent of this Parish into the Country is pretty considerable; and it is also very populous, but not so much as formerly, when the Trade lay more this way [H]. The present number of House-keepers in it, is 409.

In the Land-tax-rates of St. Botolph's, in 1691, above Two hundred and fifteen pounds a year, Land, were charged to the King's Tax; for selling Leather under the Wall of St. Botolph's Priory, the Saturday next after the feast of St. Dennis. Perhaps St. Dennis's fair was then held there.

And

And Five hundred and Six persons were rated to the Poll-tax, in 1692.

The Manor of Shaw's lyeth chiefly in this parish. It was in St. Botolph's Priory till the dissolution (†); when it was granted to Sir Thomas Audeley, with the rest of the Priory's possessions.

Next, it was held, anno 1545, by John Moulton, and William Beryffe in capite (*).

— William Beryffe, Gent. dyed 21 Novemb. 1594, possessed of this Manor, which he held of the Queen as of her Manor of East-Greenwich: — William his son and heir was then aged 48 (l). He was succeeded by his son — William, living in 1634 (m).

It was afterwards in Cropley, and . . . Church.

And in Sir Thomas Davall, and his heirs; the last of whom, Thomas Davall, Esq; dying under age in 1718, the premises came, by virtue of the will of Sir Thomas Davall the younger, who died in April 1714, to Daniel Burr Esq; first cousin to this last Sir Thomas, by his mother Rebecca, daughter of Daniel Burr of Amsterdam, merchant (n). D. Burr hath sold it, not long since, with other estates, to

Mr. Nath. Garland, a merchant: But all the demesne lands, and site of the Manor, are, or lately were, in Captain Thomas Kilham, of London.

Dilbridge, in this parish, formerly belonging to the Prior and Canons of St. Botolph's, is also sometimes called a Manor; and otherwise the Grange [i. e. Barn, or Granary] of Dilbridge (o). Upon the dissolution of St. Botolph's Priory, it was granted by K. Henry VIII. in 1536, to Sir Thomas Audeley Lord Chancellor of England (p). The same year, Audeley obtained a license to alienate it to John Christmas; who, in 1552, sold it to George Christmas, Esq; and his heirs, and to Edward Markaunt (q). Elizabeth, daughter of George Christmas, became the second wife of John Lucas, Esq; (r) and brought this Manor into that family. But it seems to have come into the present branch of it by purchase.

In Eld-lane, within this Parish, is the Anabaptists Meeting-house. Near which, in a place named the Red house, formerly lived John Bastwick Doctor of Physick, who made so much noise in the last Century. He was born at Writtle in this County, in the year 1593; and entered in Emmanuel College, Cambridge, May 19, 1614, where he continued but a little while. Leaving the University without a degree, he travelled beyond sea for the space of nine years, where he spent his time between the Schools and the Camp, and was made Doctor of Physick at Padua. Upon his return to England, he settled in this Town, where he practised Physick for a while. But some Books he published, disagreeable to the Court, brought him into very great Troubles. The Reader may see a full account of him in BIOGRAPHIA BRITANNICA.

The care of this Church and Parish was in the Canons-Regular till their suppression; the Inhabitants resorting for divine service to the Church here, which was Parochial as well as Conventual (s). Upon the dissolution, its exemption from all secular and ecclesiastical jurisdiction was abolished, and K. Edward VI. annexed it, April 1, 1550, to the see of London for ever; which was confirmed by Q. Mary I. March 2, 1555 (t). And Sir Thomas Audeley having obtained from K. Henry VIII. in 1536, the Priory of St. Botolph's, and the whole site of the same, with the Rectory, and all its appurtenances (u); did, in consideration of certain Covenants and Agreements made between him and the Parishioners of All-Saints Colchester, grant, bargain, and sell, to the Rector of that Church, and his successors for ever, All and singular the Tithes of Hay, Wood, Corn, and of any other kind or nature soever, within the Town of Colchester, or elsewhere; belonging to him, by reason of the Dissolution or Resignation of the Priory of St. Botolph's aforesaid. But this matter not being fully settled in his life time, he renewed that Grant in his Will, dated April 19, 1544. And, after his decease, Sir Edward North, and Sir Thomas Pope, Knights, Executors of the last Will and Testament of him the said Lord Chancellor Audeley, jointly with Edmund Marten, Thomas Gynlett, and Thomas Audeley, Esq; brother of the aforesaid Lord Audeley; for the greater and more perfect accomplishment, performance, and execution of the Covenants and Grants above-mentioned; and also in consideration of the sum of Forty pounds sterling, paid by Richard Awfulde and William Hutton, Wardens of the Church of All-Saints, to the said Thomas Lord Audeley, in his life-time, in full purchase and bargain of the said Tithes; Did give, grant, sell, and confirm to Robert Plumpton Rector of All-Saints, and his successors for ever, all the Tithes afore-mentioned, within the Town of Colchester, and elsewhere. This Deed bears date May 14, 1544, and is placed in the Appendix (w).

There was formerly a Chantry in this Church; of which see an account in Book II. ch. v.

In this parish was born Dr. Samuel Harsnet, Archbishop of York in the last century. As he was very eminent in his time, and a Benefactor to this Town, it will be necessary to give some account of him.

He was the son of William Harsnet, or Halsothe [I], a baker, and born in St. Botolph's-street. The day of his birth is not recorded;

(†) Assessment of a xv. Penes me. (*) Pat. 37 Hen. VIII. (l) Esc. 26 May, 37 Elizab. fol. 212.
(m) T. Jekyll's Geneal. (n) Hist. and Antiq. of Harwich and Dover-court, &c. by S. Taylor and S. Dale, p. 207, &c.
(o) See Pat. 28 Hen. VIII. p. 5. or Grant of St. Botolph's to Audeley. (p) Ibid. (q) 6 Edw. VI. p. 82.
Book of Alienations. (r) See Pedigree of the Lucas-family, under St. Giles's. (s) Newcourt, Repertorium
Vol. II. p. 165. (t) Ibid. and Bp. Bonner's Reg. p. 275. (u) Pat. 28 Hen. VIII. (w) No VIII.

[I] So his name is written in the Register Book of St. Botolph's. The name of Halsothe was very common in this Town in the Sixteenth Century. William Halsothe, Gent. is mentioned in 1523. And Tho. Halsothe born H h but but he was baptized June 20, 1561 (x). Having acquired competent School-learning, probably in this Town, he was sent to Cambridge, and admitted in King's College, September 8, 1576: From thence he removed to Penbroke-hall, of which he became a Scholar, and was elected Fellow of the same, Novemb. 27, 1583 (y). The year following, he took his Master of Arts Degree: In 1586, he was chosen Master of the Free-school in this Town, which he kept little more than a year and a half (z). On the 14th of June 1597, he was instituted to the Vicariage of Chigwell in Essex, which he resigned in 1605 (a). August 5, 1598, he was collated to the Prebend of Mapebury in St. Paul's Cathedral: And Janu. 17, 1602, to the Archdeaconry of Essex (b). The 16th of April 1604, he was admitted to the Rectory of Shenfield, in this county (c). He was also Rector of St. Margaret's New Fish-street, London, which he resigned this year (d). In 1605, upon the resignation of Bishop Andrews, he was chosen Master of Penbroke-Hall; and served the office of Vice-Chancellor the same year: as he did again in 1614 (e). He held his Mastership till 1616 (f). In the year 1606, May 16, he had institution to the Vicarage of Hutton; which he resigned in 1609, as he did also his Prebend of Mapebury, and Archdeaconry of Essex (g). Whereupon Archbishop Bancroft, to whom he was Chaplain, gave him, September 28, the Rectory of Stytead in Essex (h). Nov. 13, 1609, he was elected Bishop of Chichester, and consecrated Decemb. 3, holding his Rectory of Stytead in commendam with that See (i). In the year 1619, he was translated to Norwich, and confirm'd in the same, August 28 (k). But being one of those who were branded with the name of Arminians, he underwent some Trouble from the Puritan Faction; and, May 19, 1624, was accused by the Commons, at a Conference, of several Misdemeanors (l). Upon the death of George Montaigne Archbishop of York, being translated to that Archbishoprick, he was elected Novemb. 26, 1628, and confirmed the 23d of January following (m). And, Novemb. 10, 1629, was sworn of the Privy Council (n). He enjoyed his Archiepiscopal Dignity but a little while: For he died at Morton in the Marsh, in Gloucestershire, in May 1631, in his return from Bath to his maner of Southwell in Nottinghamshire, and was buried in Chigwell-Church (o). He had founded a Free-school at Chigwell, before his decease (p). And by his Will bequeathed, To the Poor of St. Botolph's in Colchester, where he was born, 10*l*. — of Shenfield, 10*l*. — of Stytead, 10*l*. — And to the Town of Colchester all his Library for the use of the Clergy of these Parts (q).

This learned Person published, I. "A Sermon preached at Paul's Cross, Oct. 26, 1584." wherein he strenuously condemns the Doctrine of absolute Predestination: And, II. "A Discovery of the fraudulent Practices of John Darrel, in his proceedings concerning the pretended possession and dispossession of William Somers at Nottingham: of Thomas Darling the boy of Burton at Caldwell: and of Katherine Wright at Mansfield, and Whittington: and of his dealings with one Mary Couper at Nottingham, detecting in some sort the deceitful trade in these latter days of casting out Devils." Written with great strength of Reason, and elegantly, considering the Time.

S E C T. II.

St. G I L E S's.

THE Parish of St. Giles's [K], to which we proceed next, is bounded on the north and west by St. Botolph's, and by part of H. Trinity, of St. Mary's, and also of Stanway: On the south, by part of Layer de la Hay, Bere-Church, and East Doniland: And, on the east, by the last mentioned Parish, by the Channel, and the Hyth.

It contains, — within the Town, all St. John's-green, part of Lodder's-lane, and of Stanwell-street, the lane leading from St. John's-green to Hog-lane, and part of Magdalen-street. — Within the Country it extends a great way, and contains a large district of Land, most of which was part of the demesnes of St. John's Abbey. In the Land-tax rates of 1691, above Three hundred and twenty pounds a year, Land, were charged to the King's-tax.

Many Houses have been pulled down in this parish; particularly a large range, called the Star-yard from an Ale-house there having that sign. However, it still contains an hundred and ninety-two Houses, or Tenements.

A Hamlet in this parish is called the Old-Hyth [or Harbour] because Wares and Merchandises, brought to this Town by water, used to be unloaded there, before the river was navigable, or a convenient Harbour made at the New-Hyth, or St. Leonard's (r). As far as I have observed, That Harbour at the Old-Hyth must have been slighted near Five hundred years; and yet, in a Tryal in the last Century, one Evidence swore, That he had passed by a (x) Register of St. Botolph's.

below, Book III. ch. iii. § 1.

(c) Idem, Vol. II. p. 526.

ibid.

(g) Newcourt, Vol. I. p. 73.

Neve's Fasti, ed. 1716, p. 212.

Quinquarticularis, Part III. c. 18. § 4, &c. and J. Collier's Eccles. Hist. Vol. II. p. 646.

(n) J. Stow's Annales edit. 1631, p. 1055.

(q) See below, Book III. ch. i. § 2.

(y) Lives of the Protestant Bishops, &c. by J. Le Neve, 8vo. p. 128.

(a) Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 143.

(d) Idem, Vol. I. p. 406.

(e) J. Le Neve, ubi supra, p. 129, 130.

(h) Idem, Vol. II. p. 562.

(l) Idem, Lives of the Protestant Bishops, &c. p. 131.

(o) J. Le Neve, Lives, &c. p. 132, &c.

(r) See under St. Leonard's.

(z) See

(b) Idem, Vol. I. p. 73, 176.

(f) Idem,

(i) Reg. Bancroft.

(k) J. Le

See Dr. P. Heylin's Histor.

(m) Reg. Abbot.

(p) Ibid. p. 133.

at Harysam in Cambridgeshire, was admitted a Free-burges.—Oath-book, p. 185. 191.—As was also Adam Halfnoth, born in the parish of St. Botolph's. Ibid. p. 206.—And Tho. Halfenothe, born at Micheldene in Hamshire. Ibid.—And William Halfnoth baker is particularly mentioned, p. 219. See Oath-book, p. 183. 185. 191. 206. 208. 212, 213, 214. 216. 219. 222. 225.

[K] I find it otherwise called St. Sepulchre's in some Rates; But whether there is sufficient ground for this appellation, I cannot positively affirm.

small boat, up the Channel or Creek, wherein Ships anciently went up to the Old-Hyth (s), which is hardly credible.

A small part of this parish lyeth within the Manor of the Corporation; and, among the rest, St. John's Green, as appears by the Extracts below [L]. But much the greatest part is within the Manor of West-Doniland, of which I shall give an account under West-Doniland.

The Manor of Battleswick, at the Old Hyth, lyes chiefly in this parish. One would be apt to imagine, that it took its Name from a Battle fought near that place. But it was in reality so named from the Family of Bataille, who were Lords or owners of it [M]. Roger le Hoppe was possessed of it, in the year 1312, and Sir Michael Stanhope in 1609 (t). This Manor hath been long in the Godschall-family, who were originally from this Town. Sir Robert Godschall Knight, late Lord Mayor of London, enjoyed it: And it is his brother's, John Godschall, a merchant in the same city.

In this parish lay the rich and stately Abbey, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, of which we shall give a full account in Chap. IV. of this Book. There is nothing of it remaining, but the beautiful Gate-way, the Garden-walls, and some of the Out-offices.

John Lucas Esq; having purchased of Sir Francis Jobson Knight, the site of this Abbey, converted the remains of it into a Seat; and that noble Family having had their residence there for many years, within this parish, it will be proper to give a particular account of them in this place.

This name is of great Antiquity in this neighbourhood, and often occurs in the Records of this Town. John Lucas of Birch, and Hugh Lucas of the same parish, are menton'd in the Oath-book under the years 1332 and 1339 (u). John Lucas was a Lawyer here in 1340 (w). And the Will of John Lucas was proved and inrolled in 1348 (x). John Lucas was one of the Bailiffs in the years 1370, and 1371 (y); and owed suit and service at the Law hundred Courts (z). And Giles Lucas was one of the Gentry of this County, returned by the Commissioners in the year 1433 (a). But the Herald's having derived this Family from the Fitz-Lucas's of Suffolk, it will be proper to lay their account before the Reader. And it is as follows.

1. Edmund Fitz-Lucas, Esq; 34 Edward III. had to wife Elizabeth daughter and heir of Sir John Morieux. John was his son and heir.
2. John Fitz-Lucas, Esq; lived in 1412. He married Christiana (or Maud) daughter and co-heir of Walter Brampton of Brampton; whose arms were, Gules, a saltier, between four pole-axes, or.
3. Edmund, or Edward, Fitz-Lucas, 1421, 9 Henr. V. had issue.
4. Thomas, servant, Secretary, and one of the Counsel to Jasper Duke of Bedford (b).
5. John Fitz-Lucas 1460, 39 Henr. VI. had issue.
6. Thomas Fitz-Lucas of Saxham in Suffolk, Esq; 1489, 5 Henr. VII (c). He married Elizabeth daughter of — Keymes of Rayland in Wales; by whom he had three sons; Jasper, Henry, and JOHN. And three daughters. — Lettice, wife of John Grene-

(s) Depositions, in the Tryal between Sir Roger Townshend and the Corporation, in 1630, Ric. Mafon's Deposit. fol. 59, 60. (t) Rotul. Tallag. 6 Edw. II. penes me: and Aid for making P. Henry a knight. (u) Oath-book. p. 5. 18. (w) Rot. Cur. 14 Edw. III. rot. 1. (x) Oath-book, p. 21. (y) List of Bailiffs. (z) Rot. Cur. 49 Edw. III. rot. 1. (a) T. Fuller's Worthies of England, in Essex, p. 338. (b) Fuller's Worthies, ubi supra, p. 340. (c) Harvey's Visitation of Suffolk, in 1561.

[L] At the Lawe-hundred Court in October (1^o Henrici V. rot. 5^o) is the following Presentment—Item presentant quod cum predicti Ballivi & omnes predecessores sui habent & habere consueverunt correctiones five amerc'. Assise Panis & Cerevisie sine vasto, & Cognitiones Placitorum per totum precinctum Libertatis ville predictae, tam secundum consuetudinem Ville predictae a tempore quo non extat memoria, quam per cartas dicti Dni Regis nunc, sive progenitorum, inde concessarum, — yet the Abbot and Monks presumed to hold Courts within the Abbey — usurpant Cur. Visus Franc. de anno in annum in Abbathia sancti Johannis tenend. per senescallum suum — & in eisdem Cur. predicti Abbas & Commonachi sui predicti, tam per se quam per senescallum suum audiant & terminent omnes querelas personales, in qua predicta Abbathia idem Abbas nec predecessores sui Nullum Dominium habent nec habuerunt tempore concessionis Libertatis ville predictae. Et dicunt, quod predicti Abbas & Commonachi sui predicti colore Curiarum predictarum ceperunt de Will. Kynnesman vi d. pro uno Affray per ipsum Willielmum facta in venella vocata Lodderis-lane que est in suburb. ville predictae, & infra libertatem, ejusdem ville: Et de Joh. Smyth xii d. pro Purprestura unius Fornacis super quoddam VIRIDE per ipsum facta, pro tempore quod idem Johannes ibidem facit fieri quoddam Stythe, quod quidem Viride est infra precinctum Libertatis Ville predictae. Et de Thoma Wynton vi d. quod fodiavit Traves [Turfs] in solo ibidem. Et de Joh. Smyth, pro Purprestura ibidem faciend — juxta Tenementum suum pro equis ibidem calcandis. —

Again, in the 6th year of the same King, (Rot. Cur. 6. Henr. V. rot. 13) we meet with this Presentment. Item presentant quod Abbas & conventus Sti. Johannis Colc. posuerunt & assesserunt Stipites in alta regia via super Viride Sti Johannis, obstupantes communem viam ibidem, quod Carecte transire non possunt, &c. Repeated in Roll 24.

And, the 22d of Henr. VI. the Abbot of St. John's was presented for cutting two Trees upon St. John's-green, — que de jure pertinent, & pertineere deberent Communitati ville Colc.

Et quod Abbas & Conventus predicti tenent quandam Curiam super Viride Sti. Johannis in crastino Nativitatis Sti. Johannis Baptiste, quo warranto ignoratur.

Rot. Cur. 22 Hen. VI. rot. 10.

To which must be added, That the Abbot of St. John's used to pay Three Shillings a year to the Bailiffs and Commonalty, for keeping Midsummer-fair upon St. John's-green. For in a small Roll of the 56th of Henry III. The Abbey of St. John's is presented, — Quod subtraxit 3 solid. annui redditus, quos reddere debebat Burgo Colec. pro nundinis suis. — And in a Roll of Richard I. or K. John, Hervey de Lanvaley is also presented — quod fecit quandam purpresturam, ex opposito domus sue in itinere, regali super Campum Sti. Johannis Colec. penes me.

The same is likewise evident from this Entry on a Chamberlain's Roll 16 Henr. VII. "also of the Abbot of Seynt Johns for a feyer, the which he holdith uppon the Comon of the Towne be the space of iii days."

See also old Rental in the Oath-book, fol. 86. 6.

[M] This appears from the following Entry in a Taxation-Roll for a Seventb. 24^o Edw. I. penes me.

Thomas le Herde habuit die predicto ad Wykam Dni Ricard. Bataille i quart & dimid. filiginis, pret. qrt. v s. i qrt. avene, pret. ii s. iv vaccas, pret. vacce v s. xiv oves, pret. ovis viii d.

Summa xxxviii s. x d.

Inde VII. v s. vi d. ob.

Last article.

field

field of Exeter — Anne, wife of Thomas Barnadiston of Ketton. — Elizabeth wife of — Ayloff of Essex. He was solicitor to K. Henry VII.

Jasper Lucas of Saxham, Esq; the eldest son, married Margaret daughter and sole heir of Robert Gedding Esq; and had issue Thomas; and two daughters — Margaret, married to Humphrey Conesby, — and Jane.

Thomas, the son, was of Herringer in Suffolk, and married Mary daughter of Sir Thomas Jermyn of Rushbrook in Suffolk, by whom he had Thomas, Clement, and Anne.

Henry Lucas, the second son of Thomas above-mentioned, married — daughter of Edmund Greene of St. Edmunds-bury; and had issue Edmund, his eldest son and heir; who married, I. Frances daughter of Thomas Nevill of Essex, Esq; by Mary, daughter of Sir Thomas Tey of Old-Holt in Birch. The 2d. son was John; the 3d. Clement; the 4th. Henry; the 5th. Gabriel; the 6th. Edward. The Daughters were, — Mary, wife of Edw. Sledge of Sumberton in Cambridgeshire — and Catharine. Edmund's 2d wife was Alice daughter of Simon Bradock of Hisham, or Henham, Suffolk. By her he had Francis, Henry, Thomas, and Martha. He lived at St. Edmundsbury.

7. JOHN Lucas, third son of Thomas Lucas and Elizabeth Keymes, was Town-Clerk of Colchester, and Master of the Requests to K. Edward VI. It was he that bought the site of St. John's Abbey of Sir Francis Jobson. He had two wives, I. Mary, daughter of — Abell, by whom he had THOMAS, who was knighted; and Robert, who died without issue. His 2d wife was Elizabeth daughter of George Christmas. By her he had John — and Margaret wife of Thomas Penny; M. D.

John lived at Ramsey, and married Margaret daughter and heir of Christopher Roydon of Roydon-hall, in Ramsey. By her he had issue John, Roydon, Edward, Edmund and Christopher. And three daughters; Elizabeth, wife of Robert Darcy of Tiptre — Mary wife of Edward Bedingfield — and Margaret wife of — Tillingham.

John Lucas of Ramsey, Esq; married Margaret daughter of Sir John Bruis, and had issue Alexander, Thomas, and Anne.

8. Sir THOMAS Lucas, was Sheriff of Essex in the year 1568 (d), and Recorder of Colchester about the year 1575 (e). He married Mary, daughter of Sir John Fermor of Eston-Nesson in Northamptonshire, Knight, and had issue THOMAS his son and heir —

John, who dyed unmarried, Septem. 4, 1651. — Anne, wife of Arthur Throckmorton of Powles-Ferrers in Com. Northampton. — Constantia, wife of Roland Lacy of Shipton in Oxfordshire. And another daughter. He died August 29, 1611, aged 80. His Lady died July 5, 1613. And they were both buried in St. Giles's Church (f).

9. Sir THOMAS Lucas, the eldest son and heir, was Sheriff of Essex in 1617 (g). He married Elizabeth daughter and co-heir of John Leighton of London, Gent. — by whom he had had, before marriage, a son named Thomas, for whom he purchased, of the heirs of Robert Ratcliffe Earl of Suffex, the Manor and Estate at LEXDEN, and fix'd him there. Be pleased therefore to look for this Branch of the Lucas family under Lexden.

After marriage, he had by her these several children, JOHN, * Charles — Mary, wife of Peter Killegrew — Elizabeth wife of William Walter — Anne — Catharine — Margaret second wife of William Cavendish Duke of Newcastle [N]. He died Sept. 25, 1625.

10. Sir JOHN Lucas, Knight, the eldest son and heir, declared very early for K. Charles I. But his design being discovered, he was rudely seized and imprisoned; and his fine House at St. John's plundered by the rabble, in August 1642 (b). Being released, he did what service he could to his royal Master, and was present at the Fights at Lestwithiel, and Newbury, and other battles. In consideration whereof, he was advanced, January 3, 1644-5, to the degree of a Baron of this realm, by the title of Lord Lucas of Shenfield in Essex; with limitation of that dignity, for want of issue-male, to Sir Charles Lucas, Knight, his younger brother, and to the heirs male of his body; with remainder to Sir Thomas Lucas, Knight, his other brother and the heirs of his body. — This John Lord Lucas married Anne, daughter to Sir Christopher Neville of Newton St. Lo in Somersetshire, Knight, by whom he had a son, John, born in 1633, who dyed young; and a daughter, named MARY, who was married to Antony Earl of Kent. See an account of her Descendents under Mile-end. Her father procured from K. Charles II. on her own, and her posterity's behalf, Letters patent dated May 7, 1663, whereby the title of Baroness Lucas of Crudwell in Wiltshire was conferr'd upon her; and the title of Baron Lucas of the same place, upon the heirs male of her body: As also, that her son and heir by the said Earl of Kent; and all other the sons and heirs (descended from her) of the Earls of Kent, should bear the title of Lord Lucas of (d) T. Fuller's Worthies, in Essex, p. 345.

pendix, under St. Giles's.

(e) Town-Records.
(g) T. Fuller's Worthies, in Essex, p. 345.

(f) See their Epitaphs in the Ap-
(b) See Mercurius Rusticus, in-the [N] This Lady lies buried by the Duke her husband, under a sumptuous Monument in Westminster-Abbey, with this Epitaph.

Here lies the loyal Duke of Newcastle, and his Dutches his second wife, by whom he had no Issue: Her Name was Margaret Lucas, youngest sister to the Lord Lucas of Colchester, a noble Family; for all the Brothers were valiant, and all the Sisters virtuous. This Dutches was a wife, witty, and learned Lady, which her many Books do well testify: She was a most virtuous, and loving, and careful Wife, and was with her Lord all the Time of his Banishment and Miseries; and when he came home, never parted from him in his solitary retirements.

Crudwell. And in default of such issue male, that the said Title should not be suspended, but enjoy'd by such of the daughters and co-heirs, if any shall be, as other indivisible inheritances, by the common law of this realm are usually possessed (i). John Lord Lucas died July 2, 1671, aged 65, and was buried in St. Giles's Church. The Lady Anne his wife died August 22, 1660, and was buried in the same place (k). — This Lord Lucas dying thus without issue male, the Title of Lord Lucas of Shenfield, by virtue of the limitation above expressed, devolved to Charles, Son and heir of Sir Thomas Lucas of Lexden, Knight. See under Lexden.

* Sir Charles Lucas, younger brother of John Lord Lucas, was bred up to Arms in the Low-Countries under the Prince of Orange; and was one of the best Commanders of horse K. Charles had. He signaliz'd himself for the royal cause in several places; particularly in the defence of this Town (l); after the taking of which he was basely shot to death, on the 28th of August 1648, by order of Thomas Lord Fairfax. He died without issue.

The Arms of Lucas, are, Argent, a Fesse between six annulets, gules.

The Church of St. Giles's stands near the north-west corner of St. John's Garden, and behind the site of the late Abbey-Church. It consists of a body, and a north-isle; built of a mixture of Roman-brick, and stone, like other old Edifices in this Town. The north-wall is chiefly of flints, and neat. Only the Chancel, and a very small part of the Church, are now used for divine service, the rest lying in ruins. In the room of the Tower, there is a boarded Building, which contains one small Bell. Whether it became thus ruinous by the negligence of the Inhabitants, or through the calamities of the Siege, I find no certain evidence; but I believe it was in the latter.

The site of St. John's Abbey, and most of its demesnes, lying in this parish, were exempted from paying Tithes; undoubtedly by an express Pope's Bull. For that reason, this Living was returned to the Governors of Q. Anne's Bounty to be worth but 30*l.* per annum. But, since that, it was said to have been augmented by the Rev. Mr. Francis Powell (m): which it seems was a mistake.

Whilst St. John's Abbey subsisted, the Abbot and Monks were proprietors of the Tithes and Advowson of St. Giles, and supplied the Cure by their own Members, or such as they appointed. At the suppression of the Monasteries, it passed for a Donative, or perpetual Curacy, of which no valuation was taken in the King's books; and so it still remains exempt from First-fruits and Tenths. The Tithes, with the Advowson of this curacy, and the site of the Abbey, were granted to John Dudley Duke of Northumberland. But when he gave the site of the Abbey to Sir Francis Jobson, and afterwards obliged him to sell it to John Lucas Esq; Jobson reserved this Advowson, which descended from him to his heirs. In the year 1587, this Rectory, with its appertinances, was granted to — Adams, and — Butler (n) [O]. But this grant was ineffectual. It was lately in the gift of Francis Powell, M. A. the perpetual Curate, or Rector, of the same; and is now in Charles Lind, D. D. the present Curate, licensed in September 1749.

There is a Sermon here but once in a fortnight.

S E C T. III.

ST. MARY MAGDALEN'S.

IS to be viewed in a double light, as a distinct Parish, and an Hospital.

I. Considered as a Parish, it is the least in Colchester. For it contains but 58 Houses, or Tenements, upon Magdalen-green, and in Magdalen-street. And of Land it hath only about Fifty acres. In 1692, no more than Twenty-eight persons were rated here to the Poll-tax.

This smallness of the Parish has brought it into very great distress. For having been always inhabited by weavers, and the poorer sort of people; many of them become extremely, nay almost intolerably, chargeable. So that, April 20, 1694, the inhabitants represented, in a Petition to the Mayor and Commonalty, That their weekly Disbursements to the Poor were 1*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.* and their Extraordinaries often One pound, or Thirty shillings a week besides; and there were but Seven persons in the parish able to pay. They had then Five shillings weekly out of Trinity-parish: Notwithstanding which, they petitioned for relief; the Landholders having, for the Quarter past, paid to the Poor the full value of their Rents (o). At this present time the Poor-rates are Twelve shillings in the pound.

On account of the same smallness of this parish, there hath not been any Institution or Induction to the Rectory for many years; nay, at no time whatever, as far as I can find.

I proceed therefore to St. Mary Magdalen's Hospital.

II. This Hospital, designed at first for the Reception of Leprous [P] and infirm people, was founded, at the command of K. Henry I. [Q] by Eudo his Steward, the same munificent Person that was the Founder of St. John's Abbey; and dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen. The original Endowment of it was much the

(i) Sir W. Dugdale's Baronage, Vol. II. p. 473, 474.

(l) See a fuller account of him, in the Chapter of the Siege.

Eston, edit. 1728, 8vo. among the Benefactors in the beginning, Anno 1719.

(o) Sessions-Rolls, among the Town-Records

(k) See the Epitaphs in St. Giles's, in the Appendix.

(m) See Liber Valorum & Decimarum by Mr.

(n) Pat. 29 Eliz. pars 2. n. 89.

[O] One Mr. Burlace, or Borlace, was put into this Living by Sir John Lucas, after the Restoration. But it doth not appear, that the Lucas family have at any other time presented to it, or laid any claim thereto.

[P] It is just matter of wonder, that there should be anciently so many Leprous people in this kingdom, for whose reception and cure Hospitals were built in divers parts; and that the Leprosy should be so epidemical some centuries ago, to what it is in these latter Ages. This consideration hath induced some learned Men to imagine, that what was then called the Leprosy is the same Distemper as is now termed the Venereal Disease. See Philosoph. Transact. N^o 357. p. 839. N^o 365. p. 47. &c. and N^o 366. p. 108.

[Q] Per preceptum Henrici Regis; as it is in the Letters Patent of Henry II. in the Inspeimus, 19 Edw. III. m. 22.

same as of the present Hospital; of which the particulars are in the Appendix (p). But it had, besides, the Tithes of St. John's Abbey, which were distributed to the Poor here in a certain Portion of Bread, Beer, and Meat every day (q).

K. Stephen gave them Eighteen acres of land in perpetual alms, out of which they used to pay 3*s*. 5*d*. a year, towards the ferm of Colchester. — K. Henry II. took them, and all their possessions into his protection, as those who were of the alms of his grand-father K. Henry I. and confirmed to them Six pounds out of Brightlingsea-manor, which that King had given them. Enjoining, that none should molest them, nor put them upon pleas, except before the King in person, or his Justices by his order. — K. Richard I. granted them a Fair of two days in the year, namely, on the Vigil, and Feast-day, of St. Mary Magdalen, July 21st and 22^d. He also took them, and all they had, into his protection; ordering, That no Brother should be admitted into the Hospital, without the consent and will of the said Lepers. All which Privileges were amply confirmed by K. Henry III. Edward III. Richard II. [R].

But in the time of K. Edward I. Abbot Adam de Campes not only with-held their Tithes and the pension of vi pounds above-mentioned; but also having craftily desired to see their charter, flung it into the fire; took away their common Seal; and compelled them to swear obedience to him; and turned such as refused, out of their Dwellings. For redress whereof the poor Brethren applied to Parliament, and were reinstated (r).

The Master of this Hospital was anciently named Prior of the Hospital of St. Mary Magdalen (s): and owed suit at the Law-hundred Courts (t).

Upon the general Destruction of the Hospitals in K. Edward the Sixth's reign, This underwent the common fate. However, it doth not seem to have been immediately granted away; for, in the year 1558, it was held by Bonner Bishop of London in free-alms (u). After that, — the Lands belonging to it were squandered away, and some irrecoverably lost; and the Chapel of the Hospital was totally demolished (w). Q. Elizabeth, in the year 1565, granted the Revenues lately belonging thereto, to Nicasius Yetsewert (x), her Secretary for the French tongue, and one of the Clerks of the Signet (y). But K. James I. in order to bring it again to its pious and charitable use, Refounded it, in the year 1610, under the title of, The College or Hospital of K. James within the Suburbs of the Town of Colchester: Restoring all the Lands, Revenues, and Possessions whatever, settled at first upon it by the Founder: Ordaining, That it should consist of a Master, and Five poor Persons single, or unmarried: That the Master should have the Cure of the Souls of the parishioners of the parish of St. Mary Magdalen in the Town of Colchester, celebrate Divine Service there, faithfully preach the word of God, and duly administer the Sacraments either by himself or by a sufficient Minister or Curate: And pay each of the said Five poor Persons Fifty-two shillings a year, at the Four terms of the year, by equal portions; viz. Thirteen shillings a-piece, at the Feasts of the Nativity of Christ, the Annunciation of the Virgin Mary, St. John the Baptist, and St. Michael the Arch-angel. That they should be placed in for life, and chosen by the Master, who hath power to turn them out for a reasonable cause. That they should be a Body Corporate, and have a common Seal. That the Master, with the Attorney and Solicitor-general's consent and concurrence, might make all proper Laws and Ordinances for the better regulation and management of this Hospital, and the revenues of the same. Finally, the King granted and confirmed to them all the Liberties, Franchises, Immunities, Exemptions, Privileges, Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments whatsoever, which any Master and Poor of this Hospital had at any time enjoyed. The Visitor, is the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, who puts in the Master (z).

The Masters of this Hospital are often mentioned in the Records of this Town, but seldom or never by name: And, for that reason, it is not in my power to present the Reader with a List of them. Only I find, that Simon de la Neylond was Master in 1301.

Robert Safare in 1318.

Richard Martyn in 1323.

Will. Peryman, in 1431.

Tho. Skypwith in 1490 (a).

John Wayn, and John Phelyp, in the year 1515 (b).

Even since the Reformation, no compleat List can be given of them. For, in the beginning of our unhappy civil wars, Gabriel Honeyfold, D. D. who was Master of it, as well as Vicar of Ardley, had his house rifled by the mob of all its furniture; his bills, bonds, and evidences taken away; and not a shelf left behind, nor a pin to hang his hat on (c). So that the Register of this Parish, and any other memorials belonging thereunto, were then unquestionably lost.

William Wylkinson was Master in 1582 (d).

Robert Newton, D. D. Rector of St. Austin's and St. Faith's, London, was the late Master. And Palmer Smythies, M. A. Rector of St. Michael's Mile-end, is the present Master.

The Church of St. Mary Magdalen stands on the North-side of Magdalen-Green; and is a very small Building, of one pace, tyled. The little Chancel is modern, and built of brick. In the wooden Turret, at the West-end, there is one Bell.

The West-end, and Turret, were damaged

(p) N^o II. (q) Riley's Placita Parliam. p. 610, 611. (r) Ibid. (s) Rot. Cur. 25 Edw. III. rot. 4. Rot. 30 Edw. III. rot. 1. and 8. Rot. 33 Edw. III. rot. I. Rot. 38 Edw. III. rot. 1. Rot. 40 Edw. III. rot. 1. (t) Rot. 30 Edw. III. rot. 1. Item 33 ejusd. rot. 1. Et 38 ejusd. rot. 1. &c. (u) Cartæ antiqu. p. 162. (w) See Pat. 8 Jacob. I. 42 Pars, n^o 7. (x) Pat. 7 Elizab. (y) See A. Wood Athen. edit. 1721. Vol. I. col. 246. (z) See the Patent 8 Jac. I. (a) Ryley's Placita, as above. (b) Rot. Cur. 7. Hen. VIII. rot. 12. and 21. (c) Mercurius Rusticus, Edit. 1646. p. 12, 13. (d) Inquis. de Terris & Redditib.

by Lightning in the year 1739, but have been since repaired.

There is a Sermon in this Church once every Sunday, alternately.

SECT. IV.

St. LEONARD'S: alias, the Hyth.

THIS parish is named St. Leonard's, from the Church, which is dedicated to that Saint; and the Hyth, from the Saxon word hyþ signifying a Harbour, because it is the Town-Harbour. It is but a small Parish; having, on the west and south, St. Mary Magdalen's, and part of St. James's, St. Botolph's, and St. Giles's; on the east, Greenstead; And, on the north, part of St. Botolph's, and St. James's.

This Parish is within the Manor of the Corporation, which hath there some profitable pieces of Waste, leased out for Coal-yards, Limekilns, a Saltcote, &c. that bring in a considerable yearly Income to the Mayor and Commonalty.

Three hundred and forty-three persons were rated here to the Poll-tax, in the year 1692.

And the number of Acres of Land in this Parish, returned in 1599, was above Thirty.

There are in this parish an hundred and thirty-seven Houses or Tenements.

What renders this Parish most considerable, and brings thither a pretty good Traffick, is the Conveniency of Water-Carriage: For the Channel that comes up to it, opens into the German Sea, and the Tide flows here from five to seven feet at a neap, and nine or ten feet at a spring Tide; so that a Vessel of about ninety tuns, loaded, can come up with ease to the Key [S]. And this is what hath made Colchester pass for a Port, and be honoured as such, tho' the Town is in reality eight or nine Miles distant from the nearest Sea-shore. Its Arms as a Port, are a Raven [T], and the chief Magistrate, before we had Bailiffs, was named Port-reve, as I have observed above.

The Goods brought to this Town by water, were wont formerly to be unloaded at the Old Hyth, as hath been shewn under St. Giles's. At what time this old Harbour came to be neglected, and a new one to be made at St. Leonard's, I never could find. But it was before the year 1276: For, the New Hyth is mentioned in some Records of that date [U], being the ancientest Court-Rolls belonging to this Town that are extant.

This being so beneficial an Inlet to Trade, great care was taken to cherish and encourage what thus tended to the Good and Advantage of the Town. For that purpose, all Endeavours were used to keep the Channel clean, and in good repair. What methods were anciently taken for that end, doth not appear upon record. Only an Aid was granted March 4, in the third of K. Edward VI. for and towards the amendment of the Haven, Channel, and Water at the New Heth; which was raised on the Inhabitants of the several Parishes in this Town; and amounted in the whole to 197*l*. The highest Sum paid by any one person, was ten pounds; and the lowest four-pence. But it seems to have been a voluntary contribution (d).

Again, August 2, 1592, It was ordered at an Assembly, That Ten pounds yearly should be paid by the Chamberlain, towards the amendment of the Channel, to Overseers chosen from time to time, who should lay it out thereon: As also the Money received from the Dutch Merchants, for the exportation of Bays, which was twelve pence of every pack; and five pence of every half-pack: And that, the Tuesday next after Michaelmas, four Overseers of the Channel should be chosen to lay out the Money (e).

Since the beginning of the last century, several Acts have passed, for repairing and maintaining the Haven, River, and Channel unto this Town; and for cleansing and making them navigable. The first was November 8, 1623. This Act begins with observing, That the Haven, River, and Channel, had of late years been so filled, choaked, and stopped up between the Hyth-mill and Rowhedge, that Ships could not come up to the accustomed landing-place called the New-Hyth, as used in times past; and was like dayly more and more to decay, if some speedy course and remedy were not taken for the repaying and amending thereof: And, because the Charge to repaire and amend the same was so great, that the Inhabitants were not able to perform it, without some help from such as should come and trade with shipping and merchandises, and arrive within the said Haven, River, and Channel: It was therefore enacted, That, for fifteen years next coming, the Bailiffs of the Town of Colchester, their Deputies, Officers, and Assigns, might receive and take from all persons coming into that Haven, River, and Channel, with Ships, &c. and should load or unload any Vessel, or part thereof, either at Rowhedge, or between Rowhedge and the Hyth, particular sums, mentioned in the Appendix N^o. XI.—To be employed for and towards the maintenance of the said Haven, River, and Channel. And,

The Forfeitures levied for not paving, or neglecting to maintain the pavement of this Town, were by this Act appropriated to the same use.

The next Act for cleansing and making navigable the Channel, was passed in the beginning of the year 1698. By this it appears, That the River and Channel were then so filled, choaked, and stopped up, between the

(d) MS. List in my possession.

(e) See Book of Assemblies, of that date.

[S] Ships of greater burthen might come up, was it not for the Narrowness of the River, which renders it inconvenient for them to wind or turn about.

[T] These Arms are on the Seal affixed to the Foundation Deed of Joseph Elianore's Chantry; which has round the Raven this Inscription, SIGIL. CVSTOD. PORT. COLECEST.

[U] It seems to have been well frequented even in the ancientest Times. For, by an account taken in the 17th of Richard II. of all the Vessels that arrived at the Hyth, it appears, That from the 9th of July to the 29th of December, anno 1393, there came into that Port no less than Seventy-two. MS. penes me.

Hithe-mill and Wivenhoe, and such Points of land in process of time so grown up, that Ships and other Vessels could not come up to the accustomed landing-place; by which means the Inhabitants of this Town were put to great charges for the carriage of their Goods between Wivenhoe and Colchester; which was not only prejudicial to them, but to all other Traders, and would be yet more injurious to them, if some speedy course or Remedy were not taken for Repairing, Amending, and Maintaining the said Channel and River, by Clearing, Cleansing, Deepning and Widening the same, and cutting cross such Point and Points of Land as were so grown up as aforesaid. In order therefore to defray the Charge thereof, it was enacted, That from the 1st day of May, in the year 1698, for and during the space of Twenty-one years thence next ensuing, all Merchants, Owners, or Occupiers of any Goods, Wares, and Merchandizes, brought into the said River and Channel; and landed at, or shipped from, Wivenhoe or the New-Hithe in Colchester, or between either of the said Places; should pay the Duties and Sums following; i. e. For every Bay, Say, or Perpetuane, One half-penny per piece; For every tun of Timber, Six-pence; For every tun of Chalk for Lime, Three-pence; For every tun of paving Stone, Six-pence; For every tun of all other kind of Stones, or of Tobacco-pipe-clay, Ashes, or Pan-tyles, and for every Chalder of Fullers-earth, or Chalder of Sea-coal, Twelve-pence; For every tun of Oyl, Three shillings; For every tun of Wines or Brandies, Five Shillings; and for every tun of all other Goods, Wares, and Merchandizes, not before particularly expressed, Two Shillings; And so after the same rate and proportion for every greater or lesser quantities.

And in order to make the said Channel and River more convenient, navigable, and passable for Ships and Vessels from Wivenhoe up to the New Hithe, It was further enacted, That it should and might be lawful for the Mayor and Commonalty, their assigns and workmen, to cut all the Land and Ground, which the said Mayor and Aldermen should have assigned and laid out for such Channel of the said River, not exceeding One hundred foot in breadth; and to make new, or larger, all such Cuts, Trenches, or Passages for water, in, upon, or through, such Land or Ground, as they should think fit or necessary for the better effecting and carrying on the said Undertaking; making satisfaction to the occupiers, and proprietors of such land and ground (f).

By virtue of this Act, the Channel was cleaned and enlarged between the years 1698 and 1709 [W].

But large sums having been borrowed upon the credit of the Act, for the more speedy and effectual compleating of the work; which, by reason of the Duties falling short, could not be repaid within the twenty-one years: And, particularly, there remaining due to the Executor of William Hewer, late of Clapham in Surrey, Esq; 1200l. that could not be discharged, nor the Channel effectually repaired and amended, unless a farther provision was made by Parliament. Therefore, in 1719, an Act was obtained, for enlarging the time granted by the last Act, and for making it more effectual. It was to last from May 1, 1719, to May 1, 1740. And the Duties thereby granted, were, One Moiety or Half part of the Duties granted by the former Act; charged upon all such Goods, Wares, and Merchandizes, as were in the said former Act mentioned, and no more.

It likewise enacted, That all Ships and Vessels taking Ballast in the river Colne, should be obliged to take the same of such person or persons as should be from time to time appointed by the Commissioners; which Ballast should be got in the Channel and not elsewhere.

And, That it might be lawful for the Mayor and Commonalty, or their assigns, at any time, during the continuance of this Act, to make and use a Track-path, for one or more horse or horses, from Wivenhoe to the Hithe at Colchester on the one side of the River, and from Fingringhoe to the said Hithe on the other side, as the said Mayor and Commonalty should think necessary; first agreeing with the respective Proprietors of the Land for the same.

Finally, All sort of Corn or Grain was declared exempt from any Channel-Duty whatsoever, imposed by this Act.

Some time after, a Lock was erected on the Channel, which was found of very great use and service. But because it could not be supported, and the Channel be kept cleansed and fit for Navigation, unless some further Provision were made by Parliament for the same; an Act therefore was procur'd, in 1740, for further enlarging the Term granted by the two last Acts. After continuing and confirming them for ever (except where altered by this Act) It declared and enacted, That the Duty granted and to be raised and continued, by virtue of this Act, shall be Three-pence a Chalder, and no more for every Chalder of Sea-coal, and so after the same rate for any greater or less quantity, which said Duty shall continue, and be in full force and effect, from the first day of May 1740, for and during the space and term of Forty years, and no longer; and no other Duty except the Arrears under the said recited Acts, or either of them, shall be raised upon any other Goods, Wares, Merchandizes, or Things whatsoever [X].

And to prevent Damage being done to the (f) This Act is printed at length in the Publick Statutes, 9 and 10 Will. III. c. 19.

[W] The Undertaker was Mr. Thomas Coolidge; and Mr. John Wheely the Overseer. In 1698, Four thousand pounds were borrowed upon the credit of the Act: And about September 1701, fifteen hundred pounds more were borrowed of William Hewer, Esq; and John Crawley, Gent. on assignment of the Channel-duties. In August 1707, and July 1708, further sums of Money were wanting, for compleating and finishing the Cleansing of the Channel, which were ordered to be borrowed on security of the Channel-duties. When the Work was undertaken, directions were given, That every Floor of Earth should contain eighteen feet. — The Collector of the Channel-Duty at the Hyth was also ordered to have 1s. in the pound, and the Collector at Wivenhoe 1s. 6d. in the pound. Books of Assemblies.

[X] At the time of the passing of this Act, there re-Lock,

Lock, or Gates, it enjoined, That none should open or shut the Gates of the said Lock, but such person or persons only as should be duly appointed by the Commissioners, on pain of forfeiting to the Mayor and Commonalty any sum not exceeding Ten pounds.

It being found necessary, that a further sum of Money should be raised for repairing the said Lock, and making and preserving the River or Channel more fit for Navigation; by another Act, passed in 1749-50, it was enacted, That from May 1750, for the term of 30. years, and from thence to the end of the then Session of Parliament, there should be raised and paid for every chaldron of sea-coal, the further and additional Duty of Three pence a chaldron, over and above the Duty of Three pence before granted; and so after the same rate for any greater or less quantity; and no other duty shall be raised upon any Goods, Wares, Merchandise, or Things whatsoever.

This is the substance of the several Acts passed at any time for cleansing and making our River navigable.

As the Duties payable to the Corporation for the Navigation on this River, have always been a considerable Article, particular Care hath therefore been taken of what turn'd to so good an Advantage. And, first, for the better securing of them, It hath ever been a Rule, That all Wares and Merchandises imported to, or exported from, this Town, should be loaded and unloaded at Wivenhoo, or the Hyth, and no where else [Y]. Next, a Water-Bailiff hath been appointed, many Years, for the more ready and effectual Collecting the Duties of the Channel. As it may be a pleasure to the Reader, to know what yearly sum these Duties have been lett for at different times, I shall give a short account of it in the Note [Z]. A Table of the antient Toll, Customs, Fees, and Duties, payable, and due to the Mayor and Commonalty of Colchester, and their Water-Bailiff; for all manner of Goods, &c.

(g) See above, Book I. ch. i. § 2. (h) Oath-book, p. 87, and Rot. 8 Hen. IV. rot. 32. (i) Oath-book, p. 62. Leases 2 Jac. I. Assemb. B. 1723, p. 147.

mained in the hands of the Receiver-general of the Channel Duties Eleven hundred pounds; which the Act directed to be laid out, either in the purchase of Lands, or on a Mortgage, in the name of some Trustees: And the Rents, or Interest, of the same, to be applied by the Commissioners in the support and maintenance of the Lock, and cleansing of the Channel, for ever hereafter. See the Act.

[Y] In the Rolls, 15 Hen. VI. rot. 2. several persons are presented,—quod faciunt Mercata sua apud le Rowhegge, Fyngrynghe, Alford, Bryglyngsey, & in aliis locis adjacentibus super colteras Aque predictæ — ad maximam derogationem & prejudicium Mercati Nove Hethe ville predictæ, contra Statutum Domini Regis in hoc casu provisi, et ad dampnum & lesionem manifestam Libertatis Ville predictæ, & totius Communitatis ejusdem.

And in the Statute 9 and 10 Will. III. is this Clause. — “And to the intents that that the said Payments and Sums of Money may with the greater Ease, Security, and less Charge be collected and paid, and his Majesty less lyable to be defrauded in his Duties and Customs: Be it enacted, That from and after the said first day of May (1698) no Goods, Wares, and Merchandizes (except Wood or Timber) shall be Laded or Unladed at any Key or Wharf, in the said River or Chanel, but only at Wivenhoe, and the New-Hithe, aforesaid, upon pain of forfeiting unto the said Mayor and Commonalty, and their Successors, the Sum of Five pounds.”

[Z] Ann. 13; 6 and 1366, All the Customs and Toll due to the King and Commonalty of this Town, as well by land brought unto, and carried from the Port of Colchester, by water, was settled Octob. 26, 1574, and renewed March 2, 1668-9, is in the Appendix [A].

There is a Custom-house here, in which, for the better securing and management of his Majesty's Revenues, are the following Officers. A Collector: A Comptroller: A Surveyor: Two Land-waiters; one here, and one at Wivenhoo: A Supervisor of the Customs: and Three Riding-officers: Four Coal-meters, and a Corn meter. — There belong also two Sloops to this Custom-house, in each of which are about thirty men.

An Account is given above of the Hyth bridge, and of the Time when it was made (g). Before that, there was only a Foot-bridge, erected about the year 1406 or 1407, by the consent of the Bailiffs and Twenty-four of the Council of the Town: Who covenanted with those Inhabitants of the Hyth, to whom Liberty was given of building it, That it should not be above eighteen inches wide; and never be made fit for horse or carts to go over: If it were otherwise, or proved any prejudice to this Town, it was immediately to be demolished. And it was to be so built, as not to hinder the Navigation up to East-bridge (h).

There was anciently a Water-mill here, consisting of Two Corn-mills, and Two Fulling-stocks; which being found a hurt to the Channel, was taken down (i).

The Dukes of Norfolk had formerly an Estate in this parish, in Houses and Land (k); some of the Houses were lately in the possession of Mr. James Dean.

The Church of St. Leonard's is neat, well proportioned, and well built. It consists of a Nave tyled, as is also the Chancel; and two Isles, which go the whole length both of the Church and Chancel, leaded. The Roof of the Church, and of the Side Isles, is of exquisite Workmanship. The Roof of the Chancel is wainscotted, and on the boards are painted the Patriarchs or Anas by water, — were let — for 35*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per annum. Rot. Cur. 30 and 40 Edw. III. rot. 1.

The same let 8 Hen. IV. (1407) — for 40*l.* per annum. Rot. Cur. rot. 1.

All the Customs belonging to the New-Hyth, with cranes, and houses, and the measures and weights, keyage, wharfage, having, and lugging, with the great Hall, and a garden — let for 48*l.* per ann. 1411. Rot. 13 Hen. IV. rot. 1.

The same, anno 1419. Rot. 7 Hen. V. rot. 1.

In 1428 — for 45*l.* Rot. 7 Hen. VI. rot. 1.

In 1436, and 1443 — for 52*l.* Rot. 15 & 22 ejusd. rot. 1.

In 1458 — for 43*l.* Rot. 37 ejusd. rot. 1.

In 1464 — for 33*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Rot. 4 Edw. IV. rot. 1.

In 1473 — for 32*l.* Rot. 13 ejusd. rot. 1.

In 1476 and 1484 — for 35*l.* Rot. 16 ejusd. rot. 1.

In 1610, the Water-bayliffship — let for 42*l.* Assemb. B. Nov. 5.

In 1642, the same — Fine 101*l.* Rent 44*l.* Ass. B.

In 1687, the Water-bayliffship of Colchester, with the anchorage, groundage, keyage, cranage, wharfage, measurage, cartage, luffage, underlayage, hallage, and underlayage, &c. the Town-house, with all the Ware-houses, &c. a Coal-yard, the Town-key, and the Crane, let for — Fine 50*l.* — Rent 42*l.* 10*s.*

In 1705 — Fine 100*l.* — Rent 42*l.* 10*s.*

In 1736 — Fine 250*l.* — Rent 100*l.* — Leases,

[A] See Appendix. No. XII. Compared with the Book of Assemblies, March 2, 16689.

cestors of Jesus Christ, according to his Genealogy in St. Matthew and St. Luke.

There are also handsome old Stalls remaining in the Chancel. On the North side of the Altar-piece is this Inscription. "This Church was repaired and beautified, and the Altar-piece painted in the year of our Lord 1724. Alderman Robert Merry, Daniel Cock, Gent. Churchwardens."

Opposite to the Church, stands a large Parsonage-House, with a good garden behind it. The Rector hath Three Acres and a half of Glebe; but the Parish being small, the certain Profits of the Living are but inconsiderable. The Value of it, as return'd to the Governors of Qu. Anne's Bounty, is but 16*l.* per ann. Consequently it is discharg'd from First-fruits and Tenths.

This Rectory was in the gift of St. John's Abbey 'till the suppression of that House; when it came to the Crown. In 1702, Bishop Compton obtain'd it by way of exchange, as is related above under H. Trinity; And in 1714, George Earl of Northampton, and his kinsman the Hon. Hatton Compton Esquire, conveyed it, among others, to Balliol-college, in Oxford.

For many years it was held by sequestration; the last who held it thus being the Rev. Barnabas Symson, late Rector of St. James's. After his decease, George Kilby A. B. was presented thereto by the Crown, and had institution May 21, 1742. Upon his resignation, Stephen Aldrich B. A. was presented by Balliol-college, and instituted 28 Feb. 1753 [C]. And John Bree, M. A. 1761, upon Ste. Aldrich's cession.

Gilbert de Kellesthule was Rector of this Church in 1310 (l). He is not mentioned by Mr. Newcourt.

There were two Chantries in this Church before the Reformation; one founded by - - - Barwick; and another by Edmund Harmanfon: Of both which an Account is given below (m).

CHAP. III.

Parishes within the Liberty.

HAVING thus finished my Account of the Twelve Parishes that are properly within this Town, I now come to describe those Four that are at some small distance from it, but within its Liberties. They are,

Lexden.
St. Michael's Mile-end.
Greenstead; and
Bere-Church, alias West-Doniland.

(l) Rot. Cur. 4^o Edw. II.

(m) See Book II. ch. v. § 1.

(o) See Domesday, Appendix to Book I. N^o iii.

(p) Stow's Annales, p. 222. edit. 1605. 4^o.

and p. 152. ed. 1631, fol. He calls him Hubert, but I think it should be Hamo.

[C] There is a Quit-rent, or Fee farm-rent, of Five shillings per annum, paid to the Crown for the Rectory of the New-Hythe near Colchester, which hath been paid by the Church-wardens time out of mind.—And also a Fee-farm-rent of One shilling, paid by the Church-wardens afore-said to the Crown, for a Parish-house in St. Leonard's Parish.

[D] The former signifies a Salmon; and the latter a Lax, which is a great fish in the river Rhine.

[E] Dún is a general Celtic word for all Fortifications made on Eminences, and the Eminences themselves. J.

SECT. I.

LEXDEN.

Of these Lexden is the largest and most populous. It stands about a mile West from the Town, in the road to London. On the east, it is bounded by St. Mary's, part of H. Trinity, of St. Peter's, and Mile-end: On the north by this latter, and part of West Bergholt: And on the west and south, by Stanway, and part of St. Mary's. From whence the name is derived, cannot easily be discovered. The learned William Baxter imagined, it was so called from LEG, that is the 14th Legion quartered here (n). And a Friend fancied, it took its denomination from Lex or Law, because the Hundred-Court used to be held there. But I think both without sufficient foundation. For, as the termination den, or dun, is plainly Saxon; the former signifying a Valley, and the latter a Hill, both which agree to Lexden; it is hardly credible that the first syllable should be fetched from the Latin. 'Tis therefore most probably a Saxon word entirely. Now as læx, or lex, have no signification applicable to this place [D]; and as it is called Lessendena in Domesday-book; I conjecture that the Name was formed from lære, a pasture, lessa or læssa, less, and den a valley: Or else it may be derived from læc, signifying a stranger, and dun a Hill [E]; that is, from the Incampments and Fortifications of the Strangers, viz. the Romans, in and about this Place.

However it be; At the time of William the Conqueror's Survey, Lessenden as it is there called, was only a Berewit [F] i. e. a village or hamlet, in Stanway-Manor, as Leyre also was. In Edward the Confessor's reign, it contained within 4 Hides, 6 Villans, 10 Bordars, 4 Servants, 4 Carucates, held by the Tenents, and was worth 22 l. At the time of the Survey, it contained 5 Villans, 12 Bordars, 5 Servants, 2 Carucates in demesne, and 3 belonging to the Tenents; Mast for 100 hogs, 11 acres of meadow, 2 mills, and 16 socmen in 2 hides and 36 acres: Always 2 carucates and a half. And was worth 33 l. besides 3 l. fine (o).

When it was separated from the capital Manor of Stanway, and made a distinct Manor, I cannot learn. But in the reign of K. Hen. II. it was in

1. H. - - - de St. Clare (p), whose only daughter became the Wife of
 2. William de Langvallei, or Lanvalley.
- Then it was held by
3. William, the Son; whose only daughter Hawyse [G] was married to Toland's Hist. of the Druids, in his Posthumous Works, Vol. I. p. 85.

[F] Villula, Hamleta Manerii seu Dominii, Manerium minus ad majus pertinens. Berwita, a bep, dominus & pira multa, ac si diceretur, Pars manerii remotior, quæ tamen sub Domini multa & animadversione, hoc est, sub cognitione & districtu (ut olim loquebantur) dignoscitur. Spelman Glossar. sub voce Beruica.

[G] She was buried in the Chapter-house of St. John's at Colchester. Ibid.

4. John de Burgh, son and heir to Hubert Earl of Kent; who had by her a son named
5. John (q). This John died the 8th of Edward I. an. 1279, or 1280, leaving three daughters.
 1. Hawyse, the eldest, married Robert de Grelle: And Dervorgill the second was the wife of
6. Robert Lord Fitz-walter, who had this Lordship with her [H].
The successive Lords of it in this family, were,
7. Robert, who died in 1328.
8. John died Octob. 18, 1361.
9. Walter died in Septemb. 1386.
10. Walter, died in 1408.
11. Walter, died in 1432, leaving only two daughters, Elizabeth, and Anne [I], Anne was married to
12. Thomas Ratcliffe Esq; who had this Manor with her. He died about the year 1440 (r) leaving issue
13. John his son and heir, very young, and probably under the guardianship of Sir Thomas Cobham Kt. For, Sir Thomas presented to the Rectory of Lexden from the year 1440 to 1461 [K]: about which time his ward, Mr. Ratcliffe, seems to have come of age. Because in the 39th of K. Henry VI. he obtain'd a pardon of intrusion, for entering upon the lands of his inheritance without livery (s). Some time after, he was knighted; and in the first of K. Henry VII. anno 1485, summoned to Parliament, by the title of Lord Fitz-walter (t). But unhappily engaging in a conspiracy to set Perkin Warbeck on the throne, in 1494; he was convicted of high-treason, and carried to Calais, where he was soon after beheaded. Upon his attainder, this Manor, with the rest of his estates, became forfeited to the Crown (u). But his son
14. Robert Ratcliffe was restored to his honour, Novemb. 3, 1505. And not only his attainder was reversed, in 1509, by Act of Parliament; but he was also created, July 18, 1525, Viscount Fitz-walter, and Decemb. 28, 1529, Earl of Suffex. He died Nov. 27, 1542.
15. Henry, his son and successor, died Feb. 17, 1556.
16. Thomas, son of this Henry, died June 19, 1583. And
17. Henry, brother of Thomas died April 10, 1593. The last of this Family.

18. Robert, son of Henry, died Sept. 22, 1629, without issue (w) [L].

Of him, Sir Tho. Lucas, mention'd above under St. Giles's, purchased, about the year 1612, this Manor and Estate (x) for his eldest son

19. Thomas, born, as is aforesaid, before marriage. He was knighted by K. Charles I. and resided some time here. But, during the civil wars, he was sequestred for Delinquency [i. e. for not coming into the Parliament's measures] and the standing Committee of this County acted for him (y). He married Mary, daughter of Sir John Byron, Knt. (z) and had by her, Charles, Thomas and Robert. . . . Sir Thomas died . . . and was succeeded in the Manor by his eldest son

20. Charles, who became Baron Lucas, upon the death of John Lord Lucas, in 1671, according to the limitation above express'd (a). Having no seat, he converted a Messuage in this parish, called the Tenter-House and Lady-yard, [seized by his Steward, at a Court holden Novemb. 9, 1676, for want of repair, with four closes of pasture adjoining, containing 15 acres] (b), into a convenient, tho' not a handsome Habitation, and built brick-walls round the Gardens. His Lordship married Penelope, youngest daughter of Francis Leke Earl of Scarisdale (c), by whom he had issue Anne married to . . . Carey Esq; to whom she was second wife; and by him mother of . . . Carey, Lord Falkland: (*) and Penelope; which latter, on the 17th of July 1690 (d), was married to Isaac Selfe of Benacre in Wiltshire Esq; and dying Feb. 10, 1701-2, aged 38, after having had seven children, was buried in this Church. Her father, Charles Lord Lucas, died in the year 1688, without issue male. Upon which the Title came to his brother Robert; who having been bred up to arms, was made Lieutenant of the Tower of London, upon K. James's Abdication; being esteemed a man of honour, and a lover of his country; and died without issue January 31, 1704-5 (e). He never was possessed of this Manor; for

21. Penelope, Lady Lucas, relict of Charles Lord Lucas, who had an estate in it for life, outlived him, and enjoyed it 'till her decease.

A moiety of this Manor being settled upon her daughter Mrs. Selfe, and her heirs for (q) Sir W. Dugdale's Baronage. Vol. I. p. 633.

p. 285. (r) Idem, ibid. and Summons to Parliament, &c. p. 477.

also Francis Lord Verulam's Life of Henry VII. under the years 1493, 1494. and Hall's and Holinshed's Chronicles, under those respective years. (s) Dugdale's Baron. Vol. II. p. 288.

Thomas Lucas, Esq; was held 9 August, 11 Jac. I. (t) Court-Rolls. The first Court of Vol. IV. p. 244. (u) See above, under St. Giles's. (v) Ar. Collins's Peerage, Edit. 1735.

(c) Dugdale's Bar. Vol. II. p. 450. 474. (*) Peerage of England, ed. 1711. Vol. II. Part 2. p. 355. (d) MS.

penes me; and Register-book of the parish. (e) Complete Hist. of England, Vol. III. by Dr. Kennet, ed. 1719.

p. 533. and Ab. Boyer's Hist. of Q. Anne, in the Annual Lists, A^o 1704.

[H] Ibid. p. 221. He saith elsewhere, p. 608, 700, that it was Hawyse, the eldest, married to Robert de Grelle, which had this Manor. Perhaps she had it first, and then dying without issue, it came to Dervorgill and her heirs.

[I] Elizabeth, his widow, was after his decease re married to William Massy, by whom she had Joane wife of Sir Robert Fenys. Inquis. 4 Edw. IV.

[K] See Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 389.—Sir Thomas is also mentioned in the Court-Rolls of this Town, Rot. 36. Hen. VI. rot. 13. where he is presented, for suffering a Bridge, called Park-bridge near Lexden-park to be ruinous—quem quidem Pontem Tho. Cobham miles ratione terrarum suarum ponti illi adjacentium reparare & facere debet & tenet, & quod idem Thomas & omnes antecessores sui Domini Manerii de Lexden a tempore quo memoria hominum non existit dictum pontem reparare & facere debuerunt.

[L] The Arms of Fitz-Walter were, Or, a Fesse between two Cheveronels, gules.—And the Arms of Ratcliffe, Argent, a Bend engrailed, sable.

This Manor was held by these two noble Families in capite, by Barony. MS. penes me.

ever, the Manor and Estate were sold soon after Mrs. Selve's death; and purchased towards the end of the year 1701 (f), by 22. Samuel Rawstorn of London Esq; who resided here; and dying Feb. 17, 1719-20, was buried in the Family-vault at St. Lawrence-Jewry, London. By his wife, Sarah daughter of Thomas Papillon of Acris, in Kent, Esq; he had issue, 1. Jane, married to the Rev. Edward Arrowsmith, M. A. Rector of St. Olave, Hart-street, London. 2. Sarah, wife of the Rev. Thomas Bullock, D. D. Dean of Norwich. 3. Elizabeth, wife of the Rev. James Kilner, M. A. one of his Majesty's Chaplains in Ordinary, Rector of Lexden, and Vicar of Tolethunt-Darcy. 4. Susannah, widow and relict of John Eldred of Oliver's in Stanway Esq; 5. Hester, married to the Rev. William Bree, M. A. Rector of Mark's-Tay, and Tendring in this County. 6. Jerom, who married Anna-Maria daughter of William Turner of Canterbury Esq; but died without Children. And 7. Thomas.

23. Mrs. Sarah Rawstorn above-mentioned, having an Estate in this Manor for life, enjoyed it till her decease, which happened January 13, 1739-40. Upon which it descended to her son,

24. Thomas Rawstorn Esq; the present Lord of this Manor; who married Anne daughter of John Fawler Esq; one of the Commissioners of the Navy, by whom he had two daughters—Anne—and Sarah; of which last child she died in childbed Novemb. 28, 1746 [M]. Sarah, the youngest daughter, is since deceas'd. And their father has to his second wife Sophia, one the daughters of Edward Lisle of Crux-Easton in the county of Southampton Esq; a very agreeable family.

Lexden-lodge is the Manor-house.

The Lord of this Manor did anciently owe suit and service at the Law-hundred Courts of this Town; and was amerced when he did not perform that service (g).

Circumstances are so altered from what they originally were, when Lexden was only a Berewite to Stanway-manor; that the Lord of Stanway-hall-manor doth at present owe to this, fine, suit of Court, and a pair of gilt spurs, or a yearly rent of Six-pence (h).

Belonging to the Lord of this Manor there was anciently a very fine Park in this parish; the greatest part of which lay on the North side of the River, opposite to the Shepen. How far it extended towards the East, or Bergholt-road, appears from hence, that the Five acres of land in Lexden, belonging to the Free-school in this Town, were adjoining to the Park-pale (i).

There is another Manor in this parish, called Mot's, from a family of that name. About the year 1406, it was in the Spice family of Bocking: Clement Spice held it in 1485 [N]. And afterwards the Sayer family, from the 34th of Henry VIII. (k) till 1634, when John Sayer Esq; conveyed it to James Lemyng of Colchester Gent. who married Mary, eldest daughter to Sir William Batten Knt. (l). And whose daughter Mary being married to Sir Isaac Rebow, brought this Manor into that family. It was lately in his grandson Charles-Chamberlain Rebow Esq; and now in his daughter, married to Capt. Adams. But it is hardly known to be a Manor at present.

The Abbey of Waltham Holy-Cross had some Lands in this Parish [O] near Sheet-street; on account of which, the Abbot was obliged to repair part of New-bridge (m). After the dissolution of the Monasteries, they came into the Sayer-family by grant or purchase (n).

There were also some lands in this parish belonging to Heynes's and Barwick's Chuntries, which were purchased by the Bailiffs and commonalty, at the suppression (o); and sold by them, soon after, to Thomas Rich of this parish. Some of these lands are copyhold, and known by the name of Lower Butlers, containing twelve acres (p). Loveland, otherwise Lukins, belonged to the same Tho. Rich, and before to Robert Goffe, and to Thomas Bonham Esq; now to the Rev. Jeremiah Johnson.

On the South-side of the London road, just at the top of Lexden-hill, against the hedge that parts Talcoat's eighteen acres from Crossfield, and almost opposite to Horsee or Stone-Crouch-lane; antiently stood a famous Cross; built of brick and stone, part of the pedestal of which was remaining within the memory of man. The reason why I take notice of it, is, because 'tis frequently mentioned in ancient Writings, and some of them have a particular reference thereto.

Another, named Lamb's-Cross, in this parish, stood on the Aldham-road; at the Four ways, of which one leads down to Newbridge.

Finally, Pedders-cross stood on the Heath, at the Turning leading to Gosbeck's.

On Lexden-Heath, partly in this parish, and partly in that of Stanway, there are very considerable Works and Intrenchments [P], which evidently appear to be Remains of the Castra, Castella, and Præsidia, mentioned by Tacitus, that were placed about the ancient Colonia-Camulodunum (q). From Lexden-heath they extend East, a good way towards Colchester; what is called Hollow-lane, adjoining to the Commons, being part of them. And thence they keep to the London-road, and have some parts corre-

(f) The first Court-Baron of S. Rawstorn, Esq; was held April 8, 1702. Court-rolls. See Rot. Cur. 30 Edw. III. rot. 1. and 9. Pro Manerio de Lexden. Rot. 33 Edw. III. rot. 1. Rot. 40 Edw. III. rot. 1. Rot. 46 and 47 Edw. III. rot. 6. Rot. 49 Edw. III. rot. 1 and 2. (g) Rental. (h) See below, Book III. ch. 3. § 1. (i) T. Munne's extracts MS. p. 8. (j) See Epitaphs, in St. Peter's. (k) Rot. 46 and 47 Edw. III. rot. 6. (l) See above, p. 7. (m) See Book II. ch. 5. § 1. (n) Court-Rolls, in 1663. 1676, &c. (o) Tacit. Ann. xiv. c. 32. & Vit. Agricola, c. 16. See above, Book I. ch. ii. § 3.

[M] The Arms of Rawstorn are, Per fesse, Argent and gules, A Tower triple-tower'd, of the first Q.

[N] Thomas de la More was rated here to the Tallage 6 Edw. II. at 60s. Rot. Tallag. penes me.

We find this estate described as one messuage, 160 acres of arable, 10 of meadow, 10 of pasture, 16 of alder, and 23. 5d. rent, holden of John Lord Denham. Inquis. 1 Ric. III.

[O] Called Aula de Waltham, in the same Tallage-roll.

[P] Ingentia Castrorum vestigia, as the learned Mr. W. Baxter rightly terms them. Glossar. sub voce Camulodunum.

sponding

sponding, as I am inform'd, on the North-side of the River. They cross again the same London-road, at the extremity of the Heath, on the West, and thence proceed Northerly to the place called King Coel's Kitchin, which was part of them. They seem to have been continued from thence towards the River; but the culture of the Land hath almost defaced them in some places.

In the year 1722, they were surveyed and measured by the Rev. Mr. Thomas Lufkin and Payler Smith Esq; and their Survey is given below in the Note [2]. By a Perambulation taken of the Liberties of this Town in 1563, it appears, that these Entrenchments went then under the name of Grymes Ditch (r): which is the same as is vulgarly given to Agricola's, or Antoninus Wall, in Scotland [R].

The present number of Houses or Families in the parish, is about an hundred and twenty. In 1692, Two hundred and Forty persons were rated here to the Poll-tax.

Lexden Church stands on the South-side of the London-road, about the middle of the village. It is of one pace, as is also the Chancel; and both are tyled. But, on the North-side of the Church, there is a little isle, or chapel, running North and South in length; on the top of which stands a clock. At the West-end is a spire shingled, containing one Bell. This Church is a Rectory, and hath been always appendant to the Manor, tho' several Presentations have been made by other persons than the Lords, as may be seen in Mr. Newcourt. In the King's Books it is valued at 12 l.

Thomas was Rector here in 1356 (s).
Stephen Nettles, Rector in 1644. But was sequestred, and Gabriel Wyersdale put in his room (r).
George Downe in 1657 (u).

Nom. Reg. Libr.		Patroni.
Compton	Richard Skingle 10 Aug. 1706. per mort. Cuffley.	Sam. Rawstorn Arm.
Gibson. (oo)	James Kilner, M. A. Sept. 10, 1729. per mort. Skingle.	Sarah Rawstorn vid.

MILE-END.

SECT. II.

MILE-END claims the next place to Lexden, as being the most considerable of the three Parishes within the Liberties of Colchester, that remain to be taken into consideration. The ground of the name, is the same as of Mile-end in Stepney-parish; namely, because this is a Mile from Colchester, as that is from London. In some ancient Records it is written Miland (w), and la Mylande (x); but that seems to be owing to the Ignorance of the Times.

On the West, this parish is bounded by Lexden: On the North, by Great Horseley, Boxstead, and Langham: On the East, by part of Ardley, of

(r) See above, Book I. ch. v. § 3.
Book, penes me. (u) Rate.
46 & 47 Edw. III. rot. 3. &c.

(s) Rot. 30. Edw. III. rot. 3. (t) Committee's, or Sequestrators
(oo) v. Tollethunt-Darcy. (w) Rot. 25 Edw. III. rot. 1. (x) Rot.

[2]		Beginning on the left hand as you go down Lexden-hill.
o 1	S. W. 20	From two Chains East of Lexden Town's-end, A Roman High-way crosses the Road which points from thence N. E. 20 one way. The other way I follow it to Lexden Heath.	m. fur. ch.	m. fur. ch.
o 2	S. E. 30	A Specula bears N. W. 66 at 1 1/2 furlong: Another East at 1 furlong.	o 2 50	o 2 50
o 3	S. W. 70	A Ridge (immediately not apparent) stretches N. E. 70 towards Colchester.	o 5 00	o 2 50
o 4	N. W. 06	This place is the Entrance of a Roman Camp; One Ridge bears S. E. 06. The other I follow.	1 2 15	o 5 15
	W.	Here two other Ridges begin, on the L. equal to that I am upon. Cross the Road from Lexden to Hickford-bridge.	1 4 10
o 5	S. W. 85	Come into the London-road between Lexden and Stanway. The three Ridges now disappear Northward, by reason of the Ground's being ploughed and occupied. I follow now the London-road.	1 6 55	o 6 15
o 6	S. E. 05	Come now to another Ridge that runs Parallel to the last; It stretches Northwards visibly: I follow it Southwards, and leave the London-road.	2 2 40	o 2 10
o 7	S. E. 40	Cross the Road again between Lexden and Hickford-bridge.	2 5 70
o 8	S. E. 02	Stanway Ch. bears N. W. 79.	2 6 90	o 4 50
		An intire Ridge strikes off S. W. 43. which crosses the Road between Colchester and Malden, 3 furl. East of Stanway-hall, and leaves Olivers 2 1/2 furl. Left to Crosses the River, and in all probability continues to W. Mersey.	2 7 20	o 0 30
o 9	N. E. 50	Here another Ridge comes in and unites with this, and bears S. W. 26. and whether it continues into W. Mersey, or turns some other way I am very uncertain at present.—I now follow the Ridge that comes in	3 2 10
o 10	N. E. 08	 (o 5 20)	3 4 40	o 0 70
o 11	N. E. 32		3 6 00	o 1 60
o 12	N. E. 75		3 6 80	o 0 80
o 13	N. W. 06	Another Ridge bears S. E. 06. from hence, but to what place I know not yet.	3 7 60	o 0 80
		Clofe to o4 above.	4 0 05	o 0 45
Taken by the Rev. T. Lufkin, and Payler Smith, Esq; July 12, 1722.

[R] See Camden's Britannia, Edit. 1722. Vol. II. col. 1222. 1227. 1283. and especially the accurate Mr. J. Horfley's Britannia Romana; and Mr. Gordon's Itinerarium Septentrionale.

2 L

St.

St. Botolph's, of St. James's, and Greenstead : And on the South, by part of St. Botolph's, of St. James's, All Saints, St. Nicholas's, St. Martin's, and St. Peter's.

It is of a large Extent, especially from North-East to South-West, and contains a great quantity of ground. But it being quite a country Parish, the number of Persons charged in it to the Poll-tax, in 1692, was but ninety-four. However, many Houses, or rather Cottages, have been erected in several parts of it, since.

The most considerable Estate in this parish, is that which is known by the name of Mile-end-Heath, and the Severals ; but anciently was called King's-wood, and King's-wood-heath, because it anciently belonged to the King. A great part of it was a Wood, but is now converted into arable Land, which is properly the Severals ; that is Separate, and not common Ground : and the rest a Heath, as it is now.

It was originally part of the Royal Forest, and of the King's demesnes ; and was granted to the Burgeffes of Colchester, either by K. Henry I. or K. Stephen, for a rent or fee-farm of Forty Shillings a year. But, about the year 1168, it came into the hands of K. Henry II. (tho' we are not told upon what account) and, in consideration of that, an abatement of the yearly sum of forty shillings was made in the fee-farm of this Town (y). After that, it was for some time granted to the Keeper of Colchester-castle, as appears by the Record below [S]. A Perambulation of it was taken in the 26th of Edward I. which is placed in the Appendix (z). Thus it continued in the Crown 'till March 4, 1534-5, when K. Henry VIII. granted it again to the Bailiffs and Commonalty of the Town of Colchester, for the Sum of One hundred pounds paid into the Hanaper, and in consideration that they should neither require nor have any allowance or deduction of the aforesaid sum of Forty shillings in their fee-farm for the future [T]. His Majesty, I say, granted it to the Bailiffs and Commonalty of this Burgh or Town, under the name of the whole Forest, and Wood-land, Pasture, Waste, Under-wood, Alder-car, Heath, Common, and Affert, of Kingeswood, alias Kingeswood-heth ; and all the Timber and other Trees, Wood and Underwood there growing ; with all and every their appurtenances, profits, and advantages whatsoever ; lying and being in the Towns, Parishes, Hamlets and Places of Mile-end, Lexden, West Bargholt, Boxsted, Horkefley, Langham, and Ardeley, in the County of Essex ; and by what name or names soever, or by whatsoever bounds, limits, or extents the same were known, reputed, called, bounded, or divided, in the Exchequer, or in any other Court of Record ; or by whatever Perambulation or Inquest found, certified, or described. With liberty to the said Bailiffs and Commonalty, and their successors, to cut down and carry away all manner of Trees, Wood, and Underwood, growing in the said Forest and Wood, whenever they shall please. And to have and receive all sorts of Profits, Liberties, and Advantages, in the said Wood or Forest, in as ample manner and form as King Henry and his Progenitors ever did. To have and to hold the said Forest and Wood, with their appurtenances, to the then Bailiffs and Commonalty and their successors for ever, for the yearly rent of One penny, payable at the Exchequer within a fortnight after the feast of St. Michael the archangel, in lieu of all services or demands whatsoever. And with power and liberty to view and perambulate that Forest, &c. and its several members and appurtenances, whenever they shall think proper : And to divide, inclose, and hold them in severalty for ever, as their own proper land, and part of the Liberty of the Town of Colchester, without impeachment or molestation from the king, his heirs or successors, or from any officers of his whatsoever (a). This grant was confirm'd by Act of Parliament.

For some years this Estate continued in the Possession of the Bailiffs and Commonalty ; which elected four Woodwardes every year (whereof two at least were of the Common Council) to take care of the Timber, and other trees (b). And the poor Free-burgeffes had some of the under-wood for firing (c). But, about the year 1576, Qu. Elizabeth sent her letters to the Magistrates of this Town, requesting, but in effect commanding them, to lease King's-wood-heath to Sir Thomas Heneage, Kt. [U]. Accordingly, the Bailiffs and Commonalty granted him a Sixty years lease of the infevered and inclosed part of it, for the consideration of 100*l.* and the yearly rent of 44*l.* Reserving to themselves the fifteen-score acres, open and uninclosed, that were parcel of the said wood, land, and pasture, lying together, from Braiswick towards the road leading from Colchester to Skyping-street (d). At the expiration of this Lease, some of the Free-burgeffes were against Leasing those Lands again ; but, notwithstanding their opposition, they were let to several persons (e), particularly June 2, 1656, to Thomas Lucas, Gent. for 80*l.* per ann. Finally, August 6, 1722, they were leased to Daniel de Foe, for Ninety-nine years, at the yearly rent of 120*l.* and a fine of 500*l.* by the name of Kings-wood-heath, or the Severalls : Brinckley-farme : and Tubbeswick.—The Tenant covenanting to pay all the Land-tax, &c. This (y) See Appendix, N. XIII. of Assemblies, 19 Elizab. Febr. 4.

(z) N. XIV.

(a) See the Patent at length in the Appendix, N. XIII.

(b) Book

(c) Petition to the Privy Council in 1638.

(d) Lease, among the

(e) Book of Assemblies, Octob. 1638, &c. and Town-leases.

[S] Rex Ricardo de Munfichet salutem. Mandamus vobis quod habere faciatis venerabili patri nostro Domino W. London Episcopo, plenam saisinam de Bosco de Kingeswood, qui pertinet & semper pertinuit ad custodiam Castri nostri Colecester. Et servientes nostros, si quos ibi posuistis, statim amoveri faciatis . . . Claus. 2 Hen. III. m. 24. at the Tower.

[T] Whilst it remained in the King's hands the following Clause was always put in the Quietus for the Fee-farm at the Receipt of the Exchequer . . . Et in defectu Boschi de King's-wood xl*s.*

[U] He was Vice Chamberlain, and Treasurer of the Chamber to Q. Elizabeth, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and a Privy-Counsellor. He died 17 Octob. 1594, and was buried in St. Paul's Cathedral. Dugdale's Hist. of St. Paul's, edit. 1716, p. 111.—His Seal affixed to the Lease above-mentioned, is, A Greyhound courant between three rams heads full-fac'd.

Leafe was afterwards assigned to Walter Bernard, Esq; late Alderman and Sheriff of London, and was since in his brother and heir, the Rev. John Bernard Rector of Morton in this County; now in Mr. Wragg, his nephew.

All the Timber that grew upon this Estate was felled some years ago.

This is the most valuable estate belonging to the Corporation. If it was let to advantage, and the adjoining Heath and Waste inclosed by Act of Parliament, it would bring a fine yearly income to the poor Free-burgeses, of much more worth and consequence than their present Commons. Instead of that, 'tis incroach'd upon on all sides.

Besides this Estate of King's-wood and King's-wood-heath, there is within this Parish the Manor of East Mile-end and Abbot's Hall so called because it formerly belonged to the Abbot and Monks of St. Osith in this County: and for which they owed Suit at the Law-hundred-Courts of this Town (f). Upon the surrender of their House on July 28, 1539 (g), K. Henry granted, the same year, this manor, with Mile-end-hall, to Thomas Cromwell afterwards Earl of Essex (b). They reverting to the Crown, upon his attainder which happened the year following, K. Henry, 9 April 1544, granted them to John de Vere Earl of Oxford, to hold in capite (i). But they did not long remain in that noble Family: For

1. John Lucas Esq; died September 13, 1556, seiz'd of the Manor of Mile-end with the appertinances, and certain lands and tenements called Monke-downe, held in capite by the 20th part of a knight's fee, and valued at 13 l. 14 s. 8 d. per Annum (k). In this estate he was succeeded by
2. Sir Thomas Lucas.
3. Sir Thomas.
4. Sir John, created Baron Lucas of Shenfield in Essex, January 3, 1644-5 [W].
His only daughter and heir,
Mary (created Baroness Lucas of Crudwell in Wiltshire, May 7, 1663) being married to
5. Antony De Grey, Earl of Kent, brought this, with other fine Estates, into that family. She died Novemb. 1, 1700, leaving issue
6. Henry, who, upon his father's decease, Aug. 19, 1702, became Earl of Kent; and was

Nom. Reg. Lib.

(nn) Palmer Smythies, M. A. 28 March 1720, per mort. Gul. Smythies.

S E C T. III.

GREEN-STEAD,

or corruptly Grinstead.

THIS is the third of the Out-parishes, within the Liberties of Colchester. On the West, it is bounded by part of St. Botolph's, created, December 14, 1706, Viscount Goodrich, of Goodrich-castle, in Herefordshire, Earl of Harold in the County of Bedford, and Marquis of Kent: And, April 28, 1710, Duke of Kent. His sons Antony, Henry, Lucas, and George, dying before him without issue, his Grace settled his real estates upon Jemima, the only daughter and heir of his eldest daughter Annabella, who had married John Campbel Lord Viscount Glenorchy, son and heir apparent to John Earl of Broadalbin in Scotland, and died on the 2d of March 1726-7.

This Lady Jemima Campel was married in May 1740 to the Honourable Philip Yorke Esq; eldest son to the Right Honourable Philip Baron Hardwick Lord Chancellor of Great Britain; [now Earl of Hardwick;] and created Marchioness de Grey. Upon her grandfather the Duke of Kent's decease, June 5, 1740, she and her consort became possessed of the Manors of Mile-end, Dilbridge, and Greenstead; and of many other noble Estates in this and other Counties.

The Rectory of St. Michael's Mile-end was, and continued in the gift of the Prior and Convent of St. Botolph till their suppression. Then the Advowson of it coming to the Crown, K. Henry VIII. gave it, among the rest of the possessions of that Priory, to Sir Thomas Audeley, Chancellor of the Court of Augmentation, afterwards Lord Chancellor of England (l), who by Will gave it, in 1544, to his brother Thomas Audeley of Bere-Church Esq; He did not keep it long; but, before the year 1551, sold it to John Lucas, Esq; in whose posterity, seated at St. John's Abbey in this Town, it continued for about an hundred and twenty years. From them it descended to Antony, and Henry, Earls and Duke of Kent: and is now in the Rt Hon. Philip Earl of Hardwick, and his Consort the Lady Marchioness de Grey, Baroness Lucas of Crudwell.

The Church is of one pace with the Chancel, and very small: At the West end there is a little wooden Turret, containing one Bell. It is rated in the King's Books at 07 l. 10 s. 00 d.

John Hetoun, not mention'd by Mr. Newcourt, was Rector of this Parish, in 1310 (m).

John Rector in 1372 (n).

Patroni

of St. James's, the Hyth, and St. Giles's: On the South, partly by Wivenhoe, and Elm-stead: On the East, by part of this latter, and of Ardeley: And on the North, by part of St. Botolph's and St. James's.

The name of it seems to be derived from the nature of the place, at the time it receiv'd that appellation; namely, a Green pasture, or uncultivated Place.

(f) Rot. Cur. 25 Edw. III. rot. 1. Rot. 33 Edw. III. rot. 1. &c. Collect. of Records, p. 148.

(g) Bp. Burnet's Hist. of the Reformat. Part. I. Pat. 31 Hen. VIII. p. 5. See Dugdale's Baronage, Vol. II. p. 371.

30 Hen. VIII.

(k) Inquis. 26 Octob. 3 and 4 Phil. & Mar. N^o 40. fol. 158.

(l) Pat. 28 Hen. VIII. ps 4. p. 186.

(m) Rot. Cur. 4 Edw. II. rot. 8.

(n) Rot. 46 and 49 Edw. III. rot. 3.

(nn) v. St. Mary Magdal. Hosp.

[W] See a more particular account of this family under St. Giles's.

There are but Twenty-six houses in this parish: For many have been pull'd down in the Street leading to the Hyth. But in 1692, when there was abundance more standing than now, the number of Persons rated here to the Poll-tax, was One hundred and seven.

In Edward the Confessor's reign, Godric, a freeman, that is a person of note (o), had in this parish four houses with land, four hides, and the Church. But, at the time of William the Bastard's Survey, it was found that Godric's sons had lett the land in four parts. Two of them the King had; and there, in two hides, were two carucates in demesne, 3 villanes, 2 servants, 24 acres of meadow and marsh, and half a mill: value 40 s. Earl Eustace had another part; in which there was one hide, the Church, the fourth part of a mill, and of a meadow: Value 30 s. John Fitz-Waleram had the fourth part, with one hide, the fourth part of a mill, and of a meadow: value 30 s. (p).

This Manor, or at least three parts of it, were afterwards in Eudo Dapifer, who settled them upon his new foundation of St. John's Abbey, with the Tithes of this whole parish (q). But the fourth part of the vill of Greneftede was given (by whom is unknown) to the Prior and Canons of St. Botolph's, and confirmed to them by K. Richard I. (r). Upon the dissolution of the Monasteries, this last part was given to the Lord Chancellor Audeley (s).

But the Manor was granted by King Henry VIII, April 10, 1539, to Thomas Cromwell, soon after created Earl of Essex (t). Upon whose Attainder it reverting to the Crown; K. Henry, December 14, 1540, let a Twenty one years lease of it to Thomas Barvys, or Barnys, at the yearly rent of 17 l. [X]. And confirmed to Sir John Raynsford, a lease of the Herbage and Pannage of Greenstead Park, demised to him by the late Abbot and Monks of St. John's, at 20 s. per annum.

In the year 1557, Bernard Hampton, Esq; one of the Clerks of the Privy Council, purchased of K. Philip and Q. Mary, for the sum of Four hundred and fourteen pounds seven shillings and four-pence, the Reversion of all the premisses; viz. of the site of the Manor of Greenstead, and the whole yearly sum of 17 l. And also the whole House, Manor and Park of Greenstead; belonging to the late attainted Abbot of St. John's. And all the Buildings, Lodges, Deers, Court-leet, &c. in Greenstead Pentrice and the suburbs of Colchester: with all woods, &c. amounting in the whole to the clear yearly value of 43 l. Reserving to his Majesty the bells, and lead (except what was in gutters) and all advowsons, &c. To have and to hold the aforesaid Manor, Park, &c. to the said Bernard Hampton, his heirs and assigns, to their own proper use for ever, by the 40th part of a Knight's-fee: Paying to the King and his heirs 20 l. per Annum (u).

It did not long continue in this family: For, July 2, 1560, Bernardine (w) [or, according to others, (x) Leonard] Hampton, the son, got a License to alienate all the premisses to Laurence Cockson: Who, Decemb. 18, 1563, sold them again to Thomas Lucas, Esq; (y). And they have passed, as the Manor of Mile-end-hall, to the Rt. Hon. Earl of Hardwick.

In the grant, or sale, to B. Hampton, there was included, a Meadow at East-Bridge, called East-Meadow, containing Three acres, lately belonging to St. John's Abbey, and leased Nov. 29, 1542, to Edward Cole: And Eight acres of Meadow, lying in Whave-Meadow within the Manor of Greenstead; and a Field in the same parish, called Whiten-field, containing Fifteen acres; that had been let July 9, 1544, to John Ryther for 21 years (z). All which I suppose were conveyed with the rest of the Estate.

The Park above-mentioned, was inclosed by the Abbot of St. John's, in Henry the III'd's reign (a).

The Church of Greenstead is of one pace with the Chancel; and both are tyled. At the West-end stands a square Tower of brick, containing one Bell.

This Rectory was all along in the gift of the Abbot and Convent of St. John's in this Town, till their suppression. It then came to the Crown, and hath ever since continued in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper of the Great Seal. It is rated in the King's books at 5 l.

John Aecum, not taken notice of by Mr. Newcourt, was Rector of this Church in the year 1320, and Thomas Juscard, in 1323 (b).

Nom. Reg. Libr.

Compton.

{ Theop. Jarland, cl. 1705, per mort. Hargraves.
William Dickson, A. M. per mort. Jarland.

Gibson.

{ (bb) Oliver Ivy, A. M. 1728, per mort. Dickson.
(bbb) Benj. Owen, cl. 21 May, 1730, per cess. Ivy.
John. Smith, B. A. 2 Mart. 1754, per mort. Owen.

Patroni.

Anna Reg.

Georg. I. Rex.

Georg. II. Rex.

(b) See Spelman, voce Liber homo. (p) See Domesday, above. (q) See below, Book II. ch. iv. § 1 and 2.
(r) Monasticon Anglic. Vol. II. p. 44. &c. (s) Pat. 31 Hen. VIII. p. 5. (t) Dugdale's Baronage, Vol. II. p. 371.
(u) Pat. 4 and 5 Phil. and Mar. wherein all these particulars are recited. (w) Licent. concess. 3 Elizab. (x) Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 286. (y) Licent. 6 Eliz. (z) Pat. 4 & 5 Phil. and Mar. (a) Carta vel Rot. penes me. (b) Minus Reg. Abb. D. Johis, fol. 101. b. & Rot. Cur. 17 Edw. II. & 3 Edw. III. Rot. 3. (bb) v. Alphamton. (bbb) v. Abberton.

[X] Together with a store of Twenty Cows and one Bull, appraised at 8 l. 6 s. 8 d. Two Oxen appraised at 24 s. Four horses with harness, appraised at 53 s. 4 d. Five Quarters of Oats, appraised at 10 s. Five Quarters of Rye with the straw and chaff, at 20 s. Four loads of Hay, appraised at 10 s. 8 d.—I take notice of this, only to shew the Price of things in those times.

SECT. IV.

BERE-CHURCH,
alias West-Doniland,

IS the last of the four Out-parishes, within the Bounds and Liberties of the Town of Colchester. Its name Bere-Church, denotes a Church in the Corn-fields [Y]; And it is called West-Doniland, on account of its situation with regard to East-Doniland. But from whence the word Doniland is derived I am not able to judge: Unless it is from the Saxon word dun-land, a hilly land or place; of the same signification as the Downs in many counties. And what seems to make it probable is, that it was anciently written Duniland.

It hath on the South, Abberton, and Layer de la Hay; on the West, Stanway; on the North, St. Giles's, and part of St. Botolph's; and on the East, part of St. Giles's, and East-Doniland.

This parish is within the Manor of West-Doniland. It is very small; for, in 1692, there were but Thirty-five persons rated therein to the Poll-tax.

Eudo, founder of St. John's, gave this Manor, among others to that Abbey [Z]. And it remain'd in the possession of the Abbot and Monks 'till their suppression, when it came to the Crown. K. Edward VI, in the year 1547, June 22, granted not only this Manor, but the site of St. John's Abbey, and the demesnes thereunto belonging, &c. to John Dudley Viscount Lisle and Earl of Warwick, afterwards the Great Duke of Northumberland (c).

Monk-wick was always an Appendage to this Manor. This Monk-wick was a Farm [A], which the Abbot and Monks of St. John's kept in their own hands, to supply the occasions of their House. It continued in their possession 'till the suppression of the Monasteries; but, May 29, 1543, K. Henry VIII. lett a twenty one years lease of it to Robert Stepnie of Stratford Gent. for the yearly sum of 21 l. And K. Edward VI. June 22, 1547, granted the Reversion of the same to John Dudley Earl of Warwick, just now mentioned; it being then valued at 22 l. 9 s. 7 d. $\frac{1}{2}$. and charged with a Quit-rent of 2 l. 5 s. 11 d. $\frac{1}{2}$ q. (d).

Dudley gave this Manor of West Doniland with Monkwick to

1. Sir Francis Jobson, who had the care of his children, and to whom he was indebted in large sums (e) [B]. Sir Francis made it the place of his residence, and dying there June 4, 1573, was buried in St. Giles's Church (f).

It was next enjoyed by his two sons,

2. John Jobson, Esq; and

3. Edward Jobson Esq;

The latter dying May 28, 1590, left a son who died young, Decemb. 6, 1602 (g), and two Daughters,

4. Mary, who was married, in 1610, to George Brook of Aspall in Suffolk Esq;—and Elizabeth, that died unmarried 28 May 1592 [C].

After the death of their father Edward Jobson, his widow was married again, in Feb. 1595, to William Gray Esq; who presented in her right to the Rectory of East Doniland in 1598 and 1610 (b).

About the year 1592, this Manor was purchased by

5. Robert Barker Serjeant-at-law, and Town-Clerk of this Borough (i); who dyed 5 April 1618; and continued in his posterity 'till about the year 1718. Then Henry Barker Esq; who had married Anne daughter of Matthew Scrivener formerly Town-Clerk, dying without issue; this Estate, according to the limitation in old Henry Barker's Will, came to

6. Thomas Perry, supposed to be his natural son, and was sold by him to

7. Knox Ward Esq; late Clarencieux King at Arms; and is now in his eldest son and heir.

Besides this Manor, Sir Francis Jobson had several Tithes, and Portions of Tithes, in this

(c) Pat. 1^o Edw. VI. (d) Exemplific. of Lett. Pat. 10 Elizab. (e) MS. Fr. Jobson. (f) Sandford's and Stebbing's Geneal. Hist. Edit. 1707, p. 452. (g) Inquisit. 44 Elizab. (h) Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 215. (i) Court-Rolls.

[Y] Of the same import as bene-tun and benepic, villa frumentaria.

[Z] It was one of the three Manors circa Colecestriam, mentioned in Eudo's Foundation-charter.

[A] Wic signifies, among other things, a Farm-house. It is sometimes corruptly written Monk weeds.

[B] The Family of Jobson, or Jopson as it is sometimes written, was of some antiquity in this Town. They seem to have originally come from the North; for Tho. Jopson born at Hellynton [or Ellington] Com. Northumberl. was admitted a Free-burgess of this Town in 1462. (Oath-book, p. 141. where he is again mentioned in p. 142. 154. 165. He is also mentioned in Cur. Rot. 13 & 14 Edw. IV. rot. 13. and Rot. Cur. 1 Ric. III. rot. 19.) He was one of the Chamberlains of the same, 'in 1476. (Rot. Cur. 16 Edw. IV. rot. 1.) And one of the Bailiffs, in the years 1481, 1485, 1487, 1494, 1499. (List of Bail.) His son William Jopson is mentioned in the Oath-book. (p. 167). And was an Alderman, and one of the Bailiffs in 1521. (Ibid. p. 183. and List of Bail.) Francis Jobson, Esq; is mentioned in the Oath-book (p. 207.) anno 1546; and was a Knight in 1557. (Ibid. p. 219.) What rendered him considerable, and procured him great Estates, chiefly from the spoil of the Monasteries; was his intermarriage with Elizabeth Plantagenet, third daughter and co-heir to Arthur Viscount Lisle, natural son of King Edward IV. by Elizabeth Lucy, or Jane Shore: For he was not only knighted, but also made Master of the Jewel-house, and Lieutenant of the Tower of London; and appointed one of the Visitors of the Monasteries. By this Lady he had issue,—John—Edward—Henry—Thomas: and Mary, married to John, second son of John Moigne, of Witham in this County.—John Jobson, the eldest son, married Elizabeth daughter and co-heir to Sir Richard Pexall of Beaurepair, Esq; Master of the Buckhounds to Q. Elizabeth, by whom he had issue Pexall his son and heir: and two daughters—one married to Clement Medley of Whitnest, in Warwickshire,—and the other, first to H. Malby of Rofs in Ireland; and secondly, to Sir William Sidley.—Edward, second son of Sir Francis, married, 1. Mary Forth, daughter and heir of Edmund Markaunt of Dunham-hall in this County, by whom he had no issue: and 2. Mary daughter of John Bode of Rochford, to whom he was third husband: and had by her Mary and Elizabeth, mentioned above. The Heralds are entirely silent, with regard to the issue of Pexall Jobson. F. Sandford and Stebbing, ubi supra, p. 452. See also J. Collier's Eccles. Hist. Vol. II. p. 157.

[C] The Arms of Jobson, were, Paly of Six pieces, argent and azure; over all a Chevron, ermine, between three eaglets or. Impaling Quarterly of four. The 1st France and England quarterly. The 2d and 3d Or, a Cross gules. The 4th Mortimer. Over all a Baston finister, azure.

Parish; which were confirm'd to him, among other things, by Qu. Elizabeth, in the 2d year of her reign (k).

Bere-Church-Hall is another Manor in this parish (l). It was part of the Demefnes of St. John's Abbey; but the Monks of that House alienated it to Sir Thomas Audeley Lord Chancellor of England, with the Manor of Gossebecks in Stanway (m); in order to stop, if possible, his rapacious hands, and to save the rest of their possessions; but all in vain.

By his Will, dated April 19, 1544, this

1. Thomas Lord Audeley gave the Manor of Bere-Church to his Brother Thomas Audeley Esq; for his life [D]; and after his decease, to his eldest son Thomas Audeley (n).
2. Thomas the father died 20 Aug. 1557 (o). As did
3. Thomas the son Decemb. 31, 1572 (p).
The next possessors were,
4. Robert Audeley Esq; who died Septemb. 27, 1624. Aged 72 (q).
5. Sir Henry Audeley Kt.
6. Thomas Audeley Esq; eldest son of Sir Henry.
7. Henry Audeley Esq; younger son of Sir Henry; who died without issue Sept. 1, 1714. Whereupon Bere-Church-Hall was put by his widow into the hands of James Smyth, Esq; who had a mortgage upon it, redeemable however by the Audeley-family. And the said Mr. J. Smyth, by Will, left this, with the bulk of his other great estates, to an unborn son of Sir Trafford Smith, Bart. his elder brother's eldest son.

Sir Trafford dyed unmarried in December 1765. Whereupon this, and the rest of the Inheritance both real and personal, descended to his next brother the Rev. Robert Smyth's son, now Sir Robert Smyth Bart. a worthy young man; who is making great improvements to the House built here by the foresaid Mr. James Smyth.

This Manor hath now no Tenants.

There was a Park round Bere-Church Hall: But the House itself being decayed, hath been converted into a Farm-house, and rebuilt. It was plundered of its Furniture in the beginning of the civil Wars (r).

As this was for some time a Seat of a Branch of the Audeley-family, I shall give some account of them here.

And I shall begin with Thomas Audeley Lord Chancellor of England, to whom they owed their Rise, Grandeur, and Riches. This Thomas Audeley was not descended from the ancient and noble Family of Audeley, or Aldithley, as might be imagined from the name [E]; but was born of obscure Parents at Earl's-Colne in this County, in the year 1488 (s). Being brought up to the Law, his first preferment was to be Town-clerk of Colchester (t); and in the year 1516 he was admitted a free burgefs of the same (u). As he so well knew this Town, 'tis no wonder he got so much of the Abbey-lands hereabouts. In 1526, he was Autumn-Reader of the Inner-Temple; and, by the Court's influence, Speaker of the House of Commons, in the Parliament that began November 3, 1529 (w): In which station rendring himself a thorough Tool to K. Henry VIII. he became so great a favourite, that he was constituted, in 1530, the King's Attorney for the Duchy of Lancaster (x); advanced, the same year, to the degree of a Serjeant at law, and, November 14, made the King's Serjeant (y): and, shortly after, Chancellor of the Court of Augmentation (z). Upon the resignation of Sir Thomas More, he was constituted Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, May 20, 1532, and knighted; and on the 26th of January 1533, declared Lord Chancellor (a). He was very zealous in the dissolution of the Monasteries; and obtained from the King, Christ-Church Priory near Aldgate, London; St. Botolph's Priory, the Crouched Friars, and other large possessions in and about this Town; and especially the great Abbey of Walden. Novemb. 29, 1538, he was created Baron Audeley of Walden, and installed Knight of the Garter (b). He died May 8, 1544, aged 56, and was buried in a new Chappel he had erected at Walden. His Lady was Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Grey, Marquis of Dorset; by whom he had two Daughters, Margaret, and Mary. The latter died without issue. But Margaret was married, 1. to Henry Dudley (a younger son of John Dudley Duke of Northumberland, slain at St. Quintin in Picardy in 1557) and 2. to Thomas Duke of Norfolk, being his second wife (c); And he had by her, Thomas Howard, created Earl of Suffolk, July 21, 1603 (d); who was Lord Treasurer of England from 1614 to 1620. This Earl having got immense sums in the beginning of K. James's reign, on account of his great interest at Court (e), he built that stately pyle near Walden, at the charge of 190,000*l*. (f) which, in honour of his grand-father, he named Audeley-House.

To return to the Audeley-family: Thomas Lord Audeley had two brothers, named also Thomas (g). The elder was seated at Bere-Church, and died in 1557, leaving three sons; two named Thomas, and John.

The younger of these two Thomas's was seated at Gosbecks, and died July 7, 1584. John died July 20, 1588 (h).

(k) MS. W. Ram. (l) There was a Court held there 23 Elizab. (m) Licent. concess. 30 Henr. VIII. (n) Regist. Prærog. Canterb. lib. Allen. 9. 1. (o) Inquis. post mortem 4 & 5 Ph. & Mar. n^o. 22. (p) Ibid. 15 Elizab. n^o. 57. (q) From his Epitaph. See Appendix. (r) Mercurius Rustic. p. 12. Ed. 1646. (s) From T. L.'s information, and Oath-book, p. 178. See Biographia Britannica. (t) Cur. Rot. Tempore Henr. VIII. (u) Oath-book, p. 178. (w) Lord Herbert's Histor. of Henry VIII. under the year 1529. (x) Pat. 22 Hen. VIII. p. 2. (y) Dugdale's Origin. Juridic. in Chronic. Ser. p. 83. (z) See Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 419. (a) Rymer's Fœdera &c. Tom. XIV. p. 435. 446. (b) Pat. 30 Hen. VIII. p. 5. and Dugd. Bar. Vol. II. p. 383. (c) Dugdale Baron. ibid. (d) Ibid. p. 280. (e) Sir A. W. Court of K. James, edit. 1650. p. 27. (f) See R. Coke's Detection, Ed. 1719. Vol. I. p. 85. (g) T. L. See Epitaphs in Bere Church. (h) Ibid. in the Appendix.

[D] It was held by him in Socage, by fealty only. MS. W. Holman.

[E] Sir William Dugdale rightly supposes, "he was "not of the family of the old Lords Audley; the Arms "which he bore being totally different from theirs." Baronage, Vol. II. p. 352.

Thomas, the elder brother, was of Bere-Church, and died Decemb. 11, 1572, as hath been observed a little before. By Katharine his wife, daughter of Robert Southwell of Woodrising in Norfolk [F], he had issue Robert, and John; Elizabeth, and Dorothy.

Robert married Katherine, fourth and youngest daughter of Edward, Baron Windfor of Bradenham; by whom he had Henry—Robert,—Katharine wife of John Thecher: and Thomas—and Richard, who both died young. Robert, the father, died Sept. 27, 1624, aged 72. And his Lady, Decemb. 15, 1641, in the 74th year of her age (i).

Henry, the eldest son and heir, was knighted by K. Charles I. and was a sufferer during the civil wars (k). He married about June 1628, Mrs. Anne Packington, sister and coheir of Humphrey Packington of Chaddeley-Corbet in the county of Worcester Esq; by whom he had issue, Thomas his son and heir.—Henry, who died young: and Katharine—Mary and Abigail (l). The two last died unmarried; and Katharine became the wife of Henry Barker of Monkwick. To his second wife, Sir Henry took Anne Daniell, by whom he had a son named Henry. I have not been able to learn the time of his death.

Thomas, eldest son of Sir Henry, as mention'd above, seems to have been a considerable acquirer. For, in April 1685, he purchased of Mary Yate, &c. the Manor of Heath in Herefordshire; and, at other times, the Manor of Dagnham in this County of Sir Richard Allibon Kt. and the manor or messuage of Gosbacks in Stanway, of Sir Edward Gage Kt. and others. He died about the beginning of the year 1697 without issue, and intestate: whereupon the foresaid Estates descended to his two sisters and coheirs. Mary, some time after the death of her sister Katharine, filed a Bill in Chancery against her son and heir Henry Barker: and at length it was decreed, That Mary Audeley should have the Manor of Heath, and Henry Barker the manors of Dagnham and Gosbacks (m).

But Bere-Church-hall, and the paternal Estate of the Audeleys, descended to Henry, the younger son. He was a weak and wicked man, that became a prey to his vices, and to some of his retainers that had more cunning than honesty. After having wasted his Estates, he was forced to take shelter in the Fleet, where he died a prisoner, Septemb. 1, 1714, having been long parted from his Wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Philip Smith, Viscount Strangford in Ireland. A friend coming accidentally to see him, found he was dead, and just ready to be put into a mean coffin, such as is bestowed on the most despicable prisoners. But he stopping the Burial, and giving notice of it to his widow, she allowed 80*l.* for the funeral; and accordingly he was brought down and buried in this Church, Septemb. 6.

It is observable, That there is not any one Heir of this Family in being; at least the most inquisitive search hath not been able to find out any. So unstable is human Grandeur, so short-liv'd all earthly acquisitions [G].

The Church of West-Doniland, which is but small, was a Chapel of ease to H. Trinity; till the year 1536 (as hath been shewn under that parish) and in the gift of the Abbot and Convent of St. John. But in the year just now mentioned, it was separated from H. Trinity; and, even before the suppression of the Monasteries, came into the possession of the Audeleys; and of their successors owners of Bere-Church-hall. 'Tis only a stipendiary Curacy of 14*l.* per annum.

William Frank is called Vicar of this parish, in a Taxation, 24 Edw. I. And Theophilus Roberts was Minister here about the year 1645, with a salary of 20*l.* a year (n).

Stephen Aldrich, B. A. is the present Stipendiary Curate.

In a Chapel adjoining to the North of this Church, there are some good Monuments of the Audeley-family.

CHAP. IV.

Account of dissolv'd Monasteries and disus'd Chapels.

SECT. I.

ST JOHN'S ABBEY.

THIS noble and stately Monastery was founded by Eudo, Dapifer, Sewer or Steward, to William I. surnamed the Conqueror. He was a person of great eminence in his time. His father, Hubert de Rie, was a servant and favorite to that Prince; who sent him Ambassador into England, with a grand retinue, to Edward the Confessor, then lying on his death-bed. And he managed him with so much dexterity, that Edward appointed William to succeed him in the English throne. For which good service Hubert had the promise of the office of Steward of William's household, as soon as he should be possess'd of the Crown. But after his Conquest, being apprehensive of some commotions in Normandy, he sent back thither Hubert, with his three eldest sons, to keep all things quiet there, being persons in whom he could thoroughly confide (o). Eudo, the fourth son, remained in England, in K. William's service, who gave him very large possessions; viz. Twenty-five Lordships in Essex, Seven in Hertfordshire, One in Berkshire, Twelve in Bedfordshire, Nine in Norfolk, and Ten in Suffolk (p). Shortly after, he was made Steward of the King's household, in the room of William Fitz-Osbern. He was very instrumental in raising William II. to the throne.

(i) Epitaphs, ibid.

(k) Epitaph of Sir Henry Audeley, ibid.

(l) Epitaph in Bere-Church. See Appendix.

(m) Carta penes Rob. Mayhew.

(n) Committee, or Sequestrators Book, under Febr. 1, 1646.

(o) MS. in Bibliothec. Cotton. Nero D. VIII. Printed in Monastic. Anglican. Vol. II. p. 889, &c. It is taken from Marianus Scotus.

(p) Domest. in those Counties.

[F] She was a bold and turbulent woman, and endeavoured to withdraw her Estates in this parish out of the bounds of the Corporation. But, after a long contest and law-suit, she was forced to submit.

[G] The Armes of Audeley were Quarterly, Or, and Azure, indented, an Eagle displayed, Or. On a bend dexter, of the second, between a fretty two martlets of the first.

For waiting upon the Conqueror, in Normandy, when he lay on his death-bed, he advised the young Prince, not to neglect so fair an opportunity. Whereupon they two passed into England; and persuaded the Keeper of the Royal Treasury, then at Winchester, to deliver the keys of it to them. Next, Eudo posted to Dover, Pevensey, Hastings, and other Castles, along the Sea-coast; and made the keepers of them swear, not to deliver them up to any one but whom he should appoint: pretending that the King designed to make a considerable stay in Normandy, and would have good assurance of the safety of his Castles, from himself his steward. Having secured these important points, he discovers the King's death; and thus was William Rufus, by his means and contrivance, quietly placed on the English throne. For which important service, he became a great favourite of that King, and very considerable throughout the Nation. And therefore the ancient and considerable Town of Colchester, having suffered great oppressions under the late troublesome and arbitrary reign of William the Conqueror, desired to have Eudo for their governor, and to put themselves under his protection. As soon as all things were settled, he came down thither; and making a proper Enquiry into grievances, eased the oppressed, restrained the insolent, and at first pleased all. Finding, that the lands of the condemned and outlawed lay uncultivated; and, notwithstanding, the Taxes imposed upon the town were exacted with rigour, which was a great burden; he obtained a grant of these lands, and caused them to be cultivated as before; by which means the inhabitants were much eased (q). This agreeable Town he made the place of his residence; and, as is supposed, built the Castle, the Moot-hall, and the ancient House opposite to it (newly rebuilt) on which is the famous date (r). He resolved also to provide for the wealth of his Soul, according to the superstitious notion of those Times, namely by founding a Monastery. For that purpose, he pitched upon a pleasant eminence on the South-side of the Town, where one Siric, a priest, had a little dwelling, near which stood a wooden Church dedicated to St. John the Evangelist, famed for miracles. For, in dark nights, heavenly lights were often seen there (as is pretended) and Voices praising God heard, when no one was within. It also hap'ned, that a certain man, who by the King's command was kept in irons, and maintained by the citizens, being there present among many others on the feast of St. John, whilst mass was saying, the bolt of his fetters flew off as far as the fourth or fifth person that stood by, and the fetters breaking with a noise, the man was left loose. Upon this report, and in consideration of the pleasantness of the place, Eudo resolved to build his Monastery there. He communicated his design to Maurice bishop of London, who applauded it, and promised his assistance. Accordingly, on the 29th of August, 1096, the ground was marked out, in the bishop's presence, and the workmen were set to level and prepare the place. The year following, after Easter, Eudo himself laid the first stone. Whilst the building was going on, the founder desired his friend and acquaintance Gundulf, bishop of Rochester, a man famous for his piety, to send him some Monks, to live according to their regular institution in his new Monastery. Two at first were sent, and Eudo allowed each of them a stipend. But they being too dainty, found fault with their keeping, and returned home. In their place two others were sent, one of whom named Radulf, was a pious and industrious man. He often pressed Eudo to settle revenues upon his foundation; alledging, that it was unfit for monks to live like prebendaries, and to depend upon laymen for their maintenance. Eudo was not then well able to comply with his demand, as being in disgrace with King Henry I. for having too warmly espoused his elder brother Robert Courthose. However, being perpetually teized by the two Monks, he settled certain revenues upon them. But the lands lying at too great a distance, and the profits not answering the charge of collecting, the two Monks quitted again the place after a great deal of jangling and uneasiness on both sides: So that Eudo began to repent, and to wish he had never thought of his Monastery. But meeting with Stephen Abbat of York, a notable and worthy man, he committed to him the whole care of the Edifice.

Stephen goes back to York, and chusing out of his own Monastery such Monks as he thought fittest, and, in number twelve, according to the number of the Apostles, besides one to govern them under the name of Provost or Prior, and to be in process of time ordain'd Abbat; he sent them to Colchester. These thirteen persons were joyfully receiv'd by Eudo, and after their arrival, the building began to be carried on with more vigor than usual, under the direction of William, a priest, nephew to Eudo, who spared neither care nor money. In the mean time, the Monks lived according to the strictness of their order, serving God regularly in the Church, exercising hospitality, &c. so that their good example prevailing, many of the neighbours took the habit of Religion. A few years after, Hugh, one of the thirteen, was chosen Abbat, being a man of singular piety, but not of so much worldly sagacity: He was consecrated by Maurice bishop of London, about the year 1104. The Offices and the Habitations of the Monks, being on the North side of the Church, towards the Town, and on that account too public and noisy, the Abbat resolv'd to remove them on the South side; and accordingly did. For that purpose, the little rising, or Hill, which stood before the Church, was taken down, and brought behind it, to level the Church-yard. Some people claiming part of the soil on which the Church was erected, Eudo fully satisfied their demand. It was consecrated the 10th of January, in a very solemn manner. At which time it was plentifully endowed by the munificent Founder, and other devout persons, as

(q) Monasticon, ubi supra. (r) From Tradition. See Book III. c. 4.

The South Prospect of St. John's Abbey-Church.

from a M.S. in the Cotton Library, Nero D. VIII.

ST. JOHN'S Abbey Gate.

*To the Society of ANTIQUARY'S, London, being done by their encouragement:
This Plate is most humbly inscribed.*

J. Deane del.

G. Vertue Sculp.

To face p. 140.

we shall shew by and by. Their Grants were offered upon the Altar. The Monks who came from York, were then either return'd home or dead, except three, namely the aforesaid Abbat Hugh, and one Walter, and Osmund senior: Yet the number of monks was increased to above twenty, all admitted into the order there, and devoutly serving God. But Hugh the Abbat having some disputes with Eudo, and fearing lest the Abbey should suffer upon that account, he resign'd his dignity into the King's hands, and went back to York. As for Eudo, when he found his end approaching, he bequeathed (with K. Henry's consent, and in his presence) to his new Monastery the Manor of Brightlyngsea, and a hundred pounds in money; likewise his gold ring with a topaz; a standing cup with cover adorned with plates of gold; together with his horse and mule. He died at the castle of Preaux in Normandy, and according to his desire was brought over to England, and buried in his Monastery of St John's, February 28, 1120 (s.) His wife was Rohaise, daughter of Richard son of Gilbert Earl of Eu [H], by Rohaise his wife sister to Walter Giffard Earl of Buckingham. They had only one daughter, Margarer, which was married to William de Mandeville; and their son and heir, Geoffrey de Mandeville, was Steward of Normandy, and advanced by K. Stephen to the title of Earl of Essex (t).

HAVING thus given an account of the Founder, let us proceed to a more particular account of the Foundation.

This Abbey, dedicated to the honour of Christ and St John the Baptist (u), was founded, as hath been already mentioned, for Monks of the Benedictine Order [I]. The number of them at first was Twenty; which was not increased, there being the same number at the dissolution. But it entertain'd great numbers of Officers and Servants, and multitudes of Travellers and Poor, who daily resorted thither; Monasteries serving anciently for Inns as well as Hospitals.

The munificent Founder endowed this Abbey with the following Estates (w).

The Manors of Wilege, Brichling, [Brightlyngsea] Mundon, Pichef'. [Pitsey.] Except, in Pichef', the estate of Ralph de Mundon, and the land of Ailwin Sokeman.

A Marsh formerly belonging to Lillecherch, and then adjoining to Pichef'.

Hallingberi, with its appurtenances; [i. e. the manor of Monksbury in that parish]

In Colchester; two Carucates of land; a messuage; two Fish-ponds, and a Mill [Bourne-mill, and ponds] and an Osier-ground. And a Fair of four days, at the nativity of St John.

The whole Fee, or Estate, of Turstin Wiscard. The Land of Ralph de Broch.

The Church of Turnecrust, and a hide of land. In Esse, the Tithe of cheefe, wool, and under-woods.

In Lillecherch [in Kent] the Tithe of mills, cheefe, and wood.

In Eton, half the Tithe, and the whole Tithe of Mills.

In Grenestede, and Roynges [i. e. Eythorp Roding] } The whole Tithe.

In Berton [Bedf.] }

Sandford [Berks] }

Standeie [Hertf.] }

Gamelegga [Cambr.] }

Hamerton [Huntingd.] }

Estune }

Hallingberi }

Takelee }

Witham }

Ereswell }

Stanway }

Lexden }

Two parts of the Tithes.

In Sabricheswrth, and Waltham [magna] } The Third part of the Tithe.

In Walden, the Tithe of the mill and of wool.

The Church of Nieweseles. [i. e. Rectory of Berkway.]

The Church of St Helen's, and 14 acres belonging thereto.

The Church of St Mary's West-cheap, in London, called New-Church; and his Stone-house near it, with its appurtenances.

The Church of St Stephen Walebroch.

Six acres of Land, late belonging to the widow Alveva; and half a messuage.

All the Profits of the Chapel in Colchester-castle: and of all the Chapels in his Manors, north of the Thames; especially on the greatest Festivals.

The Tithe of the pannage of all his woods and Parks, north of the Thames.

And the Tithe of his own pannage, and of his colts, mares, and mills.

In some Manors, [Wilege, &c.] one bordar with two acres, free from all secular service: Except in the three Manors about Colchester; and except Witham, Waltham, Sabricheswrth, and Waldene. Next, William de Hauvill, Falconer to K. Henry I, gave the Church of Takele (x).

The subsequent Benefactors to this House, were,

Robert de Ramis, who gave the Church of Ardley, in the reign of K. Stephen.

(s) Monasticon, ubi supra.

(t) The Baronage of England, &c. by Sir William Dugdale, Vol. I. p. 110.

(u) J. Weaver's Funer. Monum. p. 613.

(w) See Monasticon Anglican. Vol. II. p. 892, 893. where the Charter is printed.

(x) Monasticon Anglican. Vol. II. p. 892, 893.

[H] This Gilbert was the son of Geoffray Earl of Eu, natural son of Richard I. Duke of Normandy. (W. Gemeticensis Hist. Norman. l. viii. c. 37.) Sir William Dugdale says, that Rohaise, Eudo's wife, was a daughter of Walter Giffard Earl of Buckingham. (Baronage, ubi supra.) But it seems to be a mistake. See C. Hornby's Three Letters, containing Remarks on some of the numberless Errors and Defects in Dugdale's Baronage. Lond.

1738. 8°. p. 22. 65. We follow the account of Marianus Scotus from the Monasticon as above.

[I] The Benedictine Order was founded towards the beginning of the Sixth Century, by St Benedict, born at Nursi in Italy about the year 480. See Monasticon Angl. Vol. I. Histoire des Ordres Monastiques, 4°. Vol. V. and Cl. Reynerus de Antiq. Benedictin. Duaci. 1626.

Roger de Villers—Half a hide in Chich.
 Hamo, his brother—Two parts of the Tithe of Walcra [K]; and the whole Tithe of the Mill: And one Bordar with two acres, free from all secular service: And of Chalcr. half the Tithe.
 Hamo de St Clare—Algareflawe, in Berley [Hertf.]
 William de St Clare—Grensted near Colchester, i. e. a maner there.
 William de Launvaley—the Church of Hamerton.
 Robert de Sakevill—the Manor of Witham, or Wickham-Skeith, in Suffolk, with all its appurtenances and liberties.
 Queen Maud—Est-Duniland.
 Roger son of Fulk—3 s. out of the Mill and Fish-pond, in the wood, within the same parish.
 William de Hauley—4 s. in land.
 Ralph Marcy—5 s. in land in Falkeburn.
 Mail Gernum—20 s. in land in Wydremundeford [Wormingford.]
 William de Curtun—half a mark out of Werebod's land.
 Walcher—10 s. yearly.
 William Peverell—an hide of land in the parish of Pikefey [Pitsey]
 Ralph de Aumbli—Two parts of the Tithe of Elmefet; and the whole Tithe of the Mill: and one bordar with two acres of land, and a messuage exempt from all service.
 Ralph Pincerna [Butler]—half a hide of land, and two tenants in Wicham.
 Hamelin—Four messuages in Colchester, with the out-houses, and an orchard, and a meadow.
 Robert Carun—a mill in Clifton.
 Anschetil de Ros—the Tithes of Ho; and half the Tithe of Plumstead [in Kent]
 Fulco Dapifer—the Tithe of Roing [White-Roding]
 William son of Constantine—two parts of his Tithes, at Legre.
 Pirotas—the Tithes of Glameham [Suff.]
 Ralph de Norun—the Tithes of Thorp.
 William de Curtun—thirty acres.
 Humphrey son of Humphrey—half the tithes of Buckeley, [Boxley] and the tithes of a mill.
 Serlo de Matuen—the tithes of Fineberg [Chesh.]
 Ralph de Dunmawe—his tithes.
 Athelais wife of Ranulf de la Haye—80 acres of land.
 [The Donor not nam'd] Lands in Shertun.
 Godfrey—Lands in Witham.
 Asketun—Lands in Duniland.
 [The Donor not nam'd] Twelve pence in land in Leyer.

[K] Walkern, in Hertfordshire.

[L] K. Henry II. granted them an Hermitage at that place, as appears by the following Record, in the Tower. Hen. Rex Angl. de omnibus fidelibus suis &c. Effexa salutem. Sciatis me concessisse Monachis de Colecestr. Heremitagium in Writel, scilicet Bedemannesberge, ut teneant illam elemosinam liberam & quietam ab omni servicio, & nominatim ut sint quieti de essartis, & ut habeant in foresta mea quicquid eis opus fuerit ad predictum Heremitagium, scilicet ad ignem suum, & ad domos suas faciendas, & pasturam ad animalia sua, & claustrum; & ut habeant duos homines in foresta mea ad colligendas nuces quamdiu tempus colligendi durat. T. Warin fil. Gerold apud Colecestr. Pat. 22 Hen. III.

[M] All the abovefaid Grants were confirmed to the Restold—Lands in Ardley.

The Donors not named { 3 s. land in Birch.
12 s. land in Stoke.
half a hide of land in Pofelingword [Suff.]
40 s. lands in Mannefton, and a mill.
20 s. in Harefwell [Yorksh.]

William de Chaineto 40 s. in Ling.

William Martel, and Aldreda his wife—the Manors of Snape and Aldburc in Suffolk.

{ The Church of Aldburc.
2 s. in land in Suleton [Suffex]
20 s. in land in Ho.
30 s. in land in Lillecherche-parish.
Lands of Ernife, and a virgate of land, in Takele [Colchester-hall]
The Donors not named { A tenement and warfe in London.
8 s. land in Stratford.
An Hermitage at Writtle [L].
Land in Bergholt.
Land of Sym. in Bergholt.
Land of Wyhtgar the Priest in Land of Ralph de Brok. [Bures.
7 acr. in Weyenho [M].

John de Ry—1 messuage, 160 acres of land, 6 acres of meadow, and 8 s. rent in Leyre de la Hay [N].

Roger Bacun—1 messuage and 20 acr. of land in Wytham.

He had given, 12 years before, 9 acres in the same parish.

Henry de Bluntefden—at three grants, —

49 acres
26 acres
50 acres } of land in Wytham.

Jordan son of Oliver—30 acr. of land, 5 acres of wood, and 7 s. rent in East-Donylaunde [O].

William son of Isolda—18 acres of land in Leyer de la Hay.

John de Sanare—14 acres of land in the same parish [P].

Richard de Thany—260 acres of land, 9 acres of Meadow, 14 acres of Pasture, 100 acres of Marsh, and 3 s. 6 d. rent in little Bemflet, Neuenden, and Bures [Gifford] [Q].

William atte Welle—1 messuage, 120 acres of land, and 40 acres of Wood in Grenestede [R].

Hugh de Ferynge { 1 messuage, 122 acr. of land, 9 acres of meadow, and Alinore his wife { 30 acres of pasture, and 3 s.
rent in Ferynge and Kellendene.

Abbot and Convent by K. Richard I. reg. 1. & 10. They had also the Church of Hecham [or Higham] in Suffolk, which they exchanged with the Nuns of Lillechirche in that county, for East-Duniland. Monastic. Angl. Vol. ii p. 885.

[N] The License in mortmain for this, bears date 28 Dec. 19 Edw. I.

[O] The License in mortmain for these three last articles, is dated June 20, 31 Edw. I.

[P] The License for these two, is dated Octob. 28. 33. Edw. I.

[Q] And the License for this, April 30. 14 Edw. II.

[R] The Release for this, is among our Town-Records, in the following words. Omnibus Christi fidelibus ad quos

William de Brome, and Warin atte Welle { 64 acres of land, and two acres of meadow, in Little Bemfleet, and Pycheseye.

Robert de Chedeworth, and William de Brome { 1 messuage, 22 acres of land, 2 acres of meadow, and 3 acres of pasture, in Okholte, Benningham, and Eye [S].

William de Rolleston, and James de Bures { 1 messuage, 76 acres of land, 1 acre of meadow, 2 acres and a half of wood, and 140 acres of marsh in Brightlingeseye.

Godefrid parson of Hamerton — 4 acres of meadow, and 8 s. rent in Greneftede.

James de Bures, and Henry de Norwich { 2 acres of land, and 1 acre and one rood of wood, in Southolt.

Henry de Norwich — 7 acres of land, and 2 acres of meadow in Dyham, and the Suburbs of Colchester [T].

Hugh de Feryng and Alianore his wife — 1 toft, 122 acres of land, 14 acres of wood, and 31 s. rent in Feringg, Great Teye, Little Teye, Kellenden and Inneworth [U].

Mr. Clement de Rumburgh, Clerk — the manor of Little Berdefeld, and the advowson of that Church; which were held of the King in capite, as of his Honour of Boulogne [W].

Peter Wawayn, and John Chaterys { 14 messuages, 458 acres of land, 5 acres of meadow, 20 acres of wood, 3 s. 9 d. rent, and a pound of pepper, in Colchester and its suburbs, Stanwey, Tendring, Great Okle, and Leire de la Hay: To find a monk, as a chaplain, to celebrate divine service in the chapel of St Mary's in this Abbey for the souls of the King and his progenitors, and of the said Peter and John [X].

John Doreward Esq; and Richard Fitz-Nicholl { the manor of Tendring, called Wolfe's [Y].

John Stopington, Archdeacon, — 1 messuage, and 140 acres of wood, called Braise-wicwood, in Lexden [Z].

The Donors { 2 s. 3 d. out of Willingham-houfe. 2 s. out of another Tenement. And many other small sums, and rents, too numerous to mention.

The Abbot and Convent had also some portions of Tithes in Leyre de la Hay, of which the particulars are set down in an old paper in my possession. But the Donors are not named.

Besides which I find, That this Abbey had the following possessions:

In West-Bergholt — Almery-land, Greenfield-coppice, Waitland-coppice, and Pancold-coppice (y).

In Boxtead — Revery's-Hall (z): and one moiety of that Church, given by Hugh de Bostard in the reign of K. Henry II. (a).

Brightlingsey-Church (b).

In Horndon on the Hill, and Toppesfield, in each a portion of Tithes (c).

In St Laurence, or Mayland, in Denge-hundred — East-Newland-hall (d).

Bolebekkes and Hauspies, in Aldham and Copford. In Stanway-fields, land called Gooddith-hide: and also Gosbeck's.

In Lawford — Abbots-Hall (e).

In Miftly — Land (f). All these in Essex.

The manor of the Rectory of Berkway; in Hertfordshire (g). [otherwise called Nieweseles.]

Twenty shillings a year out of the Fee-farm of this Town.

And the Advowsons of the following Churches. St Giles's, St Mary Magdalen's, St Leonard's, Greenstead, H. Trinity, and St Nicolas's, in Colchester. — Ardley, East-Doniland, Munden, and Pitsey; in Essex. — Berkway; in Hertfordshire. — St Mary Wool-church, and St Stephen Walbrook, in London.

As for a more particular account of the several Tenements and Parcels of land, in and about this Corporation, formerly belonging to this Abbey, it is given in the note [A] from our Town Records, where they are occasionally mentioned.

(y) Newcourt's Repertor. Vol. II. p. 56.

(b) Ibid. p. 93.

(c) Ibid. p. 342. 607.

(g) Idem, Vol. I. p. 800. 803.

(z) Rot. Cur. 7 Hen. V. rot. 29. (a) Newcourt, ibid. p. 77.

(d) Ibid. p. 372.

(e) Ibid. p. 373. (f) Ibid. p. 421.

presens scriptum pervenerit, Will. atte Welle de Colcestr. salutem in Domino. Noveritis me remisisse, relaxasse, & omnino pro me & heredibus meis quietum clamasse Abbati & Conventui Sti. Johannis Colcestr. & eorum successoribus, totum Jus & Clamium quod habeo, vel quocunque juris titulo habere potero, in uno messuagio, centum & viginti acras terre, quadraginta acras bosci, cum pertinentiis in Greneftede in suburb. Colcestr. que quondam fuerunt Henr. le Walslh avi mei . . . Dat. apud Colcestr. die Domin. proxime ante festum Conversionis Sti. Pauli anno regni R. Edwardi tertii post conquestum tertio. Cur. Rot. 3^o Edw. III. rot. 4.

[S] The Licence in mortmain for these four last articles, bears date Sept. 12. 10 Edw. III.

[T] The Licence in mortmain for these four last articles, is dated August 4. 14 Edw. III.

[U] The License in mortmain for this, bears date Nov. 26. 16 Edw. III.

[W] And the License in mortmain for this, 15 Aug. 25 Edw. III.

[X] The License in mortmain for this, is dated Febr. 1. 39 Edw. III.

[Y] Licent. 8 Henr. IV. fol. 91.

[Z] Licent. 16 Henr. VI.

[A] Stokkes mill. (Rot. 30 Edw. III. rot. 2.) A Tenement in East-Stockwell-street. (Rot. 13 Hen. IV. rot. 32.) A Tenement in Northward, called Chaloner's, and afterwards Redyngg's. (Rot. 9 Hen. IV. rot. 34.) A Tenement in St Giles's parish: Three Tenements, in St James's parish: And Two in St Nicolas's, Copy-hold. (Rotul. Cur. West-Doniland.) Fridayes tenement, in Catlane, in H. Trinity; given by John Aylett, in his will, provid 13 Edw. II. A Tenement in Magdalen-street. (Rot. 4 Edw. VI. rot. 5.) Monk-downe; and the Garden-grounds, on the East and West sides of Stanwell-street. (Rot. 7 Hen. VIII. rot. 19.) Cow-meadow, at the Hyth, on the East of the river. (Rot. 7 Hen. VI. rot. 22.) Colmannes-mead, near Magdalen-moor. (Rot. 6 Hen. IV. rot. 2.) Prattys Welle at the Old-Hyth. (Ibid.) Meadow near the Balkherne. (Ibid. rot. 22.) Cokerellifcroft. (Rot. 8 Hen. VI. rot. 23.) Land near Magdeleyne-lond towards Spyttemanneswash: Land near Cheldewelle-lane: Land in Webbe-street at the Old-Hyth, near Isabelles-gate: Neweland, and Collifland, by the river. (Rot. 6 Hen. IV. rot. 2.) Glasflewryghtis-land; Cross-tye: Tye-field: Land near the King's-oak. (Rot. 6 Hen. V. rot. 2.) Land called Stapilfak. (Ibid. rot. 24.) Outlayes. (Rot. 7 Hen. VIII. rot. 11.) Land, South side of East street. (Rot. 1 & 2 Jacob. I. rot. 10.) Grynsted-hache. (Rot. 6 Hen. V. rot. 24.) Abbots-erber, or Abbots-herber in Greenstead. (Rot. 6 Hen. V. rot. 1. & Rot. 7 Hen. V. rot. 22.) Lands in Claye street. (Rot. 7 Hen. VIII. rot. 19.) Stowfeland, near Herrymoreslane in Greenstead. (Rot. 7 Hen. VI. rot. 1 & 8 Hen. VI. rot. 2.) Walshe-

At

At the time of the Dissolution of the Monasteries, this noble Abbey, with its large Revenues, was valued at 523 l. 17 s. 10 d. (b), though J. Speed, by a very unaccountable mistake, makes it but 08 l. 01 s. 08 d. (i).

The Abbey-Church stood on the south-side of St Giles's Church, and south-east of the Gate-way. It had a large Tower in the middle, adorned with several Spires: And, at the west-end, there were likewise some Turrets. The Print given of it in the Monasticon is not true; for it is there represented as wholly built with square stones, which none of the public Edifices in this Town were. A new Print is therefore given of it here, from an original Drawing in MS. in the Cottonian-Library (k), taken before the dissolution of the Monasteries.

I wish it were also in my power, to lay before the Reader a Plan of this once most famous Abbey: but it is so totally demolished, that there is not one stone of it left upon another. The only Remains that serve to shew where it once stood; are the stately Gate-way already mention'd, and of which the Print is here given; one of the Porter's lodges adjoining thereto: and the Garden-walls, which inclose about Thirteen or Fourteen acres of ground.

The Abbot was a mitred Abbot; that is, One of those Twenty eight in this kingdom, who had the Honour of wearing a Mitre, and sitting in the Upper House of Parliament. And he was distinguish'd by the high Titles, of, By the grace of God; and, By divine permission [B].

The Abbey itself was invested with very great Privileges. For it had the full Jurisdiction in determining Causes in all the lands adjoining to the Monastery; and the same Honour, Liberty, and Laws, as the Church of St Peter's at Westminster. That is, It was exempt from all Episcopal, and other, Jurisdiction: Free from Suits of Counties and Hundreds, from Sheriffs aids, and amerciaments of Counties; from pleas of forest, waste, and regard; from passage, pontage, warnage, stallage belonging to the King, and burg-peny, aver-peny, ward-peny, Danegeld, and hidage in some of their lands; with many other Privileges and Immunities, comprehended in a Charter of K. Richard I. (l).

K. Henry III. granted them, moreover, Free-warren, in all their demesnes in Wykham and Beryngham in Suffolk; Berlee in Hertfordshire; Wylee, Brychtlyngeseye, Estdunylonde, Mondon, Pichesey, Laleford, Grensted, and Takeleghe, in Essex, &c. provided those Demesnes were not within the bounds of the Royal Forest (m).

Finally this Abbey had the Privilege of Sanctuary (n).

But the Abbot owed suit at the Law-hundred-Courts of this Town, for some Lands [C].

The Arms of St John's Abbey were, Gules, a Cross within a bordure, or; over all, a Carbuncle of eight staves, sable, fleury argent.

And what their common Seal was, will be represented in the Plate of the Seals. But every Abbot had a different private Seal.

Not long after the dissolution of this Monastery, [viz. August 29, 1544] K. Henry VIII. granted a twenty one years lease of the site of it [D], to Sir Thomas Darcy Kt. Before the expiration of that lease, K. Edward VI. on the 22d of June, 1547, granted the reversion of it to John Dudley Earl of Warwick, for his service in Scotland and France; whereby, as the Patent asserts, he had much impair'd his own estate: To be held in capite by the service of a Knight's-fee; it being valued at 8 l. 9 s. 4 d. and charged with a quit-rent of 17 s. 10 d. $\frac{1}{2}$ (o). But the very next month, Dudley conveyed it to Sir Francis Jobson Kt. (and Elizabeth his wife) to whom, as is related above, he was greatly indebted (p). The next year, Dudley obliged Jobson, as he says himself (q), to sell it to John Lucas Esq; who accordingly purchas'd it, under the name of the site of the late Abbey of St John, 20 messuages, 2 dovecotes, 20 gardens, 3 orchards, 100 acres of land, 15 of meadow, 100 of pasture, 10 of wood, and 7 of marsh, with the appurtenances in West Doniland, Colchester, Greensted, & Wivenhoo, (r). Mr. Lucas converted the remains of it into a Seat, as is observed above, under St Giles's; and his posterity made it the place of their residence 'till our unhappy civil wars, when it was plundered; and almost demolish-

(b) Monastic. Anglican. Vol. I.

(i) History of Great Britain, Edit. 1614. fol. 789.

(k) Nero. D. viii. 13.

(l) From the Abbey's Register.

(m) Ibid.

(n) Pat. 1 & 10 Ric. I. and Dugdale's Baron. Vol. II. p. 269.

(o) Exemplific. of Lett. Pat. Febr. 24. 10 Eliz.

See also T. Fuller's Church-hist. b. vi. p. 368.

(p) See under

West-Doniland. The License for Dudley's alienating of it to Jobson, is dated July 11. 10. Edw. VI.

(q) MS.

F. Jobson, penes F. Powell.

(r) The License for this Alienation is dated 27 June, 2 Edw. VI.

Walshes-grove, or Walyshwood (Rot. 49 Edw. III. rot. 7. & Rot. 22 Hen. VI. rot. 2.) Akermans-wood, or Charite-grove, Seven acres. Purchased afterwards by Sir Tho. Lucas. (Rot. 4. & Rot. 25 Eliz. rot. 10.)

[B] Robertus Dei gratia Abbas &c. A°. 1280. Willielmus Dei gratia Abbas—A°. 1286. Adam Dei gratia &c. (MSS. penes me.) Robertus [Grytton] permissioe divina Abbas Monasterii Sti. Johannis (Rot. Cur. 7 Hen. V. rot. 12.)

[C] That is, for Five acres in Holefield. After long disputes about this matter, it was finally settled by Indenture, Dec. 21. 12°. Edw. III.—Quod Abbas loci predicti qui pro tempore fuerit, vel per se vel per Attornatum suum, ter veniet per annum sectam faciendum ad tria Lawe-hundred dictorum Burgenfium; videlicet ad Lawe-hundred tentum in Colcestr. die lune proximo post festum Sti. Michaelis; die lune proximo post festum Sti. Hillarii; et die lune proximo post Hokeday, pro terra predicta. Oath-book, fol. 76. N. B. It appears from our Records, That the Abbey was always endeavouring to encroach upon the Liberties and Privileges of this Town. But very severe Presentments were made upon that score, at the Lawe hundred-Court, in the 1st of K. Henry V.

[D] Together with Horse-clofe, 44 acres; Abbotsfield, 26 acres; Hogholfield, 18 acres; Cockrell's grove, 18 acres; Maudlin-meade, alias Tamys, 4 acres; Twelve acres of arable land; Hethe-meadow, 10 acres; Five acres belonging to Monkswick; and three acres of saltmarsh. — The Lord Chancellor Audeley endeavoured to get this Monastery in exchange for other Lands; as appears by three original Letters of his, in the Cottonian-library: (Cleopatra E. IV. 116.) wherein he complain'd, That the King promoted his marriage and made him a Baron, and yet he had no more than 800 l. a year. But he did not obtain his desire. See Appendix N°. x.

ed during the Siege. After the death of John Lord Lucas, 1671, this Estate was purchased by John Walkeden Esq; who went over to France with K. James II. It was next in ..... Bartlett of Worcester.

..... Currier, a scrivener.

..... Eyles, a woollen-draper in London; or Robert Surman, Deputy-Cashier of the South-Sea-Company.

Being sold, after the year 1720, with the rest of the South-Sea-Directors Estates, it was purchased for the sum of 2725 l. by the Rev.

Edward Arrowsmith M. A. late Rector of St Olive Hart-Street, London; and now belongs to his daughter, wife of Mr. Roberts.

List of the Abbats.

1. HUGH (a), Monk of St Mary's at York, was consecrated the first Abbat by Maurice Bishop of London Anno 1104; but he resigned soon after, and returned to York (b), by reason of some disputes with the founder, and was succeeded by

2. GILBERT DE LUNGILL (c), a Monk of Bec in Normandy, who is said to have governed about 23 Years (d); for he was succeeded about the year 1126 by

3. WILLIAM DE SCURI (e), who was succeeded about the year 1130 by

4. HUGH DE HAYA (f). He was succeeded in 1147 (g) by

5. GILBERT DE WECHEN (b), or WICHAM (i), who is said to have governed 18 years, and to be succeeded in 1165 by

6. WALTER called WALENSIS (k). He governed 17 years, and had for his successor

7. OSBERT (l), who is supposed to have been Prior of Snape, and elected in 1182. He occurs Abbat Anno 1196, and was succeeded by

8. ADAM DE CAMPES (m); who continued Abbat 44 years (n). After him, by the King's Licence dated Feb. 27, 1237,

9. WILL. DE WANDA (o) was elected Abbat: who resigning in 1245,

10. WILL. DE SPALDEWICK (p) succeeded; and had his Election confirm'd by the King April 22, 1245. He died about the 8th of July 1272; upon which the Monks elected

11. ROBERT DE GRENESTEDE, or GRIMSTED (q); who dying in 1305,

12. JOHN DE BRUGES (r), was elected by the King's licence, dated October 27, 1305. He died in 1311, and was succeeded by

13. WALTER DE HUNTINGFELD (s). Whose Successor was

14. WILL. DE GLEHAM or GLENHAM (t), to whose election the King assented Dec. 10, 1326. He governed not long; for on his death

15. JOHN DE WIMONDHAM (u) was elected in September following Anno 1327. He died in 1349, and was succeeded by

16. SIMON DE BLYTON (w), who was elected by virtue of the Royal Licence dated Aug. 25, 1349. He resigned in 1353 (x); and thereupon

17. THO. MONERON (y) was elected. He continued Abbat about 8 years; and on his death, as it is supposed,

18. SIMON DE BLYTON (z) was reinstated in 1361. He died Dec. 24, 1368, and was succeeded by

19. THOMAS STUKLEE (a), or STUDE (b), who had the temporalities restored him Dec. 24, 1368. He died Octob. 8, 1369; the day after which the King granted his licence (c) for choosing a new Abbat; by virtue of which the Convent elected

20. RICHARD DE COLNE (d) Prior of Snapes in Suffolk, Octob. 15, the same year. He died in 1375, and was succeeded the same year by

21. JOHN DE DEDHAM (e). He governed two years, and was succeeded by

22. WILL. DE GYRTON (f); elected Octob. 28, 1377.

23. JEFFERY STORY alias DE ST OSYTH (g), succeeded him, by virtue of the King's licence dated Nov. 27, in 1380 [E]; whose successor

24. JOHN NEYLOND (b), elected in 1391, and resigning soon after, was succeeded by

25. JOHN DE OKEHAM (i); who resigned in 1393. Whereupon

26. WIL. WESTBORN (k) was admitted Abbat the same year. After him one

27. ROBERT (l) occurs Abbat in 1403; as does

28. ROGER BEST (m) in 1412. He died in 1417, and was succeeded by

29. ROBERT GRYTTON (n); who dying in 1431, was succeeded by

30. WILL. DE ARDELE (o); whose election was confirm'd Sept. 4, 1432. He occurs Abbat in 1441, and 1450 (p). So 'tis supposed he governed 'till the year 1464, at which time

31. JOHN DE CANOVNE (q) was made Abbat. After whom one

32. WILLIAM (r) occurs Abbat; who was succeeded, in 1468, by

33. WALTER STANSTED (s). He occurs Abbat in the years 1471 and 1484, and had for his successor, as is supposed,

34. WILLIAM SPROWTON alias LINDSEY (t): who was made Abbat in 1498. He died June 21, 1517. Soon after which

(a) Newcourt's Repertor. Ecclesiastic. Vol. II. p. 171. Bibliothec. Cotton. Nero D 8. 13.

(d) Newcourt, ibid.

(b) Monasticon, & Nero D. 8, ut supra.

(i) Newcourt, ut supra.

(k) Ibid.

(l) Ibid.

(m) Ibid.

(n) Ibid.

(o) Ibid.

(p) Ibid.

(q) Ibid.

(r) Ibid.

(s) Ibid.

(t) Ibid.

(b) Monasticon Anglican. Vol. II. p. 892.

(c) Monasticon, ut supra.

(d) Ibid.

(e) Ibid.

(f) Ibid.

(g) Ibid.

(h) Ibid.

(i) Ibid.

(j) Ibid.

(k) Ibid.

(l) Ibid.

(m) Ibid.

(n) Ibid.

(o) Ibid.

(p) Ibid.

(q) Ibid.

(r) Ibid.

(c) Ibid. &

(d) Ibid.

(e) Ibid.

(f) Ibid.

(g) Ibid.

(h) Ibid.

(i) Ibid.

(j) Ibid.

(k) Ibid.

(l) Ibid.

(m) Ibid.

(n) Ibid.

(o) Ibid.

(p) Ibid.

(q) Ibid.

(r) Ibid.

(s) Ibid.

(t) Ibid.

(u) Ibid.

(v) Ibid.

(w) Ibid.

(x) Ibid.

(y) Ibid.

(z) Ibid.

(a) Ibid.

(b) Ibid.

(c) Ibid.

(d) Ibid.

(e) Ibid.

(f) Ibid.

(g) Ibid.

(h) Ibid.

(i) Ibid.

(j) Ibid.

(k) Ibid.

(l) Ibid.

(m) Ibid.

(n) Ibid.

(o) Ibid.

(p) Ibid.

(q) Ibid.

(r) Ibid.

(s) Ibid.

(t) Ibid.

(u) Ibid.

(v) Ibid.

(w) Ibid.

(x) Ibid.

(y) Ibid.

(z) Ibid.

(a) Ibid.

(b) Ibid.

(c) Ibid.

(d) Ibid.

(e) Ibid.

(f) Ibid.

(g) Ibid.

(h) Ibid.

(i) Ibid.

(j) Ibid.

(k) Ibid.

(l) Ibid.

(m) Ibid.

(n) Ibid.

(o) Ibid.

(p) Ibid.

(q) Ibid.

(r) Ibid.

(s) Ibid.

(t) Ibid.

(u) Ibid.

(v) Ibid.

(w) Ibid.

(x) Ibid.

(y) Ibid.

(z) Ibid.

(a) Ibid.

(b) Ibid.

(c) Ibid.

(d) Ibid.

(e) Ibid.

(f) Ibid.

(g) Ibid.

(h) Ibid.

(i) Ibid.

(j) Ibid.

(k) Ibid.

(l) Ibid.

(m) Ibid.

(n) Ibid.

(o) Ibid.

(p) Ibid.

(q) Ibid.

(r) Ibid.

(s) Ibid.

(t) Ibid.

(u) Ibid.

(v) Ibid.

(w) Ibid.

(x) Ibid.

(y) Ibid.

(z) Ibid.

(a) Ibid.

(b) Ibid.

(c) Ibid.

(d) Ibid.

(e) Ibid.

(f) Ibid.

(g) Ibid.

(h) Ibid.

(i) Ibid.

(j) Ibid.

(k) Ibid.

(l) Ibid.

(m) Ibid.

(n) Ibid.

(o) Ibid.

(p) Ibid.

(q) Ibid.

(r) Ibid.

(s) Ibid.

(t) Ibid.

(u) Ibid.

(v) Ibid.

(w) Ibid.

(x) Ibid.

(y) Ibid.

(z) Ibid.

(a) Ibid.

(b) Ibid.

(c) Ibid.

(d) Ibid.

(e) Ibid.

(f) Ibid.

(g) Ibid.

(h) Ibid.

(i) Ibid.

(j) Ibid.

(k) Ibid.

(l) Ibid.

(m) Ibid.

(n) Ibid.

(o) Ibid.

(p) Ibid.

(q) Ibid.

(r) Ibid.

(s) Ibid.

(t) Ibid.

(u) Ibid.

(v) Ibid.

(w) Ibid.

(x) Ibid.

(y) Ibid.

(z) Ibid.

(a) Ibid.

(b) Ibid.

(c) Ibid.

(d) Ibid.

(e) Ibid.

(f) Ibid.

(g) Ibid.

(h) Ibid.

(i) Ibid.

(j) Ibid.

(k) Ibid.

(l) Ibid.

(m) Ibid.

(n) Ibid.

(o) Ibid.

(p) Ibid.

(q) Ibid.

(r) Ibid.

(s) Ibid.

(t) Ibid.

(u) Ibid.

(v) Ibid.

(w) Ibid.

(x) Ibid.

(y) Ibid.

(z) Ibid.

(a) Ibid.

(b) Ibid.

(c) Ibid.

(d) Ibid.

(e) Ibid.

(f) Ibid.

(g) Ibid.

(h) Ibid.

(i) Ibid.

(j) Ibid.

(k) Ibid.

(l) Ibid.

(m) Ibid.

(n) Ibid.

(o) Ibid.

35. JOHN STROKE (u) Sacristary here, was elected by virtue of the King's licence, dated July 20 the same year. He resigned July 20, 1523, or was rather deposed, for several grievous Crimes laid to his charge; and succeeded by

36. THO. BARTON (w); who was elected Aug. 10, 1523. He died March 25, 1533, and was succeeded by

37. THO. MARSHALL (x), Abbat of St Werburgh's in Chester, elected June 10, 1534; four or five years after which, for some misdemeanor, perhaps for not coming into the King's measures, he was imprisoned in the Tower of London, and attainted of Treason Jan. 22, 1538 (y). Whereupon the Convent elected

38. JOHN BECHE to be Abbat in his stead. Of whom nothing farther is known, than that he was one of the three Mitred Parliamentary Abbats (the two others being those of Glastenbury (z) and Reading) that had courage enough to run the last extremity, rather than come into a Surrender, or subscribe to the King's Supremacy; on which account being attainted of High-Treason, for treason committed 27 Sept. 1538, he was hanged at Colchester December 1, 1539 (a) [F].

He was the last Abbat of this famous Monastery (b), which maintained at the Dissolution near Twenty Monks; whereof Sixteen subscribed in his Predecessor's time, on July 7, 1524, to the King's Supremacy, of which number was John Melford the Prior, John Ros, and fourteen others. In 1553, I find only these four Monks possess'd of Pensions, viz. John Frauncis, Will. Lyppon, Tho. Aunger, and Tho. Barry. Whereof the first, Frauncis, had 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* allowed him; and the other three 5*l.* each. But, besides these Pensions, here was 1*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* paid in Fees, and 8*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* in Annuities, out of the Revenues of this late Convent (c).

SECT. II.

St BOTOLPH'S PRIORY.

THE next most considerable Religious Foundation in this Town, was the Priory of St. Botolph's, dedicated to St Botolph and St Julian.

It was founded, about the beginning of the XIIth century, for Canons regular of St Augustin [G], by a monk named Eynulph, or Ernulph (d), who was also the first Prior.

These Canons were brought into this Kingdom about the year 1109 (e). And this House was the first of that Order in England, as appears by the Bull of Pope Paschal II. directed to Ernulph and his brethren, dated in August 1116 [H]. Some indeed have affirm'd, That St Gregory's in Canterbury was the first, being built by Archbishop Lanfranc in 1084 (f); and others have placed them at Nosthel in Yorkshire (g); or at Trinity within Aldgate London (b). But, as Mr J. Stevens well observes (i), this point is fully determined by Pope Paschal's Bull: who, living so near the Time, could not be misinform'd; or if he had, the Monastery in England that had been before it, would have claimed the precedence.

However it be, Pope Paschal, in his Bull, gives them the pre-eminence above all the Houses of their Order in England; and invests them with authority and jurisdiction over them in general: Impowering them, not only to punish delinquents and deserters, but also to govern all others according to their own Rule, and to plant and distribute their members in proper places as they should think convenient. Putting, at the same time, the Churches of Trinity and St Leonard's in London under their government and obedience. The Bull exempted them likewise from all secular and ecclesiastical jurisdiction whatsoever: And ordained, That after Eynulph's death, the succeeding Priors should be chosen by their brother-canons, or the majority; and be consecrated without fees by the Bishop of London (or, if he refused, by some other Bishop) from whom they were to receive a kind of Episcopal office or power [I].

It doth not appear, that Eynulph settled on his new Foundation any lands or possessions, except perhaps the site and gardens of the Priory. But it soon met with Benefactors, though its Revenues never became very ample. However, they were as follows.

K. Henry I. gave them—the whole Tithes of his royal Demesnes in Hatfield [Regis, or (u) Newcourt's Repert. Eccl. Vol. II. p. 172. (w) Ibid. (x) Ibid. (y) Collect. Clar. Whartoni & Record. (z) Collier's Ecclesiastical History, Vol. II. p. 164. (a) Stow's Annales, &c. edit. 1631. p. 577. (b) Wharton de Episcopis Lond. p. 294. & Rymer's Foedera, &c. Vol. XIV. (c) This List of the Abbats of St John's Colchester, is mostly taken from "An Account of the Mitred Parliamentary Abbeys, with a Catalogue of their Respective Abbats." By Br. Willis, Esq; Vol. I. p. 65, &c. Edit. 1718. 8°. (d) Leland, Collectan. (e) Monasticon Anglic. T. II. p. 572. (f) W. Somner's Antiq. of Canterb. edit. 1703. Part I. p. 48. (g) Cl. Reynier, Apost. Bened. p. 158. (h) J. Stow's and Strype's Survey of Lond. Book I. p. 3, 4. (i) Two Addit. Volumes to Sir W. Dugdale's Monastic. Vol. II. 1723. p. 107.

[F] There is a Tradition in this place, That the Magistrates invited him to a Feast, and then shewed him the Warrant, and went and hanged him without further warning or ceremony.

[G] This order claims St Augustin bishop of Hippo for its founder, but undoubtedly is of a later date. For we are assured from good authority, that it was not till about the Twelfth century, that these Canons had the title and the honour of St Augustin conferred on them. (Hist. des Ord. Monastiq. Vol. II. p. 11, &c. 137.) A representation of their habit may be seen in the Mon. Anglic. Tom. II. p. 1.

[H] Especially from the following clause of it—Non immerito existimamus Locum sive Canonicam vestram amplioribus nostrae benignitatis muneribus honorandam, quam omnipotens Deus ad formam Ecclesiae primitivae Primitivam in loco hujusmodi quadam eximia praerogativa plantavit:—Primi enim omnium, ut a religiosi personis accepimus, Canonicae religionis professores in patria vestra floruitis, primicias corporum & animarum vestrarum conditori Deo spontanei optulistis: Et ideo hujus secundi privilegii nostri auctoritate decernimus, ut sicut in hoc ordine primi in Anglia militastis, ita quoque dignitate ipsius primi semper habeamini, ut ubicunque per Canonicas in Anglia fratrum negligentia sentitur imbecillitas, vestra per nos potens succurrat auctoritas.—Monastic. Anglican. T. II. p. 44. &c.

[I]—A quo etiam crisma & oleum sanctum, consecrationes altarium sive basilicarum, ordinationes Canonico- rum accipiant—ibid.

broad-oak] [K]. Moreover, he confirmed to them—all the lands they had in Colchester and elsewhere; and the third part of the Mill under the Castle, called Middle-mill: As also the Serjeancy, and all the Lands which they had of the gift of Hugh Fitz-Stephen, with their appertenances. Upon condition of performing this service to him and his heirs, whenever they should make war in Wales; namely, Find one horse of five shillings price, a sack, and a spur, for forty days, at the King's charge.—Finally, he confirm'd to them—Land and Houses in Canterbury, given unto them by Bristerd and his wife Lunne. These grants are without date, according to the custom of those ancient Times (k).

K. Richard I. confirmed to them the following possessions. All the alms, tithes, and lands which they had of the fees [Manor, or Estate] of William son of Robert de Hastryngges; and of the fee of Salkevill, and of the hamfocna [i. e. the Liberty;] the third part of Middle-mill; and all other lands, &c. which they had in the Town and Hundred of Colchester, in Churches, Tithes, Tenements, &c. And likewise—the Church of Gamelegeye, holden of the fee of Bologna.—All the lands they had at Colum [Coln] and Layer.—The fourth part of the vill of Grenestede, with all its appurtenances within the Burgh of Colchester and without.—Of the fee of Hugh Fitz-Stephen, the Church of Legra [Layer de la Hay.]—Of the fee of Mandevill, the Church of [Marks] Tey; and the tithes possessions they had of the fee of Thomas de Mandevil.—Of the fee of Robert de Sakevill, all the lands they had in Fordham.—Land in the parish of Wedermundefeld [Wormingford.]—Land in Duniland, given them by Ernald de Cur-rune.—In Ardley, all the Lands and Alms they held of the fees of Robert Briton, Ralph Martell, Richard de Bovill, Baldwin Wyfchards and Alice daughter of Robert Fitz-Gosceline.—Lands holden of the foke of Dedham.—Lands, tithes, and other possessions in Reymes [Raine] of the fee of Richard de Reymes [L].

In 1398, Thomas Whot and John Hervy gave—3 messuages, 242 acres of Land, 17 of meadow, and 21*d.* rent in Peldon, Adburton, and Leyre de la Hay, not held of the Crown, and worth yearly 64*s.* 9*d.* And also 1 messuage with the appurtenances in Colchester holden of the King in free-burgage, worth 2*s.* per annum [M].

The same year, John Doreward and John Clerke gave—2 messuages, 124 acres of land, 1 acre of meadow, 12 acres of pasture, 5 acres of wood, and 16*d.* rent in Great Teye, [called Trumpington's] (l).

John Doreward gave them, besides,—2 acres of land, and the Advowson of the Parish Church and Rectory of Chigwell, to find a Chaplain to pray for the soul of his father, and of all his ancestors and benefactors (m).

They had also—30 acres of land, and 2 acres wood, called Godehye, in Lexden: Recovered by William de Colchestre Prior, in the year 1419 (n).

—Eighteen acres in Monkwykfield (o).

—Thirteen shillings rent out of Cokes place (p).

—The Church of Frating: And a portion of Tithes in Mount-Buers (q). [N].

What other possessions they had, not already mentioned, appears in K. Henry the VIIIth's grant of them to the Lord Chancellor Audeley which comprehended (besides the site of the Priory) the Manors of Blyndeknyghts, Canwikes, and Dilbridge [O], and the Rectories [or impropriate Tithes] of St Botolph's Colchester, Leyr de la Hey, and Tey Maundevill; and the Advowsons of the Churches of St James, St Peter, and St Martin, in the town of Colchester, and of Mile-end near the same: And an annual Pension of lx shillings out of the Priory of Hatfeld-regis;—vi s. viii d. out of Mile-end Rectory;—xxvi s. viii d. [formerly iv marks] out of St Peter's Vicariage;—iii s. out of the Rectory of St Martin's;—x s. out of the Rectory of St James; and vi s. viii d. from the Guardians of the Chapel of St Anne, in Colchester.—vi s. viii d. out of Frating Rectory;—xx s. out of the Rectory of little Rayne;—and vi s. viii d. out of the Rectory of Aldham, in the County of Essex.—x s. out of the Rectory of Bures St Mary's;—vi s. viii d. out of that of Holton;—and vi s. viii d. out of the Rectory of Cornerd, in the County of Suffolk. And all the Pensions and Portions of Tithes in Boxted, White Chapel, [in Great Tay] Wytham, and White Notley, in Essex, belonging to this Monastery. And vi s. viii d. out of the manor of Sheriffs [in Colne Engaine] in the county of Essex. And all other Rights and Hereditaments in the town and sub-

(k) Monastic. Anglican, ibid.

(l) Inquis. ad quod damn. 22 Ric. II. ps. 2^a. p. 158.

(m) Monastic. Anglic.

Tom. II. p. 478. and Newcourt Vol. II. p. 140.

(n) Rot. Cur. 7 Hen. V. rot. 32.

(o) Carta antiq. penes me.

(p) Carta antiq.

(q) Monast. Anglic. T. I. p. 193. and Newcourt Vol. II. p. 102. 275.

[K] The words of the Grant, are,—Decimam, plenarie de omni Dominio meo de Hetfelda, in bosco & plano, quicunque inde aliquid teneat, & de pathnagio, de porcellis, vitulis, agnis, caseis, & omnibus rebus ad dominium pertinentibus: unde volo atque præcipio, quod bene & liberè & quietè hæc omnia habeant & garbas vel in campo vel ad horreum, prout ipsi elegerint, recipiant.—See Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 315.

[L] The Confirmation Charter of K. Richard I. is dated 4 Dec. regn. 1^o. and is extant in Dugdale's Monast. T. I. p. 44. &c.

[M] The License in mortmain for this, is dated 20 June 1398. Pat. 22 Ric. II. in Turri Lond.

[N] The Tenements, and particular parcels of Land, they had in and about this Town, as mentioned in our Records, are as follows. A Tenement in Magdalen-street, and lands and pasture there. (Rot. 3 & 4 Jac. I. rot. 10.) The old Mill. (Rot. 47 Edw. III. rot. 6.) Canewyk-mill. (Rot. 6 Hen. V. rot. 13.) Gate-field, and Barne-field. (Rot. 46 Edw. III. rot. 1.) Bromes. (Rot. 49 Edw. III. rot. 7.) Land in Hackeney-lane, in St James's parish. (Rot. 6 Hen. V. rot. 1. & 7 Hen. VIII. rot. 11.) Bournefye. (Rot. 7 Hen. VI. rot. 13.) Cokerellifcroft, near Bournefye. (Rot. 7 Hen. VI. rot. 23.) Gloverisland in Clay-street. (Rot. 15 Hen. VI. rot. 2.) Levegorismede near Picaifbrook. (Rot. 36 Hen. VI. rot. 13.) Chelwode in East-ward. (Rot. 8 Hen. IV. rot. 18.) Old-land-wode. (Rot. 16 Edw. IV. rot. 21.) Sawenwode. (Rot. 46 & 47 Edw. III. rot. 1.) Oxenelas; & Gylemyne-land. (Rot. 30 Edw. III. rot. 2 & 10.)

[O] Dilbridge was lett, in 1428, for 26*s.* 8*d.* per ann. Rot. 7 Hen. VI. rot. 13.

urbs of Colchester; and in Leyre de la Heye, Peldon, Abberton, Fingringhoo, Great and Little Wigboro, Ardley, Great and Little Bentley, Bromley, Lawford, Alresford, Dedham, Wyvenhoo, Elmefted, Est-Donyland, Birch, West-Donyland, Lexden, Stanwey, Copford, Mile-End, Grynstead, Great Tey, Little Tey, Tey-Mandevyle, Earl's-Colne, White-Colne, Colne-Engayne, Keldon, Boreham, Notley, Cressing, Hatfeild-regis, Frating, Little Rayne, Fordham, Bergholt-Sackvile, Langham, Aldham, and Roydone, in the County of Essex: Bures, St Mary's, Holton, Cornerd, and Reydon, in the County of Suffolk: And in Hawesdon, in the County of Cambridge; parcel of the possessions of the aforesaid Priory of St Botolph's: And a yearly rent of x marks out of the manor of Blyndeknyghts, which the Priory of St Botolph's used to pay to the Prior of Woodbridge. All the said premisses being valued at 134*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per annum (r).

It was surrendered 20 March, 1535.

The priory stood on the South side of the Church; but there are hardly any remains of it, except a few Walls that are incorporated into a Brewhouse, erected on the site of the Priory. What number of Canons it contained, we are not able to learn.

The Church was noble and magnificent, and built in an elegant manner, and a good taste, with fine semicircular arches duly proportion'd, and a double row of them in the Body one above another, with imposts and pilasters between, and other suitable ornaments. How beautiful the Western front was, will better appear from the Representation given of it here, as drawn by my ingenious neighbour Mr James Deane, than from any description I could give. The South-west and North-west corners were adorned with two stately Towers, of which that at the North-west was standing within the memory of man. The Dimensions of this once very fine Church are as follows;

Length of it within the walls, — a hundred and eight feet.

Width of the Nave, between the pillars — twenty five feet and a half.

Width of the South isle — nine feet, one inch and a half.

Width of the North isle — nine feet, seven inches and a half.

Diameter of the pillars — five feet and a half.

Thickness of the Wall, at the great Door — eight feet and a half.

'Till our unhappy civil wars, this Church was look'd upon as the chief in the Town; where the Corporation resorted in their Formalities on Sundays and other public Occasions to hear the General Preacher (s). And the great Bell there, was that which was rung every morning and evening, at four and eight o'clock (t). In the time of the siege, this Church suffered with most of our public Edifices; being partly battered down, as some say by the Royalists for fear the enemy should lodge themselves in it; or, as others affirm, it was done on design by the enemy, who had a Battery levell'd that way (u): Which last seems probable, because the South-east corner is the most demolish'd.

The Prior of St Botolph's owed suit at the Law-hundred-Courts of this Town (w).

List of the Priors.

Hafcoil.

Astulph; in the reign of K. Henry III (x).

Robert, in 1221.

Edward, in the reign of K. Edward I (y).

Richard, in 1273.

Simon, in 1281.

John de Colum.

John, in 1338.

Thomas Sakkot, dyed in 1361.

John Pruet, 1^o. Edw. III. (z).

John de la Neylonde, in 1374 (a).

John Newland, in 1390 (b).

William Westbrome, in 1394. He was still Prior in 1412 (c).

William de Colchester, in 1416 (d).

John Depyng, in 1428 (e).

John North, in 1436.

Thomas Colman, in 1450 (f).

John Wardous, Wardhus, or Wardhus, in 1457 (g).

John Flyngaunt, in 1462 (h).

John Stampe, in 1497 (i).

William in 1514 (k).

Thomas Thomas, Prior de novo electus (l).

John Turner, last Prior.

This is the most compleat List it is in my power to give. For neither the Register nor Leidger-book of this Priory, are in our public Libraries or Offices. Undoubtedly it came into the hands of the Lord Chancellor Audeley. But the great Alterations that have happened in his posterity, have made it impracticable to have access thereto.

Upon the suppression of the Monasteries, the site of this Priory with all its Revenues, valued then at 113*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.* were granted by K. Henry VIII, 26 May, 1536, to Sir Thomas Audeley Kt. Lord Chancellor of England, to be held in capite by knight's service, paying a yearly quit-rent of 13*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* (m) He sold part of the Revenues thereof the same year [P], to John Christmase Esq; who alienated them again, Feb. 5, 1551, together with Kellers-more, in More lane and near Chidwell-lane, to George Christmase Esq; and his heirs, and to Edward Markaunt Gent. (n)

But the Site itself of the Priory was alienated

(r) Pat. 28 Henr. VIII. 4 ps. 186. (s) See Book I. ch. v. § 5. (t) Old Paper, penes me. (u) See J. Bartlett's Fig. of the Siege. (w) Rot. 17 Edw. II. &c. (x) Rot. Cur. 7 Hen. V. rot. 32. (y) Taxatio septimæ. The rest, newly inserted, are from St. John's Register, p. 140, 208, 222, 262, 270, 277, 302. (z) Carta Johannis de Colcestr. (a) Rot. 49 Edw. III. rot. 3. & 19. (b) Rot. Cur. de Martells-hall. (c) Rot. Cur. Colc. 18 Ric. II. and 14 Hen. IV. (d) Rot. 4 Hen. VI. rot. 5. (e) Rot. 7 & 12 Hen. VI. rot. 19. &c. (f) Rot. 29. & 33. Hen. VI. (g) Rot. 36 Hen. VI. rot. 16. & Rot. 37 Hen. VI. rot. 10. (h) Rot. 2 & 4 Edw. IV. rot. 14. (i) Draught of Monday-Courts. (k) Rot. de Martells-hall. (l) Carta penes Canning, Arm. (m) Pat. 28 Henr. VIII. p. 9. (n) Book of Alienat. Part I. p. 82.

[P] Namely the Grange or farm of Dilbridge; and certain Lands, called Colbaynes, Covent pitells, Glovers-land, Sand fields, Plomtons, Clay-pitell, Pipe-meadow, le Hofe, Sirmare meadow [alias Square-meadow] Ailmers tenement in Dilbridge, Oldland-wood, East-mill & two meadows of five acres near it, Goole-green-croft, East-croft, Labbok-meadow, Horse-pasture, and Plomers-grove. Licent. concess. de eodem anno. The Licence is dated Septemb. 18. 5^a pars.

by the Lord Chancellor Audeley, in September 1540, to John Golder. Anastatia Golder sold it, in November 1548, to Arthur Clarke; who dyed 26 January 1552, possessed of the site of St. Botolph's Monastery, with the Church, and all the houses, edifices, meadows and pastures belonging to the said site. Thomas Earl of Dorset, at the time of his decease 19 April 1608, was possess'd of the same; as was his son Robert who dyed the 27th of February following: Richard Earl of Dorset succeeding (o). From this family it pass'd [Q], about the year 1650, to Oliver Hendrickx (p); and continued in his posterity till the beginning of this century, when it was conveyed to Oliver Burkin. Of him it was purchased, in 1720, by Matthew Martin, Esq; who gave it to his son-in-law Major-general John Price: but it now belongs, with the Gardens and More, to Mrs. Selly.

S E C T. III.

The CROUCHED FRIERS.

THIS House was a Convent for Crossed [or as the old English word is] for Crouched Friers, of the Order of St. Augustin, who were bound to celebrate divine service in the Chapel here; and also an Hospital for the Reception of Poor people [R].

By whom it was originally founded, doth not clearly appear. But, according to the best information I can receive, the Founder of it was William de Lanvallei Lord of the Manor of Stanway: who also gave thereto pannage for fattening twelve hogs yearly in his wood of Shrub and Wildenhey, and pasture for two cows [S]. And what seems to confirm my opinion, is, That by an Inquisition taken 16 Rich. II. (q) it was found, that Robert Knivett held then the maner of Stanway of Walter Lord Fitz-walter, by the service of a pair of gilt spurs, or Six pence: "to which manor, as the Record goes on, belongs the Advowson of the Hospital of the Holy Cross in the town of Colchester" [T].

(o) Inqu. 7 May 7^o Edw. VI. Regitr. London. Baudake, p. 81. 90.

(p) Rates and Assessments, penes me.

(q) Pars I. fol. 72.

(r) Re-

(s) Indentures, among the Town Records.

(t) Carta Gildæ Stæ Helenæ, 1^o Henr. VIII. & Newcourt Vol. II. p. 554.

(u) Book I. ch. 2. § 2.

(w) Rot. Cur. 25 Edw. III. rot. 5.

(x) Regitr. Lond. Baudake, p. 81, 90. Gilbert. p. 13.

(y) Rot. 13 & 14 Edw. VI. rot. 19. Rot. 16 Edw. IV. rot. 21.

[Q] Part of the demesnes of the Priory, in the tenure of Alice Clarke, were granted, in 1568, to Percivall Bowes, and others. And, 14 October 1618, Ninian Winsley dyed possess'd of the same. Pat. 10 Eliz. et Inquis. 27 Jaco. May 25.

[R] Mr. Newcourt is mistaken, when he affirms, that this House was inhabited by some of those Crossed Friers who first came to England in 1244. For these were more properly Cross-bearers than Crossed Friers, as appears by the account given of them by our Historians. [Dicti sic, quia Cruces in baculis efferebant. M. Paris. ed. 1640. p. 650.—Dicti Cruciferi, a Cruce, quam quilibet baculo suo bajulabat alligatam. M. Westm. ad an. 1244. Ed. 1601. p. 318.] And therefore they seemed more like the Knight-Templars than any others. See Monastic. Anglic. Vol. II. p. 517. and the Print there. Whereas these our Crouched-Friers at Colchester are called in the Refoundation of them, (Appendix, No. xii.) Fratres regularis Sti. Augustini ordinis Cruce signati, i. e. Regular Brethren of the Order of St. Augustin, mark'd with the Cross; because they wore Crosses on their clothes, both on their breast and left shoulder. See Monast. Angl. Vol. II. p. 367. And what serves to clear this point, is, That William de Lanvallei's grant to them must have been before the year 1244. See Sir W. Dugdale's Baronage, Vol. I. p. 633.

Sir Robert de Rochford presented to it in 1332 and 1334, being, as I have reason to think, then Lord of Stanway-manor (r). And in the gift of the Lords of the same manor did this House continue (with some interruption however) even as low as Henry the Eighth's reign. For Thomas Bonham Esq; then Lord of Stanway-manor, was also patron of this Convent (s).

But in the 16th of K. Richard II, (viz. 1392, Aug. 1.) Alexander Pod and Simon Slade of Colchester, who had obtained, in 1383, the Advowson of this Chapel, and four acres of land, from John Stanfede clerke; granted the same to Ralph Algar, Stephen Baronn, and Henry Bosse; which three last gave them, Septemb. 30 the same year, to the Bailiffs of this Corporation, as a help towards repairing the Town-walls (t); as is related above (u).

This House underwent several alterations, and in consequence thereof came to be known by several names.

It was at first a Convent, or Hospital, for regular Brethren of the Order of St. Augustin marked with the Cross; as the Grant, which we shall more particularly mention by and by, expresses it: And was governed by a Prior (w).

Next, it appears as a Free-Chapel, under the care of a perpetual Warden or Rector (x); tho' it is even then promiscuously called a Chapel and an Hospital. But it admits of a question, whether they were not then different, and distinctly presented to [U].

Afterwards we find it called a Church, and in the possession of a Rector (y).

When the Gild of St Helen was founded in this Chapel, it was chiefly known by the name of the Gild of St Helen; and both Chapel and Hospital became jointly in the gift of the Guardians of that Gild [W]. But to return, Towards the end of K. Richard the 1st's reign, this Chapel and Hospital were so much decayed and neglected, for want of a Warden, and by reason of the smallness of the Revenues, that divine Service could not be

[S] W. de Launvalei dedit Deo, S. Marie, & Hospitali Ste Crucis, pannag. ad 12 porcos annuatim impinguend. pro perpetuo in Bosco suo de Shrub et Wildenhey, & pastur. ad duas vaccas. MS. penes me, ex ips. Carta sine dat.

[T] — Ad quod Manerium Advocatio Hospitalis Ste Crucis in villa de Colchestria pertinet. — Inquis. ad quod damn. 16 Ric. II.

[U] Johannes de Wynton Presbyter presentatus per Dn. Rob. de Rochford militem ad Capellam Ste Crucis Colcestr. Lond. Dioc. vacantem, 5 Kal. Aprilis admissus fuit apud Stebbenhyth, & Custos perpetuus perfectus Capelle memorate.

Ricardus de Botyngham ab eodem presentatus ad Hospitali Ste Crucis Colcestr. 3 Kal. Decemb. Reg. Lond. Baudake, p. 81. 90.

[W] Joh. Stevyn presbyter ad Capellam five Hospitali Ste Crucis per resignationem Thome Wafare, ad presentat. Joh. Beche & Henr. Stampe, custod. Fraternitatis Gilde Ste Elene.

John Quene admitted as Rector Capelle five Hospitalis Ste Crucis, at the presentation of John Swayne and William Gernon Custod. Reg. Lond. Gilbert. p. 13. 61.

perform'd therein, nor the Poor maintained as usual: In order therefore to encrease the Revenues, and to get money sufficient to do the necessary repairs about the Chapel and Hospital; an Indulgence was obtained in 1401, or 1402, which being curious and uncommon is inserted in the Appendix (z).

A few years after, namely, in 1407, this Chapel and Hospital obtained a great accession of strength and riches, by becoming the Seat of the Gild [X] of St Helen. This Gild was founded [or rather founded a-new] (a) by Richard Fodryngrey clerk, Thomas Godston, Tho. Fraunceys, John Forde, and John Sumpster of Colchester; under the name of the Fraternity and Gild of St Helen in the Chapel of the Holy Crosse of Colchester. And the Brethren and Sisters of this Gild were empower'd by the Patent, to chuse every year, if they thought fit, one or two Guardians; to found a Chantry of Five Chaplains in the said Chapel; and to maintain Thirteen Poor Men, to pray for the King, and the Brethren and Sisters of the Gild [Y]. The Chantries of Thomas Godston, Thomas Francis, and Edmund Haverland, entred afterwards into this Gild.

Upon that occasion, the Crouched Friars seem to have been turn'd out of this House, 'till about the beginning of K. Henry VIIIth's reign, when one Roger Church, an active man, brought them in again; and producing some Papal Bulls, and other evidences, whereby it appeared, That this House was originally founded for Friars of that Order, they were reinstated therein [Z], through the interest of John Earl of Oxford, and James Hubert the King's Attorney, who were their friends. And then the Bailiffs and Commonalty restored to them the two Messuages, and four acres of land above-mentioned [A]; and Roger Church became their Prior.

The same Roger Church found means to get possession of the Lands which had been appointed by Thomas Godston, for the support of a Chantry founded by him in the Church of the Holy Crosse, upon granting a pension to Thomas Mooteham the Chantry-priest (b). And afterwards, Decemb. 25, 1509, those lands were appropriated to this Hospital, by the Masters of St Helen's Gild (c).

The Names of the few Priors, which I have been able to recover, are these,

John de Wiston.

Richard de Botyngnam.

John Stevyn.

John Quene (d).

Thomas Turnour was Master of this Hospital (e).

Roger Church, Prior (f).

John of Colchester [Colonie] (g).

John Dowalt.

John Dryver.

Richard Deryks was, I think, the last Pryour of the House and Church of the Holy Crosse and St Elyn within the suburbys of the towne of Colchester, as it is exprest in an old Lease (b).

By comparing severall yearly accounts of the Revenues of this Gild, (of which I have one 6^o Hen. V. another 11^o Edw. IV. another 8^o Hen. VII. and another 25^o Hen. VIII.) I find, that the Lands and Tenements belonging to the Chapel or Hospital in particular, were as follows.

The Gardens, orchards, and other land adjoining to the Chapel and Hospital—Eight acres.

Two acres of land with a meadow and other parcels near Maldon-lane, called the Hofe.

Three acres more of land near Maldon-lane.

One acre in Borough-field.

Crouch-downe, containing Six acres of land near Wyndmill hill—and two acres besides.

Nine acres of land near the Shrebb.

Two crofts more near the Shrebb.

A Garden.

Two Gardens in St Peter's.

Four acres of land in Layer-Breton, near the Church.

Five acres of land in Coptford.

Seven acres in Great Birch, or East-thorp.

West-field in Great Tay.

Crouchchirche-bern.

A capital messuage, west of the Chapel, with a piece of ground, &c.

A tenement north of the same. And two other tenements adjoining.

Six tenements near Thomas Godston's Chapel, [which was adjoining to the Church of the Holy Crosse.]

A capital messuage near them, with a well, and a garden.

The Saresynes [or Saracen's] head, opposite to the Church or Chapel of the Holy Crosse.

Two Tenements, called the Bell; and St. Anthonies.

(z) No. X. among the Town-Records. 11 Edw. IV. dat. 14 Hen. VIII. (a) De novo fundare & stabilire—were the words of the License. Pat. 9 Hen. IV. (c) Carta penes me. (f) See above the Text. (g) Carta Gildæ Stæ Helenæ 1 Hen. VIII.

(b) Leafes

(e) Comput.

(b) Penes me,

[X] The Saxon word gild, signifies a Society, or Corporation, consisting both of men and women, that united for some religious or other designs; and contributed towards the charge and support of their Society. The members of this Gild were, in 1418, Sixty-five in number; and amongst them were, the Countess of Hertford, Sir John Howard, Kt. Sir Gerard Braybroke, Kt. Lady Brockhole, &c. In 1491, the Gild consisted of Eighty seven members; and, among the rest, of the Abbot of St John's, John Lord Berners, Robert Cale Rector of Stanway, &c. Compot. ejusd. Gildæ.

[Y] See the Appendix, No. XI.

[Z] They were reinstated by Indenture dated the last day of September 1496 between Sir Tho. Nuttall parson of St Runwald, and Robert Rookwood the younger Gent. Masters and keepers of the gilde and fraternitie of St. Elen within the Monastery of the Holy Crosse in the Suburbs of the Town of Colchester, and the brethren of the same fraternitie, on the one partie; And—Priour of the same Monasterie and his brethren, of the other partie, by the assent and consent of Edward Knevie, Esq; Lord of the Mannor of Stanway, and of old founder of the said Monastery, with the assent and consent of the said Master and brethren aforesaid, in reformation of the old foundation, and to the reformation of eny things misbehaved or used contrary to the same; Have granted, with our whole assent forever, for them and their successors, to the said—Priour and his successors (to the number of Four Crosse-friers alwaye for ever, being of the Nation of the Realme of England, and none estrangers boren withouten the same realme of England) the said Monastery of the Holy Crosse before said, with the housing therto adjoining, &c. MSS. W. Ram.

[A] See Book I. ch. I. § 2.

Five Rentaries, or tenements in Maldon-lane.
Four Rentaries in Crouch-church-street.
A tenement and 5 acres in Magdalen-street.
A tenement on North-hill, and another in the Middle-Burgh, in St Peter's parish.

They also received several rents of assise, or Quit-rents, to the amount of 17 s. 4 d. $\frac{1}{2}$ per annum, out of the following Tenements, viz. —Eleven new tenements in the parish of St Mary's, built on a croft called Lacyes-croft, of which tenements one belonged afterwards to Richard Ram; being on the North-side of Crouch-street, in Lexden-manor.—And out of one tenement in Head-street; three in Trinity; four in St Peters; three in St Martins; one in St James's; one in Wyre-street; John Weston's in All-Saint's; and out of a croft in Lexden, near the rampart of Wylden-heyhyth [B].

As for the Revenues of the Chuntries incorporated into this Gild, they are given in the next Chapter, under those respective Chuntries.

Upon the dissolution of the Monasteries, all these Lands and Tenements, &c. were valued at the small sum of 7*l*. 7*s*. 8*d*. And, on the 24th day of April 1542, they were granted by K. Henry VIII, to Sir Thomas Audley Lord Audley of Walden, Chancellor of England, and his heirs and assigns, under the title of the site of the House or late Priory of the Crosse friers near Colchester; and all the Church, Belfrey, Cloyster, and other edifices, and the Church-yard, and all the houses, buildings, tenements, granaries, stables, curtilages, walls, gardens, lands, and tenements whatsoever, adjoining or belonging to the Church or House of the late Crosse-friers; and the yearly rents, farms, reversions, and other profits of the same, or parcel thereof, &c. To be held in capite by the 20th part of a Knight's fee, paying every year at Easter 2*s*. 8*d*. into the Court of Augmentation (i). This House, &c. the said Lord Chancellor Audeley bequeath'd by will to his brother Thomas during life, and after his decease to his second son Thomas: Which latter convey'd it, Octob. 21, 1563, to William Watson; who dying Decemb. 28, 1571 (k), left it to his daughter Joan, the wife of Arthur Hall. They jointly convey'd it to John Watson, Octob. 7, 1580; and he granted it, Oct. 1, 1583, to William and Robert Woodward,

(i) Pat. 34 Hen. VIII. Vol. II. p. 77. (k) Efe. 15 Elizab. (n) J. Weever Funer. Mon. p. 613.

[B] About the time of the Dissolution of this House, the Revenues of it were thus described, and valued.

A little stripok, with a meadow, called the Hoste, with 2 acres in Mell-field abutting upon Holmer [Butt] lane.	0	7	0
A piece of ground by Mauldon-lane, abutting on it.	0	4	0
Nine acres in Clarke's Land.
Shrub-crofte.	0	4	0
An acre in Borowe-field, between the Land of the Parson of St Mary and Mott's in Lexden.	0	0	10
Crowch-Downe, or Crowches-land, between the Canyver against the North, and the way leading from Colchester to London.	0	10	0
Crowches Barne.	0	8	0
A Garden.	0	1	8
Another Garden.	0	5	0
A Tenement once John Caprons.	1	0	0
A Tenement next Caprons.	0	6	0
Two Tenements next the Church-yard.	0	9	0
A Tenement next it.	0	5	0

and their heirs. April 18, 1584, they sold the same to Edward Barker, and Susan his Wife, for 460*l*. These mortgaged it to the Earl of Dorset, who in 1613 reconvey'd it to James Barker son of Edward. Afterwards it was for some time in the Stephens's possession. And then it coming again into the Barker-family, they sold it, June 22, 1637, to Harbottle Grimston Esq; and his heirs. It is now in the heirs of the late Jeremiah Daniell Esq;

This House and Church of the Crouched Friers stood in the Suburbs, on the south-west of the Town, and on the south side of the London road. The Church, or Chapel, was pulled down many years ago [C]. The House was converted into a seat of the Stephens's, and afterwards of Sir Harbottle Grimston: But it seems to have been partly new-built, there appearing in it no signs of antiquity, except a few windows on the East-side. It was much damaged during the Siege (l); and never became fit since for a Gentleman's residence. About the beginning of this century it was hired by the Workhouse-Corporation, and converted into a general Workhouse for the whole Town. But when they removed into another in St James's parish, this was let into Tenements to the poorer sort of people, which bringing little or no profit to Mr. Daniell, the owner, he caused it to be taken down.

The GREY FRIERS.

THE Monastery of the Grey-Friers [D] stood within the North-east corner of the Walls, just by East-gate, and almost opposite to St James's Church. It was founded in the year 1309, by Robert Baron Fitz-walter (m), Lord of the manor of Lexden; who, in 1325, entered himself into this order and house, as a religious votary, in order to spend here the remainder of his days (n); but short it was, for he died the same year (o). As this order pretends, according to their Founder's rule, not to possess or make any thing their own; but to maintain themselves partly by the labour of their hands, and partly with such Alms, in Meat, Drink, and the like, as they shall receive by Begging; but not to take Money upon any account, either by themselves or

(l) See Book I. ch. iii. §. 7. (o) Mon. Anglic. ibid.

(m) Monastic. Anglic.

Another Tenement, &c.	0	5	0
Another Tenement to it.	0	5	0
A Tenement next it.	0	4	0
Another Tenement.	0	15	0
A Tenement in Mauldon-lane.	0	13	4
Two Tenements there.	0	8	0
A Tenement and Garden in North-street.	0	7	0
A Tenement and Garden to that adjoining.	0	6	8
Crowches land in Copford and East-thorp.	1	0	0
A Garden in Mauldon-lane.	0	1	8

[C] Adjoining to this Church, there was a Chapel built by Thomas Godston, to the honour of Almighty God, Marie the mother of Jesus Christ, St Helen, St Katherine, and All-Saints. MSS. penes me.

[D] The Grey-friers, so called from the colour of their Habit; and otherwise named Franciscans, Friers-minors, Minorites, and Begging-Friers; were founded about the year 1206 or 1209 by Francis of Assisi, an Italian. M. Paris p. 286. Hist. des Ordres Monastiques, Vol. vii. p. 1. A representation of their Habit may be seen in the Monasticon, and in J. Stevens's Two Additional Volumes, Vol II. p. 5.

a third person (p); their lands and possessions will therefore make but a very small figure in this article.

Their original Foundation contained, I suppose, only about an acre of ground.

But K. Edward II. granted them a void place of 4 acres and a half, contiguous to their House, to enlarge their Mansion: And, the year following, half an acre of ground more, for the same purpose (q).

The same King granted also, in trust for them, to John de Morevillere and Theophania his wife, the manor of Martaigneville in the county of Ponthieu, in Picardy (r).

In 1422 John Pod merchant gave them 8 acr. $\frac{1}{2}$ of land near the head of their conduit: being in three fields then called the Pyepfield, 3 acres, Dunstrete, 3 acres, and Morepyghtell, 2 acres and a half.

K. Edward IV, March 19, 1479, at the request of Robert Wotton, warden of this House, and the brethren of the same, granted to these Friars and their successors, Fifty two loads of underwood (each load drawn by six horses or other cattle) out of his forest of King's-wood; to be first view'd or supervis'd by his Officers: upon condition they should pray for the good estate of him and his Queen while they lived; and, after their decease, for their souls, and for the soul of Richard late Duke of York; and should keep their several Obits yearly (s).

These are all the Grants which, as far as I can find, were ever made to this House [E]: And therefore there was no account taken of it at the general suppression. J. Weever hath indeed set it down, as valued at 113*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.* But that valuation doth not belong to it, but to St. Botolph's, which is wholly omitted by that author.

The few Guardians of these Friars-Minors whose names have occurred to me, are these.

John Reylegh, in 1419 (t).

Walter Bradenham, in 1458 (u).

Thomas Lexden, in 1475 (w).

Robert Wotton.

John Tynemouth, in 1493 (x).

John Gurdun, in 1536.

After the dissolution of the Monasteries, this House did not long continue in the King's hands. For Henry VIII. granted it, July 8, 1544, for the sum of 430*l.* 10*s.* to Francis Jobson Esq; and Elizabeth his wife, and to Andrew Dudley, Robert Hennage, and Richard Duke Esquires; under the title of the House of the late Friars-Minors vulgarly called the Gray Friars in Colchester, with those Houses and Edifices, called the Old-Hall, the Fermery, and Sir Thomas Tirrell's Lodgings, the Bakehouse, the Brew-house, two Gardens, and a piece of land containing by estimation four acres: The whole valued at the clear yearly sum of 25 Shillings and eight pence. To be held in free socage by fealty, and not in capite, at the yearly rent of 2*s.* 7*d.* (y). On the 20th of September 1565, Sir Francis Jobson being seized of the whole, convey'd it to William Watson. And Jan. 26, 159 $\frac{5}{8}$, William Watson of Staples inn Gent. sold a third part of the same to Martin Basill sen. and jun. The 20th of June following, Brian Watson son of John brother of William last mentioned, conveyed the two other parts to the said Basills. February the 2d 163 $\frac{5}{8}$, Martin Basill of Lincoln's-inn, Gent. son of Martin Basill jun. conveyed this estate to John Lemyng and Henry his son; which latter sold it, June 20, 1654, to William Peeke. He had only one daughter, Mary, married to Thomas Turgis Esq. In 1700, Turgis conveyed the premises to Thomas Carpenter, who settled them, after his own and his wife's decease, on Tho. Bayes, son of Anne one of his daughters, and Joseph Bayes. In 1740 Tho. Bayes sold it to Robert Potter Licentiate in Physick. Of him it was purchased by the Rev. John Hall, who hath built a very handsome house, and made good gardens; with other improvements.

S E C T. V.

ST ANNE'S CHAPEL.

THIS Chapel, dedicated to St Anne the mother of the Virgin Mary, stands on a rising ground in St James's parish, beyond the river, and on the South side of the great Road leading from this town to Harwich.

When, and by whom, it was founded, appears no where upon record (z). But it was in being in the year 1406 (a): Nay, very probably, in the reign of K. Henry III. For in an allocation in the Exchequer during that period, there is an allowance of 15*s.* 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. made to the Hermit in St James's parish (b). Now from some presentments made at the Law-hundred-Courts in this Town [F], we learn, That it was an Hermitage; and had a well near it called Holy well. Which serves to prove, that it was the same as is mention'd in that Allocation.

Moreover, there is reason to conclude,

(p) Rule of St. Francis, ch. vi.

(r) Pat. 2 Edw. II.

(s) Rot. 37 Hen. VI. rot. 4 & Rot. 4. Edw. IV. rot. 22.

(t) Pat. 19 Edw. IV. See Rot. Cur. 28 Hen. VIII. rot. 10.

(u) Pat. 36 Henr. VIII. (z) J. Weever's Funer. Monuments, p. 612.

(v) Pat. 2 Edw. II. prs. 2. m. 7. & Pat. 3 Edw. II. m. 26. in Turri Lond.

(w) Minutes of Sessions.

(x) Minutes of Sessions.

(y) Rot. Cur. 8 Hen. IV. rot. 2.

(z) Al-

[E] But as these Begging Friars were a very popular order, and in high esteem with the deluded vulgar on account of their pretended Austerities, they received very plentiful alms and donations: and had frequent Legacies left them. Robert Pryour, for instance, gave them in his will 40*l.* to pray for his soul and the souls of his benefactors, (Apr. 15, 1463) and such Bequests very often occur in ancient Wills. Besides that numbers of the richer sort coveted to be buried in their Monasteries, foolishly imagining, that there would be an easier passage from thence to heaven than out of a common Church yard.

[F] Item pref. quod Frater Johannes Herounto de Capella Ste Anne, hobet Fossatum non mundatum apud Holywell. Rot. 8 Hen. IV. rot. 2.

Item pref. quod Joh. Newton Heremita Hospitalis Ste Anne apud Hallywelle Colcestr. tenet unum fossatum extendens de predicto Hospitali versus Estitrat, long. xviii pertic. non mundat. ad grave nocumentum &c. Mi. xii*d.* Rot. 1. Hen. V. rot. 17 in dorso.

And elsewhere—Heremita Capellanus Ste Anne—is mentioned. Rot. 7 Hen. V. rot. 2.

That it was an appendage to St. Botolph's; Because the Guardians of this Chapel used to pay 6*s.* 8*d.* to the Prior of that House; which sum was granted amongst the rest of its revenues, to Sir Thomas Audeley (c).

I find it mentioned in K. Henry the VIII's reign as a Gild and Fraternity of St Anne (d): And, October 10, 1579, the Sheriff of Essex seized into the Queen's hands Wyndmill-field in St James's parish, "late parcell of St. Anne's Gild," within the Burgh of Colchester: then in the tenure and occupation of the Bailiffs and Commonalty, and late of Thomas Pannel (e).

Gallow-field belonged also thereto (f). But what the rest of its lands and possessions were, I have not been able to find.

At a Law-hundred-Court, in 1515, the lands adjoining, and belonging to this Chapel, were made Whole-year ground (g).

The remains of this Chapel are now converted into a Barn.

S E C T. VI.

ST HELEN'S CHAPEL

STANDS in St Nicolas's parish, in a lane called from it, St Helen's, and vulgarly and corruptly, Tenant's, lane, but its ancient name was Maidenburgh-street. This Chapel is dedicated to St Helen, the mother of Constantine the Great, a native of this Town, as is shewn above.

It is a place of great antiquity, founded originally, as it is said (b), by St Helen; and rebuilt, about the year 1076 (i), by Eudo, founder of St John's Abbey, who gave it to that Monastery with fourteen acres of land belonging to the same (k): In consideration of which, and of the Tithes of the Castle's demesnes, the Abbot was obliged to find a Chaplain to officiate every other day of the week in this Chapel. But in the 18th of K. Edward I. this service was found to be wholly neglected, and the Chapel in a ruinous condition, as appears by the Record below [G]. And for fear it should, in process of time, be applied to profane uses, John de Colchester, Rector of Tendring, founded in it a Chantry, in the year 1321, 15 Edw. II. of which an account is given in the next chapter.

Richolda de Cosford's Chantry was also founded in this Chapel, as will be shewn in the same Chapter.

(c) See above, under St Botolph's Priory.

(f) Oath book in the Rental, fol. 95.

(k) Carta Eudonis. See above, under St. John's Abbey. and Book of Assemblies, Sept. 25, 1610.

(a) Rot. Cur. 7 Hen. VIII. rot. 11.

(e) Rot. 7 Henr. VIII. rot. 11.

(e) Inquis. 27 Elizab.

(b) Chronic. Colcestr.

(i) Ibid.

(d) Indent. among the Town-Records.

(m) Ibid.

[G] Inter placita de termino Trinitatis, scil. de Anno 18 Edw. filii regis Henrici.

Abbas Sti. Johannis Colcestrie attachiatus fuit ad respondendum Dno. Regi & Ballivis ville Colcestr. de hoc quod idem Abbas quolibet altero die Septimane invenire debet unum Capellanum celebrantem in Capella Ste. Helene de Colc. pro Dno. Rege & antecessoribus suis: Idem Abbas dictam celebrationem jam subtraxit, & dictam Capellam corui permittit—quam predictus Abbas sustentare debuit, pro quibusdam Decimis quas singulis annis percipit, & que Decime proveniunt de Dominicis Catri Dni. Regis Colcestrie, & quas idem Dominus Rex & Antecessores sui dederunt Upon the suppression of the Chantries, this Chapel, with its revenues, came by the grant of K. Henry VIII. an. 1539, into the hands of the Bailiffs and Commonalty. And they in 1541, Novemb. 17, sold it to William Reve, with five Rentaries adjoining and belonging to the same (l). Afterwards, the premisses came again into the hands of the Bailiffs and Commonalty; who, Septemb. 25, 1610, granted them to George Gilberde of Colchester, Gent. for a small consideration of 10*l.* (m). It was afterwards in one Daniel Castle, and has been since purchas'd by the people called Quakers, who have turned it into a Meeting-house.

C H A P. V.

S E C T. I.

The CHANTRIES in Colchester.

A Chantry, was a Foundation or Endowment in some Church, Chapel, or part of a Church, for one or more Priests, to chant or sing Mass for the soul of the Founder, or other particular persons.

There were ten such Chantries in this town.

1. John de Colchester's,—
2. Ricolda de Cosford's, } in St Helens Chaotherwise called John de Cos- } pel in Maydenford's and Robert Fraunces's, } burgh-street.

3. Joseph Elianore's—in the Church of St Mary's at the Wall.

4. The Holy-Crosse, in the Crouched Friers Church.

5. Thomas Fraunceys's, in St Nicolas's Church.

6. Edmund Haverland's, in the Crouched Friers.

7. Thomas Godston's, in the Crouched Friers-Chapel.

These four were incorporated into the Gild of St Helen.

8. Richard Heynes's, in St Peter's Church.

9. Peter Barwyk's, } in St Leonard's

10. Edmund Harmanfon's, } Church.

1. John de Colchester's Chantry in St Helen's Chapel [H].

This Chantry was founded in the year 1321 [I], by John de Colchester, Rector of Tendring, for pro sustentatione Capelle, &c.—See the rest of this Record above, under the account of the Castle—The Abbot seems to have repaired it thoroughly afterwards, if not quite rebuilt it. For our Colchester Chronicle informs us, That it was dedicated by Roger Bishop of London, in 1239, on St Katherine's day, Novemb. 25, to the honour of St Katherine and St Helen.

[H] See the Chapter immediately foregoing, §. 6.

[I] The Indenture bears date at London, 17 January, 15 Edw. II. and the License in Mortmain, which is in my possession, is dated the 12th of July foregoing: for which there was a Fine of Four Marks paid.

one Priest to perform divine service daily in St Helen's Chapel aforesaid, for the health of his soul, and of the souls of his ancestors, parents, and heirs. He endowed it with the piece of land in which the Chapel stood, containing Eight perches in length, and Eight in width; And also with Twenty eight acres more of land; and a rent of 40 s. issuing out of several tenements.

He reserved to himself the Advowson of it during his own life, but ordered that after his decease it should be in the gift of the Bailiffs and Commonalty: On whom he settled it by deed, January 2, 1327.

The Twenty eight acres of land wherewith he endowed it, were,

Twelve acres in the field called Edynelonde.

Six at Aylwynemer,

Six at Otyeneslade, between the land of Ralph Ode towards the East, and three long acres which the said John de Colchester held of the Abbey of St John's towards the West.

One acre and a half and one rood, also at Otyeneslade, near the land of Warin Fitz William.

Two acres and one rood, near Small-lane, which were called Seynte Marie londe, in the suburbs of this Town [K].

Of the Forty shillings Rent, Twenty issued out of three Tenements in St Runwald's; and the rest, in small parcels, out of divers tenements, &c. in several parishes.

In the year 1416, Thomas Fraunceys gave by will [L] Eight acres of land lying near Edithes land, as an augmentation to this Chantry: upon condition that the Chaplains there should pray for his soul, and the soul of his wife Agnes.

On the dissolution of the Chantries, the Revenues of this were granted by K. Henry VIII. 12 November, in the 31st of his reign, to the Bailiffs and Commonalty, for founding a Free-school, and other uses [M]. But none of the Revenues of this Charity were bestowed upon our Free school. They were sold by the commonalty to divers persons, at several times.

2. Cosford's Chantry, in the same Chapel.

Richolda, widow of Richard de Cosford, gave by Will to John de Cosford and Robert Fraunces, in the reign of K. Richard II (n), a Tenement, and two shops adjoining, in the market-place of Colchester; Rents out of other tenements; and Forty acres of land; upon condition, that they should enfeoffe the Bailiffs and Commonalty of Colchester with the same, in trust to find one Chaplain to pray daily in St Helen's Chapel for the Souls of the said Richolda, and Richard her Husband; and for the Bailiffs and Commonalty aforesaid.

But a Licence in Mortmain not having been previously obtained, the Tenents were summoned into Chancery, to shew cause why the Lands and Tenements abovementioned should not be seized into the King's hands. They appear'd accordingly, and pleaded, That by the custom of Colchester, Lands and Tenements can be devised by will; and that the said Richolda had left those Lands and Tenements to Robert Frances and John Cosford by her will. This was tried and found for the defendants.

The particulars of these Lands and Tenements, were,

A messuage, and two shops thereto adjoining, in the market-place of Colchester.

A tenement late John de Holton's.

Seventeen acres of land in the suburbs of this town, in a field called Bradeston, lying east of Lenyardes-lane.

Four acres west of the same lane.

A croft called Portespyghtel, in the same suburbs.

Four acres in the same suburbs, in a field called Elmefield near the land late Mr. John de Colchester's.

Five acres lying in the same suburbs, in a field called Brockhole near the Greneway [or Maldon-lane.]

Four acres in the same suburbs, west of the land of John Foord.

A Rent of 5 s. yearly, payable out of five acres lying near the Lord Fitz-wauter's land called Cerichescroft. [Those Five acres are now called Windmill-field.]

A yearly Rent of 3 s. 4 d. from a shop in the market-place, late in the occupation of Mary Fordham.

A yearly Rent of 10 d. from a tenement, formerly John Dedham's, in the market-place [N].

Upon the suppression, the premisses were given, like the last, to the Bailiffs and Commonalty; in whose gift the Chantry had been all along be-

(n) Efc. 19 Ric. II. fol. 75.

[K] The words of the original Grant were as follows:—Quandam placeam terre in qua sita est Capella memorata continent' octo perticatas terre in longitudine, & octo perticatas in latitudine; Et viginti octo acras terre, quarum duodecim jacent in campo qui vocatur Edynelonde; Sex apud Aylwynemer; Sex apud Otyeneslade inter terram nunc Radulphi Ode versus orientem, & tres longas acras quas teneo de Abbathia Sti. Johannis Colcestr. versus occidentem; Et una acra & dimidia & una roda terre similiter apud Otyeneslade juxta terram Warini filii Willielmi; Et due acra & una roda terre juxta Small lane que appellantur Seynte Marie londe cum suis pertinentiis in suburbio dicte ville. Et Quadraginta solidat. annui Redditus percipiend' annuatim in Colecestr. & ejus suburbio, de Tenementis infra scriptis, &c.

[L] This clause of his will runs thus:—Item lego Galfrido Cuttyng perpetuo Capellano Cantarie Ste. Elene Colcestr. & successoribus suis Capellanis ibidem Deo servi-

turis, in augmentationem portionis sue, &c. Octo acras terre cum pertinentiis, quondam Rosie Pod, jacentes juxta Edithes lond, & in eodem campo, Ita quod ipse pro tempore suo, & successores Sui perpetui Capellani Cantarie predictae in futurum habeat vel habeant animam meam & animam Agnetis nuper uxoris mee immediate post obitum meum, die quo missam celebrare contigerit vel contigerint, in Orationibus suis Deo devote commendatas; & specialiter cum una Collecta secreta & Post communione: Et ulterius in Orationibus suis coditianis, ut pro suis benefactoribus imperpetuum: Et quod nomina nostra scribantur ad perpetuum memoriale ibidem habendum in forma predicta — (Rot. Cur. 4 Henr. V. rot. 44.)

[M] See Pat. 31 Henr. VIII. and Pat. 26 Elizab. for the Foundation of the Free-school, in Appendix to Book III.

[N] Taken from the appointments of several Chaplains, or Chantry-priests, among the Town-records.

fore the dissolution. They sold them to Tho. Rich of Lexden, and others.

3. Joseph Elianore's Chantry, in the Chapel of St Thomas the Martyr within the Church of St Mary's at the Wall.

This Chantry, the most considerable, and the best endowed of any in the whole Town, was founded in February 1348, by Joseph Elianore, who had been several times one of our Bailiffs [O]. He dedicated it to God Almighty, the blessed Virgin Mary, and all the Saints: Ordaining, that it should be for Two Chaplains, to pray daily for his good estate as long as he lived, and, after his decease, for his soul; and for the souls of his father and mother, and the souls of Philippa, John, Hubert, and Elias, and all his benefactors; and for the souls of all faithful Persons departed this life.

His Endowment of it was very ample; namely, two Messuages, a hundred acres of arable land, two acres of wood, one toft, ten shillings yearly rent, and a hundred sheep with the whole profits arising from the same. The particulars were as follows [P].

* A Messuage situate in the town of Colchester, in the parish of St Mary's at the wall aforesaid. [Late, the Old Three-crowns-inn.]

† A messuage in Mile-end, called Tubbeswick, with eighteen acres of arable land, and two acres of wood; lying, north, between the tenement of one John Sweyn and the land belonging to the Abbot and convent of St Osith; and, south, between a lane leading to the last mentioned land. [Leased out with the Severals.]

† Twenty acres, called Fremighanninland, in the suburbs of Colchester; lying east, between John Fitz-wauter's land, and, west, between the land of Ralph Baker. [Late in lease to Mr. C. Saunders.]

Eighteen acres in the same suburbs; between the land of Rich. Barber, on the east; and the land of Warin Fitz-William, on the west.

Twelve acres in the same suburbs; between the King's high way leading to Maldon, north; and between the said Warin's land, on the south.

Three acres, between the land of John Parlis, on the east; and the Rector of St Mary's glebe, on the west.

Three acres, between the said Rector's land on the south; and the land of Ralph Ode on the North.

* Four acres, called Godyeressland; having, on the west, the land belonging to the Abbot and Convent of St Osith; and, on the east, a lane leading to Mile-end.

* Four acres, between the land of the said Abbot and Convent on the west, and a grove of Richard le Gros on the east.

* Four acres, lying on the east between the road leading to Bergholt, and on the west adjoining to the park of John Fitz-wauter.

* Two acres, having Wall-dich on the east, and the land of the said John Fitz-wauter on the west.

One acre, lying between the land of Warin atte Well, on the east; and the land of the Keeper of the chapel of the Holy Cross in Colc. on the west.

Four acres, between the land of Ralph Ode on the north; and the land of Henry Josias on the south.

Four acres near Magdalen-hospital; having, on the north, the road leading to the Hyth; and abutting, south, on the land of Richard Norreys.

[O] List of the Bailiffs.—The Licence in mortmain bears date, 6 Sept. 12 Edw. III. [For which a fine of ten marks was paid.] And the Indenture of Foundation is dated the Thursday next after the Purification of the Virgin Mary.

[P] The words of the original Indenture are these.—Duo messuagia, centum acr' terre, duas acr' bosci, unum toftum, decem solidat' annui redditus, & centum bidentes cum toto proficuo de cetero inde proveniente. Quorum quidem dictorum Messuagiorum unum situatum est in villa Colecest' in parochia ecclesie beate Marie supradicte, videlicet inter tenementum quond' Edi' P'ellipar' ex parte australi & tenementum Johannis Tav'ner capellani ex parte boreali. Et aliud Messuagium vocatur Tubbeswick, ac situatum est in Miland in suburbio Colec' una cum octodecim acris terre & duabus acris bosci: Quod quidem Messuagium, octodecim acr' terre & due acre bosci jacent inter tenementum quondam Johis Sweyn, & terram Abbatis & Conventus Ste Osith ex parte aquilonari, & quondam venellam ducentem ad terram dicti Abbatis & Conventus Ste. Osith. ex parte australi. Et viginti acr' terre vocat' Fremighanninland jacent in suburbio Colec' inter terram Johis Fitz Wauter ex parte orientali & terram Radi' Baker ex parte occidentali. Et octodecim acr' terre jacent in eodem suburbio inter terram Ricci' le Barber ex parte orientali & terram quondam Warini filii Willielmi ex parte occidentali. Et duodecim acr' terre jacent in eodem suburbio inter regale Cheminum ducens versus Maldon ex parte aquilonari & terram quondam dicti Warini ex parte australi. Et tres acr' terre jacent inter terram Johis Parlis ex parte orientali et terram Rectoris ecclesie beate Marie supradicte ex parte occidentali. Et tres acr' terre jacent inter terram Rectoris ecclesie predicte ex parte australi & terram Radi' Ode ex parte boreali. Et quatuor acr' terre vocate Godyeressland jacent inter terram Abbatis & Conventus Ste. Osith ex parte occidentali & quondam vicum ducentem ad Miland ex parte orientali. Et quatuor acr' terre jacent inter terram dictorum Abbatis & Conventus ex parte occidentali & quondam grovam Nici' le Gros ex parte orientali. Et quatuor acr' terre jacent inter vicum ducentem versus Bergholt ex parte orientali & parcum Johis Fitz-Wauter ex parte occidentali. Et due acr' terre jacent inter quondam placeam vocatam Waldich ex parte orientali & terram dicti Johis Fitz-wauter ex parte occidentali. Et una acr' terre jacet inter terram Warini atte Well ex parte orientali & terram custodis Capelle Ste Crucis Colec' ex parte occidentali. Et quatuor acr' terre jacent inter terram Radi' Ode ex parte boreali & terram Henr' Josias ex parte australi. Et quatuor acr' terre jacent juxta la Maudeleyne, inter quondam vicum ducentem versus Hetham Colec' ex parte boreali & terram quondam Ricci' Norreys ex parte australi. Et tres acr' terre jacent in villa Colec' que vocantur Lotoumfgardin in Northstrate. Et unus Toftus jacet juxta cimiterium ecclesie Sti. Petri Colec' qui vocatur Laurencispihtil. Et dicti decem solidatus annui redditus percipiend' annuatim de tenementis infra-scriptis; videlicet de tenementis Willi' le Webbe in Northstrate duos solidos & octo denarios. De tenementis Willi' le Cok quondam Thome le Clovier in Northstrate duos solidos & sex denarios. De Phil' le Chapman pro quondam mora quondam Micahelis Napelef sex denarios. De tenementis Juliane de Dovercourt in Northstrate duodecim denarios. De tenementis Hest' le Taylour quondam Ade le Spicer in Stokewellestrat duos solidos. De duobus redditibus Ricci' de Copford juxta cimiterium ecclesie Ste. Trinitatis Colec' duos solidos. Et de tenementis quondam Ricci' Leuekerore in Northstrate sex denarios.—From the original.

Three

Three acres in the town of Colchester, in North-street [2], called Lotoums-garden. [Being part of the Garden-grounds, between the West side of North-hill and the Town-wall.]

A Toft near St Peter's Church-yard, called Laurences-pightle. [Sold by the commonalty in 1632, now in the possession of Mr S. Rayner.] [R].

Joseph Elianore reserved to himself the Advowson of this Chantry during his life; but ordered that, after his decease, it should be in the gift of the Bailiffs and Commonalty. And so it continued till the Suppression; when K. Henry VIII. granted it to Them, Novemb. 12, 1539, with all its revenues, for the founding of a Free-school, and to enable them the better to pay their fee-farm; and other uses. But the best part of them is squandered away [S].

4. The Chantry of the Holy Crosse

Was kept in the Church of the Crouched-

[2] See above, Book II. p. 114. note [Z].

[R] See Book of Assemblies, Apr. 9, 1632. and Town-Leafes.

[S] The pieces marked thus † are still the property of the Corporation: And those with this mark * are the endowment of the Free-school. The rest having been mortgaged over and over again, the equity of redemption was at length fore-closed: So that part of them, (as well as parcels of some other Chantries) is now in the Revd. Jerem. Johnson, Vicar of Ridgewell, and part in Mr Bridge of Coggeshall.

[T] See above, ch. iv. § 3.

[U] Item supplico omnibus feoffatis meis, quod ipsi immediate post obitum meum quam cito expediens eis fore videbitur, concedant seu ad firmam dimittant, Magistris five Custodibus Gilde Sancte Elene Colcestr. qui tunc pro tempore fuerint, omnia illa Terras et Tenementa, Redditus et Servicia, una cum pratis, pascuis, pasturis, cum omnibus eorum commoditatibus et pertinentiis universis, quorum parcelle subseqentes patent, jacentia et existentia infra libertatem ville Colcestr. videl. Totum illud Tenementum cum pertinentiis, prout situm est & jacet in parochia Sancti Nicholai Colcestr. quod quidem Tenementum Willelmus Bardulf & alii inhabitant, quondam Willielmi Hadlegh. Totum illud Tenementum cum pertinentiis, prout situatur in parochia Omnium Sanctorum Colcestr. vocatum Nicodemes quod Alexander Erpyngnam modo inhabitat. Tria Rentaria quondam Johannis de Halle prout situantur & jacent in parochia Ecclesie Sti. Nicholai antedictae ex opposito le Castledych, quorum Hugo Fletcher unum inhabitat. Quatuor Rentaria cum pertinentiis de novo edificata, quondam Johannis Barbour prout jacent in vico vocato Seynt Elenes stret in parochia Ecclesie Sti. Nicholai antedictae. Totam illam pasturam prout jacet extra portam Orientalem inclusam quondam Magistri Johannis Colcestr. Totum illud pratum vocatum Warynes med prout jacet juxta Kynggesmedwe quod nuper adquisivi de executoribus Ade Waryn. Totum illum campum vocatum Horcroft continentem quatuor acras terre cum pertinentiis, prout includitur, jacentem in parochia Ecclesie Sti. Bothulphi Colcestr. Et quinque acras terre jacentes ex parte orientali terre predictae quas nuper adquisivi de executoribus Johannis Ermegard. Quinque acras terre cum pertinentiis jacentes sub grava pertinente Rectorie de Milande, quas nuper adquisivi de executoribus predictis. Tres acras terre cum pertinentiis in quibus argilla foditur, quas nuper adquisivi de Stephano Baronn de Colcestr. Et unam crociam terre cum pertinentiis vocatam le Erber, prout includitur, continentem tres acras terre. Et totum annualem Redditum novem solidorum et trium denariorum quos annuatim percipere solebam de Tenentibus subscriptis infra Libertatem ville Colcestr. videl. de Katerina Cotell pro tenemento vocato Sperwygges berne situato in parochia Ecclesie Sti. Nicholai Colcestr. quondam Johannis Skyrwyht, per annum quatuor solidos. De Simone Whyte pro tenemento suo, per annum duodecim denarios. De Galfrydo Cuttyng pro tenemento suo in parochia Sti. Nicholai antedictae, per annum duos solidos. De tenentibus tenementi nuper Roberti Gurdon extra Northgate Friers in the parish of St Mary's. It was founded in K. Henry the fourth's reign, by the members of the Gild of St Helen; for Five Chaplains to pray for the Soul of that King, and for the good estate of the brethren and sisters of the Gild [T]. They seem to have had no particular settled and distinct income, but were paid out of the general revenues of the Foundation, of which an account is given above, under the Crouched-Friers.

5. Thomas Frauncey's Chantry,

Was founded by Thomas Fraunceys of Colchester, in the Parish-Church of St Nicolas, by his Will bearing date May 2, 1416, the 4th of K. Henry V. [U]. He had enfeoffed, on the 1st of March 1414, six persons in several lands and tenements; which he requested them in his Will to grant or demise for an hundred years to the Masters of the Gild of St Helen quondam Augustini Plomer, per annum decem denarios & obolum. De relictis nuper Willielmi Cambirleyn pro tenemento quondam Ricardi atte Stowre postea Petri Thurmoode, per annum decem denarios & obolum. De Rogero Spendeloue pro mora sua quondam Ricardi Sweyn allutarii jacente in parochia Ecclesie Sti. Bothulphi Colcestr. per annum sex denarios. Que quidem terre, tenementa, redditus, & servicia omnia, cum pratis, pascuis & pasturis cum omnibus eorum commoditatibus & pertinentiis universis inter alia nuper habuerunt ex dono & feoffamento mei predicti Thome Fraunceys. Habendum & tenendum omnia predicta terras, tenementa, redditus & servicia, una cum pratis, pascuis, & pasturis, cum omnibus suis pertinentiis, ut supradictum est, prefatis Magistris five Custodibus et Fratribus Gilde Ste Elene predictae, et eorum Successoribus ad terminum Centum annorum, & plenarie complendum: Faciendo capitalibus Dominis Feodorum illorum servicia inde debita et de jure consueta; secundum consuetudinem et libertatem Burgi Colcestr. Sub Conditione subsequente, videlicet, Quod predicti Magistri five Custodes Gilde predictae qui pro tempore fuerint, & eorum successores, Annuatim durante termino predicto inveniant, presentent, five conducant Unum Capellanum ydoneum bone fame & conversationis honeste, Divina celebraturum in Ecclesia Sti. Nicholai Colcestr. antedictae, pro anima mei dicti Thome & Agnetis uxoris mee, nec non pro animabus Roberti Fraunceys patris mei, & Margerie matris mee, & pro animabus pro quibus ad orandum debitores sumus, & omnium fidelium defunctorum, & pro bono statu Fratrum & Sororum Gilde predictae. Solvendo annuatim Capellano predicto, & successoribus suis Capellanis ibidem in futurum, pro stipendio suo Decem Marcas bone & usualis monete Anglie, de exitibus terrarum, tenementorum, reddituum, pratorum provenientibus, ad quatuor anni terminos principales: Necnon sustentando, reparando, manutenendo predicta tenementa five rentaria bene & sufficienter durante termino predicto. Et ulterius, quod omnia exitus & proficua terrarum & tenementorum, reddituum, & pratorum, provenientia ultra sustentationem Capellani predicti superius assignati, & reparationem tenementorum predictorum cum necesse fuerit, ad Magistros five Custodes Gilde predictae, et eorum successores, ad distribuendum inter pauperes & egenos ibidem commorantes five commoratuos remaneant; eos onerando ad orandum pro anima mei dicti Thome, & Agnetis uxoris mee, & pro animabus quibus tenemur; preter Tresdecim Solidos & quatuor denarios, de exitibus terrarum, tenementorum, reddituum, ac pratorum predictorum, percipiendos ultra inventionem Capellani predicti, & reparationem tenementorum predictorum, ut superius declaratum est, quos volo quod Magistri five Custodes Gilde predictae qui pro tempore fuerint, & eorum successores futuri, eos habeant ad eorum usum, & pro eorum labore annuatim, durante termino predicto. (Rot. Cur. 4 Henr. V. rot 45.) — This will was enroll'd in 1416. (Oath-book; p. 96.) — Thomas Fraunceys was often one of the Bayliffs of this Corporation, in the reigns of K. Richard II. & Henry IV. and V. (List of Bayliffs.)

in this town: upon condition, they should find one fit Chaplain, to pray in the Church of St Nicolas Colchester, for his soul, and the soul of Agnes his wife; and for the souls of Robert his father, Margeret his mother, and all others whom he was bound to pray for; and also of all faithful persons deceased; and for the good estate of the Brothers and Sisters of the Gild aforesaid. He appointed they should pay this Chaplain a yearly stipend of ten Marks: And ordered the overplus of the profits of the premisses, to be distributed among the poor. Allowing them to take 13 s. 4 d. yearly for their trouble. Moreover he empowered his executors to settle those Lands and Tenements for ever to the uses abovemention'd, if they thought fit.

The particulars of the Lands and Tenements were,

A tenement in the parish of St Nicolas, [west, next the Parsonage.]

A tenement in All-Saints parish, called Nicodemus.

Three rentaries in the parish of St Nicolas, opposite to the Castle-ditch.

Four new rentaries in St Helen's-street, in the same parish.

A pasture without East-gate; [having the Town-wall on the west, and the lands belonging to the King on the east and south.]

Waryn's-mead, west of King's-meadow.

Horscroft, containing four acres of inclosed ground in St Botolph's parish [by Pingle-lane.]

Five acres at the east end of Horscroft.

Five acres under the grove belonging to Mile-end Rectory.

Three acres, wherein clay was dug, [called Clay-pightle.]

A Croft of three acres, called the Erber, [or Arbour, by Pingle-lane.]

And a yearly Rent of 9 s. 3 d. paid, in small parcels, from several Tenements, &c.

Out of these Revenues, the Keepers of the Gild of St Helen were wont duly to pay the yearly sum of 10 marks, or 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. to a Chaplain; for singing mass in the parish-church of St Nicholas, for the persons abovemention'd.

The duration of this Chantry did very little exceed the hundred years, for which it was originally founded: For, before the year 1533, it was granted by K. Henry VIII to the Lord Chancellor Audeley; as appears by a Computus, or Account, of this Gild, 25 Henry VIII. in my possession.

6. Edmund Haverland's Chantry in the Church of the Crouched-Friers.

This Chantry was founded, in pursuance of the Will of Edmund Haverland of this Town, which was enrolled in 1431 (o). He therein bequeathed to the keeper, brothers, and sisters of the Hospital of the Gild of St Helen, in the church of the Holy Cross in Colchester, and their successors for ever, all his Inn, called the Fawcon [W], with all the rentaries thereunto annexed, and their appurtenances, situate in the market place of this Town, and in the parishes of St Peter and St Runwald: Upon condition that they should provide a fit Chaplain, to celebrate divine service for his soul, and the soul of William Brome, of his father and mother, and other his benefactors, and of all the faithful departed this life [X].

He also gave to the keepers of the same Gild, the residue of the money arising from the sale of his capital messuage wherein he dwelt; To be by them laid out in the purchase of Rents, for the relief and comfort of the poor resorting to their Hospital, in bread and beer.

This Chantry, I presume, was granted to the Lord Chancellor Audeley, with the rest of the possessions of the Hospital of the Holy Crosse.

7. Thomas Godston's Chantry, in the Chapel of the Crouched-Friers.

Thomas Godston of Colchester Esq; several times one of the Bailiffs of the same [Y], did build a Chapel adjoyning to the church of the Holy Cross, dedicated to the honour of almighty God, Mary the mother of Jesus Christ, St Helen, St Katherine the virgin, and all the Saints: And therein founded, in his life-time, a Chantry, for one Priest to sing mass, for the souls of the late Kings Henry IV and V, and the good estate of K. Henry VI then reigning; as also for the souls of him the said Thomas Godston, Christina his late wife, John their son, their parents, ancestors, and benefactors: Especially, for the souls of the deceased brothers and sisters of the Gild of St Helen, and of all other faithful persons; and the good estate of the brothers and sisters then living [Z].

He endowed it with the following lands;

A meadow called Horse-mead, containing twelve acres; lying by the park-pale of Lexden, abutting to Chenebridge.

(o) Oath-book, p. 112.—See also p. 90. 111. & Rot. Cur. 13 Hen. IV. rot. 3.

[W] Late the sign of Q. Elizabeth's head; now the house of Mr. John Bernard, apothecary. There belonged then to it, three Shops thereto adjoining; a Garden joining to St Runwald's Church-yard, and two other gardens.

[X] The words of his will were—Item lego custodi, fratribus, & fororibus Hospit' Guilde Ste Elene de ecclesia Ste Crucis Colcestr' & successoribus suis in perpetuum, totum Hospitium meum apud le Fawcon, cum omnibus Redditib' eidem Hospitio annexis & omnibus suis pertinentiis, scituat' in foro ville Colcestr' in parochiis S^{torum} Petri & Runwaldi: Ita tamen quod ipsi ordinant & provident unum Capellanum ydoneum, ad celebrandum ibidem divina, pro Anima mea, & animab' Will' Brome, patris mei, & matris mee, ac aliorum quibus teneor, & omnium fidelium defunctorum in perpetuum.—

Et ulterius volo, quod residuum monete, de capitali Tenemento meo in quo inhabito, cum Redditibus annexis, & suis pertinentiis, recipiendum ultra parcell' inde superius assignat' & rentat' integre deliberentur Custodibus five Magistris Guilde predicte, ad perquirendum inde Redditum, ad relevandum & confortandum inde item pauperes & egenos illuc advenientes in perpetuum, ut in pane & cervisia.—

[Y] In the reigns of Henry IV, V, and VI. List of Bayliffs.

[Z] Taken from the appointment of several Chaplains; and other MSS. (penes me.) For I have not yet seen the original Foundation-deed.

Cloafe-mead, lying near King's meadow in Colchester.

Brockes-pightle in Lexden, near North-street in Colchester; containing near sixteen acres and one rood.

A croft called Eight acres, }
Another croft called Ten acres, } in Mile-end.

A field called Rich- }
bery hawke, } now part of the Drew-
Another field called } ry-farm.
Puttokes Crowche, }

Twenty acres in Mell-field, reaching from Holmer [or Butt] lane on the East, to a field called Sholand on the West. [Part now belongs to the Drewry-farm, and the other part to Mr B. Dyer.]

A grange, or barn, called Peters-barne, [where now stands two tenements, one of which was lately inhabited by Mr W. Damant.] [A].

These possessions were granted, like the last, to the Lord Chancellor Audeley, and sold by him to several persons; Among whom, it seems, the Bailiffs and Commonalty purchased Peters-barne aforesaid.

8. Richard Heynes's Chantry, in the Church of St Peter's.

Richard Heynes, who lived in the reign of K. Edward IV (p), put several lands and tenements in feoffment to John Wingfield Esq; William Teye Gent. and Richard Comonde clerk, to find a Priest for ever to sing masse in this church, and to pray for the soul of him the said Richard (q). The exact time of this foundation I have not been able to discover; but find it was before the year 1473 (r). As to the Endowment of it, the particulars were these;

A messuage and tenement, in Layer de la Hay.

Two crofts of land, called }
Stones, } in the same parish.

A field called Forke-felde,

A messuage, or tenement, called the Horne: And these several fields—Hornefelde—Olde-Paynes—Hobclarke—Claylande—Jotfelde—and Tryte; in Salcote Virley.

Lands in Estethorpe, named Spicers [B].

Lands in Lexden, named Sowles, [or Fouleslowe,] and Thowlande, [or Hole-land, or Pightle] [C], now part of Loves-land.

Twelve acres of land, in St Giles's parish, Colchester: Sometime in the tenure of Sir Francis Jobson Kt.

* Lands and tenements in Toleshunte, held by copy of court-roll of the manor of Bourchiers in Tolsbury.

* A messuage or tenement, lying on the west side of the White-Hart in Colchester.

All these premisses, [except the two last articles,] the Bailiffs and Commonalty purchased of K. Edward VI. Novemb. 14, 1550. (together with Barwike's Chantry, which we shall mention next) for the sum of 284 l. 5 s. to hold in free socage, of the manor of East-Greenwich; and with liberty to erect a water-mill at the New Hyth (s). But they sold them all again soon after.

9. Peter Barwick's Chantry, in the Church of St Leonard.

Peter Barwick, or Barwike, put several lands and tenements in feoffment, for the sustentation and maintenance of a Priest during the term of ninety years, to sing masse in the parish church of St Leonard, and to help to serve the cure there (t). The exact date I have not been able to trace out; but find it was towards the end of K. Edward the IV's reign.

The lands and tenements appropriated by him to this use, were these:

Several messuages, lands, tenements, shops, &c. in Colchester and Lexden; which, at the time of the purchase made of them by the Bailiffs and Commonalty, were in the several occupations of Roger Lyffe, John Clarke, Tho. Mythe, Robert Donnyng, Geo. Sayer, John Stamp, Grace Cocke, William Abell, John Love, William Horsley, — Clarke widow, and John Borough (u). [Among the lands, there were eighteen acres in Lexden, called Childefield, opposite to the stone-cross, on the north side of the London road (w).]

Barwicks land }
Churchfelde } in Colchester.

The Priests Chamber, and a Garden in St Leonard's.

* A house called the Gate-house, rented at 6 s. 8 d.

* Another house rented at 12 s. per ann.

These two last were exempted in the sale made of the premisses to the Bailiffs and Commonalty.

I think the Commonalty does not remain possess'd of any part of this purchase.

The yearly value of this Chantry 4^o Edw. VI. was 11 l. 14 s. 8 d.

(p) Rot. Cur. 13 and 14 Edw. IV. rot. 16, 19, 21. Rot. 16 Edw. IV. rot. 21. (q) Ibid. 13 Edw. IV. rot. 21.
(r) From the Survey of Chantry-lands, 2 Edw. VI. p. 8 & 9. (s) Pat. 4 Edw. VI. among the Town-records.
(t) Survey of Chantry-lands, 2 Edw. VI. (u) Lett. Pat. 4 Edw. VI. ut supra. (w) MSS. W. Ram.

[A] Totum illud Pratum cum pertinen' vocat' Horfe-meade, continens 12 acr' prati five plus five minus: Totum illud pratum vocat' le Clofe-mead cum pertinen' jacens juxta Kinges-meade Colc' pred': Tres Crofte' terre cum pertinen' quarum una vocatur Brockes-pightell in hamelett de Lexden juxta vicum vocatum the North-strete Colcest'; Altera crofta vocatur Eight acres; Et tertia crofta vocatur Tenne acres in hameletto de Myland: Totus campus vocat' Richbery hawke: Totus campus vocat' Puttokes crowche: Una grangea vocat' Peters barne scituat' juxta cimiterium Sti Petri Colcestr: Et una pecia terre errabilis, contin' per estimat' circa Viginti acras five plus five minus, jacens in campo vocat' le Mell-field, inter terram nuper Ric' Sprior ex parte boreali, & terram Willielm' Nottingham ex parte australi, extendens se a venella vocata Holmer-lane ex parte ori-entali, usque ad campum vocat' Sholand ad caput occidentale.

[B] These were sold April 5, 1551, by the Bailiffs of this town, to Robert Leche and others; and are thus described. One field, with one acre of meadow, and a garden, containing in the whole, 4 acres.—Stretecrofte, with a lane thereto adjoining—1 acre $\frac{1}{2}$ —A croft parcel of Spicers, 1 acre $\frac{1}{2}$ —A meadow, or moor, called Lanerye-marthe, half an acre. Total, Seven acres and a half. (Rot. 5 Edw. VI. rot. 18. in dor.)

[C] See Cur. Rot. 38 Henr. VI. rot. 24. & Rot. 13 Ed. IV. rot. 19. Holepightell is there described, as lying on one side between the land of the late William Fitz-walter called the Hyde, and having on the other the King's highway leading from the stone-cross to Colchester.

10 Edmund Harmanfon's Chantry, in the Church of St Leonard.

This, the last Chantry in this Town, was founded about the beginning of Henry VII's reign, by Edmund Harmanfon, who was then living [D]: And therefore its duration was short. The foundation was for the maintenance of one Priest, to sing masse in the Church of St Leonard, and to help to serve the Cure (x). After the Dissolution, the Bayliffs and Commonalty purchased the Lands and Tenements wherewith it was endowed; and have kept them ever since. They are, A messuage—Lime-kiln-field.—Little London—Alms-house-field—and Sand-pit-field; containing by estimation 20 acres. It was valued in the Survey of Chantry-lands, 2^o Edw. VI. at 100 Shillings.

By examining this account, it appears, that most of the Lands in the Borough fields, and on each side of the London-road, as far as the top of Lexden-hill, belonged to the Chantries in this Town.

* * Jesus Masse, and St John's Gild.

To these Chantries let me subjoin a Gild founded in St Peter's church, and called the Gild of St John's (y), or Jesus Masse. Who the founder of it was, I have not been able to discover: Nor what Endowment it had; except seven acres of meadow in Lexden, now belonging to George Wegg Esq;—Part of the King's-head-meadows: And a few other pieces of land adjoining, in Lexden and St Mary's. Together with some houses on North-hill. [E].

Robert Pryour, in his Will, dated April 15, 1463, gave this Gild of St John's, holden in the Church of St Peter's Colchester, 6 s. 8 d. for finding a Light there.

S E C T. II.

OBITS, ANNIVERSARIES, &c.

OBITS were Masses yearly celebrated on the day of any particular Person's death, who left some appointment for that use. They owed their rise, as the Chantries mentioned in the last section, to the groundless notion of praying for departed souls. In most religious Houses, there was a Book called the Obitua or Martyrology, wherein they entered the names of their Benefactors, or of Persons who had left them Legacies to observe yearly their Obit or Anniversary.

I shall here first give a List of the Obits in this Town, from the Account, or Survey, taken of them in the reign of K. Edward VI; and then add such as were overlook'd, or, not found out, at that time.

O B I T S, &c. [F].

ALL SAINTS Parish.

One Annual Rent going out of a tenement called Pomells, for the finding of a Lampe } 12 d.
for ever by the yeare—

ST GYLES.

One Peece of Lands called Brettons given for the finding of an Obit for certaine yerres whereof all be expired except 4, and ys worth by the yeere—	20 s.	whereof	<table border="0"> <tr> <td>To the poore</td> <td>0</td> <td>14</td> <td>0</td> </tr> <tr> <td>To the Lady Mar-chioness of</td> <td>0</td> <td>2</td> <td>8</td> </tr> <tr> <td>as to her manor of Grinsted</td> <td>0</td> <td>3</td> <td>4</td> </tr> <tr> <td>Remains clere</td> <td>0</td> <td>3</td> <td>4</td> </tr> </table>	To the poore	0	14	0	To the Lady Mar-chioness of	0	2	8	as to her manor of Grinsted	0	3	4	Remains clere	0	3	4
To the poore	0	14	0
To the Lady Mar-chioness of	0	2	8
as to her manor of Grinsted	0	3	4
Remains clere	0	3	4

* Certain lands call'd Paches for one yerely obit for ever, by the yere—	8 s.	whereof	<table border="0"> <tr> <td>To the poore</td> <td>0</td> <td>6</td> <td>0</td> </tr> <tr> <td>Remains clere</td> <td>0</td> <td>2</td> <td>0</td> </tr> </table>	To the poore	0	6	0	Remains clere	0	2	0
To the poore	0	6	0
Remains clere	0	2	0

ST LEONARD'S.

* One parcell of land call'd the Town clap-per for an Obite for ever, by the yere—	6 s. 8 d.	whereof	<table border="0"> <tr> <td>To the poore</td> <td>0</td> <td>0</td> <td>20</td> </tr> <tr> <td>Remains clere</td> <td>0</td> <td>5</td> <td>0</td> </tr> </table>	To the poore	0	0	20	Remains clere	0	5	0
To the poore	0	0	20
Remains clere	0	5	0
* Two Tenements belonging to Jesus Masse, which said two Tenements one George Allen claymeth—by the yere	12 s.

(x) Survey of Chantry-lands, 2^o Edw. VI. p. 8, 9. rot. 13. Rot. 3 Edw. IV. rot. 4.

(y) Rot. Cur. 6 Hen IV. rot. 18. Rot. 38 Hen. VI.

[D] Edmund Harmanfon was a Beer-brewer in this town, in 1502. (Oath-book, p. 168, 169. See also p. 159.) He was dead in 1506. (Ib. p. 171.)

[E] See Rot. 38 Henry VI. rot. 13. viz. A. D. 1457. William Smyth of Colchester gave a Tenement on North-hill.—Ad sustentationem Fraternitatis & Missæ gloriosissimi nominis Ihesu in ecclesia Sti Petri celebrature pro termino 98 annorum—And, after that term, to be sold by the Masters of the Gild for pious uses.

[F] From the survey in K. Edward VIth's reign.—The Lands marked * were granted to Thomas Golding by Pat. 2 Edw. VI.

* One Howse of one John Day Priest for an Obite for ever—by the yere	12 s.	{ To the poore whereof { Remains cleere	0	7	0
			0	5	0

ST MARTIN'S.

Out of a parcell of Land lying at Mile- end called Markes parcell for one Obite in the Tenure of one Deryvall by the yere	8 s.	{ To the poore whereof { Remains cleere	0	7	0
			0	1	0
Out of one Acre of Meadowe lying in Kings Meade for one Obite for ever, in the tenure of the Churchwardens there by the yere	6 s. 8 d.	{ To the poore whereof { Remains cleere	0	5	4
			0	1	4

ST MAWDLYN'S.

One acre of arable land given towards the finding of holy Bread for ever, in the tenure of Richard Stampe, by the yere	13 d.
--	-------

ST ROMBALD'S.

Out of certain lands lying in Lexden of the gift of one Matthew Reed for one Obite for ever, in the tenure of John Archer	6 s. 8 d.	{ To the poore whereof { Remains cleere	0	3	6
			0	3	2

LEXDEN.

One annual Rent going out of a peece of Meadowe, called our Lady-Meadow, for one Obite for ever, by the yere	20 d.	{ To the poore whereof { Remains cleere	0	0	15
			0	0	5

Other OBITS, ANNIVERSARIES, &c.

John Gerold left by Will to his Wife Editha two acres of land, to find a priest yearly to celebrate an Annual for his soul. Richard de Bercholt and Geffrey de Goodyar being Bayliffs. Without date.

Alice Strange of St. James's, by her will dated in 1409, gave one coverlyth and one iron candlestick to stand before the image of St James in that Church; and also a Rent-charge out of her tenement in the same parish, for keeping an Anniversary in the Church there, for her soul, the souls of her benefactors, and of other faithful persons.

Thomas Fraunceys, by his will dated May 2, 1416, desired his feoffees, to enfeoffe his daughters Cristina and Mary, in a yearly Rent of Eighteen shillings, out of two Tenements, viz. out of his own Tenement, late his father Robert Fraunceys, Eleven shillings; and out of the tenement late John Rekell's, on the East-side of the Tenement aforesaid, Seven shillings: He also gave them a Shop, with a Chamber over it, situate on the East-side of his capital Messuage. To have and to hold, the said Rent and Shop, with the appurtenances, to his said Daughters, and their heirs for ever [G]. Upon condition, that they should cause to be kept in the Church of St Nicolas in Colchester the Anniversary of him the said Tho. Fraunceys, and Agnes his wife, alternately in the Church of St Nicolas aforesaid, and pay yearly, on the day of his Anniversary, to the Rector of that Church or his Curate, Twelve pence, and to the Clerk Six pence; and expend, in alms to the poor, and other charges, to the sum of Thirteen shillings and Four pence. Moreover, That they find a Lamp for ever, continually burning in the church of St Nicolas aforesaid, as well by day as by night, before the Cross there; and also a Wax-light to be burning in the Chancel of the Church of St Nicolas aforesaid, before the image of St Nicolas, at Mass-time, on sundays and holidays, to the honour of God, &c. He charges his daughters to take care, that these several things be done for ever. And if there was a failure in any of the premises, he directs, that the Rent and Shop aforesaid should descend to his executors or their heirs, and by them be sold; and that they should dispose of the money arising from such a sale, for the good of his Soul, &c.

Moreover, he bequeathed to the Prior and Convent of St Botolph's, certain lands and tene-

[G] Sub conditione subsequenti, videlicet, Quod dicte Christina & Maria, & heredes sui, annuatim, imperpetuum, bene & fideliter teneant Anniversarium meum, & Agnetis nuper Uxoris mee, quasi sub uno adinvicem, in ecclesia Sti Nicolai Colcestr. antedicta, et quod solvant, annuatim die Aniversarii mei, Rectori ejusdem Ecclesie aut ejus locum tenenti, duodecem denarios, & Clerico ejusdem ecclesie pro tempore existenti sex denarios; ac in distributionibus pauperum, & aliis oneribus ibidem certis temporibus subeundis, ad summam tresdecim solidorum & quatuor denariorum. Et ulterius quod inveniant imperpetuum unam Lampadem con-

tinuo ardentem in Ecclesia Sti Nicolai antedicta, tam per diem quam per noctem, coram Cruce ibidem jam existente; necnon & unum cereum ardentem in cancella Ecclesie Sti Nicolai antedicti coram ymagine Sti Nicolai ibidem, ad missam, continue diebus dominicalibus & festivalibus, ad honorem Dei, & mei dicti Thome, & Agnetis uxoris mee, Roberti Fraunceys patris mei, & Margerie matris mee memoriale perhenne. Et que quidem onera omnia & singula per me superius expressata, volo quod Christina & Maria filie mee, & heredes eorum subeant & supportent imperpetuum.

ments, lying on each side of the road leading to King's-wood, and called Glovers: Upon condition, they should keep his Anniversary yearly, in as solemn a manner as the Anniversary of one of their Priors; and write his name in their Martyrology. He ordered also to the Convent for a repast 6s. 8d. to the ringers of the great Bells 4d. and to the poor on that day 8d. [H].

Edmund Haverland, founder of the Chantry above-mentioned, gave the yearly sum of 13s. 4d. payable out of some tenements, to the Prior and Convent of St Botolph's; for keeping his Anniversary, and that of his father and mother, and of Avise his wife, in their Church for ever [I].

Walter Ramyffen, by his will dated 2 Oct. 1457, bequeathed a tenement in Magdalen-street in trust; for keeping his Anniversary in the Church of St Mary Magdalen for ever [K].

Robert Lardener, Rector of St Mary's at the walls, who died in 1464; gave by will, to John Christmas and others in trust, a piece of ground in Holmer [or Butt] lane, for the maintenance of two Lights in the said parish-church, viz. a Lamp and wax-candle before the great Crucifix, and a Wax-candle in the branch in the chancel, at the time of divine service [L].

John Wygge, by his will, dated the Wednesday before the Assumption of the Virgin Mary, 1499, left a Legacy, for a Light in Green-stead-church [M].

In the neighbouring Church of St Leonard's, there was a Light of our blessed Lady; for the maintenance of which for ever, several small Rents were assigned, out of 29 different parcels of Lands, and tenements; amounting in the whole to 11s. 6d. [N].

[H] Item lego Priori & conventui Ecclesie Sti. Bothulphi Colc. imperpetuum, omnia Terras & Tenementa cum suis pertinentiis quondam Agnetis Gylle, jacentia ex utraque parte Regie vie ducentis versus Kynggeswode vocata Glovers, Tenenda sibi & successoribus suis imperpetuum, Sub conditione quod annuatim imperpetuum teneant Anniversarium meum, & etiam scribant nomen meum in suo martyrologio ibidem, & faciant celebrare pro anima mea prout solent celebrare Anniversarium Prioris ibidem. Et ulterius quod dentur Conventui ibidem annuatim ad pitanceam sex solidi & octo denarii, & pulsatoribus magnarum Campanarum Quatuor denarii, et Pauperibus eodem die Octo denarii. —(Rot. Cur. 4 Henr. V. rot. 44.)

[I]—Item lego Priori & Conventui St. Both' Colcestr' & eorum successoribus in perpetuum, unum annualem redditum Tresdecim solidorum & quatuor denariorum, percipiend' annuatim, viz. de tenemento Marrione Fordham quinque solidos & quatuor denarios; de tenemento Roberti Gurden in parochia Sti. Petri, quatuor solidos; de tenemento quondam Hugonis Bekenham in parochia Sti. Nicholai, quatuor solidos. Ita tamen quod predictus annualis redditus, equaliter dividatur inter Canonicos ejusdem Ecclesie quolibet anno in perpetuum, die Anniversarii mei, patris mei, & matris mee, & Avicie uxoris mee, ad celebrandum & orandum pro animabus nostris.

[K] Item volo quod Johannes clericus dicte Ecclesie, [St. Mar. Magdel.] habeat mansionem suam in tenemento meo in Mawdeleyn-strete—per unum annum integrum post dat' istius testamenti mei. Et quod reversio dicti tenementi remaneat Johanni Austyn heredit' & assignatis suis imperpetuum, sub forma & conditione sequenti, videl. Quod predictus Johannes Austyn, aut assignati sui possessores dicti Tenementi qui pro tempore fuerint, custodient annuatim Anniversarium meum in ecclesia predicta imperpetuum. (Rot. Cur. 36 Henr. VI. rot. 27.)

[L] Ex Orig. This piece of ground was made over to the Church-wardens and others of that parish Aug 22, 1432.

There was also kept, in the same Church of St Leonard's, the Obit of John Day, in pursuance of a clause in his will, dated 20 Oct. 1520, which is set down below in the Note [O].

The last foundation of that kind in this town, was as follows.—Robert Everard, by his will, dated 2 March 1523, ordered, That his feoffees, &c. should suffer the Bayliffs of Colchester to take and receive the profits of his house and lands called the Clovier, which the Clovier dwelled in at Myland within the libertie of Colchester; to dispose the money comyng, to keep an Obit of the moitie of the same in St Martin's Church in Colc' for the Sowles of Richard Merkes, Tho. Merkes, William Everard, and Katharin his wiff, and of him the said Robert Everard as hereafter followeth, viz. First to the Parson or Vicar there, or his deputy 8d. To every Priest of the same, and none other, 4d. To the Clerk of the same Church, 4d. To the Sexton of the same, for a knell with one bell for the space of two houres after Dirige and Mass, for his labour and lights, 8d. And the other moytie to be given to the Gray Friars, to sing Dirige and Mass of requiem yearly, as long as the Law of England will suffer, — The said Bayliffs and their Successors to have the rule and disposition of those Lands and tenements, having yearly for their business, 3s. 4d.

If any thing were spared of the Money bequeathed to St Martin's, it was to be disposed of to the Poor of that parish by the Bayliffs, as they thought best.

To conclude this Book, we shall add, by way of Note, a Verdict concerning a Passage into some Lands formerly belonging to Joseph Elianore's Chantry; which may be of very great use to posterity [P].

But was granted by Q. Elizabeth, 25 March 1588. to Edw. Downing, to be holden of the manor of East-Greenwich, in socage.

[M] The words of his will were, "Item I gyff and bequethe to the hey Awtere of St Andrew at Grynsted, for tythys offeryngs forgotten xii d. Item I gyff to a Lyte to be fownde before St Andrew in the Chyrche aboveseyde "be one holle yere xii d. —(Ex Orig.)

[N] There is an old original account of it, in the Parish-chest of St Leonard's.

[O] Item I bequeth to the paryche of sancte Leonarde beforefayd myne tenement with the apportnanc' undir this condiscion, That the Chirchwardyns of the same whosoev' shalbe for the tym' shall pay zerly for the kepyng of myn' Obit at the day of myn' An'sary—vs. That is to saye to the Curate for masse and dirige—viii d. and for bedrowll—iiii d. for ii candyll—iiii d. — to ych sty-pendary—iiii d. to the parych clerke—vi d. to ii childryn ii d. — to xx powre folke xx d. and to the Chirchwardyns for ther labor ych of them iii d. — The refydewe of the ferme of the same to kepe reparation of the howse, and that at lessyth remayne to the vantage of the Chirch; and if the sayd parichoners and Chirchwardyns fulfyll not the condiscions of the sayd clauffe, that then I wyll the sayd howse with appurtynawnces remayn to the disposicon of myn' executors, or the executors of them — (From a Copy in the parish-chest of St Leonard's.)

[P] Verdict. Inquis. capt. pro via ad terr. vocat. le Bakerys Lond.

Cum lis & discordia sepius mote fuerint inter Willielmum Pentors Capellanum Cantarie Josephi Eleanore ex una parte, & Johannem Reshe & Emmam uxorem ejus nuper uxorem Ade Barbour mercatoris de Colecestr. ex altera parte, pro quadam via quam idem Wills Pentors jure fundationis Cantarie sue predictae clamat habere ad terram suam suam spectantem Cantarie sue predictæ vocatam Bakeris lond, per campum predictorum Johannis & Emme quondam predicti Ade etiam vocatum Bakeris land in Hamelto de Lexden, infra libertatem ville Colcestr. jacentem per venellam vocatam Stoncrouchlane, alias vocatam Horsee-lane;—Tandem mediantibus inde Thoma Godeston & Johanne Dyere Ballivis ville Colcestr. Thoma Fraunceys, Johanne Foorde, Johanne Pod, Will. Mate, ac aliis discretis viris de consilio ville; quapropter ad eorum instantiam & requisitionem Partes predictæ specialiter rogaverunt predictos Ballivos ad veritatem inde inquirendum, Ubi predictus Willielmus de jure habebit viam suam ad predictam terram; & quam viam predecessores predicti Willielmi solebant habere & habuerunt ad predictam terram? & bonam Inquisitionem inde capiendam de proximo visineto de Lexden predicta. Et in plena Curia coram predictis Ballivis submiserunt se ad standum Verdicto duodecim Juratorum in hac parte, ad hoc per predictos Ballivos assignatorum in alto & basso sine contradictione quacunque. Et super hoc predicti Ballivi in communi Aule ville predictæ in presentia partium predictarum ceperunt inde Inquisitionem, videl. per Sacramentum Roberti Levegor, Tho. Knyght, Johannis Webbe sen. Joh. Tuffey, Joh. Nevard, Tho. Bawde, Nic. Smyth, Joh. Pycot, Joh.

Webbe jun. Joh. Styward, Tho. Borkam, & Joh. Herde, &c. Jurator qui dicunt per Sacramentum suum, Quod predictus Willielmus Pentors de jure habebit viam suam ad predictam terram spectantem Cantarie sue predictæ, cum carectis, carucis, & bestiis suis, eundo, equitando, fugando & cariado, quocienscunque & quodocunque sibi placuerit, intrando in venellam prope Crucem lapideam vocatam Stoncrouch-lane, alias vocatam Horsee-lane, directe ad portam modo predictorum Johannis & Emme, spectantem predicto Campo vocato Bakerys lond; & ibidem intrando in predictum campum, & viam suam super dextram manum capiando, & sic per sepem ejusdem campi directe tenendo versus orientem usque ad predictam terram spectantem Cantarie predictæ, etiam vocatam Bakerys land. Et ulterius sic redeundo per eandem viam sine impedimento possessorum predicti campi predictorum Johannis & Emme, ad quorumcunque manus imposterum devenerit. Et ulterius dicunt quod predecessores & possesores predictæ Cantarie, a tempore quo non extat memoria, solebant habere & habuerunt viam suam ibidem eodem modo: Et quod via ibidem solebat esse de latitudine viginti pedum, a sepe ejusdem Campi—Cur. Rotul. 13 Hen. IV, Rot. 33.

The End of Book II.

T H E

HISTORY and ANTIQUITIES

O F

COLCHESTER.

B O O K III.

§ I. Gifts and Benefactions to the Corporation, and to the several Parishes.

IT has been all along astonishing to me, That in so ancient, large, and considerable a town as Colchester, there should appear so small, and so very few, public Gifts and Benefactions. I can account for it no other way, but That the Monasteries and the Commonalty were two Gulphs, which swallowed all, and would permit nothing to go besides themselves [A].

However, such as our Gifts and Benefactions have been at any time, I will endeavour to give a true and exact List of them; which I shall chuse to deliver as much as possible in the very words of the original Wills, or other Grants, on purpose to render my Account the more authentic.

1. Sir Thomas White's Gift.

Sir Tho. White, Kt. Lord Mayor and Alderman of London, did, in the year 1566, deliver and pay unto the Mayor, or Burgeses, and Commonalty of Bristol, 2000*l.* to the intent that they should therewith purchase to themselves and successors, Messuages, Lands, &c. then of the clear yearly value of 120*l.* and more, to continue for ever for the equal benefit and advancement of Twenty four Cities and large Towns in England; in the following manner.

[A] And even of those which we had, some are in danger of being lost. For though express Provision was made in our Work-house-Act, "That the Work-house Corporation should not have any Power or Authority over any Alms-house or Hospital, or any other charitable Gift or Use, within this Town or Liberties thereof, already Given, Settled, or Erected, or to be at any time hereafter Given, Settled, or Erected, but Namely, That the yearly sum of 104*l.* should be paid on St Bartholomew's day, at Merchant-Taylor's-hall in London, to the Mayor or Bailiffs of each of those respective cities, &c. successively; To be lent by each Commonalty, at 25*l.* a-piece, to Four of their poor young Freemen, of honest fame, for Ten years, without paying any Interest. Those persons to give sufficient security for the repayment of the said 25*l.* at the expiration of the ten years. Clothiers to be preferred to all others. The odd 4*l.* was to be employed by the respective Mayors, &c. of each city and town, as they thought good for their care and pains. The first payments were made in the following order. After Bristol,

In the year

1577 to York.	1588 to Lincoln.
1578 Canterbury	1589 Winchester.
1579 Reading.	1590 Oxford.
1580 the Merchant-Taylors.	1591 Hereford.
1581 Gloucester.	1592 Cambridge.
1582 Worcester.	1593 Shrewsbury.
1583 Exeter.	1594 Lynn.
1584 Salisbury.	1595 Bath.
1585 Worcester.	1596 Derby.
1586 Norwich.	1597 Ipswich.
1587 Southampton.	1598 Colchester.
	1599 Newcastle.

And the payments have been made ever since, in the same order [B].

"that the same should be wholly exempted therefrom:"—Yet some of the Managers in this Corporation, had the Confidence to take possession of the Alms-houses about this Town, and of most of the Gifts and Benefactions; some of which being in Money, are, I am afraid, embezzled, if not worse.

[B] The Estates purchased with the abovesaid 2000*l.* are said to be worth now above 3500*l.* per ann. Some

2. Lady

2. Lady Judde's Gift.

The worshipful Dame Mary Judde of Mark-hall in Latton in this county [C], widow; for the great love, favour, and affection which she bore unto the Town of Colchester being the place of her Nativitie, and to the people therein inhabiting; Did, by Indenture bearing date 13 February 33 Elizabeth, [1590-1,] give to the Bayliffs and Commonalty of Colchester, One hundred pounds, as a stock to buy and provide from time to time Wool, Yarn, Flax, and such other merchandize and things as the season should require; for the setting on work such poor persons, inhabiting within the said Town, and Liberties of the same, as should be able to work and labour; the same persons receiving for their work as they should be agreed withal: And that the profit, commodity, and benefit, which should grow and accrue by reason of the employment of the said stock of One hundred pounds as aforesaid, should be from time to time for ever hereafter given, disposed, and delivered, by the Bayliffs and Commonalty and their successors, to such of the Poor people, inhabitants within the said Town and Liberties thereof, as are impotent and unable to work or labour, according to the good discretion of the said Bayliffs and Aldermen for the time being.—But if the said sum of One hundred pounds did at any time remain unoccupied, or not employed to the uses before remembered, by the space of Twelve whole months together; then the Bayliffs and Commonalty were to repay it to the said Lady Judde, or her executors, within three months next after demand thereof [D].

3. Mr Hunwick's Gift.

John Hunwick Alderman of Colchester, did, by his last Will dated 24th November 1593, devise for ever to the Poor, Lane, and impotent persons inhabiting and dwelling within the Town of Colchester and the precincts thereof, the sum of Three hundred pounds to be paid by his Executors to the Bayliffs and Commonalty of Colchester: And the use and profit of the same, to be distributed by these, for four years together, [viz. 30*l.* at 10 per cent, as it was then] amongst the Poor, Lane, and Impotent persons of Colchester as aforesaid, without any manner of affection. Every fifth year, the Interest arising that year to be paid thus; 10*l.* to the Bailiffs and Portmen of Ipswich; 10*l.* to the Mayor of Sudbury; and 10*l.* to the Bayliffs of Maldon, for their Poor: And, on the said fifth year, the Bailiffs and Commonalty of Colchester to meet the Bailiffs and Commonalty of Ipswich, on the 15th of September; and give of the cities went to law with Bristol, in 1713, in order to obtain the whole produce of those Estates; but did not succeed.—Sir Tho. White died in February 1566. He had some lands in Campo juxt. Colchester,—tent' in capite,—5 & 6 Phil. & Mar. (W. Holman MSS.)

[C] Widow of Sir Andrew Judde, born at Tonbridge in Kent, where he founded a free-school. He was a member of the Russia-company, or Merchant-Adventurers; one of the Sheriffs of London in 1544; and Lord Mayor of the same city in 1550. See Stowe's Survey of account to them of the profit and distribution of the money for the four years foregoing. One time the Magistrates of Ipswich to come to Colchester; and, the next time, the Magistrates of Colchester to go to Ipswich. Discharges to be given, upon receipt of the said several sums, under the common Seals of the respective Towns [E].

The Interest of these 300*l.* hath been distributed accordingly till the year 1741: But it is sunk in proportion to the Interest of other Moneys.

4. Mr William Turner's Gift.

William Turner of the parish of All-Hallows the wall, London, merchant, some time one of the Aldermen of Colchester, by his Will dated 7 Novemb. 1630, gave to John Marshall and other feoffees, his capital Messuage, &c. at the New Hyth where he lately dwelt, as also a piece of a Cole-yard which he held in farm of the Bayliffs and Commonalty of Colchester; Upon special Trust, that the said Messuage, &c. should for ever be kept in repair; and that the Bailiffs and Commonalty should yearly take the Rent, and (the charges of Repairs being first deducted) should distribute it, on the feast days of St Thomas and Good-friday for ever, to the Aged, Poorest, and Impotentest Inhabitants of the said town.—When the Trustees are reduced to Two, they should, with the allowance of the Bailiffs, infeoffe Four or Five new trustees, of the chiefest and best sort of people in the town of Colchester [F].

5. Mr Joseph Cox's Gift to St MARY's.

The best account of it is from the following clause of Mr Cox's Will.—“Item I doe appoint the summe of One hundred pounds to bee laid out by my Executors, for the purchase of some freehold Lands of an Estate of inheritance in fee-simple in possession of the cleare yearly value of Five Pounds per annum at least; the yearly Rents and Profits thereof I doe give and bequeath for ever to the Poore of the parish of St Mary on the Wall in Colchester, where I was borne, to bee paid and distributed unto and amongst the said Poore, by and at the discretion of the Churchwardens and Overseers for the Poore of the said Parish, upon the feast-day of the birth of our Lord Christ yearly for ever. And I doe appoint that untill such purchase can be conveniently had, my Executors shall pay to the Poore of the said Parish of St Mary on the Wall in Colchester aforesaid, upon the feast-day of the birth of our Lord Christ yearly, the summe of Five pounds, the first payment whereof to begin London by J. Strype, Book i. p. 263. Book ii. p. 101. Book v. p. 61, 187. and R. Hakluyt's Navigation, &c. Vol. I. p. 268, 290.

[D] The Indenture is among the Town-Records, having the Lady Judde's seal appendant, with her arms, viz. Per Chevron, gutté de poix; on a chief a Lion passant.

[E] Extracted from the Indenture, whereby it was settled in pursuance of the will. This Indenture is dated 18 August 1595.

[F] The Indenture is among the Town-records.

and

and bee made upon the feast-day of the birth of our Lord Christ next coming after my decease."

Mr Cox dyed the 24th of June 1689. And, with his legacy, the following Gentlemen, Sir Isaac Rebow Kt. Lemyng Rebow Esq; Joseph Thurston Esq; Peter Coveney bay-maker, Jacob Johnson plumber, Timothy Cook vintner, William Peartree cooper, and Thomas Mayhew, gent. as Trustees for the Poor of the parish of St Mary's; Did, on the 1st of March 1710-1, purchase of William Rayner of Colchester grocer, a Field called Waterhouse-field, lying in the parish of St Mary's, and containing Five acres; abutting south on the road leading from Colchester to London, East on the Pesthouse-field, [or Windmill field] North on the Water-house-meadow, and West on the lands and mill of Joseph Andrews [now Mr John Boggis's]. And another field of Three acres, in the same parish of St Mary's, lying between the two Windmills (of the said Mr Boggis, and the Widow Gilson) abutting South on the London road. To hold to them and their heirs, upon trust that they shall for ever permit the Churchwardens of the parish of St Mary at the Walls to receive the Rents and Profits of the said premises, to be yearly distributed upon Christmas-day among poor people of the said parish who do not take collection [G] according to the Will of Mr Joseph Cox. — These two fields are now leased for 21 years to John Seaborne, at the clear yearly rent of 5*l.* 10*s.*

6. Mr Jeremiah Daniell's Gift of Coals to the parishes of St MARY's, St PETER's, St GILES's, and St BOTULPH's.

This generous Benefaction cannot also better be described than in the following Clause of Mr Daniell's Will, which was dated October 26, 1695. — "Item, I further give and bequeath to my Nephew Jeremy [Daniell] before-named, All that Field or parcel of Land called Cockerills Croft, with a chafe way to the same belonging, leading to a Pond called Hangman's-pond, being by estimation Twenty acres or thereabouts, lying in St Giles's parish in Colchester: Upon this condition nevertheless, That the said Jeremy his heirs or assigns shall from the time of my decease every yeare yearly for ever disburse and lay out the summe of Ten pounds of lawful money of England every yeare upon Sea-Coales, and the said Sea-Coales soe bought to bee delivered as hereafter followeth, viz, To the Poore people of St Peters parish in Colchester as many Coales as amounts to the summe of Three pounds: To the Poore of St Giles as many as amounts to the summe of Three pounds: To the Poore of St Buttolphs as many as amount to Forty shillings: To the Poore of the parish of St Maries at the Walls in Colchester as many as amount to Forty shillings. But my will and minde is, that the charges of measureing and carriage to deliver the said Coales into the Parishes where they are bequeathed, shal be included and paid as parte of the Tenn pounds, and not to bee charged upon or borne by my cozen Jeremy his heirs or assigns over and above the said Tenn pounds. And my minde and will further is, That the Churchwardens of the four Parishes last named, should every yeare have the oversight, ordering, and divideing the said Coales, every one in their owne respective Parishes, to those persons they think have most need. And if my nephew Jeremy, his heirs or assigns, shall, at any [time] arter his or their haveing the Land in possession, neglect or refuse to lay the said Coales in yearely as aforesaid, I then hereby impower and give strength to the Churchwardens of the said Parishes to whom the Coales are bequeathed, in conjunction together to enter upon the said Lands called Cockerill's croft, and to take the Rents and Profits thereof, until full restitution bee made by the said Jeremy, his heirs, or assigns, to the respective parishes to whome any thing appertaining to this bequest shall be due, together with the full charges they shall be out for such seizure according to my true intent and meaning in these presents, and such seizure soe often to bee made as occasion is given by the neglect or refusal of the said Jeremy his heirs or assigns as above expressed [H]."

[G] Mr Cox made no such restriction in his Will; but bequeathed his Legacy to the Poore of the parish of St Mary on the wall in general.

7. Mr Thomas Ingram's Gift to St PETER's.

Thomas Ingram of Colchester, clothier, for the great love and affection which he did beare unto the good and prosperous estate of the Town of Colchester, wherein he had lived and continued many years together, and to the poor Inhabitants of the said town. And especially to the Poor people dwelling in the parish of St Peter within the said town of Colchester wherein he then dwelt; Did, by Indenture, bearing date 1st July 1602, give to the Bailiffs and Commonalty One hundred pounds, on condition, That they, with Five of the chiefest and principallest parishioners of St Peter's parish in the same town, should appoint Five persons to whom the said Moneys should be lent at the rate of Five per cent. they finding sufficient security for the repayment of it. Those to whom the Moneys were lent, were obliged to find a competent quantity of Wool for the Poor of St Peter's parish (that should require it) to spin, or work; paying them for their work at the common price.

The interest of that Money was to be distributed quarterly, by the Bayliffs and Five of the chief Inhabitants of St Peter's parish, to such poor Inhabitants of the said parish as were unable to work.

8. Mrs Agnes Dister's, alias Leache's Gift to St PETER's.

How much this Benefaction was, when granted, and out of what tenements or estate to be paid, I cannot learn. The only account I have [H] These Coals are now distributed by the Donor's great nephew Jeremiah Daniell Esq; the present possessor of the Land, or his heirs; mention'd above under the Crouched-friers, and who lives in All-Saints parish in this town.

feen of it, is in the following words; being part of her Epitaph, in the North isle of St Peter's Church, against the Wall. "She did appointe certen Money to be given yerely to the Poore of this parishe at the feast of Penthecost, that they shoulde render thancke unto Christ, and kepe his gracious benefitts in memory for ever."

9. Lady Cresseild's Gift to the Poor of H. TRINITY.

It is contained in the following words, being part of the Codicil to her Will, dated Octob. 23, 1734. "I give to the Poor of the Parish of the Holy Trinity in Colchester, Three pounds a year, which is to be paid and distributed to them by the Minister and Churchwardens; and to be paid yearly for ever out of the Rents and Profits of my dwelling-house, on Christmas-day in each year. And, for default of payment, that distress may be made for the same."

10. Robert Franckham's Gift to St. NICOLAS.

Robert Franckham of Colchester, fletcher, did by his Will, dated the 20th of July 1577, give a yearly rent-charge of Thirteen Shillings and four pence, out of a Tenement and six acres of land in West-Bergholt, for ever; To be distributed to the use and relief of the Poor Inhabitants of the parish of St Nicolas, that are of good and honest fame and conversation; and to be paid yearly, at the feasts of the Annunciation of the blessed Virgin Mary and St Michael the Archangel, by even and equal portions.

Henry Wilton, owner of the said tenement and lands, seems to have neglected or refused to make the usual payments. But, in pursuance of a Decree in Chancery, made November 9, 1603, he vested the abovesaid rent of 13 s. 4 d. in Ten Trustees, parishioners of the parish of St Nicolas; viz. Ralph Northy Alderman, Thomas Buckstone apothecary, William Thurston, and Jeffery Langley, spalters, William Ayres innkeeper, Isaac Shilberie, and John Binck yeomen, Thomas Reynold, draper, John Northey mercer, and Robert Buckstone apothecary, and their heirs and assigns for ever. With liberty, (if the said yearly Rent was unpaid in part or in all at any of the feasts in which as aforesaid it ought to be paid) for those Trustees, or any of them, or any of their heirs or assigns, or the Churchwardens or Overseers of the poor of the said parish of St Nicolas for the time being, or any of them, into the said Tenements and Lands with the appertinences to enter and distrain. This Indenture of H. Wilton is dated Decemb. 4, 1604. and is entered in the Parish-book.

11. Mr Wegg's Gift to St NICOLAS.

George Wegg the Elder of Colchester Esq; by his Will, dated 6th September 1745, gave to the Minister of the parish of St Nicolas in Colchester, for the time being, the sum of Forty shillings a year for ever, to be issuing and payable out of his Moor, in the parish of St James in Colchester, then in the occupation of Thomas Essex: which said sum he desired and directed, should, by the said Minister be laid out in bread, and distributed, by six monthly divisions, unto and amongst such old decrepid poor persons dwelling in the said parish of St Nicolas, as do not take collection. The first payment of 40 s. to be paid to the said Minister on the feast of St Michael the Archangel next after his decease, and the said Minister to begin to distribute the bread, on the first Monday in the Month of October succeeding such payment; and to continue such distribution on the first Monday of the Months of October, November, December, January, February, and March for ever.

12. The Gift of George Gilbert Esq; to ALL-SAINTS.

Matthew Stephens gave by Will to this parish, wherein he then dwelt, Ten pounds; to be ordered and disposed by his wife and his heirs, or the owners and possessors of his capital messuage wherein he lived, and the Churchwardens of the same parish for the time being, to the yearly use and benefit of the Poor people of the said parish for ever. — George Gilbert Esq; who came afterwards and inhabited in the same capital messuage, and in whose hands those Ten pounds remained, added in his lifetime Ten pounds more to them, for the same use. But, out of his great affection for the Poor, instead of those 20 l. which he was permitted to appropriate to himself, on the 21st of December 1639, he enfeoffed Harbottle Grimston Esq; William Gilbert Esq; Edmund Pierce LL.D. John Berriffe Gent. John Shaue, and thirteen others, and their heirs, in a Messuage upon East-hill, then divided into several tenements; In trust, that, after his decease, they should apply the Rents and Profits of the same, (after deducting for sufficient repairs) to these uses: Namely, distribute Sixteen shillings yearly, amongst the Poor of the parish of All-Saints, by the hands of the owners of the house wherein the said Matthew Stephens and George Gilbert lived, and the Churchwardens of the same parish: And also that they, jointly with the overseers of that parish, should, every Sunday after divine service, give Twelve pence a piece and a penny-loaf to Twelve of the oldest and poorest persons of that parish: And divide the overplus of the rents and profits aforesaid, if any were at the year's end, on St Thomas's day, among the oldest and the poorest people of that parish, according to their discretion. — But these Tenements being destroyed by fire, undoubtedly during the siege, and there remaining in the room of them only a Toft or void place; the chief Inhabitants of All-Saints parish did, on the 10th day of October 1654, let a 99 years lease of the same to Robert Smith of the parish of St James saymaker; for a consideration of nineteen pounds in hand paid, and a yearly rent of One shilling, payable every year on Michaelmas-day, to the Churchwardens and Overseers of the parish of All-Saints,

Book III. GIFTS and BENEFACTIONS. 167

in the South porch of that Church, for the use of the poor of the said parish. In this lease, the place is so described.—“It abutteth, Southward “on the common highway leading to Colchester; “Westward on the house now in the occupation “of Thomas Lawrence; Northward on the “land called the Castle-land; and Eastward on “the house newly erected of Robert Smith scituate in East-street.” [I].

13. John Brewode's Gift to ALL-SAINTS.

John Brewode of Great Horkeſley Gent. enfeoffed in the year 1498, William Tending Esq; and others in some Estates, for the repairs of this Parish Church [K]. But what they were, doth not appear; for the Court-rolls of that year are lost.

14. Gift to poor Widows, in St BOTOLPH's and St GILES's parishes.

There is a yearly Rent or Annuity of Two pounds Twelve shillings, charged upon, and issuing out of, a certain Messuage, and Lands known by the name of Longs and Londons, containing by estimation Forty two acres, lying in Much Totham, Little Totham, and Gold hanger, in this county, or in some or one of them; which sum is payable yearly, at Michaelmas, to the Churchwardens of the Parish of St Buttolph for the time being: to be by them applied towards the support of poor Widows of that parish for ever.

The like yearly sum is payable, out of the same Estate, to the Churchwardens of St Giles's, in this Town, and for the same use.

It was constantly paid out of those Lands, until the year 1734; when one Samuel Cater having purchased them of Richard Holland, by Indentures of Lease and Release, bearing date on or about the 10th and 11th of February that year, the said Cater refused to pay those respective Rents and Annuities. But an Information being exhibited in the Court of Chancery, in Hilary-Term 1738, against Cater; it was finally decreed by that Court, on the 13th of December 1740, That the Defendant Cater, and all future owners of the said premises, shall duly pay those Rents or Annuities from time to time as the same shall become due [L].

15. Grant to the parishes of St BOTOLPH and St MARY MAGDALEN.

The sum of Ten Shillings yearly, is to be paid by the Bailiffs of Colchester and their Successors, to the Collectors of the Poor of the parishes of St Botolph and St Mary Magdalen, for the use of the Poor of those two parishes. This 10 s. is payable out of a piece of Land in the parish of St Mary Magdalen, which was made whole-year ground in 1571, when that Quit-rent was reserved by the Bailiffs and Commonalty for the use above-mentioned.—The Land is thus described, “One head abutting upon the Land, some time John Christmas's, and now belonging to the Bailiffs and Commonalty on the East; The other head abutting upon the high-way leading from Colchester to the Hyth on the South; and upon the garden some time John Abraham's and the tenement of Edm. Hampkins, now Robert Smith's, on the West; and on the Land belonging to Benj. Clere on the North [M].”

16. Gifts to St LEONARD's.

1624.	Given by Mrs Lowe, widow and relict of Mr Tho. Lowe, some time Rector of this parish,	40	0	0
1625.	— by Mr Tho. Hawes, Rector of the same,	10	0	0
1626.	— by Andrew Steward the younger, mariner,	10	0	0
1625.	— by Mr Caleh, yeoman, the sum of Ten Shillings out of his house above the Hill next the Acre, for the use of the Poor of this parish, yearly to be paid to the Overseers of the same parish,	00	10	0
1627.	— by Mr Jeffery Langley the elder, the sum of Twenty shillings out of a House in Wyer-street, yearly to be paid,	01	0	0
	— by John Braxted out of the House abutting upon James Furley, to be paid yearly [N].	00	5	0

17. Sir John Swinerton's Gift to LEXDEN.

The following account of it, is thus entered in the old Register-book of this parish. “September Anno Domini 1610.

Mem. That aboute the feast of St Michell the Archangell in the year aboveſaide, the worshipfull Mrs Marye Swinerton Widd. and the Right worshipfull Sir John Swinerton Knight (her ſonne) upon a Sabath daye came unto this parish Church of Lexden, And did ſignifie, that the ſaid Mrs Mary Swinerton, as well in regarde ſhe was borne in the ſaide pariſhe, as alſo for other charitable reſpects her movinge, Hath gyven unto the poore of the ſaide pariſh yearly (during the lyfe of the ſaide Marye) a ſomme or pencion of fyve pounds and fower ſhillings to be employed to the uſe of the poore by the Officers and cheefe Inhabitants of the ſaide pariſhe from tyme to tyme for the tyme being, as followeth (viz.) upon every Sabath daye to have two duzen of wheate breade ſett uppon the Communion-table or other convenient place in the Church or Chancell. And Fourteen of the pooreſt olde impotent people to be choſen by the ſaide cheefe inhabitants: Who ſo Churchwardens of Heybridge.

[M] The Indenture is among the Town-records. This piece of land was lately Tho. Agnis's; and the Chamberlain used to receive all along that reserved Rent.

[N] Copied from an old Schedule in the parish Chest.

[I] Mr Gilbert's gift is enrolled on the Court-rolls 20 Janu. 5^o Car. i. 1630. and the original Lease to Rob. Smith is in the possession of Ch. Gray Esq;

[K] Ad usum reparationis Ecclesie Omnium Sanctorum. Rot. Cur. 14 Henr. vii. rot. 12. See Oath-book, p. 168.

[L] The same sum is also paid out of that Estate to the longe as they shall resort to the prayers and exercises of the saide Church and well behave themselves, shall have the same breade [14 to the dozen] divided amonge them (viz.) to every of them, 2 d. in breade uppon every the saide days, and as any of them shall dye, or lyve otherwise than before prescribed, then the saide parishioners to choose as afforesaide to supplye their roomes. And the saide Sir John Swynerton at the same tyme did further signifie unto the saide parishe, that he consideringe this guifte to be to the honor of God, and the benefite of the poore uppon earth, would have the same pension to be perpetually paid to the uses afforesaide oute of his owne estate: And resolved to charge some of his lands in Stanway for the payment of the saide yearly pencion to the use of the saide poore as afforesaid."—Which he accordingly performed, as appears by this clause of his Will, dated 7 Septemb. 1616. — To the town of Lexden, in the county of Essex, I give and bequeath so much out of the said demesnes of Stanway-hall, or of the Rent thereof, as will pay and provide Bread for so many Poor people of that parish, as Two shillings in bread every weeke is to be distributed into, for forty and one years after my mother's decease. And I do further will, That after the said forty and one years, the said payment of Two shillings the weeke be continued to the Poor of the said parish for ever. And for the good performance thereof, I bind my house called Stanway-hall, and the demesnes thereof to answer the same, which, I hope, my heirs will see truly performed. And in default of payment, I hereby limit power to the Churchwardens of that parish for the time being to distraine for the same (a)."

§ 2. Archbishop Harsnet's LIBRARY:

DR Samuel Harsnet, Archbishop of York, of whom I have given an account under St Botolph's, did, by his Will proved June 8, 1631, give to the Bayliffs and Corporation of the town of Colchester, all his Library of Books, upon condition that they should provide a decent Room to set them up in, that the Clergy of this town, and other Divines, might have free access for the reading and studying of them.

Thereupon our Magistrates considered of a fit place to put them in; and, Novemb. 3, 1631, agreed, That the East end of the Chamber over the Red-rowe, called the Dutch Say-hall, was a convenient place, being repaired, to put the Library given by the Lord Archbishop of York, and they appointed it for that purpose: And ordered the charges of repairing of that room, and making it fit and convenient, to be laid out by the Chamberlain, out of the Town-revenues (b). July 30, 1635, they appointed a Librarian, wherein they shewed their judgment, and their value for Books; Ordering, That William Hall Barber should have 40*s.* per annum, for the Keeping of the Library, allowed and paid unto him quarterly, by the Chamberlain of the Town for the time being: He therefore entring into a bond of 40*l.* for the making good of those Books that should be lost or wanting, whensoever he should be called to an account for those books (c) [O].

March 20, 1654-5, Books being then grown useles when every thing was done by pretended Revelations, this Library, with all the Books therein were mortgaged to the Chamberlain for 50*l.* (d).

And, June 7, 1664, for the sake of the little Rent that could be made of the Room in which they stood, It was ordered, That the Library, then at the Red-Row, should be forthwith removed from thence to some convenient place in or near the Grammar-school, and a Catalogue taken of all the Books to be kept in the Moot-hall; and the School-master to take care of the Books, and be accountable for them (e). They are now in the Castle. The most valuable Books amongst them, are the fine Antwerp Polyglot Bible; and Hesychius, with Isaac Casaubon's MSS. notes.

To this Library an Addition was made in 1635, by Tho. Hawes, Rector of St Leonard's, who gave some Books to the Town (f). And some have been added since by other benefactors, as Newcourt's Repertorium, &c.

The noblest Addition designed to be made to it, was by the late Bishop Compton, who gave Half his Library of Books to the Mayor and Commonalty, for the same use as Archbishop Harsnet's. But such was the Meanness and Dishonesty of the persons who then governed this town; that, to avoid the Charge of bringing them hither, which by Water would have been very trifling, this generous Gift was slighted and neglected, and his Lordship's heir was forced to sell them.

C H A P. II.

§ 1. Charitable Foundations.

THE charitable Foundations now subsisting in this Town are but few and inconsiderable; so that I have reason to begin this Chapter with the same complaint as I did the last; namely, How small is the Number of them; and to ascribe it to the same cause. By charitable Foundations, I mean here such endowed Buildings as were designed for the Benefit and Relief of the Poor; as Hospitals, or Alms-Houses. Of this sort, we have only these few, according to the order of time in which they were founded. 1. Ralph Fynche's. 2. John Wenock's. 3. Arthur Winsley's.

1. Ralph Fynche's Hospital, or Alms-houses.

The founder, Ralph Fynche, was a Brewer, and lived at the bottom of the Balkon-hill in St Peter's parish, in a house now taken (a) Reg. Cur. Prærog. Cant. Lib. Coke 126. Q. E. secundo libro. (b) Book of Assemblies. (c) Ibid. (d) Ibid. (e) Ibid. (f) Ibid. 10 Aug. 1635. p. 139.

[O] The rest of the Library-keepers, were,—Ap. 30, 1638, Thomas Tirrell the elder. His salary 40*s.* per ann. and to give the same security as W. Hall.—Jan. 20, 1646-7, Daniel Partridge Clerk of the Market. His salary 40*s.* and to give the usual security.—Jan. 19, 1651. Thomas Lappage, who was allowed for his pains in keeping it, 20*s.* per ann.—Octob. 4, 1653. Mr Warren Minister of St. Peter's ordered to have the keeping of it; and that a Catalogue should be taken of the Books.

down [P]. In his Will, dated 31 July 1552, he desired his Executors, with convenient speed after his decease, to finish up his Houses and Buildings as he had begun them under one roof, standing in St. Nicholas's parish, which he lately built for four Almes houses for Four Poore folke to dwell in: And that his Executors should make therein Partitions as well in the upper as the lower parts; and likewise in the backfides, or yards. So that each of those four Almes houses might have like part, as well in the upper parts, with a separate way up to them, as also like part to the said yards.

He left the management of these Houses to his Executors for the time being [Q], and to Four of the most chief and auncient Inhabitants within the said parish of Saint Nicolas, to be named by his Executors: And whensoever any of the said Four men should decease, or depart out of the said parish of Saint Nicolas, the over-liver or over-livers of his Executors, or such of the said Four persons as should remain and abide in the said parish, within a convenient time after such departure or decease, should nominate others to the full number of Four of the most honest and auncient Inhabitants within the said parish: And the same order of nomination of those Four persons to continue for ever.

These Four honest Men, so to be chosen, were to elect and put into the said Houses and Buildings, Four such Impotent and Poore Inhabitants, Men or Women, dwelling in the parish of Saint Nicolas, and being of good name and fame, as to them should seem most convenient: Which Poor persons were not to be removed out of those Alms houses, so long as they were quiet and of good behaviour. And whenever any of them departed out of the said house or houses, either by death or otherwise, they should at their departure leave there some reasonable portion of their goods, towards the reparation of the said Houses, to be adjudged by the discretion of the said Four men. Any of his kindred being in poverty, and desiring to dwell in any of the said houses, to have the preference of any other.

For the maintenance of these Poor people, he granted to the said Four persons, (whom he stiled Governours of them) a yearly Rent, of Six pounds Six shillings and Eight pence, to be paid at Michaelmas and Lady-day, out of all those Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, which he bequeathed to Amye his daughter, wife of Gerrarde Shilbery, and to Mary Rutt; namely, all his Houses and Buildings at the Balkon, with all utensils and implements, as well belonging to the brewing of beer there, as otherwise: Together with all and singular Lands, Meadows, &c. to them belonging; that is, One piece of Meadow lying there next the Balkon, which he bought of Richard Duke, Gent. containing Three acres; One Moore, with a little piece of Meadow, lying there, which he bought of one Filded; One piece of arable Land, containing by estimation Seven acres, which he bought of one Richard Harking, Gent. One acre and a half of Meadow, lying in King's-meadow: All those his Lands, Tenements, and Groves, lying in Fordham; together with his lease and term of years yet to come, which he had in a certain Meadow next Powles-land, near the East of King's-meadow, which he had by the lease and grant of one Thomas Awdeley, Esq;

Out of the fore-mentioned 6*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* the Four Governors were to pay Six-pence weekly, for ever, to each of the Four poor persons, abiding and dwelling in the said Houses. — For their pains therein, the Governours were to take every year Six shillings and Eight pence. — And the overplus of the said Rent was to be employed for Fewell wood for the said Four poor folke, by the only disposition of the Governours, for ever.

There were also six Feoffees of this Charity, appointed by the Bailiffs; and when they were reduced to two, the two surviving persons were to enfeoffe six others and their heirs as should be nominated by the Bailiffs for the time being.

2. John Wenock's Hospital, or Alms-house.

Mr. John Wenock of Colchester, Bay-maker, having in his life-time, built and finished a Row of Houses in Hog-lane, in a piece of ground, which was part of a Field called Golden-at-hill, in the parish of St. Giles's: He did, in the year 1679, settle those Houses in trustees for the habitation and benefit of Six Poor people: Whom he ordered to be such ancient and orderly poor persons, as receive no Alms or Collection from any parish whatsoever; unless, after such time as they are placed there, they should, by reason of age or sickness, become disabled to maintain themselves out of his allowance.

For their maintenance, he vested in his trustees an Annuity, or yearly Rent-charge, of One and forty pounds; issuing out of the Rents and Profits of his Messuages or Tenements [R] in the parish of St. Peter's in this Town; and to be paid, after his own and his wife's decease, to his aforesaid trustees, by quarterly payments, without any deduction.

Out of this Annuity he ordered, That there should be paid by his trustees to each of the Dwellers in the said Six Dwelling-houses, Two shillings a week, upon the Saturday in every week, and so continue for ever. — And also, That his trustees should lay in yearly one Chaldron of Sea-coales for every dwelling-house, [P] Ralph Fynche's Brew-house and land, at the Baulcon, was in 1652 in Mary Tailecoat, who let it to Lucas Bennet for 60*l.* per ann. Carta penes me.

[Q] Which were Garrarde Shilbery, and Thomas Williamson.

[R] They were, at the time of making the settlement, let only to Four persons; but are now in Six tenements, rated to the King's-tax at 32*l.* per ann. Some of these tenements are visibly the remains of an old Inn; anciently the White-Horse; and so, in old writings, under the name of the Berghold, from the Saxon berȝ, or beoȝ, a high, an eminence, and hold an inn: And had formerly land, or gardens, belonging thereto, that extended as far as the lane called Angel-lane. See Oath-book, p. 121. and Chamberlain's Account, 2 Edw. VI.

for and towards their winter-firing; over and besides their weekly stipend of two shillings a week [S]. But, the Tenements out of which the above-said Annuity was to arise, not being sufficient to answer it, by reason of the fall of the Rents from about 60 to between 30 and 40*l.* per annum; which, after deducting for taxes and repairs, do not yield above 25*l.* a year clear; if so much: On that account, the allowance to each of the Six poor people is no more than Six pence a week, and a Chaldron of Coals once a year.

3. Mr. Arthur Winsley's Hospital.

This is the most considerable, and the best-endowed, Charitable-foundation about this Town. Be pleased to take the following account of it in the very words of Mr Winsley's will, which was dated the 28th of March 1726.

"My Body I desire should be decently interred with my dear Wife in the Vault of the Parish Church of St James (g) in Colchester, requiring my Executor hereafter named to purchase a faculty for the said Vault. Item, I give Two hundred and Fifty pounds, to be laid out on a Monument to be erected against the South wall of the said Church, nearest the said Vault, with my statue cut out in marble, lying with the left hand under the head, and a book in the right hand, and in a night gown, with Inscriptions as my most judicious Friends shall think proper. And I give the Rents of my now dwelling House in the said parish of All-Saints, for the maintenance of the said Monument in good repair; and appoint the Rector of the parish of St James's, for the time being, to take care that it be kept in good repair. Item, I give all that my farm with the appurtenances, lying and being in the parish of St Buttolph in Colchester, called the Brick-House, which I purchased of Mr. Morley of Halsted; I give the House for an Habitation of Twelve antient Men, that have lived well, and fallen into decay, to be made into Twelve convenient Apartments, at the discretion of the Trustees hereafter mentioned; And I give 500*l.* for the making the said Apartments commodious; and I give the Rents of the said Farm towards the maintenance of the said Twelve poor Men. And I give all that my Farm in West Merse, in the County of Essex, called Bocking-Hall, with the appurtenances, now in the occupation of Tho. Spurdin, towards the further maintenance of the said Twelve Men. And I give all the over-plus Rents of my now dwelling House, after the repairs of the said Monument are paid for, as a further maintenance for the said Men. And my Will is, That no poor Man under the age of Sixty years be admitted into any of the said Apartments: Not none (b) be admitted, but who give Bond of Fifty pounds with two good Sureties, not to take Alms of the Town during their stay there. And further my Will is, That each of the poor Men shall, out of the Rents of the said Farms, and House, have Two shillings and Six pence paid them every week: and, once in every year, One Chaldron of Cole. And my Will is, That no prophaine Person, giving to swearing, drinking, or any other vice, be admitted: And if any of them be found so guilty, that they may be turned out by the major part of the Trustees hereafter mentioned. And if any one of the said Men be contentious, and disturb the Peace of the rest, or be guilty of any undecent acts, they shall be lyable to be discharged by the Trustees. And I do nominate and appoint my brother Richard Winsley, Alderman Nathaniel Lawrance of Colchester, Mr. Tho. Coe linnen-draper of Colchester, Mr John Grimstone baymaker of Colchester, Mr Ed. Sherman of Deadham in the County of Essex, my brother Mr. Benjamin Dyer, and Alderman Jer. Daniel, the present Mayor of Colchester, to be Trustees, as well for the fitting up and making convenient the said Twelve apartments; which I will to be a low Room, a Chamber, and a Garret, and a Garden to every dweller, as near as may be in the form that Mr John Winock's Charity Houses now are. And I do also appoint one of the said Trustees yearly and every year to take the rents, and do see to the repairs of the said farms and house, and to pay to each of the poor Men their weekly maintenance allowed aforesaid, and lay into each their Chaldron of Coal as Mr. Winock's Trustees now do. The first Trustee nominated to pay the first year, and the rest in order as named; and I do allow them and each of them for their trouble the year they serve, one pound one shilling, out of the Rents of the said Farms and Houses. And when it shall happen that any one of the Trustees shall dye, my will is, That the rest surviving shall proceed to the choice of another in his room as soon as may be, the major part to decide the choice. My will is, That no children be admitted into any of the said appartments. I also give out of the said Rents Ten shillings yearly to be paid to a good Preacher, chosen by the Trustees, to preach a Sermon to the said poor Men every New year's day. And I give Twenty shillings every year for a Dinner to the poor Men, or any of the Trustees that will be there every New year's day; except it falls on the Lord's day, and then I will that the said Sermon and Dinner be on the Monday, the day following."

§ 2. Alms-houses.

BESIDES these three endowed Charitable Foundations, of which I have been giving an account, there are Alms-houses without endowment, in the parishes of St Mary, St Peter, H. Trinity, St Nicolas, St Botolph, &c.

1. The Alms-houses in St Mary's, stand in Crouch-street, on the North side of the London road, being the first Houses on the left hand as you come into the Town. They are a brick-building, containing Six dwellings, each [S] The Indenture is inserted at length in the Appendix N^o I.

(g) St. Jeams, here and in the other places, in the Original.

(b) So in the original.

The Monument of ARTHUR WINSLEY Esq.
To Face pa. 170.

I.D. del.

J. Mynde Sculp.

To JEREMIAH DANIELL Esq. & M^r. PH. HAVENS
This plate is most humbly inscribed.

of which hath a lower and an upper room: And there is a garden behind. They were granted by the Lord of Lexden-manor, for the relief of the poor (i); but in what year, I have not been able to learn. The date was in the front of them; but was beaten down in the beginning of this century, when the Workhouse-Corporation took them into their own hands. These Almshouses are called in old writings St Catharine's Hospital, and corruptly the Spittle. There is a tradition, That the Poor therein were allowed 2*s.* a week each, a chaldron of coals, and a load of wood; but I have not been able to trace out any such endowment. They are now converted into a Work-house for the parish of St Mary's.

2. The Almshouses in St Peter's parish stood in the lower Balkon-lane; and were built by George Sayer, Esq; [T] for four poor people, each apartment being only a lower room and a garret. In the front, not far from the south east corner, was this date cut in a stone, ANO DNI 1570. In the middle were his Arms. They had no endowment, and are now taken down.

3. The Almshouses in the parish of H. Trinity stand in Eld-lane, in a pleasant and retired place; as indeed all Almshouses ought to be: But how often are they the effect of ostentation and vanity, and therefore made as conspicuous as possible?—These were built by Mary Lady Darcy, who lived within this parish, in the great Brick house opposite to the west end of the Church; where she died in 1644 (k). She was the daughter of Sir Thomas Kitson of Hengrave, Suffolk, and wife of Thomas Lord Darcy, Viscount Colchester, and Earl Rivers. —The exact date of this building I have not found, but it was in the reign of K. Charles I. These Houses are all of brick, and contain Eight dwellings, each of which consists only of one lower room, two more of timber have been added since, at the West end: There is a garden behind them, but no endowment. They are now turned into a Work-house for that parish.

4. The Almshouses in St Nicolas's parish stand on the North side of Bucklersbury-lane. They are built of timber, and contain seven dwellings. The time when they were erected is unknown. These are also converted into a Work-house for St. Nicolas's parish.

5. The Almshouses in the parish of St. Botolph stand on the South side of Eld-lane. They consist only of Two dwellings.

There are some others in divers parts of the Town; but too inconsiderable to deserve notice.

In St Martin's parish, in Angel-lane, there is a knot of Buildings in a kind of court, called the Hospital-yard. But it appears only to have been a work-house, for setting the poor on work; such Houses being anciently called Hospitals (l).

All the foreaid Almshouses are vulgarly called Gift-houses; they having been given for the habitation of the Poor. And perhaps that was reckoned a considerable Gift, and even sufficient, when Poor-rates were either unknown, or amounted to a very trifling sum.

C H A P. III.

§ 1. Account of the Free-school.

IN so large and considerable a Place as Colchester, there must undoubtedly have been always several schools. The public ones were, in the 8th of King John, as appears from the Record above cited (*), in the parish of St Mary at the Walls, between St Mary's-lane, and Church-lane near Head-gate [U]. But there were none endowed till the 31st of K. Henry VIII. a^o 1539, nor any effectually endowed at all till the 27th of Q. Elizabeth, 1585.

For, K. Henry VIII. having by his letters patent, dated 12 November 1539, granted the Chantries, in the Chapel of St Helen, and in the Church of St Mary's, to the Bailiffs, Burgeses, and Commonalty of this Town; Upon condition of their founding and endowing, with part of the revenues of the same, a Free-school here: They accordingly allowed out of them, from that time, the yearly sum of 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* to a School-master, for teaching the children of the Town [W]. But it being found, by an Inquest taken at Stratford-Langthorn about the 25th of Q. Elizabeth, That the Bailiffs and Commonalty had not settled or appropriated any of the Revenues of those Chantries for the use of the School, according to K. Henry's intention: And some doubt having arisen about the validity of the King's grant, as being made to the Bailiffs, Burgeses, and Commonalty, whereas they were incorporated only by the name of Bailiffs and Commonalty [X]; therefore they surrendered K. Henry's Letters Patent into Chancery to be cancelled. And Q. Elizabeth, July 6, in the 26th of her reign, made them a new Grant of those Chantries, with all the Revenues, &c. thereunto belonging; so as that they should distribute and apply part of the Revenues of the said Chantries in erecting and endowing a Free-school in this Town; for which she granted them her royal

(i) T. Munne's MS. Collect.

(k) See Epitaphs, in the Appendix.

(l) See below, ch. III. § 3.

(*) Book ii. p. 3. note (l).

[T] To which foundation, these two lines in his Epitaph allude.

" A monument he made for ever to remain,

" For Ayde to Poor and Aged wights, which are oppres'd

" with Payne.

(See his Epitaph in the Appendix.)

[U] They were still there in the year 1464. For the Master of the Schools was presented then for throwing the dirt of his School over the Town-wall at the Postern. Rot. Cur. 4 Edw. IV. rot. 16.

[W] That sum was received by Robert Wrennald School-master, 1^o Mar. 1553, and by Richard Whittell, School-master, 6^o Mariae, 1558. (Chamberlain's account)

[X] All these particulars are recited in the Patent 26 Elizab.

licence. Ordaining, That the Bailiffs and Commonalty, and their successors for ever, shall and may chuse and nominate the Master from time to time: That the Bishop of London, and the Dean of St Paul's, and their successors, may make wholesome and suitable Statutes and Ordinances in writing, for the government and direction of the Master and Scholars of this School; which these shall firmly observe and keep: That the said School, and the Master and Scholars of the same, shall for ever hereafter be under the visitation and correction of the Bishop of London, and his successors, for the time being: And that the said Bishop of London, and his successors, from time to time hereafter, may visit and oversee as well the School, and the Master and Scholars of the same, as all and singular the messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, assigned and appointed by the Bailiffs, and Commonalty for the maintenance of the said School: And moreover shall make and cause from time to time the issues, profits, and revenues of those messuages, lands, and tenements, to be converted, laid out, and employed in the maintenance and support of the said school, and the Master of the same, according to the true tenor, effect, and intent of these letters patent. —

About ten months after the date of this Grant, the Bailiffs and Commonalty erected and endowed the Free-school, as appears by the following Deed.

“ To all Christian people to whom this present Writing shall come to be seen or read; Robert Mott and Thomas Cock Bayliffs of the Town of Colchester, and the Commonalty of the same Town, Greeting in our Lord everlasting. Whereas our Sovereign Lady Elizabeth, the Queen's most excellent Majestie that now is, by her Letters patents under the great Seal of England, dated the 6th day of July in the 26th year of her Majesties reign, bearing especial favour towards good letters, and chiefly desiring the amendment of the state and profit of her said Town of Colchester, of her Majesties especial grace, certain science, and mere motion, Hath, among other things, given and granted, for her, her heirs and successors, unto the Bayliffs and Commonalty of her Highness's said Town of Colchester, Two several Chauntries (that is to say) the late Chantry of St Hellen of the said Town of Colchester, and one other late Chantry in the Church of the blessed Mary within the said town, and the Messuages, Lands, Tenements, Meadows, Pastures, Woods, Rents, Reversions, Services, and other Hereditaments whatsoever, to the said Chauntries lately belonging or appertaining, or which were part, parcel, or member of the said Chanterie, or of either of them, or known, taken, or reputed as part or parcel or member of them; To have, hold and enjoy all and singular the premisses, with their appurtenances to the Bailiffs and Commonalty of her Majesties said Town of Colchester, their successors and assigns, to the sole and proper use and behoof of them, their successors, and assigns for ever; So nevertheless that the said Bailiffs and Commonalty, with part of the aforesaid Messuages, Lands, Tenements, Pastures, and Meadows, and of other the premisses, to erect a certain Free-school in the said Town; and the residue to the common profit of the said Town for the better payment of the Fee-farm of the said Town, according to their sound discretions should together set forth and distribute. And that her Majesties said intentions as to the erection of the said Free-school might have the better effect, her Highness did farther by her said Letters Patents, of her more ample grace, give and grant, for her, her heirs, and successors, her Majesties especial Licence, to found and erect a Free Grammar School within the said Town, and to assign, limit, and convey such part of the said Messuages, Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, as should be of the clear yearly value of Twenty Marks, or above, to the maintenance of the said School for ever, as unto them should be thought meetest. And further, that the said Bailiffs and Commonalty, and their successors, might from time to time for ever, choose, name, and appoint, the School-master of the said Town, as by the said Letters Patents shall and may more plainly appear. Now know ye, That, we the said Bailiffs and Commonalty of the said Town of Colchester, in accomplishment of her Majesties princely mind and intention concerning the erection of the said Free Grammar School within the said Town, Do by this our present Deed and Writing, for us and our successors, erect and found a free Grammar School within the said Town, in manner and form following; First, we do appoint, set forth, and declare, That the house called Westons, or by whatever other name or names the same is called or known, which heretofore hath been used to be a School-house, situate and being in the parish of All-Saints in the said Town of Colchester, and now being in the occupation of Edward Watson, Grammar School-master, shall be for ever hereafter the School-house of the said Free-Grammar-school within the said Town of Colchester, and so shall be for ever hereafter named and called: Within which School-house there shall be Sixteen Free Scholars taught and instructed in the art of Grammar for ever. And further, We the said Bailiffs and Commonalty for us and our successors, do at this present nominate, place, and authorise our beloved in Christ, Edward Watson, Master of Arts, to be the School-master of the said School, so long as unto us and our Successors shall be thought meet, and do assigne, limit, lay out, and convey all the Messuages, Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments hereafter particularly mentioned, being part of the premisses mentioned in the said Letters Patents, That is to say, All that capital Messuage or Tenement, with the backside and Rentarie thereto adjoining, situate, lying, and being in the parish of St Mary at the Wall in the said Town of Colchester, between the Tenement late of Robert Leach, Alderman, and now of Robert Brown, Gent. on the North part, and the Tenement late John Wells, Baker, and now of John Talcot in part, and the lands pertaining to the Parson of St. Maries aforesaid in part, on the South part; one head thereof abutteth on the Queen's high-way there, leading ing to Head-gate, towards the East; the other head thereof abutted upon the Walls of the said Town of Colchester towards the West. And Two acres of Land, more or less, lying in the said parish of St Marie at the Wall, between a certain place of old called the Wall-ditch, and now the Postern Ditch on the East part, and the Land once of John Fitzwauter, and late of the Earl of Suffex on the West part. And two Crofts of Land containing Eight acres more or less, lying by Green Tye in the hamlet of Mile-end, alias Myle-end, within the Liberties of the said town of Colchester, sometimes called Green-Tye-field, and Tyle-kiln-field; Whereof one croft, containing Four acres of land, of old called Godyeresland, lyeth in Mylend aforesaid, between the lands late of the Abbot and Convent of St Osyth, and now of Sir Tho. Lucas Kt, on the West part; and a certain lane or way leading towards Mile-end aforesaid on the East part: And the other Croft, containing four acres of land, lyeth in Myle-end aforesaid, between the land late of the said Abbot and Convent on the West part, and a certain grove, wood, or pasture, once Nicholas le Groffe on the East part. And also all that Croft of Land, containing Four acres of Land, more or less, lying in the Hamlet of Lexden, within the Liberties of the said town of Colchester, between the Lands and ground called Lexden-park, once John Fitz-wauter's, on the West part, and the way leading from Colchester to West Bergholt on the East part, and the field or meadow late Tho. Audley Gent. and after Edmond Markham Gent. on the South part. All which premisses, with their appurtenances, late were let to ferme to Robert Roger, and afterwards to Nich. Clere the elder, and now be in the tenure or occupation of Robert Stansted or his assigns, and be all together of the clear yearly value of Twenty Markes of good and lawful money of England, and above; To and for the maintenance of the said Free-school, and the School-master thereof for the time being, for ever. In witness whereof the said Bailiffs and Commonalty have to these presents set their common Seal of Bailiffs and Commonalty of the said town of Colchester. Dated at Colchester aforesaid, the 1st day of May in the 27th year of the reign of our Sovereign Lady Elizabeth, by the grace of God Queen of England, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith," &c. [Y].

The Reader hath undoubtedly observed, in perusing the Foundation-Deed immediately preceding, That the Messuages, Lands, Tenements, &c. wherewith the School was endowed, [and valued then at 20 marks] were All "as signed, limited, layd out, and conveyed, for "the maintenance of the said Free-school, and "the School-master thereof for the time being, "for ever;" and not a Pension only, or Annuity, granted or reserved out of them, for that use. Consequently the Master was intituled to the whole and extended Profits of those Messuages, and Lands, &c. But when the Rents came to be raised, though he had an unquestionable right to every part of them, he was, notwithstanding, forced to sit contented with his 20 marks: And the Magistrates of the Town (as honest as most other corporate Bodies) put the over-plus into their own pockets, or at least into their common stock [Z]. Thus the matter continued till K. William's reign, when complaint being made of the same to Dr. Henry Compton, Bishop of London (who, by Q. Elizabeth's patent, was to cause the profits of the premisses to be employed in the maintenance of the School, and of the Master) his Lordship filed a Bill in Chancery against the Mayor and Corporation in Michaelmas-term 1696, and on the 31st of October 1698 obtained a Decree. Still the matter remained unsettled, so that it was above fourteen years from first to last before the Bishop could bring it to a final issue [A]. At length the Mayor and Corporation were prevailed upon to part with the management of the School revenues, and to put them into other hands. Therefore, in pursuance of, and obedience to, the aforesaid Decree in Chancery, they enfeoffed (September 16, 1707.) by way of Lease and Release, Sir William Luckin [Y] Previous to this foundation, the following orders were made at an Assembly, 18 August 26th Elizabeth.

Imprimis, yt ys concluded, agreed, and ordered by the said Bayliffs, Aldermen and Commonaltye of the said Towne, that the howse called Westons, which hath byn used to be a Grammer Schole-howse, in the parishe of All-Saints, shall be purchased of John Christmas Gent. and that he the said John Christmas shall have for his right in the said house, of the Bayliffs and Commonaltye of the said Town, 20*l.* of lawful money of Ingland, and that the assuerance for the same howse shall be made by the advice of the Councell of the same Towne.

Item, yt ys agreed, that the said howse shal be the free Grammer Schole-howse of the same Towne, and that Edward Watson Master of Artes shal be Grammer Schole-master of the said Towne, duering the pleasure of the said Bayliffs and Cominaltye.—

Item, the said Bayliffs and Cominaltye have assigned and limited, and doe assigne and limitt, all that Capital Messuage or Tenement with the Backyard, the Rentarye thereto adjoyninge, in the parishe of St Marye at the Walls, and two acres of land, lying by Wall-dytche, alias Posterne dytche, and three crofts of land, more or less, conteyning Twelve acres of land, more or lesse, lying and being in the Hamlets of Myle-end and Lexden; which sometime were lett to ferme to Robert Rogers, and late to Thomas Buffard, and nowe be in the occupation of Robert Stansted or hys assigns, to the use of the said Scholemaster and Schole, to Teache in the same free Schole-house Syxteen free-schollers, as by the writing thereof under the common Seale of the bailiffs and commonaltye of the saide Towne sealed ys set forth and declared.—

Item, at thys assemblye yt ys ordered, concluded, and agreed, by the said bayliffs and commonaltye, that from henceforthe the said Syxteen free-schollers, and all suche persones as shall be admitted to be free-burgeesses of the said Towne, shal be admitted, chosen, and allowed by the bayliffs, and fower Aldermen of the saide Towne for the tyme being, under their hands signed, and recorded; otherwyse the admittance, choyse, and allowance of such Scoller or persone to be voyde, and the Towne-clarke shall not enter, nor recorde any free-scholler, or free-burges, without suche admittance, upon payne of forfeitüre, for everye suche entrye, or recorde made to the contrarye, 20*l.* and that everye suche free-scholler, to be so chosen, and allowed, shal be the sonne of a freburges of the said Towne, and borne within the libertyes of the said Towne.

[Z] The School-estate was leased in 1635 to Philip Neville for 34*l.* a year: And in 1643 to Tho. Neville for 32*l.* per ann. in consideration of his having laid out a great deal in repairs.

[A] From the Bishop's Letters, and other Papers (Penes me.) See Books of Assemblies, 11 Octob. 1693. 28 Jan. 1694. 17 Nov. 1696. 7 Apr. 1698. 1 Aug. 1699. 24 Nov. 1702. 13 Apr. 22 Octob. 6 Nov. 1706. 24 March 1706-7.

of Messing Bart. Sir Isaac Rebow Kt. Joseph Thurston, Hope Gifford, John Potter, Nathaniel Lawrence the younger, and Thomas Ruse of Colchester Esquires, in all those Messuages, Lands, and Tenements belonging to the Free-school: in Trust, that they should permit and suffer the Master of the said Free Grammar-school in Colchester for the time being, to have, possess, and enjoy the said Messuages, &c. and to take and receive the Rents, Issues, and Profits thereof to his own use (m). The whole Estate is now let for 45^l. per annum.

Statutes, Ordinances, and Constitutions, ordained, published, and declared by the Reverend Father in God John Lord Bishop of London, and Mr Alexander Nowell Dean of the Cathedral Church of St Paul in London (being by her Majesties Letters Patents under her broad Seal of England, for the erection of the Free Schoole in the town of Colchester, bearing date the 6th day of July, in the 26th year of her Higbnes most gracious Reign. hereunto especially appointed) the thirteenth day of January in the 29th year of the Reign of our said Sovereign Lady Elizabeth, &c. concerning the Schoole-master and Schollars of the Grammar Schoole in the Town of Colchester; and by the same Schoole-master and Schollars to be observed and kept.

IMPRIMIS, That the School-master of the said Schoole, shall be a Master of Arts sufficiently able to instruct and teach in Grammer Latine and Greeke, both in prose and verse, and to be of a sound and good Religion, void of all Papistry, chosen according to the foundation of the Town of Colchester: and within one month of his Election, or before hee do take the place upon him, hee shall, by their Letter, be presented to the Lord Bishop of London; and by him, or his Lordship's Chancellor, under his Seal, allowed as a publick Teacher. Unless sufficient matter, either for want of Learning, or of plain Speech, or evill behaviour in life and conversation, or evil Religion, shall be, before the said Lord Bishop, objected and proved against him. And he shall bring with him to the Bishop of London a sufficient testimony, either from the Master and Fellows of the College he commeth from (if he come from Cambridge or Oxford) or from two Justices of her Majesties Peace next adjoyning to the place he commeth from, if he commeth forth of the Country: and shall subscribe to the Articles of Religion confirmed by Act of Parliament, in the 13th year of her Majesty's reign.

2. Item, the Schoole-master, or the Usher by his appointment and in his absence, in the morning before he begin to teach, in the School-house where the School shall be kept, and every night before the Scholars shall depart; shall say the Lord's Prayer, the Confession of sins set forth in the beginning of the Booke of Common Prayer, the Articles of the Faith, and the Ten Commandments of Almighty God, with a short Prayer at the end for the encrease of Learning to his Scholars, one other for the Queen's Majesty, and for the good Estate of the Towne of Colchester: And all the Scholars to say those Prayers after him openly and audibly. Which Prayers shall be drawn up by the advice and direction of the Lord Bishop of London, or the Dean of Pauls. And being made and published under one of their hands, shall continually be used without alteration; and a Table of them, being fair written out, shall be upp in the Schoole.

3. Item, the Schoole-master shall every Sunday (except he have some reasonable lett) cause all his Schollars to go with him, to the Church within the said Town where the general Sermon is made, to the Sermon if there be any such; and there to continue decently, and conveniently in such place as shall be appointed for his Scholars to be in his sight during the time of Sermon: and on the Monday morning following to examine the same Scholars how they have profited by the Sermon. The Schoole-master shall also have regard that all his Scholars and himself shall go to the publick Prayers, every Sunday and Holiday, at Morning and Evening Prayers, and there shall continue the whole time of Common Prayer, and see that his Scholars shall well and reverently demean themselves there.

4. Item, that the School-master shall one day in the weeke reade unto his Scholars publicly in the School Mr Nowell's Catechisme, appointed by the Injunctions to be read in every Schoole, either in Greek or Latine according to the capacity of his Scholars, and shall in such sort examine them in it, as they may out of the same be able to yeeld a good account of their Faith.

5. Item, that the School-master and Usher shall, with soe many of his Scholars as shall by the publick preacher of the Town, if there be any, so found able to yield a sufficient accompt of their Faith and Religion, the first Sunday of every quarter of the year, present himself with them to be partakers of the Lord's Table, in that Parish Church which shall be appointed to the School: And if either himself, or his Usher, or his Scholars shall be found negligent herein, upon the third admonition given unto him in whom the default shall be, by the Bailiffs of the town (unless it be upon some reasonable excuse to be allowed of by the said Bailiffs) he, or they, in whom the default shall be found as aforesaid, to be removed from the place for ever.

6. Item, the Schoole-master shall teach in that Schoole the Grammer called the King's Grammer, and Latin and Greek authors both in prose and verse, such as he in his discretion shall accompt most profitable for the Scholars, avoiding, as much as in him lieth, those Authors which be rather nurseries of looseness of life and filthy behaviour, than meet for honest and chaste ears: And shall accustom his Scholars to translate out of one Language into another; and once every week at least to write Epistles, Theams, Orations, or Verses in Latine or Greek, as, their Capacitys considered, shall be thought best for exercising of them.

7. Item, the Schoole-master shall not take any Scholar into the said Schoole to be taught, except he can write, and read printed and written hand, before his coming thither.

8. Item, none shall be admitted or received to be a Scholar in the said Schoole, except he be of the age of Eight, and under the age of Twenty years; nor such as shall have any incurable or infective sickness or disease; or shall come from any company or place infected with the plague, where the plague hath been within four moneths before.

9. Item, the School-master shall make weekly Monitors, to visit the duties, manners, behaviour, and condition of the Scholars as well in the Schoole as in the Church and streets; and such as shall be found and presented in default, the said Schoole-master shall correct with reasonable correction, taking account of the Monitors every morning how they do look to the disorders of their fellows.

10. Item, where there is appointed by the Bailiffs and Commonalty of the said Towne of Colchester Sixteen free Scholars born within the said town of Colchester or Liberties of the same, and being the children of Free-burgesses of the same, to be taught and instructed in the same Schoole: The said School-master shall have most care to instruct and profit the same free Scholars, and to prefer them in places and formes in the School according to their capacities and learning, if they be found either to profit better in learning, or as well as their other Schoole-fellows.

11. Item, the Scholars which shall be taught in the said Schoole shall be present there at the Schoole by seven of the clock in the morning, in the winter time; and there to remaine untill eleven of the clock before noon, and then to dinner: And to be at Schoole again by one of the clock at afternoon, and there to remaine until five of the clock at night. And in summer to begin at six of the clock in the morning, and to leave at five of the clock at night, keeping the other howers as before. And from the 20th day of October unto the 1st day of March shall be accounted winter, and from the 1st day of March until the 20th day of October shall be accounted summer-time. And if any of the said Scholars do breake the same howers in coming to Schoole (having not lawfull lett) the Schoole-master shall minister to such Scholars reasonable correction.

12. Item, such of the Scholars of the said Schoole as be reasonably able to speak and understand the Latine tongue, shall always, as well in the Schoole as all other places, speak and talke th' one to the other, in their communication and talk, no other Language, save Latine or Greeke, as their knowledge shall be. And if any of them offend to the contrary, to be reasonably corrected therefore by the School-master. And the Monitors afore spoken of, to have a speciall charge to look straightly thereto: And those Monitors to be appointed, such as are able to find fault, if any false Latin shall be spoken, and to correct the said false Latine spoken by their fellows. Wherein the Schoolemaster is to have a great care, that he train up his Schollars as well to speak good and pure Latine, as to speak quicquid in buccam venerit, least the custome of speaking false Latine in their young years, draw them from pure and good Latine, when they should have most use of it.

13. Item, the School-master shall not have in the same Schoole, at any time together above Threescore Schollers. And if it shall happen to be above that number at any time, the Schollars that pay for their schooling, and do last come to the same School, shall be removed and refused afore any of the Free-schollars.

14. Item, the Archdeacon of Colchester, for the time being, if he be resident within a dozen miles of Colchester, and such two publique allowed Preachers as the Bailiffs of the Towne shall bring with them, in the presence of the same Bailiffs, accompanied with any other learned man which they shall bring with them, twice every year, that is to say, the 26th day of March, and the 26th day of October (if it be not Sunday) repair to the Schoole, and examine the said free Schollars, how they do profit; and if they find any of them not profiting in learning, and not of capacity therefore, the School-master having faithfully performed his duty, the same Scholars so found not profiting, and not of capacity for learning, to be removed, and their places supplied with others more apt therefore.

15. Item, the said Schoole-master, when any place of any of the said free Scholars shall be voyd, shall, within fourteen days at the furthest, next after such avoydance or departure of any such free Schollars, and after that the said Schoole-master shall have knowledge or understanding of it, give knowledge thereof to the Bailiffs of the said town of Colchester, to the end they may supply the same place, or places, with others: Upon pain that the said Schoole-master shall forfeit to the said Bailiffs for the time being to the use of the Poor of the said Towne, for every such free Scholar so wanting, and not knowledge thereof given as aforesaid, Ten shillings of lawfull Money of England.

16. Item, the Bailieffs of the said Towne for the time being, shall from time to time, oversee the said Schoole, and see and cause the said Laws and Orders to be duly observed in every article and point.

17. Item, that no Scholler shall at any time be rebellious or disobedient to the Schoole-master, or the Usher, but shall with good obedience be ready to perform all his precepts and commandments, upon pain of grievous punishment, and expulging out of the same Schoole.

18. Item, that no Scholler of the said Schoole shall lodge or boarde at any common Inne, Taverne, Ale-house, or Tipling-house, within the said town of Colchester or Liberties of the same, except it be the Child, or Children, of any of the inhabitants or keepers of the said common Inne, Taverne, Ale-house, or Tipling-house.

19. Item,

19. Item, if any the said free Schollers doe absent himselfe from the Schoole by the space of three weeks in one year, (except it be for the cause of sickness) the same free Scholler soe absentsing himselfe shall be displaced, and another putt in his room or place.

20. Item, that the Statutes and Ordinances of this Schoole shall be openly and audibly read in the Schoole, by the Usher of the same Schoole, four times in the year: that is to say, Quarterly, the first Munday after the Feast of the Annunciation, the first Munday after the Feast of St John Baptist, the first Munday after the Feast of St Michael, and the first Munday after the Feast of the Epiphany, immediately after the meeting of the Scholars, in the forenoon of the same days in the School.

21. Item, if the Schoole-master shall, after he is placed, enter into the Ministry, and accept eyther of any Benefice, cure, preachershipp, either in the town of Colchester, or out of the town, another Schoole-master to be chosen by the Bailiffs of the said town, within six weeks after knowledge had thereof, and to be presented to the Bishop as by the first Article is appointed.

The third Statute being found, in proceess of time, some way or other inconvenient, was altered by the following order.

An Order made the 11th day of January 1638, by the Right worshipful Dr. Aylett, Commissary to the Right Reverend Father in God William Lord Bishop of London, and Official of the Archdeaconry of Colchester.

WHEREAS an Order was formerly made by the Reverend Father in God John late Lord Bishop of London, and Mr Alexander Nowell Dean of the Cathedral Church of St Paul London, in the 29th year of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, "That the Schoole-master of the Free-Schoole of Colchester, should every Sunday cause all his Schollers to go with him to the Church to the general Sermon, and there to continue decently and conveniently in his sight during the Time of the Sermon:" It is now thought fitt and ordered, That while there is no general Sermon, the Schoole-master, for fulfilling of the intent of the aforesaid Order, shall cause all his Schollers every Sunday and Holydays, to go with him to the Service and Sermon made at the parish Church whereto the Schoole belongs, and there see them quietly and soberly to behave themselves, during the time of Divine Service and Sermon, and shall examine them at times convenient after their return, what they have born away of such Sermon as they shall heare: And this we require the School-master from time to time to perform. Given under our hand, this 11th day of January, A. D. 1638.

Masters of the School.

1. Edward Watfon M. A. was, at the time of the Foundation, in 1585, appointed the first Master, during the pleasure of the Bailiffs and Commonalty [B]. He held it very little more than a year. For

2. Samuel Harsner, or Halsnothe, M. A. mention'd above under St Botolph's, was elected [C] in March 1586-7. But chusing rather to follow his studies at Cambridge, than the painful trade of teaching, he quitted it in November 1588, and retiring to Pembroke-hall, of which he was Fellow, applied himself to the study of Divinity (n). He endeavoured to have Marke Sadlington M. A. Fellow of Peter-house, for his successor; but in vain. For

3. William Bently M. A. educated at Shrewsbury-school, Fellow of Clare-hall, and then Master of a little School at Dedham (o), was ordered, on the 12th of November 1588, to be Master, if found fit. He was confirmed in that office, March 26, 1590, under the common Seal of the Towne, in such sort as Mr Halsnothe had the same, with all such duties and fees as were granted to the said Mr Halsnothe (p). It was impossible for any man to have ampler testimonials, or greater recommendations than he had, of which the originals are in my possession [D]. After having enjoyed this School about ten years, it became vacant by his death or otherwise. Whereupon

4. William Kempe M. A. born in London, and educated at Eaton-school, and Peter-house in Cambridge, was elected 18 Decemb. 1598. At his election he gave security, not to leave the School for four years next after his admission, without the Bailiffs licence (q). He had for competitor Hilkieah Crooke, who was recommended by the most learned Alexander Nowell [E]. He died April 22, 1637, aged 68, (n) From his own letters; and from a Letter of W. Hawes Rector of Lawford.

the same Mr Bentley's Letters. (p) Book of Assemblies. (q) Ibid.

(o) From W. Hawes's, and

[B] He had been appointed, 10 Janu. 1582-3, the Grammar-school-master of this town, till the Michaelmas following; and in the mean time, no inhabitant of the town or Liberties to send their children or servants to any other Grammar-school-master than him, upon pain of forfeiting 20 s. Nor any other person to teach a Grammar-school within the town, &c. upon pain of imprisonment. Book of Assemblies.

[C] His Testimonial from the College was as follows.
"Our Commendations remembred, &c. Whereas we lately received Letters from you touchinge Mr Harsner fellow of our Colledge: We thoughte good in tyme convenient to make aunswer to the same. Thes therefore may certifie you concerning those pointes you requested of us, namelie his sufficiencie to teache in the Latin and Greek Tounes as well proase as verse, with his honest behavioure and conversation; that we do knowe and promise in his behalse, that he is very meet, able, and sufficient to performe those Duties, as alsoe of a good name, and honest conversation amonge us. In signification whereof we the President and Fellowes of the Colledge have severallie subscribed our names to thes our Letters, and so with our hartie commendations we wishe you farewell." From Pembroke-hall the thirde of May Anno 1586. Henry Farr, Lancel. Andrewes, Robert Robinson, Henrye Golde, Samuel Farr, Richard Harvey, Roger Dod, John Beauchampe, John Gravel, Paul Birkbeck, Thomas Pechie, Nicolas Felton, Thomas Mudd, Richarde Strete, Henry Brampton, Ralphe Rowby, Wil. Tubman.

[D] There is one, among the rest, written by Sir Thomas Darcy Kt. and another signed by Roger Goade Master of King's College, William Whitaker Master of St John's and the King's Divinity-reader, Laurence Chaderton Master of Emanuel College, and Andrew Downes the University Greek Reader.

[E] But, upon the examination of Dr Harris, Dr Cor- and and was buried the next day in All-Saints-Church. Before his decease, one

5. Mr. Proft appears to have been in poffeffion of it; in ejecting him out of which, the Mayor and Commonalty were at fome trouble and charge [F]. But, April 24, 1637, Mr Knowles the Town-preacher was desired to nominate a learned and able scholar to be the Free-school-master of the Grammar-school of this town, (to be approved of by the Mayor, Aldermen, and common Council, or the greater part of them :) Accordingly he nominated (r)

6. William Dugard, M. A. educated at Sidney-college in Cambridge, and heretofore master of Stanford-school, a most excellent scholar [G]. He was elected 27 July 1637, by the Mayor and Commonalty, with one mutual consent and agreement; and was to be presented to the Bishop of London for his approbation, and to enter upon the school at or before the Michaelmas-day following; which he did September, 9, 1637. Before his admittance, he gave security to the Mayor and Commonalty (s), for his continuance, and attending the School without departure from thence without the license of the Mayor for the time being, during the term of Four years next after his admittance. He not only brought the school into a most flourishing condition; but also made several useful repairs and improvements about the School-house [H]. Notwithstanding which, he met with so much ingratitude and unkind usage, though many persons of the highest eminence interposed in his behalf [I], that he was fain to be content to resign his place Jan.

17, 1642-3: Upon condition, the Mayor and Commonalty should pay him what he had truly disbursed about the house, with a competent allowance for his prejudice in removing: all which amounted, according to his computation, to 100 l. which was paid him (t). Shortly after his removal, in 1643, he was chosen Head-master of Merchant-Taylor's-School, London. His successor here, was

7. Thomas Waterhouse, M. A. born in London, and educated at the Charter-house, and Emmanuel-college Cambridge. He was elected June 30, 1643, upon the same conditions as Mr Dugard (u).

8. Nathaniel Seaman, M. A. of Ipswich, was the next; chosen February 7, 1647-8 [L]. He laid out a good deal in repairing the School; but resigned it 24 June 1659, when Mr Coppin was recommended by Mr Archer the late Town-Preacher (w); but probably he did not accept of it. For

9. John Ruting, or Ruten, M. A. was elected June 24, 1659, and possession was given him of the School-house, &c. which one Mrs Cotton endeavoured forcibly to keep. Upon his accepting of the Rectories of St Leonard and Greenstead in this town, he resigned the School Novemb. 11, 1662. And, the same day,

10. Edward Burles, M. A. was unanimously chosen in his room. He resigned at Lady-day, 1664. And, the 7th of June following,

11. Lewis Griffin, M. A. a poet, and an ingenious, but not a very regular, man, was elected [L]. By his acceptance of the Rectorry of Greenstead, 16 Januar. 1666-7, the School

(r) Book of Assemblies.
(w) Ibid.

(s) Ibid.

(t) From his own bills, and Papers.

(u) Book of Assemblies.

bett, and Dr Duke, Kempe was best approved of. (Book of Assemblies.) As it may be a pleasure to the Reader to see the recommendation of so great a man as Dr. Nowell, I shall insert it here. "After my verie hartie commendacions unto yow right woorthippfull. Wheras Helkiah Croke is an humble suiter unto yow, for the Schole Masters place in your Citie, beinge now voyde, and as I understande Mr Doſter Bright, Mr D. Hutchinſon, Mr Charke, Mr Egerton, Mr Haward, Mr Brooke, and others, men both of great learninge, and godlynes, have commended hym unto yow as a man right for that office: I, though unacquainted myſelfe with the yonge learned man, yet I thinke that the commendacion of ſoe manie, wife, and worthie men, ſhould be a teſtimonie ſufficient unto yow for the admittinge of hym unto the ſaid place. And ſo I ende, commending yow all, and your whole Citie, to the moſt bleſſed keepinge and proteſtion of Almightye Godd. 7^o Dec. 1598. Your woorthippis aſſured in Chriſte, Alexander Nowell."

[F] This appears only from the following original paper in my possession. "At the Audite daie in the Moot-hall the ſeacond daie of January Anno Dni 1638. p^{re}ſent Mr Furlie Mayor,—and eight Aldermen and others—it was agreed that the twentie poundes (the remainder of the ſowerſcore poundes received of the Duch) and remaininge in Mr Barrington's hands, ſhall bee paid to Mr Harriſon in full paiement of thoſe moneyes be diſburſed about the puttinge out of Mr Proft from beinge Schoolemaſter of the free Grammar-ſchoole of this towne. John Furlie Mayor," &c.

[G] For a further account of him, ſee Stow's Survey of London, with Strype's Addit. edit. 1720. Vol. I. p. 170. 203. and Biographia Britannica.

[H] He built a fire-room, and a ſtudy over it adjoining to the School: and did other great and uſefull repairs about the whole houſe, to the amount of above 71 l. which the Corporation repaid him. (From his Bills.)

[I] A letter was ſent to the Mayor and Aldermen in his favour, ſigned by the Earls of Manchester and Exeter, Sir Harbottle Grimston and his ſon, Peter Wentworth, Tho. Cheek, J. Wray, Tho. Mountagu, &c. dated Jan. 6, 1642, and of which theſe are the contents, "Gentlemen, Wheras wee are informed of the faithfullnes and integrity of Mr Dugard Schoolemaſter at Colcheſter, and of his good affection to his Maſteſtie, the which he hath manifeſted by lending xx l. whenas yet he hath received but xvi l. per ann. (as a ſtipend) from you; And is further ready to ſpend both life and livelyhood in the publique cauſe, And therefore may juſtly expect from the Parliament proteſtion in all his juſt rights and priviledges, and encouragement and maintennance from you. And whereas wee are alſo informed, That a diſaffected party in the Towne, intend ſhortly to ſett up another unneceſſary Schoolemaſter to teach Grammar in the ſame Towne, Whereby wee conceive their ayme is to take away the livelyhood of the ſayd Mr Dugard, and to raiſe factions and diviſions, and to foment diſtractions and contentions which muſt needes breed great diſturbance in your Towne, To prevent which inconveniencies, wee, whoſe names are ſubſcribed, at the humble requeſt of the ſaid Mr Dugard, doe recommend the conſideration of his caſe unto you who are the Governors of the Towne, And doe deſire you to take order, that no other Schoolemaſter may be admitted to teach Grammar there, ſo longe as the ſaid Mr Dugard ſhall continue faithfully to diſcharge his duty in his place." —However their recommendations had no effect, as appears by the following entry in his regiſter-book, "Εκριναι ſὺν Θεῷ (διὰ) τὰς τῶν διαβαλλόντων βλασφημίας τῷ ἔργῳ ἀπολύεσθαι, καὶ ἐν τῷ ἀγαθοποιεῖν φεμὲν τὴν τῶν ἀφρόνων ἀνθρώπων ἀγνοσίαν.

[K] He was afterwards Rector of Weſt Bergholt, near this town. See R. Newcourt Vol. II. p. 57.

[L] See W. Winſtanley's Lives of the Engliſh Poets, 8^o. p. 204. He was born in Rutlandſhire, and educated at Cambridge. With Greenſtead he held St Nicolas and St Giles by Sequeſtration. (Certificates penes me.)

became voidable; However he held it till 17 July 1671, when

12. James Cranston, M. A. of Boxford, was chosen, and presented to the Bishop of London, visitor of the School, for his allowance and approbation, as his predecessors and successors were (*).

He enjoyed it till Novem. 21, 1684, when

13. William Slinger, M. A. was elected. He became, 4 Febr. 1686, Rector of East Doniland; and 15 Octob. 1692, Rector of Layer-Breton (x). Notwithstanding which, he kept the School, till September 23, 1695, when

14. Richard Reynolds, M. A. recommended by the Bishop of London, was chosen [M]. He was a good and diligent Master; and enjoyed the School about seven years. His successor

15. Thomas Allen, B. D. of St John's college Cambridge, was elected in 1702. He died in 1723.

16. William Turner, M. A. born in Leicestershire, and educated at Clare-hall in Cambridge, was the next Master; chosen April 18, 1723 [N], from Stamford-school in Lincolnshire, over which he had presided above 30 years. He died Jan. 24, 1725-6, aged 68. And, the 15th of March following,

17. David Comarque, M. A. educated at Bennet-college in Cambridge, was elected. Upon his accepting of the Rectory of Arlesford in this county, the School was declared vacant. And

18. Palmer Smythies, M. A. late Fellow of Sidney college, Cambridge, was elected December 20, 1727. He was, before his election, also Rector of St Michael's Mile-end, and Master of St Mary Magdalen's hospital. Now living.

Foundations at Cambridge, belonging to this School.

Robert Lewis, formerly Fellow of St John's College, Cambridge, and for some time Preacher at St Peter's in this Town, and Mary his wife; who were both born and brought up in Colchester; did intend, and the said Mary, by her will dated Octob. 12, 1620, did give One hundred pounds to the use of the said College [O]: Which sum, in the judgement of the Master and Seniors of that College, William Beadle preacher at Horningherth in Suffolk, and Thomas Thurston of Colchester, executor of the said will, might be employed and put to the best use for the College, by founding a Scholarship therein, for the maintenance of a Scholar for ever. Now, as there was a Free-school in this Town, which was always likely to afford hereafter sufficient Scholars for the supplying of that place of a Scholar; And the Bailiffs and Commonalty being desirous to give encouragement to the Scholars of this Free-school to apply themselves to learning: Therefore the said Bailiffs and Commonalty, for and in consideration of the abovesaid sum of 100*l.* received of Thomas Thurston the executor aforesaid, to the use of the College; Did, for them and their successors, give, and grant to the said Master, Fellows, and Scholars, and their successors for ever, one Annuity or yearly Rent of Seven pounds; issuing out of all their Messuage, or Tenement, and all the houses, barns, stables, yards, orchards, lands, and pastures, containing Eleven acres one rood and half a rood; and one grove or wood, containing Nine acres, belonging to the said Bailiffs, and Commonalty, called Marks; lying and being in the Hamlett of Mile-end, within the Liberties of this town, and then in the tenure and occupation of John Brincklye. To have, receive, and enjoy the said Annuity of Seven pounds unto the said Master, Fellows, and Scholars, and their successors for ever, for and towards the maintenance of the said Scholar. To be paid within the said college, to the senior Bursar of the same, for the time being, at the two Feasts of St Michael the Archangel, and the Annunciation of the Virgin Mary, by equal portions. And if the said yearly Rent, or any part thereof, should be behind or unpaid by the space of 40 days after either of those feasts whereon it ought to be paid; the Bailiffs and Commonalty to forfeit and pay for every such default 20 shillings, as a penalty to the said Master, Fellows, and Scholars. And, if the said arrears of rent, and penalty, were behind and unpaid 20 days more next after the said forty days; then the Master, Scholars, and Fellows, and their successors, to enter into the said Messuage or Tenement, and all other the premises; and the same, and every part and parcel thereof, to have, hold, and enjoy to them and their successors for ever, to the uses and intents therein limited and expressed.

Upon a vacancy, the Master and Seniors of the said College are to make choice of a Scholar, formerly of the Free-school of Colchester, and the son of a Free-burgess of the same Town; if they have any such within their College, and qualified according to their statutes. But if there be none such in that College; then it shall be lawfull for the Bailiffs, and the general Preacher, of the Town of Colchester, and the School-master of the Free-school there for the time being, or any three of them, to nominate and present to the Master and Seniors of the said College, a sufficient Scholar of the Free-school of Colchester to succeed into the said place [P]. This Annuity is now paid by the (*) Book of Assemblies, and other MSS. from which all the above particulars are extracted; and from Mr. Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 174. 287.

(x) Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 215. 376.

[M] His Salary, the two first years, was 40*l.* per ann. and afterwards 32*l.* being what the School-estate was then let for (MS. Account, and Lease.)

[N] The School-house was repaired in 1723, a cellar dug, and a new floor laid over the East part of the School, even with the floor over the West part.

[O] She died in the parish of St Peter's in this Town.

[P] This was settled Sept. 13, 1622, by Indenture between the Bailiffs and Commonalty of the town of Colchester on the one part; and Owen Gwyn D. D. Master of the College of St John the Evangelist in the University of Cambridge, and the Fellows and Scholars of the same college, on the other part.—Thomas Newcomen was the first scholar upon this foundation, being nominated by the Bailiffs and Commonalty.

heirs of Mr Bernard the Lessee of the Severalls, according to the Covenants in his Lease.

Ambrose Gilbert S. T. B. by his Will, dated May 6, 1642. gave as follows, “Item, I bequeath Marsh-house in St Osith in Essex, with all the Lands and Woods belonging thereunto, to the founding of a Fellowship and a Scholarship in St John’s College in Cambridge; and do appoint to be capable of these places, first the Gilberts, next the Torkingtons, then Colchester-school, lastly Orset, and Essex.” This Will was proved the 14th of June 1649.

§ 2. Charity-Schools.

CHARITY-SCHOOLS were first erected in this Kingdom, in the year 1688 [2]; which useful and commendable Example hath been since followed in most parts of the Nation. Among the rest, there were Two set up in this Town about the year 1708 or 1709; One of which contains at present 45 Boys, and the other 14 Girls; who are taught, and cloathed but not boarded.

The House wherein they are kept, was purchased with a hundred pounds, given by Mr Samuel Rush of London in 1711.

His widow, who was sister to the late James Boys of this Town Esq; having bequeathed by her Will to these Charity-schools, in 1741, the sum of Fifty pounds; there was in consideration of it, a brick Messuage, with a piece of Garden-ground adjoining thereto, in Stanwell-street, within the parish of St Giles’s, [or St Botolph’s, or one of them,] formerly parcel of the possessions of St John’s Abbey (y), settled upon these Schools for ever. And a conveyance was made of the same, in 1746, to Mr John Morley, Mr William Mayhew, Mr Isaac Boggis, the Rev. Palmer Smythies, Mr Edward Morley, and Mr William Naggs; in trust for these Charity-schools belonging to the Church of England in Colchester.

But the most considerable Benefactor to them, hath been

William Naggs of Colchester, Gent. who did, by Indenture dated July 20, 1747, enfeoffed Palmer Smythies, Philip Morant, George Kilby, and Thomas Halley, clerks, William Smythies surgeon, Isaac Boggies, Michael Hills, and William Cole, Merchants, all of Colchester; in a freehold messuage, and twenty five acres of land, lying in Wickham St Paul’s, in the County of Essex: and did also convey, at the same time, to the said Michael Hills three acres of land, being copyhold called Scryvens or Scrovens; one acre, called Pitt-acre; and one other acre called Tomes lands: In Trust, to apply the clear Rents and Profits of the said premises over and above taxes, repairs, and other necessary deductions, for and towards the putting out on apprenticeship two Boys every year out of the Church of England Charity-school in Colchester aforesaid, with any sum of money not exceeding Five pounds for each Boy: And to pay and apply the remainder of the said clear Rents and Profits to the Trustees of the same Charity-school for the time being, or their Treasurer, for and towards the teaching and cloathing of Four Boys in the said school, and for the better support of the same school [R].”

For the rest, these Schools are supported and maintained by subscriptions, and voluntary contributions.

The Master has 40*l.* a year salary, and a house and firing. The Mistress has a salary of 14*l.* a year, with a house and firing.

The Protestant Dissenters have also two small Charity-schools in this Towne; to which Arthur Winsley, Esq; bequeathed Three pounds a year, to be paid by his executor, for the maintenance of a Boy and a Girl in these Schools, as long as they are in being: The children to be put in by his executor, or in his default by the majority of the Trustees.

§ 3. Work-house.

THAT the Poor shall never cease out of the land; and that such Members of Society, as cannot maintain themselves by their own honest Labour and Industry, are not to be suffered to starve, but be charitably relieved by their fellow-members; is manifest not only from the Laws of God, but also from those of Nature and Reason.

This Maxim hath been always understood, and well practised in this bountiful and charitable Nation. Numbers of Poor have at all times abounded in our Towns, which much encreased within these two or three last centuries, in proportion as the people multiplied, and manufactures were brought in and encouraged. But, for their relief and maintenance, several usefull provisions and regulations were made; even long before Q. Elizabeth’s reign [8], when Laws were first enacted for the relief of the Poor in general.

We are assured, That our Abbies and Monasteries, assisted with the Benevolence and an-

(y) See Book II. p. 35. note [A].

[2] They were founded, with a view of opposing and defeating the pernicious Effects of the Seminaries set up by the Papists in K. James the II’d’s reign. The first Protestant Charity schools set up at Lady-day that year, were in Norton-Folgate London; and the blue-coat school in St Margaret’s Westminster. Bp Kennet’s Complete Hist. of England, Vol. III. p. 501.

[R] The Indenture was enrolled in Chancery, November 17, 1747.

[8] By Statute 23 Edw. iii. c. 7. Relief was to be given to those that could not labour.—Statute 17 Rich. ii. c. 6. enjoined, That upon the Appropriation of any church, the Diocesan of the place should ordain, according to the value of such Churches; a convenient sum of money to be paid and distributed yearly of the Fruits and Profits of the same Churches, by those that will have the same in proper use, and by their successors, to the poor Parishioners of the same Churches, in aid of their living and sustenance for ever.—From Statute 2 Hen. v. c. 1. it appears, that there were then Hospitals for the maintenance of impotent men and women, Lazars, men out of their wits, and poor women with child; and for the nourishment, relief, and refreshment of other poor people.—And by Statute 22 Henr. viii. c. 12. the Justices of every County, dividing themselves into several limits, were to give licence under their seals, to such poor aged and impotent persons to beg within a certain precinct, as they should think to have most need.

cient Hospitality of the Lords of Manors [T], till the time of the Reformation, were a sufficient provision for the Poor of this Kingdom (z).

But upon the suppression of the Monasteries, 27 Hen. VIII. c. 25. it was enacted, That all Governors of shires, cities, towns, hundreds, hamlets, and parishes, should find and keep every aged, poor, and impotent person, which was born, or dwelt three years, within the same limit, by way of voluntary and charitable Alms in every of the same cities, and parishes, &c. with such convenient Alms as should be thought meet by their discretion, so as none of them should be compelled to go openly in begging. And also should compell every sturdy vagabond to be kept in continual labour.—And that no person shall make any open or common dole, nor should give any money in Alms, but to the common boxes, and common gatherings in every parish, upon pain to forfeit ten times so much as should be given. And statute 3 and 4 Edw. VI. c. 16. enjoined, That maimed, fore, aged, and impotent persons, should be relieved and cured, and habitations provided for them, by the devotion of good people of that city, town, or village where they were born, or had dwelt three years.

By statute 2 and 3 Phil. and Mar. c. 5. Relief for the aged and impotent Poor of every parish, was to be gathered weekly of the charitable devotion of the inhabitants. And a remedy was provided where a Parish was not able to relieve the Poor therein, &c. [U].

Statute 5 Elizab. c. 3. ordained, That the poor and impotent persons of every parish should be relieved of that which every person would of their charity give weekly: And the same relief to be gathered in every parish by Collectors assigned, and weekly distributed to the poor; for none should openly go or sit begging. And if any parishioner obstinately refused to pay reasonably towards the relief of the said Poor, or discouraged others; then the Justices of peace at the Quarter-Sessions might tax him to a reasonable weekly sum, which if he refused to pay, they might commit him to prison. And if any parish had in it more impotent poor persons than they were able to relieve, then the Justices of the peace of the County might license so many of them as they should think good, to beg in one or more Hundreds of the same county.

By statute 14 Elizab. c. 5. Assessments were to be made of the Parishioners of every parish, for the relief of the poor of the same parish.

Notwithstanding these Laws, the Poor continued to be relieved by the voluntary Alms and the Charity of well-disposed persons (for the reception of which a Trunk, or Box, was set up in every church) or else by collections at the Church-doors [W], as is still practised (z) J. Shaw's Parish-law, c. 32. § 4. and several other authors.

[T] For they did not use to spend the greatest part of their time in London, and riotously or luxuriously waste their substance there; but were wont to reside mostly in their own Manors, and to keep hospitality and open house, upon many occasions.—To which must be added, That in many Wills there were very considerably bequests to the Poor—ad disponendum in erogationibus pauperum, ac aliis operibus caritatis—as the words generally were. And Ralph Fynche, founder of the Hospital abovementioned, left, To the poor in the four Wards of this town, at the day of his burial, by the order of his executors, 4 l. All his beer-barly, and four quarters of rye, to be distributed amongst the Poor of St Nicholas, by his executors and the honest men of that parish. He ordered his tenement and houses in St Mary's to be sold, and the money to be distributed amongst the Poor of the town of Colchester by the discretion of his executors. The residue of his goods, after legacies, gifts, and funeral charges paid, he ordered to be distributed amongst the poor people, and in deeds of charity, as his executors should think best.

[U] In pursuance of this Act, certain Ordinances were made by the Bailiffs, Aldermen, and Common Council of this Town, 15 February 1556-7, in the Mote-hall; Some of which are as follows. “1. It is agreed and condiscended by the hole house, that yf any of the seid chosen men of the parishes [in this town] do not associate and company themselves willyngly together, but do obstinately refuse to putt their helpe as well toward the order for the aide of the Poore, as other reformatiōns here under writen; that the same default beyng by the rest of his company complayned of to the Bayliffs, the same offender or offenders shall forthwith forfeit to the use of the Poore for every suche default x*s.* 2. It is further agreed, That the persons by them nominated of every parishe, shall have full powre and auctorite to Rate and assesse all and every person or persons inhabiting in their circuite, what porcion of money He or They shall pay from tyme to tyme and weke to weke, for and towards the provision of the seid poore. And that upon every refusall so by any manner of person whatsoever hereafter to be had or made ayenst thentent aforeseid; and the same being declarid to the Bailiffs for the tyme beyng, then the same Baillies immediately for ev'ry suche person so refusyng shall comytt him or them to prison, there to remayn tyll he hath fully paid his seid Rate, and such other porcion of money as shal be by the seid Bailliffs thought more condign for his fyne and ransom. And that to be employed to the use of the Poore in the circuite where suche defaulte shall happen to be doon; and no favor to be shewid by the seid Bayliffs upon suche offender, upon payne to be forfeited by the same Baillies as shal be thought mete by the seid house. 3. It is further agreed, that every and singular owner and owners of houses and tenements within the precinct of this town, shall not, after the daye of making this order, take or receyve into his or their houses, tenancies, or shoppes, or admitt to be their tenants, any straunger or straungers, to inhabit or dwell in the same; unless it shall evydently apere, that he or they, with their wiffs, or familie, by their handywork or goods, be able sufficiently, to lyve honestly and truly without begginge or bribing, upon payn to forfeit for every such one herin offending x*s.* to be employed to the use of the poore. 4. Item, they agre, that every house, warehouse, or shopp within the seid parishes, shal be rated by iii or iiij honest persons of the same parishe; And to pay by the year viii*d.* of the Noble, and no person to paye for any house that is rated at iii*s.* iiij*d.* and under by the yere. 5. Item, it is agreed, that yf any house stand vacant, yt then for that tyme shall paye nothing. 6. It is agreed further, that such persons as be appoynted to be Surveyors for the Poore, shall, in like manner, Rate all the Houses in every parishe by the yere, within the precinct where they dwell.

[W] Such Collections were made here by Warrant from the Bailiffs of this Towne, of which this was the usual form. “These are, in the Queen's Majesty's name, to will and command you, upon Sunday next in the afternoon, at the end of the general Sermon, to give your personal attendances at the Church-door of St — in Colchester, and there to ask, collect, and receive the devotion, charity, and benevolence of well-disposed people, resorting from the said Sermon, for and towards the relief of the Poor in this Town; and the same collection you continue by the space of four Sundays together. And the Money so collected, you pay over unto — Purfers of the said Collection for this year: Which shall not lay out any part thereof without our warrant. And, that at the end of the said four Sundays, you return this precept, with your weekly contributions thereupon en-in

in many countries: Until the 39th and 43d of Elizabeth, when Overseers of the Poor were appointed, and their manner of election, office, and duty, settled and limited by statute. Which method of Relief is still used in this Nation.

Under this new Law, the maintenance of the Poor of this Town was at first very easy, as appears by the Note below [X]; and so it continued for about 40 years: Of which these were the natural causes; A good Trade; Difference in the manner of living, from what it is now; Cheapness of provisions; Money going a great way; The Nation not so populous; Few or no Luxuries imported, or at least not dispersed amongst the poor; Not so great a number of Ale-houses, and incentives to vice and drunkenness; Few Taxes, and public Impositions, which being infinitely multiplied since, have greatly enhanced the Price of every thing.

But the unhapy Siege brought universal Distress and Poverty in this place. However Trade and Riches flourished amongst us again, till towards the end of K. William's reign, when the French influence at the Court of Spain prejudiced our Interest, and the Sale of our Woollen Goods there; and that crafty people began to steal our Wool, and to make manufactures of the same kind; and also to underwork and undersell us in many countries.

Thereupon our Poor grew so numerous and burdensome, that the Corporation found it necessary to present a Petition to the House of Commons in March 1697 (a), wherein they represented, "That this Burrough is very ancient, and consists of sixteen parishes, and is very populous, and a great trading Towne, and that the Poor in the said Corporation were very numerous, and did daily multiply, and idleness and disorders amongst the meaner sort of people here for want of Workhouses to employ them did daily encrease, to the great charge of the Petitioners (who already paid one half part of the rents of their lands and tenements they occupied here, towards the maintenance and relief of the poor) and also to the hindrance of the Poor themselves, which, if not speedily prevented, would tend to the impoverishment of the said Corporation, and inhabitants thereof in general. And finding, that, for prevention of such like abuses and disorders in the city of Bristol, an Act of Parliament was lately granted, for erecting Workhouses, employing their Poor, and for raising moneys for maintaining and upholding the same, which the Petitioners were sufficiently informed, proved to their great benefit and advantage: Therefore they humbly desired leave, to have a Bill brought in for redress and relief of the Corporation of Colchester, in like manner and form, and with as large and ample grants, liberties, privileges, and immunities to and for the purposes aforesaid, as were lately granted to the said Corporation of Bristol."

Accordingly an Act passed a°. 9 and 10 of William III. wherein it was enacted, "That from and after the 24th day of June 1698, there should be a Corporation to continue for ever within the Town of Colchester, and the Liberties thereof, consisting of the Mayor and Aldermen for the time being, and of Forty eight other persons; to be chosen out of the honestest, discreetest, and charitable inhabitants of the said Town and Liberties thereof, by the Four Wards in the Town, i. e. Twelve out of every Ward, and of such other charitable persons as should be elected and constituted Guardians of the Poor of the said Town: To be elected at a Court for that purpose to be held for every Ward, by the Mayor and Aldermen for the time being, or any Five or more of them, whereof the Mayor for the time being to be one, by the votes of the inhabitants of such Ward, or of the major part of them then present, and paying, or then rated at One penny per week or more [Y], in his own right, for or towards the Poor's Rate.—Which said Mayor and Aldermen, and 48 persons so elected and constituted, should be, and be called Guardians of the Poor of the Town of Colchester.—And, to the intent that all inhabitants of this Town, qualified for the said office of Guardians, might in their turns be, or have the opportunity of being, chosen thereto; It was further enacted, That in every Second year from thenceforth for ever, on the first Monday after the 24th of June, or within three days after, the Mayor and Aldermen should hold a Court for the respective Wards: At which time, the Clerk of the Work-house-Corporation should declare the Names of the first Six persons of each Ward, in the order as they were entred as Guardians in the Book, or Books, provided for that purpose; and thereupon those Six persons in every such Ward respectively should cease to be Guardians; and immediately a new Election should be made in the four Wards, by the like votes of such inhabitants thereof as aforesaid, of Six persons so qualified as above declared, to fill up the places of those first Six persons ceasing dorfed, &c. 1585, &c." The sums received each Sunday, were endorsed on the warrant in the following manner.

(a) Book of Assemblies, 2 March 1697.

	l.	s.	d.
Received 10 Novemb.	4	2	$\frac{1}{2}$
17 Novemb.		20	$\frac{1}{2}$
24 Novemb.		16
1 Decemb.	2	2
Sum.	9	5

[X] The Poor-rates for the year 1602, stood thus.

	l.	s.	d.
St Mary's	19	0	4
St Peter's	32	3	$0\frac{1}{2}$
St Runwald's	4	13	4
St Martin's	7	12	4

	l.	s.	d.
H. Trinity	10	7	2
St Nicolas's	18	11	4
All-Saints	10	3	$10\frac{1}{2}$
St James's	23	12	4
St Botolph's	25	0	0
St Giles's	39	19	4
St Mary Magdalen	2	16	4
St Leonard's	22	17	0

But they are so enormously increased since, that they amount at present in the parish of St Mary's to about 280*l.* per ann. and in the rest in proportion; except in St Runwald's, and the four country-parishes.

[Y] Limited afterwards to every Townsman, who paid to the Poor at the rate of Five pounds per ann.

to be Guardians; and an entry made of the Names of the persons so to be new elected, according to the Priority of their Elections.—But the said first Six persons, or any of them, thus ceasing to be Guardians, should be capable of being chosen again Guardians, if they would accept the same, and not otherwise; and so in every such second year for ever.—And for the better governing of this Corporation, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Guardians, or the majority of them, whereof the Mayor for the time being to be one, were authorized to meet yearly, on the 6th day of July, in the Moot-hall in this town, to elect and constitute out of and from amongst themselves these several Officers; a Governor, a Deputy-governor, a Treasurer, and Twelve Assistants, to continue in their office for one year next ensuing, and no longer; and then new ones to be chosen.—Also, the said Governor, or Deputy-governor, and in both their defaults Six of the Assistants for the time being, were from time to time, upon the second Thursday in every second month in every year, to hold a Court of the said Corporation in this Town, of One and twenty of the said Guardians at least: Which Court was to have power to ascertain what sums of money should be raised for the maintenance and employment of the Poor; so as that the same did not exceed what had been paid in this Town towards the maintenance of the Poor thereof in any of the three last years before the making this Act.” &c. But as the Act is at present suspended, and besides hath been printed several times, there is no necessity of giving a larger Extract of it here.

The money assessed by this Corporation, was gathered weekly by Two Collectors, who paid it into the hands of the Treasurer; and he distributed it weekly to two other Persons called Payers, who relieved the Poor according to each person's stated collection, or their particular emergencies, as the Assistants did, by Bills under their hands, order; which Bills were always produced as vouchers to prevent any fraud.

Two Chirurgeons were also employed, at a certain yearly salary, to take care of the Sick-Poor.

Since the suspension of the Act, this Town is in the same state with regard to the maintenance of the Poor as the rest of the Kingdom. But, besides the want of Equal Taxation, which is the justest method; and of late much spoken of, and much recommended; it is attended here with this inconvenience, or evil, that some of those parishes which have the most trade, or could best afford to pay towards the maintenance of the Poor, pay very little; while others that are in the by-lanes, and can have few or no advantages in the way of business, pay 8, 10, and 12 shillings in the pound.

This Workhouse-Corporation became indeed too much the Property of a few, who perhaps made too great an Advantage of it: And it also became a powerful Tool in the hands of those odious things, Parties. But, it might have been better amended, than destroyed.

I must not forget to observe, That long before this, there were Workhouses or Hospitals (as they were anciently called) erected in this Town, for the employment and maintenance of the Poor; particularly in the years 1594 and 1612.

The first was called, The Poore-house and Hospital in Colchester: And, for the relief of the Poor therein, the Guardian and Keeper of the same did, by protections by him and his deputy, collect the Benevolence of good people in sundry places; and gave Bond for the employing of the Money so collected for the relief, behoof, and use of the Poor in that hospital (b).

For the management of the latter, several curious Orders and Constitutions were made which are inserted in the Appendix [Z].

C H A P. IV.

§ 1. and 2. Antiquities, Roman Pavements, Coins and Medals, &c. found in and about Colchester. Account of the Tessellated Pavements now extant.

THERE are more Roman Remains in and about this Town, than in any other part of South-Britain [A]; nay I may justly affirm than in any other part of Europe out of the Italian dominions, wherein stood Rome, the center of Glory, and the Metropolis of that great Empire. For Here immense Quantities of Roman Bricks and Tiles are to be seen incorporated, or rather the chief Materials, in all our most ancient and public Edifices. The Town-walls, the Castle, and the Churches, are half-built with them, and in several parts thereof the Roman workmanship is also copied; as I have observed above (c). The Bricks are generally about eighteen inches long, eleven broad, and two thick; exceeding hard, and well-baked. And the Tiles are much more substantial than those at present used in our slight and trifling Buildings; which are in ge-

(b) From an old Bond, dated 16 Apr. 36 Elizab.

(c) Book I. p. 15.

[Z] N^o. XX.

[A] Especially on this side the rivers Tees and Ribble: So that, at Colchester you may be said to tread chiefly on Roman ground.—The many remains of Antiquity dug out of the Earth in this place, were taken notice of, many centuries ago, by Marianus Scotus, whose words come in very properly here.—Civitas inter eminentissimas numeranda [Colcestria scil.] si non vetustas, conflagrationes, eluviones, denique piratarum immisiones, varixque casuum afflictationes, omnia Civitatis memoralia deleviscent. Traditur tamen Helenam, quondam Imperii matrem, ex hac Civitate natam & educatam;—Conjicitur etiam ex his, quæ de terra fossiles eruerunt, tam ferrum quam lapides, tam æra signata quam ædificia sub terra inventa.

neral more calculated for the benefit of the workmen than of the owners.

The Supellex Romana of all kinds still abounds with us; hardly any places being dug up without discovering Urns, Vases, and Potterie of all sorts, or at least fragments of them: among which is a great deal of the fine glazed and red ware, resembling the beautifullest of those that come from China.

Sepulchral Urns, with the ashes therein, are likewise frequently found; as also Lamps, Rings, Intaglia's, Styles, Chains, and such other work [B]. A remarkable Sepulchral Urn in particular was taken up here some few years ago. It was a large Vessel, made of thick coarse light clay, containing twenty gallons: Within which there was an Urn of black earth, holding about two gallons; and having in it the ashes of a Roman Lady, as may be supposed, because there were also with it two bottles of clay for incense, two clay lamps, one metal vessel for ointment, and a speculum of polished metal, anciently used for a looking-glass. This apparatus undoubtedly belonged to a Lady, it being the custom among the Romans, to bury with the deceased such things as were dear to them while alive (d).

In 1738, just within St. Botolph's gate, were found several Urns, a Roman Lamp, some pieces of melted metal, and two coins of Domitian.

In the large field, on the South side of the London-road, opposite to the two wind-mills, was found, in 1753, a large Urn, 22 inches in diameter, 2 feet 4 inches deep, and containing about 14 gallons; in which there was a metal speculum, or looking-glass.

The 24th of March 1749-50, in Wind-mill field, near the west end of the Town, was found a leaden Coffin; not lying due east and west, but north-east and south-west. In it was a quantity of dust, but no bones, except very small remains of the back-bone, and the skull in two pieces. There lay near the head two bracelets, or picture-frames, of jet, one plain, the other scalloped, and a very small and slender one of brass wrought, and four bodkins of jet. The coffin was cast or wrought all over with lozenges, in each of which was an escallop-shell, but no date. Near it was found an Urn, holding about a pint, in which were two Coins of large brass; one of Antoninus Pius, and the other of Alexander Severus.

A little brass Mercury was also found here some time ago. It came into the possession of the worthy George Holmes Gent. Deputy-keeper of the Records in the Tower; who was so kind as to adorn this work with a representation of it. George Scott Esq; hath it now.

This Figure of Mercury was found at Colchester and was lately in the Custody of M^r. George Holmes now of George Scott Esq.

In 1739, there was found, in a gravel-pit near this town, a fragment of a small image seeming to be Venus; and a little Urn holding about half a pint.

§ 2. Next, As to the Mosaic or Tessellated Pavements; There is one in the Church-yard of St Mary's at the Wall, of which pieces are frequently discovered, when graves are dug in a quite fresh place. It seems to have been a very large one, or rather more than one Pavement; for the pieces discovered are at a considerable distance from each other.

There is moreover one, in the Cherry-garden belonging to the Rector of St Mary's, on the North side of the Parsonage; not many yards from the other.

There is also one in Berry-field, in St James's parish, of which part was discovered by George Wegg Esq; The tesserae were red, intermixed with many white ones, disposed in a star-like form.

Another was found on the South-side of the Red-Lion-inn, when part of it was converted into an iron-warehouse. A great quantity of the pieces were preserved, and set in an arbour in one of the gardens belonging to that inn.

Another was discovered just below the Castle hills.

When Dr. Daniell's house was rebuilding, one was found by the workmen; together with an earthen Urn, holding about a quart, and a metal one [C].

In the beginning of the year 1748, one was discovered in the garden of Peter Creffield, now of James Round, Esq; in the parish of H. Trinity. It was near three foot under the surface of the ground, [as the rest generally are,]

(d) See Dr. Con. Middleton's Antiq. p. 29.

[B] Many of them are in the possession of Charles Gray Esq;—Ebenezer Muffel Esq; had also some of them.

[C.] By the places where the Urns have been found viz. in St. Martin's parish; near St Botolph's gate; the and and red; only a few whiter pieces were intermixed, but not in any regular order. The breadth of it was about three foot, and the length fifteen; but it seemed to have been damaged on the sides. * In the earth which was flung up, there was the bottom, and other fragments, of a fine figured Urn of red earth; upon one of which fragments, was represented the head of Jupiter. There was also the bottom of another Urn found; and a coin of Constantine junior.

Near half of a very fine and elegant one was discovered, 12 May 1763, on the north side of the High-street, in a garden belonging to Mr. John Bernard, apothecary and chirurgion, late part of a yard of the Falcon and Queen's-head-inn. It consists of a border of red tesserae, or dies, each about an inch square, inclosing a curious workmanship made of lesser tesserae, black, white, two reds, and yellow, looking like a beautiful carpet. Mr. Bernard hath inclosed and covered it, in order to preserve it from the injuries of the weather. An exact drawing of it was engraved, and delivered with Lexden-Hundred, when that part of the History of Essex was published.

Near this, was found, either part of the same, or another, when a stable was pulled down, which was supposed to be an old Roman building. Many others have been undoubtedly found in divers places; that have been either slighted by the workmen, or of which no notice has been otherwise taken.

§ 3. Then, as to Roman Coins and Medals; immense Numbers, nay Bushels, have been found in and about this Town; and amongst them many gold ones of the higher Empire. Even the richest Cabinets in this Nation have been furnished from hence; of which a very large specimen may be seen in the late Earl of Oxford's Collection, where compleat series, both of brads and silver, were preserved (e). And hardly a Traveller of curiosity passes through this place, without enquiring after and purchasing some.

The following List will inform the curious and learned Reader, of what nature and value are those Roman Coins and Medals found in and about this Town: And, at the same time, will shew Mr. Camden's great mistake when he insinuates (f), that we have none here but of the lower Empire [E].

- A British gold coin, or of electrum. On one side, a horse coarsely done; under his belly
 * a star, 3 dots over his head, and a circle both before and behind him, with 3 dots in each.
 † r. Two half-moons, with 3 dots, on each side of them.

(e) Earl of Oxford's catalogue.

West-side of the Balkon-hill; and near Mr. Alexander Carter's Mill, it is a certain sign, that the Roman Town did not extend to those places. It stood more in the higher parts of the Town, as I have observed above.

 We have here no Roman Altars or Inscriptions remaining; except one found in 1763; which is to be imputed to the many Revolutions that have happened in these parts, as I have observed above. Besides this is so far from CUNOBILINE.

- au. CVNOB. A horse galloping.
 * r. CAMV. With an ear of corn.
 * æ. CVNOB . . . REX. Cunobiline's head.
 † r. A horse feeding; under him . . . MV.
 a. Cunobiline's head, without inscription.
 r. A pegasus, or winged horse. (R. T.)

Another.

- CVN. Cunobiline's head.
 r. A man on horseback, and under it.
 CAM. (C. G.).
 æ. CVNO. Within a laurel crown.
 * r. CAMV. Under a horse walking; extremely well done.
 æ. CVNO. Under a sphynx.
 * r. A man standing, with a dart or spear in his left hand.

CONSULAR.

- a. ANTON IMP III. The head of Antony.
 * r. PONT III VIR. Two hands joined.

Iulian Family.

- The head of Mercury, with a wing on the top, behind it a trident, and the sign of an ox; without inscription.
 * r. A victory in a triumphal carr, drawn by four horses, under it IVLI BURSIO. Above LXVII.

Lollian Family.

- The head of Liberty: behind it, LIBERTAT.
 * TAT.
 r. The Rostra; and above PALIANVS; not Palicanus, as printed in most books.

J. CÆSAR.

- a. The Emperor in a triumphal chariot, drawn by four horses. In the exergue CÆSAR.
 r. A victory, standing on the prow of a ship. A very fine medal.

M. ANTONY.

- a. The head of Antony, and behind it a lituus, denoting his Augurate. Without inscription.
 IIIVIR R. P. C. The head of the Sun, or Osiris, whose Deity M. Antony assumed in Egypt.

M. AGRIPPA.

- æ. M. AGRIPPA L. F. COS. III. The head of Agrippa, with a corona rostrata.
 * r. Neptune naked, holding a dolphin in his right hand, and a trident in his left.

AUGUSTUS.

- a. CÆSAR AVGVSTVS DIVI F. PATER PATRIAE.
 * TRIAE.
 r. C. ET L. CÆSARES AVGVSTI F. COS DESIG. PRINC. IVVENT.

(f) Britannia, in Essex.

being a rocky country, that Stones are very scarce with us. Now such Inscriptions are chiefly found in greatest quantities, in those parts of Britain wherein Stones are most plentiful.

[E] N. B.—au denotes the golden medals; a silver ones; Æ large brads; æ middle or small brads;—* are such as I have: The rest are in the curious Cabinet of Charles Gray Esq; † denotes the most valuable, or uncommon of the kind.

* Caius

Copy of a Tessellated
OR MOSAIC PAVEMENT,

Found about 3 Feet Under the Surface in the Garden of

M^r Jⁿ^o BARNARD Surgeon

at Colchester 1763.

D^r Ducarel,

F.R.S. and F.S.A.

gave this

Plate, 1764.

Dunthorne Delin^t

Larken Sculp. Leadenhall Street London.

A Scale of Feet

- * Caius and Lucius in their toga's, each a hasta pura in his hand, with the badges of their pontifical and augural offices, and two shields between them.

a. AVGVSTVS DIVI F.

r. An ox pushing with his horns. IMP. X.

æ. CAESAR AVGVSTVS DIVI F. PATER PATRIAE.

r. ROM. ET AVG. An altar or temple with two trophies.

a. The head of Augustus crowned with laurel, without inscription.

r. IMP. CAESAR. The Columna rostrata, with the statue of Augustus on the top.

TIBERIUS.

a. TI. CAESAR DIVI AVG. F. AVGVSTVS.

r. PONTIF. MAXIM. Livia in a Goddess's habit, holding a hasta pura, and sitting on a laurel.

DRUSUS.

Æ. NERO CLAVDIVS DRVSVS GERMANICVS IMP.

r. TI. CLAVDIVS CAESAR AVG. P. M. TR.

* IMP. A person sitting, holding in her right hand a laurel-branch, and in the left a scepter. In the exergue s. c.

ANTONIA DRUSI.

æ. ANTONIA AVGVSTA.

* r. A figure veil'd standing, holding a patera in her right hand. TI CLAVDIVS CAESAR AVG. P. M. TR. P. IMP. P. P.—S. C. The like in great brass.

C. CALIGULA.

Æ. C. CAESAR AVG. GERMANICVS P. M. TR. P. P. Vesta sitting, holding a patera in her right hand.

* r. A Temple, with an altar, ox, &c. and three persons going to offer sacrifice, being a representation of the Temple begun by Tiberius, and finished by Caligula, in honor of Augustus. s. c.

æ. C. CAESAR AVG. GERMANICVS PON. M. TR. POT. S. C.

r. NERO ET DRVSVS CAESARES. Two figures on horseback.

æ. ————

* r. Vesta sitting, over her head VESTA S. C.

TIB. CLAUDIUS.

Æ. TI. CLAVDIVS CAESAR AVG. P. M. TR. P. IMP. P. P.

* r. Pallas lifting up her right hand, holding a spear in her left.

æ. TI. CLAVDIVS CAESAR AVG. The Roman modius, or bushel.

* † r. TR. P. COS. II PON. MAX.

æ. TI. CLAVDIVS CAESAR AVG. P. M. TR. P. IMP.

* r. CONSTANTIAE AVGVSTI. Pallas armed, lifting up her right hand, and holding a spear in her left.

æ. another.

r. Pallas armed, holding a shield in her left, and a dart in her right.

æ. another.

r. SPES AVGVSTA. In the exergue s. c.

* A woman sitting, holding ears of corn in her right hand, and a burning torch in her left.

æ. TI. CLAVDIVS CAESAR AVG. P. M. TR. P. IMP.

r. CONSTANTIAE AVGVSTI. S. C.

* Pallas standing, in her helmet, with a spear in her left hand, and holding up her right.

æ. TI. CLAVDIVS CAESAR AVG.

r. s. c. A figure lifting up the right hand, and holding with her left a shield between her legs.

æ. TI. CLAVDIVS CAESAR AVG.

r. LIBERTAS AVGVSTA. A slave shaking off his chains.

NERO.

a. NERO CLAVD. DIVI F. CAES. AVG. GERM. IMP. TR. P. COS. The heads of Nero and Agrippina.

* r. AGRIP. AVG. DIVI CLAVD. NERONIS CAES. MATER EX S. C. The Emperor, sitting in a carr drawn by four Elephants, and holding a hasta pura; by him sits his mother holding a Legionary ensign.

The same medal as they have in gold at Maldon.

aur. IMP. NERO CAESAR AVGVSTVS.

r. SALVS. A Goddess sitting, and holding a patera in her right hand.

Æ. IMP. NERO CLAVD. CAESAR AVG. GERM. P. M. TR. P.

r. ROMA S. C. Rome sitting on spoils, holding a victory in her right hand.

æ. NERO CLAVD. CAESAR AVG. GER. P. M. TR. P. IMP. P. P.

r. The same as the former.

æ. IMP. NERO. CAESAR AVG. P. MAX. TR. PPP.

r. SECVRITAS AVGVSTI. A figure sitting, supporting her head with her right hand, and holding a spear in her left. An altar with a fire before her.

æ. IMP. NERO CLAVD. CAESAR AVG. P. MAX. TR. P. PP.

* r. GENIO AVGVSTI. The God Genius standing at an Altar with a patera in his right hand, and a cornucopia in his left.

SER. SULPITIUS GALBA.

a. IMP. SER. GALBA AVG.

* r. S. P. Q. R.

OB.

c. s. within an oaken Crown.

a. VITELLIVS. GERM. IMP. AVG. TR. P.

* r. LIBERTAS RESTITVTA. Liberty standing, holding a cap in her right hand, and a spear in her left.

a. Another.

* r. Without inscription. Victory sitting, holding a patera in her right hand, and a palm-branch in her left.

æ. IMP. DOMIT. AVG. GERM. In the middle s. c.

r. No inscription. A rhinoceros, with a double horn.

FLAV. VESPASIAN.

a. IMP. CAESAR VESPASIANVS AVG.

r. CAESAR AVG. F. COS. CAESAR AVG. F. PR.

† The heads of Titus and Domitian; the first of whom was Consul, and the latter Pretor with his father.

A a a

a. IMP.

- a. IMP. CAESAR VESPASIANVS AVG.
r. IVDAEA. A woman mourning under a trophy.
- a. CAESAR VESPASIANVS AVG.
* r. A sow and pigs. In the exergue, IMP. XIX.
- Æ.—VESPASIAN. AVG. P. M. TR. P. P. P. COS. IIII.
r. ROMA S. C. A figure standing.
- æ. IMP. CAES. VESPASIAN. AVG. COS. P. P.
r. FIDES. PUBLICA. S. C. A figure in a stola standing, holding a patera in the right hand and a cornucopia in the left.
- a. IMP. CAES. VESPASIAN. AVG. COS. III.
r. SECVRITAS AVGVSTA. Exergue s. c. A figure sitting, holding her head down.
- a. IMP. CAESAR VESPASIANVS AVG. A figure standing.
- æ. CAES. VESPASIAN. AVG. COS. VIII.
r. FORTVNAE REDVCI.
- a. DIVVS AVGVSTVS VESPASIANVS.
r. Two Goats between two Balls or Globes.

TITUS VESPASIAN.

- T. CAES. IMP. AVG. F. PON. TR. P. COS. VI. CENSOR.
r. ROMA. [A medaillon]
- a. T. CAESAR VESPASIAN.
r. ANNONA AVG. A figure sitting.
- a. IMP. T. CAES. VESP. AVG. P. M. COS. VIII. TRIB. POT.
* r. SALVS. AVG. S. C. The Goddess Salus sitting, and holding a patera in her right hand.
- a. T. CAESAR VESPASIANVS AVG.
r. PONTIFEX TR. POT. A figure sitting, holding a flower in her right hand, and a spear in her left.
- a. IMP. T. CAESAR VESPASIAN. AVG. P. M.
r. TR. POT. IX IMP. XV. COS. VIII. P. P.
† A Trophy, with two captives.
- Æ. TI. CAES. IMP. AVG. F. PON. TR. P. COS. VI. CENSOR.
r. ROMA. S. C. A Goddess standing, holding a little victory in her right hand, and a spear in her left.
- æ. T. CAES. IMP. AVG. P. TR. P. COS—
† r. VICTORIA NAVALIS. S. C. A winged victory.

DOMITIAN.

- a. CAESAR AVG. F. DOMITIANVS COS. VI.
r. PRINCEPS IVVENTVTIS. * The Goddess Salus standing and leaning on a pillar.
- a. IMP. CAES. DOMIT. AVG. GERM. P. M. TR. P. VIII.
r. IMP. XXI. COS. XIII. CENS. PPP. Pallas with a thunderbolt.
- æ. IMP. CAES. DOMIT. AVG. GERM. COS. XII. CENS. PERP. P. P. The Emperor's head with a radiate crown.
- r. FORTVNAE AVGVSTI. Fortune standing with a cornucopia in her left hand.
- æ. IMP. CAES. DOMIT. AVG. GERM. COS. XIII. CENS. PERP.
* r. VIRTVTI AVGVSTI
A military figure walking, with a spear in his right hand.
- æ. IMP. CAES. DOMIT. AVG. GERM. COS. XII. CENS. PER. P. P.

r. MONETA. AVGVSTI. S. C. A figure standing, being the Goddess Moneta.

C. NERVA.

- a. IMP. CAES. NERVA. AVG. GER. DAC.
r. IMP. II. COSS. IIII. P. P. Fortune
* fitting, holding a rudder in her right hand, and a cornucopia in her left. In the exergue FORT. RED.
- Æ.—RVA CAES. AVG. P. M. TR. P. COS.
† r. VEHICVLATIONE ITALIAE REMISSA. Two mules feeding.
The same in middle brads.
- Æ. IMP. NERVA CAES. TRAIAN. AVG. GERM. P. M.
* r. A figure sitting.

TRAJAN.

- a. IMP. TRAIANO OPTIMO AVG. GER. DAC. P. M. TR. P.
r. COS. VI. P. P. S. P. Q. R. Jupiter
* naked with his thunder-bolt, a small figure standing under it.
- a. IMP. TRAIANO AVG. GER. DAC. P. M. TR. P.
r. COS. V. P. P.—PRINC.
A figure in a toga standing holding a caduceus in her right hand.
- a. IMP. CAES. NER. TRAIANO OPTIMO AVG. GER. DAC.
r. PARTHICO p m. TR. P. S. P. Q. R. Mars holding a spear in his right hand, and spoils in his left.
- Æ.—NERVAE TRAIANO AVG. GER. DA.
r. S. P. Q. R. OPTIMO PRINCIPI S. C. The Emperor on horse-back, holding a dart in his right hand.
- Æ.— — — O AVG. GER. DAC.
r. ARABIA.
Æ. — — — — —
- r. PROVIDENTIA AVG. S. P. Q. R. S. C.
A figure in a stola, standing, her left hand leaning on a pillar, and her right stretched over a globe.
- æ. — — — — —
r. LIBERALITAS AVGVST. The Emperor standing, holding in his right hand a corn-measure, in his left a cornucopia.
- Æ. IMP. CAES. NERVAE TRAIANO AVG. GER. DAC. P. M. TR. P. COS. V. P. P.
r. S. P. OPTIMO PRINCIPI. S. C. A figure sitting, holding a patera in her right hand; an altar with a serpent before her.
- Æ. — — — — — COS V. P. P.
† Exergue ALIMITAL. The Emperor in his toga, standing, giving with his left hand Ears of corn to a little Image standing before him.
- æ.—The same with this reverse; A woman standing, holding a cornucopia in * her left hand, and a figure in a toga in her right hand.
- a. TRAIANO AVG. GER. DAC. P. M. TR. P. COS. VI. P. P.
r. S. P. Q. R. OPTIMO PRINCIPI. The Columna Trajana.
- æ. IMP. CAES. NER. TRAIANO OPTIMO AVG. GER. DAC. P. M. TR. P. COS. VI. P. P. A head surrounded with rays.
- r. PROVIDENTIA AVGVSTI S. P. Q. R. S. C.
æ. IMP. CAES. NERVA, TRAIAN. AVG. GERM.
r. S. P.

r. S. P. Q. R. OPTIMO PRINCIPI. A figure standing near a palm-tree.

æ. — — — — —

r. PARTHICO COS. VI. Exergue FOR. RED.

HADRIAN.

Æ. IMP. CAES. TRAIANVS HADRIANVS AVG. P. M. &c. The Emperor's head.

r. RESTITVTORI ORBIS TERRARVM.

* The Emperor standing, giving his right hand to a figure kneeling on one knee and crowned with towers, having a globe on her left knee.

a. ADRIANOC CEIB

* r. Jupiter standing upon Mount Casius. ΔΗΜΑΡΧ.

a. HADRIANVS AVG. COS. III. P. P.

* AFRICA. A figure sitting, with a cornucopia in her left hand, a sistrum in her right hand, and an elephant's proboscis on her head.

a. IMP. CAES. HADRIANVS AVG. The Emperor's head bare.

† PONT. MAX, Britannia standing. In the exergue BRITANNIA. A didrachm.

a. IMP. CAESAR. TRAIAN. HADRIANVS AVG.

r. P. M. TR. X. COS. III. A figure in a stola standing by an altar, holding a patera in her right hand.

Æ. HADRIANVS AVGVSTVS.

r. COS. S. C. A figure sitting, holding in her right hand a palladium, or a cornucopia.

æ. IMP. CAESAR TRAIANVS HADRIANVS AVG.

r. FORT. RED. On the exergue. Fortune standing, with a rudder in her hand.

æ. IMP. CAES. TRAIANVS HADRIANVS AVG. r. — — — COS. III. Exergue BRITANNIA. S. C. A woman sitting.

a. HADRIANVS.

r. The Emperor raising with his left hand a figure kneeling, with a rabbit before his feet.

RESTITVTORI HISPANIAE.

a. IMP. CAES. HADRIANVS AVG.

r. P. M. TR. P. COS. III. and below SALVS AVG. The Goddess Salus sitting.

a. — — — — —

r. an Eagle being his consecration-medal.

a. IMP. CAES. P. AEL. HADRIANVS AVGVSTVS.

r. TR. POT. XIII. COS. IIII.

* Fortune standing with a rudder in her right hand, and in her left ears of corn.

a. HADRIANVS AVG. COS. III. P. P.

* r. A woman standing, holding ears of corn in her right hand, and a cup in her left.

JULIA SABINA.

a. SABINA AVGVSTA.

r. VENERI GENETRICI. Venus in a pallium.

æ. SABINA AVGVSTA HADRIANI AVG. P. P.

r. IVNONI REGINAE. S. C. A figure standing, holding a patera in her right hand, and in her left a spear.

The same with Sabina's head finely dressed.

r. A Goddess sitting, holding a palladium in her right hand.

a. SABINA AVGVSTA HADRIANI AVG.

r. CONCORDIA AVG. And in the exergue S. C.

* A figure holding a patera in her right hand, and leaning with her left on the God Terminus.

Another much the same.

* r. Vesta sitting, holding a palladium in her right hand, and a staff or spear in her left.

ANTONINUS PIUS.

a. ANTONINVS AVG. PIVS P. P. TR. P. XVIII.

r. BRITANNIA COS. IIII. S. C. The figure † of the Province sitting on rocks on which she leans with her left hand; a standard and shield before her.

a. ANTONINVS AVG. P. P. COS.

r. TR. POT. COS. IIII.

Æ. ANTONINVS AVG. PIVS P. P. TR. POT. COS. III.

r. AVRELIVS CAESAR AVG. PII F.

The head of Aurelius stamped on the breast of his adoptive father Antoninus.

Æ. ANTONINVS AVG.

r. DACIA COS. II. The figure of a Province.

Æ. ANTONINVS AVG. PIVS P. P. TR. P.

r. S. C. The she-wolf with Romulus and Remus.

a. ANTONINVS PIVS P. P. M. XVII. S. C.

r. TR. POT. XX. COS. IIII. Jupiter standing, * holding a thunderbolt in his right hand, and a spear in his left.

a. ANTONINVS PIVS AVG.

* r. PONT. MAX. TR. P. XIII. COS. IIII. A figure sitting, with a cornucopia in her left hand.

a. ANTONINVS AVG. PIVS.

* r. COS. III. A thunderbolt upon a table.

æ. ANTONINVS PIVS P. P. TR. P. XVIII.

r. LIBERTAS COS. IIII. S. C. A figure standing, holding a cap in her right hand, and in her left a rod.

æ. — — — — —

r. GENIVS POPVLI ROMANI. S. C. A genius standing, holding in his right hand a spear, and in his left a cornucopia.

Æ. DIVVS ANTONINVS.

r. CONSECRATIO. An Eagle with wings expanded, standing on a globe.

a. DIVO ANTONINO. The head of Antoninus.

* r. CONSECRATIO. An eagle, with wings expanded.

a. DIVVS ANTONINVS.

r. CONSECRATIO. A funeral pile.

GALERIA FAUSTINA.

a. FAUSTINA AVGVSTA.

r. TEMPOR. FELIC. Faustina, with several children about her.

a. DIVA AVG. FAUSTINA.

* r. AETERNITAS. A figure standing, holding up her garment in her right hand, and a flambeau in her left.

a. DIVA AVG. FAUSTINA.

* r. PIETAS

* r. PIETAS AVG. A person standing by an Altar, and offering sacrifice.

M. AURELIUS ANTONIN.

a. IMP. C. AVRELIVS. ANT. AVG.

† r. PROVIDEN. DEOR. The God Genius offering a crown or garland to the Emperor.

a. M. ANTONINVS AVG. TP. P. XXVI.

* r. IMP. VI. COS. III. A figure sitting, holding a spear in his left hand, and a victory in his right; a shield by his side.

Æ. ANTONINVS AVG.

† r. SYRIA. A woman with a Tower on her head, holding a crown in her right hand, and in her left a cornucopia: a river at her feet.

a. AVRELIVS CAESAR AVG. PII F. COS.

r. PIETAS. Several Pontifical instruments.

æ. M. AVR. ANTONINVS AVG. TR. P. XXV.

r. s. c. Rome with an helmet, sitting on spoils, holding a palladium in her right hand, and in her left a spear.

æ. AVRELIVS CAESAR AVG. PII FIL.

r. — — P. III. COS. S. C. A figure with an helmet standing, reaching out the right hand, and holding a spear in the left, a shield behind.

Æ. ANTONINVS AVG. GERM. SARM. TR. POT.

r. LIBERALITAS AVG. VII. IMP. The Emperor standing, holding a congius or measure in his right hand, and a cornucopia in his left.

Æ. M. AVREL. ANTONINVS AVG. ARME-NIACVS. P. M.

* r. TR. P. XVIII. IMP. II. COS. III. The Emperor in his helmet, and with his vest, or paludamentum, on; holding a spear in his right hand, and a shield in his left.

Æ. M. AVREL. ANTONINVS AVG. TR. P. XXXI.

r. FELICITAS AVG. IMP. VIII. COS. III. P. P. s. c. A figure in a stola, standing, with a spear in the left hand, and a caduceus in the right. [A medaillon]

æ. The head of Aurelius on one side; and
* the head of Antoninus Pius on the other.

ANNIA FAUSTINA.

Æ. FAUSTINA AVGVSTA.

r. HILARITAS. A woman holding a branch in her right hand, and a cornucopia in her left.

æ. FAUSTINA AVG. PII AVG. FIL.

r. FELICITAS S. C. A figure standing, holding a globe in her right hand.

æ. FAUSTINA AVGVSTA.

r. FECVNDITAS. A figure standing, holding a spear in her left hand, and a little image in her right.

Æ. FAUSTINA AVG.

* r. TEMPOR. FELIC. A woman standing, holding a child in each arm, and four more standing by her, two on each side.

L. AURELIUS VERUS.

AVREL.

s. c. The Emperor joining hands with a woman; a star between them.

æ. IMP. CAES. L. AVREL. VERVS AVG.

r. FORT. RED. TR. POT. S. C. Fortune sitting, holding an helmet in her right hand.

ANNIA LUCILLA.

æ. LVCILLAE AVG. ANTONINI AVG. F.

r. HILARITAS. S. C. A woman holding a palm-branch in her right hand, and in her left a cornucopia.

æ. LVCILLA AVGVSTA.

r. VENVS. A figure standing, holding an apple or a globe in her right hand.

a. LVCILLA AVGVSTA.

r. IVNO LVCINA. A figure in a stola, standing, and holding in her right hand a patera, and a spear in her left.

LVCILLA AVGVSTA.

Æ. r. FECVNDITAS. AVGVSTA. Lucilla sitting, and having a child in her arms.
[A medaillon]

Æ. LVCILLAE AVG. ANTONINI AVG. F.

* r. IVNONI LVCINAE. A woman sitting, holding a flower in her right hand, and a child in her left. A medaillon.

M. AUR. ANT. COMMODUS.

Æ. L. AVREL. COMMODVS AVG. TR. P. III.

r. LIBERTAS AVG. IM. XII COS. P. P.

s. c. A figure of Liberty.

Æ. M. COMMODVS . . .

A figure sitting on rocks, holding a shield in her left hand. An emblem of Britain.

Æ. COMMODVS —

r. TR. P. IIII COS. . . . S. C. A figure standing, a globe at her feet.

a. L. AEL. AVREL. COMMODVS AVG. P. FEL.

r. TR. P. XVII. IMP.

CRISPINA AUGUSTA.

Æ. CRISPINA AVGVSTA.

r. LACTITIA. A figure standing, holding a crown in her right hand; and a helm on a globe, in her left.

æ. CRISPINA AVGVSTA.

r. IVNO LVCINA. A figure standing, holding a patera in her right hand, and a spear in her left.

CLODIUS ALBINUS.

a. IMP. CAES. D. CLO. SEP. ALB. AVG.

r. PAX AVG. CO.

æ. D. CLOD. SEPT. ALBIN. aug.

r. . . . COS. A figure standing, holding a branch in his right hand, and in his left a shield and spear.

L. SEPTIM. SEVERUS-PERTINAX.

Æ. L. SEPT. SEV. PERT.

r. . . . S. C. Mars holding a little Victory in his right hand, and a spear in his left.

æ. . . . KA. ΣΕΠ. CΕΡΕΡ.

r. A castle, which a soldier is fortifying.

a. L. SEPT. SEV. AVG. IMP. XI. PART. MAX.

r. FORTVNAE AVGG. A figure standing, and holding a cornucopia in her right hand, and a spear in her left. An altar before her.

SEPT. SEV. PERT. AVG.

r. P. M. TR. P. VI. COS. II. P. P. Hercules encompassed with rays, carrying the Lion's skin.

a. SEVERVS

a. SEVERVS PIVS AVG.

r. FELICITAS PVBLICA. A figure standing, holding a Caduceus in her right hand, and a cornucopia in her left.

a. SEPT. SEV. AVG. IMP. XI. PART. MAX.

† r. IOVI. CONSERVATORI. Jupiter sitting, holding in his right hand a little Victory, and a spear in his left.

æ. ———

r. Profectio AVG. The Emperor on horseback with a spear in his hand: setting out against Albinus.

a. L. SEPT. SEV. AVG. IMP. XI. PART. MAX.

r. FORTVNAE AVGG. A figure standing, holding a cornucopia in the right hand, and a spear in the left. An altar before it.

a. SEVERVS PIVS AVG.

r. P. M. TR. P. XIII. COS. III. P. P. A figure offering a sacrifice.

a. SEVERVS AVG. PART. MAX.

r. MART. AVGG. Mars standing, holding a little victory in his right hand, and with the left leaning on a shield.

a. SEVERVS PIVS AVG.

* r. TR. P. XIII. COS. III. P. P.

Jupiter naked, holding a spear in his left hand, a thunderbolt in his right; and below is his eagle.

JULIA PIA.

a. IVLIA PIA FELIX AVG.

† r. LVNA LVCIFERA. A Didrachma.

a. IVLIA PIA FELIX AVG.

r. IVNO. S. C. Juno standing, a Peacock before her.

a. IVLIA DOMNA AVG.

r. ——— VICT. another.

r. Veneri VICT. Venus standing, half-naked.

a. IVLIA AVGVSTA.

† r. MATRI CASTRORVM. A woman sitting, holding a globe in her right hand, and in her left a spear; at her feet military ensigns.

a. another, with the same inscription.

r. HILARITAS. A woman standing, holding a palm-branch in her right hand, and a cornucopia in her left, to denote the fruitfulness of Julia.

a. another.

r. SAECVLI FELICITAS. A woman standing on the prow of a ship, with a child on her left arm.

a. another.

r. CERERI FRVGIF.

a. another.

r. PIETAS PVBLICA. A woman standing before an Altar, with hands expanded.

a. another.

r. PIETAS AVG. A person offering sacrifice.

a. another.

r. MATER DEVM. Cybele sitting between two lions, with a tower'd crown on her head; holding a branch in her right hand, and a spear transverse in her left, her left elbow resting on a crotalum.

M. ANT. CARACALLA.

a. IMP. ANTONINVS AVG.

r. IOVI CONSERVATORI. Jupiter standing † naked, holding a thunderbolt in his right hand, and in his left a spear inverted; an Eagle at his feet, and two military ensigns behind him.

a. A. ANTONINVS PIVS AVG.

r. FELICITAS PVBLICA. A figure standing in a stola, with a cornucopia in her left hand.

a. ANTONINVS &c. as in the last.

r. P. M. TR. P. XIII. COS. III. A figure sacrificing, holding a cornucopia in her left hand.

æ. ANTONINVS &c.

r. P. M. &c. S. C. A sea-monster.

a. IMP. CAES. ANTONINVS AVG.

r. FIDES EXERCITVS. A person sitting between two military ensigns.

a. IMP. ANTONINVS aug.

r. VICTORIA aug.

FULVIA PLAUTILLA.

a. PLAVTILLA AVGVSTA.

r. CONCORDIA FELIX. Caracalla and Plautilla joining hands: The former in the cloak from whence his name was taken.

P. SEPTIM. GETA.

a. P. SEPT. GETA CAES. PONT.

r. PART. MAX. M. Two captives sitting under a trophy.

a. GETA CAES. PONTIF.

r. FIDES PVBLICA.

a. GETA CAES. PONT. COS.

r. VOTA PVBLICA. An Emperor sacrificing.

a. P. SEPT. GETA CAES. PONT.

* r. PRINC. IVVENTVTIS.

A person standing, with a spear in his left hand; behind him a Trophy.

M. AUREL. ANTONIN. ELAGABALUS.

a. IMP. CAES. M. AVR. ANTONINVS AVG.

r. PONTIFEX MAX. TR. P. Rome, with a helmet on, sitting, holding in her right hand a little victory, and a spear in her left.

a. ——— CAES. M. AVR. ANTONINVS AVG.

r. VICTOR. ANTONINI AVG. Victory with a laurel in her right hand, and in her left a palm-branch.

a. IMP. ANTONINVS PIVS AVG.

r. LIBERALITAS AVG. III.

The Emperor standing, holding a congius in his right hand, and in his left a cornucopia: a star at his feet.

a. IMP. ANTONINVS PIVS AVG.

r. P. M. TR. P. III. COS. III. P. P. The Emperor naked, with a radiate Crown on, the sun, or a star, before him.

JULIA PAULA.

a. IVLIA PAVLA AVG.

r. CONCORDIA.

JULIA MAESA.

a. IVLIA MAESA AVG.

r. PVDICITIA. A Goddess sitting, holding a hasta pura in her left hand, and approaching her right to her mouth.

JULIA SOEMIAS.

a. ——— SOEMIAS AVG.

B b b

r. VENVS

r. VENVS CAELESTIS. Venus standing, holding an apple in her right hand, and a plain spear in her left.

M. AUREL. SEVERUS ALEXANDER.

a. IMP. C. M. AVR. SEV. ALEXAND.

* AVG.

r. LIBERALITAS AVG.

A figure standing, holding a cornucopia in the left hand, and a tessera in the right.

a. The same inscription as the former.

* r. P. M. TR. P. VI. COS. II. P. P.

Mars walking.

JULIA MAMMÆA.

Æ. IVLIA MAMMAEA AVGVSTA.

* r. VENVS FELIX. Venus sitting, and holding a little image in her right hand.

C. JUL. MAXIMINUS.

a. IMP. MAXIMINVS PIVS AVG.

r. ——— TATI AVG.

Æ. MAXIMINVS PIVS AVG. GERM.

r. PAX AVGVSTI. S. C. A figure standing, holding in her right hand an olive-branch, and in her left a spear inverted.

M. ANT. GORDIANUS PIUS.

a. IMP. CAES. M. ANT. GORDIANVS AVG.

r. P. M. TR. P. II. COS. P. P. A figure in a stola, the hair tied with a purple lace, standing before an altar, with a patera in the right hand, and a staff in the left.

a. The same.

r. IOVI STATORI. Jupiter standing, half naked, a thunderbolt in his left hand, and a spear in his right.

GORDIANUS II.

a. IMP. CAESAR ANT. GORDIANVS AVG.

* r. PAX AVG. S. C. A figure of peace, standing.

GORDIANUS III.

a. IMP. GORDIANVS PIVS FEL. AVG.

r. IOVI STATORI. Jupiter standing, naked, * with a spear in his right hand, and a thunderbolt in his left.

M. JULIUS PHILIPPUS.

Æ. ΑΥΤΟΚ. Κ. Μ. ΙΟΥΛΙ. ΦΙΛΙΠΠΟΣ ΣΕΒ. Philip's head with a laurel crown.

r. ΑΝΤΙΟΧΕΩΝ ΜΗΤΡΟ. ΚΟΛΩΝ. In the center Δ. Ε. Σ. C.

A woman's head veiled, and crowned with towers, on the top of her head a ram.

a. IMP. M. IVL. PHILIPPVS AVG.

* r. ROMAE AETERNAE. A person sitting, holding a spear in her right hand, and a victory in her left. [very good silver.]

M. JUL. PHILIPPUS F.

a. M. IVL PHILIPPVS CAES.

r. SAECVLARES AVGG. An altar.

a. IMP. PHILIPPVS AVG.

* r. FIDES EXERCITVS.

A foldier, with a legionary ensign in his left hand, and a manipulus in the right.

VOLUSIANUS.

a. IMP. CAES. C. VIB. VOLVSIANVS AVG.

* r. FELICITAS PVBL. A figure standing, holding a caduceus in his right hand, and a cornucopia in his left.

* a. IMP. CAE. C. VIB. VOLVSIANO AVG.

r. PAX. AVGG. The figure of peace, standing.

æ. IMP. AEMILIANVS. PIVS. FEL. AVG. The Emperor's head, with a radiate Crown.

r. DIANA VICTRIX. Diana, with a bow in her left hand, and an arrow in her right.

LICINIUS VALERIANUS.

a. IMP. C. P. LIC. AA.

r. APOLLINI CONSERVA. A naked figure standing, with a bough in her right hand, and a helmet in her left.

a. The head radiate.

r. RESTITVTO. A woman in a stola standing, presenting a Crown to the Emperor palud.

P. LICINIUS GALLIENUS.

a. IMP. GALLIENVS AVG. GERM.

r. VIRTVS AVG.

GALLIENUS.

a. GALLIENVS P. F. AVG.

* r. GERMANICVS MAXV. A trophy, with two captives.

æ. GALLIENVS AVG.

r. APOLLINI CONS. AVG. A centaur, shooting.

SALONINA.

a. SALONINA AVG.

* r. DEAE SEGETIAE. The Goddess Segetia, or of corn, standing in a temple, with both hands extended.

a. SALONINA AVG.

r. IUNO VICTRIX.

P. LICINIUS CORNELIUS SALONINUS VALERIANUS.

a. DIVO VALERIANO CAES.

r. CONSECRATIO. † An Eagle carrying up the body.

M. CASSIUS LATIENUS POSTUMUS.

a. IMP. C. POSTVMVS P. F. AVG.

r. HERC. DEVSONIENSI. Hercules standing, holding a club in his right hand, and a lion's skin in his left.

PROBUS.

æ. IMP. C. PROBVVS P. F. AVG.

* r. VIRTVS AVG. A figure walking, with a spear in his left hand.

DIOCLETIAN.

æ. IMP. DIOCLETIANVS P. F. AVG.

r. GENIO POPVLI ROMANI.

CARAUSIUS.

æ. IMP. CARAVSIVS P. P. AVG.

r. PAX AVGGG. S. P. Exergue M. I. XXI.

* Peace standing, with a branch in her right hand, and a transverse spear in her left.

æ. IMP. CARAVSIVS P. AVG.

* r. PROVIDENTIA AVG.

æ. IMP. CARAVSIVS, &c.

r. SALVS AVG.

J. Kirby & E. Hamman del.

To CHARLES GRAY Esq; one of the Representatives in Parliament for the Burgh of Colchester, This Plate is most humbly inscribed.

J. Mynde sc.

Æ. IMP. CARAVSIUS. P. F. AVG. The head of Carausius, with a helmet on, holding a spear transverse in his right hand.

* R. SALVS PVBLICA. A man with a patera in his right hand, sacrificing. On the area B on one side of him, and I on the other. In the exergue MLXX.

ALLECTUS.

Æ. IMP. C. ALLECTVS P. F. AVG.

* R. VIRTVS. AVG. Q. L. A prætorian galley, or Flag-ship.

MAXIMIAN.

Æ. IMP. C. MAXIMIANVS P. F. AVG.

CONSERVATORES KART. SVAE. A Temple of six columns, and a woman sitting in it, holding out fruits in each hand. Denoting Karthage, which this Emperor in some measure restored.

Æ. MAXIMIANVS NOB. CAES.

R. SACRA MONET. AVGG. ET CAES. NOST.

DECENTIVS.

Æ. D. N. DECENTIVS NOB. CAES.

R. VICTORIAE D. D. N. N. AVG. ET.

CAES. VOT. V. MVLT. X.

Æ. another, with this reverse, SALVS D. D.

* N. N. AVGG. ET CAESS. TR. S. In the middle X & P. interlaced: and A. ω. on the sides.

CONSTANTIUS.

Æ. FL. VAL. CONSTANTIVS NOB. C.

* R. GLORIA EXERCITVS.

HELENA.

Æ. FL. HELENA AVGVSTA.

* R. SECVRITAS REIPVBLICAE.

A person standing, with a branch in her right hand.

CONSTANTINE the Great.

Æ. CONSTANTINVS P. F. AVG.

* R. SOLI INVICTO COMITI.

T. F. In the exergue PLN. Apollo, or the Sun, with a globe in his left hand.

Æ. CONSTANTINVS AVG.

* R. BEATA TRANQVILLITAS. An altar with a globe upon it; and, above, 3 stars. On the side of it VOTIS XX.

Æ. DIVO CONSTANTINO. The Emperor, with his head veiled.

R. A person, standing in a chariot drawn with four horses, holding out his right hand, to a hand coming out of the heavens.

au. D. N. HONORIVS. P. F. AVG. The Emperor's head.

* R. VICTORIA AVGGG. A soldier with a victory in his left hand, holding a legionary ensign in his right, and kicking a prisoner sitting on the ground. In the area N. D. In the exergue CONOB.

This List is only a short Specimen of such Roman Coins and Medals as I have purchased since my coming here, or of the many that are in the curious collection of Charles Gray Esq; But there are innumerable quantities more found, even down to the Times of the Romans final Departure from this Island; with which it would be improper and unnecessary to swell this work.

§ 4. Ancient Dates upon two Houses, particularly 1090.

THIS Account of Colchester would, I am afraid, appear to the Reader very incomplete, if I did not say something of the famous date 1090, which hath so much exercised the heads and invention of the learned. This date formerly stood on the North side of a House in the High-street, near the corner of White-fote's, or Pelham's, lane, and almost opposite to the Motéhall. That North-front of the House was of timber; and, to all appearance, no older than the 14th or beginning of the 15th century. But the back, or southern, part of the same was built of a mixture of Roman brick and stone, with arched passages, in the same manner as the under-part of the Mote-hall: And, according to tradition, was built by, and the residence of, Eudo Dapifer; towards the end of the eleventh century, in the reigns of K. William I. and II. [F].

About sixteen or seventeen years ago, this old House was wholly taken down and rebuilt by the owner John Laurence: And then the bottom-cell of the Window on which the Date in question is carved, was placed as the cell of a Window on the South side of the new house, in an inner yard, where it stands at present.

The first who took notice of this date, or whose account at least was made public [G], was the late Rev. Mr Thomas Lufkin. His design was, to confirm thereby the opinion of the learned Dr John Wallis, (for whom he expressed a profound veneration,) viz. That the Numeral Figures were used in Europe, long before the years 1250, or 1300; the time when Father Mabillon (f), and J. Gerard Vossius (g), have affirmed, they first came into use: The contrary to which the Dr fancied was apparent, from a date on the mantle-tree of a Parlor-chimney, at the Rectory-house of Helmdon in Northamptonshire [H]. And so stiff was Mr Lufkin in his Opinion, that the questioning of it gave him great uneasiness.

The next time this Date came to be mentioned in print, was in the Bibliotheca Literaria [I]. Upon which occasion a Gentleman informed the editor [K], that both Mr Lufkin and Dr Wallis appear to have been mistaken, in the account they have given of the use of Arabian characters here in England, as early as the eleventh or twelfth centuries. His words

(f) De re Diplomatica, l. ii. c. 28.

(g) De Natura. Art. 1. iii. c. 8.

[F] See above, Book II. p. 114.

[G] See Philosophic. Transact, Aug. 1699, N°. 255. p. 287. and N°. 266. p. 677.

[H] See Philos. Transf. Dec. 1683. N°. 154. p. 399.

[I] Published by the learned Dr Sam. Jebb, at London 1722, in Ten numbers 4°.---Number 8. p. 25.

[K] See in the same collection, N°. 10. p. 35.

were thus, "I fear Vossius and Mabillon were too good Judges to be imposed upon in the Æra of Numerals; and since only two instances are produced against them, I doubt they are both Forgeries, and so can conclude nothing against them. The Colchester inscription, as you print, stands thus 1090, falsified with a vengeance! for I have seen it, and it was originally thus 1890, i.e. 1490. Some fantastical Knave, perhaps as late as the æra of Quakers, has diminished the 8 of his lower parts, and left it thus, °; for it plainly appears to any discerning eye, that the first ° of the pretended 1090 is but half as big as the other [L]. Being sure in the Colchester inscription," our author "ventures a sling at the Chimney," the date on which M 8 E 33 he makes to be 1433.

Dr Jebb observes thereupon, with a great deal of modesty and good nature, "What this unknown Gentleman says, is very probable, and I can easily believe these Dates to be no older than the time he has assigned for them; but I am not so ready to charge any person with forgery. The lower parts of the 8—might easily be broken by accident, or worn out by time: And if there was any chiselling work in the case, it might be done ignorantly, without any design to deceive. For the lower parts of the 8—being a little cropped, some body might think it would look better to be smoothed, without considering that it would alter the date; as not indeed knowing that 8 stood for 4.—We ought not to charge any thing as forged, if any other fair account may be given of it. It is much more christian and charitable to impute it to Ignorance and Mistake, where there can be room for it, as I conceive there is in this case."

The last time this Date hath been publicly mentioned, was by the learned Mr John Ward, in the Philosophical Transactions (b); upon occasion of the supposed date M16, found on a chimney-piece at Widihale in Hertfordshire. But, after considering these three several Dates, Mr Ward declares (i), "He was at last satisfied, that none of them prove, the Arabian figures were ever used among us, in less than an hundred years after the Reading given to the latest of them:" i.e. till after the year 1333. However the same learned Gentleman has since discovered two instances, somewhat older than this last Period assigned of the use of Arabian Figures in England; the one of the year 1295 on the N. E. Corner of the Steeple at Ashford in Kent; the other of 1332, on a Beam at the Half Moon near Magdalen Coll. Cambridge (k).

Upon the bare inspection of this our Colchester-date, there are several visible circumstances, which make it appear extremely improbable that it should be so ancient as the year 1090.

1. The figures are in that form which we call the Black letter, or English character. But no such form of Letters, (much less of Figures) was then used, as is plain from MSS. and Records; the hand being at that time more round, and Roman-like [M]. And this clumsy, gothic, and ill-favoured kind of Letters (still absurdly used in his Majesty's Printing-house) came not into fashion till the 13th or 14th century, as is manifest from the Great Seals in Stebbing and Speed, and other evidences. Therefore Mr Lufkin was greatly mistaken, when he asserted, that the square ° is an English Letter of that age (l), viz. of the 11th century.

2. In the same yard where this Date is, there are three more window-cells in the same style, and with the same sort of work as this. On two of them are carved the Arms of Colchester, in two escutcheons; as is also this Date on one. Now escutcheons, and coats of armour, were not used till the 12th century at soonest; as hath been shewn by Sir William Dugdale (m), and Mr Sandford and Stebbing (n). Therefore this Escutcheon, with the Date thereon, seem not to be so ancient as the year 1090.

3. Nor does the Date appear plainly to be 1090. For the first ° is not perfect at bottom; part of it being decayed with age, or having been chiseled off. And it is wider than the second ° and must have been bigger in proportion. So that I cannot determine, whether it was with cross legs at the bottom, in the manner the figure 4 used to be at first made: Or whether it was the same figure as the third. Now, this last might have been intended for a 4; if so, then the date originally was 1440: But this is only conjecture, and not supported by any other instance of the like form of the 4.

To deliver my own opinion freely, I really believe, as did also the late Rev. Mr. R. Turner, that this Date was either set down by the Carpenter from Tradition: or taken from some ancienter Date, undoubtedly in Roman Numerals, which stood upon the old Stone-house, (as it is called in some writings in my possession,) when it was new-fronted with Timber in the

(b) N^o. 439, for Octob. &c. 1735, p. 120.
(l) Ib. N^o. 266. &c. p. 1.

(i) Phil. Transf. N^o. 439, p. 123.
(m) Preface to the Baronage, Tome I. p. 4. col. 2.

(k) See Phil. Transf. p. 474.
(n) Geneal. Hist. of the Kings of England,

[L] I have given, at the end of this Book, as exact a Representation as is possible of our Colchester-date, taken from the Date itself with wet paper, in the manner used by Printers. Now by that it appears, that the unknown Author is mistaken; for the date is not as he represents it. His Argument would have been right, had this date been in the same form as another in this Town, on the East-side of North-hill, over a Door leading into the cisternyard; which is put down below at the bottom of the other, being 1894, 1497. Though the figure used for 4, is not always quite round at the top. For, a book-seller in this town (J. K.) hath a MS. of the 14th century, once belonging to St Edmundsbury-abbey, wherein are abundance of figures, amongst which the 4 is generally made thus X

[M] See Domesday-book: and D. Casley's Catal. of MSS. in the Royal Library.

To EBENEZER MUSSELL Esq.
This Plate is most of Bethnal Green in y Co. of Middlesex, Humbly Inscribed.

C. An Old English Silver Ring found at y Queens head Inn in Colchester
D. The Front of it Engraved
E. A small Urn found in Colchester

1 Roman Ring of Coarse Silver.
Found between Loxden & Colchester
Cornelian Seal set in it.

14th or 15th century. And this Date very well tallies with the time wherein Eudo Dapifer lived in this Place.

I may perhaps be blamed for not standing up more zealously for the received Antiquity of this Date : which, in some people's opinion, is one of those venerable Remains, that add to the Antiquity and Reputation of this place. But, for the reasons here given, I can find no sufficient authority for it. And I look upon it as my Duty, not to propagate but to discountenance Error of any kind, and establish Truth, the doing of which gives me a pleasure inexpressible.

Account of the Coins, and Medals, in the First Plate.

They are all in my Possession, (except N° 2, which belonged to the Rev. Mr. Rob. Turner, and now to the Rev. Mr. Myers; and N° 4. which belongs to Charles Gray Esq;)

N° 1. Is of Gold, and is described above in page 184.

N° 2. Is of Silver, and is described in the same Place.

N° 3. Is of copper, and exceeding fair, and well done. It is also described in the same Place.

N° 4. Is also described there. It belongs to Ch. Gray Esq; and is very curious.

The Coin of Cunobiline on the side, with his head and the title REX, is extremely curious and scarce; there being only another known to be extant.

N° 6. Is described, as above.

N° 7. Is likewise described there, under J. Cæsar. Q. If it was not Augustus?

N° 8. ANT. AVG. HIR. R. P. C. REV. LEG. V. Of Silver.

N° 9.—STVS PATER. Rev. A Person sitting s. c.

N° 10. DIVVS AVG. Rev. An Eagle.

N° 11. TI. CAESAR DIVI AVG. F. AVGVST. Rev. PONTIF. MAXIM. Of Silver, very fair.

N° 12, 13, 14. Are described above, under M. Agrippa, Drusus, and Antonia, p. 184.

N° 15. Is also partly described in the same place under Caligula; only add in the Exerg. under Vesta PIETAS: And on the two Sides of the Temple di vo—AVG.

N° 16. C. CAESAR AVG. GERMANICVS PON. TR. P. P. P. The Reverse is not represented. It has VESTA.

N° 17. T. CLAVDIVS CAESAR AVG. TR. P. IMP. Rev. CERES AVGVSTA. Exerg. s. c. In the Description of it above, it is wrongly printed SPES AVG.

N° 18. Is described above in p. 185.

N° 19. Is described above in p. 185, under Nero. It is of Silver, and extremely curious.

N° 20. Is described in the same Place: And so is also N° 21. of which the Reverse only is represented here.

N° 22. Is likewise described there, under Flav. Vespasian.

N° 23. IMP. Titus Cæf. VESPA . . . VG. P. M. Rev. . . . MP. XV. COS. VIII. P. P.

N° 24. Is described above under Domitian.

N° 25. IMP. TRAIANO AVG. GER. DAC. P. M. TR. P. COS. IV. P. P. Rev. S. P. Q. R. OPTIMO PRINCIPI. Exerg. ALIMITAL.

N° 26. IMP. CAES. NERVA TRAIAN. AVG.

N° 27. IMP. TRAIANO. OPTIMO AVG. GER. DAC. P. M. TR. P. Rev. COS. VI. P. P. S. P. Q. R.

N° 28. Is described above in p. 187, under Hadrian.

N° 29. IMP. CAES. TRAIAN. HADRIANO AVG. DIVI TRA. Rev. PARTH. F. DIVI NER. NEP. TR. POT. COS. Exerg. FORT. RED.

N° 30. HADRIANVS AVG. COS. III. Rev. FIDES PVBLICA.

N° 31. IMP. CAES. T. AEL. HAD. ANTONINVS AVG. PIVS P. P. Rev. TR. POT. XIII. COS. III.

N° 32. Is described above, under Julia Sabina.

N° 33. ANTONINVS AVG. PIVS P. P. Rev. TIBERIS.

N° 34. ANA CEN. CEOYHP. Rev. MITPO. K. . . . CA.

N° 35. P. M. TR. P. XVII. COS. III. P. P. being only a Reverse of one of the same Emperor, Severus.

N° 36. Is likewise the Reverse of one of the same Emperor, P. M. TR. P. XIII. COS. III. P. P.

N° 37. ANTONINVS AVGVSTVS. Rev. SAL. GEN. HVM. Caracalla.

N° 38. P. SEPT. GETA PIVS AVG. BRIT. Rev. TR. P. III. COS. II. P. P.

N° 39. C. VALENS. HOSTIL. MES. QVINTVS N. C. The Reverse not figured in the Plate, is MARTI PROPVGNATORI.

N° 40. IMP. C. VIB. VOLVSIANVS AVG. The Reverse, not represented here, FELICITAS PVBL. Another which I have, hath on the Reverse PAX AVGG.

N° 41. Is described above, p. 190, under Probus.

N° 42. CONSTANTIVS NOB. C. The Reverse, not figured in the Plate, is GENIO POPVLI ROMANI.

N° 43. Is described above, p. 191, under Constantine the Great.

P L A T E II.

The Nine first Coins are in my Possession, viz.

1. IMP. CAESAR VESPASIAN. AVG. COS. III. Rev. FORTVNAE REDVCI S. C.
2. Is described above, p. 187, col. 2, under Antoninus Pius.
3. Is described in p. 188. col. 1, under Galeria Faustina.
4. Is. described in the same page, col. 2, under M. Aurelius Antonin.
5. Is described also there, being only a Reverse.
6. Is described in the same Place, under Annia Faustina.
7. Is described in the same page, col. 2. under Annia Lucilla.
8. IVLIA AVGVSTA. Rev. IVNO.
9. IVLIA MAESA AVG. Rev. PVDICITIA.

The rest (which have been found at Colchester as well as all the foregoing ones) were in the large and curious Collection of Ebenezer Muffel Esq; who was pleased to adorn this Work with this Second plate at his own Charge.

[From the 11th to the 25th are of Silver. The rest are of copper.]

11. VITELLIVS. 12, 13. FL. VESPASIANVS, [The 13th is described above, p. 186.]
14. DOMITIANVS. 15. TRAIANVS.
- 16, 17. ANTONINVS PIVS.
18. Annia FAVSTINA.
19. M. COMM. ANT. AVG. BRIT. P. P.
20. SEVERVS PIVS. 21. IVLIA AVGVSTA.
22. MAXIMINVS. 23. GORDIANVS III.
24. VOLVSIAN. 25. VALERIAN.—26. NERO.
- 27, 28. VESPASIANVS. [the 27th is described above, p. 186. col. 1.]
29. DOMITIAN. 30, 31. N. TRAIAN.
32. ANTONINVS AVG. PIVS P. P. TR. P. XVIII. Rev. BRITANNIA COS. IIII.
33. Another of the same Emperor's.
34. ANTONINVS AVG. 35. AVRELIANVS.
36. DIOCLETIANVS. [described above, p. 190. col. 2.]

37. CARAVSIVS. [described in the same place.]
38. ALLECTVS. [described p. 191.]
- 39, 40. FL. CONSTANTIVS.
41. FL. HELENA; his first wife.
43. THEODORA; his second wife.
42. FL. Jul. HELENA; wife of the Emperor Julian.
- 44, 45, 46. CONSTANTINVS MAX.
47. Another of the same Emperor, P. LON.
48. CONSTANTINVS junior.
- 49, 50. CRISPVS. 51. CONSTANS.

Mr. Muffell had also in his curious Cabinet several Antiquities found in Colchester; some of which are represented in this plate; namely, 1. An Urn of brown Earth, three Inches high: It belonged to the late Earl of Oxford, who has left an account of it in these Words. "This was found ten Foot deep, in digging a Cellar at the House of Mr. Tho. Great in Colchester."

This is now in the possession of George Scott, Esq; He hath also C. D. being an antient English Ring of Silver, curiously wrought, and formerly enamelled. On it is engraved a Representation of the Trinity, and the child Jesus in his Mother's Arms. It was found at the Queen's-head-Inn here; which was very ancient, and part of it a Roman Brick Building.

A. B. Is a most ancient Roman Ring, of coarse Silver, wherein is set a large Cornelian Seal; in which is carved a Hare thrown on its back, and holden by an Eagle: Being a device to represent the Subjection of the Britans to the Roman Empire. It was found in the Borough-fields; and belongs now to T. Hollis, Esq;

Nº 10. Another Roman Ring of coarse Silver, having on it LVCIANI, and represented here, is in the Possession of Charles Gray Esq; And the little Seal, which is cut in a very beautiful Cornelian, is in my own Possession.

The End of Book III.

A P P E N D I X.

N^o. I.Concerning the Hyth-bridge.

THIS Indenture made betwix William Foorde and John Boteler Baillies of the towne of Colchestre, and the Communalte of the same towne on the oon partie, and William Smyth, John Honyngton, Peter Berwyk, Walter Gyles, William Volantyn, William Davy, John Berdefeld thelder, John Debon, William Edon, and John Rede dwellers, inhabitauntez, and freholders in the parish of Seynt Leonard, called Colchestrehithe on the odir partie, Witnesith, that where striff debate and vari-aunce of late hath bene hadde and moeved betwix the feid Baillies and Communalte of the oon partie, and alle the inhabitauntez of the feid parish of Seynt Leonarde on the odir partie, for a Wey to be hadde, used, and occupied thorough the Haven, River, and Water at the feid Hithe, and for a brigge to be hadde over the said Haven, River, and Water for a Wey, for all manner of people thereon to passe, as well with hors and cartes as otherwise, It is agreed and accorded betwix the feid parties in forme and manner folowyng, that is to wete, the Baillies and Communalte by their hool and common assent, in as muche as in them is by these presentez graunten and confermen to the forfeid William Smyth, John Honyngton, Peter Berwyk, Walter Gyles, William Volantyn, William Davy, John Berdefeld, John Debon, William Edon, and John Rede there heires and assignes of every of them, that they and all the inhabitauntez in the parish aforeseid, there heires and assignes, and the heires and assignes of every of theym, and all oder people shall mowe for ever, use, have, and enjoye a Weye, with men, hors, and carte thorough the feid Haven, Ryver, and Water from the feid parish unto and into the strete called Grynstedestrete, and from the same strete unto and into the feid parish of Seynt Leonard at all tymes for ever; and that the same William, John, Peter, Walter, William, William, John, John, William and John, ther heires and assignes and the heires and assignes of every of theym, and all oder persones who so ever wull, shall, mowe, make or do make, a brigge of stone or tymber or of bothe over the feid Haven, Ryver, and Water for men, hors, and carte to passe therover to and fro for ever, with a draughte in the same, that shippes, botys, and oder watervessels, shall mowe, passe ther, if the water wull serve therfore. And the same brigge to repaire and susteyne and newe in likewise to make as ofte as nede shall requyre at there propir costes and expenses. To have, holde, use, and occupie the feid weye and brigge to the forfeid William Smyth, John Honyngton, Peter Berwyk, Walter Gyles, William Volantyn, William Davy, John Berdefeld, John Debon, William Edon, and John Rede ther heires and assignes, and to the heires and assignes of every of theym, and to alle oder people thedir comyng and resortyng for ever, without lettynge, perturbatione, or contradiction of the feid Baillies and Communalte or there successors or any of theym, or of any persone of the feid towne of Colchestre, or of any other for theym, or in their name or names for evermore, in like fourme and condition, as it is and hath bene used and doon atte Northbregge and the Estbregge of the feid towne of Colchestre. Into witnesse whereof to the oon part of this Indenture towards the feid William Smyth ——— and John Reve remaynyng the feid Baillies and Communalte have put to their common Seal. To the other part of the same Indenture towards the feid Baillies and Communalte remaynyng the feid William Smyth, John Honyngton, Peter Berwyk, Walter Gyles, William Volantyn, William Davy, John Berdefeld, John Debon, William Edon, and John Rede, their Seals they have put to. Youyn at Colchestre beforefeid in the Common Halle of the same towne the seconde daye of Decembr, The yer of the regne of kyng Edward the 4th, after the Conquest the 13th.

John Duc of Norfolk, Erle Wareyn and of Surrey, Erle Marschall and of Notyngham, Marschall of England, Lord Segrave of Gower, and of Maubray gretying. Knowe ye, that We by these presents, graunten and confermen unto William Smyth, John Honyngton, Peter Berwyke, Walter Gylez, William Valentyne, William Davy, John Berdefeld the elder, John Debon, William Edon, and John Rede dwellers, inhabitaunts and fre holderez in the parish of Seynt Leonard, called Colchestre Hythe, there heyrez and there assignez, and to the eyrez and assignez of every of them, That they, there heyrez, and assignez, and the eyrez and assignez of every of them, and all the Kyngs people shall mowe for ever use, have, and enjoye a Weye with men, hors, and carte thorough the Haven, Rever, and Watyr at the feid Hythe, from the feid parish, over a parcell of our Grounde unto the strete called Grynstedestrete, and from the feid strete unto and into the foreseid parish over the feid parcell of grounde: Which parcell of grounde We late hadde of the gift and graunte of Walter Abbot of the Monasterie of Seint John of Colchestre and the Covent of the same place. And that the same William Smyth ——— and John Rede there eyres and assignez, and the eyrez and assignez of every of them, and all oder persones whosoever will, shall, mowe, make, or do make a brygge of Stone or Tymbyr or of bothe over the feid Haven, Rever, and Water for men, hors, and carte to passe there over, to and fro for ever, with a Draught in the same, that Shippez, botez, and oder Water-vessellez shall mowe passe there, if the Water will serve therfore: And the same to repayre and susteyne, and newe in lykewyse to make, as ofte as nede shall requyre, at there propir costs and expenses. To have, holde, use, and occupye the feid weye and brygge, to the foreseid William, John, Peter, Walter, William, William, John, John, William, and John, there heyrez and assignes, and to the eyres and assignes of every of theym, and to all oder people there comyng and resortyng for ever frely, without lettynge or contradiction. In witnesse whereof to these presentez we have put to oure Sealle the viiith day of Januar. the xiii yere of the reigne of kyng Edward the fourth (a).

He had given, two days before, a general Release to the Bailiffs and Commonalty; which is still extant in the parish-chest.

When the Corporation erected a Water-mill at the Hyth, about the year 1552, they took the Charge of this Bridge upon themselves; and yet afterwards they would have thrown it again upon the parish of St Leonard's: For which there was a suit in Chancery between that parish and the Town, in 1665 and 1666. See the papers in the Parish-chest.

N^o. II.Copy-Clauses of the Act 21 James I. n^o. 68. for paving the Streets of Colchester.

THE Act is intituled, An Act for the repairing and maintaining of the Haven, River, and Channel running unto the Borough and Towne of Colchester, in the County of Essex, and also for the Paving of the said Town.

“And whereas the Streets and Lanes within the said Borough and Town of Colchester, are of late, by reason of the continual Road and often Carriages, become deep and foul, very noisom and dangerous to the inhabitants of the said Borough and Town of Colchester, and to others of his Majesties Subjects, which daily pass by and through the said Borough on foot or on horse back: For remedy and reformation whereof, It is enacted by the Authority of this present Parliament, That all and every person and persons, bodies politique and corporate, their heirs and successors, that now be or hereafter shall be immediate owners or landlords, of any Messuages, Tenements, Yards, Gardens and Orchards within the said Town or the Suburbs of the same, of any Estate or Estates in fee-simple, fee taile, for life, or for term of years; from time to time, and all times, at the assignment and appointment of the Bayliffs and Commonalty of the said Town of Colchester, or the more part of them, well and sufficiently Pave, or cause to be paved, with paving stone, all and every the Streets, Lanes; Highways, lying directly before the said Messuages, or Tenements, Yards, Gardens, Stables, Cottages, Curtilages, or Orchards, sett, lying, and being in the Streets and Lanes of the said Borough and Town: Every person and persons, as is abovesaid, to Pave such part and quantity of the said Ways, Streets, and Lanes; and in Length as his or their messuages, tenements, yards, &c. do lye and extend by and against the said ways, streets, and lanes. And every person and persons charged and chargable with the paving of the said streets, ways, and lanes as abovesaid, or which ought to pave the same by this present Act, to forfeit to the Bayliffs of the said town of Colchester for the time being Twelve-pence for every Yard-square not paved in form abovesaid, within two months after warning thereof given by the Bayliffs of the said Town for the time being, or one of them; the same being presented before the Bayliffs of the said Town for the time being, by Twelve Free-burgesses of the same Town. And that all and every person and persons now having, or which hereafter shall have, any Estate or Interest, or now be, or shall be, lawfully seized of, or interested in any of the said Messuages, or Tenements, yards, gardens, stables, cottages, curtilages, and orchards as abovesaid, shall, from time to time, after the said last day of this present Session, maintain, support, repair, and make, all and every the said pavements over and against their houses, messuages, or tenements, yards, gardens, stables, cottages, curtilages, and orchards, from time to time, and so often as need shall; upon pain to forfeit for every yard square Eight-pence of like money.

And that all the said forfeitures for not paving, maintaining, and repairing of the pavement of the said streets, shall be to the use of the Bayliffs and Commonalty of the said of Town of Colchester, and their successors, to be employed and converted for the amendment of the Haven, River, and Channel there, at and by the discretion of the said Bayliffs for the time being.

Copy-Clauses of the Act 22 George II.

AND whereas the Streets and Lanes in the said Town of Colchester, and the Liberties thereof, have, for several years last past, been much out of repair, and are now in so bad and ruinous a condition, that it is dangerous for persons to pass and repass through the said town: now, for the effectual repairing and amending thereof for the future, be it enacted by the Authority abovesaid, That all and every landlord or owner, landlords or owners, of any dwelling-house, shop, warehouse, coach-house, building, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, being contiguous to, adjoining upon, fronting, or lying along the sides of such Streets and Lanes in the said Town, as have been formerly paved, shall, from time to time, and at all times after the commencement of this present Act, at his, her, and their own costs and charges, sufficiently repair, pave with Stone, and amend the street or lane, before and lying over against his, her, or their house or houses, buildings, walls, fences, grounds, or lands, so far as his, her, or their house or houses, buildings, walls, fences, grounds, or lands extend, unto the middle of the same street or lane.

And for that purpose, be it farther enacted by the Authority abovesaid, That the Surveyor or Surveyors of the highways for the time being, within the respective parishes of the said town of Colchester, shall and do, from time to time, every three months or oftener, if the Justices at any special Sessions of the peace, to be held for the said town of Colchester, or county of Essex, shall so order, during his or their being a surveyor or surveyors, take a view of all the streets and lanes within the parish or place, for which he or they is, are, or shall be appointed surveyor or surveyors; and shall make a return, on oath, in writing, to the Justices to be assembled in Special Sessions as abovesaid (which special sessions the Justices are hereby required to hold every three months for that purpose) of the names of all the landlords or owners, whose pavements shall be out of repair, and the names of the streets or places where such pavements are, and the length and breadth of the pavements so out of repair; and after such return made to the Justices, as abovesaid, the said Surveyor or Surveyors shall, within three days then next, cause notice in writing to be given of such pavements as shall be so out of repair, to such landlords or owners, who ought to repair the same; or shall cause such notice to be left at, or fixed upon, such house or houses, buildings, walls, fences, or other the premises contiguous to, or over against the Places wanting such repair; and if such decays or want of repair shall not be amended within Twenty days next after such notice given, left, or affixed, as abovesaid, then the said surveyor or surveyors shall and may cause the said decays to be repaired and amended; and shall be reimbursed what charges and expences he or they shall be reasonably at in so doing, by the party or parties who should or ought to have done the same; and in order to reimburse such Surveyor or Surveyors all such sum and sums of money, as shall or may have been by him or them so laid out and expended in or about the repairs of the said Pavements as abovesaid; it shall and may be lawful to and for the said Surveyor or Surveyors, to apply him or themselves to the justices of the peace for the said town of Colchester, or county of Essex, at any of their special sessions; and upon his or their making oath of the charge of such repairs, the said Justices shall and may order the repayment thereof to such surveyor or surveyors, by the landlords or owners, who ought to have repaired the same; and in case such landlords or owners shall for the space of fourteen days, after demand made, or notice thereof given, or left at, or fixed upon such house or houses, buildings, walls, fences, or other the premises, as abovesaid, neglect or refuse to pay such sum or sums of money, so ordered by the Justices as abovesaid, then it shall and may be lawful to and for the said surveyor or surveyors, by warrant or warrants under the hands and seals of any two Justices of the peace for the said town of Colchester, or county of Essex (which warrant or warrants such Justices are hereby authorised and required to grant) upon oath made before them, by such surveyor or surveyors, of the person or persons so refusing or neglecting to pay, to levy the same by distress and sale of the goods and chattles of such landlords or owners so neglecting or refusing to pay, as abovesaid, or by distress and sale of the goods and chattles of the Tenant or Tenants, Occupier or Occupiers of any such house or houses, buildings, lands, tenements, or hereditaments; and in case any such house or houses, buildings, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, shall be empty or unoccupied, or that a sufficient distress cannot be found therein, then the said surveyor or surveyors, or any succeeding surveyor or surveyors, shall and may, at any time afterwards, levy such sum or sums of money, by virtue of the same, or any other such warrant or warrants, by distress and sale of the goods and chattles of such landlord or landlords, or of the next or any other succeeding tenant or tenants, occupier or occupiers of the said house or houses, buildings, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, rendering the overplus, upon demand (if any be) the reasonable charges of such distress and sale being first deducted, to the person or persons whose goods and chattles shall be so distrained and sold.

And be it further enacted by the Authority abovesaid, That if such sum or sums of money, so to be paid by any landlord or owner, as abovesaid, shall be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattles of any of the tenants or occupiers, as abovesaid; or in case any such tenants or occupiers shall voluntarily, and without such distress and sale, pay such sum or sums of money as abovesaid; then, and in either of the said cases, it shall and may be lawful for the said tenants or occupiers to deduct the same out of their Rent then due, or thereafter to grow due, which he, she, or they are to pay for the house or houses, buildings, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, being in his, her, or their possession or occupation; and the landlords, owners, and proprietors thereof, are hereby required to allow such Deductions and Payments; and every tenant or tenants, paying or having his, her, or their goods distrained and sold for such sum or sums of money as abovesaid, shall be, and are hereby, acquitted and discharged for so much money as the same shall amount to, with the charges of such distress and sale, in the same manner as if the same had been actually paid to such person or persons, to whom his, her, or their Rent shall have been due or payable.

And be it further enacted by the Authority abovesaid, That the streets and lanes adjoining to any Churches or Churchyards within the said town shall, from time to time, and at all times hereafter, be repaired, paved with stone, and amended, so far as such churches or church-yards do extend, unto the middle of such streets and lanes, by the surveyor or surveyors of the highways, for the time being, of such parish or parishes wherein such streets and lanes do lie; and the surveyor or surveyors for the time being, of the respective parishes within the said town, or such other person or persons as he or they shall appoint, shall sweep and cleanse, or cause to be swept swept and cleansed, all the streets, lanes, and publick places, within the parish for which he or they shall be surveyor or surveyors; and shall carry away and remove, or cause to be carried away and removed, all the sweepings, dirt, filth, and other annoyances in the said streets, lanes, and places, from time to time, as often as shall be necessary, or as the Justices, at any their special sessions, shall order or direct; which surveyor or surveyors shall be reimbursed the monies by him or them paid or expended in or about the paving and cleansing the said streets, lanes, and places, and removing annoyances therein as aforesaid, in such manner as the surveyors of the highways, for the time being, are, by the laws now in force, to be reimbursed the monies by him or them laid out or expended in or about the repairing of highways.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That in case any tofts or spots of grounds, or other waste places, against which the streets or lanes ought to be paved as aforesaid, shall be deserted, or in such bad condition that no sufficient Distress can be found thereon; then from and after the commencement of this present Act, it shall be lawful for the surveyor or surveyors of the highways for the time being, within the respective parishes of the said town, to cause the pavement to be amended, which such tofts and waste places are liable to amend, and to put the expence thereof into the surveyors rates; which shall be allowed in like manner as the rest of the expences of such surveyors rates are by law allowable.

And be it enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That if any surveyor or surveyors of any parish or parishes within the said town shall neglect his or their duty, in any thing required of him or them by this Act to be done, he or they shall forfeit, for every such offence, the sum of forty shillings, to be levied on his or their goods and chattles; by distress and sale of the same, by warrant or warrants under the hands and seals of any two or more Justices of the peace for the said town of Colchester, or county of Essex, before whom such surveyor or surveyors shall be convicted thereof, in a summary way, by confession, or by the oath of two credible witnesses; which warrant or warrants the said Justices are hereby empowered and required to issue; which said forfeiture shall be paid into the hands, and be applied by the order of the said Justices, for and towards the Uses and Purposes directed by this Act for repairing the pavements, or cleansing the streets of the said Town; rendering the overplus upon demand (if any) to the owner or owners, the charge of such distress and sale being first deducted.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That if any Justice or Justices of the peace of the said town of Colchester, or county of Essex, shall at any general quarter sessions of the peace, to be holden for the said Town or County, make any presentment or presentments, in writing, to be signed by him or them, upon his or their view of any neglect or default in the pavement of the said streets or lanes contrary to this Act, every such presentment or presentments shall be of such and the same force and effect as any other presentment in default of the repairs in any highways; and the Justices, at the same or any other such sessions, are hereby authorized and required to proceed thereupon accordingly; and the said Justices are hereby authorized and required to take all possible care to cause the said pavements to be, from time to time, well and sufficiently repaired, paved with stone, and amended, according to the true intent and meaning of this act.

Provided always, That if any person or persons shall think him or themselves aggrieved, and shall not think fit to abide such order so to be made by the Justices at their Special Sessions as aforesaid; then such person or persons shall and may appeal to the Justices of the peace for the said town of Colchester, or county of Essex, at the next general quarter sessions of the peace to be held for the said town or county (such person or persons so appealing giving reasonable notice thereof to the surveyor or surveyors of the parish wherein the cause of such Appeal may arise) who shall and have hereby full power and authority to make such order therein as they costs on other appeals relative to the settlement of the poor are ordered and directed to be raised and levied.

shall think proper; which order so made shall be, and the same is hereby declared to be final and conclusive to all parties, to all intents and purposes whatsoever; and the said Justices, at such general quarter sessions, shall and may order and award to the party or parties, in whose favour such appeal shall be determined, such costs and charges as they shall think fit, to be raised and levied by such ways and means as

N^o. III.Domesday for Colchester.

Fol. 11.

IN Colecestre habet Episcopus xiv Domos, & iv acras, non redditentes Consuetudinem preter scotum; nisi Episcopo. In eadem tenet Hugo de Episcopo ii Hidas & i acram, & reddit consuetudinem. Semper ii Carucate in Dominio, & i Caruca hominum, & ii villani, & xi Bordarii, & i Servus, vi acre & dimidium prati. Modo i molendinum. Tunc & post valebat xl Solidos modo l. [A].

Hundret de Colecestre. — fol. 104, &c.

In eadem Colecestre tenuit Godricus i liber homo T. R. E. iv mansiones terre, & unam Ecclesiam, & iv hidas in Grenesteda: Quo mortuo filii ejus terram in quat' dimiserunt partes; Quarum Rex habet duas, quibus pertinent due Domus in Burgo que semper Regi redderunt consuetudinem, & adhuc reddunt. In ii hidis tunc ii Carucate in dominio, & modo. Tunc iii Villani, & modo. Tunc ii servi, & modo. Tunc xxiv acre prati & marisci, & modo. Tunc i molendinum, & modo dimidium. Tunc valebat xl solidos & modo. Et de duabus aliis partibus habet comes Eustachius i hidam. Et Johannes filius Walerami alteram hidam. Et in quarta Comitibus Eustachii, est tota Ecclesia, & quarta pars molendini, et quarta pars Prati. Tunc i car' modo nulla; & valet inter totum xxx Solidos. Et in quarta parte Johannis fuit i Car' T. R. E. modo nulla. Et quarta pars molendini, quarta pars prati. Et valuit inter totum xxx solidos. Et de his duabus partibus nullam habet Rex consuetudinem.

Et Burgenses calumpniantur v hidas de Lexfendena ad consuetudinem et Scotum Civitatis, que jacuerunt ad predictam terram quam tenebat Godricus.

Isti sunt Burgenses Regis qui reddunt consuetudinem.

Colemannus habet i Domum de Colecestre, tenet & v acras terre, & semper reddit regi consuetudinem. Leuvinus ii Dom. & xxv. acr. terre. Ulricus i Dom. Eduinus presbiter i Dom. & xx acr. Turchillus i Dom. & ix acr. Vistanus Eudlac iv Dom. & xx acr. Leuvinus Crist i Dom. & x acr. Alanuinus iv Dom. & xxx acr. Aluricus i Dom. & v acr. Herdedunus x Dom. & dimid. & xx acr. Alfeihc Presbiter i Dom. & xxv acr. Levot i Dom. & xvi acr. Ulricus i Dom. & vii acr. Suertlinus i Dom. & x acr. Aluuart i Dom. & ii acr. Eduinus i Dom. Goda xiii Dom. & xx acr. Sprot ii Dom. & iii acr. Edricus iv Dom. & xv acr. Goduinus i Dom. & xv acr. Goduinus Wachefet, & Filii ejus v Dom. & xii acr. Blancus vi Dom. & xx acr. Aluricus ii dom. & xiii. ac. Stanart ii Dom. & dimid. & x acr. Goduinus i Dom. & ix acr. Ulricus ii Dom. & i acr. Alfius i Dom. & iii acr. & dimid. Aluardus ii Dom. & xxiii acr. Mannuinus ii Dom. & vii acr. Leffesse i Dom. & ii acr. & dimid. Leuvinus x acr. Uluvinus i Dom. ii acr. & dimid. Godineq ii Dom. & x acr. Goda i Dom. & vii acr. Uluvinus monitor i Dom. & vii acr. Alfgarus i Dom. Uluuart ii Dom. & i acr. Aluvinus i Dom. & x. acr. Alfgarus presbyter i Dom. & i acr. Turrent i Dom. & ii acr. Ofgot ii Dom. & i acr. Ulricus ii Dom. Arturus i Dom. & iv acr. Eduinus i Dom. & iv acr. Salvare i Dom. & vii acr. Leslet iii Dom. & xxv acr. & i molendinum. Aluricus i Dom. Goduinus i Dom. Sprot i Dom. & iii acr. Grunolf ii Dom. & ix acr. Sagarus i Dom. & x acr. Aluricus i Dom. Aluvinus iii Dom. & ix acr. Ulricus i Dom. & vii acr. Sprot i Dom. & iii acr. Uluuart i Dom. & viii acr. Leuvinus i Dom. & fuis de eodem Episcopo et successoribus suis imperpetuum per liberum servitium quinque solidorum per ann' Reddend' ad fest' sci Michaelis pro omni servicio. Et sciendum quod predic' Willis filius Benedicti nec heredes sui nichil poterunt dare vendere nec invadare nec aliquo modo alienare de predicta Soka cum pertin' sine Licencia et voluntate predic' Episcopi vel successorum suorum.

(In Thesaur. Recept. Scaccarii, Fines temp. Joh.)

I find it thus mentioned in an inquest, 10 Edw. II. — Magister Joh'es de Colecestre clamat habere unam Sokam vocatam Haymesokne infra muros Burgi Colec' & in eadem tenet Curiam suam de tribus septimanis in tres septimanas, & nullam executionem fieri permittit in eadem per ministros Domini Regis. (Orig. penes me.)

In 1416, it was in Tho. Fraunceys, who mentions it thus in his Will, — de Dominio meo, alias dict' Soka in Hedstret' vocat' Haymesokne.

Likewise in a Lawe-hundred-roll, 6 Hen viii. it is styled — Soca jac' in Havedstrete. — So that it appears to have been a distinct Franchise, Liberty, or Jurisdiction.

[A] In 1206, 8^o Joannis, these Houses and Land were passed away by Fine before the Barons of the Exchequer, by William de Sta Maria bishop of London, to William Son of Benedict — Tenentem (as the Record expresses it) de una Soka cum pertin' in Colcestre Que se extendit de venella Ste Marie usque ad venellam juxta Havedgate & usq; ad Murum de Colecestre versus occidentem & usq; ad Havedstret versus Orientem: Unde Recognitio magne assise summonita fuit inter eos in prefata Curia, scil. quod pred' Wills. filius Benedicti Recognovit totam Sokam illam cum omnibus pertinentiis suis scil. cum Scolis ejusdem ville de Colecestre & cum advocacione Ecclesie Be' Marie de Muro, & cum Capella Sci Andree, & cum Capitali Mesuagio quod ad Sokam illam pertinet, esse Jus pred'ci Episcopi, & pertinere ad Baroniam Episcopatus London' Et pro hac Recognitione et fine et concordia idem Episcopus concessit eidem Will^o. filio Benedicti Toram predictam Sokam cum pertinentiis et cum Scolis ejusdem ville de Colecestre salvis predicto Episcopo Advocacionibus Ecclesie Sce Marie de Muro & Capella sci Andree que remanent ei & successoribus suis quiete de predicto Willo & heredibus suis imperpetuum, Habenda et tenenda eidem Willo & heredibus x acr. Confilio Goduinus i Dom. Golstanus i Dom. & v acr. Uluuinus i Dom. & iv acr. Uluart i Dom. & iii acr.

 Uluuinus ii Dom. & vii acr. Goduinus ii Dom. & vii acr.
 Confilio Alffius ii Dom. Lefstanus i Dom. & i ac. Godricus i Dom. Alricus i Dom. Not i Dom. Bristuuing i Dom.
 & v acr. Leflet i Dom. Alricus i Dom. & iv acr. & dimid.
 Eduuinus i Dom. & ii acr. & dimid. Scadebutre i Dom.
 Mannuinus iv acr. Golduuinus i Dom. Uluricus i Dom.
 & ii acr. Oflet i Dom. Eduinus i Dom. & x acr. Uluricus ii Dom. & v acr. Aluuius ii Dom. Eduinus i Dom.
 & iii acr. Uluinus i Dom. Blactan ii Dom. Allanstan ii
 Dom. & x acr. Aluricus i Dom. & i ac. Leuuius i Dom.
 Aluinus ii Dom. & xxii acr. Leuuius ii Dom. Edricus i Dom. Leuuius i Dom. Uued i Dom. Ulfus i Dom.
 Goldric ii Dom. & xxii acr. Goda xxii acr. Calebot vii acr. Manstan ii Dom. & i ac. Ulfeih i Dom.
 Mannuinus i Dom. Winemerus i Dom. Sacritng iii Dom.
 & iv acr. Leuricus i Dom. Uluuart i Dom. & iv acr.
 Uluuinus i Dom. & x acr. Leflet i Dom. & xxv ac.
 Godricus i Dom. Deremannus i Dom. Turstanus i Dom.
 Duttel i Dom. & dimid. acre. Godde ii Domus. Gotcill
 i Dom. & i ac. Stan i Dom. Orietg. i Dom. Alfstanus i Dom. Tovius i Dom. Goldino i Dom. Leviet i Dom.
 & ii acr. Blactan i Dom. Mannuinus i Dom. Aluuius i Dom. Lefsunus ii Dom. Aluricus i Dom. & ii acr. Brumman i Dom. Aluuius i Dom. Saulf ii Dom. & dimid. & x acr. Leuuius iii acr. Uluricus i Dom. Alfstanus i Dom.
 Goduinus iii acr. Golduinus i Dom. Goduinus i Dom.
 & i ac. Wigga i Dom. Ledmarus i Dom. Ulfstanus ii Dom. Godelunus i Dom. & iii acr. Elebolt ii Dom. & i acr. Goduuing. i Dom. Godeva i Dom. Lefstanus i Dom.
 Eduardus presbiter i Dom. Hacon i Dom. Ailbriest i Dom. Tate i Dom. Sauuart i Dom. Berda i Dom. & v
 acr. Uluart presbiter i Dom. & i ac. Culline ii Dom. & vii acr. Aluuolt i Dom. Tilieman i Dom. & v acr. Godeva i Dom. Siuuardus presbiter i Dom. & iv acr. Pic i Dom. Uluuius iii Dom. & iv acr. Leveva i Dom. & iv
 acr. & dimid. Aluricus xv acr. Aluuen ii Dom. Uluricus i Dom. & i ac. & dimid. Willielmus Peccatum i Dom.
 Besti i Dom. Rossellus i Dom. & iv acr. Leuuius i Dom.
 & ii acr. Goda i Dom. Uluuius i Dom. Levesunus i Dom. Golmanus i Dom. Pote iv acr. Godricus i Dom.
 Siricus i Dom. & ii acr. Alricus i Dom. & ii acr. Lividi i Dom. Bristricus i Dom. & ix acr. & dimid. Lefstanus i Dom. Undibili i Dom. Blactan i Dom. Alflet i Dom.
 Uluueva i Dom. & xx acr. Goda i Dom. & xx acr. Af-cere i Dom. & xix acr. Godricus i Dom. Brunloc i Dom.
 Alnod ii Dom. & iv acr. Goduinus i Dom. & x acr.
 Leuuius i Dom. & x acr. Aluricus presbiter iii Dom. & ii acr. Rogerius i Dom. & iv acr. Godricus i Dom. Alu-ricus i Dom. & ii acr. Suertino i Dom. & x acr. Godid ii Dom. & xiv acr. Brunuinus i Dom. & iii acr. Uluinus i Dom. Brungarus ii Dom. & xviii acr. Sunegot i Dom.
 Siuuardus i Dom. & vii acr. & dimid. Ulfstanus xi acr.
 Lefliuf ii Dom. & viii acr. Sagrim i Dom. Uluuinus i
 Dom. Leuuius i Dom. Leuricus i Dom. Godineg. i
 Dom. & i ac. Westan ii Dom. & xxx acr. Ainolf i Dom.
 & xv acr. Tunric i Dom. Alfstan v acr. Alfius i Dom.
 Goldere i ac. Godfune i ac. & dimid. Uluuinus i Dom.
 Aluricus i Dom. Goduuius i Dom. Pecoci Dom. Aluinus i Dom. Bristric i Dom. Mannuinus i Dom. Uluric i Dom. Godfune et dim. et vi ac. Brunuinus i Dom. Manuuinus i Dom. Edricus i Dom. Leueva i Dom. Onuinus
 i Dom. Alfstan ii Dom. Alvolt vii acr. & dimid. Manui-nus i Dom. & v acr. Aluuart i Dom. & xv acr. Lemerus x acr. Abbas Sti Eadmundi ii Dom. & xxx acr. Stanhart i Dom. Uluuinus i Dom. Scœuelle i Dom. Leuret i Dom.
 & vii acr. Alueva x acr. Ulfstan i Dom. & xiii acr. Leui-nus ii Dom. Leueva i Dom. Aluric i Dom. Godric i Dom. & ix acr. Ulric i Dom. & iv acr. Uluuinus i Dom.
 Aluuen i Dom. Tescho ii Dom. & xx acr. terre, & de-bet consuetud' Regi, numquam reddit. Uluricus iii acr.
 Stotinc i Dom. Herstan i Dom. Leuricus i Dom. & xlii
 acr. Edricus i Dom. Delai Dom. Humec ii Dom. Manuuinus ii Dom. Aluric ii Dom. Got Hugo vii acr. Leui-nus i Dom. & xxv acr. Dimidius Blancus iv Dom. Lef-fune i ac. Alueva i Dom. Leueva iii acr. Sueno i Dom.
 Ulfus i Dom. Alflet i Dom. Radulfus Pinel iv Dom. infra muros & v acr. & non reddidit consuetudinem, & indedit vadem. Orlaf iii acr. & dimid. Galterus ii Dom.
 Horrap i Dom. Aluuius i Dom. Stamburc i Dom. Ulfstan ii Dom. & v acr. Chentinc i Dom. Sprot i Dom. & v acr. Eduinus i Dom. & iii acr. Gotflet xx acr. Man-fune x acr. Godineg i Dom. & v acr. Uluueva v acr. Ulu-ric i Dom. & i ac. & dimid. Lorchebret i Dom. & x ac.
 Goldere i Dom.

Preter suam terram habent isti Burgenfes lii acr. prati.

Hamo Dapifer i Dom. & i Curiam, & i hidam Terre,
 & xv Burgenfes; et hoc tenuit Antecessor suus Thurburnus

T. R. E. Et hoc totam preter suam Aulam reddebat con-suetudinem T. R. E. Et adhuc reddunt Burgenfes de suis capitibus: set de terra sua & de hida quam tenent de Hamone non est reddita consuetudo. In Hida i Caruc. tunc, modo nulla. Tunc vii acr. prati, & modo. Et hoc totum valuit
 T. R. E. iv libr. Et quando similiter recip. & modo xl
 Solidos.

Mansune ii Dom. & iv acr. Goda i Dom. Eudo Dapi-fer v Dom. & xl acr. terre quas tenebant Burgenfes T.
 R. E. & reddebant omnem consuetudinem Burgenfium, modo vero non reddunt consuetudinem nisi de suis capitibus.
 Hoc totum cum quarta parte Ecclesie Sancti Petri reddit xxx solidos Hugo de Monteforti i Dom. quam tenuit Tempore Edwardi Godricus suus antecessor, & reddebat tunc consuetudinem Regis, modo non reddit nec postea reddidit ex quo Hugo habuit. Rogerus Pictaviensis i Dom. quam tenuit Alflet sua antecessor T. R. E. et reddebat consuetudinem Regis, modo non reddit, nec reddidit ex quo Rogerus habuit.

Eustachius Comes xii Dom. & unam quam occupavit Engelricus, & reddebant consuetudinem Regis T. R. E. modo non reddunt, nec reddiderunt ex quo Eustachius ha-buit, & valent xii Solidos.

Willielmus nepos Episcopi ii Dom. quas tenet Thurchillg. & reddit consuetudinem. Otto Aurifaber iii Dom.
 que jacent ad Esceldeforde quas tenebat Alueva Comitissa, & reddebant consuetudinem Regis, & modo non reddunt.
 Et hoc est de terra Regine. Abbas de Westmonasterio iiii
 Dom. quas T. R. E. tenuit Comes Haroldus ad Ferigens, & tunc reddebant consuetudinem, modo non reddunt. Goisfridus de Magnavilla ii Dom. quas tenuit Genius T. R. E. ad Erligam, & reddebant consuetudinem, modo non red-dunt. Sueno i Dom. quam tenuit Goda T. R. E. ad El-mestadam, & tunc reddebat consuetudinem Regis, modo reddunt nisi caput hominis.

Willielmus de UUatevilla i Dom. de sue none quam tenuit Robertus Wimarc T. R. E. & reddebat consuetudinem, modo non reddit. Turstanus UUiscart iii Dom. de Johanne filio UUaleram, & dimidium Hide terre quod T.
 R. E. tenere ii Burgenfes, & reddebant consuetudinem Regis, modo non reddunt Consuetudinem. Illa dim. hida valuit tunc x solidos, & quandoq; recipit vii solid. modo v solidos.

Ranulfus Piperellus v Dom. quas tenuit Ailmarg T. R. E. ad Terlingas, & reddebant consuetudinem, modo non red-dunt: quarum una extra muros est.

Radulfus Baignart i Dom. quam tenuit Ailmarg. Melc
 T. R. E. ad Tollenfum, tunc & reddebant consuetudinem, modo non.

Abbatissa de Berchingis' iii Dom. T. R. E. & tunc reddebat consuetudinem, modo non.

Albericus de Ver ii Dom. & iii acr. terre quas tenuit Uluuing. suus antecessor T. R. E. tunc reddebant consue-tudinem.

Dominium Regis in Colecestra; cii acr. terre, de quibus sunt x prati, in quibus sunt x Bordarii, preter cc et xl
 acr. inter pasturam & fructestam Et hoc totum jacet ad fir-mam Regis.

In Commune Burgenfium iiii^{xx} acre terre, & circa mu-rum viii perce, de quo toto per annum habent Burgenfes lx solidos ad fervitium Regis si opus fuerit; sin autem, in commune dividunt.

Est autem consuetudo, ut unoquoque anno, quinto de-cimo die post pascha, reddant Burgenfes Regii ii Marcas ar-genti, & hoc pertinent ad firmam Regis. Preterea de una-quaque Domo per annum Sex Denarios, que reddere potest ad victum Soldariorum Regis, vel ad expeditionem Terre vel Maris Et hoc fit si Rex soldarios habuerit vel expeditionem fecerit.

Et propter hos vi Denarios tota Civitas ex omnibus debitis reddebat T. R. E. xv libras & v solidos & iii denarios in unoquoque anno. De quibus reddebant Monetarii iv Libras T. R. E. modo reddunt iiii^{xx} libr. & iv Sextarios mellis, vel xl solidos iv—Et preter hoc c solid. Vice-comiti de gersuma. Et x solid. & viii denar. ad Prebenda-rios pascendos. Et preter hoc reddunt Burgenfes de Colecestra & de Melduna xx libras pro Moneta; Et hoc constituit Waleramus. Et advocant Regem adtutorem [adjutorem], quod condonavit illis x libras. Et ten' Walchelinus Epo querit ab illis xl libras.

In Colecestra est quedam Ecclesia Sancti Petri, quam ten' ii Presbiteri T. R. E. in elemosina Regis. Cui adjacent ii hide terre, in quibus erant ii Caruc. & modo. Tunc iii Bordarii modo iv. Tunc iii Servi modo ii. Tunc xii acr. prati, & modo. Tunc i molendinum, & modo. Tunc ii Dom. in Burgo, & modo. Tunc totum valuit xxx solid.
 modo xlviii solidos. De hac Elemosina reclamat Robertus filius Radulfi de Haungis iii partes, & Eudo Dapifer tenet tenet quartam: Et T. R. E. reddebant consuetudinem, & modo non reddit.

Fol. 4, &c.

Stanewegam tenuit Haroldus T. R. E. pro i manerio & pro v hidis et dimid. modo habet Rex pro totidem. Tunc xii villani, post & modo ix. Tunc vi Brodari, post & modo ix. Semper vi Servi & iii Caruc. in Dominio. Tunc xiii Caruc. hominum, post & modo ii & dimid. Semper i molendinum. Silva c porcis. xii—acr. prati. Et xx animalia & lix porci, & cclx oves, & xi runcini.

Est etiam i Bereuita de ii hidis & dimid. & xiii acr. que vocat Legra, & jacet in isto manerio. Semper vii villani, & ii bordarii, & iv servi, & ii Carucate in Dominio. Tunc ii Caruce hominum, post & modo i & dimid.

Adhuc pertinet i Berewita, que vocatur Lessendena, de iv hidis. Tunc vi villani, post et modo v. Tunc x Bordarii, post & modo xii. Tunc iv Servi, post & modo v. Semper ii Carucate in dominio. Tunc iv caruce hominum, post, & modo iii. Silva c porcis, xviii acr. prati. Modo ii molendina. Et xvi Socmanni de ii hidis & xxxvi acr. Semper ii Caruc. & dimid. Tunc valuit totum xxii libr. modo Petrus inde recipit xxxiii libr. & iii libr. de gersuma. De hoc manerio tulit Reimundg. Giraldg. i vill de dim. hid. et reddebat consuetudinem. Semp. ibi est dim Car'. et val. x fol. Hanc terra' tenuit Normannus, et reddidit consuet. Sed Raimundg. abstulit. Et Rog. similiter. Et Rog. Pictav' accep. i vill'm tenent' i ac. Et Ingelricg. abstulit i. femina' Bricteva tenente' xviii ac. et reddebat unoquoque anno huic maner' xxxii nomos.

N^o. IV.

Charge of fitting out the Foresight of London in 1588, for the service of her Majestie upon the seas, begun the 18th of April.

	l.	s.	d.
FOR 14 ells of Canvas at 6 s. 8 d. the ell, ———— 4 l. 13 s. 4 d.	5	5	10
Silke and making the Auncient ———— 12 s. 6 d.
Three yards of Fustian for the socket, and a bag to put the Auncient in, ————	0	4	0
For painting the Towne's armes in the Auncient, ————	0	18	6
For 2 mynnyons and 1 facon of yron wayinge 31 C. ½ at 10 s. the C. ———— 15 l. 15 s.	18	19	0
For the carriages of them 32 s. and for bindinge the same carriages, 32 s.
For carreinge the peces to the assaye at Ratlyffe, and tryinge them, ————	0	10	6
For 16 pounds of powder, 16 s. 3 shott, 12 d.—2 ladells, 2 sponges, and 1 wood-hooke, 8 s.	1	5	0
For 2 formars, 12 d.—6 quyres of Royall paper, 6 s. and 12 Cartiges of plate, 12 s.	0	19	0
For 12 muskets, with 12 collars of bandelers, ————	13	6	0
For Canvis for Carteges, ————	0	12	0
For 3 barrells of powder weyinge 327 l. at 11 d. ½ the pownde, 15 l. 3 s. 4 d. and 8 barrells of powder weyinge 867 l. at 12 d. the pownde, 43 l. 7 s. for caske for the same powder and heddinge the barrells, 8 s. 6 d.	58	18	10
For Crofs-barr-shott, 3 C. 3 quars. 14 l. at 12 s. the C. 3 l. 17 s. 6 d.—Round Shott, 6 C. 1 qu. at 10 s. the C. 3 l. 2 s. 6 d.	7	0	0
For 6 black bylls, 12 s.—6 harchets, 5 s. 6 d. 16 pyeks, 16 s.—50 pounds of match, 12 s. 6 d.	2	6	0
For one great melting ladle, 2 s.—a dozen and a half of candle, 10 s. 7 d.—a fyrkin, 6 d.	0	13	1
For 17 C. of 6 d. nayles, 8 s. 6 d.—6 C. of 4 d. nayles, 2 s.—3 C. of 8 d. nayles, 2 s.—4 C. of 2 d. nayles, 8 d.—3 C. of 20 d. nayles, 5 s.	0	18	2
For 3 dozen of greane severall bands, 18 s. one thousand of Billet, 12 s.—8 thyn deales, 8 s.—for wracks, 3 s. 6 d.—3 pounds of candle, 12 d.—for a mast, 53 s. 4 d.—and a barrel of pitche for the boate, 7 s.	5	2	10
For other implements and furniture of the ship, ————	19	15	7

And they paid the following sums, for a Month's wages.

To the Captain, ————	3	7	6
the Master, ————	2	5	0
the Master's Mate, ————	1	10	0

three youngsters, 5 s. each, ————	0	15	0
two Quarter-masters 17 s. 6 d. each, ————	1	15	0
the Steward of the ship, ————	0	17	6
the Cooke, ————	0	17	6
the Cooke's mate, ————	0	13	9
the Gunner's mate ————	0	11	3
the Swabber, ————	0	13	9
the Carpenter, ————	0	17	6
the Boatswain's mate, ————	0	13	9
To each common Sailor, ————	0	10	0

The whole charges of this ship, were, 296 14 0

N^o. V.

The Bailiffs Letter to the Earl of Leicester.

OUR most humble duties premised. Right honourable, we have by thys our Offycer sent unto your Lordship a horse-load of our Colchester-Oysters, beinge most hartelye soye we have not any better thinge to present your Lordship, seinge as your Lordship hathe byn fuche a continuall patron to our Towne, that we account by your Lordship's meanes we have the fruition of our Libertyes, which others heretofore have sowght to deprive us of: Desiringe your Lordship to accept thys our simple remembrance in good parte. And whereas heretofore the division and controversyes, which have beene amonge ourselves have occasioned your Lordship to mislyek of our Towne (as justly we did deserve); the same, praysed be God, now are abandoned, and unitie hathe supplied the place, as by the quyet and peaceable late election of Bayliffs and other offycers is shewed. We therefore shall most humbly beseeche your Lordship to continue our good Lord, and to conceyve the best of us notwithstanding any complaint shal be inforced against us untill our aunswer therto be herde, and that your Lordship wyll have us in remembrance when any Commission shall procede for any affayers within our Towne, that the Bayliffs and Justices of our Town with Mr Morice our Towne-clark might be in commission therefore, the want whereof here of late hathe byn greate discountenance to the Bayliffs, and they hardelye delt withall by the Commissioners, to the animatinge of the inferior sort of our Towne, and the great prejudice of our Liberties; and we shall alwayes praye to the Almightye for the preservation of your Lordship in all felicitie to the years of Nestor: Thus we humbly take our leave of your Lordship. Colchester this fowerthe of September 1579 [B].

Your Lordship's most humble to command,
To the right honourable our verie good Lord the Robert Mott, }
Earle of Leicester. Tho. Cock, } Bayliffs.

They wrote a Letter, the same day, and very near in the same words, to Sir Francis Walsyngham: Both their Answers follow, copied from the originals.

The Earl of Leycester's Letter.

"After my right hartye comendacons. I have receyved your lres and the oysters you sent me, and do very hartelye thancke you for them, and for your often courtesies in visiting me many tymes with the lyke, which as occasion shall serve, I will not forgeat to requyte. Touching your towne my affection is and shalbe as it hath bene allwayes, viz. very ready to do any thing I may for it, And so shall you well perceyve as any occasion shalbe offred wherein I may stand it in steade. In the mean tyme gladd to heare of your good quyet, which I wish longe to continewe, I thus bid you right hartily farewell. From the Court the vith of September 1579.

Your very loving frende,
R. LEYCESTER."

Sir Francis Walsyngham's Letter.

"After my hartie comendations. I have received your letter of the fourthe of this p'nt, and am verie glad therby to understand that all your controversies be so well appeaced and that you are growen to so good an unitie amonge yourselves: the continewance wherof I greatly wyshe, as the only thinge that shall make your towne to prosper, and to bee well thought of of all men. Towching your liberties, for that in other Incorporations I have seen sometymes so muche standinge uppon Charters and Priviledges, that hir Majesties necessarie service hathe therby been hindred, I would not wishe you except it be in some great poynt that may towche your towne deeply to stand uppon them: notwithstanding I will be carefull for the preservation of the same as farre forthe as conveniently I maye in the direction of Comissions and all kynd of service from this place. So withe my hartie thanckes for your present of oysters I bid you farewell. From the Court at Greenwich the fyfte of September 1579.

[B] From a Copy of Mr. R. Symnell's, Deputy-Town-clerk.

Your verie loving frend,
FRA. WALSHINGHAM."

Nº. VI.

Privy-seal of K. Charles I. for the Defence of the Northern Coasts.

CHARLES R.

TRUSTIE and wel beloved wee greet you well. The many and grievous complaints presented unto us by our loving Subjects of that Towne of Newcastle upon Tyne, and others inhabiting the Northerne Coasts of this our Realme of England, touching the great spoiles and outrages committed upon their persons, ships, and goods by the men of warre of Dunkerk, to the undoing of them in their particular estates, and the hinderance of their Trade in generall, have mooved us, out of our tender Care over our Subjects, to take their said Complaints into our princely and serious Consideration; And being desirous (as much as the present Condition of our Affaires can permitt) to provide timely remedies for the preventing of the like Inconveniences hereafter; Wee have in these tymes of our owne wants, and other pressing occasions for the publique defence of our Kingdomes, condiscended to graunt and assigne a good part of the Revenues of our Crowne accrewing unto us by the forfeitures and fynes of Recufants of all our Counties by North Trent, to sett out shipping for the guarding and defending of the Coasts aforesaid, and the repelling and frustrating of the Enemies designes. But forasmuch as we conceive that the proportion by us allotted for this service, will not be sufficient to accomplish the worke intended, which doth much concerne the good of that Towne; Wee have therefore ben pleased to give way, that a Composition or Contribution of Sixe pence upon every Chaldron of Coales to be transported from Newcastle and Sunderland, into any other part of our domynions, or any forraigne part beyond the seas, may be levied by your owne free consent and agreement, to supply that which may fall short of our revenues upon the forfeitures of Recufants aforesaid, and to be employed for that speciall service, and to noe other end. And as wee have found you forward in all other occasions of our service, soe wee doubt not your readines in this, wherein your owne livelyhood, safetie and benefit is soe nearly concerned. Given under our Signett at our Pallace of Westminster, the nine and twentieth day of May in the third yeare of our Reigne.

Nº. VII.

Charter of K. Richard I. being the first granted to this Corporation.

RIC'US Dei gra' Rex Angl' Dux Normann' Aquitann' Comes And' Archiep'is Ep'is Abb'ib' Comitib' Baron' Justic' Vicecomitib' Sen' Prepositis & o'ib' Ballivis & fidelib' suis totius t're sue cit' mare & ultra sal'tm. Scia'tis nos concessisse & p'senti confirmasse Carta n'ra Burgenfib' n'ris Colecest' qd ip'i ponant de se ip'is Ballivos quoscunq; volu'int, & Justic' ad s'vanda placita Corone n're, & ad pl'itanda eadem pl'ita infra Burgu' suu'. Et qd. nullus alius sit inde Justic' nisi quem eleg'int. Et quod non pl'itent de aliquo pl'ito extra muros ejusdem Burgi. Et sint quieti de Scoth & de Loth & de Danegeld' & de Murdr'. Et ubicunq; fu'mo'ti fu'int coram Justic' n'ris errantib' licet acquietare eos p' legales ho'ies de ip'o Burgo. Et quod nullus eor' duellum faciat. Et si aliquis eor' implacitatus fu'it de pl'to Corone n're, p' sacrum quod ei indicatu' fu'it in Burgo se disfrac'onet. Et infra muros Burgi nullus hospitet' de familia n'ra neq; de alt'a vi aut lib'aco'e maresc. Et sint quieti p' totam Angl' & p' Portus maris de theoloneo & lastag' de passag' de pontag' & de o'ib' aliis consuetudinib' o'ib' temporib' & in o'ib' locis. Et nullus Burgenfuu' indicet' de mise'c'dia pecunie, nisi ad suam guerram, scilt. centum solidos, in Hundro' suo vel quolibet alio pl'ito infra muros Burgi; et de illa mise'c'dia sit afforatus juramento p'fator' Burgenfuu' & amplius non sit meskening'. Et volum' qd. habeant o'es t'ras & debita & vadimonia quicunq; ea ip'is debeat. Et si quis theoloneum vel consuetudinem ab eis cep'it, iidem Burgenfes capiant de Civitate, vel de Burgo, vel de Villa, in qua theoloneu' vel consuetudo capta fu'it, quantum Burgenfis d'ci Burgi pro theoloneo dedit vel quantum de dampno pro hoc h'uerit. Et p'cipim' qd. illi qui eis debita debent, bene & plenarie ea ip'is reddant, vel apud Colecest'. disfrac'onent qd reddere non debeant: Et si debita reddere nolu'int, & ad disfrac'ond' Colecest' non ven'int, Burgenfes n'ri quib' debita illa debent' capiant Naniu' de Comitatu illo in quo manent illi qui debita illa debent quousq; illis debita illa p'solvant, vel Colecest' disfrac'onent qd non debeant. Nullus Forestarius potestatem h'eat aliquem ho'iem infra Baulencam vexare, set om'es p'fati Burgenfes n'ri venari possint infra Baulencam Colecest' vulpem & leporem & catum. Et Pescagium suu' h'eant a North ponte usq; ad Westnesse. Et a North ponte usq; ad Westnesse, quicunq; t'ras adjacentes possideat, Consuetudines aque & ripe ex utraq; p'te h'eant d'ci Burgenfes n'ri, ad p'ficiendam firmam n'ri, sicut h'uerunt tempore d'ni Regis p'ris n'ri, & tempore H. avi ejus. Et p'hibem' ne foru' Colecest' aliquo foro adult'o impediatur iet sint fora & consuetudines in tali statu quali fuerunt confirmate juramento Burgenfuum n'ror, Colecest' coram Justic' erantib' D'ni Regis p'ris n'ri. Test' H. Dunelm' H. Coventr' H. Sar' Ep'is. Willo' de S'to Joh'e. Joh'e Maresc'. Will'o Maresc'. Hugon' Bard'. Galfr' fil' Petri. Dat' p' manu' Will'i de Longo Campo Cancell' n'ri, Elien' Electi, apud Dovor' vi die Decemb' anno primo regni n'ri.

Nº. VIII.

Confirmation of the Grant of the Tithes of St Botolph's to All-Saints.

OMNIBUS Christi fidelibus ad quos hoc presens Scriptum pervenerit Edwardus North et Thomas Pope Milites, Executores Testamenti five ultime Voluntatis Thome Awdely dum vixit prenobilis Ordinis Garterii militis, Domini Audelye de Waldin et Domini Cancellarii Anglie, ac Thomas Audeley Armiger frater dicti Domini Awdelie, Salutem. In consideratione quarundam Convention. Concessionum et agreamentorum inter ipsum et parochianos Ecclesie parochialis Omnium Sanctorum factarum, Cum dictus Domin. Awdely, in vita sua infra villam Colcest'. in Com. Essex, dederit, concesserit, vendiderit, barganizaverit, & confirmaverit Rectori ejusdem Ecclesie parochialis, & Successoribus suis imperpetuum, omnes et singulas Decimas tam Feni et Bosci ac Frumenti quam aliorum generum seu specierum quorumcunque, infra villam Colcestrie predictae, vel alibi, que sibi ratione Dissolutionis five Resignationis Domus five Prioratus Sancti Botulphi infra dictam villam Colcestrie pertinebant: Sciatis igitur Nos prenomatos Edwardum North, Thomam Pope, Edmundum Marten, Thomam Gymlett, et Thomam Awdely Armigerum, in majorem et perfectiorem complementum, performationem, et executionem dictarum Conventionum, Concessionum, et Agreamentorum; Nec non in consideratione ac pro summa Quadraginta Librarum sterlingorum, per Richardum Awilde et Willielmum Hutton, Gardianos nunc predictae Ecclesie Omnium Sanctorum, prenominato Domino Thome Awdely in vita sua solutarum, in plena perquisitione et emptione Decimarum predictarum; prefato Rectori et Successoribus suis imperpetuum, dedisse, vendidisse, concessisse, et hoc presenti Scripto nostro confirmasse Roberto Plumpton Clerico, Rectori Ecclesie parochialis Omnium Sanctorum ville Colcestrie predictae, et Successoribus suis, totas illas Decimas predictas infra villam Colcestrie predictae ac alibi. Habendum, gaudendum, tenendum, & percipiendum omnes et singulas Decimas predictas prefato Roberto Plumpton Clerico, et Successoribus suis Rectoribus Ecclesie Omnium Sanctorum ville Colcestrie predictae pro tempore existentibus imperpetuum. Et ego vero predictus Thomas Awdely Armiger, et heredes mei, omnia et singula premissa superius specificata contra me prefatum Thomam Awdelye Armigerum, et heredes meos, prefato Roberto Plumpton Clerico et Successoribus suis predictis, warrantizabimus et imperpetuum defendemus per presentes. In cujus rei testimonium nos predicti Edwardus North, Thomas Pope, Edmundus Marten, Thomas Gymlett, & Thomas Awdelye Armiger, huic presenti scripto nostro Sigilla nostra apposuimus. Datum quarto decimo die Maii, anno regni Serenissimi atque invictissimi Principis et Domini nostri Henrici Octavi Dei gratia Anglie, Francie et Hibernie berle Regis, fidei Defensoris, &c. et in terra Ecclesie Angli-cane et Hibernice supremi Capituli Tricesimo sexto.

Edward North, Thomas Barbar,
Thomas Pope, Thomas Awdelye.
Edmund Marten,

Enrolled, at the desire of Richard Symnell, Gent. one of the Aldermen of this Town, and one of the Parishioners of All-Saints; and of John Walforde Rector of the same.
(Rot. Cur. 3 & 4 Jac. I. rot. 12. in dorso.)

N^o. IX.

Essex. ff. Inter Inquisitiones & Extent. de anno xxiiii Regine Elizabeth in Scaccario remanentes, ac in custodia Rememoratoris Regine ibidem existentes, inter alia continetur ut sequitur, scilicet,

INQUISITIO indentata capta apud Colcestr. in Co-mitatu predicto, coram Willielmo Drury Armigero Legum Doctore, Edmundo Pyrton, & Thoma Tay Armigeris, Commissionariis Domine Regine, virtute Commissionis dicte Domine Regine sub sigillo Scaccarii ejusdem Domine Regine, gerentis dat. 28^o die Maii, anno regni Domine Regine nunc xxiiii, prefatis Willielmo, Edmundo, Thome; nec non quibusdam Johanni Wentworthe, & Roberto Gurdon, armigeris, directe, & huic Inquisitioni annexe, 21^o die Julii, anno regni Domine Elizabeth, Dei gratia Anglie, Francie, & Hibernie Regine, Fidei defensoris, &c. xxiiii^o. supradicto: per Sacrum Willielmi Munge generosi, Johis Ball, Johis Porter, Anthonii Rampton, Willi Cosen, Galfr. Newton, Roberti Huberd, Johis Newton, Thome Lepingwell, Roberti Reade, Johis Warren, Barthol. Jennyns, Robti
Mourdon, Leon. Pyke, & Ricar' Patten. Qui dicunt super Sacramentum suum, Quod omnia & singula Domus, Edificia, Redditus, Terre, Tenementa, & cetera Hereditamenta que in scedula presentibus annexa continentur, fuerunt nuper, ante pretenfam dissolutionem, five relictionem ejusdem, & sunt in presenti, partes & parcelle possessionum Hospitalis beate Marie Magdalene, in suburbis ville Colcestr. Et quod eadem nuper fuerunt, & tempore captionis istius Inquisitionis sunt, in tenuris & occupationibus separalium personarum. Ac etiam quod eisdem metis, limitibus, & bun-dis separantur & includuntur. Ac quod sunt in presenti an-nui valoris & estimationis quemadmodum in dicta scedula presentibus annexa continetur & declaratur. Et quod nulla alia neque plures Domus, Edificia, Redditus, Terræ, Tenementa aut alia Hereditamenta dicto Hospitali pertinent aut spectant ad eorum notitiam. In cujus rei testimonium, uni parti hujus inquisitionis penes prefatos Juratos residenti, dicti Willielmus Drury, Edmundus Pyrton, & Thomas Tay, Commissionarii, sigilla sua apposuerunt: alteri vero parti ejusdem Inquisitionis, Commissioni predictæ annexæ, tam prenominati Willielmus Drury, Edus Pyrton, & Thomas Tey, Commissionarii, quam predicti Juratores, sigilla sua appo-suerunt. Dat. apud Colcestr. predicto die, & anno supradicto.

Willm. Drury.
Edm. Pyrton.
Tho. Teye.

By vertue of this Commission hereunto annexed, we the Commissioners undernamed, did, the 21st day of July, in the 24th year of the Queen Majesties reigne, enter and take quyet possession of the Lands called Clynghot, with all the growndes adjoyninge and belonginge to the same, lying within the parish of Grynstede by Colchester, and ymmediately delyvered quyet possession and seafyn of the same unto William Wytkinson Master of the Hospital of St Mary Magdalen.

Item the 28th day of July, in the year aforesaid, we did likewise enter and take possession of the feilde called Southe-feld, and of two acres and a half of Land lying in Magdalen-feld in the parish of St in Colchester, and ymmediately delivered quiet possession and seisin thereof unto the said William Wilkinson.

William Drury.
Edmund Pyrton.
Thomas Teye.

Essex. ff. A Scedula indentata containing all such Lands, Tenements, Rents, and Hereditaments, as the Jurors, whose Names are specified in the Inquisition annexed, did find upon their othes to belong to the Hospitall of Mary Magdalen.

Imprimis, we do present and fynde one lytle Crofte of Land, adjoyning to the Howse of the Hospitall, containing by estimation one acre and a half, called the Hospytall-yard, and is worth by yeer above all reprises, vi s.

Item, one feild called Mawdelyn feild in the occupation of Benjamyn Clere jun. containing by estimation v. acres;
the one side thereof abbutteth upon Mawdelyn-lane on the Este, the other abbutteth upon the land of Robert Smythe toward the West; One other Hed thereof abbutteth upon the Crofte adjoyning to the said Hospitall on the Southe;
and the other Head abbutteth on the land of Benjamyn Clere on the Northe, and is worthe by yeer above all reprises every acre thereof, iii s.

Item, certeyn grownde somtyme called the Grove, nowe divided into two partes, containing by estimation two acres; and one felde called the Grove feild containing by estimation
v acres; whereof one hed abbutteth upon Mawdlyn-lane on the West, the other hed upon the medowe belonging somtyme to the late dissolved Monastery of St John Baptist in Colchester called Teynes medowe against the Este; one side thereof abutting on the land of Robert Smythe on the Sowthe, and the other hed on the land somtyme in the tenure of William Hawkes on the Northe, and is worth by yeer above all reprises for every acre, vi s. viii d.

Item, one Ofsyer yard containing by estimation three roodes, lying in lengthe agaynst the ryver towarde the Northe, adjoyning upon Pytman Washe on the Este, and is worth by yeer above all reprises, x s.

Item, one peece of land medowe, containing by estimation one half acre. One hed abutteth upon the foresaid Ofsyer yard towards the Northe; and is worthe by yeer above all reprises, v s.

Item, one medowe called Mawdelyn medowe, containing by estimation iii acres and a half, abutting upon the Moore on the Southe in the occupation of William Turner, and the other side abbutteth upon the ryver towards the Northe, and is worthe by yeer above all reprises, iii l. 10 s.

Item, one parcell called the Moore, containing by estimation iii acres, adjoyning to the said Medow on the Northe, and one side thereof abbutteth upon a parte of Robert Lambert's Land on the Southe and is worthe by the yeer for every acre above all reprises, x s.

Item, one other Ofsyer yarde, lying in length against the ryver Northe, and the other syde abbutteth agaynst the Parsonage-Land of St Leonardes Southe, sometyme parcell of Mawdelyn medowe, containing by estimation Three Roods, and is worth by yeer above all reprises, xv s.

Item, one other crofte of Land called Hithe acre; containing by estimation iii roodes, whereof one head abbutteth upon the Moore Northe, and the other hed upon the highway leading from Colchester to the Hythe, Southe; and is worth by the yeer above all reprises, v s.

Item, Southefelde being errable land, containing by estimation xiiii acres and a half, whereof the one end abbutteth upon the lane called Gate-Lane, Este, and the other end upon Canwick-Lane, West; one side thereof abbutteth on the Queenes Land Southe, and the other syde upon the Town Land, and upon Robert Byrdes Land Northe; and is worthe by yeer for every acre above all reprises, iii s.

Item, one acre of land lying in Golden felde on the lane leading to Canwick Crofs towards the Northe, somtyme longing to Mary Mawdelyn as we are enformed; and is worthe by yeer above all reprises, iii s.

Item, one peece of errable land lying in the greate feild called Mawdelyn feild, on the Southe side of Mawdelyn strete, containing by estimation ii acres, whereof one hed abbutteth upon Canwick-lane, Este, and the other hed upon a foote pathe West; and is worthe by yeer above all reprises for every acre, iii s.

Item, in the same felde is half an acre of errable land belonginge to Mawdelyn, whereof one hed abbutteth upon the Howses in Mawdelyn strete on the Northe, and the other hed upon the ii acres aforesaid on the Southe; and is worthe by the yeer above all reprises, ii s.

Item, one parcell of land called Kitchen acre, neere unto a Lane called Gould Navell Lane towards the Northe; and is worthe by the yeer above all reprises, vi s.

Item, certeyn Lands called Clynghoe, with other parcells called Dayfeld, Ayefield als. Layfeld, Laydown, Eeland, le Hope, Appelhot, le Holme, and Asheds, whereof there is two acres of Marshe; conteynge in the hole by estimation xlvi acres, whereof the pasture-grownde is worthe by the yeere

yeere above all reprises iiii s. the acre, the Marthe above all reprises vi s. the acre.

Item, iiii acres of wood lying in Layer de la Hay in the tenure of Alex. Digby, abutting upon a Woode called Chestewoode, Southe, and upon a Woode somtyme called Allens Woode, Northe, and upon Spittel-Hethe, Este, and upon Chestewood, West, and is worthe by yeer above all reprises, viii s.

Item, Ten acres of wood in Layer de la Hay, somtyme in the tenure of Ifack Allen of Peldon, butting Southe upon a wood somtyme in the tenure of Alex. Digby, and upon Olyvers medowe Northe, and upon Spittel-hethe, Este, and upon a wood of Mr. Teyes, West, and renteth by the yeer to the Hospitall, v s.

Item, one peece of Pasture in Layer de la Hay, called the Severall, containing by estimation vi acres, abutting upon Spycers on the Este, and upon Allens Grove, West; and upon Spittel hethe, Southe; and the hed abbutteth upon the Demeans of Mr Tey on the Northe toward the River; and is worthe by the yeer for every acre, for all profits, iiii s. iii d.

Item, one Heathe in Layer de la Hay called Spittel-Heathe, abutteth toward the Southe upon Mr Teye's comon and Spittel Crosse on the Southe of the same Hethe, and upon the Severall towards the Northe, and upon Mrs Awdeley's comon towards the Este, and upon a Grove somtyme in the tenure of Alex. Digby, West.

Item, one peece of Pasture abutting on the Scrobb, containing by estimation iiii acres dim. whereof one side abbutteth on Homerlane, Southe, and the other side abbutteth on another Lane toward the Northe; and is worthe for every acre by the yeere, iii s. iii d.

Item, one parcell of Pasture in felde, containing by estimation iiii acres, whereof the Hed abbutteth upon a Lane leading from Homer-lane towards Maldon-lane, Northe, and the other Hed upon Clerke's-land, Southe, and is worthe by yeere every acre, iii s. iii d.

Item, one peece of pasture in Ardeley, containing in lengthe ix perches, and in breadthe v perches, abutting upon Bullocks-wood Southe, upon John Neverd's Lands Northe, and upon the highway West, and upon Callesfeld West; and is worthe by yeer for every acre above all reprises, xii d.

Item, ii acres and a half of errable Land in Ardeley, abutting as it is abovefaide, and renteth yeerely to the said Hospitall, ii d.

Item, one shop and one Chamber over it in Colchester, now in the tenure of Ezechiell Cook, which is worthe by the yeer above all reprises, xx s.

Item, ii Fische stalles in the Markett place in Colchester, now in the tenure of Woodes wief, and Johnson's wief being worthe by yeer above all reprises, ii s.

Item, one Garden plott late in the tenure of Richard Barrington, containing by estimation xx perches, lying on the Sowthe side of Barrington's Howse, and is worthe by the yeere above all reprises, xii d.

Item, there is a fayer to the said Hospitall yeerely dewr-inge Mawdelyn even and Mawdelyn day, graunted by the Charter of King Richard the first, the yeerely profits whereof beinge uncerteyn to our knowledge.

Item, the Hospitall howse, and certayn Gardens lying betwene the Howse and the Church-yearde of St Mary Mawdelyn.

Item, certain Quit-rents belonging to the same Hospitall, the certeyn valew whereof we knowe not.

Item, one yeerely rent, going yeerely out of a Manor in Brightlingsfey, and paid by the Quenes Majesties Receaver unto the Hospitall, vi l.

N^o. X.

Two of Chancellor Audeley's Letters.

Bibl. Cotton. Cleopatr. E. IV. 116.

AFTER my right herty comendacon to your Lordship, beinge enformed by Mastr. Pollard, that the King's majesty myndeth to reteyne and kepe in his graces hands, the late monestery of seynt Johns of Colcestour, I cannot but therat be satisfied, and in al thyngs that shal be his magestes pleasure. And yet your Lordship knowith, that fyrst savinge the Howse and Parks at seynt Ofyes by his graces own assignement, duryng his highnes plesure, and after the Howse of Seynt Johns, and the lands nere adjoynnyng by your means apoynted to me by his highnes, and now to forego al this shalbe no litell losse to my poor honeste and estimation, considering this to be in the Contree where I was borne and most part browt up, and also these thyngs to ly nere my poore howse and lands, that I fyrst bylded and bowt, but his graces goodnes hath be so gretly shewyd to me, that whatsoever his highnes plesure ys or shalbe, I am and ever will be therewith content, for eny other respects in the world. pray ues your good lordship to helpe to further my sute to his Majeste for an exchange, accordyng to a bill hereyn enclosyd, and if his grace wold be my good lord therin, I will never hereafter trouble his Mageste for eny sute to his gravis charyte for myself, but to holde me full satisfied in all thyngs, and this exchange well ponderyd, ys more profitable to his highnes than to me; for I leve the reversion in his highnes, and I do it not nor wolde trobil his highnes with yt, but that the thyngs that I desire ly so nere and mixt with my othir londs, fythen his mageste made me baron, and fythen I maryed my wyff, I never axyd eny thyng, and I am not abashyd, but that I hope by your meanys, his highnes will be so gracious lord to me to graunt this sute. the overplus of his gravis londe passith not 21 l. or litell more above myne, and for that his highnes shall stil save the reversion of al that I shal have of his grace; and if his gravis plesure be to graunt me this, I wil leve my sute for the Howse of Seynt John's, and never trobill his Mageste for that, nor none other thyng to his highnes charge hereafter. I maryed at his Magesties commaundment, and his grace sayd, that he wold consider it, and what I shud have had otherwise, your lordship knowith for avancement of myn Heyrs. but yet I repent never a whytt my mariage, but have gret cause to thanke the Kyng's Mageste for enduyng me to it, for assuredly I have happened of oon moche to my contentacion and honeste. And if God send us childern whiche I desire, the Kyng's Mageste hath made me a Baron, and al my londe exceedith not clerely viii. c. l. wherat I am right wel content, praying your good lordships to-morrow or Monday, to move the King's Mageste in this my poor sute, and to make min excuse, that I wayte not upon his highnes accordyng to my most bounden dute. For I assure your lordships, I am so trobilled in my right foote that I cannot stepp nor goo; the payn ys a lytel flaked, but the forenes and styffnes remayneth. And thus syttyng in my chayer with a fore foote, I trobill your lordshipp with a longe letter, praying your estones to assaye this my pour sute, now oon of these 2 dayes in myn absens, beyng in good hoope, that the Kyng's Mageste wyl graciously here yt, and althoughe it be not any gret profitable thyng, yet it shall be moche to my comfort, honeste, and estymacion; and also a full satisfaction for ever; and thus fare your good lordshipp as hertely wel as I wold myself, scribelid this Satyrday with a fore and akyng foote, your lordshippes assured to his pour,

Thomas Audeley, Chancellor.

I SEND to your lordshipp a byll heryn enclosyd, of suche londs as I desire of the King's Highnes, and of suche londs as his grace shule have of me; my londs, the decanary of Seynt Botulphe, ly emongs the londs of Seynt Jones on the bakfyd of the howse. my parsonages be symyler good and never emprowed, and in every of them ther ys a Vycare endowed, having good lyvyng consydyeryng the Kyng's Highnes makyth bishoppes, they be as good as eny temporal londs for them; for on my fayth they be very good and well payen, and if the yeres were owt, I could have gret fynes for them; as for Est Donyland lyeth a gret wey from Seynt Johns, and I have a Myll there of myne owen, and my londs mixt with it. and as for Chetford, I have xvii. yeris in yt, and it lyeth by me at Walde fferr from any of the King's londs. My lord, I pray you take payn for me herin as an earnest freind, and make an end of this my sute, and I wil giff you xl. li. i of redy mony with my herty good will and vyce, that may lye in my liel pour as soon as ever my bil shalbe signed, your lordshippes assured,

Thomas Audeley, Chancelour. [C].

[C] The Lands his Letters referred to, were
The demeans somtyme belonging to Seint Botulphe in Colchest' lyeng in the towne of Colchester, adjoynnyng with the demeans and londs in seint Johns in Colchest'; as' worthe by yere clerlie, xiii l. xv s. v d. ob.

Edmonton.
Enfield and High East' parsonages,
Chetford Manor and Parsonage,
East Donyland Manor: Which he estimated at 100 l. per ann. and more: And proposed to exchange for some others.

Anno 21^o Jacobi Reg. Novemb. 8.

An Act for repaireing and mayntaineyng the Haven, River, and Channell unto the Burrough and Towne of Colchester, and paveing of the saide Towne.

FORasmuch as the Antient Burrough and towne of Colchester hath bene, and yet is now, inhabited and well replenished with People useing the Trades and Misteries of Cloathing, and † making of old and new Draperies; unto which said Burrough hath bene, and yet is, a Haven, River, and Channell running, which of late yeares hath bene so filled, choaked, and stopped up, betwene the Mill there, called the Hyth-Mill, and Rowhedge, within the parish of East Donyland, that Ships and other Vessels cannot come up to the accustomed Landing-place, called The New Hyth, as in times past have been used, and is like daily more and more to decaye, if some speedy course and remedy be not taken and provided, for the repaying and amending thereof; And for that the Charge to repayr and amend the same is soe great and chargeable, as that the Inhabitants there are not able to performe the same, without some helpe of, and from such as shall come and trade with shipping and merchandises, and arrive within the said Haven, River, and Channell, at Rowhedge in the said parish of East Donyland, or at any other place or places between Rowhedge aforesaid and the said Mill, called the Hyth-mill: In consideration whereof, and to the intent that the said Haven, River, and Channell, as well for the good of the Inhabitants of the said Towne of Colchester, as also such as shall trade, and pass thither and from thence with merchandizes, may be repaired and maintained: Bee it therefore enacted by the authority of this present Parliament,—That during the time and space of Fifteen yeares next comeing, from and after the end of this present Session of Parliament, the Bayliffs of the said towne of Colchester for the time being, their deputies, officers, or assigns, may receive and take; and that all and every such person and persons as shall arrive, and come in unto the said Haven, River, and Channell aforesaide, with ships, hoys, vessels, crayers, or bottoms, with merchandizes and other goods, and wares; and shall there, at Rowhedge aforesaide, or any other place or places within the said Haven, River, or Channell, between Rowhedge aforesaide, and the said Mill, called the Hyth-mill, load, or unload, any ship, hoy, crayer, boat, or any other vessels or part thereof, shall pay unto the said Bayliffs of the said towne of Colchester for the time being, their deputies, officers, or assigns, for and towards the reparations and mayntenance of the said Haven, River, and Channell, (except it be for the provision of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and all ships, hoys, vessels, or crayers, as shall bring only into the said haven, river, or channell within the limits aforesaid, Sea coales and Grindstones from Newcastle, and Fish of their own taking in the seas) by the master, shipper, or owner of every such ship, hoy, crayer, boat, or other vessels, all and every such summe or summes of money as are hereafter particularly expressed: Imprimis, For every Tun of the Burden of such ship, hoy, crayer, boat, or vessel, being of the burthen of Six Tuns and upwards (except before excepted) 3*d.* of lawfull money of England: For every Lighter, 2*d.* For every smaller Vessel, 1*d.* of lawfull money of England. For every Tun of Goods, Wares, and Merchandises, other than for such Goods, Wares, and Merchandises, as are hereafter particularly mentioned, 6*d.* And for all and every Tun and other burden of Goods, Wares, and Merchandises in this present Act particularly mentioned and expressed, as hereafter followeth, viz. For every single Bay, Say, or Perpetuane, 1*d.* For every double Bay and Broad-cloath, 2*d.* For every treble Bay and Stonnard, 3*d.* For three Kerfies, 2*d.* For a Chalder of Sea cole, 2*d.* For a quarter of Corn and * Grain, 6*d.* For a groce of Card-boards, and old Cards, 3*d.* For a Chalder of Fullen Earth, 2*d.* For a hundred of Fish, 2*d.* For a Butt or Tunn of Currants, 16*d.* For a Tun of Rayfins of the Sun, 12*d.* For a Chest of Sugar, 6*d.* and a dry fat of Sugar, 8*d.* For a packet of Hops, 2*d.* For a Tun of Iron, 8*d.* and a Tun of Iron-monger's ware, 12*d.* For a Tun of Lyme, Chalk, and Tyles, 1*d.* For a Fardel of Linnen-cloth, not above four hundred weight, 12*d.* and for a Trufs of Linnen-cloth, not above a thousand weight, 18*d.* and a great pack of Linnen-cloth, above a thousand wieght, 2*s.* 6*d.* For a Tun of Oyle, 12*d.* For a thousand of Brick and Tyle,

3*d.* For a weigh of Salt, 3*d.* For a Mill-stone, 3*d.* For a last of Dogstones, 4*d.* and a Chalder of Grindstones, 3*d.* For a hundred of Wax, 3*d.* For a Tun of Wines, 8*d.* For a thousand of Billets, 6*d.* For a hundred of Oyster faggots, 6*d.* For a hundred of Wier, 1*d.* For a Horse-pack of Wool, 2*d.* And so, after the rate and proportion for every greater or lesser weight or measures, the same payment and payments, as well for the said ship, hoy, vessel, crayer, lighter, or boat, as for the said Goods, Wares, and Merchandizes; to be made before any such ship, hoy, crayer, lighter or boat shall depart out of the said Haven, River, or Channell, and before any such Goods, Wares, or Merchandises shall be landed, and delivered out, or laden, into any such ship, hoy, vessel, crayer, lighter, or boat; Unto the Collector, or Officer, Collectorz or Officers, as for that purpose shall be from time to time appointed by the Bayliffs and Aldermen for the said Town of Colchester for the time being, or the more part of them; or to the Deputies or Assignes of such Collectors or Officers, by the merchant, owner, master or shipper of and every such ship, hoy, crayer, lighter, or boat, to the use aforesaid: Of which said payment and payments, the said Master, Owner, or Shipper shall have allowance of the Merchants and Proprietaries of all and every the Goods, Wares, and Merchandises in every such ship, hoy, vessel, crayer, lighter, or boat, by way of average. The account of the said Tuns, and other Goods, Wares, and Merchandises aforesaid to be made according to the Entry of every such ship, hoy, vessel, crayer, goods, wares, and merchandises aforesaid in his Majesties Custome-house within the said town of Colchester: And that it shall and may be lawfull to, and for the said Bayliffs, Collectors, Officers or Deputies, from time to time, to have free accesse and libertie, to view and see the Customers and Comptrollers Books there for the time being in the Port of Colchester, for the Merchants Entries; thereby to know the quantity and quality of the said Goods, Wares, and Merchandises: And that the said Customers and Comptrollers shall, upon request made unto them from time to time, deliver unto the said Bayliffs, Collectors, Officers, or Deputies, a true and perfect Note in writing of all and every the said Merchants Entries, at the reasonable cost and charges of the said Bayliffs, Collectors, Officers, or Deputies, and the said summe or summes of money so to be collected, to be paid only to the said Collector, Officers or Deputies unto the Bayliffs of the said towne of Colchester for the time being, upon reasonable demand, to the use aforesaid: And the same, to be from time to time, employed and counted to and for the repairing and maintaining of the said Haven, River, and Channell. And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaide, That it shall and may be lawfull to and for the said Chamberlain of the said Towne for the time being, to and for the Collector and Collectors to be appointed as aforesaid, or any of the Deputies or Assignes, for the said payment of the said Money before mentioned, from time to time to distrayne, take and carry away in the name of a distrefs, soe much and such reasonable things, or part and parts of the same merchandizes, goods, wares, and chattles above-named, as may reasonably seeme fit and convenient to answer in worth and value unto every demand and demands, of all and every such summe and summes of money as are before expressed, and appointed to be paid and required, in manner and form aforesaid; and the same distresse to take and detain, untill such time and times as the said severall sums of money shall be satisfied and paid, according to the intent and true meaning herein before specified and declared; and, for non-payment of the said severall sums of money within forty days next after such distresse taken, the same Goods, Wares, and Merchandises to apprise and sell, rendring the owner thereof the overplus (if any shall be). Provided always, and be it enacted by the Authority aforesaid, that this Act, nor any thing therein contained, shall extend unto the levying of any the summe or summes of money above specified, in or upon any ship, hoy, crayer, boat, or other vessels whatsoever; Goods, Wares, and Merchandises, loaden or unloaden within Wivenhoo in the said County of Essex, or within the Liberties or premisses thereof, any thing in this Act to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding. Provided always, and be it enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That this Act, nor any thing therein contained, shall not extend to the prejudice of Thomas Lucas of Colchester aforesaid Esquire, his heirs, or assigns, for or concerning such right, profits, and interest, as He, his heirs or assigns, may or ought to have of, in, and to any Lands and Grounds lying or abutting upon the aforesaid Haven, River, and Channell. And whereas—

The rest of the Act is about Paving the Town.

† mayntaining, Orig.

* Yarn, Orig.

HISTORY OF COLCHESTER.

II

					Fee.		Cranage.		Wharfage.		Stowage.
					S.	D.	S.	D.	S.	D.	S.	D.
Hides,	An Ox-Hide outward,	—	—	—	00	04	} over beyond the sea, and from Port to Port, the fourth Part.
	A Cow-Hide outward,	—	—	—	00	04
	An Ox-Hide inward,	—	—	—	00	02
	A Cow-Hide inward,	—	—	—	00	01
I
Iron, the Tun for all Charges,					01	06
K
Kerseys three,					00	01
L
Ling of all forts, the Hundred,					00	03			00	01	00	04
Lampreys, the Dozen,					00	01
Load of all kind of Stuffs whatsoever,					01	06
M
Masts great, of one Hundred Foot and above,					01	00	00	08	00	04	00	06
Masts small, from forty to ten,					00	06	00	04	00	02
Mackerels Salt, the Hundred,					00	00 $\frac{1}{2}$	} for all Charges.
Mackerels Fresh, the Hundred,					00	00 $\frac{1}{2}$
Millstones 12 Hands high and upwards,					01	02	00	06
Maund great, with Stone-pots, being a great hundred,					03	08					00	06
Maund small, with Stone-pots,					00	04
Madder, a Bale,					00	08						at his going away.
N
Nails, the great Barrel,					00	04	00	02	00	02	00	03
Nails, the little Barrel,					00	02	00	01	00	01	00	01 $\frac{1}{2}$
O
Oysfry-Faggots, the Hundred,					00	04	} for all Charges.
Oysters, of every Bulk,					00	04
P
Pruce Wainfcots of all forts, the Hundred,					00	04			00	08	02	08
Porpus great or small,					00	01
Pelts and Wooll-fells, the Hundred outwards,					00	04
Pelts and Nobs, the Hundred inwards,					00	02
Q
Querne Stones, the Laft. For all Charges.					01	00
R
Raifins, the Piece,					00	01
S
Spears, the Dozen,					00	02			00	00 $\frac{1}{2}$	00	01
Sprats, the Laft, inward,					00	02			00	01	00	02
Sprats, the Laft, outward,					00	04			00	01
Stockfish, the Hundred, inward,					00	00 $\frac{1}{2}$			00	01	00	02
Stockfish, the Hundred, outward,					00	00 $\frac{1}{2}$			00	01	00	02
Songer of two Shillings Price, for each					00	00 $\frac{1}{2}$	} for all Charges, and Meafurage, one Penny.
Shells, the Chalder,					00	01
Shelves, Dozen,					00	01
Sheep or Calve Skins, every Dozen,					00	02
Salt, the Whey Meafurage,					00	03	00	01
Ling of all forts, the Hundred,					00	03			00	01	00	04
T
Timber or Wood per Load,	Board,	—	—	—	00	04	00	04	00	02	00	08
	Plank,	—	—	—
	Lath,	—	—	—
	Pales,	—	—	—
	Montens.	—	—	—
Tyles for Paving, the Hundred outward,					00	02	} for all Charges.
Tafels, the Thousand,					00	01
Tin and Lead, the Fodder,					01	02
Tallwood the Hundred,					00	03
W
Wool a Sack, being half a Load,					01	04						and all other after [that rate.]

Every Horfe, Mare, or Gelding, that baiteth upon the Town-wharf, or Key, the Owner to pay for every Time a Half-penny, except for the Fill-Horfe, Mare or Gelding, during their Lading.

The above Table of Tolls, &c. is now only a mere curiofity, fince the Act of 1748 9, which enacted, That only three pence for every chaldron of Coal, over and above the duty of three pence before granted, fhall be paid; and no other duty fhall be raifed upon any Goods, Wares, Merchandife, or things whatsoever.

If thofe Tolls, &c. were a Grant from the Crown, one would imagine they were unalterable while the Corporation fubfifted. There is a Water-Bailiff appointed, who hath a Leaf from the Corporation, but he doth not think himfelf authorized to demand or collect thofe Tolls; and therefore requires only a wharfage for goods landed at the Town-wharf: and every one has a right to do the like at a Wharf of their own, or an hired one, for Goods landed or loaded there.

Nº. XIII.

Grant of Kingeswoode and Kingeswoode-beath to this Town by K. Henry VIII.

HENRICUS octavus Dei gra' Angl' & Francie Rex fidei defensor Dnus Hibernie et in terra supremu' Caput Anglicane eccleie Archiepis Epis Abbatibus Prioribus Ducibus Comitibus Baronibus Justiciariis Vicecomitibus Forestariis P'positis ministris et o'ibus Ballivis et fidelibus suis ad quos presentes l're p'ven'unt sal'tem. Cum dilecti nobis Ballivi et Comunitas Burgi five ville Colcestr' infra Com' nrm Essex ac omnes predecessores sui Ballivi Coitas et Burgenfes Burgi five ville illius ab anno quartodecimo Henrici Secundi quondam Regis Anglie progenitoris nostri hucusque h'uerunt et jam h'ent ac habere debent Annuatim ad Scacc'u mnostrum allocaco'em et deducc'oem de sua antiqua firma five feodi firma p'dci Burgi five ville nobis et p'genitoribus nostris Regibus Angl' debita de Quadraginta solidis in defalta five defectu bosci nostri de Kingeswoode pro eo quod idem boscus ante tempus illud solebat esse in firma d'ci Burgi five ville Colcestr' et tunc ad manus ip'ius quondam Regis Henrici Secundi deveniebat ac in manibus suis existeret et a tempore illo hucusq; in manibus n'ris et p'genitor' n'ror' Regum Anglie esset et adhuc est p'ut in Sc'ccio n'ro p'dco plene liquet de Recordo: Qui quidem Boscus de Kingeswoode jacet et existit in villis parochiis hamelettis et locis de Myle-end, Lexden, Westbergholt, magna Horkefley, Boxsted, Langham, et Ardeley prope et juxta Burgum five Villam Colcestrie p'dce ac infra baleucam ambitum circuitum p'cinctum limites et bundas franchesiaru' et libertatum burgi five ville illius. Prede'i nunc Ballivi et Comunitas in voluntate jam existunt nullam Allocaco'em de p'dcis Quadraginta solidis in Sc'cio n'ro petere et h'ere, Ita tamen qd. nos l'ras n'ras patentes de pred'co bosco n'ro de Kingeswoode ac de foresta n'ra de Kingeswoode in Com' predict' ac de aliis privilegiis inferioribus expressis in forma sequen' concedere dignaremur: Sciatis qd. nos premissa considerantes ac p' eo qd. d'ci Balli'i et Comunitas de pred'cis quadraginta solidis in Sc'ccio n'ro de cetero non allocabunt' nec non pro Centum libris nobis in Hanaperio n'ro per eosdem Balli'os et Communitatem fideliter solutis, unde fatemur nos p' presentes fore satis'cos, dedimus et concessimus ac pro nobis heredibus et Successoribus n'ris per presentes damus et concedimus p'fatis nunc Balli'is et Co'itati p'dci Burgi five ville Colcestrie totam forestam et boscum terram pasturam vastum subboscum alnetum brueram co'iam et assartum n'ram de Kingeswoode predic'a als dict' Kingeswoode hethe ac totum meremium arbores boscum et subboscum ib'm crescentia cum o'ibus suis p'tinen' p'ficiis et comoditatibus univ'fis jacen' et existen' in villis parochiis hamelettis et locis de Myle-end, Lexden, Westbergholt, Boxsted, Horkefley, Langham, et Ardeley p'dict' juxta et p'pe Colcestriam predictam in p'd' Comitatu n'ro Essex [D] quocunq; no'ie five quibuscunq; no'ibus metis bundis limitibus vel extentis eadem foresta boscus terra pastura vastum alnetum subboscum bruera co'ia et assarta aut aliqua inde p'cella in Sc'cio n'ro vel alibi de Recordo aut aliter cognoscant' censeant' nuncupentur limitentur dividant' aut includantur seu p' aliquam p'ambulaco'em inquisicio'em five extentam aut aliquas p'ambulaco'es inquisicio'es five extentas inde imposterum quovismodo faciendas capiendas seu reperiendas aut p' aliquod aliud Recordum vel aliter cognit' vel nuncupat' fuerint: Concessimus etiam et p' presentes concedimus pro nobis heredibus et successoribus n'ris p'fatis nunc Balli'is et Co'itati et successoribus suis quod iidem nunc Balli'i et Co'itas et successores sui omnes Arbores et totum boscum et subboscum in dictis foresta et bosco crescentia succidere & asportare possint et valeant ad usum eor' propriu' totiens quotiens et quodocunq; eis pro eorum melioribus p'ficiis & comoditatibus plac'int Ac quod omnia et singula alia p'ficia lib'tates privilegia et advantagia de et in dict' foresta five bosco h'eant et p'cipiant in tam amplis modo et forma prout nos ea ante presentem diem habuimus aut h'ere potuissimus seu debuissimus quocunq; modo et qualitercunq; foresta et boscus p'dict' et cetera premissa ad manus n'ras vel ad manus p'genitor' n'ror' Regum Angl' devenerunt aut in manibus n'ris existunt vel devenire et existere debuer' quovismodo: H'end' predict' forestam boscum et cetera omnia et singula premissa cum eor' p'tinen' p'ficiis et comoditatibus univ'fis prefatis nunc Balli'is et Co'itati et successoribus suis imp'puu' Tenend' de nobis et heredibus n'ris p' redditum unius denarii nobis heredibus et successoribus n'ris ad Sc'cum n'ru' in quindena sc'i Mich'is Arch' singulis annis solvend' pro o'ibus serviciis exacc'oibus et demandis quibuscunq; absque comp'o vel aliquo alio de aut pro pred'cis foresta bosco et ceteris premissis vel aliqua inde p'cella nobis heredibus vel successoribus n'ris reddendo solven' vel faciendo: Et ulterius pro majori escuritate predict' Balli'or' et Co'itatis de et in p'missis volumus et p' presentes l'ras patentes damus et concedimus eisdem nunc Balli'is et Co'itate et successoribus suis plenam potestatem et auctoritatem de tempore in tempus ad libitum suum quodocunq; et quotiescunq; eis placuerit ad d'cam forestam boscum terram pastur' vastum subboscum alnetum brueram co'iem et assartum de Kingeswoode cum o'ibus suis membris et p'tinen' quibuscunq; et quamlibet inde p'cellam sup'vidend' ac omnes et singulas metas fines bundas et limites inde tam in longitudine quam in latitudine tam p' seip'os q'm p' vis' p'boram et legaliu' hominu' ad hoc p' p'dictos Balli'os vel successores suos pro tempore existen' summonend' et convocand' ac o'ibus aliis viis modis et mediis quibus melius juxta sanas eor' discreco'es fieri poterit p'ambulant' et sup'vidend' Ac forestam et boscum illum et cetera p'missa et quamlibet inde p'cellam sic p'ambulet' et sup'vis' cum metis bundis et limitibus a terris pasturis boscis et co'is omn' alior' hom' et p'sonarum in sep'alitat' dividend' necnon p'dict' forestam boscum et cetera p'missa cum o'ibus suis membris et p'tinen' quibuscunq; ac quamlibet inde p'cellam ad libitum suum cum sepibus fossatis et palis includend': Ac etiam forestam et boscum predict' ac cetera p'missa cum o'ibus suis membris et p'tinen' quibuscunq; et quamlibet inde p'cellam sic p' p'fatos Balli'os et Co'itatem aut successores inclusa in sep'alitate tanquam terram suam p'priam et ut procinct' ac p'cellam lib'tatis Burgi five ville Colcestrie p'd' H'end' custodiend' et tenend' imp'petuu' absq; impetico'e calumpnia aut molestac'one n'ri heredu' vel successor' n'ror' aut aliquor' alior' ministror' n'ror' quorumcunq; Et insuper volumus ac p' p'sentes l'ras n'ras patentes p'fatis nunc Balli'is et Co'itati et successoribus suis concedimus quod ista n'ra concessio p' nos eisdem nunc Balli'is et Co'itati et successor' suis de p'missis in forma p'dict' confecta adeo valida et efficax in lege existat p'fatis nunc Balli'is et Co'itati et successoribus suis imp'puu' Ac si inquisitio pro titulo n'ro de et in p'missis debita re'pta et capta fuisset, et in Cancellariam aut Sc'cum n'ru' retornata fuisset, ac foresta et boscus p'dict' ac cetera p'missa cum p'tinen' et quelibet inde p'cella in eadem inquisicio'e suis p'priis no'ibus una cum metis bundis et valoribus eor'dem no'ita et expressa fuissent — Then follow the Privileges, whereby the Burgeses were exempted from being Sheriffs, or Escheators of any County, and impowered to chuse two Coroners; concerning which see Book I. p. 82, 83. After which the Letters Patent go on thus.—Et insup' concedimus p' presentes pro nobis et heredibus n'ris p'fatis nunc Balli'is et Co'itati et successoribus suis quod iidem Ballivi et Co'itas et successores sui h'eant et teneant quiete et pacifice omnia et singula in presentibus contenta et specificata ac omnia alia lib'tates franchises privilegia et consuetudines que ante hec tempora habuerunt h'ent aut h'ere debent quovismodo. Et quod de tempore in tempus sup' sola demonstraco'e harum l'rar' n'rar' patentiu' tam in Sc'cio n'ro qm in o'ibus aliis Cur' n'ris quibuscunq; allocent' et exon'entur de omnibus et omnimodis compotis aut aliis quibuscunq; ratiociniis et demand' ab eisdem Balli'is et Co'itat aut successoribus suis seu eor' aliquo de aut pro premissis vel aliquo premissorum p' nos p' has l'ras n'ras patentes concess' aut pro aliquibus exitibus firmis p'ficiis inde preterqm dict' unu' Denariu' ad predictam quindenam sc'i Mich'is in forma pred'ca singulis annis solvend' h'end' petend' reddend' solvend' seu calumpniand' Eo quod expressa mentio &c.—Provisio semper quod iidem Balli'i et Co'itas nec successoris sui aliquam allocaco'em de predictis quadraginta solidis sup' soluco'em feodi-firme ville p'd' h'eant Sed eosdem quadraginta solidos ut p'celle feodi-firme sue annuatim nobis et heredibus n'ris in consideratione p'missor' ad Sc'cum n'ram fideliter persolvant Concessimus p'fatis Balli'is et Co'itati quod ip'i has l'ras patentes magno sigillo n'ro sigillatas extra Hanaper' n'ram h'ebunt et recipient absque fine seu feodo magno vel parvo nobis vel ad usum n'rm ibidem seu alibi solvend' aut reddend' &c.—Hiis testibus Egregio viro Thoma Audeley milite Domino Concellario n'ro Anglie, necnon dilectis et fidelibus consiliariis n'ris Thoma Crumwell magno Secretario nostro, Will'o Fitz-Wylliam milite Thes' hospicii n'ri, et Will'o Pawlet milite Contrarotulatore Hospicii nostri, et aliis, Dat' per manum nostram apud Westm' quarto die Marcii anno regni nostri vicesimo sexto.

Per ipsum Regem & de data predicta auctoritate parliamenti.

C. P. Crumwell.

The original is in the possession of Wil. Mayhew Gent.

[D] In a petition of the Free-burgeses, in 1638, it is said to contain two thousand acres.

N^o. XIV.

Perambulatio Foreste de Kingswod f^{ca} die Martis prox^a post Pur^a be Marie, Anno Regni E. regis xxvi.

INCIPIEND' ad quendam [pontem] Colcest' vocat' Northbregge eundo p' magnam viam ducentem ad quandam crucem que vocatur Mylande Crouch sitam sup' caput de Kingeswode-hethe, Et sic deinde ante Mesuag' Rici' Martin usq; ad quendam Hefya ante Mesuag' Willi' Waryn de Colcest' Et sic eundo p' fossatu' dce Bruere usq;
ad quendam placeam vocatam Kingeshach que est divisa int' villatam de Horkesley et Kingeswod-hach, et sic directe p' fossatu' Phi' atte Hache usq; ad Mesuag' Willi' le Harde de Horkesleye quondam Edmi' atte Hache, et sic p' quoddam fossatu' extendens inter Horkesley et Kingeswode usq; ad quandam divisam que dividit villat' de Horkesley, Boxsted, et Kingeswoode, et ab illa divisa p' quoddam fossatu' qd.
dividit Boxsted et Kingeswode usq; ad quendam aliam divi-sam que dividit boscu' Radi' de Boxsted, Johis le Bretun, Et sic p' fossatu' qd. dividit Kingeswode et boscu' Johis le Bretun, usq; ad fossatum p'ci de Lengham, Et sic p' p'dem fossatum usq; ad quendam locu' voc' Kingeswodbregg ad corneram p'dci p'ci. Et sic ret'nendo p' magnam viam que ducit versus Colcest' usq; ad pontem ejusdem ville vocatu'
Estbregg cu' villa Colcest' infra muros et cu' omnib' d'nicis D'ni Regis ad Castru' suu' Colcest' spectantibus, Et sic o'ia a d'co ponte de Northbregge usq; ad pontem de Estbregg infra p'dcas bundas et divilas existentia remanebunt aforesta (*).—The Jurors names are on the back of the Record.

N^o. XV.

Indulgence to the Crouched-Friers, A. D. 1401, or 1402.

TO all the childern oure Moder Holy Church unto whome these p'sent Prez come, Thomas thurgh the suffraunce of God Archebischop of Caunterbury and Primate of all Englonde and legate of the Apostolyke seete, [Richard] thurgh the same suffraunce of God Archebischop of York and Primate of Englonde and of the forsaide seete legate, Robert Bischop of London, Gye Bischop of St Davies, Walter of Dyrh'm, Henr' of Lincoln, Edmounde of Exetur, Henr' of Bathe and Wellis, John of Ely, Henr' of Norwiche, Richard of Salysbury, Richard of Worcestur, John of Rochestur, John of Coventr' and Lichefeld, Robert of Chichestur, John of Hereford, John of Karlill, Richard of Bangur, Thomas of Landyff, and John of Seynte Assé by the grace of God, Bishoppis sende greetynge: in evyr lovis of oure Savioure the werkis of m'cy by all fefthfull people more faynner or gladder to be loved in soo mouche that the use shall have the rewarde of God then in the laste day of judgement, Wherof them witnessynge God hymself is specially accompted to be yelde, And to all theym despisynge the saide werkis of charite ev'lasting fere, And to all people doyng the saide werkis of charite the ev'lasting kingdome of hevyn muste be made redy therfore. Whereas we have understondynge, the free Chappell or Hospitall of the Holy Crosse w'in the Suburbys of the Towne of Colchestour lying w'in the Dioc' of London, to the sustentacion of Power Nedy men founded and ordeyned for poverté and ymp'tency, of a Wardeyne or keper, and of power Brothers of the same,
And also for the smalnesse and fearnesse of londis and rentis of the Chapell or Hospitall aforsaide, is as it were dislate and brought to nought, insomeche that the s'vice of God therin to the worship of God as it was wounte may not be ex'cised, nor the power nedy men may there congruly be susteyned, but if it be by the m'ciful almez of true Christian people m'cifully be holpyn and succourd And also it is knowen that the said Chapell and Hospitall nedith moche rep'acion and admendment, Therefore we desyrynge that the saide Chapell and Hospitall wt due and congrue worshippis may be used and also repayred, And also that all Christen people more rather by cause of devocion to the said Chapell and Hospitall might come and goo to, and the rep'acion of the saide Chapell or Hospitall and to the sustentacion of the Power nedy men therin put, And to theyre rep'acion helpynge handis where there thurgh the gifte of the heavenly King they shall fye themself' refreshed. Therefore for the m'cy of Almyghti God, and of the glorious virgin Seynt Mary his moder and also of oure holy patronys, and the m'its and prayers of all Seyntis trusty to all Cristen thurgh oure p'vince, citees, and dioc' abyding, and to all other of whome the Diofisanes these oure Indulgences hathe establisshed, and accept of theire synnes truly contrite and penitent and confessede, the whiche the forsaide Chapell or Hospitell by cause of devocion or pylgrymage visite. And also, for the tranquil-lite and peafe of oure lorde the King and the Realme of Eng-lond, and for all the Soulis of true Cristen people diseased, seithe there wt meke mynde a Pater noster and Ave Marie,

And to the rep'acion of the saide Chapell, or Hospitall, and also to the sustentacion of the Power men there, of theyre goodis to theyme gevyn of goode wilfull helpis of charite bring, or any maner wise assigne, as ofte as ev'e they doo the forsaide subsidies and helpis xl dayes of pardon ev'yche of us m'cifully by ourself oure lorde grauntith by these p'sentis, the sum of all whiche drawith viii^e dayes of pardon and xl as ofte as ev'e they soo doo. And we Thomas Archbishop of Caunt'bury, Richard of York Archebischop, Robert of London, Gye of Seynte Davies, Walter of Dyrh'm, Henr' of Lincoln, Edmund of Exetur, Henr' of Bathe and Wellis, John of Ely, Henr' of Norwich, Richard of Salysbury, Richard of Worcestur, John of Rowchestur, John of Couentre and Lychefeld, Robert of Chichestour, Joh'em of Harford, John Karlill, Richard of Bangur, Thomas of Landiff, and John of Seynt Assé Bishoppis aforsaide, all the Indulgence in this parte lawfully gr'nteth, and also in tyme comyng to be gr'nted, as moche as ev' we may of right, we ratify, and also oure Lorde make firme and stedfest. In witnesse &c.

From an original in my possession.

N^o. XVI.

K. Henry IVth's License to found the Gild of St Helen.

HENRICUS Dei gratia Rex Anglie & Francie & Dominus Hibernie Omnibus ad quod presentes litere pervenerint Salutem. Sciatis quod de gratia nostra speciali & ad supplicationem ligeorum nostrorum Rich. Podryngey clerici, Thome Godeston, Thome Fraunceys, Johannis Forde, & Johannis Sumpter de Colchestre, Concessimus & licenciam dedimus, pro nobis & heredibus nostris, quantum in nobis est, eisdem Ric'o, Thome, Thome, Joh'i, & Johanni, Quod ipsi, ad honorem Dei & sancte Elene, quandam Fraternitatem & Gildam perpetuam, de seipsis & aliis qui ex eorum devocione de eisdem Fraternitate & Gilda esse valuerint, in Capella Ste Crucis de Colchestre, de novo fundare & stabilire possint; Et quod fratres & sorores dictarum Fraternitatis et Gilde pro tempore existentes, quolibet anno, quociens sibi videbitur faciendum, Unum vel duos Custodes de eisdem Fraternitate & Gilda, pro honore & proficuo Fraternitatis &
Gilde predictarum, de Fratribus earundem facere & ordinare valeant: Et quod iidem custodes & eorum successores habeant et gerant nomina Custodum Fraternitatis & Gilde Sancte Ele-ne de Colchestre in Capella Ste Crucis de Colchestre; Et quod ipsi persone habiles & capaces existant ad recepiend' & tenend' terras, tenementa, redditus, & omnes alias res que dictis Fraternitati & Gilde, seu Custodibus earundem pro tempore existentibus ad usum seu proficuum earundem Fra-ternitatis & Gilde data, legata, adquisita, seu aliquo alio modo concessa vel assignata fuerint in futurum. Concessimus etiam eisdem fratribus & sororibus dictarum Fraternitatis & Gilde, quod ipsi placitare & implacitari possint in omnibus curiis, placeis, & locis nostris & heredum nostrorum, & in curiis, placeis, & locis omnium aliorum infra regnum nostrum Anglie, juxta leges & consuetudines ejusdem regni, & ad omnia alia facienda & recipienda, prout & eodem modo quo alii ligei nostri persone habiles faciunt & facere poterunt in curiis, locis, & placeis predictis, juxta leges & consuetu-dines predictas, & ad lucrand' vel perdend' in eisdem. Et ulterius de uberiori gracia nostra concessimus & licentiam dedimus, pro nobis & dictis heredibus nostris, quantum in nobis est, quod predicti Custodes, fratres, & sorores, & eorum successores, quandam Cantariam quinque Capellanorum, divina in Capella predicta, pro salubri statu nostro dum vixerimus, & pro anima nostra cum ab hac luce migraverimus, ac pro bono statu Fratrum & Sororum dictar' Fraternitatis &
Gilde, & eorum successorum fratrum & sororum earundem Fraternitatis & Gilde dum vixerint, & pro animabus suis cum ab hac luce migraverint, ac animabus omnium fidelium de-functorum, juxta ordinationem ipsorum Ricardi, Thome,

* Placita Foreste in Com. Essex 26 Edw. I. in Thesaur' Recept. Scacc.

Thome, Johannis, & Joh'is, in hac parte faciendam, Celebraturorum, fundare: Ac quendam numerum Tresdecim Pauperum ibidem, pro statu & animabus predictis, singulis diebus deprecaturorum, ordinare & habere possint imperpetuum. In cujus rei testimonium has literas nostras fieri fecimus patentes. Teste me ipso apud Gloucestr' vicesimo primo die Novembris anno regni nostri nono.

Per ipsum Regem.

Watton.

From the original in the possession of Jeremiah Daniell Esq;

No. XVII.

Regrant of two messuages and four acres of land to the Crouched Friars by the Bailiffs and Commonalty.

UNIVERSIS & singulis xpi fidelib' hoc p'sens scriptu' vistoris vel auditoris Joh'es Swayn et Joh'es Breton Gentilman Ballivi D'ni Regis ville sue Colcestrie ac ejusde' ville Co'itas salutem in D'no sempiternam, ac quib' debentur omnimodas rev'encias debet' paritur cu' honore. Cum D'nus Ric'us—[then follows a recital of K. Richard the Second's Letters Patent, as printed above Book I. p. 6. note [W]. After which the Grant proceeds thus.]—Sed quia nobis nu'c Ballivis & Co'tati antedictis satis evident' conitat, quod Hospitale predictum ex antiquis temporibus retroactis de Fratribus regularibus sc'i Augustini Ordinis cruce signatis Monasterium existit, iidemq; fratres sic ibidem olim ut premititur incole, certis occ'onib' nobis ha'tenus penitus ignotis abinde aliquamdiu expulsi & extratenti: Eademq; Hospitale & terra, ex assensu no'nullor' predecessor' n'ror' per tempora elapsa & ad presens nro' predictor' nunc Ballivor' et Co'itatis, per custodes cujusdam Frat'nitatis in honore sce Helene regine in dicto hospitali nup' fundate de quinque Capellanis secularib' a tempore non modico occupat' & manurat' extiter' p' nomen libere capelle sce Crucis in suburbio ville Colcestrie predictae, quousq; jam tarde quidam frater Rogerus Church & alii ejusdem confr'es ordinis p'dicti cruce ut p'mittit' signati, ad nos p'fatos nu'c Ballivos & Co'itatem convolarunt; antiquas bullas papales aliasq; evidencias legitimas efficacesq; quasi i' merito & impossibile p' equitat' dedicendas p'ducentes & demonstrantes, p' quas clare liquet, Hospitale antedictu' olim fuisse Monasteriu' fratr' ordinis suprascripti; in idem hospitale ut in jure pristino ac p'mevo intraver' ac ibidem in cultu & servicio divino hucusq; remanserunt, ac ad p'sens remanent: Posteaq; p' supplicacione' dictor' fratr' ad eor' restitutionem hujusmodi majestati regie factam, eadem regia majestas voluntatem sua' erga fratres p'dictos multum graciosam, ut iidem fratres ad hospitale predictu' ut in jure & libertate eor' pristinis admitterent' p' prenobilem & specialissimu' d'n'm nrm sub reg' majestate Johanne' Comitem Oxonie magnu' Camerarium ac Admirallum Anglie nrm dictor' Ballivor' & Co'itatis ac Burgi predict' tutissimu' amantissimuq; indies p'tectorem; nec non p'stantem p'ritumq; viru' Jacobum Hubert p'dicti D'ni Regis Attornatu' nobis p'fatis Ballivis & Co'itati nonnullis temporib' p'palari ac declarari fecit; animadv'tendo p'us nobis indies pre oculis constat, quod p' adventu' dicti f'ris Rogeri & confratru' suor' p'dictor' in Hospitale pred'cm cultus divinus plus multu' solito augetur, Et si in eodem Hospitali continue & stabilit' p' severare & morari possent in jure & more p'istinis, preces & cotidiane Dei laudes frequetiores, per longu' tempus omisse, p' D'no Rege & regno imposteru' funderent' Sciatis qd. nos, sepe dc'os nu'c Ballivos & Co'itatem, ex consideraco'e p'missor' annuentes ut p'fat' ffrat' Rogerus & confr'es sui ad Hospitale & cetera p'missa m'ito restitui valeant, dedisse, concessisse, & p' hoc p'sens scriptu' quantu' ad nos & success' n'ros p'tinet imp'petuu' confirmasse, p'fatis ffr'i Rogero & confratrib' suis & eor' successorib' p'dicta Messuag' & terr' cum o'ibus suis p'tinent'. Habend' & tenend' eis & successorib' eor' ffratrib' ordi's antedict' ibidem Deo servituris imp'petuum, adeo plene quiete & integre sicut aliqui eor' predecessores antiquitus ibide' Deo servientes eadem messuag' & terr' unq'm habuerunt seu tenuerunt. Salvis & reservatis nobis p'fatis Ballivis & Co'itati & successorib' n'ris secta ad law-hundra' d'ni Regis ville p'dicte p' p'dictos ffr'es & eor' successores ter in anno facienda, & aliis ad nos inde de jure spectantibus. In cujus rei testimoniu' huic presenti scripto donacionis & confirmaco'is n're figillum nrm comune apponi fecimus. Data in aula n'ra communi ville predictae primo die mensis Martii Anno regni Regis Henrici septimi post conquestum Anglie quartodecimo.

From a curious original in my possession.

No. XVIII.

Colchester, 1563. An order taken by Robert Northen and Nicholas Clere, Aldermen, Thomas Turner, and Jaques Thompson, indifferentlye elected and chosen by the Bayliffs, Aldermen, and Common Councillors of Colchester aforesaid, for a finall appointment and lymitation of St Denyse Faire, alias Pardon Faire, as followeth:

IMPRIMIS, it is agreed and finally ordered that the said faire shall begyn benethe Berye feld gate for the Fletchers and Bowyers, where they have of long tyme accustomed to stand. And that next on this side Bery feld gate shall stande the Sadlers: and next unto them the Coller makers, and the Ropers: then next unto theym the Glovers orderly up towards St Nicholas church: and that on thother side adjoyninge to Castle Baylie the Fyshe-mongers and Salters shall stand: and next unto the Glovers all the Smythes shall stand: Next to them Haberdashers, Mercers, Hollamshyre men and Grocers, as hath been accustomed, up to St Nicholas: then the Lynnen Drapers and Mercers, up to St Runwald's church, on the South side, in this order, viz. one boothe and not above benethe the Castle-gate: and then the Shoemaker's to stand, and so from the Castle gate on that side toward the George, and upward to the Butchers stalls, orderly boothe by boothe. And yf any voide rowme be to be spared there, then the same to be furnysshed at the discretion of the Chamberlayne for the tyme beinge: and that from Mr. Sympson's shoppe towards the pyllorye 111 Lynnen drapers being no towne dwellers to stande, and no more: next to them all the Pewterers, Brasiers, and Tynkers, as well towne-dwellers, as others: then the Tanners. And that betwene the place of the Maye pole and St Runwall's church the Sopers to stand: then the Nayler-men, alias Yronmongers: next to theym the Upholsters of London: and then the Sungye men and Ypswiche men being Coverletmen: and next to them all the Woollen Drapers, and Hofsers, beinge foreners. Then next to them the Turners, Basket-makers, Bowlemen, Skippes, Pailes, and Turners crafte: Cheefe, and Butter, up alongest that side as farre as they extende to the further corner of the Corn markett, by the Towne-well, and no further: and to downeward on the other side towards the Pyllorye, on bothe sides of the waye, yf rowme do want. And it is also fullye concluded and ordered, that no buildinge shall be made in the said faire but onelye on bothe the sydes of the strete, boothe by boothe, and end to end: and that no boothe be made at another's backe, or crosse wayes in the said Fayre, except onelye the Gold-smithes. Provided allwayes, and it is not ment by this order, That any Freeman of the towne shall be compelled to stande from his owne stall, any thing before mentioned to the contrarie notwithstanding:

by me	Thomas Turner	by us
by me	Jaqs Tomson.	Robyrd Northen
		Nycolas Clere, the elder.

No. XIX.

THIS Indenture made the fifteenth day of March, in the year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord Charles the Second, by the Grace of God, of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c. the two and thirtieth, and in the year of our Lord, one thousand six hundred seventy and nine; between John Wenock of Colchester in the County of Essex bay-maker of the one part, and John Milbank Linnen draper, Thomas Gray Merchant-taylor, John Tatam Tanner, Samuel Featherstone Baker, and Thomas Wilbye Rower, [all of Colchester] on the other part: Whereas I the said John Wenock, have lately purchased to me and my heirs of my brother-in-law, Lucas Benne and Rachel his wife, a certain piece of ground, being part of a field called, Golden-at hill, lying and being in the parish of St Giles in the suburbs of Colchester aforesaid, and my intention in the purchasing of the same, was for the building of a row of houses, for the habitation and benefit of six dwellings, for such poor people to dwell in, in such manner as is hereafter limited and declared; which said row of houses it has pleased Almighty God, to let me live to see built and finished. Now know ye, that I the said John Wenock of my own good will and benevolence, for and towards the relief and maintenance of the said poor people, which, for the time here-after being, shall inhabit and dwell in the said faid row of houses, have given and granted, and by this my present writing indented do give and grant unto the said John Milbank, Thomas Gray, John Tatam, Samuel Featherstone, and Thomas Wilbye, and to their heirs, and the heirs of the survivor of them, to the uses intents and purposes, and upon the trust herein after-mentioned; one Annuity or yearly Rent-charge of one and forty pounds, to be yearly issuing, going out, had, and taken out of the rents and profits of all those my messuages or tenements; with the yards, gardens, orchards, out houses, buildings, and appurtenances thereto belonging; situate, lying, and being in the parish of St Peter in Colchester aforesaid, and now or late in the severall tenures and occupations of the said Thomas Gray, Samuel Featherstone, Johanna Brand, widow; and Lidia de Hame, some or one of them, or some or one of their Assigne or Assignees, which said Annuity or yearly Sum of one and forty pounds, shall from and after my own, and my wife Mary's decease, be paid to my aforesaid Trustees or such as shall hereafter be nominated and appointed Trustees; by quarterly payments, that is to say, at the feast of the Nativity of our blessed Lord and Saviour, the feast of the blessed Lady St Mary the Virgin, the feast of St John the Baptist, and the feast of St Michael the Arch-angel, by even and equal portions, without any deduction of, or for any manner of rates, taxes, assessments, repairs or other charges whatever; the first payment to be made at such of the said Feasts, as shall next happen, or come after the death of me the said John Wenock, and my said wife; and the first quarter's rent to be paid to the first of my said Trustees abovenamed, or to the first Trustee that shall happen to be then living, and so to continue successively one after another for ever. Which said first Quarter's rent, my mind is shall be kept in hand, as a beginning of a stock, to be preserved for the benefit of the said poor people, that shall be then inhabiting, or the reparation of the said new houses, or otherwise, as to my said Trustees, or the major part of them shall seem meet: and upon trust and confidence, that out of the said annuities or sum of one and forty pounds a year, so by me given and granted as aforesaid; there shall be paid to the dwellers in the said six dwelling houses Two shillings a week, that is to say, Two shillings a week for the dwellers in every respective dwelling house, and the same payment to be forever paid upon the Saturday in every week to the respective dwellers as aforesaid; the same being demanded at the dwelling house of the eldest of my said Trustees that shall be then living, without any fraud or delay, and the said first weekly payment to begin to be paid upon the Saturday next after the second of the said festival days, that shall happen after the decease of me or my said wife, and so to continue for ever; and upon this further trust, that my said Trustees, or the major part of them, shall from time to time appoint such ancient and orderly poor persons, to inhabit and dwell in the said severall dwellings, as receive no alms or Collection from any parish whatsoever, unless after such time as they are there placed, they or any of them shall, by reason of age or visitation of sickness, become disabled to maintain themselves by, and out of the said two shillings per week, so allowed unto them as aforesaid; and upon further trust, that my said Trustees out of the above-said one and forty pounds annuity or yearly rent so granted to them as aforesaid, shall yearly and every year for ever, have, allow, and lay in one chalders of sea-coals, for every dwelling house, for and towards their winter firing, over and besides their weekly stipend of two shillings a week, which I expect to be twenty shillings for every chalders, amounting in the whole to six pounds, to be raised and had out of the said forty and one pounds annuity or rent so charged upon the said Messuages and Tenements as aforesaid; and in case the charge of laying in the said coals shall amount to above the said sum of twenty shillings for every chalders of coal, then the overplus to be paid out of the stock of money so to be raised as aforesaid; and in case the said coal may be had and laid in at less price than twenty shillings a chalders, then I order the remainder and overplus to be added to the stock, to be employed for the purposes aforesaid: And upon further trust, that my said Trustees or the surviving Trustees hereafter to be named, shall not place any poor people there to inhabit and dwell, that have or are like to have at the time of their placing there any child or children; but only single persons or lone couples. And forasmuch as the said annuity or rent charge of one and forty pounds a year, doth amount to more than the said sum of two shillings a week to each respective dwelling house, and the six pounds allowed for the said six chalders of coal; I do therefore order and appoint, that each of the said Trustees and their successors respectively, shall deduct out yearly for their care and pains in this behalf, the sum of six and thirty shillings, for that year only that he serve and pay the two shillings a week to the dwellers in the said six dwelling houses so by me erected, as aforesaid; and the overplus being forty shillings a year; my mind is shall be kept and added to the aforesaid stock to the uses aforesaid. And upon further trust; that my said Trustees or the major part of them, shall within some convenient time after the decease of me and my said wife, make sale of all the said messuages and premises in the said parish of St Peter for the best advantage that they can, and the overplus of the said money so arising upon the sale, to be paid to my Executors, and to be accounted as part of my personal estate; but my mind is, that upon such sale for to be made, there shall be a good and sufficient provision made in the assurance settlement and conveyance of the said messuages and premises so to be sold; that the aforesaid annuity or rent-charge of one and forty pounds a year shall and may be well secured to the uses, ends, and purposes aforesaid, by the advice of learned and able Council in the law, to be made use of by my said Trustees or the major part of them, so that the same may be paid for relief of the said poor people, and the other uses before herein by me declared: And that upon such sale so to be made, my said Trustees shall have; take, and keep a counter-part of such conveyance and assurance, so to be made upon the sale of the premises for the manifestation of this my charitable use, which said counter-part, together with a true copy of this my conveyance and settlement, shall be left in the hands of such Trustees as shall happen to make sale of the premises, to be preserved for perpetuity, and for their direction for the payment of the said weekly sums, or delivery of the said coals to the aforesaid poor people for ever; and that until such sale shall be made, my mind is that the said one and forty pounds a year be by my Trustees paid for the relief of the poore aforesaid, and the remainder to my Executors to be added to my personal estate. And upon this further trust and confidence, that if any of the aforesaid People so inhabiting and dwelling in any of the said new buildings so erected by me as aforesaid, shall at any time after they are there placed, set up any Bay-loom or loams for the weaving of Colchester hundred Bays in any part of the said new buildings, or shall make any holes or breaches there, or commit any wilful damage there, or shall make any disturbance or quarrels one with another, that then in such case, I do hereby give power and authority to my said Trustees, or such others as shall then happen to be Trustees, to expell and put out such persons so transgressing as aforesaid, and they to lose their said weekly and other stipend, and to place other poor people in their rooms, at the discretion of my said Trustees, and to pay and allow such persons so by them placed, the same stipend of two shillings per week, and one chalders of coals yearly, to such dwelling house as they had before they were so removed and put out. And I do further make it my desire and earnest request, that my said Trustees do procure and keep a book among them, for the entering their receipts, disbursements, and elections, to be kept in the custody of the eldest of my said Trustees, and at the end of every year, to deliver up the same to the next eldest Trustee; but my desire is, and I doe appoint, that every of my said Trustees, shall have at seasonable and convenient times, and upon request made to such Trustee as hath the custody of the said booke, free access to such book, for the perusing all the orders and entries that shall from time to time happen to be made, and that immediately after the death of any one of my said Trustees, there shall be, by the surviving Trustees or the major part of them, a new Trustee elected and appointed, whereby the full number of them may and shall be preserved, made up, and continued for the taking care of the said poor people as shall happen to be placed there. And that upon the death of any of the said poor people or the death of the couples appointed to inhabit any of the aforesaid dwelling houses; that upon such death, my Trustees, or the major part of them, shall put and place other poor people in the room of any so dying at their discretions, and that from time to time for ever; my said Trustees placing only such poor as are before in this my settlement mentioned, and not other, and the said poor people so newly placed, to have the same stipend and allowance, that such poor persons so dying had before them. And if it shall happen that the said annuities or yearly rent of one and forty pounds, or any part thereof, to be behind and unpaid after any of the said feast days, in which the same ought to be paid as aforesaid, by the space of fourteen days; that then and from thenceforth it shall and may be lawful to, and for my said Trustees or any of them to enter into the said premises or any part thereof, and distraine, and the distress and distresses so to be made, to take, carry, and drive away, &c. Provided always, that this present writing indented, or any grant or thing therein contained, shall not extend to charge the person of me the said John Wenock, or my heirs, but only to charge the aforesaid messuages, tenements, and premises.

In witness whereof the parties to these present Indentures have interchangeably set their hands and seals, the day and year above written,

John Winock.

Sealed and delivered in the presence of us,

Thomas Ruse, Jer. Shaw, Mathew Scrivener.

The rents of the Houses are so much fallen, that the weekly allowance to the Poor is very small.

Nº. XIX.

Literæ Patentes Regine Elizabethæ, pro erectione & fundacione Scholæ liberæ Colcestr.

Aº. D. 1584.

ELIZABETH Dei gracia Anglie, Francie, & Hibernie Regina fidei defensor, &c. Omnibus ad quos presentes Litere pervenerint Salutem. Sciatis quod cum precharissimus Pater noster Dominus Henricus octavus, nuper Rex Anglie, per Literas suas Patentes sub magno sigillo suo Anglie gerentes dat. apud Westmonasterium quodecimo die Novembris anno regni sui tricesimo primo, recitans per easdem, "Quod cum Ballivi Burgenfes & Communitas ville sue Colicestrie in Com. Essex legitime tunc habebant, & de jure habere debebant, Advocationem Cantarie Capelle Ste Elene ville sue Colcestr. predict. et Advocationem alterius Cantarie in Ecclesia beate Marie infra eandem villam in Com. predict. de antiquo erect. & fundat. Que quidem Cantarie cum diversis Messuagiis, Terris, Tenementis, Pratis, Pasturis, Boscis, Redditibus, ac aliis Hereditamentis dotata existebant; Ac quod idem Rex dict. Cantar. ac exitus & proficua predict. messuag. terr. prat. pastur. reddit. et ceterorum premissorum in meliores usus converti cupiens, ac bonam intentionem Ballivorum, Burgenfium, & Communitatis ville sue predict. tam ad erigendum & stabiliendum infra dictam villam unam liberam Scholam, quam ad relivand. & sustinend. rem publicam & necessitatem Ville sue predict. considerans, de gratia sua speciali, ac ex certa scientia & mero motu suis, nec non autoritate Regia sua Supremi Capitis Anglicane Ecclesie quaungebatur in terris, Concesserit Johanni Christmas armigero, & Thome Cocke Ballivis ville sue predict. ac Burgenfibus & Communitati ville predict. Quod ipsi & Successores sui ex tunc de cetero haberent & tenerent & retinerent omnia Messuagia, Terras, Tenementa, Prata, Pasturas, Boscos, Redditus, Reversiones, & Servicia, ac alia Hereditamenta quecumque predict. Cantarie Ste Elene spectantia; que quidem Cantaria tunc vacua existebat. Habend. & tenend. eadem Messuagia, Terras, Tenementa, Prata, Pasturas, Redditus, Reversiones, et Servicia, ac alia Hereditamenta dict. Cantar. Capelle Ste. Elene spectantia, prefatis Ballivis, Burgenfibus & successoribus suis imperpetuum. Ac etiam per easdem literas suas patentes concesserit prefatis Ballivis, Burgenfibus, & Communitati, quod quodocumque altera Cantaria predicta in Ecclesia beate Marie predict. primo & proxime vacare contigerit ratione quacunque, quod extunc immediate post hujusmodi vacationem predict. Ballivi, Burgenfes, & communitas, & successores sui, haberent, tenerent, & retinerent omnia Messuagia, Terras, Tenementa, Prata, Pasturas, Boscos, Redditus, & Servicia, ac alia Hereditamenta quecumque eidem Cantar. spectantia, Habend. et tenend. eadem Messuagia, Terras, Tenementa, Prata, Pasturas, Boscos, Redditus, Reversiones, & Servicia, ac alia Hereditamenta predicta cum suis pertinentiis prefatis Ballivis, Burgenfibus, & communitati & successoribus suis imperpetuum, absque molestatione, impetitione, seu gravamine Episcopi London. vel successorum suorum, vel alicujus Ordinarii cujuscunque nominis, status, vel dignitatis fu'it, aliquid Juris collationis, institutionis, vel inductionis, ratione officii sui in eisdem Cantariis vel in earum altera clamantis sive calumpniantis. Ita tamen quod dicti Ballivi, Burgenfes, & Communitas, partem predictorum Messuagiorum, Terrar. Tenement. Pastur. Prat. & ceterorum premissorum ad erigendam quandam liberam Scholam in eadem villa, et residuum ad communem utilitatem Ville predict. pro meliore solutione feodifirme ejusdem Ville, juxta eorum sanas discretionis exponerent & distribuerent. Ad quam quidem liberam Scholam erigendam, (juxta statuta & ordinationes dilecti & fidelis Consilarii sui Thome Audeley mil. Dni Audeley de Walden ad tunc Cancellar. Anglie, & ipsorum Ballivorum, Burgenfium, & Communitatis) prefatus Rex per easdem literas suas patentes Licentiam suam specialem eisdem Ballivis, Burgenfibus & Communitati dederit & concesserit, prout per easdem literas patent. inter alia plenius liquet & apparet." Cumque etiam post concessionem predictam Patris nostri, sic ut prefertur, confectam, predicta Cantaria in dicta Ecclesia beate Marie vacaverit, & predicti Ballivi, & Communitas predicta Ville Colcestr. predict. Terras, Tenementa, & Hereditamenta predict. Cantarie in dicta Ecclesia beate Marie spectantia & pertinentia a tempore vacationis ejusdem; et predictas Terras, Tenementa & Hereditamenta predict. Cantar. capelle Ste. Helene, a tempore concessionis predict. Literar. Patent. hucusque habuissent, tenuissent, & gravifi fuissent; & partem proficuum eorundem ad annum valorem Sex librarum tresdecim solidorum & octo denariorum exposuissent, ad manutentionem & sustentationem Ludi Magistri in eadem villa ad instituendam & docendam juventutem ville predict. Veruntamen nec predicti Ballivi & Communitas, nec eorum Successores, ad hoc usque tempus, aliquam partem predictorum Messuagior. Terrar. Tenem. et ceterorum premissorum, ad erigendam aliquam liberam Scholam in eadem villa, juxta provisionem & intentionem in eisdem literis patentibus expressas exposuerunt nec distribuerunt; nec predictus Thomas Audeley miles, Dominus Audeley de Wallden, nec Ballivi & Communitas in eisdem literis patentibus nominati, aliqua statuta aut ordinationes predictam liberam Scholam concernentes ordinarunt aut statuerunt; prout per quandam Inquisitionem nuper captam apud Stratford Langthorne in dicto Comitatu Essex, & in Scaccaria nostra remanente manifeste liquet et apparet: Cumque etiam diverse questiones, & ambiguitates super validitatem & vigorem predictarum literarum patentium antehac ortæ & mote sunt, non solum concernentes dicta concessionem predict. Messuag. Terrarum, Tenement. & ceterorum premissorum sic ut prefertur concessorum, Verum etiam pro eo quod (*) [Concessio] predicta facta fuit Ballivis, Burgenfibus, & Communitati ville nostre predict. ubi revera predicta villa incorporata existit, & ad tunc existebat, per nomen Ballivorum & Communitatis ville nostre Colcestr. tantum; Cumque etiam modo Ballivi & Burgenfes ville nostre predict. dictas literas patentes predicti patris nostri nobis in Cancellariam nostram sursum reddiderint cancellandas: Sciatis quod Nos favorem gerentes specialem erga bonas Literas, & apprime cupientes emendationem status et utilitatis predict. Ville nostre Colcestr. que est una ex antiquissimis Villis & Burgis Regni nostri Anglie, ex gratia nostra speciali, certa scientia, & mero motu nostris, dedimus & concessimus, ac per Presentes, pro nobis, heredibus & successoribus nostris, damus & concedimus Ballivis & Communitati ville nostre Colcestr. predict. predictas nuper separales Cantarias, ac omnia Messuagia, Terras, Tenementa, Prata, Pascua, Pasturas, Boscos, Redditus, Reversiones, Servicia, & alia Hereditamenta quecumque, dictis nuper Cantariis nuper spectantia sive pertinentia, aut que ut pars, parcella, aut membrum earundem Cantariarum, aut earum alterius existebant, aut cognita, capta, aut reputata fuere ut pars, parcella, aut membrum earundem, in predictis literis patentibus, per predictum patrem nostrum, ut prefertur, confectis, contenta seu specificata; adeo plene, libere, & integre, ac in tam amplis modo, & forma, qualitate, & conditione, prout ea omnia & singula ad manus nostras, seu ad manus percharissimorum, dicti patris nostri Henrici Octavi, vel fratris nostri Edwardi sexti, nuper Regum Anglie, seu ad manus percharissime Sororis nostre Marie nuper Anglie Regine, seu ad manus eorum alicujus, ratione vel titulo predicto, vel pretextu alicujus Actus Parliamenti, seu aliquorum Actuum Parliamentorum, sive quocumque alio legali modo jure seu titulo devenire, seu devenire debuerunt aut debent, aut aliqua parcella inde devenit seu devenire debuit; ac adeo plene libere & integre, ac in tam amplis modo & forma prout aliquis Guardianus presbyter Cant. sive Feoffatus, aut aliqui Guardiani, Presbyteri Cantar. aut Feoffati dicte Cantar. Capelle Ste. Elene, & dicte Cantarie in Ecclesia beate Marie infra dictam villam Colcestr. aut alicujus earundem, aut aliquis alius, sive aliqui alii, dict. Canter. Messuagia, terras, tenementa, prata, pascua, pasturas, ac cetera omnia & singula premissa superius per presentes preconcessa, aut aliquam earundem parcellam antehac habentes, possidentes, aut seiziti inde existentes, unquam habuerunt, tenuerunt, vel gravifi fuerunt, habuit, tenuit, vel gavifus fuit, seu habere, tenere, vel gaudere debuerunt, aut debuit. Damus etiam per presentes pro consideratione predicta; ac ex certa scientia & mero motu nostris, pro nobis, heredibus, & successoribus nostris, concedimus prefatis Ballivis & Communitati omnes & omnimodo boscos, subboscos, & arbores quascunque, de

(*) So in the School-Register, but this word is wanting in the Letters Patents.

& super premissis per presentes datas & concessas, cum eorum pertinentiis, vel super qualibet seu aliqua inde parcella, crescentes & existentes; ac totum terram fundum & solum eorundem boscorum, subboscorum, & arborum: Habendum tenendum & gaudendum predictas nuper Cantarias, Messuagia, Terras, Tenementa, Prata, Pascua, Pasturas, Boscos, Subboscos, Redditus, Reversiones, Servicia, Hereditamenta, ac cetera omnia & singula premissa, superius per presentes data & concessa, cum omnibus & singulis eorum pertinentiis universis, prefatis Ballivis & Communitati dicte ville nostre Colcestr. successoribus, & assignatis suis imperpetuum, ad solum & proprium opus & usum ipsorum Ballivorum & Communitatis, successorum & assignatorum suorum imperpetuum. Tenendum omnia & singula premissa de nobis heredibus & successoribus nostris ut de Manerio nostra de Est Grenwiche in Comitatu nostro Kancie, per fidelitatem tantum in libero & communi foccagio, & non in capite, nec per servitium militare, pro omnibus serviciis, exactionibus, & demandis quibuscunque proinde nobis, heredibus, vel successoribus nostris quoquo modo reddend. solvend. vel faciend. Ita tamen quod dicti Ballivi & Communitas partem predictorum Messuagiorum, Terrarum, Tenementorum, Pasturarum, Pratorum & ceterorum premissorum, ad erigendam quandam liberam Scholam in eadem ville; & residuum ad communem utilitatem Ville predictae pro meliore solutione Feodi firme ejusdem Ville, juxta eorum sanas discretionem coit exponent & distribuent. Et ut intentio nostra predicta quoad erectionem libere Schole predictae meliorem habeat effectum, de ampliori gratia nostra dedimus & concessimus, & pro nobis, heredibus & successoribus nostris damus & concedimus per presentes eidem Ballivis & Communitati & Successoribus suis Licentiam nostram specialem, ad fundandum & erigendum liberam scholam Grammaticalem infra villam nostram predictam, & ad assignandum, limitandum, & conveniendum hujusmodi partem Messuag. Terrar. Tenement. & Heredit. predict. existentium de claro Anno valore viginti Mercarum vel ultra ad manutencionem ejusdem Schole in perpetuum prout illis melius videbitur expedire. Volumus etiam & concedimus, quod dicti Ballivi & Communitas dicte ville nostre Colcestr. & successores sui Pedagogum five Ludimagistrum Schole predictae de tempore in tempus eligere, nominare, & appunctuare valeant & possint imperpetuum. Et ulterius pro meliore Gubernatione & Ordinatione Schole predictae, Volumus & concedimus quod Episcopus London & Decanus Ecclesie Cathedralis Sti. Pauli London, & successores sui pro tempore existentes, de tempore in tempus faciant & facere valeant & possint idonea & salubria statuta, & ordinationes in scripto, concernentia & tangentia ordinationem, gubernationem & directionem Pedagogi & Scholarium Schole predictae. Que quidem Statuta & ordinationes per predictum Episcopum & Decanum vel successores suos sic de tempore in tempus facienda, volumus & precipimus per presentes in omnibus & per omnia per Pedagog. & Scholares Schole predictae firmiter observari, teneri, & perimpleri. Volentes insuper quod dicta Schola & Pedagogus & Scholares ejusdem perpetuis futuris temporibus sint et existent sub visitatione & correctione Episcopi London. & successorum suorum pro tempore existentium. Quodque predictus Episcopus London, & Successores sui de tempore in tempus in posterum, tam predictam Scholam & Pedagogum & Scholares ejusdem Schole, quam omnia & singula hujusmodi Messuagia, Terr. Tenem. & Hereditam. que per prefatos Ballivos & Communitatem ad & pro manutencione ejusdem Schole, sic ut prefertur, conveniat (*), assignata seu limitata fore contigerit, visitare, & supervidere, valeant & possint in perpetuum. Et superinde, de tempore in tempus, causabunt & faciant exitus, reven. & proficua eorundem Messuag. Terrar. & Tenem. erogari, converti, & impendi ad & pro manutencione, & sustentatione dicte Schole, & Pedagogi ejusdem pro tempore existentis, juxta tenorem, effectum, & veram intentionem harum literarum nostrarum patentium. Et ulterius de ampliori gratia nostra dedimus & concessimus, ac per presentes pro nobis, heredibus & successoribus nostris damus & concedimus prefatis Ballivis & Communitati ville nostre Colcestr. predict. & successoribus suis, omnia exitus, redditus, reversiones, & proficua omnium & singulorum premissorum, cum pertinentiis eorum universis, a tempore quo eadem premissa aut aliqua inde parcella ad manus dicti patris, fratris, vel fororis nostrorum, vel ad manus nostras devenere seu devenire debuerunt hucusque, provenientes, crescentes, renovantes five emergentes, habend. tenend. & gaudend. eadem eidem Ballivis & Communitati & successoribus suis, ex dono nostro, absque compoto seu aliquo alio proinde nobis, heredibus, vel successoribus nostris quoquo modo reddendo solvendo vel faciundo. Et etiam ulterius volumus, ac per presentes, pro nobis, heredibus & successoribus nostris concedimus, prefatis Ballivis & Communitati, quod dicti Ballivi & Communitas habebunt has literas nostras patentes de premissis, sub magno sigillo nostro sigillandas, extra Hanaperium nostrum, absque fine, seu feodo magno vel parvo ad opus nostrum ibidem, vel alibi, solvend. reddend. vel faciend. Et quod he Litere nostre patentes, & irrotulamentum earundem, erunt firme, valide, bone, sufficientes, & effectuales in lege, erga nos heredes & successores nostros, tam in omnibus Curiis nostris quam alibi, infra Regnum nostrum Anglie, absque aliquibus confirmationibus, licentiis, vel tolerationibus, de nobis, heredibus, vel successoribus nostris, imposterum per prefatos Ballivos & Communitatem, successores & assignatos suos, procurandis aut obtinendis. Nonobstante male nominan. vel male recitand. aut non nominando aut non recitando, predicta Messuagia, Terras, Tenementa, ac cetera premissa, seu alicujus inde parcellae &c.—Aut aliqua alia re, causa, vel materia quacunque in aliquo nonobstante. In cujus rei testimonium has Literas fieri fecimus patentes, Teste meipsa apud Westmonasterium Sexto die Julii Anno Regni nostri Vicefimo Sexto.

Per breve de privato sigillo, & de Data predict. Authoritate Parliamenti.

Ga. Gerrard.

This settlement of the School was obtained chiefly by means of Sir Francis Walsingham, as appears by the copy of a Letter from the Bailiffs to him, in my possession.

Nº. XX.

Orders and Constitutions for the rayseinge, settinge up, and maineteyneinge of a worke howse or Hospitall, for the settinge of such poore to worke as are able, and for the releiveinge of such poore Lame and impotente people as are not able to worke within this Towne and the libertyes thereof: made, ordeyned, and agreed upon the twenty fifth Daie of Februarye, in the Tenth yere of King James I.

Henricus Osborne, }
Robertus Talcott, } Ballyffs.

FIRST, for the better managinge and performeing of the saide worke, accordinge to the true intente and meaninge of such as shall undertake the same; from time to time there shall be chosen Twenty persons (that is to saye) Fower Aldermen and Sixteene of the Common Counsell of this Town, which shall be divided into four equall partes accordinge to the severall Wards of this Towne; to everye Ward one Alderman, and fower of the Counsell; and the saide fower Wardes to be divided into theis severall Parishes following, onelye for this purpose, and not otherwise (that is to say)

Hedward, to containe the Parishes of	Lexden, St Maries, St Giles, Trinity,	Eastward,	Grinstead, St James, St Runwalds, All Saints.
Northward,	Milende, St Peter's, St Marten's, St Nicholas.	Southwa.	Beetchurch, St Leonardes, S. M. Magdalen. St Bottolph's.

Which saide twentie persons soe to be chosen and named, shall be called Masters or Governors of the saide House, and shall and maye from time to time make reasonable Orders, for the better orderinge and governinge of the saide Howse, and all things whatsoever thereunto belonging, and to putt the same in execution, and to appointe officers from time to time as well for the punishment and orderinge of such idle Persons, as others as shall be broughte, or shall remaine in the same Howse, as otherwise howsoever, and to alter and change them from time to time, as shall be thought fitt and convenient by them.

And that to every severall Warde aforesaide, there shall be chosen five Persons out of the saide number of Twentie, that is to saye, one Alderman and of fower of the Counsell out of every Warde one, whoe shall have the orderinge and governinge of the saide Howse, and the busines thereunto belonging for one whole weeke, and att thende of the weeke five others, viz. one Alderman and four of the Counsell of this Towne, and soe from weeke to weeke one after another untill every one in order shall have taken his and their Course, and then to begynn again and proceede in order to take the Place and Charge upon them.

(*) Qu. convenienter.

That out of the saide Companye of Twentye Persons, there shall be chosen twoe of goode Sufficiencie and Abilitie, to whose Truste and Custodie the whole Stocke and Charge of Money, Wares, and such like shal be committed, whoe shal be called Treasurers for the Poore, and shall receive all such Some and Somes of Monye or Monyes worthe, as either by free Guyfte or otherwise, that shal be given, paide, or appointed and delivered for the Uses and Purposes aforesaid; and that the said Treasurers shall, at the ende of every quarter of a yere, make and yeelde upp a true and perfecte accounte in Wrightinge of all such Goods, Monyes, and other things as shall come unto their hands for time paite to certaine Auditors to be appointed from time to time to take there saide accompte, and the saide Treasurers upon the saide Choise and Electione to enter into sufficient bonde unto the Bayliffs and Commonalty of this Towne, for the makeinge of there accompte in forme aforesaid, and for the answeringe and payeing of such goods or monye as shal be found to remayne uppon there accompte, to and for the use aforesaid. And that the Auditors for that purpose shal be the Bailiffs of this Towne for the time beinge, four Aldermen, and fower of the said sixteene Persons to be chosen out of the Counsell of this Towne, viz. out of the said Counsell one out of every Warde; which fower of the Counsell after the performance of there said Office of Auditorshippe for one Quarter of a yere, to be discharged thereof, and fower other of the saide Sixteene Persons, to be chosen to succede in their rone and place for the next Quarter, and soe by Corse untill the saide Sixteene Persons of the Counsell have taken there torne therein.

That for the better Mainetenance and Continuance of the saide Howse and Worke, it is Ordered, Constituted, and Decreed, that from henceforthe, all and every the Fynes, Profits, Forfeitures, and Amercements hereafter mentioned and expresse, shal be collected, gathered, employed, and paide to, and for the use and purpose aforesaid, and to and for no other use or purpose whatsoever, anie former Lawe, Order, Use, Custome, or Constitution to the contrarie notwithstandinge.

Firste, that all Rents reserved, or hereafter to be reserved for the enclosinge of anie of the halfe yere common Grounds within this Towne or the Liberties thereof, and all such Fynes and Amercements as shall be imposed and sett upon anie Free burgesse or Forriner, for the feedinge of the saide halfe yere common Grounds, contrarie to the Constitutions of this Towne in that behalfe.

2. All such Fines, Forfeitures, and Amercements that shall be imposed and sett uppon anie Person or Persons, that shall offend contrarie to the forme of the Statute made in the vth yere of the Reigne of our late Queene Elizabeth of famous Memorye, entituled, An Act touching divers Orders for Artificers, Labourers, Servants of Husbandrye, and Apprentices, or against anie Orders or Constitutions made, or hereafter to be made, concerning the trades of Weavers, Kembers, Sherman, and such like.

3. All Fines, Forfeitures, and Amercements of Innholders, Vintners, and Ale-house-keepers, and of such Townsmen as shall tippie and drink in anie of the saide Howses, contrarie to the forme of the Statutes, &c. and of such as shall keepe anie Ale howse, or Tiplinge-howse, contrarie to the Statutes in that behalfe, or contrarie to the Constitutions of this Town.

4. All Fines, Forfeitures, and Amercements of Bakers and Brewers that shall offende contrarie to the Lawes and Statutes of this Realm, or the Constitutions of this Towne, and of all such Butchers as shall offende contrarie to the Lawes and Constitutions of this Towne.

5. All Forfeitures and Amercements of such of the Aldermen and common Counsell of this Towne, as shall offende in comeinge to the Moothall without their Gownes, or for not comeinge and appeareinge at the hower, or howers appointed, contrarie to the Constitutions in that behalfe.

6. All Fynes and Amercements, by reason of anie prebure or incroachment within this Towne or the Liberties thereof.

7. All Forfeitures of Recognizances, for not appeareinge at the Goale Deliverie, or Generall Sessions of the Peace within this Towne, accordinge to the forme of the same; and alsoe of such as shall be licensed and admitted to keepe common Ale-houses within this Towne or the Libertyes thereof.

8. Item, that all the saide Fines and Amercements, shall be assessed and sett by the Bayliffs, Justices of Peace, and Aldermen of this Towne for the tyme beinge, or the more parte of them, and the same being once assessed and sett, shall be duly collected, gathered, and paide unto the saide Treasurers betweene Law-day and Law-day, without anie parte of the saide Fynes or Amercements (after the same shall be sett and assessed) to be remitted, abated, or discharged in anie wise, anie Use or Custome heretofore to the Contrarie notwithstanding.

9. Also for the Uses and Purposes aforesaid, yt is ordered, concluded, and agreed, that the Profitts, Use, and Benefitt of the Lady Judds, Mr Hunwicks, Mr Ingrams, and Mrs Ingram's Monye, by them severally given towards the Mayntenance and Reliefe of the poore within this Towne and the Liberties thereof; shal be from time to time paide unto the said Treasurers, to be paide and distributed by the saide Companye, according to the Uses, Purposes, and Intents mentioned, expresse, and declared in there severall Indentures respectively, in that behalfe made, and not otherwise.

10. Furthermore, for the suppressinge of Idlenes which (by the Multitude of Ale-houses, that have been suffered to be kepte within this Towne, and the Liberties thereof) hath increased and dothe daylie increase, and for the keepinge out of Incomers, and such other Persons unto this Towne, whereby the number of the Poore hath greatlye increased within this Towne; yt is ordered and decreed, that the multiplicity of Ale-houses and Ale-house-keepers, shall be reduced into a smaller number, and that such as shal be admitted and licensed to keepe anie common Ale-house within this Towne or Liberties thereof, shal be of the most honest, and best ordered and fittest Persons, att the Discretion of the Bayliffs and Justices of Peace of this Towne for the time beinge; and that such as shal be admitted thereunto, shal be bounde with Twoe sufficient Sureties for the keepinge of their saide Ale-house, accordinge to the forme of there Recognizance.

11. Item, that noe manner of Person or Persons whatsoever, Inglish, or Alien, within this Towne or the Liberties thereof, shall at anie time after the firste Daye of Maye nexte ensueinge the Date hereof, keepe and sett on Worke, in his or their Howse or Howses, above the number of Twoe broad Lomes, and one narrowe Lome, or three narrowe Lomes, and one broad Lome; nor shall sett on Worke to weave in the said Lomes, above the number of five weaving Persons, or else so many Lomes broad or narrowe (as occasion shall require) as maye onlye sett five weaving persons on worke, and no more, uppon paine to forfeite and loose to the Use of our Sovereigne Lord the Kinge, his Heires, and Successors for every Weeke, wherein anie Person shall keepe above the saide number of Lomes, Tenne Shillings, and for every Person that he or they shall sett on Worke above the number of five Persons contrarye to the true meaning of this order, for every Daye, Two Shillings and Sixpence, excepte such Person or Persons, that shall happen to have above the number of five Sons, which he or they shall imploye, and bringe up in the Arte, Mistrye, or Science of Weavinge.

12. Item, that from and after the said firste Daye of Maye next ensueinge, noe Person, either Inglish or Alien borne, resiant, and dwellinge within this Towne or the Liberties thereof, shall retayn, hire, or take into his or there Service, to serve or worke with him or them, anie loose Jorneman or anie other Person or Persons whatsoever unmarried, to worke for anie lesse time then for one whole yere, in anie of the Sciences or Artes of Clothiers, Weavers, Sherman, Kembers, Tinkers, Fullers, Taylors, Shoe-makers, and Sadlers, or of anie other Science or Arte mentioned and expresse in one Acte and Statute, made in the said vth. yere of Queene Elizabeth, and dureinge all that time to be lodged and dyeted within his or there Master's Howse or Howses, and not to departe, or be putt awaye, without a quarter of a yeres warneinge att the least before given, accordinge to the forme of the Statute in that behalfe made, upon the Paines and Forfeitures therein conteyned and appointed.

E P I T A P H S.

St MARY'S.

*In the old Church,
On a fair Monument of Alabaster against the North Wall of the Chancel.*

Jacent hic sub marmorib' vicinis Joh.
Stephens Armiger, Consiliarius ad legem
Justiciarius de pace & Quorum. qui 10

Feb.

Feb. 1620. hinc decessit: Elizabeth item uxor ejus prior ex familia apud Eboros satis clara, ac eorum Filiæ duæ Penelope & Sibilla.
Quæ mater & filia mensib' Feb.
Et Martii 1610 cesserunt ante.
Hæc eadem corpora recepturi manent.

Johannes Stephens Armiger consiliarius ad legem, supradict' Johis & Elizabethæ
Filius natu maximus ætatis suæ 31 mensis
Apr. 28°. An'o Dn' 1625. ex hac vita mortali ad supremam lucem evocatus, in hac cella juxta parentes suos charissimos
Sepultus jacet.

On a Monument of Alabaster on the South Wall of the Chancel.

Obiit decimo quinto die Novembr An'o D'ni 1610.
Hic subjacet illa Clara, dulcis, religiosa uxor Rob'ti Camocke Armigeri.
Amica, pia, Clara, vale.

There are only two Epitaphs in the New Church.

1. On a large Monument at the East end of the North isle.

JOHN REBOW of Colchester, merchant, dyed the 13th of April 1699, in the 72d. year of his age, and is buried near this place, and Sarah his wife, daughter of Francis Tayspill of the said Burrough, merchant.

Sir ISAAC REBOW, Kt erected this Monument in memory of his Father and Mother.

* * * Sir Isaac left in his Will 20 s. per ann. to the Sexton of this Parish, for keeping this Monument clean, payable out of his Marsh-lands at Burnham in Essex.

2. Here lyeth the Body of John Carleton, D. D. late Rector of this Parish. He dyed Novemb. 12th, 1737. aged 44. Catharine his widow dyed 25 February 1764.

In the Church-yard, are the following Altar-tombs, with Epitaphs.

1. For—Matthew Scrivener, Gent. who died Dec. 20, 1702. aged 40. and for Dorothy his wife, who died Aug. 24, 1723.
2. —Anne wife of Martin Carter, Gent. who died March
17, 1716. aged 26.
3. —Tim. Cooke, who died Nov. 14, 1726. aged 73.
and for Sara his wife, who died Jan. 1. 1727.
aged 82.
4. —Lau. Gilson, who died Aug. 28, 1720.
5. —Robert Seaman, who died Nov. 14, 1740. aged
55. and for Mary his wife, who died March 7,
1738-9. aged 50.
6. —Elizabeth Peirce, died May 26, 1735, aged 73.
and her daughter, Elizabeth wife of W. Webb, died Sept. 3, 1740. aged 43.
7. —Mary, wife of John Laurence, died March 8,
1706. aged 44.
8. —On the North side of the Chancel, railed in with iron.

Sub hoc marmore latet corpus Mariæ uxoris
Thomæ Mayhew, hujus villæ Gen. quæ obt.
[xxi. die.

Julii Anno Dni. 1714. ætatis suæ 34.

In the same vault lyeth the said Tho. Mayhew, and several of their children.

Att the top of the stone are Mayhew's arms; viz. a chevron vary cuppy argent and gules, between three Ducal coronets, or, within a border ingrailed, gules: impaling Sherman.

ST PETER'S.

On the North side of the Chancel, against the Wall. A fine monument of black and white marble, with Effigies of a man and his wife kneeling, a desk between them: below, 6 males, and 7 females, kneeling; all in basso relievo.

The Epitaph in gold letters.

Here under lyes interred the Bodies of Martin Basill, sometime Alderman of this Towne, whoe departed this lyfe the 23 of March 1623, and Elizabeth his wyfe, whoe deceased the 30 of October 1625. They had yflew between them, 6 sons, and 7 daughters, being neither of them ever otherwise married. They lived lovingly together 43 yeeres in holy wedlock in the feare of God, and in good name.

In the North isle of the Chancel, a beautiful monument, represented in p. 3. having a pair of iron grates, to shut before and preserve it.

An Epitaph upon the Deathe of the worshipfull George Sayer the elder, late of Colchester Esq; deceased, and here buried the 21 of Maye 1577; who had to his first wyfe Agnefs daughter of Thomas Wefden; by her had yssue 4 fonnes and 3 daughters, she died November 1556. and to his second wyfe Frances daughter of Thomas Sammon, and she died the 9th of April 1570.

O happie hoared heares that here in grave dothe lye,
Whole body resteth nowe in earth, his ghost with Christ on hie.
His youthfull race he ran with travayle and with troth,
His myddle and his aged years with wealth and worship both.
Full thyrtye years or more cheefe rule or place he bare
In this his native auncient Towne, whereof he had great care.
With Justice he did rule, and eke with mercy mylde,
With love he lyved many years of man woman and chylde.
A Monument he made for ever to remain
For ayde to poor and aged wights, which are oppressed with payne.

Posteritie he had to his great joye of mind,
His place and portion to possesse, which he hath left behynde.

O happie Sayer, not for theis thinges alone
Which were but mundane vayne and vyle and fade and fayle eche one

But happier thowfande-folde to lyve and love those dayes Wherein Goddes gospell brightlye shynes to his eternall prayse.

Thy oft desired wyshe thou doubtles didest obtayne,
With Symeon to departe in peace, and lyfe by death to gayne.
Thy ofspringe maye rejoyce for this thy happye ende:
Thy freinds and tenaunts all are gladd that God such grace did send.

And we, that yet remayne within this vale of teares,
By thine example maye be taught for to contemne all feares,
And alwayes for to praye that God our stepps so gvyde
That we lykewise may hence depart in endlesse blisse to byde.

Upon a Brass-plate, on the same Wall.

Here lyeth the Body of Richard Sayer Gent. who was buried the 7th day of Septem. 1610. He had to his first wife, Ailse Spooner, by whom he had issue one soun, and to his second wife, Ellen Lawrence widdowe, by whom he had issue one daughter, named Jane.

Birth, Life, Age, Death, foure Blessings from above
He hath posselt, true favour of God's love.
Birth gentle, Life sober, Age full fourscore yeare,
Death lamb-like mild, with Conscience good and cleare.
Heaven hath his Soul, the World good name though sory,
Yet joy his life is changed for endlesse glory.

In the North Wall of the same isle, upon a brass-plate. [In old English characters.]

Agnes the daughter of John Woodthorpe, byrne in Lavenham, the wief first of Aleyn Dister, and after of Robert Leache, departed this world in the yere of our Lord God 1553. Her vertuous lief and conversation was co'mendable emongest her Neighbours, and thankfull to Almighty God, of whom we trust she is now accepted. She did appointe certain money to be given yerely to the Poor of this Parishes at the feast of Penthecost, that they should render thancke unto Christ, and keep his Gracious benefits in memory for ever.

In the same isle, on a brass-plate, at the head of an Altar-tomb, now laid even with the pavement. [In old English Characters.]

Quos thalamus, quos junxit amor, conjunxit eodem
En tumulo gnatus cum genetrice patrem.
Felices animo, fortuna, corpore, quantum
Terrena id fieri condicione potest.
Unam aberat coelum, quo mentes ante volârunt.
Supremum expectant ossa animanda diem.

Here under lyeth buried the Bodies of William Brown Gent. and Margaret his wyfe, which William deceased on the xxth day of January A°. Domini 1572. and the said
Margaret on the xxiii day of September next following.

Above it, on an oval monument against the pillar, is an Epitaph: for Mary the wife of William Eldred 4th son of John Eldred of Stanway Esq; and daughter of Edmund Thurston of this town. She dyed Nov. 18, 1671. aged 28.

In the South-Isle of the Church against the wall on a brass-plate. [In old English letters.]

In this yle, and neare unto this place, are buryed the bodyes of John Sayer, sometyme Alderman of this Towne of Colchester, and of Elizabeth his wyfe, which said John dyed the xiiii day of February in the yer of our Lord God mccccix. and which said Elizabeth dyed the xxvii daye of April in the yere of our Lorde God mccccxxx.

Opposite to it, against one of the pillars, upon a Brass-plate. [In old English characters.]

John Sayers Bodye lyeth enclosed here in grave, Whose ghost the Heavens do possesse, whose fame on earth
we have.

His lyfe and eke his death with good report he past,
And nowe he (doubtlesse) doth enjoye the lyfe that aye shall last.

When fiftene hundreth yeares and fixtie three were spent,
From Chryst his Byrth accounted just, from payne to joyes he went.

He dyed in An^o Dⁿⁱ. 1568.

Epitaphs on Grave Stones.

In the Chancel. On a black marble.

Here lieth Sir William Campian, son of Sir William Campian of Kent, who was slain in the yeare of our Lord 1648, of his age 34, upon a fally out of this Town in June. He was pious, valiant, constant to his Prince whose cause he chose, and whose service he dyed in. Disturb not his ashes, reader, if thou likest his Judgment, thou wilt praise his Action.

At the top, an escutcheon, quarterly, Fretty, &c.

On a Purbeck Stone.

Here lyeth the Body of Mr. Jeremiah Daniel, who departed this life the 16th of November 1696. in the 61 of his age. [It was he that gave the Coals, as abovementioned, p. 165.]

In the Chancel, there are other Grave-stones.

1. For 4 sons and 4 daughters of John Potter, Alderman.
2. — John Freman, Gent. who died Oct. 20, 1714. aged 56, and for Dorothy his wife, who died Octob. 8, 1735, aged 74.
3. — John Stilleman, sometime Major of this town, died Sept. 6, 1699. aged 53.
4. — John Cox, Alderman, who died Novemb. 5, 1649. aged 49. and for his wife.
5. — Mary his daughter, wife of John Milbank, who died Novemb. 21, 1666. aged 37, and for Mary daughter of J. Milbank, and wife of Peter Coveney.
6. — Daniel Cole, the last Bayliff, and the first Mayor of Colchester, died Feb. 28, 1642. aged 56.
7. — Jasper Waters, who died March 27, 1706. aged 62. and for his 2 wives, and children.
8. — Peter Coveney, who died March 12, 1725. aged 74. and for his 4 wives, &c.
9. — Aquila, wife of Edmund Thurston, died May 24, 1681, aged 71.
10. — Thomas Carew, who died Decem. 27, 1739. aged 56. Mary his wife, died March 7, 1733. aged 55. and for their Children.

In the North isle of the Chancel, and Church.

1. — For Elizabeth, wife of John Rayner Esq; and daughter of William Swallow, who died July 12, 1693. aged 43. and Mary wife of William Rayner, who died Oct. 29. 1727. aged 53.
2. — John Rayner, Gent. who died Sept. 3. 1728. aged 62. and for Elizabeth his wife, died Octob. 3, 1729. aged 64.
3. — Richard Tovell, Grocer.
4. — Susanna Robjent, who died April 19, 1722. aged 83. and for her daughter Susanna, wife of Cornelius Bogard, died Nov. 28, 1722. aged 43.
5. — Jacobus Bayley, M. D. ætat 46, 1699. hic Tutius jacet. [It was a common saying of his, All is safe.]
6. — Mrs Ann Hufsey, died 26 Dec. 1740, aged 32.

In the Body of the Church.

For Henry Fitzer, who died May 2, 1704. aged 72. Five more, for his wife and children.

In the South isle of the Church.

1. — For John Blatch, who died July 9, 1743, aged 63. and for Anne his wife, that died Ap. 26, 1743. aged 59. and 3 of their children.
2. — James Lemynge, Gent. died Apr. 16, 1671. and Mary his wife, eldest daughter of Sir William Batten, Kt died Apr. 18, 1671.
3. — James Fromantel Esq; died Jan. 3. 1694.5. aged 66.
4. — John Carr, a Physician, died Oct. 5, 1727. aged 40.
5. — John Price, died March 5, 1730. aged 9.

St RUNWALD'S.

1. Vixi, et quem dederat cursum fortuna peregi. J. Goddard obiit 5^{to} die Junii 1709. Ætatis suæ 26.

There are other Epitaphs.

1. For Richard Blaykling, born at Sedburgh in Yorkshire, M. A. fellow of St John's Coll. Camb. and Minister of Pedmarsh in Essex; He died June 2, 1671.
2. — Samuel Mott Gent. twice Mayor of this Town, died Jan. 8. 1698, aged 66. At the Top are his arms, viz. a Cressent, impaling Cressfield.
3. — Temperance his wife, died March 19, 1698, 9.
4. — Christopher Bayles, Alderman, died in 1666. aged 42. and Martha his wife, died Sept. 7, 1710. aged 84.
5. — Alice, wife of Thomas Bayles, and daughter of John Stilleman, died Dec. 10, 1710. aged 38.
6. — John Ram, merchant, died May 29, 1713. aged 59.

H. TRINITY.

1. Here lyeth the body of Jherome Gilberd sometime Recorder of this towne of Colchester, and Elizabeth his first wife and Margaret his daughter, he dyed 23 of May 1583. [Now gone. Taken from Symonds's Collec. Vol. I. fol. 437.]
2. Dr Will' Gilberd's Epitaph on his Monument, the only Monument in this Church. See above p. 117.

Pofverunt hunc Tumulum Ambrosius
& Gulielmus Gilberd, in memoriam
Pietatis fraternæ Gulielmo Gilberd
Seniori Armigero, & Medicinæ Doctori,
Hic primæv9 Filius Hieronimi Gilberd
Armigeri, Nat9 erat Villæ Colceſtriæ,
Studuit Cantabrigiæ Artem Medicam, Summis laudibus Pariq; Foelicitate per Triginta pl9 Annos Londini exercuit,
Hinc Aulam accerſit9 in ſummum Reginæ
Elizabethæ Favorem receptus fuit,
Cui ut ſucceſſori Jacobo ſervivit
Archiatros. Librum de Magnete apud
Exteros celebrem in rem Nauticam
Compoſvit, Obiit Anno Redemptionis
Humanæ 1603, Novembris ultimo,
Ætatis ſuæ 63.

On Grave-stones in the Chancel.

3. M. S. Johannes Shaw Miles pro Rege Serviens ad legem, villæ Colceſtriæ a Memoria, Ubi ut communi Utilitati et Paci publicæ ſerviat, curavit nemo inter ſucceſſores felicius, Dum publicis Regni Comitibus agens (quo officia diu eſt functus) Regis & Regni Com'odum indiviſum habuit. Tandem, valedict9 prius mundo, cum ætatem hominis pertranſſet, animam Deo, unde venit, tradidit. Quicquid erat mortale ſub hoc marmore deponitur. Fide Chriſtiana revivſcere immortale et æternum. Anno ætatis 73. et ſalutis 1690.

By the Side of it.

4. Here lyeth the Body of the Lady Thamar Shaw, wife to Sir John Shaw Knight, Serjeant at Law, who dyed January the 13th Anno Dmi 1681.
5. Here lyeth the Body of Sir John Shaw Knight, Serjeant at law, who dyed January the 13th Anno Domi 1681.

Near, are alſo Epitaphs.

6. For — Samuel Shaw Esq; ſecond ſon of Sir John, who died Apr. 16, 1677.
7. — Thamar, his eldeſt daughter, died unmarried, March 11, 1686, 7.

8. —

8. —Elizabeth, his youngest daughter, died July 16, 1683. aged 19. Shaw's arms; sable a Chevron wavy, between 3 Eagles display'd, or.
9. —Mrs Mary Thurston, widow of Joseph Thurston, and daughter of Sir John Shaw. "She lived 30 years a widow, was a very tender and affectionate mother of her children, and of exemplary piety, virtue, and charity in her life and conversation." She died June 27, 1720. aged 74.
10. —The said Joseph Thurston, son of Edmund and Aquila, died June 22, 1690. aged 54. left issue surviving, Joseph, Thomas, and Mary.
11. —William Clarke Gent. who died Apr. 1, 1718. aged 86. and for Mary his wife; she died March 10, 1716. aged 68.

In the South isle, both of the Chancel and Church; On Grave-stones.

1. M. S. Hic jacet vir reverendus Josephus Powell, acerrimi judicii Theologus, et Concionator eruditissimus, Qui postquam hic & apud Balsam in Com. Cantab. omnibus Pastoris vigilantissimi, optimi Civis, Amici fidelissimi officiis eximie functus est, Obiit 17 die Februarii Anno D'ni 1697, 8. et ætatis suæ 53. Hic etiam deponitur Francisca, uxor ejus unica, sibi suisq; gratissima. Obiit 19 die Feb. 1721.

Here are other Epitaphs

2. For —T. Talcott Esq; Alderman, who died Febr. 22, 1685, 6.
3. —Gravelly Hurst, Attorney-at-law, who died Jan. 11, 1679. aged 36.
4. —Ann, his widow, died July 20, 1688. aged 40.

In the South-wall of the Church, under an arch, there is a very fine carved stone-coffin; but 'tis not known who was buried therein.

In the body of the Church; on Grave-stones

1. In a vault beneath lieth the Body of Thomas Lufkin M. A. of Christ church, Oxon. 36 years Rector of Frating, and Minister of Bere-church, and Layer de la Hay. He died 22 Novemb. 1745. aged 67. Here also lie, Eliz. his wife; She died 7 Jan. 1746. aged 55. and Eliz. their only child; she died 16 July 1745. aged 19.
2. Above, and by the side of it, are also Epitaphs for William, and Mary, children of Ric. Thompson Physician; and Judith, daughter of Rob. Palmer Gent.

In the North part of the Church yard, two Altar-tombs.

One for John Brasier jun. who died Jan. 8, 1663. and John Brasier jun. died Aug. 31, 1678. aged 33, &c.

Another, For John Brasier, M. A. Rector of Great Holland, and Easthorp, in this County, who was born in Colchester June 27, 1667, and died July 19, 1725. Near also lye some of his Children.

Not far from these, in a vault, lies buried Mary, daughter of Sir Thomas Kitson, and wife of Thomas Lord Darcy Viscount Colchester and Earl Rivers; which Lady died in 1644. [See above, p. 171.] Over this vault, there formerly stood a handsome pyramid, encompassed with iron rails, but now totally demolished.

St NICOLAS'S.

In the Chancel, now uncovered, are two Monuments.

1. At the East-end. Anno Dom. 1625. John Langley Gent. and his first and second wife.

God's love and favour is not knowne alwayes
By earthly Comforts, or by length of Dayes;
For ostentymes we see, whom he loves best
He takes the sooner to his place of rest.
Long Life on earth doth but prolong our paine,
In happie Death there is the greatest gaine.
These wives and children heere can witness this,
In whom, none livse, kneue any thing amisse.
Marie had Marie, Jefferie, Anna and John.
Joane had for children, Susan all alone.

2. Against the North-wall, is a monument of Alabaster and black marble; for Richard Harris, D. D. who died in 1621. aged 63. but the Epitaph is so nonsensical, that it ought to be buried in oblivion. I take him to have been the same that was General Preacher here.

In the rest of the Chancel, on Grave-stones. Epitaphs.

1. For —Marie, wife of John Langley, which died May 16, 1622. aged 27,—Joane, the 2d wife of John Langley abovementioned, and daughter of Ambrose Jenins of London, who died Sep. 3, 1625.
2. —Frederic Beke, who died 29 March 1612. aged 52.
3. —Mary, Mother of Tho. Ruse Gent. that died July 19, 1663, aged 63. and for some of her children.
4. —Tho. Ruse Gent. who died Jan. 24, 1692. aged 69. and for his grandson, Tho. Ruse, who died Aug. 7, 1718. aged 40.
5. —Elizabeth, wife of Matthew Ive, and eleven children.
6. —William Walker, who died Janu. 15, 1693. aged 63, and for Martha his wife; she died Sept. 15, 1713. aged 73.
7. —"Sir Ralph Creffield one of the Aldermen and three times Mayor of this Town. He was Knighted by Q. Anne, on presenting her an Address of Thanks from the Corporation on the conclusion of the Peace at Utrecht in 1713. He married Rachael the daughter of Mr George Tayspill. And had issue by her 4 sons and 1 daughter, who all died in his life time; Ralph Creffield, Esq; the second son leaving issue, Peter, Hannah, and Sarah, Ob. 22 Jun. 1732. ætat 79."
8. —Thamar, wife of Peter Creffield, Esq; obiit Sept. 21, 1740. ætat 23. On her is erected an altar-tomb.
9. —Richard Puppelt, who died Oct. 29, 1730. aged 76. and Ann his wife, that died April 2, 1721. aged 63.
10. —Samuel Great, died May 9, 1706. aged 81. Susan his wife, died July 15, 1722. aged 83. Samuel their son, died Oct. 30, 1693. aged 29. Susanna their daughter; died Feb. 14, 1714. John their son, died Sept. 3, 1715. aged 49. and Hester his wife Janu. 4, 1703. aged 34. [This last is within the Church.]
11. —Robertus Buxton Pharmacopola, 1655.

In the Church, on a Monument against a Pillar.

In memory of Mr Samuel Great, Apothecary, who died the 9th of May 1706, aged 80 years. And of Susan his wife, who died the 14th of July 1722. aged 83 years. She was daughter of Mr Nicholas Jaques, Merchant, brother to Sir John Jaques, Baronet; They had issue 8 sons and 4 daughters.

In the South-Isle.

For Richard Walker, jun. who died April 23, 1695.

In the Church-yard, upon an Altar-tomb.

Here lye the Bodies of Sarah and Eliz. the wives of Geo. Wegg, and 7 of their children.

ALL-SAINTS.

In the Chancel. On a Grave-stone.

Sub hoc marmore jacet Reverendus admodum Dominus Edmundus Hickingrill, tam Marte quam Mercurio clarus, quippe qui terra marique militavit non sine gloria, Ingeniique vires scriptis multiplice argumento insignitis demonstravit: Sacris tandem Ordinibus initiatus, hujusce Parochiæ 46 annos Rector; vitam, spe meliore fretus, intrepide reliquit Novemb. 30. anno D'ni 1708. ætatis vero suæ 78. Sub eodem hoc tumulo recumbunt Anna uxor p'dilecta pia, prudens, pudica; denata Apr. 6, 1708. ætat. 67. atq; Edmundus utriusq; filius natu quartus, diem obiens Mar. 25, 1705. ætat 59. Longævus parentes moerore pio adhuc superstites prosequuntur Thomas, Mathias, Anna, Sarah, Maria, et Francisca. [What is printed in Italics, hath been chisell'd out; by order of Bp. Compton, as it is said.]

In the Chancel is another grave-stone for John Abbot, D. D. Rector of this Church, and formerly Fellow of Balliol-college, Oxon; who dyed 29 April 1760, aged 43.

At the lower end of the body of the Church; is one for Abigail the wife of Robert Harmer, general Preacher here, to whom she was married Nov. 18, 1641. and died June 11, 1642.

Against the wall of the North Aisle,

Is a neat marble Monument, erected by Charles Gray Esq; to the memory of Mrs Mary Webster, who dyed 10 February 1754, aged 92; and of her Daughter Sara, wife of the said Charles Gray Esq; who died 6 June 1751; and for Mary Gray, and Charlotte-Rachel Gray, their two daughters; the first of whom dyed 10 December 1753, aged 21, and the latter 5 October 1749, aged 14.

In the North Aisle are two Grave-stones.

1. For John Raoul M. D. who died Nov. 18, 1737, aged 78.
2. — John Philips, sometime Chamberlain of this town, who died Oct. 31, 1683, aged 55.

On the outside, against the South-wall of the Tower.

Hic jacent, spe Resurrectionis, Reliquiæ Guilielmi Turneri A. M. Aul. Clar. Cantab. quondam Alumni annis plus 30 Scholæ Stamfordensis in Agro Lincoln. ad postremum hujusce Colcestrensis Magistris. Vir fuit, ut Moribus facillimis, Probitate integra, Virtute gravi, Religione vera, Christiana Liberalitate erga pauperes munifica, & ad omne bonum opus semper paratissimus; Ita de bonis literis, præcipue vero de re Grammatica, Linguaq; adeo Latina, testantibus Leibellis ab eo editis, optime meritis. Natus fuit Garthorpiæ in Agro Leicestr. Octob. 4, 1658, obiit Jan'rii 24, 1725. anno ætat. suæ 68. Abi, Lector, & Imitare.

St JAMES'S.

Within the rails of the Communion-table: upon two marble Grave-stones.

1. Johannes Rayne, A. M. hujus Ecclesiæ nuper Rector obiit 18^o Julii 1700.
2. Lucia Rayne, J. Rayne hujus Ecclesiæ Rectoris uxor, obiit 23^o Junii 1700.

Without the rails.

An Epitaph, for John Fuller citizen and draper of London, son of Robert Fuller Rector of this Church, and of Chignall, by his wife Susanna, died Dec. 4, 1684, aged 31. and—for Mary, daughter of William Shelton, also Rector of this Church, by the said Susanna, which died Oct. 10, 1684, aged 16.

In the middle pace of the Chancel, on a black marble.

For William Johnson, Alderman, who died August 20, 1634, aged 59. and for Peter Johnson, Alderman, son of the said William, who died Aug. 1, 1680, aged 67. As also for Peter Johnson, son of this last, who died October 2, 1745, aged 76.

A little further.

Here lyeth the Body of the Rev. Barn. Symson M. A. Rector of this Parish, for the space of 25 years, 4 months and 15 days: A most faithful, diligent, and charitable Pastor, and a man of exemplary Piety and Virtue. He dyed universally lamented Febru. 28, 1741, 2. aged 62.

By the Side of it.

Mrs Sara Demetrius A. D. 1732.

In the Body of the Church, towards the Pulpit.

— Ralph Creffield junior Esq; one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County of Essex—departed this life the 12 day of December in 1723, aged 36.

In the South-aisle, upon a Monument, of which see the representation above, p. 170.

Near this place lieth the Body of ARTHUR WINSLEY Esq; An Alderman of this Town, and a Justice of the Peace for the County, He was the Founder and Endower of Twelve Charity Houses in St Botolph's Parish, and dyed on the 30th of January 1726-7.

Upon an oval Monument against the South wall of the same isle, in golden letters.

D. O. M. S. Ad fundum hujus parietis sepultus est Thomas Reynolds Generosus, aliquando Colcestriæ Prætor. Uxorem duxit Margeriam Decoster Samuelis Decoster Mercatoris Londinensis filiam, quæ postquam octies peperisset, scilicet utriusq; sexus quatuor, corruptibilem corporis sarcinam deposuit Aprilis 15, 1649. Ille vero cum laboris sui fructus (usq; ad satietatem) comedisset, exuberante poculo, et amygdalo efflorescente, tam dierum quam divitiarum plenus, pie ac placide in Christo obdormivit Aprilis 29 Anno Dom. 1665. ætatis suæ 61.

Dives opum, necnon generosa prole beatus,
Corpore defuncto spiritus astra colit.
Lector, abi: silet hic monumentum; nec queat ultra.
In libro vitæ cætera scripta manent.

Upon the Floor,

Here lieth the Body of Samuel Reynolds, Esq; who after he had long served his Country, and this Town as their Burgesse in divers Parliaments, departed this life August 23, Anno ætat. 52. Dni 1694.

Near which, upon brass plates affixed to two stones, are Epitaphs.

1. For — John Maynard, clothier and Alderman, who died May 6, 1569.
2. — Ales, his wife, which died June 8, 1584.

In the North Isle.

Here lyeth the Body of Nathaniel Lawrence Esq; who was one of the Aldermen, and several times Major of this Town; he departed this life the 5th day of May, 1714, aged 87 years. And also the Body of Martha his wife, the Daughter of Richard Greene Gent. She died the 18th day of June 1677.

This Mr. Lawrence's son, named also Nathaniel, was very remarkable for this, that after having been lame above 7 years, he suddenly recovered the use of his legs. He died 22 Janu. 1750-1. aged 90.

Other Epitaphs in this Isle.

1. Martha daughter of the foresaid N. Lawrence, died July 6, 1674, aged 10.
2. Nathaniel son of the last mentioned, died Feb. 23, 1716, aged 21.
3. Anne his daughter, wife of Jeremiah Daniell, died Sept. 20, 1722, aged 21.
4. A son and a daughter of James Lawrence, Alderman.
5. Samuel Dover, died June 8, 1692, aged 29.
6. William Bloys, died Nov. 11, 1695, aged 44.
7. Mary the wife of Samuel Rider jun. died April 18, 1700.

In the South east side of the Church yard, are two Altar-tombs inclosed within iron-rails.

1. For — William Boys, Alderman, who died Apr. 21, 1714, aged 72. and for Sarah his wife, who died Oct. 21, 1702, aged 52. and for 4 of their children.— They left issue James, William, Richard; Mary, Sarah, Elizabeth, and Martha.
2. — William Rush Esq; of London, vinegar-merchant, who died Octob. 27, 1738, aged 67. He married 1st. Margaret daughter of William Lorkin of Suffolk. 2ly. Mary daughter of Alderman William Boys, which last died July 9, 1742, aged 68.

By the side of them, a flat stone.

For Martha daughter of the said Alderman Boys, and wife of Hen. Abbot. She died Nov. 9, 1720, aged 30.

St BOTOLPH'S.

Within the ruinous walls of the Church; an Altar-tomb for Richard Winsley Gent. who died March 16, 1733-4, ag. 54.

One in the Church-yard for Benj. Crois, Surgeon, who died Oct. 23, 1709, aged 37.

St GILES'S.

On a fine Monument against the wall of the North-Isle.

Thomas Lucas, filius Johannis regi Edwardo vi^o quondam Magistris Libellor' filii Thomæ olim Solitarii causaru' regiaru' Henricq; vii^o F. Johannis armigeri &c. Eques auratus, vir prudentiæ, justitiæ & hospitalitatis laude clarus, octogesimo ætatis anno diem obiit supremu' 30 Cal. Septembr. a'no salutis MDCXI. Septem habuit Liberos, quorum duos filios & tres filias sup'stitis reliquit, omnes e dilecta conjuge susceptos nomine Maria clara Fermoru' Arpe prognata, quicum per annos quinquaginta vixit amantissime ad extremu' usq; spiritum. Huic illustrissimo viro charissimoq; suo marito prefata Maria monumentu' hoc extruxit in amoris sui testimoniu' a'no D'ni MDCXII.

Pientissima Domina Maria Lucas Dom' Thomæ Lucas Equitis aurati relicta 5 Julii 1613 vidua obiit. Quoru' filius natu minor D. Johannes Lucas coelebs Sept. 4, 1615. natu vero major D. Thomas Lucas tribus filiis & quinque filiabus relicta diem suu' obiit Sept. 25. 1625.

Hic quib' in Christo sua vita recondita Lucæ Conditur, surgentq; ut plena luce fruantur.

In the Vault; upon the Lord and Lady Lucas's Coffins.

This Cophin incloses the Body of the Right Hon. the Lady Lucas, who died on the 22d day of August, the year 1660.

Memoriæ sacrum Nobilissimi Dni. Johannis Dni Lucas Baronis de Shenfield Qui obiit 2^o die Julii 1671. ætatis suæ 65.

Upon two Altar-tombs, on the South-side of the Church-yard.

William Cock Pastor of this Church 34 years, who was buried 1619. and Anne Cock his wife 1625.

The other is for, Elizabeth wife to Mr. Benj. Cock, who died March 28, 1708. aged 62.

St LEONARD'S.

In the Chancel. On Grave-stones.

1. Here lyeth interred the Body of John Scarburrow, citizen and haberdasher of London, who was towards God truly religious, towards men very just and charitable; an unfeigned lover of Goodness and good Men, a fauoror and furtherer of sincere preaching of the worde of God, living and dying: Hee dyed in the year of his age 48. Anno Dom. 1625.
2. Near this place lye the Remains of Ralph Harrison, clerk, eldest son of Ralph Harrison, who was an Alderman of Colchester at the time it was besieged, and lyes buried in St Buttolph's. Also those of Ralph Harrison Dr of Physick eldest son of Ralph, clerk. Also those of Ralph only son of Dr John, who dy'd a batchelor. Also those of Elizabeth, a daughter of the said Ralph, clerk, who married William Mayhew Gent. And under this stone is deposited the Body of Thomas Harrison Gent. only son of Thomas, brother of Dr John, who departed this life February the 24th 1737 a batchelor, aged 53 years and upwards. To whose memory, and those of his Family buried here, Mr William Mayhew an Attorney in this Town, a grandson of the abovesaid Elizabeth; and also a devisee and executor named in the last will of the said Thomas, hath caused this Inscription. ——— Optimus ille Qui minimis urgetur.

Other Epitaphs in the rest of the Chancel, and the Church.

1. For —Capt. John Taylor, who died Aug. 9, 1675.
2. —Isaac Sherley, merchant, who died Janu. 29, 1695. aged 38.
3. —Jeffery Langley, Alderman and one of the Bayliffs, who died November 22, 1624.
4. —Paul Angier, Surveyor of this Port, who died October 17, 1734.
5. —Thomas Maynard, who died Dec. 22, 1707. aged 70. and for Elizabeth his wife; she died Sept. 11, 1699.
6. —Alice, wife of Robert Bell, merchant of London, who died Dec. 6, 1646.
7. —Rose, wife of John Jeffery of Ipswich, who died July 16, 1723. aged 85 years, and 8 months.
8. —Thomas, son of Capt. Tho. Morley, who died Nov. 22, 1741. aged 1.

MILE-END.

Juxta jacet Gulielmus Smythies hujus parochiæ Rector ann. 32. obiit Mar. 7, 1719. æt. 57. Jacet etiam in area proxime suggestum Thamar ejus uxor: obiit Nov. 6; 1734. ætatis 69. relicta septem; sepulta 4 liberis.

There is another monument for Susan the wife of the Rev. Palmer Smythies, (the present Rector) she died July 24, 1731.

GREENSTEAD.

Here lyeth the Body of Mr Thomas Shaw, Master of Arts, who was Rector of this parish, and third son of Sir John Shaw Knight, Serjeant at law. He departed this life the third day of May, in the fortieth year of his age, and in the year of our Lord 1692.

BERE-CHURCH.

In the body of the Church.

Under this stone lye together the Bodies of Thomas Awdeley of Gosbeckes Gent. who died the vii day of July A. Dni 1584. and of John Awdeley Gent. who dyed the xxi of July A. Dni 1588. both younger Brothers unto Thomas Awdeley of Bere-church Esq; which stone was given to be so layd by the last will of John Awdeley Gent. son of the said Thomas Awdeley of Gosbeckes. Finished accordingly in June 1599.

Upon Monuments, in a Chapel adjoyning to the North-side of the Chancel.

Memoriæ Sacrum. Robertus Awdeley armiger, ex familia Baronis de Walden, hic juxta jacet. Uxorem habuit Catharinam filiam Edwardi Baronis Windesore de Bradenham, ex ea suscepit Thomam, Henricum, (equitem auratum,) Robertum; et Catharinam primogenitam, (uxorem Johannis Thecher armigeri) Patri suo superstites: Thomam vero, et Richardum vita functos vivo parente. Qui Religionis, Justitiæ, et Hospitalitatis cultor, obiit. xxviii Sept. A. Dni MDCXXIV. ætatis suæ LXXII. Catharina conjux conjugii suo carissima carissimo lacrimans posui.

Hic jacet Honorabilis et Inclyta Fœmina Catharina Awdeley nuper uxor venerabilis viri Roberti Awdeley de Berechurch in Com. Essex Ar. una filiar. Prænobilis D'ni Will. Windfor Baronis de Bradnam in Com. Bucks. Quæ obiit 15^o die Decembris An^o Regni serenissimi Regis Caroli An^oq; D'ni 1641. ætatis suæ 74.

Henricus Awdeley Eques auratus. Patris Roberti, honoratissimo Thomæ Domino Awdeley Baroni de Walden summoq; Angliæ Cancellario hæredis Hæres, matrisq; Catharinæ nobilissimo Thomæ Domino Windfor Baroni de Bradnam filiar primogenitus. Cui Anna conjux dilectissima, Humfredi Packington de Chadefley-Corbet in agro Wigorn. armigeri cohæres, natos binos Thomam, Henricum; nataq; Catharinam, Mariam, Abigalem, Pignora carissima, pulcherrima, optima. Mortalitatis memor, non ædes (Bellæ civilis furore dirutas) sed hoc Monumentum vivus extruxit. Anno Salutis MDCXLVIII.

In the Chancel, are Epitaphs.

1. For —Anne, daughter of Robert Barker, Serjeant at law, who died March 18, 1647.
2. —Katharine, daughter of Sir Alexander Barlowe of Barlowe in the County of Lancaster Knt. who died Dec. 26, 1636.
3. —Andrew Windfor Esq.

I N D E X.

- A B B O T's-Hall, 132.
Adelfus, de Civitate Colon. 34.
Adminius, 19.
Admiralty-Courts held here, 87.
J. Agricola, his exploits in Britain, 25. accustoms the Britans to the Roman fashions, &c. ib.
Aids, for making the King's eldest Son a Knight, and marrying his eldest Daughter, 53.
Albinus, 26, 27.
Aldhelm, Bishop of Sherbourn, his testimony about Constantine, 29.
Alford, (Michael) 28.
Alfred, King, his Wars with the Danes, 42, 43.
Allestus, 32.
All-Saints parish, account of it, 118.
Ambrosius, Aurelius, 39.
Androgeus or Androgorius, 19.
Anglesey reduced by the Romans, 22.
St Anne's Chapel, 152. and Gild, 153.
Anniversaries, 159.
Antoninus's Itinerary, 15.
Arms of Colchester, 34.
Army, a standing one kept here by the Romans, 25.
Array (Commission of) 48.
Arviragus, 20, 26.
Assemblies, 99.
Association (Eastern) 54.
Attila, 36, 37.
Audeley, Account of that Family, 138.
Audeley (Thomas, Lord) Grants made to him, 112, 116, 119, 138. particularly St. Botolph's Priory, 147. and the Crouched-Friers, 151.
—— (Sir Henry) sequestered, 57.
Audeley, House, 138.
Augustus prepares to invade Britain, 19.
St. Augustin, Canons regular of, 146.
Aurelian employed in Gaul, 30.
Auricular, 92.

Bailiffs, 98.
Barker-family, 57, 29.
Barvys (Tho.) 28.
Barwyk (Peter) his Chantry, 158.
Bastwick (John) 121.
Battaille-family, 123.
Batchelor (Henry) his gift, 106.
Battlewick, 123.
Baxter (William) his opinion about Camulodunum, 16.
Bay-trade brought into Colchester, 50, 75.
Bayball, 78, 110.
Benne (Thomas) 53.
Bere-church, account of that parish, 137. formerly a Chapel of Ease to Trinity, 116.
Bere-church-hall, 138.
Bere-wite, 130.
Bericus, a traytor, 20.
Bernard (Walter, and John) Lessees of the Severals, 135.
Bishops of Colchester, 34. petition from Colchester against Bishops, 54.
Blindknights manor, 147.
Boadicea, 13, 22-24.
Bonofus, 31.
St. Botolph's parish, 146. Tithes of it settled on All-Saints, 119, 121.
St. Botolph's Priory, account of it, 146. and of the Church, 148.
Bounds and Extent of the Liberties of Colchester, 95.
Bradenham (Lionel de) 90.
Brewode (John) his Gift, 167.
Bridges of Colchester, 3, 129.

Brigantes, 21.
Britain peopled from Gaul, 17. The several Divisions of it, 27, 33.
Britannia Prima, Secunda, &c. 27, 33.
Britans, their strong Towns, 11. their Government, 17. defeated, 20. Revolt against the Romans, 22, &c. ravage Camulodunum, 23. totally routed, 24. reduced to a Province, 25. the Flower of their Youth drained by the Romans, 26. and by Constantine and Maximus, 33, 34, 36. distressed by the Picts and Scots, 35, 36, 37. a Prey to their own Divisions, 39.
Brooke (George) 137.
Browne, Account of that Family, 111.
Brute, 17.
Burgage-lands in Colchester, 53.
Burgh (John de) 131.

Caer-colon, 11.
Cæsar (Julius) his two Expeditions into Britain, 18, 19.
Caledonians break into the Roman Territories, 26. defeated by Severus, 27.
Caligula, 19.
Camalaunuidun, 11.
Camalodunum, or rather Camulodunum, Colchester, 11, 16, &c. taken by Claudius, 11, 13, 20. an unfortified Place, 13. the Seat of K. Cunobelin, ib. ravaged by the Britans, 22, 23. restored, 24.
Camden (William) his Opinion about the Birth-place of Constantine, 28. his Mistake about the Coins found here, 184.
Camp (Roman) on Lexden-heath, 23, 24.
Campion (Sir William) killed, 59.
Camudolhan, 11.
Camulus, a supposed God, 11, 21.
Cangi, 21.
Canons regular of St Augustin when introduced into England, 146.
Canwick manor, 147.
Capel (Arthur Lord) at the Siege of Colchester, 57, &c.
Caracalla, 27.
Caractacus, 20. defeated, 22.
Carausius, account of him, 31, 32.
Cassivellaun, 19.
Castle, Account of it, 7. Tithes of the Chapel there, 7, 8. extraparochial, ib. & 10. Lands granted with it, 8. besieged, 46. where taxed, 11.
Castle-campi, not Camulodunum, 15.
Catharine (Queen) of Arragon comes to Colchester, 49.
Cedd preaches the Gospel among the East Saxons, 42.
Channel. See Colne.
Chantries here; account of them, 153, &c.
Charitable Foundations, 168.
Charity-Schools, 179.
K. Charles I. engaged in a War with Spain, 53. grants 6d. on every Chaldron of Coals to protect the Coasts, ibid.
Charters granted to the Burgessees of this Town, 46, 82, &c.
Charter of this Town surrendered to K. Charles II. 88.
Childwell, 1.
Chiswell-meadow, 1, 2.
Christianity planted in England, 33. restored here, 41.
Churches in Colchester mean, 105.
Clarke (Arthur) 149.
Claudius comes and conquers Britain, 13. 20. a temple erected to him here, ib. & 21. surnamed Britannicus, 21.
Clothing-trade here, 75.
Coals, duty upon them, 53.
Coat and Conduct Money, 52, 54.
Coel I. dies, 26.

- Coel*, II. his Palace, 8. repairs Colchester, which is said to be so named from him, 11. seizes the Government of these parts, 28. his Daughter Helena born here, ib.
- K. Coel's* pump, 111. and Kitchen, 133.
- Cogidunus*, 34.
- Coins found here, 14, 24, 26, 28, 33, 35, 183, &c.
- Colchester, its Situation, Soil, &c. 1. a Roman Town, 6. Name of it whence derived, 11. was anciently named Camulodunum, 12, &c. in the Possession of the Danes, 44. taken from them by Edward the Elder, ib. who repairs the Wall, ib. how much the Burgeses paid for the Privilege of Coinage, 45. let to Fee-ferm, 46. besieged by some of the Barons, and taken, ib. furnishes five Ships at the Blockade of Calais, 48. and two Ships in 1588, 51. falls to Decay, and several Houses pulled down in it, 49. declares for Queen Mary, 50. she comes here, ib. Persecution in her time, ib. Queen Elizabeth comes hither, 51. levies here during her Reign, ib. & 52. and also in K. Charles the first's, 54. a Spirit of Dissaffection appears in it, ib. Supplies of Men and Money sent from thence to the Parliament, 55. Siege of this Town, 57, &c. full of Inhabitants, 77. Government of it, 97, &c.
- Colchester Arms*, 34.
- Colchester* (Viscount) 81.
- Colchester* (John de) his Chantry, 109.
- Colchester Chronicle*, 28.
- Colne*, Royalty of it, 89. Acts for the Navigation of the same, 127.
- Colne-Ceaster*, 11.
- Colonia-Camulodunum*, 11, &c. different Opinions about the Situation of it, 12, 13, &c.
- Colonies*, different Sorts of them, 20, 21.
- Colony* planted here, 13, &c. 20. Number of its Inhabitants, 23.
- Committee of Parliament seized at Chelmsford, 57.
- Common grounds, or Half-year-land, 92, &c.
- Common-Council, 98.
- Composition Service, 52.
- Compton (Bishop) his Gift of Books to this Town, 163.
- Conquest of England, 44.
- Constans, 34, 35.
- Constantine the Great, born in Colchester, 28, &c. declared Cæsar in Gaul, 29. knew little of Greek, 31. kept as an Hostage by Galerius, but escapes and comes to Britain, 32. is saluted Emperor, 33. carries on the War against the Caledonians, ib. draws large Forces out of this Island, ib. alters the Government of the Empire, and the former Division of Britain, ib. dies, 34.
- Constantine, 36.
- Constantius comes and besieges Colchester, 28. marries Helena, ib. his Life not written separately, 30. employed in Britain, 31. declared Cæsar, 32. Defeats Carausius, ib. divorces Helena, and marries Theodora, ib. succeeds to the Empire, and has Britain for his Share, ib. spent a good deal of time here, and dies at York, ib. secretly favoured the Christians, 33.
- Constantius, and Constantine junior, 35.
- Cooke (Moses) his Benefaction, 106.
- Cosford (Richolda de) her Chantry, 154.
- Count of Britain, and of the Saxon Shore, 33.
- Courts, 107.
- Cox (Joseph) his Gift, 164.
- Cresseild (Lady) her Gift, 166.
- Cromwell (Thomas) Earl of Essex, obtains a Grant of Abbot's-Hall, and Greenstead, 135.
- Cromwell (Oliver) Letters of his, 55, 56. his Mandamus, 74.
- Crouched-Friers, account of them, 149.
- Cunobelin, his Coins found here, and here was his royal seat, 13, 19. dies, 20.
- Customs of the Water, 82, &c. how much let for, 127, 129.
- Custom house, 129.
- Danes Ravage the Coasts of England, 42, 43. make themselves Masters of the Kingdom, 43. in Possession of Colchester, 44. Plunder Ipswich, ib. beaten out of Colchester by K. Edward the elder, ib.
- Danegeld, 43, 44.
- Daniell (Jeremiah) his Gift, 165.
- Daniell (Jeremiah) possessed of the Crouched-Friers, 151.
- Darcy (Thomas) created Viscount Colchester, &c. 81.
- Date, 109, 114, 192.
- Dearth in Colchester, 50, 53.
- De Fee (Daniel) Lessee of the Severals, 134.
- De Vere, Earl of Oxford, hath a Grant of the Castle, 8. John. See Oxford.
- Dilbridge, 121, 147.
- Dioclesian resigns the Empire, 32.
- Dial-church, 117.
- Disafforested; the North part of the County of Essex disafforested, 12.
- Dister (Agnes) her Gift, 165.
- Domesday for Colchester, 43.
- Doniland (West) See Bere-church. Westdoniland manor, 137.
- Dorwall (John) 111.
- Druids, 12, 21.
- Druidical Temples, ib.
- Dugard (William) Account of him, 177.
- Dunkirk, Spanish Fleet there, threatens our Coasts, 53.
- Durolytum, 15.
- Dutch come and settle in Colchester, 50, 75. pay a large part of the fine laid upon the Town, 73. K. James's Letters Patent to them, 77. their Management of the Bay-trade, 78, &c. their Ministers, 79.
- Earthquake, 112.
- East Seaxa, 39.
- Ecbryth, 42.
- Edward the Elder, rebuilds Maeldon, 44. builds Witham, ib. takes Colchester from the Danes, and repairs the Walls, ib.
- Edward I. raises large Taxes, 46.
- Edward III. sends some French Prisoners to be kept here, 48.
- Edward IV. grants this Town a very ample Charter, 85.
- Elimore (Joseph) his Chantry, 155.
- Elizabeth (Q.) brings this Town into a flourishing Condition, 50. comes here, 51.
- Eryngo roots, 92.
- Essex erected into a Kingdom, 39. Kings thereof, 41.
- Eudo Dapifer, 45. founds St. John's Abbey, 139, &c. his House, 111. Founder of St. Mary Magdalen's Hospital, 125. had Lands in Greenstead, and Bere-church, 132, 133.
- Everard (Robert) his Obit, 161.
- Exchange, 110.
- Eynulph, 146.
- Fairs, in Colchester, 80.
- Fairfax (Tho. Lord) his Proceedings at the Siege of Colchester, 57, &c. his Account of the taking of it, 73. his Memorial referred to, 57, 73. accused of having murdered Sir Charles Lucas and Sir Geo. Lisle in cold Blood, 71, 73. lays a Fine upon the Town, 73. a Tool to Oliv. Cromwell, 60.
- Famine in Britain, 37.
- Farre (Col.) 59, 70, 71.
- Fee farm of this Town, 46. to whom granted, 97.
- Fifteenths and Tenths, how raised anciently, 46, 47.
- Fine laid on Colchester, 73.
- Firmicus (Jul.) quoted, 28.
- Fishery of the River Colne granted to this Town by K. Richard I. 89. taken from the Burgeses by K. Henry VI. 48.
- Fitz-walter (Lords) 47, 131, 151.
- Foreigners, 87, 101.
- Forefight of London, a Ship, 51.
- Fort-Royal, Fort-Essex, &c. 60.
- Franks, 32, 33.
- Frankham (Robert) his Gift, 166.
- Fraunceys (Tho.) his Chantry, 156. his Anniversary, 161.
- Freeburgesses, 88, 99, &c. their Freedom how many ways acquired, 101.
- Freemen created, 101.
- Free-school; account of it, 171, &c.
- Fynche (Ralph) orders Water to be conveyed to the Balkon, 2. his Hospital, 163.
- Gale (Dr. Thomas) mentioned, 14, &c.
- (Roger) his Letter about the Birth-place of Constantine, 28, 29, &c.
- Gallows, 119.
- Gascoigne (Sir Bernard) at the Siege of Colchester, 58, 65. &c. condemned, and reprieved, 72.
- [H]
- Gates

- Gates of Colchester, 7.
 Geoffrey of Monmouth mentioned, 17, 18, 28.
 Geta, 27.
 Gifford (Hope) 8.
 Gilbert (Dr. William) Account of him, 117.
 — (Ambrose) founds a Fellowship, 179.
 Gilbert (Geo.) his Gift, 166.
 Gild, what, 150.
 Gild of St. Helen, II, 150, 153. of St. Anne, 152. of St. John, 159.
 St. Giles's Parish, Account of it, 122.
 Gliffon (Dr.) 67, 110.
 Glotta & Bodotria (Fyrths of) 25, 26.
 Godschall family, 123.
 Godston (Tho.) his Chantry, 157.
 Goffebeckes, 138.
 Government of the Corporation, 97.
 Gray (William) 137.
 Gray (Charles) buys the Castle, 10, 118.
 Grey (Marchioness de) Jemima Campbell, married to the Hon. Philip Yorke, 135.
 Grey-Fryers, 151.
 Griffiths (Michael) al. Alford, 28.
 Griffin (Lewis) 177.
 Grimston (Sir Harbottle) 55. his House burnt, 59, 151.
 Account of him, 109.
 Grymes Ditch, 96, 133.
 Guider, or Togodumnus, 20.
 Gunner, one-eyed one, 65.
 Gurdon (Col.) at the Siege of Colchester, 57.

 Hadrian, comes over to Britain, 26. His Rampart, ibid.
 Half-year-land, 92.
 Hampton (Bernard) 136.
 Harmanfon (Edm.) his Chantry, 159.
 Harsnet (Samuel) Account of him, 121. his Library, 111, 168. Master of the Free-School, 176.
 Haverland (Edmund) his Chantry, 157. his Anniverfary, 161.
 Hawes (Tho.) 168.
 Headmen, 98.
 Helena born in Colchester, 28. married to Constantius, ib. a Concubine, ib. further Account of her, 34. goes to Jerusalem, and is said to have found the Cross, ib. divorced, 32. builds St. Helen's Chapel here, 34.
 St. Helen's Chapel, 34. particular account of it, 117, 153.
 St. Helen's Gild, 149, 154.
 Hendricx (Oliver) 149.
 Hengist, account of him and his Wars, 38, &c.
 Henneage (Sir Tho.) 134.
 K. Henry I. his Letters Patent to the Men of Colchester, 46.
 K. Henry II. takes Kingswood from the Burgeffes, ib.
 K. Henry VI. deprives this Town of the Fishery, 48, 90. comes to Colchester, 48.
 K. Henry VIII. very prodigal, 48. has a Loan from this Town, ib. his Letter to the Bailiffs for furnishing Men, 49. Suppresses the Monasteries, ib.
 Herle (Robert de) Procefs before him about the Fishery, 90.
 Hermitage, 152.
 Heynes (Richard) his Chantry, 158.
 High-Steward, 87, 99.
 Holmes (George) 183.
 Holy Cross (Hospital) Advowson of it in whom, 6, 149. See Crutched-Friers. Holy-Cross Chantry, 157.
 Honeywood (Sir Thomas) 58, &c.
 Hospitals, of the Holy Cross, and St. Mary Magdalene, 125, 149. other Hospitals, 182.
 Hubert de Ric, 139.
 Hunwick (John) his Gift, 164.
 Hyth, Old and New, 127, &c.
 Hyth-bridges, 3, 129.

 James I. raises Money by way of Privy-Seals, 53. his Patent for Inns, ib. protects the Dutch Bay-makers, and grants them Letters Patent, 76, &c. refounds St. Mary Magdalene's Hospital, 126.
 James II. his Charter, 88.
 St. James's Parish, Account of it, 119.
 Icen Revolt, 22.
 Jesus Masse, 2, 159.
 Imanuentius, or Lud, 18.
 Ingram (Tho.) his Gift, 165.
 Inns, Patent for them, 53.
 Jobson (Sir Francis) 8. Account of the Jobson-family, 137. had St. John's Abbey, 144. and the Grey-friers, 152.
 St. John's Abbey, Account of its Foundation, Endowment, Abbots, &c. 139, &c. had the Tithes of the Chapel in the Castle, 8. granted to Dudley, and bought by J. Lucas, 144.
 St. John's Green within the Manor of the Corporation, 123.
 Ipswich plundered by the Danes, 44.
 Judde (Lady) her Gift, 164.
 Justices of the Peace, 84, 98, 99.

 Kent, (Duke of) Antony de Grey, marries the Heirefs of the Lucas family, 124, 135, 136.
 Kilner (James) 132.
 King's-wood, 12. in the Burgeffes Possession, 46. K. Henry II. takes it from them, ib. regranted by K. Henry VIII. 134.

 Lanvallei-family, 114, 130, 142. were Lords of Stanway-manor, 149.
 Lardener (Rob.) his Gift for Lights, 161.
 Layton (Sir William) taken Prisoner, 59.
 Leather-market, 114, 120.
 Lectures in Colchester, 100.
 Lees-house, 58.
 Legatus, 22.
 Legions in Britain, 25.
 Leicester (Earl of) Robert Dudley, comes to Colchester, 51.
 St. Leonard's Parish, 127. Gifts thereto, 167.
 Lepers, 125.
 Lewis (Rob.) his Foundation at Cambridge, 178.
 Lexden, Account of that Parish, 130. Lexden-heath, Roman works there, 132, 133.
 Lipsius mentioned, 28, 29.
 Lisle (Sir George) at the Siege of Colchester, 57, &c. Shot, 71.
 Livings in Colchester mean, 105.
 Loan to K. Henry VIII, 48, 49.
 Lollius Urbicus his Rampart, 26.
 London, no Colony at first, 23. plundered by the Britains, ib. in great Distress, 35. was part of the Kingdom of Mercia, 42.
 Loughborough (Earl of) Henry Hastings, at the Siege of Colchester, 57, &c.
 Lucas-family, Account of it, 123, 135.
 Lucas (John) buys St. John's Abbey, 144.
 — (Sir Tho.) entertains the Earl of Leicester, 51.
 — (Sir John) seized, and his House plundered, 54. created Lord Lucas, 124, 135.
 — (Mary) Barones Lucas of Crudwell, ib. 124, 135.
 — (Sir Thomas) of Lexden, sequestered, 57. Account of him, 124.
 — (Sir Charles) at the Siege of Colchester, 57, &c. Shot, 71, 72, 125.
 — (Charles Lord Lucas) 131.
 Lucius, 26, 34.
 Lucius Dexter quoted, 29.
 Lud, the same as Imanuentius, 18, 19.
 Lynne (William) a Letter of his, 53, 54.

 Magnentius, 35.
 Maeldon, or Maldon, not Camulodunum, 14, &c. whence its Name derived, 15. repaired by K. Edward the Elder, 44. besieged by the Danes, ib.
 Manderville (William and Geoffrey) 141.
 Mandubrace, 18, 19.
 Manor of the Corporation, 110.
 Market-days in Colchester, 80.
 Mary (Queen) comes to Colchester, which had declared for her, 50. a Persecution here in her reign, ib.
 St. Mary's Church beat down, 65. rebuilt, 108. Account of St. Mary's Parish, 107, &c. St. Mary Magdalene's Parish and Hospital, 125, &c.
 Maxentius, 33.
 Maximian, 32.
 Maximus (Magnus) 36.
 Mayors, when appointed, 87, 98.
 Meatæ, 27.
 Meeting-houses, 117, 121.
 Mellitus preaches the Gospel to the East-Saxons, 41.
 Members of Parliament, 103, 104.

- Middle-mill*, 111, 147.
Mile-end, Account of that Parish, 133. Mile-end-heath, or Common, 95, 134. Mile-end-manor, 135.
Militia, 51.
Mill at the Hyth, 129.
Money sent from hence to the Parliament, 56.
Monkwicke, 137.
Mosaic Pavements, 183.
Moteball, 113.
Mot's manor, 111.
Municipium, 23.
Musters here, 51.

Naggs (William) his Benefaction, 179.
Naifus, or Naiffus, 28.
Needham (Col.) slain, 59.
Nesse; East and West, 83, 89, &c.
Newcastle upon Tine, exposed to the Spanish Men of War, 53.
Newcomen (Thomas) 54.
St. Nicholas, Account of that Parish, 117.
Nicwfeles, 141.
Northfolk (Sir James) 8. buys the Castle, 9. Robert Northfolk, ib.
North-bill, and North-street, 110.
North mill, 111.
Norwich (Earl of) George Goring, employed in the Siege of Colchester, 57, &c.
Nowell (Dr.) a Letter of his, 177.

Oath of a Free-burgefs, 102.
Obits in Colchester, 159.
Officers of this Town, 98, &c.
Oppidum, 11.
Ostorius Scapula, 21.
Oxford (Earl of) John de Vere, gets the Fishery of this Town, 90. and Mile-end hall, 135. See De Vere.
Oysters, Account of them, 91.

Parishes, 41. Parishes in Colchester, 105. design of uniting of them, 106.
Parliament; Colchester exempted from sending Members thither, 6. Method and Right of Election here, 100, &c.
Parliament, in 1641, &c. Supplies of Men and Money sent from hence to them, 55, 56.
Parliamentarians, 59, &c.
Paschal (Pope) his Bull, 146.
Patents of Inns, 53.
Paved; when Colchester was so, 5.
Pavements; mosaic, or tessellated, 183.
St. Paul's Cathedral London, built, 41.
Persecution here in Q. Mary's Reign, 50.
St. Peter's Cornhill, 41.
Picts, 32. their Ravages, 35, 36, 37. defeated by the Saxons, 38.
Plagues in Colchester, 48, 51, 52, 74.
Plate belonging to the Town, 99.
Plautius defeats the Britains, 13, 20, &c.
Poll-tax, 107, &c.
Pontage, 3.
Poor-rates, 180.
Portgrave, 97.
Potter (John) concerned in the Water-works, 2.
Præfectures, the Roman Empire divided into four, 33.
Prætor (Roman) 25.
Præfutus, 22.
Preacher, common, or general, 100.
Privileges and Charters of the Town of Colchester, 82, &c.
Privy-Seals, 53.
Probus employed in Britain, 30, 31.
Procurator, 22.
Proprætors in Britain, 20, &c.
Province. Britain made a Roman Province, 21, 25.
Pump. K. Coel's, 111. a public pump in St. Martin's, 115.
Purveiance charged upon this Town, 52.
Pye-fleet, 89. Pye-fleet Oysters, 91.

Quincy (Saher de) Earl of Winchester, besieges Colchester-Castle, 46.

Rainsford (Sir John) 136.
Ramyffen (Walter) his Anniversary, 161.
Ratcliffe-family, 131.

Rates upon Houses and Stocks for the Maintenance of the Clergy, 106.
Rawboots, 78.
Rawstorn-family, 132.
Rebow (Sir Isaac) an Account of him, 110. buys the Castle, 9.
Recorders, 98.
Red-Row, 110.
Reformation established here, 49.
Revenues of this Corporation, 99.
Reynolds (Samuel) 119.
K. Richard I. grants the first Charter to this Town, 46, 82.
K. Richard II. his Commission of Array, 48.
Robaise, 141.
Romans; State of this Town under their Government, 19, &c. they use the Britains ill, 22. the Roman Forces finally leave Britain, 37.
Roman Coins and Antiquities found here, 14, &c. 17, 183, &c. See Coins.
Rowena, 38.
Runwald (St.) and Parish, 113.
Rush (Samuel, and his Widow) their benefactions, 179.

Saint John's Abbey, 139. See under John.
Salmon (N.) his Opinion about Camulodunum, 13, 15, and Camulus, 11, 21.
Say-making, 75.
Sayer; Account of that Family, 111.
 — (George) builds Alms-houses, 171.
 — (John) 55.
Saxons, Ravage the Eastern Coasts, 35. invited over, and come and settle here, 37, 38, &c. Orders and degrees among them, and the Form of Government they settled here, 40, 41.
Schools in Colchester, 171, &c.
Scots first mentioned, 35. their Ravages, 36, 37.
Seals on Bays, 78, 79.
Selfe (Isaac) 131.
Seneca had Money at Interest here, 22.
Severals, 134.
Severus divides Britain into two Governments, 27. comes over and defeats the Caledonians, ib. builds a Wall, and dies at York, ib.
Sharw; Account of that Family, 118.
Sharws (Manor of) 121.
Ship-money, 54.
Shrubbs wood, 149.
Siege of Colchester; Account of it, 57—69.
Silures make a stout Resistance against the Romans, 21, 22. conquered at length, 25.
Siric, 140.
Skinner (Dr. Thomas) 118.
Smith (James) 138. Sir Trafford, and Sir Robert; ib.
Soldiers, and other Men, pressed here, 50, 51, 52.
Spanish Fleet at Dunkirk, 53.
Spanish Invasion; ships furnished by this Town upon that occasion, 51.
Spinning, how many Knots, 77.
Springs, 1.
Sprottyfynham, and Sprottislond, 112.
Stephens-family, 109.
Stilico, 36.
Stillington (Bishop) his Opinion about Camulodunum, 16.
Stockwell-street, East and West, 115.
Streets in Colchester, 3, &c.
Suetonius Paulinus, his Exploits in Britain, 22, &c.
Sugar-loaves, presents of them from this Town, 53.
Supplies of Men and Money from hence to the Long Parliament, 55, 56.
Surrender of our Charter, 88.
Swinerton (Sir John) his Gift, 167.

Taxes how raised anciently, 46, 47, 52, 81, 82. very heavy upon this Town, 82. those raised in Oliv. Cromwell's Time, 73.
Temple at Camulodunum, 13, 21, 23. destroyed by the Britans, 23.
Tenths and Fifteenths how raised, 46, 47, 82.
Tenuant, or Theomant, 18, 19.
Tessellated Pavements, 183.
Tey-family, 114.
Theodosius comes to Britain, 35.
Theodosius Emperor, 36.
Thirty Tyrants, 28.

- Togodumnus*, or Guider, 20.
Totbam, Gift out of that Parish, 167.
Townsbend (Sir Roger) endeavours to deprive this Town of the Fishery, 91.
Trade of this Town, 75.
Trinity parish; account of it, 115.
Trinobantes, 19. join the Iceni, 21, 22, &c.
Tuke (Col.) 60.
Turner (William) his Gift, 164.
Tyler (Wat.) Some of the Colchester People concerned in his Insurrection, 48.

Verulam destroyed, 23.
Fl. Vespasian serves in Britain, 21, 25. which declares for him, 25.
Vexillarii, 23.
Vines planted in Britain, 31.
Vitels (Christopher) 50.
United Provinces assisted by Q. Elizabeth, 51.
Vortigern, 37, &c.
Vortimer, 37. made Partner with his Father in the Empire, 39. dies ib.
Urns found here, 14, 183.

Walden, not Camulodunum, 13, &c.
Wall, Roman, in Cumberland, 5. of Severus, 27.
Walls of Colchester, 5, &c. repaired by K. Edward the Elder, 6, 8, 44. parts of them demolished by Fairfax's Order, 73.
Walsingham (Sir Francis) Recorder of Colchester, 52. encourages the Dutch, 76.
Ward (Knox) 137.
Wards of this Town, 98.

Warwick (Earl of) John Dudley, St. John's Abbey granted to him, 144.
Water; the Customs or Duties of it in the Free-burgesses, 46, 129.
Water-works, 1, &c.
Ways, public in Britain, made, 26.
Webb (Henry) 2.
Wegg (George) his Gift, 166.
Wenock (John) his Hospital, 169.
Whally (Col.) employed in the Siege of Colchester, 58, &c.
White (Sir Thomas) his Gift, 163.
Wildenbey, 149.
William I. or the Bastard, 44, 45. State of Colchester in his Time, ib.
William II. 46.
Wills, the Probate and Inrollment of them once performed here, 88.
Wind mill-field, 2.
Winsley (Arthur) his Hospital, 170. his Gift to the Charity-Schools, 179.
Witham built by K. Edward the Elder, 44.
Woods; were the fortified Places of the Britans, 11.
Wool exported to the Continent, 75.
Wool market in Colchester, 114.
Work-house, 151, 179.
Writel, Hermitage there, 142.
Wygge (John) his Legacy for a Light, 161.

Torke (Hon. Philip) now the Rt. Hon. Earl of Hardwick, marries the Lady Jemima Campbel Marchioness de Grey, 135.

F I N I S.

E R R A T A,

- p. 104. col. 2. l. 7, & 8 from the bottom, should have been printed thus,
 Upon petition
 Isaac-Martin-Rebow, Esq; voted in.

A D D E N D A.

The Honorable PHILIP YORKE Esq; now the Right Honorable Earl of HARDWICK, having (after the foregoing Sheets were printed off) been graciously pleased, out of a most kind, generous, and communicative Disposition, to lend me two original Register-Books, or Chartularies, formerly belonging to the Abbat and Monks of St. John's; I have thence extracted the following List of all the Grants made to that famous Abbey, which I had not an Opportunity of knowing or mentioning before.

COLCHESTER: Grants therein, the Parishes not specified.

DONORS NAMES.

William de lay Hay,
 William de Lamvalei sen.

 William de Lamvalei the third,

 Gilbert Son of Sager,
 Walter Haneng,
 Jordan de Bures, A. D. 1154, Anschetil Fitz-Hugh,
 Elias Chamberlain,
 Walter de Belgrant,
 Ifilia de Septvans,
 William de Andevil,
 Henry Son of Marcian,
 Mr. Gregory,
 Osbert Chamberlain,
 Symon Son of Albric,
 Richard Champeneis,
 Walter Urse,
 Matthew Haneng,
 Saher Haneng,
 Ralph Sumer,
 Richard Haneng,
 John de Blumville, A. D. 1240,
 Wlmar Fitz-Elias,
 Maud Poppe,
 Adam Pitel, and his Wife,
 Ralf Son of Oliver of Stanway,
 Alice de Westorp,
 Thomas Strut,
 Henry de Norwich,
 Geffrey Son of Nicolas,
 John de Brøme,
 Eudo,
 Walter Son of Robert Suein,
 Ralph Son of Thurstan,
 John le Chaluner,

 Mariot Daughter of R. Painter,
 John de Camp,
 Roasia,
 William de Lemburne,
 Saher Haneng,
 Gilbert le Mot,
 Nicolas the Steward,
 Juliana Baker,
 K. Henry II,
 Donor not named,
 Ranulf de la Hay,
 William de Pirho,
 Philip de la Rokelle,
 William de Dunmawe,
 Alan de Beninghen,
 Thomas Son of Frambald,
 Philip de Columbariis,
 Hugh Gerneghan,
 William le Franceis,
 William Martel,
 Robert Son of Roger,

 Henry Haucepe,
 Ralph de Walda,
 Richard Fitz-Alan,

3 s. Rent, out of a More without Northgate.
 Land holden by Adgar Treissolz without the Walls: and a Garden at the Balkerne.
 Eddrihickes Croft, and other Lands; particularly six Roods out of Screbwood.
 Two Acres in Monk's Downe.
 Two Acres there.
 A Mansure of Land, at the Heth, and 4 Acres of Land near Canwic.
 Land at the old Hyth.
 A Meadow near the Hospital-Garden; and two Messuages.
 A Messuage near the Scherd, and the third part of another.
 Lands and Messuages.
 Alfwinemere, two Acres.
 5 s. Rent.
 Two Acres at the Elmes.
 5 s. Rent out of three Tenements.
 12 d. Rent.
 Two Acres in Portmannesfield.
 Five Acres in Otynefslade.
 Three Acres abutting upon Alwinefsmere.
 2 s. Rent out of a Messuage and Land.
 3 s. Rent out of two Curtilages.
 Half a Mark.
 40 s. 5 d. Rent, payable in several Parcels.
 22 d. Rent.
 One Acre in Goldsmidesfeld, and two Acres in Eduiefeld.
 5 d. Rent out of a Messuage in Heth-street.
 4 s. 5 d. halfpenny rent, out of two Messuages, and Land.
 12 d. Rent.
 A More.
 Swetyngesfel, seven Acres.
 30 s. Rent out of Stockes-Mill.
 10 d. Rent.
 8 d. out of a Messuage.
 A Piece of Land in the More.
 Three Acres of Land.
 2 s. 6 d. Rent out of three Tenements, two in Bere's Lane, and out of one House near Suthscerde.
 6 d. Rent.
 Five Acres within Elden Aptun near the Screbbe Wood.
 Land in St. Peter's.
 12 s. Rent.
 4 s. Rent out of two Messuages in Loddere's Lane,
 A Tenement without East-gate.
 Two Parcels of Meadow near Stockmill.
 Stockmill.
 A Piece of Waste near St. Helen's Chapel, and a Church-yard to it.
 East-Mead, and Honynggeswyk.
 Adburton. Land at Adburton.
 12 d. Rent out of a Tenement.
 Akolt and Beningham. Land there.
 10 s. 6 d. Rent.
 Land.
 25 d. Rent.
 Advowsons of those two Churches.
 Land called Aldefricht in Beningh.
 Ofwardscroft, and 12 d. Rent.
 Aldeburc and Halefworth Churches.
 Aldham. A Meadow there, between Cucukefsland and the River.
 Ardley. Pope Innocent III. confirms this Church to the Abbey, for the Use of the sick Monks.
 Bedemannesberge, or Writle. The Hermitage there was first granted by King Stephen.
 Bercholt. 2 s. Rent here.
 Tenements, and Lands.
 Cheldebencroft, and 14 d. Rent.

DONORS NAMES.

Peter de Leyham,
Matthew, Chaplain, Son of Algar
William Son of Algar,

Simon Son of Jordan Costentin,
Jordan le Gay,
Adam Son of William,
William Son of Algar,
Alured Son of Thurstan,

John Son of Ralph,
By License of Pope Alexander III
Ralph de Noiars,

Ralph de Roucester,
Roger de Buiffei,

Roger de Plano,
Stephen de Stratune,

Robert de Verli,
Hugh Fitz-Everard,

Everard de Boxstede,
William de Ramis,

Confirmed by Henry II,
Alberic de Ver,

Ralph de Melebroc,
Ralph Smith,

John Son of John le Butiller,
William de Pirho,

Godebold Son of William,
Mahiel Gernun,

Ralph de Bendene,
Ermengot,

Ralph Pirot,
Hugh de Bottingeham,
Maud, K. Stephen's Queen; in Exchange for Lillecherche,

Eustace de Oeys,
Hugh Fitz-Stephen,

Henry de Essex,
Will. Son of Will. Fitz-Hergar,

Humphrey de St. Vigor,
John de Blandohe,

Ralph de la Haye,
Walter Haneng,

Walter de la Haie,
Hugh de Grotene,

Geffrey de Ambli,
John Fitz-Thomas,

Ralph Carpenter,
Ralph de Mandeville,

Hugh de Beauchamp,
Will. Son of Will. Goldsmith,

Ralph de Marci,
Gilbert de Breuce,

Geffrey Talbot,
William de Amaville, and Richoldis his Wife,

Gerard de Wachesham,

Alured Son of Turstan,
William de Creppinge,

Thomas le Harpur,
Robert Son of Philip,

Ralph del Frith,
Gilbert de Fordham,

His Son Michael,

Symon de Fordham,
Mabil de Laforde,

William Son of Algar,

Hubert de St. Clare,
Geffrey de Greneftede,

Walter Badding,
John de Blumville, A. D. 1240,

GRANTS.

A Meadow abutting upon Flaxmede, and 2 s. Rent.
Postesland, Writheland, and a Meadow.

Five Acres of Land, of the Fee of Monegedene and Beumont; and a piece of Land holden of Wike's Priory.

Polmead.

The Bromfield, and Holm.

Campefland.

Land in Little-park.

Two Acres in Pirifield, and an Alder-Car.

Berdefeld. 2 s. out of a Messuage there, to buy Cups for the Refectory.

Berkwey. The Church appropriated, for clothing the Monks.

Eleven Acres of his own Fee.

Berley. Three half Virgates of Land, with the Tenants there.

Bertune. One Virgate of Land.

Birch. Third part of a Mill.

A Close there.

Fifteen Acres in Grotlesdune.

Bocstead, or Boxstead Church. Pension out of this Church.

Mochesland and Stanfield.

Boitun. Two Parts of the Tithes of his Demesnes.

Bomstead. Tithes.

Borfleet. Five Acres of Land.

Borham. Lands, with Rents, Buildings, &c.

One Rood in Wrofenhey Meadow.

Brightlingesey. Tenements here.

A Tenant, with his Homage, &c.

Bromley. Liefrichespihtel.

Bures. The whole Tenure of Withgar the Priest.

Campes. 18 d. Rent out of nine Acres.

Capel-Wenham. A piece of Land.

Carleton. Land there, and half a Hide in Badburgeham.

Coppeford. Arnoldesfield, a Messuage in the same; and half an Acre.

Duniland. The Land or Manor there.

Blunteffale.

Anschetil's Land.

Land there.

Birgho-Wood.

Land.

Tenements.

Pefecroft, and the Broomfield.

Middlewic.

In West-Duniland, seven Acres.

Edwardeston. An Acre in Quakestofd.

Elmeset. Four Acres in a Field near Waterfield.

Elfenham. A Messuage, and eleven Acres of Affarts.

Eight Acres of Affart in Bredenbach, and one Acre more.

Erpeford. Land there.

Eton. A Croft. Tithe of the Affarts of Barfame, and of the Novals of Eton.

A Messuage in Brainescroft; and another in Ford.

Falkburne. Two Acres in Roicroft, and a Rent of 5 s. In Exchange for which his Son gave six Acres in Godilond.

A Tenement there.

Fenge. Fifteen Acres.

Fineberge. Two Acres; and a Tenement in Bucchefale.

Floketune. Oggerescroft, and a Pasture; and two parts of the Tithes of his Demesnes.

Fordham. Two Acres of Land, with an Alder-Car, in Pirifield.

Two Acres, and an Alder-Car, adjoining to the former.

2 s. Rent out of Whete-Croft.

A Meadow.

A Meadow in King's Mead.

A Tenement and Meadow in Crepinge.

Three Tenements, and one Acre in the Broomfield, and the Land called Bradefield.

One Acre in Linlege-field.

Two Acres, near the Road to Wyremunde-ford.

18 d. Rent in Fordham.

St. Giles's Church, appropriated to the Monastery by the Bishop of London, A. D. 1232.

Greenstead. The Manor there.

A Marsh at Counteford.

Another Marsh adjoining.

40 s. 5 d. Rent, in several Parcels.

DONORS NAMES.

GRANTS.

Walter and Abel of Colchester,
A. D. 1243.

Walter de Clingho,
William de Lamvalei the second,
Maud de Lanvalei,
Ida de Marci, & Hugh Trichet,

Arnold Fitz-Roger,
Lewis Brito,

Richard Fitz-William,
William Fitz-Geffrey,

Maurice de la Hay,

Richard de Munfichet,
Richard de Luvetot,
Baldwin Fillol,
John de Burum,
Hugh Trichet,
William de Pirho,
Gilbert de Diham,
Walter Clerc,

Jordan le Waleis,
Eustace de Broc,
Hugh Fitz-Stephen,
Richard Fitz-Adam,
Osborn Fitz-Walter,
Hubert de St. Clare,
William de Lamvalei the second,

Philip of Northgate,
Ralph Breton,
Adeliza, his Widow,
Their Son Robert,

John Sequare,
John Buccunte,
Eraclius Son of Baldwin the Priest,

John Son of Terrie,
Matthew Mantel,
Symon Son of Marcian,
K. Henry I,
Gilbert Earl of Hertford,
Peter de Meauling,
Maud, and Robert de Mendlesham,
Henry de Essex, the King's Constable,
Hamo le Poitevin,
Elias Chamberlain,
Symon Son of Norman, A. D.

1242,
Pope Celestine confirms
Gilbert Fitz-Brian,
Joanna de Audham,
John de Blendak,
Fulk de Blandec,
Peter de Melding,

Ralph de Noreis, or Noiers,

Robert de Badewe,
Richard Fitz-Maurice,
Roger Ridel,

Ailward the King's Chamberlain,
Osbert Fitz-Hugh,
William Martel,
Adeliza Widow of Everard de Boxstead,
Sibil Lady of Icklesham,
Sibil de Carun,
Robert de Ramis,

Rustesgrave.

Three Acres in Grimesho.

Hallingberri. Two Parts of the Tithes of the Assarts of his Demesnes; and the Tithe of the Pannage of his Parks, and Woods.

Harleston. Land, with a Tenent; and a Meadow in Ham-Meadow.

Hecham. Land there.

Hemmingston. One Mark yearly.

Land called Humeriard, and a Wood named Littlehae.

Hercheftede. Bataile's, Smalewde-field, Westcroft, and Parcels of Wood and Meadow.

Horkefley. Land there.

A Tenent, cum tota sequela sua.

{ How. 20 s. Land and Rent.

{ Hyth. The Church.

Land near the old Hyth.

Ipswich. A Tenement called Abbotscroft.

Keldon. An Acre of Land, and some Tenents, with their Homages and Services.

Kokenbach. One Acre in the Fields there.

Lagefare. Land there.

12 d. Rent.

Lalleford. A Tenement, and 45 d. Rent.

Land in Petfeld.

A Tenement and Land.

Ledred, and Eftede. Church. Pension of 8 Marks paid by the Vicar.

Legra, Lera, or Leyre. A Tenement, and thirty-two Acres of Land.

A Messuage.

Leiham. Two full Lands and a half.

Lexden-Mill.

2 s. Rent and Land at Galweidon, and a Messuage without Northgate; and the Tithe of the Padnage and Herbage of his Park.

3 s. Rent out of two Tenements.

Leyre-Breton. Two parts of the Tithes of all his Demesnes.

10 s. 8 d. Rent.

Eleven Acres of Land.

Leyre de la Haye. A piece of Land near their Garden.

London. A parcel of Land near the River.

Land upon Walebroc.

4 s. 8 d. St. Dunstan's Parish.

Several Tenements.

20 s. Rent.

St. Mary Magdalene's Hospital.

Mannefton. Some Alms there.

Meauling. 6 s. 8 d. Rent out of Bacune's Land.

Mendlesham. Three Acres in Afendole-field.

Mersey. A Place to make a Fishery.

Messendene. 10 s. Rent there.

Mil-end. Frideis-Lond.

2 s. 9. Rent out of Wynefcroft and Whatecroft.

Mundon Church, appropriated to them.

One Acre in Tunstal field.

Lands there.

Half a Mark Rent in Eltenev, in this Parish.

A Tenement.

Norwich. 12 d. Rent out of a Tenement, and the Advowson of St. George's Church in that City.

Nothamsted. One Carucate of Land; and other Land, and six Acres of Wood towards Langley Park.

Oclea. Fifteen Acres of Land, and Witgat's Land.

St. Ofith. Littleflete, Honildflete, Bordflete.

Eleven Acres, and 8 d. halfpenny Rent.

Peldon. Portions of Tithes.

Pichefey. Tithes out of his Demesnes in Chalvedon.

Half a Hide of Land, and all his Tithes of Chalvedon.

The whole Tithe of Chalvedon.

Polstead. Land there.

Pisemerth. Rent of one Mark.

Redley. Lutterescroft.

Reines. A Mill, with Land adjoining: two Fields, and other Lands.

William

DONORS NAMES.

William de Sakevill,
William Earl Warren,
Roger de Kednei,
Oliver de Roing,
Ralph Morel,
Maurice de la Haie,
William de Curetun,
Rob. Tailard de Angiervill,
Will. de Lamvald the second,

John de Burgo, Son of Hubert,
Ralph Son of Oliver,
Hamo de St. Clare,
Hugh Tricket,
Mr. Eraclius Son of Baldewin
the Priest,
Roger de Piro,
Ida Tricket,
Hawise de Lanvalei,

Alexander de Limefia, and Ro-hais de Ambli,
William Fitz-Geffrey,
Hugh de Ver Earl of Oxford,
William Son of Adeliza,
His Son Helias,
Ralph de Hauvill,
William de Hauvill, sen.

William de Hauvill, jun.
Richard Fitz-Pain,
Richard Son of Leuric,
Thomas de Elfenham, Son of Agnes de Roilli,
William de Takeley,
Henry de Costentin,
Turgis Son of Hardechin,
William Fitz-Odo,
Richard de Asketot,
Peter Foliot,
Richard de Bovill,
Will. de Lamvalei the second,

William Fitz-John,
William de la Hay,
Geffrey de Lanvalei,
By the Bp. of Norwich's License,
John Gernun,
Walter Manser,
John Cordebuef,
Sir William de Cottune,

Robert de Mendlesham,
Martin de la Grene,
Godfrey Cordebuef,
Geffrey Betaile,

Guncelin Fitz-Richard,
William de Ou,
Roger Son of Geffrey,
Hugh Fitz-Stephen,
Rob. de Tindhay,
Godefrey de Wiham,
Roger Bacun,
Mahiel Gernun, and Ralph the Sheriff, and his Wife,
Robert Fitz-William,
Walter Fitz-Robert,

Osbert de Flixetun,

GRANTS.

Rewenhale. 5s. Rent out of the Mill there, near Atlingeford.
Reygate. Half an Acre of Land, to make a Quarry.
Roinges, [or Eythorp Roding,] &c. Two Acres of Land.
A Croft called Pope's.

Three Acres.

Scyrta. Half a Hide of Land.

Sippetham. Lands, and Tenents there.

Sprowton. A Messuage there.

Stanway. The whole Tithe of the Pannage of his Parks, and Woods; and of Mills, and two parts of the Tithe of Hay.

Lands called Gosebec's, &c.

A Pasture joining to this last.

Stokes-Manor.

Stratford. Land there.

Nine Acres of Land, and two of Meadow, with the Tenent, &c.

One Acre of Meadow adjoining.

8s. Land, in Brembeleg.

Tachew'rde. Five Tenents, and their Homages, paying 20s. per ann.

Takeley. Tithes of the Park, and unclosed Lands.

The whole Fee of Erneis, or Ernise. i. e. Takeley-manor.

Estfield, Laley, Sceteparc, and several other Parcels.

Lands holden of his Fee.

Ten Acres at Redefale, five Acres of Affarts, Slicstanesley, &c.

Two Acres in Bradmedow, and three Acres in Theumannesdune.

One Virgate of Land.

Tithe of the Padnage of his Wood, eighty Acres of Land in his Park, a Garden in Sceteparc, five Acres of Arable Land near, Liewenhale, and fifty Acres more, &c.

Several Tenements and Lands, with the Tenents, &c.

Land in la Leye, and three Acres and a half holden by Pagan Cassé.

Two Acres of Arable Land, and half an Acre of Meadow.

Nineteen Acres of Land, and five Acres more in la Leye.

The Knell, and three Acres in Brademead.

Tetew'rde. Half a Virgate of Land.

Tey. A Tenement.

Torridune, or Torrington. 2s. Rent.

A piece of Land to erect a Mill.

Totham parva. 18d. Rent.

Tudeham. A Tenement, with the Homage of the Tenents, &c.

Walera. The whole Tithe of the Panage of his Woods, and Parks, and of his Mills, and two parts of the Hay of his Demesnes.

Walitham parva. Half a Mark's Rent.

Wateley. 5s. Rent.

West-Lee. The half of the Manor.

Wicham-Skeith. Appropriation of the Church.

Five Acres and a half in Countes-Croft.

Land in that parish.

A Tenement.

Land.

The whole Tithe of Mills, Pannage and Colts; and two parts of the Tithe of Corn, Lambs, &c.

Villans or Tenents in that Parish, with their Tenements, and Rents, &c.
25d. Rent.

Six Acres in Crokesthweit, &c.

Wibenbo, or Wivenbo. A hundred and twenty Acres, viz. Withemorhad and Nordhei, and four Acres of Meadow.

Tithes of his Fees, and of the Affarts and Novals.

Wiley. Tithes of the Demesnes of Cruftwic.

Land in that Parish.

Witham. Some Tenements, with the Tenents.

16d. Rent out of a Meadow by Bracstead-bridge.

A Croft.

4s. 9d. Rent.

Withermundesford. Two Virgates of Land.

12d. out of a Messuage.

Wudeham. Lands, and a Tenant and his Homage, and a Deer out of his Park there.

Yarmouth. A Tenement there.

The Advowson of the Church of St. Nicolas, was given to the Abbey, by Simon Son of Marcian.

And those of H. Trinity, and St. Michael in West-Doniland, by Richard Champeneis.

T H E

H U N D R E D

O F

B E C O N T R E E

IS now usually called a Half-Hundred; but in Domesday-book it is styled a Hundred: and, by reason of the number of Houses and Inhabitants, may have as good a claim to the name of A Hundred, as several others. For it abounds with Villa's, where the rich and industrious Citizens retire, at this convenient distance, from the thick Air and Hurry of London. The small number of Parishes it contains, may have degraded it to the diminutive name it now bears, of a Half-Hundred.

This Hundred is the South-west corner of Essex, and the nearest part of the County to the Metropolis of the Kingdom, the rich and noble City of London; it reaching up to Bow-bridge, and almost to Blackwall. 'Tis bounded on the West by the river Ley; on the South by the Thames; on the East and North-east by Havering Liberty; on the North by the Hundreds of Ongar and Waltham: And was so named from some remarkable Beacon, supposed to stand whereabouts Woodford Wind-mill now is, that being the most conspicuous part of this Hundred. For Beacons, tho' now chiefly disused and neglected, were formerly reckoned very important Signals to give notice of the landing or approach of an Enemy: a precaution necessary, before the increase of our Naval Strength made us Masters at Sea. In Domesday-book the name is disguised by the odd one of Beuentreu.

This Hundred, and the Execution and Process therein, belonged of old to the Nunnery of Berking. Upon the suppression of the Abbies, it becoming vested in the Crown, remained there till obtained by Sir Thomas Fanshaw, to hold in as ample manner as any Abbess of Berking had held it: Of that family Sir William Humphreys, Kt. and Bart. purchased it; whose granddaughter Ellen, and her husband Charles Gore of Tring Esq; sold it, with a noble estate, to Smart Lethieullier Esq; The inheritance of it is now in his niece Mary, only daughter of his brother Charles Lethieullier Esq;

As to Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction, this Hundred is within the Archdeaconry of Essex.

In this Hundred, or Half-Hundred, are Nine Parishes, which I describe in the following order.

BERKING,	Ilford,——Little,
Dagenham,	Wansted,
East-Ham,	Waltham-Stow,
West-Ham,	Woodford.
Leyton,

Of these Parishes, Leyton, Waltham-Stow, Wansted, and Woodford, are within the Forest of Essex: And Berking, Dagenham, East-Ham, West-Ham, Little Ilford, and the Hamlet of Great Ilford, are partly in, and partly out of, the Forest (a).

I begin, according to the Method I have prescribed to myself, with the Town in this Hundred, that is

1. B E R K I N G.

The name of this Town is derived from the two Saxon words, Beopce, birch-tree; and ing, meadow, or pasture: The place being originally full of birch-trees. 'Tis otherwise written in records, and ancient authors; Berchingas; Barkyng; Bercingum (b); Berkingum; Berchigense monasterium (c); Bercingis; or Bertingis (d); Berekingum; &c. (e).---This Town stands about 8 miles north-east from London; and hath a market on Saturdays; and a Fair October 22.

Near the Road leading from Ilford to Berking, on the north west side of the Brook which runs cross it, are the Remains of an ancient Entrenchment: one side of which is parallel with the lane that goes to a Farm called Uphall; a second side is parallel with the Rodon and lies near it; the third side looks towards the Thames; the side which runs parallel with the Road itself has been almost destroyed by cultivation, though

(a) See Account of the Forest. in the Introduction. ptores, col. 412. 440.

(b) Bedæ Hist. Eccl. l. iv. c. 6. (c) Decem Scrip-tores. (d) Gul. Pistav. p. 208. & Orderic. Vital. p. 506. apud Duchesne Hist. Normann. Scrip-tores. (e) W. Malmesb. ed. 1596. fol. 134.

evident traces of it are still discernible. We do not hear, that any other Fortifications, or remains of Antiquity, have been discovered here.

The Parish of Berking is very extensive, being about seven miles from south to north; and four in some places from east to west. It is divided into these four Wards; Berking, Great-Ilford, Chadwell, and Ripple-Ward.

Most probably it was in the earliest times part of the demesnes of our East-Saxon Kings. Afterwards it became the site, and the chief part of the Endowment, of a famous NUNNERY, founded by Erkenwald, bishop of London, son of Annas, king of the East-Angles; for which reason it is proper, and even necessary, to begin our Account of this place with the History of that Religious Foundation.

Erkenwald, the founder, was constituted Bishop of London in the year 675; and had either begun this Nunnery before, in 666 (f); or undertook it very soon after his consecration. It was the second Nunnery in England; that of Folkestone having been founded in 630. This Nunnery of Berking was of the Order of St. Benedict, and dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and St. Ethelburga, or Alburgh, the first Abbess, sister of the founder (g).

What the original Endowment of this House was, we do not find. But, for an augmentation to it, Hodelred, father of Sebba King of the East-Saxons, with that King's consent, granted to it for ever [A], out of his right, or estate, the Land called Rytyngham, Buddenham, Deckengham, Angelalbesham, and Wymondesfeld in the Forest; which together comprised forty manions: with all the fields, woods, meadows, and marsh, thereto belonging. Of which the boundaries were, on the east, Thrixtolaburn; on the north Centincert-broch, and Hanghemstede; and on the south the river Thames (b). Thrixtolaburn, or brook, is the western branch of that which falls into the Thames at Dagenham breach; and Centincert broch, or brook, seems to be some brook that runs into the Rodon.

As to other Benefactions,—In this Parish. Leo de Bradenham, and William Rikele, clerk, gave them in 1357, 2 messuages, 72 acres of arable, and 8 acr. of meadow: And John Frucher 44 s. 5 d. rent.—In 1366, John son of Sir John Sutton of Wivenhoo, John de Bampton, and Thomas Smyth, clerk, gave them, one messuage, 80 acres of arable, 2 of meadow, 30 of wood, and 15 s. rent.—As did, in 1389, Sir John de Gildesburgh, Robert Crulle, and John Hennessthorpe, clerks, William Rickhill, Clement Spice, and Nicolas Conyers, 50 acres of arable, 10 of meadow, 11 of pasture, 55 of marsh, and 53 s. 4 d.—And Joanna, wife of Thomas de Felton, 11 messuages, 209 acres of arable, and 2 s. 3 d. ob. rent; all which, except very little, were holden of the said Nunnery (i).

What they had out of this Parish, is set down in the Note [B].

The particulars of their Estates here, do most plainly appear by the Grants of them, after the suppression. Besides the site of the Nunnery, they were, the Maners of Fulkys, Jenkins, Porters, Stoneball, Wangey, Withfeld: and the Messuages, or Farms, of Estbury, Gayshams-hall, Loxford, Mables or Mogges, Uphall, Lands at Stanbridge near Craynebroke-lane,—And many other parcels (k).

What the state of this Parish was at the time of the general Survey, appears by the extract and copy of it given below [C]. By that it is manifest, that it then wholly belonged to the Nunnery [D], except 24 acres, which Goscelin Loremar, lord of Little Ilford, had stolen; and three soldiers, or knights, held 2 hides, and 3 carucates.

In the year 870 this Nunnery was laid waste by the Danes (l), and continued so, most probably, till after the Norman Conquest.

The Abbess was Lady paramount in all the Maners within this Half-Hundred, as is still the Lord of Berking Maner: And she held of the King by an entire Barony; there being but three more of the kind in England, namely, the Prioresses of Wilton, Shaftsbury, and Winchester (m).

A List of the Abbeesses may be seen in J. Stevens's History of Abbeys, Vol. I. p. 529, 530. and in Dr. Br. Willis's History of Abbies, Vol. II. p. 76. 77.

Dorothy Barleighe, the last of them, surrendered this House 14 Novemb. 1539. the Revenues of it being then valued at 862 l. 12 s. 5 d. $\frac{1}{2}$. Dugdale; or, according to Speed, 1084 l. 6 s. 2 $\frac{3}{4}$. per ann.

(f) So it is in the Chertsey-book, Monast. Angl. Vol. I. p. 75, 76. See also Bede, ubi supra. (g) See Bp. Tanner's Notit. Monast. fol. p. 117, 118. (b) Monast. Angl. Vol. I. p. 79, 80. (i) Inquis. 31 & 40 Edw. III. & 13 & 21 Ric. II. (k) Pat. 33. 37, 38. Hen. VIII. Pat. 5 Edw. VI. Pat. 3 & 4, 5 & 6 Ph. & Mar. Pat. 7. 13. 27. 44 Eliza. Pat. 3 Jaco. I.—Et Inquis. 34 Edw. III. 1 Ric. III. 19 Jaco. (l) Antiq. Brit. p. 71. (m) Dr. Fiddes's Life of Wolfey, p. 308.

[A] The name it is called by in the Grant, is Bedenham.

[B] And that was, the several Maners in Ingatstone; the maner of Frestling in Butsbury; lands in Parndon. [See the other Volume, p. 47. 49. 492.] Three houses in Colchester. And the Maners, and Advowsons of the Rectories, of Bulvan, Roding-Abbess, Great Warley, Great Wigborough: the Maners, Rectories, and Advowsons of the Vicarages, of Dagenham, Hockley, Horndon on the Hill, Mucking, Tollesbury, in this County: The Rectory, and Advowson of the Vicarage of All-Hallows, Berking, London: And Litlington, in Bedfordshire; and Slapton in Buckinghamshire. Bp. Tanner's Notitia,

[C] Terra Sce Marie de Berchingis. Hund' de Beuentreu. Berchingas tenuit semper Sancta Maria pro xxx hidis. Tunc 14 carucate in dominio, modo iii, & quarta posset fieri. Tunc 1xx carucate hominum, modo Lxviii. Tunc c villani, modo cxl. Tunc 1 bordarii, modo xc. Tunc x servi, modo vi. Silva m porcis. c acre prati. ii molendina, i piscatura, ii runcini, xxxiv animalia, cl porci, cxiv oves, xxiv capre, x vasa apium.—In Londonia xxviii domus, que reddunt xiiii solidos & viii denarios: Et dimidium Ecclesie que T. R. E. reddebat vi solidos & viii denarios, & modo non reddit. Hoc manerium valuit T. R. E. Lxxx libras, et modo similiter ut dicunt Anglici, sed Franci appreciantur c. libr'. . . . Huic Manerio pertinebant, Tempore Regis Edwardi, xxiv acre, quas inde tulit Goscelinus Loremarus, & iii milites tenent ii hidas, & iii carucatas; & iii villani, & x bordarii. Et val' xlv solidos in eodem pretio. Lib. Domest. fol. 17. b. 18. a. Tit. 9.

[D] That is, the whole Parish of Berking; with all the Maners, Wards, Hamlets, and Lands within the bounds and limits thereof; as J. Stevens expresses it. Hist. of Abbeys, Vol. I. p. 528

The Nunnery stood on the north side of the Church-yard. One gate, and some part of the wall all round, is still remaining.

Let us now see how the Revenues of that House in this parish, were disposed of.

The site of the NUNNERY, and the Maner of WANGEY, were granted by K. Edward VI. in 1551, to Edward Fynes, Lord Clinton, and Say. And there went, with the site of the Nunnery, Gunsmead, alias Covent-mead, 6 acres; Grange meadow, 16 acres; a pasture called Huntings, 16 acres; Warpehawes, 6 acres; the Vineyard, 5 acres; and the grove, 8 acres. There was also in the grant, 10 acres in Ilford, near Grandtrote; and a parcel of land in Stanbrige near Craynebroke-lane, in Ilford (n). On the 7th of November, the same year, the Lord Clinton alienated the site of the Nunnery, with the lands thereto belonging, to

Sir Richard Sackville (o). How it passed out of that family, doth not appear. But, 13 Septemb. 1605, K. James I. granted it, with the appertenances above-mentioned, to Anne Steward, and Augustin Steward, to hold of the maner of East Greenwich, by fealty in socage (p). This Augustin dyed 11 Novemb. 1628, possess'd of the capital Messuage called Barkeinge-Abbey, and other estates here [E]: leaving—Martin his son and heir, aged 22 years (q).

The site, and Maner, of the Nunnery belongs now to Joseph Keeling Esq; who hath also in this parish Westbury-hall, and Peryman's, and Cricklewood: This last, by the name of Cicklewood, alias Chickley-wood, was given by Qu. Elizabeth, in 1573, to Christopher Hatton (r). The Aqueduct belonging to the Nunnery came through this wood.

The Lord Chancellor Audeley obtained a grant of the maners of Fulkys, and Withfeld (s).

Upball was purchased, with the Monastery of Stratford Langthorn, for the sum of 398 l. 6 s. 8 d. on the 12th of September 1541, by Morgan Phillipps, alias Wolfe (t).

To William Denbam were granted, 28 September 1545, the maner and farm of Stone-hall, with Hobbens grove, High-groves, and Horslees, containing 10 acres: the maner of Westbury, and lands called Haresdon, Stondon, Leyndon and Prestlond; Gosepitall; and Towne-downe, or mead, Ede-mead, Mylmead; and pastures &c. named the Branche, Berryfield, 14 acres in Randemarsh: the messuage or farm called Estbury: the messuage and farm called Gaysehams-hall, with lands and woods called Battell-downe, Long-grove, Graunts-Hethe, Horse-grove, Bromfeild, Busheleez, and Penty-grove, containing 23 acres. And all the Tithes of grain, corn, and hay, growing on the said maners and lands of Stone-hall and Westbury, and on those of Estbury, and Gaysehams (u).

Thirty seven small parcels that had belonged to this Nunnery, were granted to Sir Richard Gresham, who had license, 20 July 1546, to alienate them to Bartholomew Barnes, and Joanna his wife (w).

The messuage and farm, called Loxford, was granted, 2 June 1557, to Thomas Powle (x).

Porters, a maner here, which Richard Pygot held of this Convent about the year 1483, under the yearly rent of 29 s. 1 d. ob. (y) was granted to John Lucas Esq; who, at the time of his decease, 13 September 1556, held this maner, and one messuage, 200 acres of arable, 40 of meadow, 100 of pasture, 6 of wood, 40 of marsh, and 40 s. rent: and also Covent-croft, and Perryfeild, and West-marsh (z). His son,—Sir Thomas Lucas, Kt. held it also at the time of his decease, 30 August 1611 (a).

The capital messuage, or tenement, called Mabbes, otherwise Mogges, in Ripleside, with Marshes croft, 10 acres, was granted, 16 July 1558, to Thomas Argall; and afterwards, in 1585, to Ferdinand Richardson (b).

Two parcels of marsh, one of 16, and the other of 17 acres, belonged to John Stonard, in 1585, and were by him conveyed to William Avery [F]. And, the same year, several parcels were granted to Thomas Chapman: As was Pondeleaz, 10 acres, to Sir Gawin Harvey, 13 Septemb. 1612 (c).

THE CAPITAL MANER OF BERKING remained in the Crown, till K. James I. sold it, for the sum of 2000 l. and a fee-farm rent of 160 l. per ann. to Thomas Fanshawe Esq; With it there seems to have gone a Maner called

JENKINS,

and another Maner, or capital messuage, named

MALMAYNES, or Mammons.

The capital Messuage of Jenkins stood about a mile and a half north-east from this Church. It is now down.

Sir Hugh Bryce, and Elizabeth his wife, held, in 1496, of the Lady Abbess, this maner of Jenkins, and 3 tofts, 1 garden, 5 ox-gangs of land, 203 acres of arable, 3 of meadow, 40 of pasture, 5 of wood, and 53 s. 4 d. in Berking and Dagenham; by the rent of 3 s. 4 d. then valued at 13 l. 6 s. 8 d. (d).

About the beginning of Qu. Elizabeths reign, it was in Sir William Hewett, Lord Mayor of London; whose daughter Anne brought it in

(n) Lett. pat. 5 Edw. VI.

(r) Pat. 15 Eliz.

(w) Pat. 38 Hen. VIII.

4 Ph. & Ma.

Jaco.

(o) Ibid.

(s) See Pat. 33 Hen. VIII.

(x) Pat. 3 & 4 Ph. & Ma.

(a) Inquis. 9 Jaco.

(d) Inquis. 12 Hen. VII. Oct. 31.

(p) Lett. pat. 3 Jaco.

(t) Pat. 31 Hen. VIII.

(y) Inquis. 1 Ric. III.

(b) Pat. 5 & 6 Ph. & Mar. & 27 Eliza.

(q) Inqu. 5 Caro. June 27.

(u) Pat. 37 Hen. VIII.

(z) Inquis. 3 &

(c) Pat. 7 Eliz. & 10

[E] Namely, 30 acres of arable and meadow, commonly occupied with the said Abbey; and Berishall, with 72 acres of arable; Barley-marsh, Hempstalls, Elmeground, Newmead, Broad-mead, als. Bull-mead, Millfield, 60 acres, Upnie-place, &c. Inqu. 5 Caro.

[F] His Father, George Stonard, held upwards of eighty five acres of marsh and meadow in this parish, that had belonged to the Nunnery. See Inquis. 1 Eliz. Febr. 8.

marriage to her husband Edward Osborne, ancestor to the present Duke of Leeds [G].

In 1567, it belonged to Martin Bowes Esq; [H] who was ordered to deliver possession of the maner of Jenkins otherwise Dagenham, or Dakenhames place, with appertenances, and 3 messuages, 1 dovehouse, 2 gardens, 2 orchards, 140 acres of arable, 20 acr. of meadow, 40 of pasture, 12 of wood, 40 of marsh, and 40s. rent. in Berking and Dagenham, to Henry Fanshawe Esq; and Dorothy his wife. The same year, these last were ordered to deliver it to John Bullock, and Edmund Morrans, but for what uses is not mentioned (e): Most probably, it was in order to raise a trust; for it remained in the Fanshawe Family. They were descended from the Fanshaws of Fanshaw Part in Derbyshire, and seated at Ware-Park in Hertfordshire: three of them were successively Remembrancers of the Exchequer (f). The maners of Fulkes, Porters and Westbury, in this parish, belonged also to them, as we shall shew presently.—Anne, Lady Fanshawe, who was a Lunatic, held, in 1632, this maner of Jenkins of the King in fealty only in free and common socage (g). Her son—Sir Thomas Fanshawe Kt. who dyed 17 September 1632, held also this maner, and free-warren therein, of Christopher Hatton, and Thomas Fanshawe, Knights of the Bath; and of John Fanshawe, Esq; Simon Fanshawe, and John West, as of their maner of Berkeinge; also the maner of Foulkes, alias Faukes; and messuages called Blackehouse, Longbridge, and in Upney &c. with several parcels of marsh, and meadow.—Thomas Fanshawe Esq; his son and heir was then 24 Years old (h). He was made a Knight of the Bath at the Coronation of K. Charles I. and created Baron Fanshawe and Viscount Dromore 5 September 1661. His eldest son and successor,—Sir Thomas left two daughters coheirs; whereof the youngest dyed unmarried [I]. Susanna, the eldest was married to the Hon.

Baptist Noel, of Luffenham in the County of Rutland, Knight of the Shire for that County in 1685, second son of Baptist Viscount Campden.

Sir William Humphreys, Kt. and Bart. Lord Mayor of London in 1715, purchased this estate. He departed this life in October 1735. As did his son—Sir Orlando Humphreys 14 June 1737, aged 59 years. The latter by Ellen his wife, only child of Col. Robert Lancashire, had had three sons, and two daughters. Two of the sons dyed young, and Robert, the second son, in 1736, at the age of 28 years. Of the two Daughters and coheirs, Mary, the eldest, had three husbands. 1. William-Ball Waring, of Dunston in Berkshire, who dyed 11 August 1746, without issue. 2. John Honeywood Esq; second brother to Richard, of Marks-hall, to whom she was married 30 May 1747. But he also dying without issue, 16 Janu. 1747-8, she took to her 3d. husband, 8 Septemb. 1748, Thomas Gore Esq; Member of Parliament for Bedford, uncle to Charles Gore Esq; Knight of the shire for the County of Hertford: which Charles Gore Esq; had married 3 Decemb. 1741, the youngest sister, named Ellen-Wintour Humphreys.

Of them this large Maner and estate was purchased in or about the year 1748, by Smart Lethieullier Esq; of Aldersbrook in Little Ilford, for the sum of 40,000 l.

There went with this Maner, the capital Messuage, or Farm, called Malmaynes, Molmans, or Mammons, of which the House is taken down. Joanna Lady Laxton held it, at the time of her decease 15 August 1577; having been lately purchased of Thomas Barker Esq; and then valued at 20 l. per ann.—Nicolas Lodd was her heir (i).—Sir Thomas Lodge held it also, at the time of his decease, 28 Febru. 1583 (k). It was purchased with the rest by Smart Lethieullier Esq;

The Court for this Maner is kept at Berking every three weeks, on a Saturday, the Market-day. In it are tried causes of Trespass and of Debt under 40s. No other Maner in this parish keeps a Court.

The Lord, being paramount, claims the Deodands of this Hundred.

A fee-farm of 210 l. a year, due to the Crown, is payable to the Earl of Sandwich.

The reputed Maners of LOXFORD, and of WANGAY, belonged also to the late Smart Lethieullier Esq; and now to his heirs.

The mansion house of Loxford stands about a mile north from the Church, and near half a mile from Loxford-bridge, on the right hand of the road from Berking to Ilford: and that of Wangay on the South side of Chadwell-heath.

Thomas Powle, to whom Loxford was granted, as above, got leave, 4 May 1562, to alie-

(e) Præc. Term. Mich. 9 & 10 Eliz. Symonds's Collec. Vol. III. fol. 167. (f) Chauncy's Hist. of Hertf. p. 207. &c. (g) Inquis. 8 Caro. Apr. 7. (h) Ibid. Octob. 31. (i) Inquis. 19 Eliz. June 25. (k) Inquis. 26 Eliz. July 8.

[G] It is of him that Mr. Strype relates the following remarkable Story, in his Edition of Stow's Survey of London, fol. 1720. B. 5. pag. 133.

Sir William Hewet Lord Mayor in 1559, who then lived upon London Bridge, had a Daughter to whom this Mischance happened. The Maid playing with her out of a Window over the River Thames, by chance dropt her in, almost beyond expectation of being saved. A young Gentleman, named Osborne then Apprentice to Sir William the Father (which Osborne was one of the Ancestors of the Duke of Leeds in a direct line) at this calamitous Accident, immediately leapt in bravely and saved the Child. In memory of which deliverance, and in gratitude, her Father afterwards bestowed her in Marriage on the said Mr. Osborne with a very great Dowry. Whereof the late Estate of Sir Thomas Fanshawe, in the parish of Barking in Essex, was a part; as the first Duke of Leeds himself told the Reverend Mr. John Hewyt from whom Mr. Strype had this relation; and together with that estate in Essex, several other lands in the parishes of Harthil and Wales in Yorkshire; then in the possession of the said most noble Family. Several persons of Quality courted the said young Lady, and particularly the Earl of Shrewsbury. But Sir William was pleased to say, Osborne saved her, and Osborne should enjoy her. The present Family preserve the Picture of the said Sir William in his habit of Lord Mayor at Kiveton house in Yorkshire: Valuing it at 200. l.

[H] Arms of Bowes. Ermine, three bows bent in pale, gules.

[I] Arms of Fanshawe. Or, a chevron between 3 fleurs-de-lis, sable.

nate this messuage, or farm, to — Thomas Pouncett (l). His son — William Pouncett dyed 26 March 1591, leaving — Henry, his son and heir (m): who dyed 26 Febru. 1627. — William was his son (n). Henry Pouncett some time before his decease, sold this estate to Francis Fuller, Clerk of the Exchequer. He dyed 10 March 1636, possessed of this messuage of Loxfords with appertenances, containing 82 acres of arable, and 18 acres of meadow: with several other lands [K].

Francis Osbaldeston, of Standon in Hertfordshire, son of his sister Barbara Fuller, was his heir (o). He dyed in 1648, without issue. Alice his widow was remarried to Robert Bertie, fifth son of Robert Earl of Lindsey: He dyed in 1701, aged 84, and the 31 August 1677 (p). After her decease, it came to — Henry Osbaldeston, brother to her first husband; who was succeeded by his son — Francis Osbaldeston: the latter leaving only two daughters, they sold Loxford and Wangay to

John Letbieullier Esq; who settled them both on his son — Smart Letbieullier Esq;

Between the Lord Clinton and Mr. Lethieullier, the following Persons enjoyed the Maner or messuage of WANCEY.

Thomas Baron, or Barnes, to whom that Lord sold it, by licence dated 14 March 1550 (q). He dyed 29 June 1573, possessed of it, and of Dunshall, Stanleyes, part of the messuage called Newberry, &c. (r).

Next Joseph Heynes, to whom Qu. Elizabeth granted it, 30 January 1601. He dyed 16 Sept. 1621, aged 72, and was buried in this Church (s). Francis Fuller, &c. had it afterwards [L].

The Maner of FULKYS,

Was sold by Sir Thomas Audeley, to William Severne, who alienated a moiety of it, in 1542, to Stephen Clofe and Ralph Marshall (t).

It came afterwards into the Fanshaw family; for Sir Thomas Fanshaw, at the time of his decease 17 Sept. 1632, held this maner of Foulkis, or Faukes, with all its rights, members, and appertenances (u).

It is now blended, and goes along, with the Maner of Jenkins.

The house stood in the town of Berking, but is pulled down.

The Maner of PORTERS, belonged, after Sir Thomas Lucas, to Thomas Fanshaw Esq; in 1635. But it is now in Walter-

Vane Fletcher Esq; 'Tis otherwise called Hedgemans, and the house is about two miles and a half from the Church.

The Maner of WESTBURY, of which the mansion house stands at the east end of this Town, was granted, as we have seen above, to William Denham Esq; afterwards knighted. At the time of his decease, 4 August, 1548, he held this maner with all its rights and appertenances, and 1000 acres of arable, 600 acres of pasture, 100 of meadow, 80 of wood, and 500 of heath and furze. And other parcels, mentioned above in the grant; with some particular services [M]. — Marieria, his daughter and heir, was 30 years old (w).

It was next in Edward Breame Esq; who dyed in 1560, possessed of this lordship, or maner, of Westbury, and 40 messuages, 40 tofts, 40 gardens, 1500 acres of arable, 300 acres of meadow, 1000 of pasture, 200 of fresh marsh, 200 of wood, and 100s. rent, in Westbury, Barking, Ilford, Dagenham, and Chigwell. His next heir was his brother — Arthur Breame (x). [Concerning him, see in the other volume, p. 251.] The 11th of June 1574, this Arthur, and Thomasine his wife, sold to Thomas Fanshaw Esq; and Mary his wife, this maner, and one messuage, 2 tofts, 1 dove-house, 600 acres of arable, 200 of meadow, 300 of pasture, 10 of wood, 200 of furze and heath, &c. (y). It continued several years in the Fanshaw family.

Blackburne Poulton, Attorney at law, having enjoyed it a considerable time, dyed in October 1749, upon which it came to

Poulton Alleyne, a nephew of his, who had it for life: and then it was to descend to Joseph Keeling Esq; stands about a mile east of Westbury, in the road to Dagenham through Ripleside. The house is a large brick building, over-looking the marshes.

EASTBURY,

Sir William Denham held also this, at the time of his decease, with the appertenances; viz. 200 acres of arable, 300 acres of pasture, 50 of meadow, 60 of wood, 200 of furze and heath (z).

But, 7 May 1557, John Keele had leave to alienate the messuage, tenement, or farm, called Esbery, in Barking, to Clement Sisley (a).

Into whose hands it afterwards came, we cannot find.

It belongs to two or three sisters of the name of Weldon; and they have also some portion of the Tithes here.

(l) Pat. 4 Eliz. (m) Inquis. 33 Eliz. July 20. (n) Inquis. 3 Caro. May 1. and Epitaph. (o) Inquis. 13 Caro. May 10. and Pedigrees of Essex. (p) Epitaphs in this Church. (q) Pat. 5 Edw. VI. (r) Inquis. 16 Eliza. Febr. 8. (s) Pat. 44 Eliza. & Epitaph. (t) Pat. 33 & 34. Hen. VIII. (u) Inquis. 8 Caro. (w) Inquis. 2 Edw. VI. nu. 74. (x) Inquis. 2 Eliz. nu. 45. (y) Book of Pardons, part I. p. 277. (z) Inquis. 2 Edw. VI. (a) Lett. pat. 3 & 4 Ph. & Ma.

[K] Namely, Hill-house land, the Grange, being 18 acres of marsh: Doushall; alias Downes-hall; Smythes, with appertenances, containing 89 acres; a tenement, and lands, called Hornes, &c. with other estates in the counties of Hertford, Surrey, Bucks, and in London, &c. Inquis. 13 Caro.

[L] The mansion-house of Loxford, or Wangay, was called Beehive. See Epitaphs of Francis Fuller, and Osbaldeston, in this Church.

[M] Namely, the mowing of eleven acres of barley and grain on the lands and hereditaments belonging to Westbury maner, in autumn, yearly, by the tenants of the lands and tenements of John Broke; holden of the said maner; — the mowing of eight acres in like maner, by the tenants of the lands and tenements of Thomas Horyard: — and the mowing of three acres and a half in like manner: the said lands and tenements of Broke and Horyard, being holden of that maner. Inquis. 2 Edw. VI.

6 B E C O N T R E E H U N D R E D .

GAYSEHAMS-HALL

stands about three miles and a half north from this Church; and is called in Warburton's Map Great Geris.

This messuage was holden of the Nunnery, in K. Edward the third's reign, by Thomas de Sandwich, proveditor to the Prince of Wales, with 120 acres thereto annexed; and the messuage called Hockeles, with 55 acres of arable, and 3 of meadow (b).

At the time of Sir William Denham's decease, it comprised 100 acres of arable, 100 of pasture, 50 of meadow, 40 of wood, and 200 of furze and heath (c). His daughter, and her husband William Abbot, had licence, 14 Decemb. 1556, to alienate it to Clement Sisley, above-mentioned (d).

It was next in the Breame family. For Arthur Breame Esq; had licence, 8 June 1571, to alienate it, and Battall downe, Long grove, Gaunts heath, Horsgrove, Bromefield, Bushe-Leaz, and Penty grove, to Vincent Randall (e).—Edward Randall dyed possessed of it, 7 October, 1577, leaving — Vincent, his son, 3 years old (f).

Afterwards it belonged to Hugh Hare; and of him it is supposed to have been purchased by Gabriel Wight Esq; who held at the time of his decease 20 Decemb. 1621, this messuage, with 80 acres of arable, 20 acres of meadow, 100 of pasture, 100 of wood, 100 of furze and heath, and 20 acres of more, in this parish and Woodford. — Henry was his son (g). Of this Family see a further account under Little Ilford.

UPHALL

Stands about a mile north from the Church, and near Loxford, on the east side of the river Rodon, half way between Berking and Great Ilford.

After Morgan Phillips, the next possessor upon record was Wesselin Webblynge; who held it [N] in ca. by the 40th part of a knight's fee: and also a tenement called Monckes, with divers other lands in this parish. He dyed 7 Novemb. 1611, having bequeathed the premisses by will to his kinsman — Nicolas Webblinge (b).

Elizabeth, widow of William Billingsley, of London, merchant, sold it to

Mr. Edward Seabrooke: and from him it hath passed to his descendents, — Mr. Thomas, and — Edward Seabrooke.

STONE-HALL

Stands a little way east from Red-bridge upon the river Rodon.

It had belonged to Sir John Raynesforth; but was granted, as we have seen above, to Sir William Denham: with Hobbens grove, High grove, and Horslees, containing 10 acres; and a yearly rent of 38s. 6d. (i). Sir William had licence, 6 March 1545, to alienate the same to

Richard Breame Esq; (k) [O] Arthur Breame, sold it, in June 1578, to John Bales. And they two, jointly with Thomas Bales, conveyed by fine, in January following, to

Robert Devereux, Earl of Essex, the maner of Stonehall, with appertenances, and 3 messuages, 3 gardens, 300 acres of arable, 70 of meadow, 300 of pasture, 40 of wood, and 30 of marsh (l). His mother the Lady Lettice, and her then husband, Sir Christopher Blount, had licence, 2 December 1589, to sell the premisses to Sir George Carew: And, 2 March 1598, it was conveyed back, by Henry Earl of Northumberland and others, to the said Sir Christopher, Lord Montjoy; who sold it, 1 November following to

John Crook, and others. It appears to have gone along with the maner of Wansted. For in 1636 it was in Sir Henry Mildmay: and is come with that estate to the Rt. Hon. Earl Tisbury.

The Maner of CLAY-HALL,

Took its name either from the soil, or from a Family furnamed de la Clay [P].

Here was formerly a very good seat, with a Chapel.

The old House was taken down some years ago and a farm house erected in its room. It stands pleasantly on the side of a hill, about 4 miles north of this Church, and a mile from Woodford-bridge.

This, like the rest of this parish, was part of the possessions of the Nunnery of Berking. It was held under the Abbess by the Colt family, mentioned in the other volume, p. 491. Joane, relict of Thomas Colt Esq; and married afterwards to Sir William Parre, held it, at the time of her decease in 1475, of the Abbess by the service of one knight's fee, and yearly rent of 15s. 3d. (m). Her son — John Colt Esq; had it also, in 1521, with 100 acres of pasture, &c. (n). And so had his son — Sir Georga Colt, 1578 (e). His cousin and heir — George Colt who held it of the Queen, and dyed 21 March Esq; dyed possessed of it, 6 Janu. 1615, it being then holden of the King by fealty, and yearly rent of 28s. 8d. (p).

In 1616, it belonged to Sir Christopher Hatton, who, on the 15th of September that year, had a Chapel consecrated here (*).

Some time after it was in the Cambell Family, descended from Robert Cambell of Foulsham in Norfolk. His son — Thomas Cambell was one of the Sheriffs of London in 1600, and Lord Mayor in 1609, being then a Knight (q). He dyed 13 Febr. 1613, aged 78; having been

(b) Inquis. 34 Edw. III. pat. 13 Eliz.

(i) Pat. 37 Hen. VIII.

(n) Inqu. 14 Hen. VIII.

See Newcourt, vol. II. p. 35.

(c) Inqu. 2 Edw. VI.

(f) Inquis. 20 Eliz. Feb. 3.

(k) Ibid.

(o) Inqu. 21 Eliz.

(q) Stow and Strype's Survey, vol. II. book v. p. 139, 140.

(d) Book of Pardons, part I. p. 277.

(g) Inquis. 19 Jaco.

(l) Book of Pardons, part I. p. 247.

(p) Inqu. 14 Jaco.

(e) Let.

(h) Inquis. 9 Jaco. May 16.

(m) Inqu. 15 Edw. IV.

(*) Reg. Grindall, p. 406.

[N] In the Inquisition it is called Mesuagium five locum manerii.

[O] There belonged to it 60 acres of arable, 36 of meadow, 50 of pasture, 10 of under-wood, 10 of furze and heath: and 32 acres called Whetefeld Clayes in Trinity marsh in Weitham. Inqu. 1 Edw. VI. nu. 62.

[P] Adam de la Clay was witness to a charter of . . . Montfichet, in the time of K. Edward III.

twice married. His first wife, was Alice; daughter of Edward Bugle, merchant, by whom he had six sons, and seven daughters. By his 2d wife, Anne daughter of Young, he had no issue (r). James, the second son, was Sheriff in 1619, and Lord Mayor of London in 1629, being a knight. — Robert Cambell Esq; the eldest son, was also an Alderman of London, and dyed 10 Novemb. 1638. By Alice his wife, daughter of William Willington, he had two sons. James, seated at Woodford; created a Baronet 9 April 1661; and who married Theophila, daughter of John Lord Mohun, but dyed without issue. — Thomas, the second son, was created a Baronet 12 Febrü. 1663. By his first wife . . . daughter of Nicolas Corfellis, Esq; he had two daughters. And by his second wife, Mary, daughter of Thomas Lord Viscount Fanshaw [Q], he had two sons, Thomas, and Harry. He built the family vault, adjoining to the north isle of this Church, in 1642, and was buried in it. Thomas, his eldest son, dyed soon after him without issue. — Sir Harry, the second son and heir, departed this life 23 May 1699; having had two wives. 1. Catharine daughter of Sir Antony Chester of Chichley in Buckinghamshire, by whom he had one daughter, Anne. By his second wife, Catharine, daughter of Sir William Wherwood of Sturton-castle in Staffordshire, Knt, widow of Antony Markham, he had no issue.

Anne, his daughter and heir, was married to Thomas Price of Westbury in Buckinghamshire, and had by her — Cambell Price [R].

It belongeth to Peter Eaton of Woodford Esq; Near Clay-hall there is a farm-house called St. Swithin.

CLAYBURY, a capital messuage and lands, lying about a mile north from Clay-hall, and near Woodford-bridge, belonged in 1553 to Sir Ralph Warren (s). About 1729, it was in — Page Esq; And afterwards, for several years, the estate and seat of John Goodere Esq;

ALDBURY-HATCH, denoting an old seat, near a Hatch, or low gate belonging to the Forest, otherwise called Alborough-hatch, stands south-east from Clay-hall, and above 3 miles north-north-east from this Church.

Bartholomew Barons, of London, mercer, who dyed 26 August 1548, held of the king in free socage as of his maner of Berking 2 messuages, 6 cottages, 20 acres of meadow, 120 of pasture, and 24 of wood, in Alborough-hatche and Fulwell-hatche; and 1 messuage, 100 acres of arable, 20 of meadow, and 80 of pasture, called Goddeslond; and 4 messuages, 30 acres of arable, 10 of meadow, and 30 of pasture, named Pulhamslond, Woodward, Bontyngs, Jurdens, and Westlond. Also eleven virgates of land in this parish [S]; And the messuages and lands called Newbury; and Dunshall: And the Tithes of grain and hay: with some parcels of wood. — Thomas Barons, his son and successor, was aged 28 years (t): whose son — Thomas dyed possessed of the same in 1626 (u). Within this century it was the estate of John Lockey Esq; who dyed 12 March 1713. It being mortgaged to James Colebrook Esq; He and one of the coheiresses, or legatees, of Mr. Lockey, joyned in conveying a moiety of it to

Richard Guise Esq. who dyed 4 Decemb. 1752. Col. Jory, who had the other moiety, dyed 24 August 1725. His niece Frances Fouch brought it in marriage to Col. Martin Bladen, one of the Lords of Trade, &c. He departed this life 15 Feb. 1745-6: As did the said Frances his widow 14 August 1747. She left this estate to her cousin Anne Hodges, who was married first to Warner Perkins, Attorney at law, and in 1737 to John-Lambert Middleton Gent. brother of Sir Wm. Middleton of Belsay-castle in Northumberland, Bart.

The messuage of Newbury, or Newbury-Grange, just now mentioned, lies on the north side of the London-road, between it and Aldbury-hatch. It belonged to Thomas Stych Esq; who dyed 18 June 1656 (w): and to Sir Richard Stych Bart. who dyed 11 May 1725, without issue male.

Sir Thomas Webster had it next; and now his son.

Dunshall lies on the same side of the way, near the King's Waterings, up the watery lane, about a quarter of a mile out of the London road; and belongs to John Hyde Esq; of Sundridge.

Near this is Chadwell-street, on the London-road; and adjoining thereto, Chadwell-heath.

GREAT ILFORD,

A Hamlet in the London-road, between 7 and 8 miles from that city, is one of the Wards of this large Parish; and was so named from the ill ford that must have been here before the causey and bridge were erected [T].

In this Village an Hospital was founded, about the latter end of K. Henry II. or beginning of K. Richard I. by Adelicia the Abbess and Convent of Berking, for their leprous tenants, or servants [V]. It consisted of a secular master, a leprous master, and thirteen brethren, lepers;

(r) Strype's Survey, Vol. I. Book III. p. 56.

(u) Inq. 2 Caro. Feb. 11,

(w) Epitaph, in this

[Q] She was remarried to Robert Sheffield, uncle of the Duke of Buckingham.

[R] Arms of Cambell. Sable, on a fesse ermine, 3 pellets between 3 tigers heads erased, or. Crest. An open helmet on a chapeau gules; faced ermine, on it a tiger's head erased, argent.

[S] Called Horoffes, Renlands, Reynolds Browne, Leedes near Dunshall; Farland; 60 acres in Northcroft, Little Heth, &c. Inq. 2 Edw. VI. —

[T] The River Rodon which had been navigable only to Berking, was made so about 30 years ago to Ilford Bridge.

[V] The feeding so much upon salt fish before the Reformation, is by some thought to have rendered the disease of Leprosy more frequent in this kingdom than at present, and to have occasioned the building and endowing of many Hospitals for Lepers. But Mr. William Becket, with great reason supposes, that it was nothing else than the Venereal Disease, which by the ignorance and unskillfulness of the then practitioners, brought a kind of Leprosy over the whole body. See Philosophical Transactions, Vol. xxxi. p. 47, &c. 108, &c.

8 BECONTREE HUNDRED.

two chaplains, and one clerk (x): and was valued in 1534 at 21*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* in the whole, and 16*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* clear.

There is in the London Registry (y) a Rental made in K. Henry the Seventh's reign, of divers lands, farms, &c. belonging to this Hospital: also a note of all the lands, demesnes, tithes, &c. that belonged to it, in 1560.

Upon the suppression it becoming vested in the Crown, Qu. Elizabeth granted, 23 April 1572, the patronage and advowson of this Hospital of St. Mary at Ilford to Thomas Fanshaw Esq; Remembrancer of the Exchequer, and to his heirs and assigns for ever. He covenanted to appoint a fit person for Master, or Keeper, of the same, who should from time to time repair the Chapel and Edifices belonging thereto, and provide convenient habitations for six people sound or infirm, with an allowance of 45*s.* a year, at the usual feasts. And afterwards directed, that a fit person should read divine service in the Chapel here every Lord's-day (z).

The Hospital, as it now is, has a row of brick houses on each side of the court, for six single men; who have their dwelling here and three half-pence a day each, or 11*s.* 6*d.* a quarter, but in the Christmas quarter 16*s.* 6*d.* for firing. The Minister has 14*l.* a year paid by the patron of the Hospital, with a House, besides subscriptions from the inhabitants.

The lands belonging to it are said to be worth 100 l. a year.

In 1591, those greedy hunters after concealed lands, W, Tipper, and R, Dawe, got a grant of this Hospital, and of the advowson of the same (a).

In Trinity term 1604, it was recovered by Selwood against W. Chamberleyne (b).

Some years ago it was in Mr. Walden of Southwark, and afterwards in Mrs. Walden; from whom it was purchased by the late

Sir Crisp Gascoigne Knt. Lord Mayor of London in 1753, who dyed 27 December 1761, and it is now in his son—Bamber Gascoigne Esq;

The Maner of Ilford was alienated by Edward Onely Esq; and others, to Hugh Hare, &c. by licence dated 2 September 1596 (c). And in 1635 it belonged to Bernard Hyde Esq;

A large House here by the side of the river Rodon, belonged to the late Thomas Beacon Esq; and afterwards to Sir Thomas Drury.

The Maner of WITHFIELD,

Of which the House stands about half a mile north of Ilford, was granted, as we have observed above, to the Lord Chancellor Audeley. He had license, 12 July 1541, to sell the demesnes of it to Robert Cowper (d). And, by license dated 24 May 1543, William Grey sold the maner of Withfeld to —Richard Stansfeild, with 3 messuages, 3 cottages, 100 acres of arable, 400 of meadow, 200 of pasture, 20 of wood, 100 of furze and heath, and 40*s.* rent, in Ilford, Barking, and Wansted (e). Of Stanfeild Cooke, and Richard Cooke,

Edward Randall, Gent. bought this maner, 30 June 1552, and dyed possessed of it 7 Octob. 1577 (f). His son —Vincent Randall told it, by license, dated 7 August 1598, to

John Tedcastle, who lies buried in this Church with an epitaph. He sold it, by license 1 Septemb. 1604, to Aston. And this last to Sir Nicolas Coote, who had it in 1617, as had Lady Coote in 1636.

Before the year 1651 it was purchased by John Brewster, son of Francis, of Wrentham-hall in Suffolk. He dyed 27 July 1677, aged 73, and was buried in this Church: As was also his son —Augustine Brewster Esq; who dyed 27 March 1708, aged 66 years (g) [W]. His two sisters and coheirs sold it to

John Bamber M. D. who left it to Walter Jones for life, he having married the Doctor's daughter; and the reversion to —Bamber Gascoigne Esq;

CRANBROOKE, a maner or messuage in this parish, standing on the north side of the London road, about half a mile from Ilford, and holden of the maner of Berking, belonged to Sir Henry Palavicini, who dyed 14 October 1615. His brother—Tobias was his heir (h). [See under Ray-house in Little Ilford.]

Sir Charles Montague Knt. was possessed of it, at the time of his decease 11 Septemb. 1625. He left three daughters coheirs, Elizabeth, Anne, and Mary (i).

The owner or occupier of it, in part of the last century, was Sir James Northfolke, Serjeant at arms to the House of Commons (k).

Sir William Boreman Knt. had it afterwards; and then his lady for life; upon whose death, one moiety of it came to her nephew—Henry Davis Gent. and the other moiety to Henry Gibbs Esq; who married Elizabeth, sister of the said H. Davis. They were to enjoy this estate for a term of years, under a decree in Chancery. It belonged afterwards to John Ward, and . . . Raymond Esq; now to Andrew Moffatt Esq;

RIPPLE-WARD is the fourth Ward in Berking, in the eastern part of the parish, next to Dagenham.

Samuel Wegg, James Clarke, and John Miller, Esquires; Tho. Hatcher, Samuel Shuckford, Wiltshire Emmet, George Stubs, Richard Farrar, and a few others, have also some lands here.

A Free SCHOOL in this Town was founded in 1649, by Sir James Cambell of Woodford Knt. and afterwards Bart. The endowment is 20*l.* a year, an orchard, a garden, and half an acre of land. The Master is to repair the House; and (x) Inqu. 21 Ric. II. and Bp. Tanner's Notit. Monast. folio ed. p. 131.

(z) See Newcourt, vol. II. p. 346, 347.

(c) Ibid.

(d) Lett. pat. 33 Hen. VIII.

(e) Let. pat. 35 Hen. VIII.

(f) Book of Alienations, part I. p. 283. & Præcipe 10 & 11 Eliz. Term. Mic. Inqu. 20 Eliz. Feb. 3.

(g) Epitaph.

(h) Inqu. 13 Jaco.

(i) Inqu. 1 Caro. Janu. 31.

(k) From some letters of his.

(y) Lib. v. Vic. gen. p. 239.

(b) Book of Alienations, part I. p. 145.

(f) Book of Alienations,

(g) Epitaph.

(h) Inqu.

[W] Arms of Brewster. A chevron ermine, between 3 estoiles 2, 1. Crest. On a helmet and torse, a demi-lion rampant, bearing a club on his shoulder supported by his right paw.

something is left for the maintenance of the same.

Charities belonging to this parish.

Six pounds thirteen shillings and four-pence, given to the Poor by William Nutbroune in 1596, payable yearly to the Church-wardens at Michaelmas out of the Rectory of Ashe in Kent.

Forty shillings per ann. issuing out of the lands late Mr. Hoar's.

The like sum issuing out of the rents lately of Garrard Weblin, given in bread weekly.

Collards, about 5 acres of upland, holden of the maner of Berking by copy. The rent about 4*l.* per ann.

Houses: Three whereof in Bull-street, with a piece of ground; and two in Ripple-ward. The donors unknown.

Five acres of marsh land in Eastbury-level, of 5*l.* a year: purchased with 100*l.* bequeathed by Sir James Cambell above-mentioned,

The rent of the Market, with the shops and stalls, about 30*l.* per ann. the gift of the Family of Fanshaw, lords of the maner here; settled upon the Poor by Sir Thomas Fanshaw in 1679. Is twelve Trustees; when reduced to three, a new trust to be raised.

The Hon. Robert Bertie above-mentioned gave by will Three pounds per ann. issuing out of his houses and estate in Parker's-lane in St. Giles's in the fields London, to be yearly distributed to the Poor of Berking in bread; viz. twelve-pennyworth every Sunday, and the rest at Christmases and Easter for ever. He also gave Three pounds per annum, issuing out of the Chamber of London for the interest of 60*l.* placed there by him; to be received yearly, or once in two years at farthest, for putting out a poor boy in Ilford ward.

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. Margaret, is large, consisting of a middle pace, a south aisle which runs the whole length of church and chancel, and two north aisles supported by pillars of the Tuscan order. The south aisle and vestry are leaded, and so is the Church, which hath a flat roof; The two north aisles, and the Chancel are tyled. At the west end there is a lofty Tower of stone embattled, with a ring of six Bells.

This Church belonged of old to the Nunnery here; to which it was appropriated, and two Vicarages ordained and endowed, one called the Vicarage of St. Margaret of Berking on the South, and the other the Vicarage of St. Margaret, on the North; and sometimes of North-street, both in the gift and patronage of the Nunnery. They were consolidated and united after the year 1395, and continued in the Convent's gift till the dissolution.

All the Tithes of corn, grain, and hay on Stone-hall, Westbury, Eastbury, and Gaysehams lands, were granted to Sir William Denham, who dyed possessed of them in 1548, as we have seen above. On the 11th of June 1574, Arthur Breame sold the Tithes of grain and hay here, to Thomas Fanshaw Esq; (l). And we suppose they have gone ever since with the capital estates: but some parcels have been bought off. Those of Westbury belong to Bamber Gascoigne Esq; Some parts of the marsh-lands are tithable to the Vicar.

The Rectory and Church, with the advowson of the Vicarage, were granted, 10 March 1549, to Robert Thomas, and others, to hold of the Honor of Hampton-court (m). In 1556 the Vicarage was in Thomas Baron, or Barnes, of whom it was purchased by Sir William Petre, William Cook Esq; and William Napper, Gent. executors of the will of William Pouncett of this parish; and settled by them, 1 June 1557, on the Warden and Fellows of All Souls college Oxon, in whose gift it has continued ever since (n).

There were three Chantries founded in this Church; one at the Altar of the Resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ; the second at the Altar of King Edward; and the other at the Altar of St. Ethelburga (o).

In this parish was a Chapel, called St. Anne's Chapel, which, with Cockerell's grove, was granted to Richard Robson, &c. in 1572 (p).

The several Wards here are rated to the Land-tax as follows; Berking, at 2140*l.* Chadwell, at 832*l.* Great Ilford at 2502*l.* 3*s.* and Ripple-Ward at 2231*l.*

Thomas Machen Fiddes M. A.	1720,	upon Chifehale's d.	} All Souls College Oxon.
Lewis Owen, M. A.	6 Febru. 1734,	upon Fiddes's d.
William Stephens L. L. D.	7 Octob. 1746,	upon Owen's d.
Savage Tyndal D. D.	27 April 1751,	upon Stephens's d.
Christopher Musgrave D. D.	9 Sept. 1762,	upon Tyndal's d.

2. D A G E N H A M.

This parish claims the next place to Berking, as having belonged to the Nunnery there till its dissolution; and been look'd upon as a member of the capital Maner, styled Jenkins, otherwise Dagenham, or Dakenhames place.

In Hodelred's grant of it to the Convent it is called Deckenham (q). From whence Dagen, or Decken, the first part of the name, is derived, we cannot learn. As for Ham it signifies a habitation, village, or town. The place is not mentioned in Domefday-book, being included in Berking.

Here are four Maners, or reputed Maners; 1. The maner of Dagenham. 2. That of Cokeremouth. 3. . . . of Parsflows. 4. . . . of Valence.

(l) Book of Pardons, Part i. p. 277. (m) Pat. 4 Edw. VI. (n) See Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 34. (o) Reg. Fitz-James, and Baldock. See Newcourt, p. 32. (p) Lett. pat. 14 Eliz. (q) Monast. Angl. Vol. I. p. 79.

1. The Maner of DAGENHAM was holden of the Abbess, in K. Edward the Third's reign, by Edmond de Northtoft, mentioned in the other Volume, p. 366. His two granddaughters, Emma, and Florence, were his co-heirs (r).

Sir Richard Alibon Kt. one of the Judges of the King's Bench, had it in the last century; and sold it to

Thomas, eldest son of Sir Henry Audeley. He dyed intestate, and without issue, in 1697. And this estate, with that of Gosebeck's in Stanway, was decreed to his sister Catharine's son, Henry Barker Esq;

2. The Maner of COCKERMOUTH is the only one that has a Court kept in this parish. The mansion house stands about a mile south, south-west from the Church.

John de Cockermouth, clerk, had license, in 1330, to give to the Abbess and Convent, 1 messuage, 140 acres of arable, 30 of meadow, 24 of pasture, 8 of wood, and 70 s. rent, in Dakenham, Berking, and Hylleford, which were holden of the said Abbess &c. by the yearly rent of 2 s. 6 d. and suit of Court (s).

Upon the dissolution of Abbeyes, this estate came to the Crown, and rested in it till 14 July 1565, when Qu. Elizabeth granted it, with Purlevants and Wildland-marsh, in Riple-marsh, to Sir Antony Browne Chief Justice of the Common Pleas (t). [See under South-Weald.] He dyed 17 May 1567, possessed of this estate. His brother John's grandson—Wistan Browne, Esq; was his heir (u). He had license, 2 May 1574, to alienate this manner, and 10 messuages, 10 tofts, one barn and garden, 200 acres of arable, 100 of meadow, 100 of pasture, 3 of wood, 20 of furze and heath, 100 of marsh, and 4 l. rent, to

John Bullock Esq; &c. who, 26 Novemb. 1574, had license to alienate them to Thomas Fanshawe, and Thomas Powle, Esqres.

In 1589, William Nutbrowne had this estate; and, by license dated 2 Decemb. the same year, sold it to William Megges; by whom it was conveyed, 7 April 1601, to—John Swinnerton. senr. and junr, (w).

Sir Thomas Darcy of Gr. Bracksted Bart. held a Court here 8 June 1685, as lord of this maner. The 21st of October 1690, he and Jane his wife sold it for 2050 l. to William Clark: the latter gave it by will to his wife Anne for life: remainder to—Thomas Cage, and others, in trust; by whom it was conveyed to William Watkins, and Thomas Johnson, subject to the trusts in W. Clarke's will.

It is said to have been afterwards in Mrs. Tippling, and—Philip Page.

(r) Inquis. 49 Edw. III. Octob. 26.

Curstors Book. in the Chancel of the Church.

(s) Inquis. 4 Edw. III.

(w) Book of Alienations, Part ii. p. 66. 68.

(y) Inquis. 11 Caro. June 3.

(t) Lett. pat. 6 Eliz.

(u) Inquis. 10 Eliz.

(x) Symonds's Collec. Vol. III. fol. 169. from the

(z) Inquis. 3 Edw. II.

(a) See his bombast Epitaph,

[X] Adomar de Valence Comes Penbr. est filius & heres dicte Agnetis. Inquis. 3 Edw. II. This Agnes is not mentioned in Sir William Dugdale's Baronage, Vol. I. p. 775.

&c. Nor in Milles, and Vincent, as the mother of Aymer de Valence.

3. The Maner of PARSELOWES, or Passelowses.

The mansion house stands about a mile and a half north-west from this Church.

We do not find any account of the owners of this estate till 1568. Then Martin Bowes, and Frances his wife, passed it to Rowland Hayward, or Haywood, Alderman of London, and Thomas Wilbraham; with appertenances, being 10 messuages, 1 cottage, 10 gardens, 2 orchards, 100 acres of arable, 20 of meadow, 50 of pasture, 30 of wood, and 40 s. rent, in Dagenham, Berking, and Upminster (x).

William Fanshaw Esq; who dyed 4 March 1634-5, held this maner with all its rights and members, of Sir Christopher Hatton, and Sir Thomas Fanshaw, Knights of the Bath &c. as of their maner of Berking, in free socage, by the service of 9 s. 1 d. ob. And Cricklewood, and Castell-seilds, &c. of the King. He was son of Thomas Fanshaw of Ware-park.—John Fanshaw Esq; his son and heir, then aged 15 years, dyed 6 April 1689, in the 69th Year of his age. He married Alice, eldest daughter of Thomas Fanshaw of Jenkins in Berking, by whom he had—John, Auditor of the Dutchy of Lancaster, who dyed 19 December 1697, in the 38th year of his age. By his wife, Mary, eldest daughter of John Coke of Melborn in Derbyshire, he had 3 sons, and 1 daughter (y).—Thomas his son was father of—Thomas, who married, 13 June 1745, Ann daughter of Sir Crisp Gascoigne. He is the immediate heir of the Fanshaw family.

4. The nominal Maner of VALENCE.

The mansion house stands about half a mile north of Passelowses.

It took its name from the Valence family, Earls of Penbroke, frequently mentioned in the other Volume of this History.

Agnes de Valence, at the time of her decease, in 1309, held of the Abbess of Berking, 1 messuage, 128 acres of arable, 4 acres of meadow, and 7 s. 3 d. rent. And the tenant of those lands was obliged to ride with two horses along with the Abbess, and at her expence, upon reasonable notice.—Adomar de Valence, Earl of Penbroke, was her heir (z) [X]. Concerning this Adomar, See in the other Volume, p. 26. 138.

Sir Nicolas Coote of Withfeild in Berking, had it in the last century.

Thomas Bonham, Esq; who dyed 3 May 1676, was owner of this estate (a).

Henry Merttins Esq; elder brother to Sir George Merttins, Lord Mayor of London in 1724 and 1725, purchased this estate. He dyed 28 March 1725, and was buried in this Church. His son—John-Henry Merttins is the present possessor.

The following persons have also some lands here, Mr. George Stow; William Butterfield; William Story; Rupert Clarke; John Rame; Thomas Waters.

Charities.

John White of this parish Gent. who dyed 2 February 1675, gave by will one dozen of bread weekly for ever to 7 poor widows: for which, land in this parish is tyed.

—Whelham of this parish, Gent. left, in 1692, five pounds per annum for ever, to be distributed amongst the poor of this parish at Christmases; for the payment of which there is also land appointed in this parish.

Forty shillings per annum, left by Mr. Armstrong, and to be distributed also at Christmases; for which there is land tyed in Horn-Church.

John Fanshaw, of Parslowes in this parish Esq; left also a dozen of bread, weekly, to the Poor.

Richard Uphill Esq; standard-bearer to K. William and Qu. Mary, to Queen Anne, and to K. George I. who dyed 26 Febru. 1717-18, and was buried in this Church, gave, by his will, Ninety pounds per annum, being two orders in the Exchequer, one of fifty pounds, and the other of forty, for the remaining term of years upon them, to the Poor of this parish not taking alms; and to put out children apprentices, or to service, or otherwise, as should be appointed by two Justices of the Peace living in or near Dagenham, and by some other Gentlemen of this parish, belonging to the Church of England.

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul, consists of a body and north aisle; the Chancel hath only a south aisle. At the west end there is a stone Tower. This Church belonged, as well as the Maner, to Berking Nunnery: The Rectory, or great Tithes were appropriated to them, and a Vicarage ordained and endowed, of which the Convent continued patrons till their dissolution, when both came to the Crown.

They were granted to Sir Antony Browne, who, at the time of his decease in 1567, is recorded to have held the Rectory of Dagenham, with appertenances, and all the Tithes thereto belonging; and all the Tithes of hay (b). Out of them he partly endowed the Free-School he founded at Burntwood: what he granted here being lett for 40 l. a year, but said to be worth much more. As to the Vicarage, it passed from Wistan Brown Esq; to . . . John Bullock, to . . . William Netbrown, or rather Nutbrown, who presented to the Vicarage in 1579, . . . John Swinnerton senr. and junr. had it next in 1601. The Bishop of London collated to the Vicarage in 1637, 1640, and 1641, in full right: But, after the Restoration, the Advowson of it was in . . . Sir Thomas Darcy Bart. For some years past, it hath been in . . . William Blackbourn, and now in Levett Blackbourn Esq;

This parish is rated to the Land-tax at 2512 l.

DAGENHAM-BREACH makes so considerable a figure in the Map, that it is necessary to give an Account of it here.

It happened 17 December 1707, at an extraordinary high tide, accompanied with a violent wind: And was occasioned by the blowing up of a small sluice, or trunk, made for the drain of the land-waters in the wall and banks of the Thames. If proper and immediate help had been applied, it could have been easily stopped with a small charge; the ditch or drain of the marsh grounds, which led to such sluice, being at the first blowing up of the sluice not above 14 or 16 feet broad, and might in a day or two have been easily stopped, by the bringing on a small dam, in form of a semi-circle, to the Thames Wall, if many hands had been employed: But through the neglect thereof, the constant force of the Water setting in and out of the levels, soon made the gap wider; so that a large channel was torn up, and a passage made for the water of 100 yards wide, and 20 feet deep in some places. By which unhappy accident about 1000 acres of rich land, in the levels of Dagenham and Havering, worth about 3 l. an acre, were overflowed, and a sand-bank was raised in the Thames, at the mouth of the breach, which reached almost half-cross the river, and near a mile in length; likely to prove a great obstruction to, and even utterly to destroy, the navigation. The expence of repairing this breach was at first laid upon the proprietors of the lands, but after many wearied and unsuccessful attempts of theirs, for about seven years, until they had expended more than the value of the land, it was given wholly over as impracticable (c). However being deemed a public concern, upon application to Parliament, an act was obtained for the speedy and effectual preserving the navigation of the river Thames, by stopping the breach in the Levels of Havering and Dagenham: by which act, for ten years from 10 July 1714, the Master of every ship or vessel coming into the port of London was obliged to pay three pence per tun; coasters three shillings each voyage; and colliers one penny per chalders: except fishing-vessels, ships in ballast only, and coasters particularly Harwich boats: Colchester packet boats to be charged with the duty of 3s. a voyage, only four times in the year (d). Proposals being thereupon made, William Boswell demanded 19000 l. but agreed afterwards, for the sum of 16500 l. to stop up the breach; remove the shelf that had been thrown out in the Thames; and make good the Walls of the Levels, extending from the point of land above the half-way Tree, down to the mouth of Raynham-Creek; to be compleated wholly at his own risque, and to begin with his own money. But being unable to fulfill his engagement (e), Capt. John Perry entered into Indenture of Covenants, 26 Janu. 1715, effectually to make up and stop the Breach in the Levels of Havering and Dagenham, being of the width of 400 feet; and to

(b) Inquis. 10 Eliz. (c) This account is extracted from that published by the most ingenious W. Derham, in the Philosophical Transactions, No. 335, p. 478. and Capt. Perry's Account of the stopping of the Dagenham Breach, Lond. 1721. 8vo. (d) Statute 12 Ann. c. 17. Sess. 2: (e) W. Boswell's Frauds and Abuses at Dagenham repair and make good the walls, banks, and other works, 200 yards on each side of the Breach; before the 1st of November 1717, for the sum of 25000 l. [Y]. And, within eighteen months, to commence from 23 April 1718, remove the sand-bank in the Thames: upon condition that if such sum was not sufficient, they would recommend him to Parliament. Accordingly he went diligently to work; but an extraordinary tide, on the 10th of September 1717, flowing above what he had done, tore it down to the foundation; and his work was damaged again twice afterwards, the last time 30 September 1718; so that he was obliged three times to stop the breach, with more than common labour. However it was compleated in something more than five years time; at the end of which, instead of 25000 l. the charge and expence was found to have amounted to forty thousand, four hundred seventy two pounds, eighteen shillings and eight pence three farthings. Which involving Capt. Perry in great difficulties, a Clause was inserted in an Act 7 George I. c. 20. empowering the Trustees, out of the money collected by virtue of the act of Queen Anne, to pay him the further sum of 15000 l. over and above the 25000 l.

From 1707 to 1721 the Breach had worn and spread itself into several large branches, like the natural arms of a River, by the force and fall of the water returning from the marsh ground upon every reflux of the tide; the longest of which arms was above a mile and a half in extent, and in some places four or five hundred feet in breadth, and from twenty to thirty or forty feet depth. There was by computation about 120 acres of solid marsh ground washed into the Thames (f). At this time there is yet a pool of forty or fifty acres left within the wall, where the earth had been carried off by the tide.

The keeping up of the Wall here was of such great importance, that the Abbess of Berking had license to cart wood, or timber, through the Forest, in fence month, by the tenants of Berking and Dakenham, from Goldherst-wood to La Claye, for the repair of the breaches occasioned by the inundation of the Sea [Z],

Capt. Perry, in repairing the Breach, found a great quantity of what he calls Moorlogg; that is, a vein of divers sorts of rotten wood; yew timber only, that is found amongst it, not being decayed; which lyes about 3 foot and a half or 4 foot under the surface of the marsh ground belonging to the levels, about 10 feet in depth, and with very little mixture of earth that can be discerned amongst it: underneath it there is about 12 or 15 inches depth of blew clay, then gravel and sand. A great part of this Moorlogg seems to be composed of small brush wood, and many hazel nuts have been taken up in digging, which looked to be firm, but upon a very little pressure break to dust. Some of the yew trees found here, are 14 or 16 inches diameter, and perfectly found, excepting the sap: the willow or fallow trees are many of them two feet and upwards in diameter, and retain a whitish colour like touch-wood, and so decayed, where they lye, that men cut into it with their tools with more ease than they do the earth or adjoining Moorlogg. Along other parts of the Thames, it generally lies in an even and regular manner; and as to its thickness, it is nigh 6 foot thick at Deptford; in Woolwich-reach between 7 and 8 foot; in Plumsted-levels against Berking-Creek 9 foot; and gradually of a greater thickness as well as breadth, going down on both sides of the Thames below the Breach, as the Marshes extend; the thickness of the marsh-ground, which lies upon it, being near alike, and none of it to be seen at any place where the course of the River cuts into the high land, as at Woolwich, Purfleet &c. But Capt. Perry did not see amongst it that sort of wood which others have described to be taken up found, and to moulder away upon its coming into the air. There have been found a little above the vein of this Moorlogg at Dagenham, Stags-horns (g) [A]. What was taken for yew, the learned Dr. Derham, supposed to be horn-beam, or alder, perhaps rather birch. And, amongst them, he discovered a large oak; another which had signs of the ax, its head having been lopped off; and stumps, that seemed to have been cut off at the surface of the earth (b).—How these subterraneous Trees came to be buried here, and elsewhere (i), in such quantities, is not agreed amongst the learned. Some suppose, that they are remains of the general devastation made by the Deluge (k); others imagine, that they are the ruins of some later age, occasioned by an extraordinary Inundation of the river Thames; or by some Storms and strong southerly Winds, which blow sharply upon this shore, and might be able to root up and tumble down Trees growing in so lax a soil as this is. But if they could root up a few sturdy Oaks, they could not affect small brush wood, which is among the rest in great plenty.—Why therefore it is not more natural to suppose, that they were cut down and laid here on purpose to stop the Inundations of the river Thames, I cannot conceive: and humbly submit it to the consideration of the Learned.

Vicars.

James Symonds,	M. A. 7 March 1704, upon Lamplugh's d. . . .	Samuel Kekewich c. 1.
William Butler,	L. L. D. 16 Janu. 1719, upon Symonds's d. . . .	} William Blackburn Esq;
Francis Stanley,	M. A. 19 March 1736, upon Butler's d. . . .
Abraham Blackburn,	M. A. 3 July 1739, upon Stanley's cess. . . .

(f) Capt. Perry's Account &c. p. 6.

(g) See Capt. Perry's Account of the stopping of Dagenham Breach, p. 72, 73. (b) Philosophical Transactions, No. 335. and Abridgment, by H. Jones, Vol. IV. Part 2. p. 219, &c. (i) Ibid. p. 212, &c. Philof. Transact. No. 275. 277.

(k) See Dr. Stukeley's Itinerarium Curiosum, p. 14.

[Y] Part of the agreement also was, that he should maintain the same for three years after stoppt, or in case of accidents to make good the damage.

[Z] Abbatissa de Berking habet licentiam cariandi meremium mense vetito per forestam ad reparationem Breccarum per inundationem maris &c. Rot. 36. Dorf. Forest. Essex.

[A] Capt. Perry, the undertaker of this great Work, had been several years employed by Peter the Great, Czar of Muscovy, in his works at Veronitz, a city upon the river Don. He dyed 11 Februa. 1732-3.

3. E A S T-H A M.

The two Parishes of East, and West, Ham, are so named on account of their situation with regard to one another. East-Ham is the most easterly of the two.

This Parish belonged of old to the Crown, and was made part of the endowment of the rich Abbey of Westminster; to which it was confirmed by K. Edward the Confessor, under the name of two hides in Hamme (l). At the same time it appears, that these two Parishes were not then divided; but went by one common name.

St. Peter's Westminster held it in two parcels, when the general Survey was taken [B].

How and when the Convent and Monks parted with this estate, or by whom it was taken from them, doth not appear [C].

But in the reign of K. Henry III, it was in the Montfichet-Family, which had the adjoining Maner of West-Ham. The Account of that Family properly belongs to Stansted-Montfichet, where stood their capital Seat. Accordingly it is placed there, in the other Volume of this History, p. 576, 577.

The succession of them was thus. Robert Gernon.—William, his son, who took the surname of Montfichet; and founded the Abbey of Stratford.—Gilbert,—Richard, that dyed in 1203, leaving his son—Richard de Montfichet, the last heir male of this family. He departed this life about 1258 without issue; and was succeeded by his three Sisters, and coheirs, Margery, married to Hugh de Bolebec; Aveline, to William de Fortz, Earl of Albemarle; and Philippa, to Hugh de Playz.

Their large inheritance being divided amongst them, Hugh de Bolebec had this estate for his share: And his successors were—Walter de Bolebec,—Walter,—Hugh, and another—Hugh. This last left four Daughters his coheirs. Philippa, married to Roger de Lancaster. Margery first to Nicolas Corbett, and afterwards to Ralph son of William de Grimsthorp: Alice married to Roger, or Walter, de Huntercombe; and Maud, to Hugh de la Vall (m).

Amongst them was this estate divided, and so became dismembred. Maud, who dyed first, in 1281, without issue, held of the King in ca. in East-Ham and West-Ham, 80 acres of arable, 35 s. 8 d. rent of the free-tenants, and of the customary 4 l. 18 s. 5 d. ob (n).—Philippa, de Lancaster, that dyed in 1294, held of the King in capite, by the service of the 4th part of a knight's fee, in East Hames, 1 messuage, 200 acres of arable, 3 of meadow, and 15 s. rent. —John de Lancaster was her son (o). But, before her decease, she had parted with her share to Robert Burnel, Bishop of Bath and Wells, and Lord Chancellor, in whom Alice's part was also vested; which produced another Maner here called EAST-HAM BURNELS. [See in the other Volume, p. 577.

Before we come to treat of it particularly, we shall trace the Maner of EAST-HAM down to the present time. John de Lancaster, who was heir to it, obtained a license in 1307, to give 2 acres of arable in East-Hammes and the Advowson of the Church, which were holden of the King, to the Abbot and Convent of Stratford (p). Afterwards, in 1319, the same John, and Annora his wife, granted the reversion of this Maner, after their decease, to the said Abbot and Convent; it being holden of the King by the service of the third part of one moiety of a knight's fee (q). The Abbey was in possession of it in 1358 (r); and continued so till their dissolution; at which time the maner and rectory were lett at 23 l. 12 s. 2 d. and other lands here at 31 l. o. 2 d.

K. Henry VIII. 10 May 1544, granted to Richard Breame Esq; this maner, and the Rectory and Church of East-Ham, with 47 acres of arable land, and marsh; 13 acres in East-ham-marsh; 2 parcels of arable and marsh, containing 13 acres and a half; a fishery called West-Hams-fletes-mouth, and the two shores, or reed-tufts; likewise the tithes of Westmester fee in this parish; and 4 acres and a half in Rohytyng marsh in Berking; to hold of the King by the 20th part of a knight's-fee (s). He dyed 6 Octob. 1546, possessed of the same, leaving his son—Edward, 4 years old (t); who departed this life 1 Janu. 1558. His brother—Arthur, was his heir (u); to whom, in 1567, Dorothy Dalton made over all her right in this maner (w).—Giles Breame was his son.

In 1635, Robert Allington, of Cambridge-shire, had one part of this maner, and—Cherry, merchant in London, the other part.

It belonged afterwards to Sir Thomas Draper of Sunninghill in Berkshire, Bart. who dyed in 1703. His daughter

Mary brought it in marriage to her husband, John Barber Esq; Their son John Barber, sold it, with several capital Farms in this parish, to John Henniker Esq; seated in the adjoining parish of West-Ham; under which a more particular account is given of him.

The maner house, called East-ham-hall, stands near the Church.

(l) Monastic. Anglic. Vol. I. p. 61. (m) Extent of this Maner 51 Hen. III. (n) Inquis. 9 Edw. I. (o) Inquis. 22 Edw. I. (p) Inquis. 35 Edw. I. (q) Pedesfinium in recept. Scaccar. 13 Edw. II. and Inquis. 8 Edw. III. (r) Inquis. 32 Edw. III. (s) Lett. pat. 36 Hen. VIII. (t) Inquis. 1 Edw. VI. nu. 62. (u) Inquis. 38 Hen. VIII. and 1 Eliz. May 6. (w) Lett. pat. 36 Hen. VIII. Prac. Vic. Com. Essex, 10 Eliz. term. Hill. Symonds's Collect. Vol. III. fol. 171.

[B] Terra fei Petri de Westmonasterio. Hund' de Beuentreu. Hame tenuit Sanctus Petrus. ii carucate in dominio, & v carucate Hominum. Semper xv villani. Tunc vii bordarii, modo xii. Pastura cc ovibus. modus dimidium molendini, l oves, iii porci. Tunc valuit iv libras, modo vi. . . Octavam hidam de eadem Ecclesia Sancte Marie dedit Ingelricus Sancto Martino et adhuc ibi est ut Consulatus testatur sine iussu Regis.

Hund' de Beuentreu. Hame tenuit Sanctus Petrus, Tempore Regis Edwardi, pro Manerio et ii hidis. Semper i caru-cata. Tunc iii bordarii, modo v. Silva viiii porcis. Tunc valuit xx solidos, modo lx. Liber Domeid. fol. 14 b. Tit. 6.

In 1226, Ralph le Moigne held Estham, by the Serjancy of being buyer, or caterer, for the King's kitchen. Plac. Coron. apud Chelmsf. 11 Hen. III. But it is not said which Maner it was.

[C] There was an estate here named Westmester, or Westminster, fee, as low as the reign of K. Henry VIII.

EAST-HAM BURNELS, is the other Maner in this Parish, as we have observed before.

The mansion house stands near the London road.

In 1286, a fine passed between Robert Burnel, Bishop of Bath and Wells, plaintiff, and Ralph son of William de Grimsthorp, and Margery his wife; deforc' of the maners of Est-hammes, and Gr. Hoyland (x).—The Bishop's great nephew, Edward Lord Burnel, who dyed in 1316, held of the King, as of the Barony of Montfichet, 132 acres of marsh in East-ham, 80 acres of arable, 23 s. 4 d. rent of the free tenants, and 20 l. a year rent of assize of the customary tenants, in East-ham and West-ham; and 700 days work of the customary tenants, 7 acres of meadow, and 40 acres of wood, by the service of the 4th part of a knight's fee. He held also here some smaller parcels under Richard Plaiz, Thomas de Undercombe, and William Malemaynes (y):

Maud, his sister and sole heir, was married first to John Lovel, and afterwards to John de Handlo. In 1330, this Maud, and her husband John de Handlo, held in Est-ham and West-ham, 148 acres of arable, 6 of meadow, 11 of pasture, and 24 of wood, of the King in capite, as parcel of the Barony of Monfichet, by the service of half a knight's fee.—And by licence, they entailed their estates on Joan, Elizabeth, and Margaret, daughters of Richard Handlo, the said Maud's eldest son by her second husband; remainder to John Lovel, son of her first husband John Lovel, and his heirs male (z). Those three daughters, and their brother Edmund, dying without issue as far as we can find, their uncle—Sir Nicolas Handlo succeeded to this and their other estates, and took the surname of Burnel. [See in the other Volume, p. 12, 13, 577.] He dyed in 1382 (a). His son—Sir Hugh Burnel, held the maners of Est-ham and West-ham, in which there were 145 acres of marsh lying under water, and 1 messuage, and 101 acres of arable, of the King, in capite by the third part of a knight's fee; 7 acres were also holden of the Abbot of Stratford; and the remainder of Giles de Plays.

Joice, wife of Thomas Erdyngton jun. Catharine Burnel; and Margery wife of Edmund Hungerford, were his cousins and heirs (b). Sir Edmund Hungerford, at the time of his decease in 1484, held the maners of Est-ham Burnel, and West-ham-Burnel, Hell-house, and Stansted-Montfichet, of Francis Lord Lovel; and was succeeded by his son—Thomas Hungerford (c). But his widow Margery enjoyed them till her decease, 27 March 1486 (d).—Sir John Hun- gerford had them in 1506 (e). And—John Hungerford Esq; in 1559 (f). But between them they were held by William Lacon, alias Laxon, who dyed 20 July 1556, and his heir was said to be Joanna, widow of Thomas Wanton (g) [D].—Sir John Hungerford, who dyed 19 March 1581, held divers messuages, lands and tenements in the vills, fields, and parishes of East-ham and West-ham Burnel.—Antony was his son and heir (h).

Roger Beckwith, at the time of his decease 5 Septemb. 1586, held a moiety and purparty of the maner of East-ham Burnels, and West-ham Burnels; and a moiety and purparty of the maner of East-ham and Playes, with all their appertences. His two sisters and co-heirs were,

Frances, wife of George Harvey, and Frances, wife of Henry Slingsby; Esqrs; (i) [See under Marks, near Romford.] George Harvey was afterwards knighted, and dyed 10 August 1605. His widow the Lady Frances, just now mentioned, lived till 11 Novemb. 1627, and held these estates [E] till her decease. Margaret her eldest daughter was married to William Mildmay Esq; son and heir of Sir Thomas Mildmay of Barnes Kt. and Elizabeth the sixth daughter to Sir Nicolas Coote, of Dagenham Kt.—Sir Thomas, son of the said Margaret, and William Mildmay, and the Lady Coote, were her co-heirs (k).

This estate continued in the Family of Mildmay of Marks, till Carew Mildmay Esq; sold it to

Henry Edwards Esq; who conveyed it to John Gore Esq; A moiety of it was afterwards purchased by

Sir Robert Smyth Bart. This Sir Robert was descended from the Smyths of Stoke Prior in Worcestershire, and created a Baronet 30 March 1665. His eldest son and heir, —Sir Robert Smyth, married Jane, eldest daughter of John Trafford of Dunton-hall in Lincolnshire Esq; by whom he had two sons Robert, and James, who dyed unmarried 12 Octob. 1741. aged 81 years [F]—Sir Robert, the eldest son, and successor to his father, married Anne, daughter of Henry Whitehead of Titherly in Hampshire, by whom he had 3 sons, Trafford, Robert, and Henry. He dyed 28 Janu. 1744-5.—Trafford, the eldest son, dyed before him, in January 1731-2. He had married Conway, daughter and heiress of Thomas Hacket, bishop of Down and Connor, by whom he left four sons, Trafford, Robert, James and John. By a second wife he left no issue.—Trafford, the eldest son, was heir to his grandfather. He died unmarried in December 1765, and was succeeded by his nephew now Sir Robert. The other moiety of this estate belongs to Stephen Comyns Esq;

(x) Fine 14 Edw. I. (y) Inquis. 6 Edw. II. (z) Inquis. 4 Edw. III. (a) Inquis. 6 Ric. II. (b) Inquis. 8 Hen. V. (c) Inquis. 2 Ric. III. (d) Inquis. 2 Hen. VII. Nov. 2. (e) P. Le Neve's MSS. (f) Inquis. 1 Eliz. (g) Inquis. 4 and 5 Ph. and Ma. (h) Inquis. 24 Eliz. (i) Inquis. 28 Eliz. (k) Inquis. 14 Caro.

[D] However, we do not find that any of the collateral branches of the Hungerford Family were involved in the condemnation of Edward Lord Hungerford, who was beheaded with Thomas Cromwell 28 July 1540.

[E] Namely a moiety of the maners of East-ham Burnels, West-ham Burnels, East West-ham; and a moiety of the site of the same. Also Zawlers, containing 8 acres, in Eastham; and a moiety of Plumtree-marsh. Inquis. 14 Caro.

[F] He left by will his estates in East, and West, Ham, and elsewhere, to the unborn Son of his great nephew, Sir Trafford Smyth, who dyed unmarried.—Arms of Smyth. Azure, two barrs wavy, ermine, on a chief, or, a demi-lion rampant, issuant, sable, armed and langued, gules.

The tenants of the Maner of East-Ham are obliged to treat and entertain the tenants of the other Maners of West-ham, West-ham-Burnels, and Plaiz. The original of which Custom is said to be this; that when the Lord of those Maners was taken prisoner in France, and sent to his tenants for a relief, the tenants of all the other Maners complied, and those of East-ham refused: so that to punish them for their disobedience, he laid this burden upon them. This is the current tradition among the homagers; whether true or false.

The following Persons have lands here, besides those already mentioned, Samuel Hunton Esq; Thomas Draper Bever, Gent; Mr. George Brownsworth; Benjamin Rutland; Samuel Pullin; Henry Shuttleworth; Joseph Hall; Y. Burges; George Carter, &c.

Green-street is a Hamlet in this parish, about a mile north-west from the Church. Here is a feat that formerly belonged to Sir Francis Holcroft, afterwards to the Garrard Family, descended from those of Langford in Norfolk. Sir Thomas Garrard Bart. had two sons, Jacob, and Nicolas; and Mary, wife of Samuel Kerridge of Shelley-hall in Suffolk Esq; On Sir Jacob's death without male issue, his brother Sir Nicolas succeeded him in title and estate. He married Cecily, daughter of Sir Edwin Steed of Kent; but having no issue, this feat and the chief of his estates descended to Sir Jacob-Garrard Downing Bart [G]. Sir Nicolas dyed 12 March 1727-8.

Charities.

Robert Rampston Esq; gave one pound a year to this parish, payable out of Stone-hall in Little Canfield. [See in the other Volume, p. 464.]

Sir Richard Higham, or William Higham Esq; gave the rent of two acres of marsh-land in Berking, for bread to the poor of this parish, and the remainder for buying of coals; to be distributed at the discretion of the heirs of his family.

Sir John Hart, who lived in this parish, gave 4 l. a year, payable out of some lands here; to be distributed amongst the poor, at the discretion of the minister and church-wardens.

Giles Breame Esq; who dyed 31 March 1621, built an Hospital, or Alms-house here, for six poor men, three out of this parish, and three out of Bottisham in Cambridgeshire; and endowed it with an estate in Braintree and Felsted; consisting then of seven closes; three called Sherwell-close, White-Reding, Stoke-Reding; three others called Wood-fields, and the other Prattcroft; containing six score acres, some time parcel of Naylinghurst-hall.

Jane Nevill, Countess of Westmoreland, 18 July 1641, did enfeof Sir Francis Holcroft of Greenstreet, and others, in two parcels of land in Middlemarsh in West-Ham, containing two acres and a half each; the rent to be paid on Lady-day and Michaelmas by even payments; and directed, that out of it, 10 s. should be paid for preaching a sermon in this Church on St. John Baptist's day; and the like sum for another sermon on St. John the Evangelist's day; 2 s. 6 d. to the Clerk, each time: 5 s. a year for repairing the monument of her husband Edmund Nevill Lord Latimer Earl of Westmoreland, in the Chancel: the rest to the Poor.

The Church, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen, is of one pace with the Chancel, and tyled. The walls are of an extraordinary thickness on each side of the Chancel; and on the north and south are arches in the walls, of indented wreath-work, so that here seem to have been two aisles, though now demolished. In the Tower are three Bells.

This Church was given by John de Lancaster, as above mentioned, to the Abbey of Stratford Langthorn; and they presented to it a while as a Rectory. But, upon their complaint and representation to Ralph de Baldock, Bishop of London, that they were reduced to want, on account of their lands being frequently over flowed, &c. the Rectory, or great Tithes, were appropriated to them, 9 April 1309; and a Vicarage ordained and endowed, of which the Bishop reserved the collation to himself and successors; and accordingly it hath continued ever since in the gift of the Bishops of London (l).

After the suppression of Monasteries, the great Tithes were granted by K. Henry VIII. in 1544, to Richard Breame Esq; and his heirs (m), as above-mentioned. He dyed possessed of them 6 October 1546; as did his son—Edward 1 Janu. 1558, and was succeeded by his brother—Arthur (n). His son—Giles, Breame sold this Rectory to

William Heigham, or Higham, Esq; third son of Sir Clement Higham of Barrow-hall in Suffolk (o), one of the Privy Council to Qu. Mary, and constituted chief Baron of the Exchequer in 1557. He resided here in a capital messuage (p), and dyed 10 July 1620, aged 75 years; and is interred in the Chancel of this Church, with his wife Anne, one of the daughters and coheirs of Richard Stonely Esq; one of the Tellers of the Exchequer. They had 5 sons, Richard, Clement, Daniel, William, and Joseph; and 3 daughters, Anne, wife of William Dutton, Dorothy of Samuel Plume of Gr. Yeldham, and another Dorothy.—Richard, the eldest son, was knighted, and had two wives, 1. Elizabeth, daughter of James Harvey of Vange Esq; by whom he had James, and Anne, who both dyed young; and Elizabeth. 2. Mary daughter of John Colt of Rickmansworth was his second wife, and by her he had, Francis, Mary, and Anne.—Francis Higham Esq; the son, and heir, left an only daughter and heiress,

Mary, that brought this estate to her husband, Robert Bendish, of Norwich Esq; they had two sons, Higham, and Arthur; and Mary, that dyed unmarried.—Higham Bendish Esq; the (l) Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 301.

1 Eliz. 55.

(o) Visitation of Suffolk, p. 33. 88.

(m) Lett. pat. 36 Hen. VIII.

(n) Inquis. 1 Edw. VI. nu. 62. and

(p) Inquis. 18 Jaco. March. 20.

[G] Arms of Garrard. Azure, two Lions rampant gardant combatant, argent.

eldest son, departed this life 4 May 1723, leaving one son, Higham; and three daughters, Mary; Anne, wife of John Knap Esq; that dyed 15 August 1746, and Cæcilia.—Higham Bendish Esq; married Frances, eldest daughter of Sir John Wrottesley Bart. but had no issue. He dyed 4 Septemb. 1746 [H].

About a year ago this estate was purchased by Mr. Charles Hitch.

This parish is rated to the Land-tax at 2137 l.

Richard Welton, D. D.	13 Septemb. 1710,	upon Robins's	cess.	} Bishop of London,
Henry Topping,	1716,	upon Welton's	depriv.
Lewis Desbordes, M. A.	1728,	upon Topping's	cess.
John Vade, M. A.	2 April 1733,	upon Desbordes's	d. . .
Jos. Simms, M. A.	9 Janu. 1756,	upon Vade's	d. . .

4. W E S T H A M

lies in the great road leading to London from this County, and extends to Bow-bridge. As it is so near the Metropolis, and hath the great conveniency of water-carriage from the Thames, it is the residence of several considerable Merchants, Dealers, and industrious Artifts.

This populous Parish is divided into four Wards, viz. 1. Church-street Ward. 2. Stratford Langthorn's. 3. Plaistow-Ward. 4. Upton-Ward.

The owners of this parish, in Edward the Confessor's reign, were, Alestan, and Leured, two freemen: At the time of the general survey they were held by Robert Gernon, and Ralph Peverell [I].

There are in this Parish the following Maners, or reputed Maners. 1. The Maners of West-Ham, and East-West-Ham. 2. . . . That of Wood-Grange. 3. . . . That of Playz. 4. The Maner of West-ham-Burnels. 5. . . . That of Bretts. 6. The Maner of Chobhams. To which add the Abbey of Stratford-Langthorn.

1. The Maner of WESTHAM, &c.

The Maners of West-Ham, East-West-Ham, Wood-Grange, and Plaiz, are the part that belonged to Robert Gernon. He is mentioned in the foregoing parish of East-Ham, and more fully under Stansted, in the other Volume, p. 576, 577, which was the Head of his Barony. —William, his son, dropt the surname of Gernon, and took that of Montfichet, from the Mount at Stansted, on which his Castle stood.

[H] Arms of Higham. Sable, a fesse counter componé or and azure, between 3 horses heads, argent: a crescent for difference. Crest. Out of a crown, or, a lion's head couped, gules.

[I] Terra Roberti Grenonis. Hund' de Beventreu. Hame tenet Robertus in dominio, quod tenuit Alestanus Liber homo, Tempore Regis Edwardi, pro Manerio & pro viii hidis & xxx acris. Et hoc Manerium Willielmus Rex Ranulfo Piperello, et Roberto Grenoni. Tunc v carucate in dominio, modo iv. Tunc viii carucate hominum, modo xii. Tunc xxxii villani, modo xlviii. Tunc xvi bordarii, modo lxxx, i minus. Semper iii servi. Silva c porcis. lx acre prati. ix molendina tunc, modo viii. Tunc valuit xvi libras, et quando receperunt xii libras, modo valet xxiv libras. . . . Et de hoc Manerio habet Ranulfus Piperellus medietatem. Et in dominio Roberti recepit Ranulfus i runcinum, et modo similiter ibi est. Tunc i vacca, modo ix animalia. Tunc vi oves, modo xii. Tunc v porci, modo xi. De hoc Manerio tenet Osbernus de Roberto xxx acras, et dimidium carucatæ, et valuit x solidos in eodem pretio.

Hame tenet Robertus in dominio, quod tenuit Leuredus Liber homo, T. R. E. pro manerio & pro vii hidis. Semper iii carucate in dominio. Tunc vii carucate hominum, modo xii. Tunc xxxiv villani, modo xxxviii. Tunc iii bordarii, modo xxvi. Tunc xix servi, modo iii. Silva dcc por-

He founded the Abbey of Stratford, and endowed it with his whole Lordship of Hamme, in arable and pasture lands, meadows, marshes, waters, &c. This grant comprehended the Maners of West-Ham, and Wood-Grange: for the Maners of East-West-ham, and Playz, continued in his posterity, till John de Lancaster granted them to the same Abbey, with that of East-Ham, as is shewn under East-Ham.

Part of Gernon's estate, dismembred from the rest, formed the Maners of EAST-HAM and WEST-HAM-BURNELS; of which we shall give a short account, after having traced the Abbey's estates down to the present time.

The Abbey continued possessed of the Maners of West-Ham, East-West-Ham, Wood-Grange, and Playz, till their dissolution. At which time the lands and demesnes belonging to the Maner of West-ham contained about 1400 acres, besides several parcels not numbred: and the rents of assise were 78 l. 8 s. Wood-Grange was then lett for 13 l. 11 s. 0 d. The rents of assise of East-West-Ham maner were 4 l. 8 s. 0 d. Those of Playz, the same. And the perquisites of Courts were valued in each, at 4 s. 10 d.

The Maner of WEST-HAM hath continued in the Crown ever since the suppression. It was part of the Dowry of Catharine of Portugal, Queen of K. Charles II. and from thence called the Queen's Maner. She dyed in 1705. But, before her decease, K. William had granted a 99 years Lease of it to the Hon. George Booth, at a reserved Rent, which was remitted, or released, afterwards. G. Booth granted a 69 years lease, of part of the demesnes, and a farm called Hamfrith [or Wood-grange,] in this parish, com-cis, l acre prati. Tunc viii animalia, modo xv. Tunc xx porci, modo xxxiv. modo cc oves, xx minus. modo iv runcini, & iii vasa apium. Et huic terre addite sunt iii virgate, Tempore Regis Willielmi, quas tenuit Edwinus Liber Presbiter T. R. E. Tunc i carucata, modo dimidium, modo ii bordarii. Silva x porcis, ix acre prati. Et hoc manerium valuit T. R. E. x libras, et quando recepit vii libras, modo xviii libras. Et huic manerio adjacent xxx acre, quas tenet i sochemannus. De hoc manerio tenet Ilgerus xl acras, & ii bordarios, et i carucatam, et valuit xv solidos in eodem pretio.

Terra Ranulfi Piperelli. Hund' de Beuentreu. Hame tenet Ranulfus in dominio, quod tenuit Alestanus Liber homo T. R. E. pro manerio & pro viii hidis, & xxx acris. Et hoc Manerium dedit Willielmus Rex Ranulfo Piperello, & Roberto Grenoni. Tunc v carucate in dominio, modo iv. Tunc viii carucate hominum, modo xii. Tunc xxxii villani, modo xlviii. Tunc xvi bordarii, modo lxxx, i minus. Semper iii servi. Silva c porcis. lx acre prati. Tunc ix molendina, modo viii. Tunc i runcinus, i vacca, iii porci; modo ii runcini, ii pulli, ii vacce cum vitulis, xx porci, lx oves. Tunc valuit xvi libras, & quando recepit xii libras, modo valet xxiv libras. Et de hoc manerio habet Robertus Grenoni medietatem. Lib. Domest. fol. 64. b. 65. a Tit. 32. Et fol. 72. b. Tit. 34.

mencing

mening 26 June 1733, at the yearly rent of 13*l.* 5*s.* 8*d.* to John Grigsby, and Abraham Crop, in trust for Sir John Blount; and of part of this maner, commencing 30 Septemb. 1733, at a pepper-corn rent. He also granted a lease of the Fines of Stratford Ward, with power to hold a Court Baron to collect the same: the remainder of which is in Earl Tilney. But he reserved to himself, and successors in the lease, the other quit-rents and royalties.

The other parts of this Maner passed from G. Booth to Mrs. and Azariah Penny, then to Smart Esq; and Mr. Brown. This last sold all his interest in them to John Henniker Esq; who lives here in a good House, which he purchased of Mrs. Crop, daughter of Mr. Benjamin Tudman: whose mother married to her second husband Sir John Blount Bart. one of the South-Sea Directors in 1720. John Henniker Esq; served the office of High-Sheriff for this County in 1758, and is one of the Burgesses in the present Parliament for Sudbury. He hath two sons, John; and Major; and one daughter, Ann-Elizabeth; by his wife Ann, the eldest of the two daughters of Sir John Major, of Worlingworth-hall in Suffolk, member of parliament for Scarborough; to whom the King granted, 8 July 1765, the dignity of a Baronet, and to the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten; and, in default of such issue, to his son-in-law John Henniker Esq; and the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten. Besides the estates here and at Eastham, Mr. Henniker has other considerable estates in this county [K]. His father was an eminent Merchant in London, and dying in 1749, was buried at West-ham. The Family is originally of Kent.

The Maner of PLAYZ.

Took its name from Hugh de Playz, who married Philippa, third sister and coheir of the last Richard de Montfichet: And Plaistow is most probably derived from the same original.

The mansion-house is about half a mile east north-east from the Church.

After the suppression of Stratford-Abbey, to which this Maner belonged, it was granted by K. Edward VI. in 1553, with the maner of EAST-WEST-HAM, to Sir Roger Cholmley, and his heirs; to hold of the King in ca. by the 40th part of a knight's-fee (q). His coheirs, Elizabeth, wife of Christopher Kenne Esq; and John Russell Esq; enjoyed it after him (r).

Roger Beckwith, who dyed 5 Septemb. 1586. held a moiety and purparty of this maner of Playes. His sisters and coheirs were,

Frances, wife of George Harvey, and Henry Slingsby (s), [see under East-Ham.] From the Family of Carew, alias Harvey, Mildmay, of Marks, it passed to the Smyth Family of Upton, together with the Maner of East-ham-Burnels, and that of

WESTHAM-BURNELS

Of which I proceed to give some account.

It took the additional distinction of Burnel, from the Burnels mentioned under the foregoing parish of East-Ham.

From them it passed to Handlo; Lovel; Hungerford; Beckwith; Harvey, and Mildmay, of Marks.

Carew Mildmay Esq; sold this maner, with those of Playz, and East-Ham Burnels, to Henry Edwards Esq; who sold them again to John Gore Esq; by whom they were conveyed to

Sir John Blount Bart. one of the South-sea Directors. Being seized by the South-sea Company, this was purchased by Sir Robert Smyth of Upton in this parish, Bart. who thereby became possessed of the Maners of East-ham Burnels, West-ham Burnels, East West Ham, and Playz. From him they descended to his heirs and successors, mentioned under East-Ham.

But a moiety of them belongs to Stephen Comyns Esq;

The Maner of BRETTs.

We hear nothing of this maner till the reign of K. Edward IV. Then John Ferrers Esq; who dyed 5 May 1478, held the maner of Brettys in Easthamme. The reversion of it was in Edward Earl of Warwick, heir of George Plantagenet, late Duke of Clarence (t). But the said Edward being executed for treason, 28 Nov. 1499, all his estates became forfeited to the Crown.

In 1519 K. Henry VIII. settled this maner on his Queen, Catharine of Arragon (u).

On the 8th of May 1576, Qu. Elizabeth granted it to Peter Gray, and Edward Gray.—The same year, she granted it to Sir Thomas Henneage (w). But, 10 June 1583, he obtained a licence to alienate this maner with appertinances, and 6 messuages, 6 tofts, 6 gardens, 60 acres of arable, 100 of meadow, 100 of marsh, and 40*s.* rent to

Roger Townshend Esq; who, 2 March following, sold them again to Edward de Vere, Earl of Oxford (x). He dispersed and wasted the best part of his noble

(q) Lett. pat. 7 Edw. VI.
18 Edw. IV.
part ii. p. 35, 36.

(r) Book of Pardons, part i. p. 96, 100.

(u) Lett. pat. 11 Hen. VIII.

(w) Lett. pat. 18 Eliza.

(s) Inquis. 28 Eliz.

(t) Inquis.

(x) Book of Alienations,

[K] The maner of Newton-hall in Dunmow, with the farms of Newton-hall, Tanners, and Birds; and Newland-farm, partly — Veners, a farm in Great-Easton. — The maner of Garnets and Marks, with the farms of Great and Little Garnets, Eves, and Harpers, in High-Easter. — The maner of Fryers, in Great and Little Sandford. — Fanns, a farm in Great Bardfield. — Stubbing-hall in Halli-field near Waltham Holy-cross. — Whitebeards, a farm in Stapleford-Tany. — Fletchers, and Nightingales, two farms in Langdon-hills. — Landwick, a large farm, and Oldbury and Jaques, two other farms, in Great and Little Wakering. — And Barons, a farm in Great Stambridge.

Arms of Henniker. Gules, a chevron charged with 3 estoiles, argent, 2 crescents in chief, and an escallop shell in base, azure. Crest. An escallop-shell, or, charged with an estoile gules. He quarters the Arms of Major, which are azure, 3 Corinthian fluted pillars with balls, or.

inheritance, as is observed in the other Volume, p. 293. But he remained possessed of this estate at the time of his decease in 1604 (y). His widow, in order to repurchase Hedingham-castle, the ancient seat of the De Vere Family, obtained an Act of parliament in 1609, to sell this maner of Bretts, and farm at Plaistow, about 200 l. a year.

Henry Woollaston dyed 22 Novemb. 1619, possessed of them; leaving — Henry, his son and heir aged 30 years (z).

This estate belongs now to Francis Beauchamp Esq; of Cornwall.

The reputed MANER of CHABHAMS, or COBHAMS,

Seems to be derived both from Peverell's and Gernon's Maners.

Sir Adam Fraunceys who dyed in 1417, held the maner of Chabhams of Hugh Burnel, and of the Abbot of Stratford; — Agnes, wife of Sir William Porter, and Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Charleton, were his daughters and co-heirs (a) Margaret his widow, which had the third part of this maner in dower, dyed in 1444 (b).

Agnes, wife of Sir William Porter, held the same till her decease in 1461.

Sir Thomas Charleton, her sister Elizabeth's son, was her heir (c). He not only possessed this estate, but also Rokeholt-hall, and lands in Little Badow, and Writtle. [See in the other volume, p. 25 and 66.] He dyed in 1465. His son — Sir Richard Charleton, was then 15 years old (d). He being attainted for high-treason, on account of being one of K. Richard the Third's adherents, and his estates thereupon becoming forfeited to the crown, K. Henry VII. granted them, 11 March, 1487, to

Sir John Rysley: who dying without issue, 13 March 1512, they seem to have escheated again to the Crown (e). On the 28th of February 1513, K. Henry VIII. granted them to

William Compton Esq; and the heirs male of his body (f). He dyed 30 June 1528, being then a knight: his son — Peter Compton was but 7 years old (g). Those greedy hunters after concealed lands, Tipper and Dawe, procured a grant of them in 1589. And, 31 Janu. 1596, Qu. Elizabeth granted the reversion of this to

Thomas Spencer, and Robert Atkinson (h). They had license, 2 March following, to alienate this maner, and 10 messuages, 6 tofts, 10 gardens, 100 acres of arable, 100 of meadow, 100 of pasture, 2 of wood, 20 of furze and heath, and 3 l. rent to Richard Wiseman, and his heirs (i). He dyed 11 November 1618, possessed of the maner of Cobhams, alias Chobhams, or Chebhams; — Sir Robert his son and heir, was thirty years old. [See in the other volume, p. 479.] It belonged afterwards to Mr. Hyatt; and now to — Mrs. Jane Hyatt. This maner pays a fee-farm rent to the maner of West-ham.

The mansion house of Chobhams is on the left side of the road leading from Stratford to Low Leyton; about a mile north-west from this Church.

STRATFORD, i. e. the Street at the Ford, is a very large and considerable Hamlet in this Parish. 'Tis distinguish'd by the name of Stratford Langthorn, or Langton [L], from the other adjoining Stratford at Bow, or Bogh, lying on the west side of Bow-bridge, and in the county Middlesex.

PLAISTOW Hamlet lies south of the Church: And UPTON, north of the same.

Maryland Point is a cluster of Houses near Stratford: The first of them were erected by a Merchant, who had got a fortune in that Colony, from whence they took their name.

STRATFORD-ABBEY.

The site and remains of this once considerable Monastery are about half a mile south south-west from this Church.

It was founded either in the year 1134, or 1135 [M], by William de Montfichet, for Monks of the Cistercian order, and dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and All Saints.

He endowed it with all his Lordship here, as just mentioned under the maner of West-ham; and also with eleven acres of meadow, and two mills: and his wood of Bocherst in Woodford; and the tithe of his panage (k). The demesnes of the Abbey in this parish comprehended near 1500 acres. And amongst them was Sudbury, given them by K. John (l). The maners of West-ham, Wood Grange, East-West-ham, and Playz, were theirs. They had also the Maners of East-ham; of Beringers, and Rye-house, in Little Ilford and Berking; of Low-Leyton; of Bumpsted in Aveley and Upminster; of Great Burghsted, Challeweden, Whites, and Gurneys; of Buckwins, in Buttesbury; of Cowbridge, in Mountney's ing; of Calircot's, or Caldecots, in South-Weald; of Brygginge, in Chaldwell. And 2 tenements called Ose, and Warrewyke in Coringham; Clerkynwyke, or the Abbots marsh, in Hadleigh castle; Grangewyke marsh, in Little Thurrock; lands in Chigwell, East and West Tilbury, &c. [N]. The advowson of Little Ilford rectory; the rectory of East-ham; the (y) Inquis. 2 Jaco. Sept. 27.

Hen. VI. (c) Inquis. 1 Edw. IV.

(f) Lett. pat. 4 Hen. VIII.

Alienations, part ii. p. 66.

(z) Inquis. 17 Jaco.

(d) Inquis. 5 Edw. IV.

(g) Inquis. 20 Hen. VIII.

(k) Monastic Anglic. vol. i. p. 883.

(a) Inquis. 5 Hen. V.

(b) Inquis. 23

(e) Inquis. 4 Hen. VIII. Sept. 24,

(h) Lett. pat. 39 Eliz.

(i) Book of

(l) Brev. 23 Edw. I. Mich.

[L] It took the additional name of Langthorn, either from some remarkable Long Thorn, or the length of the Thorns and under-wood in this part of the Forest. Langton might be from the Length of the Town, or Street here.

[M] It must have been in one of those years, and not in 1140, as Leland, Speed, and Weever imagined: for William Corbois, Archbishop of Canterbury, who is mentioned in the founder's charter, dyed in 1136.

[N] The chief of their benefactors were as follows. Luke, son of Martin, who gave them some land here; Rectories, rectories, and advowsons of the vicarages of Westham, of Great Burghsted, of Layton, and of Great Maplested, in this county.—Some houses in Clement's-Lane, and elsewhere, in London [O].—The maner of Lewisham, and a messuage and lands at Wolwich in Kent.—In the forest of Melkesham in Wiltshire, 472 acres.—Common of pasture in Wansted.—Free-warren in most of the parishes above-mentioned, and in Woodford, Dunton, Est-Horndon, &c. [P]. A market, and two fairs, at Billerica (m).—Pasture for 800 sheep; and Liberties, in Windsor-forest (n).

This House being situated low amongst the marshes, was liable at first to frequent inundations, so that the monks were obliged to remove to a cell of theirs at Great Burghsted; where they continued till K. Richard, the Second, we suppose, caused their damages to be repaired, and brought them back to Stratford [Q].

The Abbot had summons to Parliament in 1307 (o).

At the suppression, this Abbey was valued at 511l. 16s. 3d. per ann. according to Dugdale, and at 573l. 15s. 6d. ob. q. according to Speed. To whom the several revenues belonging to it were granted, is shewn under the respective parishes where they lay.

As to the Abbey itself, K. Henry VIII. in 1538, gave the house and site of this monastery, with the church, belfrey, and church-yard, and several parcels of ground thereto belonging, and Richard's Chapel, now unknown [R], to

Peter Meutas, or Meautis, Esq; and Joane his wife, and their heirs male (p). This Peter's grandfather was John Meautis, a native of Normandy; who came into England with K. Henry VII. and was made by him his secretary for the French tongue. — Thomas Meautis his son and heir had, by Elizabeth his wife, daughter of . . . Foxley, of Northamptonshire — Peter Meautis of Westham Esq; just now mentioned; He was Embassador from K. Henry VIII. to the court of France, and knighted. At the time of his death, which happened at Dieppe, 8 September 1562, he held the house and site of this monastery, ten messuages, ten tofts, four water-mills, ten gardens, 300 acres of arable, 200 of meadow, 100 of pasture, 50 of wood, 300 of marsh, 40 called red ground, wet ground, and ozier-hopps, one fishery from the mouth of the river Lee, and 40s. rent. Part of the wall, which keeps out the Thames, is still called Meautys his Wall. He left two sons, Henry and Hercules, and one daughter, Frances, wife of Henry Howard, Viscount Bindon. . . . Hercules, the second son, married Philippa daughter of Richard Cook of Gidding-hall Esq; by whom he had Thomas; Frances, wife of . . . Shute; and Jane, married, first, to William Cornwallis, ancestor of the present Earl Cornwallis, afterwards to Sir Nathaniel Bacon of Culford, K. B. Thomas, the son, afterwards knighted, was secretary to Francis Bacon Lord Verulam, and seated at Gorbambury. He married Anne, eldest daughter of Sir Nathaniel Bacon, just now mentioned, remarried to Sir Harbottle Grimston Bart.

Henry Meautis Esq; of West-ham, the elder brother of Hercules, married Anne, daughter of John Jermy of Suffolk Esq; and had by her Thomas, Henry, Peter; and Margaret. — Thomas, the eldest son, by Elizabeth his wife, daughter of Sir Henry Conyngsby of North-Mims, had five sons, and three daughters. — Henry Meautis Esq; the eldest son, married Elizabeth daughter of Sir William Glover, and had by her — Henry, and Anne [S].

Either this last Henry, or his father, sold the site of the Abbey, with appertenances, to John Nutts Esq; It belonged afterwards to Peter Knight Esq; and now to — Newman Knight, and others; being divided among several proprietors.

Some of the considerable PRIVILEGES belonging to the Abbey, were obtained, or purchased, by Sir Thomas Cambell, of Clay-hall in Berking. His descendent, Sir Harry Cambell, procured a confirmation of them, by an Inspecimus of K. William and Qu. Mary, 15 Nov. 1689. By which he was to enjoy the same liberties, customs, franchises, profits, emoluments, &c. as any Abbot of Stratford Langthorn at any time enjoyed. Namely, to take in Windsor-forest thorns, or brush-wood, where most convenient, and as much as would be necessary for the use of their House [T]; To cut down, and

(m) Cart. 37 Hen. III. m. 12. and 13 Edw. I. n. 42. Pat. 16 Edw. IV. p. 2. and 19 Edw. IV. m. 29. (n) Bp. Tanner's Notitia Mon. fol. p. 126. (o) MSS. H. Wanley. (p) Lett. pat. 30 Hen. VIII.

Sibill, wife of Norman; Geoffrey de Sto Elegio; William, son of Elias, and Emma, his wife, gave them the grange of Ledehall; Jordan, and Ruald, the land of Thomeley; the monks of Abbington, the grange of Suineley; Geoffrey de Revill, Mountney's-ing; Matthew Gernun, Cowbridge; William son of Alice, land at Takeley; Richard de Munfichet, lands at Fuilmere; William de Ane, lands at Okingdon; Geoffrey de Sto Elegio, &c. their possessions in London; Gilbert de Munfichet, the Churches of West-ham, and Leve; Sibill, wife of Norman, Greneford Church, &c. Monast. Ang. vol. i p. 883.

[O] The Abbot's inn in St. Clement's Lane was granted by K. Henry VIII. 10 May 1543, to Sir Robert Southwell. Pat. 35 Hen. VIII.

[P] 'Ste Marie de Stratford Ecclesia h'et boscum vocat' Bokhurste infra forestam ad assartandum, & liberam warrenam in dominicis terris de West-hamme, Leyton, Chykewel, Wodeford, Ginges Munteyn, Ginges Radi, Dunton, East-horndone, Caldwell, parva Thurrock, magna Burgestede, Ginges Landry, & Ginges Joyberd, com. Etez, quatenus sint infra metas foreste, & locum vocat' Corpechum apud Leyton ad Parcum faciend', vel asser-

'tare, vel deafforestare.' Hist of the Forest of Essex, p. 67.

[Q] Such is the account given by Leland. 'This house first sett amonge the low marshes, was after, with forefludes defacyd, and remeid to a celle or graunge longinge to it caulld Burgestede, in Essex, a mile from Billerica. These Monks remained at Burgestede untill entrete was made that they might have sum helpe otherwyse. Then one of Richards Kings of England tooke the ground and Abbay of Strateforde into his protection, and reedifenge it, brought the foresayd Monks agayne to Stratford, where amonge the marshes they re-inhabytid.' Itinerar. vol. vii. p. 9.

[R] It seems to have been a Chapel for a private Altar, or burying place within the Church, perhaps for Richard Montfichet.

[S] Arms of Meautis. Azure, an unicorn rampant, or, spotted ermine.

[T] Quod Brueram in foresta de Wyndlesfores capiant eam ubi commodius eis fuerit, quantum necesse habuerint ad usus Domus sue. Carta Ric. I. exemplified in that Inspecimus.

carry away, wood or timber out of their woods in the Forest of Essex: Pasture for 800 sheep, reckoning by the greater hundred, between the Frith or Wood-grange, and Waltham-stow: To enjoy the grange or maner of Wood-grange, with all its rights and members; 60 acres of wood and under-wood belonging to that Grange; and 10 acres in Highams-mead: All the Tithes of grain and hay in Stratford Langthorne, belonging to the Rectory of West-Ham; together with the Tithes of Chobhams [V]: Free-warren in West-ham; and Common of pasture in the wastes and all commonable places within the Forest, for all commonable beasts, except in the fence month; and to cut down pollard-trees. Sir Harry Cambell dying in 1699, was succeeded in the maner of Wood-grange, and his other estates, by his only daughter

Anne, wife of Thomas Price Esq; Their son—Cambell Price Esq; sold this to

Mr. John Pickering of London: and it belongs now to—Miss Pickering: with the Tithes above said.

A Mill here, called St. Thomas's Mill, belonged to the Hospital of St. Thomas of Acons in London, from whence it took its name.

An Estate at Plaistow, of about 150 l. a year, belongs to an Hospital at Egham in Surrey; which, as well as a School there, were founded by Henry Strode of London, merchant. The Coopers company are trustees.

In the extremities of this Parish is the famous Bow-Bridge, over the river Ley which divides this County from Middlesex. It received the name of Bow, or arched, Bridge, because it was the first arched Stone Bridge, at least in this County.

The occasion of its being built is thus related. The ancient Road from this County to London was by Old Ford; that is, through the Ford there, [V] The words of the Record are.—Ac omnes illas Decimas granorum & feni Rectorie de West-ham pertinen' ac crescen' provenien' sive renovan' e Stratford Langthorne, una cum Decimis de Chopham alias Chobhams ex parte boreali regie vie ibidem usque Hamfrith; Et a Stratford Langthorne pred' ex parte australi regie vie usque partem borealem de Green-freet & Stratford Langthorne pred' una cum Decimis de Westney usque Ecclesiam parochialem de West-ham; Et ab inde usque Upton-crosse: Et sic per Ponteney usque finem australem vie regie vocat' Green-Lane, cum eorum pertinentiis universis. . . . Inspeximus Dat. apud Westm. 15 die Novemb. anno regni Gulielmi & Marie primo.

[W] The account given by J. Stow, is as follows. "This Matilde, when she saw the way to be dangerous for them that travailed by the Old Foord over the river of Lue (for she herselfe had been well washed in the water) caused 2 stone bridges to be builded. Of the which, one was situated over Lue at the head of the towne of Stratford, now called Bow, because the Bridgewas arched like a Bow, a rare piece of work, for before the time the like had never beene seen in England. The other over the little brooke commonly called Chavelsebridge. She made the Kings high way of gravell betweene the two Bridges."—Then he gives an account of her giving the maners and mill above-mentioned, and of the Abbot of Stratford's taking upon himself, in consideration of them, the repairs of the Bridges and causeway. . . . "At length he laid the charge upon one Hugh Pratt, who lived near the Bridges and causeway, allowing him certain loaves of bread daily. And by the alms of passengers, he kept them in due repair; as did his son William after him: who, by the assistance of Robert Passelewe, Ch. Justice in the time of K. Henry III, obtained these tolls; of every cart carrying corn, wood, coal, &c. one penny; of one carrying tase, two pence; and of one carrying a dead Jew, eight pence:

without a Bridge. But that passage being difficult and dangerous; and many persons losing their lives, or being thoroughly wetted: which happened to be the case of Maud, Queen consort of K. Henry I: she turned the Road from Old Ford to the place where it now is, between Stratford-Bow and West-Ham; and caused the Bridges and Causeways to be built and made at her own charge. And for the keeping of them in repair, she gave to the Abbess of Berking certain Maners, and a mill called Wiggon-mill. These maners and mill the Abbot of Stratford purchased afterwards of the Abbess of Berking, taking upon himself, in consideration of them, the repairs and maintenance of the Bridges, and Causeway [W]. But neglecting duly to keep them up, and wanting to throw the charge again upon the Abbess of Berking; after a Tryal between them, in February 1315, the Abbot of Stratford agreed, for himself and successors, to build, make, repair, and sustain, the said Bridges and Causeways for ever. And for this agreement the Abbess gave the Abbot 200 l. in silver [X].

The Tenants of the Abbey's Lands seemed, in the last century, to have been unwilling to stand to this agreement. For, in 1691, an information was brought in the King's bench against Buckeridge, and others, for not repairing of an Highway ratione Tenurae, [by reason of their holding, or tenure] between Stratford and Bow. It was tried at the Bar by an Essex Jury. The evidence for the King was, that Maud the Empress gave certain lands to the Abbess of Barking to repair this way: that the Abbess sold these lands to the Abbot of Stratford, who by the consent of his Convent charged all his lands for repair of the high way, and thus it stood at the Dissolution. Then all the lands of the Abbot of Stratford being vested in the Crown, were granted and put up a bar with locks on Lockkebreggs. But Philip Basset, and the Abbot of Waltham, having broke the Bar rather than pay the toll, the Bridges and causeway remained unrepaired. In the mean time, Eleanor Queen of K. Henry III. caused them to be mended at her own charge, by William the keeper of her Chapel; and William de Carleton kept them afterwards in repair, till the agreement between the Abbess and Abbot above mentioned.—Stow's Annals, ed. 1631. p. 139.—Those whom curiosity or necessity may induce to look further into this affair, will be pleased to consult, Claus. 35. & 37 Hen. III. m. 1. & 14. Claus. 9 Edw. II. m. 7. Inquis. 31 Edw. I. Placita 6 Edw. I. 6 Edw. II. 27 Edw. III. Pat. 40 Hen. III. m. 12. 11 Edw. II.

[X]—Facta est concordia inter p'dcos Abbatissam & Abbatem sub hac forma, scil'. quod p'dci Abbas, & Conventus suus, concesserunt se & successores suos & Ecclesiam suam de Stratford in spiritualib' & temporalib' obligari et teneri, tam Dno Regi Angl' & hered' suis quam p'dce Abbatisse & successor' suis Abbatissis de Berkyngg, ad constructionem, facturam, reparationem, & sustentationem p'dcor' Pontium & Calcetorum faciend' imperpetuum, & ad conservand' p'dcam Abbatissam & successores suos indempnes, & ad acquietand' contra omnes gentes, super reparatione, constructione, sustentatione, factura eorundem Pontium & Calcetorum. Et quod iidem Abbas & Conventus, & dicta Ecclesia sua Conventualis de Stratford, cum omnibus rebus & possessionib' suis in spiritualibus & temporalibus, districtioni & coherfioni Dni Regis, Vicecom' & alior' ministror' Regis quorumcunque, & p'dce Abbatisse, successor' suor' & ballivor' suor' subjaceant, ad perfectionem & sustentationem omnium premissorum quotienscunque necesse fuerit: Ita semper quod dicti Abbas & Conventus, suo periculo sumptib' & expensis suis propriis, Onera constructionis, facture, reparationis & sustentationis, ut predicatur, debent et supportare tenentur, & inde remaneant obligati. . . . Placita 9 Edw. II.

to Sir Peter Mewtis who held them charged for the repairing this Highway; and from him by several mesne assignments they came to the Defendants. This was proved by several witnesses living in other parishes.—The Court was of opinion, that upon this evidence all the lands of the Abbot were liable to repair this Way, and directed the Jury accordingly, who found for the plaintiff.

Charitable Donations.

Given by—Daniel Ingoll, the yearly sum of ten pounds, to be distributed, on the 5th of November, in fewel or firing amongst 20 poor people, 10 of Stratford; 5 in Church-street, and 5 in Plaistow; such as the Minister and Church-wardens shall appoint.

—Richard Pragill, five pounds per annum, to be disposed of at the appointment of the Vestry. He dyed in 1618 [Y].

—Mr. Ward, five pounds a year, likewise at the disposal of the Vestry.

—Mr. Tudor, five pounds per ann. to be distributed half yearly to the Poor of Stratford, half in bread, and half in money.

—Sir Jacob Garrard, the yearly sum of twenty pounds;—out of which 9 l. to put out three parish children out of each ward:—1 l. 12 s. to the Minister, Reader, Clerk, and Sexton, for a Sermon:—3 s. to the Church-wardens of East-Ham, and the like to those of Grace-Church-Street. The overplus, if any, to be distributed to the poor of this parish.

—Nicolas Avenant, merchant-taylor of London, who dyed 1 July 1599, gave five pounds four shillings a year, to be distributed in bread; viz. every Sunday after morning prayer, 2 s. amongst 24 the poorest dwellers in this parish, at the discretion of the Church-wardens, and for performance hereof he gave 6 acres and a rood of land in Witterings marsh in this parish.

—Robert Rook, Esq; five pounds a year for ever to the poor.

—Lady Middleton, five pounds yearly, for putting out a poor child; remainder to be given, at Christmases, in money to the poor: In Plaistow, 1 l. In Church-street, 10 s. In Stratford, 10 s.

—Mr. Shipman, four pounds ten shillings a year, as the Vestry pleases.

—Mr. Speight, the yearly sum of four pounds, also as the Vestry pleases.

—Mr. Davies, four pounds a year, to be laid out in 12 waistcoats for 12 poor women of this parish.

—Richard Fenn, three pounds a year, to be given to the poor in bread every day.

—William Fawcett, four pounds ten shillings in bread and money, on Novemb. 5.—2 l. for a sermon.

—Elizabeth Toppesfield, two pounds ten shillings; for six waistcoats to six poor widows or wives, 6 s. 8 d. a piece: and 10 s. for a sermon.

—Roger Harris, two pounds twelve shillings, to be laid out in sea-coals, in winter, amongst 12 poor people.

—Richard Hales, two pounds to be given at Christmases to the poor of Plaistow.

—Robert Rampston, two pounds, in half-penny loaves, every Sunday in winter.

—Peter Blower, on second Sunday after Christmases-day, to thirty poor people; 12 out of Church-street; 3 out of Upton; 7 out of Stratford; and 8 out of Plaistow [Not said what.]

—Lady Throgmorton, two pounds yearly, to 30 poor widows, 4 d. each.

—Mary Gwillim, one pound ten shillings to six poor widows, 5 s. each yearly for ever.

—Thomas Staples, one pound two shillings at Christmases, to the poor for ever, 6 s. 8 d. in each ward.

—Clement Pragill, a native of this parish, five pounds to the poor, at the Vestry's disposal; and 20 s. a year for keeping in repair the two tombs of the Pragill family, by the Chancel door.

—Nath. Peckover, two pounds, to be given to 20 poorest widows of Stratford-ward for ever, by the Church-wardens and overseers.

—Mr. Winn, ten shillings a piece to ten poor people at Christmases.

—Sir William Humble, two pounds, to be distributed every Sunday in bread.

—Sir Thomas Foote, four pounds, to be distributed by the Church-wardens of Plaistow-ward.

—Mrs. Mary Battailley, ten pounds yearly for ever to the Vicars of West-Ham: To preach a sermon on Good Friday, 30 s. To keep and repair the vault where she lies, 1 l. To teach poor children in Plaistow to read, 2 l. The same for Stratford-ward: To the poor of Plaistow-ward in bread every Sunday, 1 l. To eight poor widows of Plaistow, 2 l. 10 s.

The CHURCH, dedicated to All-Saints, is large; both Church and Chancel having north and south aisles; all tyled. A square Tower at the west end contains 6 Bells.

This Church was given to the Abbey of Stratford, by Gilbert de Montfichet, son of the Founder (q). Afterwards, the Rectory, or great Tithes, were appropriated to this Monastery, and a Vicarage ordained and endowed which continued in their gift till the dissolution.

But, before that, even the small portion belonging to the Vicar, was extorted from him by the Monks, after a tedious suit, in the years 1514, 1515, 1516, first in the Archbishop of Canterbury's court, and afterwards at the Court of Rome: and he was forced to sit down contented with a pension of 39 l. 13 s. 8 d. which did not increase in its value as the Tithes did.

All the Tithes becoming thus vested in the Abbey, they came to the Crown upon the surrender of this House, 18 March 1538. And have been leased out from time to time. At present a moiety of them is held of the Crown, by (q) Monastic. Anglic. Vol I. p. 883.

[Y] The Pragill family had estates in Westham and Dagenham, in 1553. Inq. 8 Eliza. Capt. John Pragill was Governor of Berwick, and General of Qu. Elizabeth's forces in the north. Epitaph in this Church.

the heirs of the late James Smith Esq; and the other moiety by Miss Pickering. [See a little above.]

The Vicar hath very little more, certain, than the said pension of 39 l. 13 s. 8 d. paid out of the Exchequer: but the Parish being very populous, the contributions, and other accidental profits, render this a considerable living. It is in the King's gift.

The several Wards in this parish are rated to the Land-tax as follows. Church-street, and Upton-ward, 2648 l. Playstow-ward, 3922 l. 2 s. 0 d. Stratford Langthorn, 2732 l. 2 s. 0 d.

Charles Vernon, M. A.	13 October 1708,	on Smith's	d.	} The King.
Benjamin Carter, M. A.		1725, on Vernon's cess.
Hugh Wyat, M. A.		1727, on Carter's	d.
James Trail, D. D.	16 March 1762,	on Wyat's	d.
John Warner, M. A.	30 Novem. 1765,	on Trail's refig.

5 LEYTON.

This parish stands by the river Ley, called in Saxon Lygan, and Lygean, from which and the other Saxon word tun, denoting a town, or village, the name seems to be formed; qu. The Town on the river Ley. Unless it should be derived from the British word Lhuch, a lake: for the low lands, or marshes, between this place and the Thames, formed a great Lake, till the water was partly drained, and diverted into several channels, by K. Alfred, in the year 896 (r).

The name of this Parish is otherwise written in records, Leituna, Leintuna, Lochetun, Layghton, Layton, Leighton, Leyton.

That part which is Lowest, near the meadows, is called Low Leyton; and the upper part on the Road to Epping &c. Leyton-stone, most probably from one of the Roman milliary stones placed there.

Here seems to have been a Roman Villa, or some Summer Camp, or Station. For between the maner House of Leyton, and the Canal, where the Garden now is, in digging were found old foundations, with a great many Roman Bricks intermixed with others, and several Medals. And in enlarging the horse-pond, huge foundations were discovered six foot under ground; and a large arched Gate with mouldings, 9 or 10 feet high, and 5 or 6 broad, the top of which was also six foot under ground. The Walls were four foot thick, or more.

A very large Urn, with ashes and bones, was taken up in the Church-yard, pretty deep in making a grave. Several Urns, with ashes in them, have been also found on the south side of Blind lane, near Rokholts, in digging for gravel.

But this place is not the ancient station called Durolitum, or rather Durofitum (s).

In Edward the Confessor's reign, the several owners of the lands in this parish, were Harold, Tofti, Suene Suart, Uluric, Alsi, one Freeman, and four Sochmen. At the time of the Survey, they were holden by Robert son of Corbutio; the Abbot of Westminster; Peter de Valoines; Hugh de Montfort; and Robert Gernon [Z].

As there were then, so there continued to be three Maners in this parish; Namely, 1. The maner of Leyton. 2.—that of Marks. 3. The maner of Ruckholt, or Rokholt.

1. The Maner of LEYTON belonged to Stratford-Abbey; but by whom given doth not appear. Most probably it was

(r) See the Saxon Chronicle, and our other Historians. Stukeley's Account of Richard of Cirencester, p. 45. 82.

[Z] Terra Roberti filii Corbutionis. Hund' de Beuentreu. Leintunam tenet Robertus in dominio, quod tenuit Haroldus, Tempore Regis Edwardi, pro manerio & pro iv hidis & dimidio. Tunc ii carucate in dominio, modo nulla. Semper i carucata hominum. Tunc iii villani, modo v, & i Presbiter. Tunc iv bordarii, modo vi. Tunc iv servi, modo nullus. Silva ccc porcis. xl acre prati. Tunc vii piscature, modo nulla. Tunc i molendinum, modo nullum. Et adhuc possunt restaurari ii carucate. Tunc valuit iv libras, modo xx solidos.—In Leintuna tenet Robertus iii hidas, quas tenebant iv sochemanni, T. R. E. Tunc iv carucate, modo nulla. modo vi villani, & i bordarius. Silva x porcis, xxx acre prati. Dimidium piscature tunc, modo nulla. Tunc valuit lx solidos, modo xx. Et isti sochemanni reddebant T. R. E. consuetudinem ad Havelingas maner' Regis, & modo reddit. Lib. Domeſd. fol. 85. a. Tit. 41.

Terra ſci Petri de Westmonasterio. Hund' de Beuentreu. In Leintuna tenet Radulfus Baignardus de Abbate i hidam, quam tenuit Toftius, T. R. E. Tunc i carucata, modo dimidium. modo v bordarii. xx acre prati. i molendinum. Tunc valuit xxx solidos, modo xl. Ibid. fol. 14. b. Tit. 6.

Terra Petri Valoniensis. Hund' de Beuentreu. Leintunam tenet Petrus in dominio, quod tenuit Suenus Suart pro manerio & pro iii hidis. Semper i carucata in dominio, & i carucata hominum tunc, modo ii. Tunc vii villani, modo x. Semper ii bordarii. Silva xxx porcis. xxiv acre prati. Tunc i mol' modo nullus, qui tempore Regis Willielmi inde ablatus est. Tunc ii piscature, modo nulla. modo i runcinus & xi porci. Tunc valuit xx solidos, & quando recepit non erat ibi preter sola terra, & modo valet xl solidos. Ibid. fol. 78. b. Tit. 36.

Lochetunam tenet Radulfus de Petro, quod tenuit Uluricus liber homo, T. R. E. pro manerio & pro i hida, et xxx acris. Semper i carucata in dominio. modo v bordarii. Silva lxxx porcis. vi acre prati. Tunc valuit x solidos modo xx. Ibid.

Terra Hugonis de Monteforti. Hund' de Beuentreu. Leintunam tenet Hugo in dominio, quod tenuit Alsius, T. R. E. pro manerio & pro iii hidis, & xxx acris. Tunc ii carucate in dominio, modo i. Tunc i carucata hominum, modo i & dimidium. Tunc vi villani, modo i Presbiter, & i villanus. Tunc iv bordarii, modo iii. Tunc ii servi, modo nullus. Silva ccc porcis, xxx acre prati. Tunc lx oves, modo iv porci, & lx oves. Tunc valuit xxx solidos, modo xl. Et una istarum Hidarum reddebat, T. R. E. consuetudinem ad Havelingas manerium Regis, & modo non reddit.—Ibid. fol. 52. b. 53. a. Tit. 27.

Terra Roberti Grenonis. Hund' de Beuentreu. In Leintuna tenet Robertus in dominio dimidium hide, quam tenuit i liber homo T. R. E. Semper dimidium carucate. modo ii bordarii. v. acre prati. Val' x solidos.

In Lochetuna tenet Willielmus Corbun de Roberto xliv acras, quod tenuit i Liber homo T. R. E. Semper dimidium carucate. modo ii bordarii. Silva xx porcis. i acra prati. Val' x solidos. Ibid. fol. 64. b. Tit. 32.

by the heirs of Robert son of Corbutio, or Hugh de Montfort [A].

That Convent had also other benefactions in this parish; For, by license from K. Edward III. in 1331, Edmund Bassett and Roger Samekyne of Hatfield, gave one messuage, 40 acres of arable, 21 of meadow, 25 of pasture, 40 of heath, in Leyton, to the Prior and Convent of Stratford, and their successors for ever, holden of Hugh de Nevill, by the service of the fourth part of a knight's-fee, and yearly payment to him of six pence for one pair of gilt spurs; and to the Abbess of Barking 2 s. and 2 d. of rent seck (t) [B].

At the time of the suppression of Monasteries, the rents of assise of the free and customary tenants amounted to 6 l. 6 s. 0 d. $\frac{3}{4}$. per annum. The maner with all the demesnes and lands thereto belonging, and the Rectory and Tithes, were let for 27 l. 15 s. 0 d. Three crofts of 20 acres, called Cryftmas breche, lett for 4 s. The perquisites of Courts, one year with another, were 0 l. 13 s. 4 d.

On the 9th of June 1545, K. Henry VIII. granted this Maner, and the Rectory and Church, of Leyton, with Cristmas breche, to Thomas Lord Wriothesly Lord Chancellor of England (u). The next day he had licence to alienate it, and the day after sold it, to (w)

Sir Ralph Warren, Lord Mayor of London, who dyed possessed of it, and other estates [C], 11 July 1553; leaving—Richard, his son and heir, eleven years old (x). He departed this life 25 March 1597, and was succeeded by, his sister the lady Joanna's son and heir, Oliver Cromwell of Hinchingsbrooke Esq; then 33 years old (y). He had license, 4 December 1599, to alienate this maner, and 24 messuages, 20 gardens, 20 orchards, 200 acres of arable, 260 of meadow, 420 of pasture, 40 of wood, 300 of heath and furze, to.

Edward Rider (z). This Edward held the maner, and rectory, of Layton, alias Lowe Layton, at the time of his decease 11 July 1608. His son and heir—Edward was then 13 years old (a). From him it came to—Sir William Rider, Kt. Lord Mayor of London in 1600, who built the Upper Chancel. Sir William dyed 30 August, 1611, and left two daughters coheirs; Mary, wife of Sir Tho. Lake, Kt. and Susan, wife of Sir Tho. Cesar, Kt. (b) [D].

The 12th of January 1649 George Swanley captain of a ship, Bernard Ostler, and Robert Abbot became joint purchasers of this Maner and Rectory.

John Smith, of London, merchant, bought Abbot's third part, and by will gave it to the Corporation of Lincoln, as trustees for a charity to the Poor of Bourn in that county; Ostler's third part came to Charles Hopton, who 8 Febr. 1709, sold it to David Gansel Esq; Captain Swanley's part, after the death of his sons William, George, Thomas, John, Joseph, and of his daughters Mary and Barbara, was vested in Martha lady Clutterbuck, Sarah wife of—Lymbry, and Mary of John Hanson.

John Chinnal bought Sarah Lymbry's part, 24 March 1695; Oliver Martin bought lady Clutterbuck's share, 5 Aug. 1696, and sold it to Chinnal, 4 May 1697; Chinnal at the same time purchased Hanson's third part. John Chinnal sold all these parts to David Gansel Esq; June 19, 1703, who continued Lord of the Maner, and Patron of the Vicarage, till his death in February, 1753, when they descended to his son—William Gansel Esq; now a Major general.

The maner-house was purchased of Mr. Gansel, together with a padock and some land, by John Strange Esq; Solicitor General, afterwards knighted, and made Master of the Rolls; who improved that delightful seat with additional buildings.

The part of this parish that belonged to Peter de Valoines at the time of the Survey, was given by his great granddaughter Gunnora to the Nunnery of Haliwell in Middlesex; and confirmed to that House by K. Richard the First's Charter [E]. After the dissolution, K. Henry VIII. in 1540, granted these lands, called Croft, Howfield, Showfield, Les Harpe, and Haliwell, late belonging to Haliwell Priory, to Morgan Philips alias Wolfe (c). His son—Julinus Morgan, alias Wolfe, dyed 27 Octob. 1557.—Henry was his son and heir (d). This estate, we suppose, is now incorporated with others in this parish.

As is also another, that belonged to the Priory of Holy Trinity in London; and was confirm'd to them by K. Henry the Third's charter [F].

The Maner of MARKS.

There are many estates named Marks, probably from Henry de Merk, who was lord of Berdfield, Shortgrave, and Latton, in the time of K. Henry III. The Maner-house here, called Marks-Hall, is an old Building, now only a farm house.

This estate belonged to the Priory of St. Helen's, as appears from the Book of Alienations taken 36 Hen. VIII; 'Marks Maner and mess.' 'called le Marke with appert.' in the parishes of Laiton and Waltham-stow, belonging to the

(t) Inquis. 5 Edw. III.
(x) Inquis. 1 Mar. Sept. 17.
7 Jaco. May 31:
Mar. nu. 32. and Lett. pat. 12 Eliza.

(u) Lett. pat. 37 Hen. VIII.
(y) Inquis. 39 Eliz.
(b) Inquis. 9 Jaco.

(z) Book of Pardons, Part 1. p. 157.
(a) Inquis. 4 and 5 Phil. and

[A] The Abbot, had leave, in 1247, to impark his Wood of Luyton, within the bounds of the Forest of Essex. Pat. 32 Hen. III. rot. 6.

[B] A rent seck, or dry rent, is where a man by deed passeth an estate to another, and reserves to himself and his heirs a certain rent, without any clause of distress in the deed.

[C] He had also Claybury lands in Berking; the maner, and hospital, of Newport; the maner of Great Easton, and advowson of the Church; and Newhall in Asheldham Inquis. 1 Mar. See the other Volume.

[D] Arms of Rider. Azure, 3 crescents, or.

[E] — De dono ejusdem Gonnore [de Valoniis] villam de Luiton, cum omnibus ad ipsam pertinentibus. . . . Monastic. Anglic. Vol. I. p. 531.

[F] — Et similiter terram suam de Leitton, cum libertatibus quas inde habent per cartam prædicti H. regis Primi. Ibid. Vol. II. p. 82.

‘ Priory of St. Helen’s, in London, with all the ‘ mess.’ lands, hereditaments, and meadows in ‘ Walthamstow and Laiton aforesaid, belonging ‘ to it; and the Rectory of Walthamstow with ‘ appurtenances belonging to Christ Church, Lon- ‘ don, and the Vicarage of Walthamstow; sold ‘ to Edmund Witbipol.’

They were granted by K. Henry VIII, in 1544, to Paul, and Edmund Witbipoll, and their heirs; to hold in capite, by the 20th part of a knights fee (e). Paul was a citizen and merchant-taylor of London. He dyed possessed of these, 3 April 1585, and was succeeded by his son and heir—Edmund Witbipole (f). He was afterwards knighted, and on the 7th of April 1601, he and Frances his wife alienated this maner of Marks to James Altham Esq; afterwards created a knight, and constituted one of the Barons of the Exchequer 9 February 1606-7. He dyed 21 February 1616-7, possessed of the maner, farm, lands, &c. called Le Marke in Leyton, and Walthamstowe. His son and heir—Sir James Altham Kt. was then 29 years old (g). At the time of his decease, 15 February 1622, he left his son—Sutton very young; born the 28th of August foregoing (b). And he dying under age, 19 July 1630, his considerable estates, mentioned in the other Volume, p. 60. 488, 489, fell among his two sisters and coheirs: Elizabeth, then ten years old, and Frances nine (i). The eldest was married to Charles Tryon Esq; and the youngest to John Vaughan, Earl of Carberry.

The maner of Marks was afterwards in David Gansel; and now in—William Gansel Esq;

For the other branch of the Altham Family, seated at Latton, see in the other Volume, p. 487. &c.

The Maner of ROKHOLT, took that name from the two Saxon words, hroc, holt, i. e. Rook-wood.

The site of the mansion house is near a mile south from this Church.

The ancientest owners of this maner upon record, after the survey, were the Families of Bumpsted, and Fraunceys.

William, son of Robert de Bumsted Steple, recognized a deed, wherein he had granted his Maner, with the appertenances in Leighton, called Rockolte-ball, to Sir Richard de la Vache, about the year 1284 (k).

In 1360, Philip, son and heir of Robert Bumstede, of Stoke, released to Adam Franceys, citizen of London, and Agnes his wife, and their sons Robert and Adam, his right in this maner of Rokholt-hall (l).—Sir Adam Franceys, who dyed in 1417, held the maner of Rokbolt-ball of Earl Warren. Agnes wife of Sir William Porter, and Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Charlton, were his daughters and co-heirs [G]—Margaret his wife, held this maner in dowry, till her decease in 1444. As did Agnes, wife of Sir William Porter. She dying in 1461, without issue, was succeeded by her sister Elizabeth’s son, Sir Thomas Charlton. He held also this maner of Earl Warren, and dyed in 1465. His son—Sir Richard Charlton was attainted of high Treason, as mentioned above under Chobhams in West-Ham (m). Upon that attainder his estates coming to the Crown, K. Henry VII, on the 11th of March 1487, granted this maner to Sir John Rysley. He dyed without issue 13 March, 1512 (n).

And this maner thereupon reverting to the Crown, K. Henry VIII. 28 Febr. 1513, gave it to

William Compton Esq; afterwards knighted. Upon his decease 30 June 1528, it came to his son—Peter Compton Esq; then but 7 years old (o). He was in wardship to Cardinal Wolsey, and dyed 30 Janu. 1543, before he came of age (p). His grandson—William Compton Esq; (afterwards summoned to Parliament) sold, in 1592, this maner of Ruckehold, alias Ruckeholt, and 7 cottages, 1 dove-house, 7 gardens, 150 acres of arable, 44 of meadow, 24 of pasture, 30 of wood, and 9s. rent, in Laiton and Stratford Langthorn, to

Henry Parvis, or Parvis, Gent (q); who dyed possessed of it 4 August 1593—He was a merchant that traded to Italy. By his wife, Elizabeth Colston, he left his son and heir—Gabriel (r), and other children. After his decease, his widow was remarried to

Sir Michael Hickes, Secretary to the great Sir William Cecil, Lord Burghley [H], who stood godfather to his eldest son, and named him William after his own name: Besides him they had another son named Michael, and a daughter, Elizabeth, married to Sir William Armine of Osgodby Bart. Sir Michael having purchased Rokholts of one of Henry Parvis’s sons, made it the place of his residence, and dyed there 5 August 1612, aged 69. His widow dyed in February 1634, and they were both buried in the Chancel of this Church.—William Hickes Esq; of Beverston, eldest son and heir of Sir Michael, was created a Baronet 21 July 1619. Afterwards he was appointed Lieutenant of the Forest of Waltham, one of the Deputy Lieu-

(e) Lett. pat. 36 Hen. VIII. (1) P. Le Neve’s MSS. VIII. Sept. 24. Alienations, part 1. p. 223. (f) Inquis. 28 Eliz. (i) Inquis. 6 Caroli, Nov. 22. (m) Inquis. 5 Hen. V. . . 23 Hen. VI. . . 1 and 5 Edw. IV. (n) Inquis. 4 Hen. (p) Dugdale’s Baron. Vol. II. p. 402. (q) Book of [G] Arms of Fraunceys. Per bend sinister, fable & or, a lion rampant counterchanged.

[H] Sir Michael had a younger brother, named Baptist, a mercer of London, knighted 1 July 1620; created a baronet, and afterwards, 5th of May 1628, advanced to the dignity of a Baron of this realm, by the title of Lord Hickes of Ilmyngton in the county of Warwick; as also of Viscount Camden of Camden in Gloucestershire. He built Hickes’shall in St. John’s-street. He left no male issue: Julian his eldest daughter was married to Edward Lord Noel, on whom was settled the title of Viscount Cambden, and whose posterity are Earls of Gainsborough. Mary the second daughter was wife of Sir Charles Morison of Cashiobury, whose daughter and heir, Elizabeth brought that estate in marriage to Arthur Lord Capel.

tenants of this County; and a Justice of Peace. For his Loyalty to K. Charles I. in the great Rebellion he underwent much trouble and danger. By his wife, Margaret eldest daughter of Lord Paget of Beaudefert, besides several children that dyed young, he had Sir William Hickes Kt. and Bart. Sir Michael Hickes, Kt. and Letitia married to Arthur Earl of Donegal.—He dyed 15 October, 1680, in the eighty fourth year of his age, and is buried in the old Chancel of this Church. He was succeeded by his eldest son—Sir William, who had been knighted by King Charles II, when he came to Ruckolds, and was entertained there at dinner after hunting in the forest, and became Baronet on his father's death. He married Marthagnetes, daughter of Sir Harry Coningsby of North-myms in Hertfordshire Kt. of the antient family of Coningsby, in the county of Hereford, by whom he had thirteen children; of which only Harry, Charles, and Margaret arrived to maturity. He was Deputy Lieutenant of Essex, lived seventy three years, and dying 22 April 1703, was buried in the chancel.—Sir Harry Hickes Bart. his son and heir, married to his first lady, Elizabeth daughter of Sir John Holmes, Vice Admiral of the Blue, which dyed 14 January 1705, in the 29th year of her age; having had 2 daughters, and 1 son; of which only one daughter survived her: his second lady was Barbara daughter of Joseph Johnson Gent. [I]. About the year 1720, Sir Harry sold this estate to Benjamin Collyer Esq; brother-in-law to Robert Knight, cashier of the South-sea company. It was purchased of him by the Right Honorable Earl Tilney, for his eldest son Lord Castlemain, upon whose death it came to his next brother, the present Earl Tilney. It was a beautiful feat, standing near the place where the old house was, which Mr. Parvis above-mentioned built: But it hath been taken down some years.

Edward-Rowe Mores; Peregrine Bertie; and Edward Hillersden Esqres; Richard Trowbridge; Robert Willis; Samuel Guillim; Robert Petty; Israel Woollaston; John Cannick; Edward Wright &c. have also some lands here.

In this Village, which is a pretty retiring place, from London, are, and have been, several fine Houses. The most elegant, with beautiful gardens, &c. was that of the late Sir Fisher Tench. His father Nathanael Tench Esq; had 8 sons, and 3 daughters; and dying 2 April 1710, in the 79th year of his age, was buried here. Fisher, his only surviving son, was Sheriff of this County in 1712; created a Baronet, 8 August 1715, and dyed 31 October 1736, aged 63. By Elizabeth his wife, daughter of Robert Bird Esq; he had 5 sons, and 4 daughters. Sir Nathanael, his eldest son, dyed 2 June 1737, aged 40.—Jane, Sir Fisher's only daughter and heir, was married to Adam Sowersby of Chesterfield in Derbyshire Esq; he dyed 5 June 1751, and she 18 May 1752.

The Forest-house, anciently belonging to the Abbot of Waltham, is finely situated.

Charities.

This Parish receives twenty shillings yearly, part of Mr. Robert Rampston's gift above-mentioned, p. 15. and in the other Volume, p. 464.

Henry Archer gave by will in 1580, twenty shillings a year for ever, to such poor people as should be at the church in divine service on Whit-Sunday morning.

John Smith, late of this parish merchant, in 1656 founded an Alms-house adjoining to the Church-yard, containing 8 rooms for as many poor people; and endowed it with 20 l. per annum for ever, that each of the said poor people should receive 50 s. a piece yearly, to be paid them quarterly by the trustees.

Sir William Hickes gave, in 1702, 50 l. to the Poor. His widow added to that, in 1707, 20 l. on condition the whole sum of 70 l. should be applied to the purchase of land; the rent whereof should be distributed in bread yearly to the poor.

The Church, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, consists of a body, and of north and south aisles, adjoining to both; all tyled. The body of the Church being very old and ruinous was rebuilt in 1658 or 1659; and the upper or north aisle then added. The steeple was built about the same time with stone and brick: In it are 3 Bells. The upper Chancel was built, about 1610, by Sir William Rider; and repaired in 1679, through the care, and partly at the charge, of the Rev. Mr. Strype.

This Church was given to the Abbey of Stratford-Langthorn, by Giles de Montfichet, and confirmed thereto by K. Henry II. (s) [K]. The Rectory was afterwards appropriated to that Convent, and a Vicarage ordained and endowed, of which the Abbot and Monks were patrons till their suppression. In 1545, both Rectory, and Advowson of the Vicarage, were granted to the Lord Chancellor Wriothesly, with the maner of Leyton; from whom they passed to Sir Ralph Warren, and the rest, as mentioned above under the maner of Leyton [L].

The Vicarage house was rebuilt by the late Mr. John Strype, Minister of this parish, about the year 1677, with 140 l. 10 s. 0 d. of his own money, joined to the assistance and contributions of the parishioners. He was elected Preacher, or Curate, here in 1669, and continued so, without institution or induction, above 68 years, that is till his decease 13 December 1737 at the age of 94. This good man's learning and industry

(s) Monastic. Anglic. Vol. II. p. 883.

[I] See the English Baronetage, edit. 1741. Vol. I. p. 341.—Arms of Hickes. Gules, a fesse wavy between 3 fleurs de lis, or. Crest. On a wreath a buck's head couped at the shoulders, or, gorged with a chaplet of roses, gules.

[K] . . . Ecclesias quoque de West hamma & de Leya de dono Gilberti de Munfichett. . . . Monast. Anglic. Vol.

I. p. 883.

[L] All the Tithes issuing out of the maner of Ruckholds, with appertinances, in Loughton, were about the year 1570 in Walter Morgan, who had license 3 October that year to alienate them to Ralph Bedwolfe, and others. Lett. pat. 12 Eliza.

were very remarkable, and well known, he having published thirteen Volumes in folio, and three Volumes in octavo, of History; wherein he was greatly assisted by Sir Michael Hickeys MSS. preserved at Rokholts. He published also some other things in Divinity (t).

A pension of 3 l. is paid out of the maner of John Dubourdieu, M. A. 17 Janu. 1737-8, upon Strype's d. . . . David Gansel Esq;

Thomas Keighley, M. A. 13 July 1754, upon Dubourdieu's d. . . . William Gansel Esq;

6. L I T T L E I L F O R D, lies south south-west of Great Ilford, between it, the two Hams, and Wansted; &c. having on the east the river Rodon.

In Edward the Confessor's reign it belonged to two Freemen; but at the time of the survey it was held by Goscelin Loremar [M].

In 1210 and 1211, Haluit de Sifrewast held Ylleford, for one knight's fee (u).

In 1234, this maner of Eleford, with other lands, and a market, were granted to Richard de Grey (w).

Afterwards it seems to have been granted to Stratford-Abbey, but by whom we cannot find: And was divided into the Maners of—Little Ilford—Beringers—and Rye-house.

About the time of the dissolution of the Monasteries, the Farm of the Maner of Little Ilford and Ray-house, was 17 l. 10 s. 8 d. The rent of assise of the maner of Beringers in Berking, 3 l. 17 s. 3 d. The rent of assise of the maner of Little Ilford, 1 l. 7 s. 6 d. And rent in Reyhouse, 11 s. 7 d. (x).

The 11th of February 1540, K. Henry VIII. granted the premises to Morgan Philips, alias Wolfe, to hold of the King in capite by the 20th part of a knight's fee (y).—Julinus Morgan, alias Wolfe, who dyed 27 October 1557, held the maner of Beringers, and Ilford Parva, and the maner of Ray-house, late belonging to Stratford-Abbey; and the advowson of this Church.—Henry, his son and heir, was but 2 years and 11 months old (z).—Walter Morgan had license 3 Octob. 1570 to alienate the maner of Rayhouse, with appertinances, to Ralph Bedwolfe, and others (a). This maner, and 2 tofts, 2 gardens, 25 acres of arable, 40 of meadow, 20 of pasture, 50 of furze and heath, and 40 s. rent, belonged in 1581 to

John Pelkington Gent. and Mildred his wife, who, by license, dated 2 Octob. that year, sold to—Nicolas Fuller; and Fuller, by license dated 2 April 1582, to—Thomas Pearson: this last, by license dated 7 June 1583, alienated it to

Israel Amice, it containing 3 messuages, 2 tofts, 1 mill, 3 gardens, 40 acres of arable, 6 of wood, and common of pasture in Berking. [See in the other Volume, p. 334.] The said

Low-Leyton to the Vicar; one pound of which he receives upon account of the poor of Lincoln, or Bourn, above-mentioned.

This parish is rated to the land tax at 2293 l.

Leyton Stone Chapel, after having been shut a great while, was opened in 1754.

Israel, and Thomasine his wife, alienated it again, in 1594, to Robert Cecil Esq; and Thomas Owen, Serjeant at Law, and the heirs of Robert (b).

Some part of this estate was purchased of Edward Earl of Oxford, by Robert Earl of Leicester, who sold it to Horace Palavicini Gent. He was afterwards knighted; and dyed 14 October, 1615.—Tobias was his brother and heir, who held Cranbroke of the King, as of his maner of Barking, and Ray-house in capite by knight's service (c). This estate hath belonged for some time to the Wight family, of Northamptonshire.

A L D E R S B R O K E,

is another Maner in this parish, named probably from the Alder trees that grow there in great abundance. The mansion house stands low, on the right hand side of the road from Ilford to London. It hath a paddock; and was greatly improved by the late Mr. Lethieullier.

To whom this Maner anciently belonged we cannot find, or even guess, unless it was part of the demesnes of Stratford Abbey in this parish.

It was in the possession of K. Henry VIII. having been purchased for him by Cromwell of one Monoke: a family of which name was at Walthamstow. Amongst the purchases made by Thomas Cromwell for the King, a list of which is preserved in the Treasury of the Exchequer, Alderbroke is mentioned as one, together with Hampton-court, St. James in the Field, Pishobury, and Weston in Hertfordshire, Copt-hall, and lands of the Earl of Northumberland. For these it is not likely his Majesty paid much money; most of them were Abbey-lands which Cromwell could pretty easily come at. Copt-hall in particular was given him by the Abbot of Waltham, in hopes by that sacrifice to save the rest of their possessions (d): and Woolsey's time was come to compound for Hampton-court, or any thing else.

Most probably it was granted by K. Henry VIII. to Sir John Heron, Treasurer of his chamber: For, his son and heir Thomas Heron dyed at Alderbroke, 17 March 1517, and was buried in this church (e). Sir John himself dyed 8 July 1521, holding Rowley-meadow in this parish of the Abbey of Stratford; the maners of Higham Bensted in Waltham-stow, and of Batells (t) See his Life in Biographia Britannica, Vol. VI. and Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 381.

(w) Cart. 19 Hen. III. m. 3.

(z) Inquis. 4 & 5 Phil. & Ma. May. 18. nu. 32.

nations, Part i. p. 216.

this church.

(c) Inquis. 13 Jaco.

(x) Certificate of the value of Abbies, p. 28.

(a) Lett. pat. 12 Eliz.

(d) T. Fuller's History of Waltham.

(u) Liber ruber, fol. 16.

(y) Lett. pat. 32 Hen.

(b) Book of alie-

(c) Epitaph in

[M] Terra Goscelini Loremarii. Hund' de Beventreu. Heroti tenere ii liberi homines, T. R. E. pro manerio & pro iii hidis xxx acris minus. Tunc ii carucate in dominio, modo i. Tunc ii carucate & dimidium hominum, modo i.

Tunc vii villani, modo iv. Tunc iv bordarii, modo vi. Tunc i servus, modo nullus. Silva xx porcis, xx acre prati, modo i molendinum, & i piscatura. Semper valuit iv libras. Lib. Domesd. fol. 94. a. b. Tit. 64.

in Manuden; &c. but Aldersbrooke is not mentioned among the rest of his estates. However, it belonged to his son—Sir Giles Heron who dyed 8 July 1521 (f). And then to his son—Giles. The latter having the misfortune to be attainted for treason, on account of his refusing to acknowledge the King's Supremacy; this estate thereupon fell to the Crown [N].

K. Henry VIII. in 1535, granted to Antony Knevett, for his life, this maner of Aldersbrook, with a tenement thereto adjoyning called Draginsford and Naked-hall-grove, and Millfeld in Wansted.

The same King, 26 April 1544, granted to Catharine Adington, widow, and her son Thomas, this maner, and messuage, of Aldersbrooke, and a close of the same name, a meadow of 13 acres and 1 rood, 7 closes, and other parcels, in Little Ilford; the messuage called Draginsford, Hertfeild, 9 acres; and other fields in Wansted (g). Thomas Adington, in 1553, conveyed the premisses to

John Traves, and his heirs for ever. He dyed 19 Febr. 1569, possessed of the same—John, his son and heir, then aged 17 years (b), did, on the 20th of May 1578, convey them to

Henry Earl of Pembroke; who, 18 October 1580, conveyed them to Nicolas Fuller, and his heirs. This Nicolas, and Sarah his wife, passed them to Robert Earl of Leicester; who left them by will, 1 August 1587, to his natural son

Robert Dudley. He sold them, 9 November 1595, to Edward Bellingham Esq; At the time of his decease, 31 March 1605, he held of the King in capite, by knight's service, this maner, or farm, of Aldersbrooke, with all the lands &c. thereto belonging, in Great and Little Ilford, and Wansted: also the maner of Jenkin Maldon, and several estates in Suffex. His son and heir was—Sir Edward Bellingham, then aged 29 years (i). He dyed 24 January 1636, and was succeeded in his estates, by Cecily, his uncle Richard Bellingham's daughter, then wife of Thomas West, Gent (k). Their son,—Henry West, sold it, 26 July 1655, to

Henry Osbaston, or Osbaldeston. He dyed 29 September 1669, and is buried in this Church. [See above under Berking.] His son—Francis Osbaston Esq; [O] was High-Sheriff of this County in 1678, and dying 22 April in that year, aged 32, was buried in this Church.—Elizabeth, his widow and executrix, sold this Maner and Estate to Sir John Lethieullier Kt. The Family of Lethieullier was originally of Brabant.

Peter le Thieullier married Agnes Covillet, in 1490; and had by her John, who married Jane Mesureur; His son John le Thieullier of Valenciennes, was burnt for Religion during the regency of the Duke of Alva. By his wife Catharine Goding he had John, who married Jane, daughter of John Trappe of Tournay. From Valenciennes he removed to Cologne, and dyed there in 1593, leaving John his son and heir, born in 1591; and Catharine, wife of Isaac Desbouverie. He came into England with his mother, in 1605, and lived at Great Ilford, till the confusions and horror of our civil Wars, filled him with so much uneasiness, that he removed with his family to Amsterdam. After the Restoration, he returned, and settled at Lewisham in Kent, where he dyed in 1679, aged 88 years. By Jane his wife, daughter of John La Forterie of London, merchant, which dyed in 1693, aged 82, he had 7 sons, and 3 daughters. Sir Christopher, the second son, married Jane Ducane; was Sheriff of London in 1689; and dyed in 1690. Jane, the eldest daughter, born in 1629, was married to James Bourkin, of London, merchant.—John Lethieullier Esq; the eldest son, born in 1633, the purchaser of this estate, was Sheriff of London in 1674, and afterwards knighted. He departed this life in 1718, aged 86; having had by Anne his wife, daughter of Sir William Hooker Kt. to whom he was married in 1658, 3 sons, and 4 daughters. William, the second son, was married, first, to Mary daughter of Nicolas Manning a Hamburgh merchant; and afterwards, to Salkeld. Anne, one of the daughters, was married first to John Deleau, merchant, and next to Sir William Dodwell. The rest of the daughters, and one of the sons, dyed young, or unmarried.—John, the eldest son and heir, settled at Aldersbrook in 1693; took to wife, in 1695, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Joseph Smart of Havering Kt. [P] and had by her 3 sons, John; Smart; and Charles; and 2 daughters, Anne, and Elizabeth. He departed this life 1 January 1736-7. John his eldest son being dead before him, he was succee-

(f) Inquis. 15 Hen. VIII. March 18. (g) Lett. pat. 36. Hen. VIII. 1544. (b) Inquis. 12 Eliza. May 25.
(i) Inquis. 3 Jaco. June 21. (k) Inquis. 13 Caro. June 30.

[N] The ancient family of the Herons, or Heiruns, were in former ages the warlike possessors of very large revenues in the county of Northumberland; part of whose Barony were the castles of Foord, Swinburne, &c. William Heron was father of Sir John Heron of Hackney, who rebuilt that church, and is buried in it. He married first Elizabeth, daughter of John Rooper of Kent, and had by her John of Barming, M. D. whose grandson was Sir Edward Heron, one of the Barons of the Exchequer: and Sir Edward's son was James Heron of Pantfield. Sir John's second wife was, Anne, daughter of Griffith Read of Wales, related to K. Henry VII. by whom he had Sir Giles Heron; that married Cecilia, daughter of Sir Thomas More, Lord Chancellor. He had by her, Thomas, who took to wife Cecilia, daughter of Bartholomew Jekill of Newington in Middlesex, but died without issue: and Mary, which had two husbands . . . Horsley, and . . . Osborne; but seems to have had no issue by either.

[O] This Francis Osbaston claimed, in the Forest of Waltham, for himself and his heirs, the Maner of Aldersbrooke, a messuage in Little Ilford, called Aldersbrooke, and another in Wansted, with two hundred and twenty acres of arable, meadow, wood and pasture, in those Parishes; and to have waifs and strays within that maner; and coney and coney-borrows in thirty acres parcel of the maner and tenement aforesaid, lying on the north side of the great pool, now a beautiful canal; and to enjoy all the privileges of the Maner, which Giles Heron, or his ancestors had; with right of common in the waste of the forest, for himself and tenants; except in the fence month: And also competent and reasonable Estover of wood, for fuel, in the walks of East and West Henault, on the feasts of the Nativity of Christ and St. John the Baptist, yearly. Essex, Foresta de Waltham, Bundel 1 Clameorum, no. 37. 1691.

[P] She dyed 19 Novemb. 1724; having received so great a contusion in the head by being overturned in her coach, as occasioned her death.

ded by his second son—Smart Lethieullier Esq; who married, 5 Febr. 1725-6, . . . daughter of William Sloper Esq; of Woodhay in Berkshire, but dyed 27 August 1760, without issue. He was succeeded in his estates by his niece—Mary, only daughter of his next brother Charles Lethieullier Esq; Counsellor at law, by Mary sister of Charles Gore Esq; [Q].

Mr. Harcourt, and Mr. Thomas Cocksedge, have also some estate in Little Ilford.

Mr. Hide gave twenty shillings a year to the poor of this parish.

The CHURCH, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, is small, of one pace with the Chancel, and the whole leaded. A wooden cupola, contains one Bell. Mr. Lethieullier erected a burial place, adjoining to the Church.

This Rectory was in the gift of Stratford-Langthorn Abbey till the dissolution, when it came to the Crown. In 1540, K. Henry VIII. granted the advowson of it to Morgan Philips, alias Wolfe, with the maners of Little Ilford, Beringers, and Rayhouse (l). Having been alienated in 1596, it was recovered in 1605, by Bernard Hide, and continued in that family till 1669. Then it came to Sir William Morley, Knight of the Bath (m): And hath been of late in the Wight Family, lords of the said Maners of Little Ilford, &c.

This small parish is rated to the land-tax at 361 l.

Thomas Newton, Rector of this parish from 1583 to 1607, was a man of considerable Learning for the time; and published J. Lelandi Encomia Trophæa &c. and several other pieces. He is interred in this Church (n).

Robert Blakeway,	B. A. 10	April, 1714,	upon Robins's	d. . . .	John Hill Esq;
James Finlay,	D. D. 30	July, 1736,	upon Blakeway's	d. }	William Wight Esq;
William Parker,	M. A. 25	July, 1751,	upon Finlay's	d. }
William Leigh,	Cl. 11	March, 1762,	upon Parker's	refig. }	Henry Wight Esq;
John Chamberlayne,	M. A. 29	August, 1764,	upon Leigh's	d. }

7. W A N S T E D

joins to the two Ilfords, and is separated from the parish of Berking by the river Rodon. Part of it stands high and very pleasant, having a prospect of the noble city of London.

The name seems to be formed from some of these Saxon words, pan, white, panc, a mole, panc, a field; and stede, place.

Here appears to have been a Roman Villa, or some little station. For, in the year 1715, as the then Sir Richard Child's gardeners were digging holes, for planting an avenue of Trees in the Park, on the south side of the lower part of the Gardens, they discovered a Tessellated Roman pavement. The owner would not permit it to be quite laid open: But by the fragments that were thrown up, they observed, That it consisted of small square Tesserae of brick, of divers colours, some red, some white, black &c. from one inch to a quarter of an inch square. Round it, there was a border about a foot broad, composed of red dies about three quarters of an inch square; within which were several Ornaments, wove into wreaths, and in the middle, the figure of a Man riding, holding something in his right hand. The Pavement was situated on a gentle gravelly ascent towards the north; and, at a small distance from the south end of it, was a spring, or well, of fine Water, now absorbed in a great pond. From this Well the ground rose gently towards the south, till it came to an exact level, which reaches a great way. On the very brink of this level, and about 300 yards directly south from the foresaid well and pavement, were the ruins of some brick foundations. Some years after, upon making further improvements, the workmen found many sherds of broken pots, or fragments of Urns, of different kinds of earth, some brown, some white &c. but all of a coarse clay; many pieces of bricks, which proved there had been a building there; and many calcined human bones, teeth &c. There was found here a silver medal; and a copper one of the Emperor Valens; and another of copper, generally esteemed to be of the Constantine age.

Smart Lethieullier Esq; thought, that this was the Mausoleum of some private Family, whose Villa perhaps stood on the more elevated ground where Wanstead now stands. What date to appropriate to these Urns is difficult. The general opinion is, That Burning human Bodies was left off soon after the time of the Antonines, and Sepulture introduced in its place. But this must be understood to extend to the time of those Emperors who took the name of Antonini, and not be confined to the age of Marcus Aurelius Antoninus; since Anno 211, we read of the magnificent Burning of the Emperor Severus in this island: and Dr. Thomas Brown seems to be of opinion, not without good reason, that Burning was not totally laid aside, especially in the distant Provinces, till the full Establishment of Christianity amongst them.

Wanstede, with all its appertenances, was given by Alfric to St. Peter's Abbey at Westminster; and the grant confirmed by K. Edward the Confessor (o).

How this estate came from St. Peter's-Abbey to the Church of St. Paul's London, does not appear; perhaps by exchange for another, or by grant of some successor of the founder.

However, at the time of the Survey the Bishop of London held it; and his under-tenant was Ralph son of Brien [R].

(l) Lett. pat. 32 Hen. VIII. (m) See Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 346. (n) See Wood Athen. ed. 1721. Vol. I. col. 337. &c. (o) Monast. Angl. Vol. I. p. 61.

[Q] Arms of Lethieullier. Argent, between a chevron, azure; three hawks heads coupées, vert.

[R] Terra Episcopi Londoniensis. Hund' de Beuentreu. Wenestadam tenuit Sanctus Paulus, modo Radulfus filius was many years holden of the Bishop of London by the families of Hodeing otherwise Hodeng and Hofdene [S]; and Huntercombe: mentioned in the other Volume, p. 277.

The Maner of W A N S T E D.

In the reign of K. Henry III, Hugh de Hodeing, son of Ralph, had in Wansted and Hamme 169 acres of arable, and 20 acres of meadow; &c. and feed for 200 sheep in the Forest; paying 2 s. for ward to the castle of Stortford (p).

Alice, daughter and heiress of this Sir Hugh de Hodeing, was second wife of William de Huntercombe, to whom she brought this and other estates [T]. At the time of his decease in 1271, he held in capite of the Bishop of London, by the service of the fourth part of a knight's fee, and rent of 20 s. per annum, to the castle of Stortford [V]; in Wansted, 18 s. and 2 d. of yearly rent; a capital messuage, 180 acres of arable, 27 of meadow, six and half of pasture and convenient commonage. He was patron of this living. — Walter was his son and heir (q). — Christiana, widow of John Huntercombe, which dyed in 1361, held this maner of Wansted, of the Bishop of London, by the service of 2 s. a year. — Sir John Huntercombe was their son and heir (r). And, at the time of his decease, in 1368, he held the maner of Wansted, and the Advowson of the Church, jointly with Margaret his wife, of the Bishop of London by the service of one Spar-hawk, or 2 s. and of the Abbot of Waltham by the service of 10 s. per ann. and of the Abbess of Berking by the service of 10 s. per ann. and of the Prior of Holy Trinity, London, by the service of 13 s. 4 d. per ann. and of the Prior of Clerkenwell, by the service of 13 s. 4 d. per ann. — John was his son and heir (s). In another Inquest taken in 1383, it is said, that John Huntercombe held, for his life, jointly with his wife Margaret still living, the maner of Wansted, of the Bishop of London, by the same service as above said: And one tenement called Naked-hall in Wansted, of the Abbess of Berking: And lands and tenements called Sayes in Wansted, of the Abbot of Waltham, by the service of 10 s. a year each. — John Huntercombe, was their son (t).

John Tattersall, of London Gent. who dyed in 1446, held the Maner of Wansted, and Advowson of the Church, of the Bishop of London, as of his castle of Stortford, by knight's service — John, his son, was six years old (u). Robert Tattersall, Citizen of London, in 1449 gave his maner of Wansted by will to his wife Anne, then to his son John (w). From 1446 to 1457, William Keme, or Kene, and John Torrell, Esquires, presented to this living; as did Ralph Hastings, and Anne his wife in 1471, and Sir Ralph Hastings, in 1487 (x). From which we conclude that they were also Lords of this maner.

The said Sir Ralph Hastings, and Anne his wife, lords of the maner of Wansted, within the King's Forest of Waltham, having been disturbed in the enjoyment of a wood; common of pasture; and other liberties and privileges, which they possessed by reason of this lordship; upon their petition, K. Henry VI, in 1454, sent a mandate to his Justices itinerant for the Forests on this side Trent, to make inquisition (y).

Another lord, Robert de Ploise, Esq; made a claim for the privileges of this maner; but the time when he lived doth not appear. The claim was produced, 1 October 1670, before Aubrey de Vere, Warden and Steward of the Forest: being for view of frankpledge, perquisites of courts, with other usual privileges; and among the rest Deodands, in his Maners of Wansted and Stone-ball; a park pale in, of 300 acres in Wansted and Barking, with the stock of deer; and free-warren; and sole and separate fishery in the brook of Wansted: He claims liberty of felling trees on the waste, by view of the forester, both for necessary repairs of the houses belonging to this maner; and for firing; and of appointing a woodward for his own woods; and to drive the forest in his Maner once a year (z).

Sir John Heron, mentioned in the foregoing Parish of Little Ilford, in the reign of K. Henry VIII, had this estate, styled, "a great messuage, called Naked-Hall Hawe, [i. e. Court;] " and lands in Wansted and Ilford:" But, his Son — Giles, for refusing to acknowledge K. Henry the VIIIth's Supremacy, was forced in 1531, to give them up to the King (a).

In 1549, K. Edward VI. granted the Maner, and Park, of Wansted; North-mead containing 16 acres and a half; Dawson crofts, 8 acres; 50 acres of wood and pasture, and 24 acres of meadow called Le Sayes; and the advowson of the Rectory, to Richard Lord Riche, and his heirs (b). He dyed 12 June, 1566, possessed of this maner and advowson — Robert Lord Riche, his son and successor (c), had license, 7 February

(p) Inquis. ann. incert. Hen. III. 42 Edw. III. (q) Inquis. 7 Ric. II. of London, Vol. II. Appendix I, p. 122. (r) Inquis. 25 Hen. VI. 33 Hen. VI. (s) Pleas of the Forest, 22 Car. 2. (t) Inquis. 9 Eliza. nu. 141.

(u) Inquis. 55 Hen. III. (v) Inquis. 25 Hen. VI. (w) Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 639. (x) Strype, as above.

(y) Inquis. 35 Edw. III. (z) Strype's Additions to Stow's Survey of London. (a) P. Le Neve's MSS. Claus. (b) Lett. pat. 3 Edw. VI.

Brian de Episcopo, pro i manerio & pro i hida. Tunc i carucata in dominio, modo i & dimidium. Semper ii carucate hominum, & iii villani. Tunc vii bordarii, modo viii. Tunc ii servi, modo nullus. Silva ccc porcis, modo i molendinum. Semper i salina; et valuit xl solidos. Lib. Domeld. fol. 9 b. Tit. 3.

[S] Rad' de Hofdene & heredes sui habeant duos leporearios & quatuor brachettos ad capiendum leporem & catum. Canes sui non expediati sunt. Curias suas cum arcibus & sagittis, houseboto & bosais assartent in manerio de Wanstede, quieti de festis & auxiliis ward-penny. Hist. of the Forest.

[T] Particularly the maner of Hofdenes in Gr. Maplested, Hodings in Gosfeild, and an estate in Hedingham Sible. See in the other Volume, p. 277. 291. 379.

[V] This money for castle-guard of the Bishop's castle of Waytemore in Stortford in Hertfordshire is still paid from several estates in that neighbourhood, though the castle was pulled down by K. John in revenge for the Bishop of London's being one of the three, who, at the Pope's command, executed an interdict upon the whole Realm — Sir William Capel, ancestor of the Earl of Essex, having purchased Hadham, which was held of the Bishop by homage, fealty, and payment of 40 s. escuage, and 5 s. rent for castle-guard, refused to pay the latter. Upon a replevin brought by Sir William upon a distress for arrears, it was resolved, on a demurrer by the Judges, that though the castle be ruinous, yet the rent remains. Sir Hen. Chauncy's Hist. of Hertfordshire, p. 154.

1577, to alienate this whole Lordship, with the Advowson of the Church and Rectory, to

Robert Dudley, the great Earl of Leicester, Knight of the Garter, and Governor of the Netherlands (d). He resided here, and made great additions and improvements to the House; after his decease, which happened 4 Septemb. 1588; his widow the Lady Lettice Knolles, that had been first married to Walter Devereux Earl of Essex, taking to her third husband,

Sir Christopher Blount; they had license, 2 December, 1589, to alienate this maner, and the advowson of the Church, to

Sir George Carew (e). On the 2d of March 1598, Henry Percy Earl of Northumberland, who had married Dorothy, daughter of the fore-said Walter Devereux Earl of Essex; Sir Christopher, and Edmund Blount; and Lettice, wife of Sir Francis Knolles; had license to convey all their interest in the premises to

Sir Charles Blount, Lord Montjoy: to whom, Robert Devereux Earl of Essex, and Frances his wife; and Robert Lord Riche, and Penelope his wife, sister of the Earl of Essex, conveyed all their right in the same, 1 Decemb. 1598. And John Croke, Esq; 1 December 1603. This Charles Blount, Lord Montjoy, was created Earl of Devonshire 21 July 1603, and dyed 3 April 1606, without legitimate issue [*].

This estate coming to the Crown again, but by what means we are not informed, K. James I. gave it to Sir Henry Mildmay Master of the Jewel-Office both under him, and his son K. Charles I. He was younger son of Humfrey Mildmay of Danbury Esq; and grandson of Sir Walter Mildmay of Aphorp [W]. [See in the other Volume, p. 29.] Taking to wife Anne, daughter and coheir of Sir William Holyday Kt. Alderman of London, he settled upon her in jointure this Estate, then reckoned about 1000*l.* a year. But, for being one of K. Charles I.'s Judges, he was attainted, and his estates adjudged forfeited, and vested in the Crown (f). It is commonly said, that his son, Henry Mildmay of Shawford in Hampshire Esq; had divers suits to recover it, because it was settled on his Mother who was not guilty of Treason; but as it was not her paternal estate, and only a settlement of his father's, it was forfeited, and could not be recovered.

After the restoration, K. Charles II. gave this estate to his brother James Duke of York. The Duke granted, or sold it, about 1662, to

Sir Robert Brooks, who presented to the living in 1667; but, upon the distress of his affairs, he retired to France, where he dyed. Of his heirs it was purchased by

Sir Josiah Child, one of the most eminent Merchants in England, and the best acquainted with Trade, as his valuable Book on that subject sufficiently shews. He was the second son of Richard Child of London, merchant, by Elizabeth daughter of . . . Roycroft of Weston's-wick in Shropshire Esq; and descended from the Child Family, for many ages seated at Northwick, Poole-court, Shrowley; and Pencook in Worcestershire (g). Sir Josiah was created a Baronet 18 July 1678, and dying 22 June 1699, in the 69th year of his age was buried in this Church, where a sumptuous Monument is erected to his memory. He was thrice married; his first wife was Anne, daughter of Edward Boat of Portsmouth Gent. by whom he had two sons Josiah, and Richard, who dyed infants; and Elizabeth, married to John Howland, of Stretham in Surrey, Esq; whose only daughter Elizabeth, was mother of his Grace, John, the present Duke of Bedford. His second wife was Mary, daughter of William Atwood of Hackney, merchant, widow of Thomas Stone of London, merchant. By her he had Josiah, knighted by King William, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Thomas Cook Kt. but dyed 20 January 1704, without issue; and two Daughters, Rebecca, first married to Charles eldest son of Henry Marquis of Worcester, ancestor of the Duke of Beaufort; afterward to John Lord Granville; and Mary, married first to Edward Bullock of Falkborn in Essex, by whom she was mother of the late Rev. Richard Bullock, Rector of Stretham in Surrey, and Vicar of Christs-Church, London; remarried to . . . Hutchinson Esq; His third wife was Emma, daughter of Sir Henry Bernard of Stoke in Shropshire, widow of Sir Thomas Willoughby of Wollaton in Nottinghamshire [X], by whom Sir Josiah had two sons, Bernard, who dyed unmarried, 5 June 1698, and—Richard, who succeeded his brother Josiah in the title of Baronet. He married Dorothy, only surviving daughter and heir of John Glynne of Henley-Park in Surrey Esq; by Dorothy daughter of Frances Tylney of Rotherwick Esq; and by her, who dyed 23 February 1743, had three sons, Richard; John; Josiah: and two daughters, Emma, married to Sir Robert Long Bart. and Dorothy. He was one of the Knights in Parliament for this Shire from 1710, to 1722, and from 1727 to 1734. On the 17th of April 1718, he was created Baron of Newton, and Viscount Castlemaine; and advanced, 11 January 1731-2, to the title of Earl Tylney. By an act of parliament passed 24 March 1734, his Lordship's eldest son, and his heirs, were enabled to assume the surname of Tylney, by reason of the large estate which devolved to his wife, Lady Tylney, as heiress to Anne Lady Craven, daughter of Frederick Tylney of Rotherwick Esq; This Richard Earl Tylney dyed in March 1749-50: and Richard, his (d) Book of alienations, Part i. p. 276.

11. & 13 Car. II. c. 15.

(e) Book of Pardons, Part i. p. 274.

(g) See J. Lodge's Peerage of Ireland, Vol. II. p. 127.

(f) Statut. 12 Car. II. c.

[*] He cohabited with Penelope Lady Riche above-said during her husband the Lord Riche's life and was even married to her; after having had by her five natural children, Charles, Montjoy, St. Johns, Elizabeth, and another daughter.

[W] He was one of the representatives in parliament for Harwich, in the 3d parliament of K. James I. for Westbury in the 4th parliament of the same king; and for Maldon in the several parliaments of K. Charles I. His Lady dyed 12

March 1656. But he survived the Restoration. See Statute, 12 Charl. II. c. 11. & 13 Char. II. c. 15.

[X] She dyed 17 October 1725; at which time it was said, she was nearly allied to so many of the prime Nobility, that eleven Dukes and Dutcheses used to ask her blessing. And it was reckoned, that above fifty great Families would go into mourning for her.

eldest son, being dead before him without issue, he was succeeded in titles and estates by the second son—John, the present Earl Tylney.

WANSTED-HOUSE, the Seat of this noble Family, (with a View of which his Lordship hath been pleased to adorn this Work,) for Situation, Building, Waters, Gardens; and the hereditary command of the Forest, may be said to exceed any in England. And was intended to be made still more magnificent, by Wings raised with colonades answering to the grandeur of the front.

The Maner of CANN-HALL, or CANONS-HALL,

Did anciently belong to the Prior and Canons of the Holy Trinity in London; and from them took the name of Canons-hall. That it belonged to them, appears from a composition made between the Convent, the Patron, and the Rector, about the tythes of this lordship of Cann-hall, and confirmed by William de Sancta Maria Bishop of London, under his seal 5 Septemb. 1207; By which composition, the Prior and Canons were to receive the tythes of this estate, and to pay to the Rector of Wansted yearly one quarter of fine wheat, and one quarter of oats, at Michaelmas (b).

This estate becoming vested in the Crown at the dissolution, Qu. Mary granted, in 1553, the maner of Cannon-hall, alias Canne-hall, with appertenances in Wansted and West-ham, to John Strelley, citizen and vintner of London, and Anne his wife, and the heirs of the said John (i): To hold in capite, by the 40th part of a knight's fee. He dyed 29 August 1559; leaving his son and heir—Nicolas, aged 22 years (k): who held the same at the time of his decease in 1611; and his heir was his daughter

James Pound, M. A.	11 July 1707, upon Hankey's d. [r].	.. Sir Richard Child, Bart.
Thomas Juson, M. A.	1724, upon Pound's d.	.. Richard Earl of Castlemaine.
Ric. Goodere, B. L.	5 Septemb. 1750, upon Juson's d.	.. John Earl Tylney.

8. W A L T H A M - S T O W, lies between Wansted and Woodford, and the river Ley,

The name is derived from the three Saxon words, Pealð, a wood or forest, ham, a village, or habitation, and stowe, place: The last syllable being added to distinguish it from the three other parishes of the same name in this County; namely Waltham Holy-Cross, and Great, and Little Waltham. [See in the other Volume, p. 82.] In records it is written these other various ways, Walcamstowe, Welcamstow, Welcomstowe, Walkehamstowe, Walkhampstowe, Walkampton, and Wilcumeftou.

(b) Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 639. (i) Lett. pat. 1 Mar. 1553. (k) Inquis. 2 Eliz. March 16. (l) Inquis. 9 Jaco. (m) Monastic. Anglic. Vol. I. p. 431. 433. (n) Chronic. Saxon.

[r] Mr. James Pound was Chaplain to the English Factory at Pulo-Condore, in the East-Indies; and very narrowly escaped with his life, when that Factory was cut to pieces in the year 1705: at which time he irretrievably lost many curious Papers and Observations of his own. Several Astro-Cecilia, then wife of Humfrey Cardinall, of Great Humby in Lincolnshire, aged upwards of 40 years (l).

Richard Boothby, and Thomas Woolhouse Esqrs; were possessed of this estate in 1635.

It belonged in the beginning of this century to William Colegrave of St. Giles's in the Fields, Esq; the Maner being about 65 l. per annum, and the Farm 105 l. And afterwards to his son—William Colegrave Esq;

The Nunnery of Clerkenwell in Middlesex had one mark's yearly rent in this parish, issuing out of the third part of Wanstede, with the service of the same; granted thereto by Henry Foliot, and Lecia his wife, daughter of Jordan, son of Ralph, son of Brian, founder of that House.—And Abraham de Wanestede gave them also the Mill of Wanstede, and Melegrave, or Mill-grove, near the same (m).

A good House in this parish, pleasantly situated, with an estate; and Gardens consisting of 30 acres; belongs to Humfrey Bowles Esq; It was built, about the year 1690, by Sir Francis Dashwood, father to Lord Despenfer. From him the estate passed to Sir Orlando Bridgman, who had married one of his daughters. Sir Orlando sold it to Mr. Gough, grocer in Bread-street, and the latter sold it again to Matthew Wymondesold Esq; of whom it was purchased by Humfrey Bowles Esq;

This parish is rated to the land-tax at 1179 l.

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. Mary, stands near Wansted House; and was new built, chiefly by the liberality of the late Richard Earl Tylney. There is also a new Steeple; where before was but a wooden Spire.

This Rectory hath been all along appendent to the Maner of Wansted. It hath a fine Glebe of 76 acres.

It belonged, in Edward the Confessor's reign to Waltheof, son of Earl Siward, by Elfreda daughter of Earl Aldred, both Earls of Northumberland (n). Waltheof being a man of eminent qualities, and submitting to the Conqueror, was restored to his paternal estates, and to his Honors. However, he was one of those Noblemen whom K. William somewhat distrusting, took along with him into Normandy, in 1067, that they might attempt nothing in his absence. His jealousy was not groundless: For, two years after, Waltheof engaged with several English noblemen and malecontents; harrassed and cut off the Normans in their quarters; and when an army of Danes invaded the Kingdom, they were nomical Papers of his; as accounts of Eclipses, of the Moon, of Jupiter's satellites, and the like, are inserted in the Philosophical Transactions. See the Abridgment of them, Vol. IV. p. 278, 303, 307, 308, 318, 320, 334. and Vol. VI. i. p. 221.

joined

joined by this Earl among the rest. The Danes were bought off by the King, but not without granting them this condition, that he should pardon and even reward the English noblemen who had appeared in arms against him. In consequence of that, he conferred on Waltheof the Earldoms of Northumberland, Northampton, and Huntingdon, and gave him his niece Judith, daughter of his half sister Maud by Lambert Earl of Lens in Artois (o) [Z]: yet, in 1075, Waltheof, and others, at a marriage feast, plotted to depose him: Waltheof revealed this design, yet William recalled his promise of a pardon, and caused Waltheof to be beheaded at Winchester. The common voice of writers attribute his death to his wife's instigation, who lived not well with him, and had more mind to another husband (p). She was possessed of this Lordship at the time of the Survey [A]. Waltheof left two daughters [B]; Maud, married to Simon de St. Liz, who had the Earldom of Huntingdon; Alice, otherwise called Judith, was married to Ralph de Toeni, of Flamsted in Hertfordshire, to whom she brought this maner of Waltham-stow, from him called Waltham-Stow-Toni. Besides which there were three other Maners, or reputed Maners, in this parish; namely,—The Maner of Waltham-Stow Beandick, or Francys, otherwise Low-hall.—The Maner of Higham-Bensted. And that of Salisbury-hall.

There are also the following Hamlets in this parish; Hou-street; Wood-street; Marsh-street; Clay-street, and Chapel-end.

The Maner of WALTHAM-STOW-TONI; some time called High-hall; and that of WALTHAM-STOW FRANCIS, otherwise Low-hall, seem to have been at first but one; and to have remained united a considerable time.

Ralph de Toenio, or Toni, who married Alice, or Judith, daughter of Waltheof, was son of Ralph, Standard-bearer to K. William at the time of the Conquest. He had two sons, Roger, and Hugh; and several daughters (q).—Roger, the eldest son and heir, had for his first wife a daughter of the Earl of Henault; for his second a daughter of the Earl of Leicester. He dyed in 1162, leaving by his second wife —Roger, his son, very young. To him succeeded —Ralph de Toni, most probably his son, who was in arms with the rebellious Barons against K. John. But, afterwards in 1232, was constituted by K. Henry III. one of the Generals of the English forces then quartered on the confines of Wales (r). He held the maner of Welcomestowe by the service of attending the King in his proper person, when his Majesty went upon any warlike expedition (s). Undertaking a Voyage to the Holy-land in 1239, he dyed at sea (t). Petronill, his widow, claimed the third part of this maner, but had something else given her by the King in exchange (u). Their son and heir—Roger Tony held the maner of Welcomstowe of the King in capite (w). He firmly adhered to K. Henry III. at the battle of Lewes, where he was taken prisoner, and the Barons seized his castle of Kirtling. Departing this life in 1277, he was succeeded by his son—Ralph; and he by his son—Robert, who held this maner of Wolcamstowe of the King in capite, by the service of half a knight's fee (x). He dyed in 1309, and his heir was his sister.

Alice, then widow of Thomas de Leyborn. Her second husband was Guy de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick; who in her right held this maner, of the King, as of the Barony of Robert de Tony. By him she had two sons, Thomas, and John; and five daughters. After his decease, which happened in 1315 (y), she gave 500 marks for license to marry William la Zouch of Ashby in Leicestershire (z). This William la Zouch, of Mortimer as he is styled in the record, held for life, by the custom of England, after the decease of his wife Alice, this maner of Wolcamstowe; as of the right and inheritance of Thomas de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick: and dyed in 1337 (a) [C]. Upon his decease,

Thomas de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, came into this estate. He dyed of the plague at Calais 13 November 1369, at which time he held this maner of Welcomstowe of the King; and had purchased the reversion of the maner of Welcomstowe Bedyk, which Maud wife of Simon Franceys enjoyed for her life (b). He had seven sons, and nine daughters.—Thomas de Beauchamp, the second surviving son and heir, succeeded his father. But, by the artifices of K. Richard the second's evil counsellors, this Earl being condemned to dye, in 1396, his estates were forfeited, and given away; and these maners of Welkehampstowe, and Low-Hall, in particular, to William de Scrope Earl of Wiltshire, in special tail, and to his heirs male (c).

But the Earl of Warwick being restored to his honors and estates upon the accession of K. Henry IV, he held, at the time of his decease, 8 April 1401, the Maner of Welcomstow-Tony, and the Maner of Welcomstow-Franceys, of the King as of the Honor of Bologne. Margaret, his widow, held the same in fee-tail till (o) Chronic. Saxon. sub annis. Orderic. Vital. p. 522. 534. Ingulph, p. 66. 70. 72. Will. Malmesb. p. 104. & Roger de Hoveden, p. 454.—457. edit. 1601. (p) Ingulph, p. 72. &c. (q) Will. Gemmeticen, p. 268. 312. Orderic. Vital. p. 501. 813. (r) Mat. Paris, p. 244. (s) Testa de Nevill. (t) Mat. Paris, p. 489. (u) Placita 25 Hen. III. craft. Mic. rot. 21 dorf. (w) Inquis. 48. Hen. III. (x) Inquis. 3 Edw. II. (y) Inquis. 9 Edw. II. (z) Dugdale's Baronage, Vol. I. p. 469.—471. (a) Inquis. 11 Edw. III. (b) Inquis. 43 Edw. III. (c) Rot. pat. 21 Ric. II. pars prima.

[Z] — Ut firma inter eos amicitia perduraret. Orderic. Vital. p. 522.

[A] Terra Judith Comitisse. Hund' de Beventreu. Wilcumbestou tenuit Wallef Comes T. R. E. pro manerio, & pro x hidis & dimidio. Semper ii carucate in dominio. Tunc xv carucate hominum, modo xxii. Tunc xxv villani, modo xxxvi. Tunc i bordarius, modo xxv. Semper iv servi. Silva ccc porcis. Lxxx acre prati. Pastura de viii solidis. Semper i molendinum. Tunc vi piscine, modo i. Modo viii animalia, i runcinus, xxxv porci, lx oves, xx capre. Tunc valuit xv libras, modo xxviii libras, & ii uncias auri. Lib. Domefd. fol. 92. a. Tit. 55.

[B] William Gemmeticensis says, he left three daughters. Lib. viii. c. 37. But Orderic Vitalis affirms, he left only two daughters. . . . duas filias speciosas. . . . p. 522. See Vincent, p. 248.

[C] He, and his wife Alice, claimed Free-warren &c. in Welcomstowe. Placita Forestæ, 17 Edw. II. rot. 55.

WANSTEAD HOUSE (belonging) to The Right-Honourable the EARL of TYLNEY.

15 30 45 60 75 90 105 120 135
Scala di Braccia 135 a Panno Fiorentino per la presente Facciata her decease 22 Janu. 1406 (d). Their son and heir—Richard de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, held also these Maners at the time of his decease 30 April 1439 (e). As did his son—Henry, Earl of Warwick, who dyed 11 June 1445, leaving—Anne, his daughter and heir, only two years old; but she departed this life 3 Janu. 1449 (f). Whereupon his estates, and these two Maners in particular, were divided between his two sisters; Elianor his sister by the father but not by the same mother; and Anne his own sister both by father and mother.

Elianor had the Maner of Waltham-stowe-Tony; and dyed possessed of it in 1467. She had two husbands, Thomas Lord Roos of Hamlake, and Edmund Beaufort Duke of Somerset. Her heir was her grandson Edmund Roos (g).

Anne, the other sister of Henry the last Earl of Warwick, then wife of Richard Nevill, Earl of Salisbury, had the Maner of Waltham Stowe Franceys; and the title of Earl of Warwick was confirmed to him, and to the heirs of the said Anne. How this Richard, the King-Maker as he was called, lost his life in the Battle of Barnet, in 1471, and what distresses his widow thereupon became exposed to, may be read in our Historians (h): all her vast inheritance being by authority of Parliament taken from her, and settled upon her two Daughters, Isabel wife of George Duke of Clarence, and Anne wife of Richard Duke of Gloucester, two brothers of K. Edward IV. as if she herself had been naturally dead.

After the death of those two daughters, K. Henry VII. having a mind to this noble inheritance, he caused it to be restored to the said Anne, by act of Parliament in 1487, with power to alienate the same, or any part thereof: But not with purpose that she should enjoy it, as it seems; for, 13 December the same year, by a special feoffment, and a fine thereupon, she conveyed it wholly to the King, entailing it upon the issue male of his body, with remainder to herself and her heirs. The particulars of this noble estate are in Sir William Dugdale (i).

But, before this act, the maner of Walkhamstowe, called Lowe-hall, had been granted to John Hugford, who held it of the King by an entire Barony, as of the Honor of Bologne, and dyed possessed of it, 6 Decemb. 1485 (k).

The Crown becoming possessed of these two Maners, made distinct and several Grants of them.

For instance, K. Henry VIII. 14 May 1520, granted to John Jennyns, the maner called Walkamstow Frauncys, alias Low-hall, formerly part of the possessions of Anne Countess of Warwick, for 21 years, at the rent of 15 l. 3 s. 4 d. and 3 s. 4 d. of advance. The same day he granted to John Heron, the maner of Waltham-Stow-Tony, or High-hall, in Walkamstow, parcell of the lands called Coperceners-lands, for 21 years, at the rent of 48 l. 3 s. 4 d. (l).

Feb. 5 1527, he granted the maner called Walthamstowe Frances, alias Low-hall, to John Lynsell, and his heirs male; part of the possessions of Anne Countess of Warwick (m).

The same King, in 1544, granted the maner of High-hall, alias Walkhamptow-Tony, to Paul Withipole and Edmund his son, and their heirs: And also the Advowson of the Rectory and Vicarage; the maner of Mark, and a messuage called le Mark in Layton and Walthamstow (n).

This Paul Withipole [mentioned above under Leyton] had license, 20 Febru. 1545, to pass away this maner, with Helbrynks 16 acres, and Bakers marsh 4 acres, to Sir Ralph Sadleir, Clerk of the Hanaper (o). On the 10th of September 1546, Sir Ralph gave up this Maner, then worth 90 l. per annum clear, to K. Henry VIII. in exchange for lands of greater value (p).

In 1550, Walcambestowe, alias Lowhall, was held by Ralph Saunder, and Laurence Wennington, in free socage (q). Qu. Mary, in 1553, granted the maner of Highall, alias Walcombe-stow Tony, alias Walkhamptowe Fraunces, alias Lowe-hall, alias the maner of Higham Bempsted, alias Higham Bempsted, alias Higham-hill, to Thomas Heron, and his heirs; to hold in capite by the 20th part of a knight's fee (r).

The 27th of July 1583, Qu. Elizabeth granted the Maners of Higbe-hall, and Lowe-hall, alias Walthamstowe Tony, and Walthamstowe Fraunces, to Theophilus Adams, to be held of the maner of East Greenwich, by fealty, in socage.—And, in 1592, she granted the Maner of Walthamstow Frances, alias Low-hall, to Will. Tipper and Robert Dawe (s). But these men, Adams, Tipper, and Dawe, were Hunters after concealed Lands, and procured many and large Grants under that pretence; which we have frequently observed did not stand good.

Previous to these Grants, the two Maners of Waltham-Stow Tony, and Waltham-Stow Franceys, had been separated.

The Maner of WALTHAM-STOW-TONY, appears, in Qu. Elizabeth's time, to have been in the Family of Manners Earls of Rutland. For Edward Earl of Rutland, by license dated 26 May 1575, alienated that maner, and 60 messuages, 60 cottages, 30 tofts, 60 gardens, 60 orchards, 1000 acres of arable, 500 of meadow, 1000 of pasture, 200 of wood, 200 of furze and heath, 200 of marsh, 100 of moor, 40 s. rent, and common of pasture, in Walkampton, or Walkamstowe Tony, to . . . Juliana Holcroft, widow, and her heirs.—And this maner was said, afterwards, in 1587, to be held in capite (t). The Earl of Rutland's alienation must have been to lead to the use of some trust: especially as he had married Isabel, daughter of the said Juliana by her husband Sir Thomas Holcroft. For—Elizabeth, his only daughter and heir, dyed possessed of this maner of Waltham-stowe Tony, and High-hall, 12 April 1591, which she held (d) Inquis. 2 Hen. IV. & Dugdale's Baron. Vol. I. p. 236—238. & Inquis. 8 Hen. IV. Hen. VI. (f) Inquis. 24 Hen. VI. & Dugdale, Vol. I. p. 247, 248. 304. (g) Inquis. 7 Edw. IV. Hall's Chron. fol. 218. a. Dugdale's Baron. Vol. I. p. 306, 307. (i) Baronage, Vol. I. p. 307. (k) Inquis. 2 Hen. VII. Novemb. 4. (l) Pat. 12 Hen. VIII. pars. 1. (m) Pat. 19 Hen. VIII. (n) Pat. 36 Hen. VIII. (o) Pat. 37 Hen. VIII. (p) Account of lands exchanged between Sir Ralph Sadleir and K. Henry, p. 156. (q) Book of Alienations, p. 271. (r) Lett. pat. 2 Mar. (s) Lett. pat. 25 & 34 Eliza. (t) Book of Alienations, Part i. p. 272.

of the Queen by knight's service. She had been married to Sir William Cecil, son and heir of Thomas Earl of Exeter; and left by him her son and heir—William Cecil, Lord Rosse, Ham-lake Trusbutt, and Belvoir, eleven months and fifteen days old (u); who dyed in Italy 27 June 1618, without issue.

George Rodney Esq; was possessed of this Maner in 1635. Very soon after, it belonged to Charles Maynard Esq; Auditor of the Exchequer, who settled here. He was the third son of Sir Henry Maynard, Kt. and brother of William, the first Lord Maynard. [See in the other Volume, p. 432.] He dyed 19 November 1665, having had, by Mary his wife daughter of Zeger Corfellis, of London, merchant, whom he married in November 1633, four sons, and two daughters. The sons were Charles, who deceased 3 June 1665, aged 31, and unmarried; Henry, who dyed an infant; William, baptized 6 Octob. 1641; Henry, baptized 4 Aug. 1646, afterwards an eminent Spanish merchant, and a special Benefactor to this parish. The two daughters were, Mary, who deceased 20 Janu. 1663, at the age of 20 years; and Anne.—William, the third, but eldest surviving son and heir, was created a Baronet 1 February 1681, and elected one of the Knights of the Shire for this County in 1685. By Mary his wife, daughter of William Baynbrigg Esq; citizen of London, he had, William; and Charles; who both dyed infants; another William; and Henry: and three daughters, Mary, wife of Sir William Scawen Kt. Jane wife of Edward Eyre Esq; and Elizabeth, of Edward Stafford,—Sir William, the eldest surviving son, dying a bachelor, 25 Decemb. 1715, was succeeded by his next brother—Sir Henry, then an eminent Merchant at Aleppo, who came and resided here, and was chosen Verdurier of the Forest in 1725. He departed this life 16 Novemb. 1738, leaving, by Catharine his wife, daughter of George Guntur of Racton in Suffex Esq;—Sir William Maynard Bart. the present worthy possessor; who succeeded to a considerable estate on the death of his uncle Sir Charles Guntur Nicholl, K. B. He married Charlotte, second daughter of Sir Cecil Bishopp Bart. of Parham in Suffex, (now deceased) by whom he has, Charles, Anne, William, and Henry.

This Maner is very extensive, and holds a Court-leet and Court Baron annually on Whitsun-tuesday; the landed estate is not very considerable, as estates now are. The Courts are kept at Toni-hall, a spacious brick House in Shernall street, about a quarter of a mile south-east from the Church. For when a purchase was made of the Maner, the Maner-house and a few fields were left out: so that High-ball is now only a handfom brick farm house, standing about a mile and a half from the Church.

As for the Maner of WALTHAM-STOW FRAUNCES, alias LOW-HALL, it was granted to Thomas Argall, mentioned above, under Berking, p. 3. At the time of his decease, 15 August 1563, he held this Maner of Walkamstow Fraunces, as it is there called, of the Queen, as of her maner of East-Greenwich.—Richard was his son and heir (w).—Thomas Argall Esq; who dyed 4 March 1604, held also this maner of Walkamstowe Francis, alias Lovehall. His brother—John was his heir (x).

The last heiress of the Argall family was married to John Greene of Dover-street, London, Esq; he was jeweller to K. William, and a Justice of Peace, and dyed 1 June 1718.

This estate belonged afterwards to . . . Bofanquet Esq; and, upon his decease, in 1765, descended to his son—Samuel Bofanquet Esq; of the Forest-house in Low-Leyton.

The Maner house, called Low-hall, stands about a mile and a half south-west from the Church.

HIGHAM BENSTED Maner.

The mansion house stands about a mile and a half north-west from the Church; above the river Ley, on a Hill, or rising ground, from whence it has an extensive prospect over the marshes into Middlesex and Hertfordshire. From its situation it received the name of Higbam-bill, and the addition of Bensted from some of its ancientest owners. Part of it is now pulled down, and the rest converted into two dwellings.

This estate belonged, in Edward the Confessor's reign, to Haldan, a freeman; and at the Survey was held by Peter de Valoines [D]. His great granddaughter Lora brought it in marriage to Alexander de Balliol.

Afterwards, from the reign of K. Edward II. to that of K. Henry VII. it was part of the possessions of the Bensted Family in this County: John de Bensted having purchased it of Alexander de Balliol. [See in the other Volume, p. 495.] [E].

The purchaser of this estate, John de Bensted, at the time of his decease in 1323 [F], held in Wolcomestowe 1 messuage with a garden, 100 (u) Inquis. 41 Eliza. & Milles Catalogue of Honor, p. 985. 3 Jaco.

(w) Inquis. 5 Eliz. (x) Inquis.

[D] Hecham tenet Petrus in dominio, quod tenuit Haldanus liber homo, Tempore Regis Edwardi, pro manerio, & pro v hidis. Semper ii carucate in dominio, & iv carucate hominum. Tunc viii villani, modo x. Tunc ii bordarii, modo iii. Semper iv servi. Silva ccc porcis. xviii acre prati. Tunc iii piscature & dimidium, modo nulla. Tunc i bordarius, modo xv animalia, & i runcinus, & xxxvii porci, & ii vasa apium. Tunc valuit lx solidos, modo, iv libras & x solidos. . . Et quando recepit hoc Manerium non invenit preter i bovem, & i acram feminatam. Et de his vhidis, quas superius dixi, unam tenuere ii liberi homines, T. R. E. que huic manerio addita est tempore Regis Willielmi, et valebat T. R. E. x solidos, modo xx. Et hoc tenet Willielmus de Petro Valonienfi. Lib. Domefd. fol. 78. b. 79. a. Tit. 36.

[E] Besides this maner, the Bensted Family had in this County, the maner of Little Parndon, two parts of the maner of Gr. Stambridge, and lands in Raureth. Inquis. 50 Edw. III.—Their chief estate was Benington in Hertfordshire. See Sir Hen. Chauncy's Hist. of that County, p. 343.

[F] This John de Bensted, was constituted one of the Justices of the Common Pleas in 1310, and had summons to Parliament 8 Edw. II. among the Barons of this realm. He was employed in Scotland upon the King's service in 1314, and 1320. And in 1317 appointed one of the Commissioners to treat of a peace between K. Edward II, and Robert de Brus. Chauncy, as above.

acres of arable, 8 of meadow, 8 of pasture, and 2d. ob. rent, of the Abbot of Great Waltham, by the service of 4s. per ann.—John was his son (y): whose son and heir—Edmund alienated this maner to Robert de Morle, and William de Playford, and their heirs. But his widow Maud enjoyed for her life, 1 messuage, 140 acres of arable, 8 acres and a half of meadow, and 7 acres of pasture, in this parish; reversion to—John de Bensted: so that Edmund's alienation was not valid (z). This John de Bensted dyed in 1368, at which time he held in the vill of Walthamstowe, in the Hamlet of Higham, a tenement called Waterhall, of the King in capite, as parcel of the maner of Benyngton, by knight's service: And a tenement called Benstedes in the same Hamlet; in which there was a capital messuage, and several parcels of land (a) [G].—John his son and heir, dyed in 1376. His brother, and successor,—Edward de Bensted (b), was one of the Representatives for the County of Hertford, in the Parliaments 7, and 20 Richard II, and 1 Henry IV. and Sheriff of Essex and Hertfordshire in 1400 (c). He dyed in 1432, holding this maner of Heigham-Bensted of the King, in ca. by the service of half a knight's fee.—Edward, or Edmund, his son and successor, was then 44 years old (d) —Joane, widow of Sir Edward Bensted, had a life estate in this maner till her decease in 1448 (e). Then it came to—Sir John Bensted, who dyed possessed of it in 1471, leaving—William, his son and heir (f). He dyed in September 1485; and his heir was his aunt

Helen Bensted, aged 50 years (g). On the 23d of November 1493, she had license to alienate this maner to William Sutton, John Rishe, and others (h); One of these other purchasers we have reason to suppose was

Sir Thomas Lovel, who held a Court here 25 Novemb. 1494.

Sir John Hiron had this estate in 1521 (i). His son—Giles Heron, Esq; mentioned above under Little Ilford, and Wansted, who married Cæcilia daughter of the great Sir Thomas More, was afterwards owner of this estate. He being attainted of high-treason, and his lands thereupon escheating to the Crown, K. Henry VIII leased this maner to

Cuthbert Hutton Esq;

But Qu. Mary, 23 July 1554, restored this estate to Thomas Heron Gent. eldest son of Giles (k). May 20 1566, this Thomas, and Edmund, and Joane, Heron had license (l) to alienate the maner of Higham-Bensted alias Higham-hill, to Thomas Rowe Esq; afterwards knighted; and Lord Mayor of London in 1568. He dyed 2 Septemb. 1570, and was buried at Hackney. By Mary his wife, daughter of Sir John Gresham, born 17 August 1523, he had several children.—William Rowe Esq; his third son, born 22 Decemb. 1545, succeeded him in this estate; and dyed 29 June 1596 [H]. His wife was, Anne, daughter of John Cheyne of Chesham-Bois Esq; born 24 August 1558, which dyed 24 January 1638; by whom he had John, born 5 May 1581, and William born in September 1585, both knighted. Sir John, the eldest son, having no issue, sold this Maner to his father-in-law, Sir Reginald Argall, of whom it was purchased by the second son—Sir William Rowe; that dyed 27 Decemb. 1667. He married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Thomas Potts of Cuddington in Buckinghamshire Esq; and had by her Robert, born 29 Janu. 1625, who dyed 1 March 1671, without issue; and—Cheyne, Barrister at law. This last, after his mother's death, in 1672 got this estate. He married Elizabeth, daughter of . . . Stone, by whom he had several children, and dyed in 1702.—William Rowe Esq; his eldest son, also a Barrister at law, dyed 27 or 28 Novemb. 1727. His wife was Elizabeth, daughter of John Whistler Cl. and by her he had William, Elizabeth, and Wilhelmina.—William, the son and heir, dyed in April 1739; having had, by Anne his wife, daughter of Edward Marshall, Gent. William; Whistler; and Thomas.—William, the eldest son, an Apothecary, married Anne, daughter of . . . Ceorner, and had by her, William; Charles; Charlotta [I].

Some years ago this estate was purchased by Richard Newman Esq; High-Sheriff of this County in 1762.

He sold it again to Antony Bacon Esq; one of the representatives in parliament for the Burgh of Aylesbury: who is building a very handsome brick House in the northern part of this parish, near Woodford-Wells.

The Maner of SALISBURY-HALL, took that name from Margaret Plantagenet, Countess of Salisbury. For Sir Thomas Tirwhitt, who dyed 6 April 1522, held of that Countess, the maner of Salisbury-hall, in Waltham-Stowe. His son and heir was—Sir Thomas Tirwhitt, then 40 years old (m). This is the (y) Inquis. 17 Edw. II.

Edw. III.

Edw. IV.

pat. 2 Mar.

Aug. 29.

(c) List of Sheriffs.

(g) Inquis. 1 Hen. VII.

(l) Lett. pat. 8 Eliz. and

(z) Inquis. 7 & 8 Edw. III.

(d) Inquis. 11 Hen. VI.

(b) Lett. pat. 9 Hen. VII.

Book of Pardons, part 1. p. 186.

(a) Inquis. 42 Edw. III.

(e) Inquis. 27 Hen. VI.

(i) Inquis. 15 Hen. VIII.

(m) Inquis. 14 Hen. VIII.

(b) Inquis. 50

(f) Inquis. 11

(k) Lett.

[G] They are thus enumerated in the Inquisition: sixty two acres in the field called the Brache, 12 acres in Shepecote brache, 5 acr. in Clerkiscroft, 15 acr. in Aldrichfield, 16 acr. in Thorncroft, 8 acr. in Ladicroft, 14 acr. in Langlond croft, 12 acr. in the Doune. At Bolismere, 1 acre and a half, at Nortefeld 8 acres. At Hikemanfeld, 12 acres. Smythouland, 11 acres. Rediscroft, 2 acres and a half: Widemead, 8 acres. In Hoggeford marsh, 1 acre; in Siwardstone marsh, 2 acres and a half; Bolismere, 1 acre; Brock pasture, 2 acres; and 5 acres of pasture under the capital messuage; Steppytel pasture, 1 acre and a half; le greene lane pasture, 1 acre; and 1 acre of wood: And 10 s. rent of assise. Holden of the Abbot of Waltham, and the Earl of Warwick. Inquis. 42 Edw. III.—Such a particular description of an estate is very uncommon in those early times.

[H] He held the maner of Heigham Bensted, with appertinances; a waste, or common, containing 400 acres of furze and heath, and a wood in Waltham-Stow, late parcel of this maner. Inquis. 38 Eliza. Aug. 21.—Sir Richard Argall, who dyed in 1611, held the maner of Higham-hills, and a waste called Higham-bushes. Inquis. 10 Jaco.

[I] Arms of Rowe. A chevron, with three plates, or bezants, between 3 trefoiles, 2. 1. Crest. A Hart's head couped; on the neck a crescent.

first time we find it mentioned by that name, and as a distinct Maner in this parish.

Whether, upon the Countess of Salisbury's attainder it fell to the Crown, we cannot discover. But Qu. Mary granted, among other things, to Sir Thomas White, this maner, late parcel of the possessions of Robert Tirwhitt (n).

In 1590, Qu. Elizabeth granted to Robert Symons the maner of Salisbury-hall in Waltham-stow, with appertenances; and Bradfeild, 4 acres; Little Goldsmith land, 4 acres; little Horse leaze; 5 acres; Rowdons field, 13 acres; and a fishery, with the profits of the osiers from Longers lane to Fleetmouth (o). Robert Symons granted, by license, 2 March, 1593, this maner, and 40 acres of arable, 35 of meadow, 160 of pasture, and 30 of wood, to William Nightingale.—And again, 2 March 1596, he passed to Edward Aldred, for the proper use of him the said Robert, this maner, 100 acres of arable, 60 of meadow, 200 of pasture, 40 of wood, and 56 s. 8 d. rent in Waltham-Stowe (p). And dying 1 January 1623, was succeeded by his son—Thomas Symons (q).

It belonged afterwards to—Edge Esq; who gave it to Richard Skeldon, a corn-meter in London. Upon whose decease without issue, it came to Rice Fellows Esq; and now belongs to his nephew—Fellows, a minor.

Salisbury-hall stands about a mile and a half north from this Church; in Chapel-end, in a lane leading from Claystreet towards Chingford-Church; being the last House on the left hand. It is old and mean.

The following persons have also some estates, and lands in Waltham-stow.—Francis-John Tyfen; William Sheldon; and Thomas Pigot, Esquires; Mr. Henry Moor; Thomas Wetenhall; Joseph Freeman; Charles Dumbleton; Antony Todd; Robert Phipps, Thomas Trueman; Joseph Eyre; John Rigg, &c.

The Charitable Benefactions to this Parish are many and great, being as follows, according to the order of time.

William Hill, Vicar, who dyed in 1487, gave one acre of the In-mead.

Sir George Monox, Sheriff of London in 1509, and Lord Mayor in 1514, built Alms-houses on the north side of the Church-yard for thirteen poor people, 8 men, and 5 women; with an apartment for a Free-school. And by his will, dated 1 June 1541, for their maintenance settled on Trustees, an estate in Mark-lane London, then computed of the yearly value of 50 l. To be employed in this manner; salary to the School-master, 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. the weekly allowance to the poor, 7 s. 7 d. to them for coals, 5 l. Pension to the Parish-Clerk, 26 s. 8 d. For a commemoration on the anniversary of his death 5 l. 13 s. 4 d. Out of the residue of the estate he provided for the perpetual repair of the School and Alms houses, also of the north aisle of this Church, and the Chapel thereto adjoining, erected by him. He also rebuilt the Church-steeple; and made a causeway over the Marshes to Lock-bridge, in the way to London. He dyed 9 February 1543, and is buried in the aisle of his own erection.

Edward Alford Esq; son of Roger, one of Sir George Monox's trustees, settled, in 1567, on the Alms-houses a rent-charge of 9 l. per annum.

Robert Rampston Esq; 2 August, 1585, gave Forty shillings a year to the Poor of this parish. [See under East, and West Ham, and Leyton &c. and in the other Volume, p. 464.]

Thomas Colby, Mams Priest, in 1609, gave his estate for the use of the Poor; which in 1635 was laid out in the purchase of Hell-Brinks in this parish, the rent to be distributed yearly on St. Thomas's day.

William Conyers Esq; settled, in 1623 on some of his lands, a Rent-Charge of 7 l. 10 s. per annum, to be distributed in bread by equal portions to twelve poor persons each Sunday in the year.

Richard Garnet, Gent. 2 November 1625, charged his farm in Marsh-street with three pounds per annum, to be distributed to the Poor in bread, on the 24 Sundays after the beginning of November yearly.

Thomas Camul, in 1642, gave 2 acres in Broomfield, and 4 inclosed acres called Priors croft or Honey Corn field, in this parish; appointing the profits to twelve poor persons in penny loaves on each Sunday, and the residue to the poor in money on Christmaseve.

In 1650, the Parishioners purchased sixteen acres, in Winds beach field in this parish; the profits whereof for the yearly relief of the poor for ever.

Edward Corby, of London, Cook, gave, 5 April 1674, a messuage and lands, then rented at Seven pounds a year, for the use of the poor; and another of three pounds per annum, for a sermon and entertainment on the 20th of May for ever.

Robert Orler Gent. appointed, 3 February 1697, the foundation of a Free School; since settled in Low-Leyton, and made common to seven Boys of this and as many of that parish.

In 1705, Antony Compton, Gent. bequeathed money to buy a rent of twenty shillings per ann. for the use of the poor.

In 1714, Mr. Thomas Turner gave 130 l. to be laid out in a purchase of land; the profits to go to the poor in bread every Sunday.

Sigismund Trafford Esq; born, in 1643, in Capworth-street within the true bounds of this parish; in acknowledgment thereof, gave, in 1723, a clear rent charge of ten pounds a year, payable every Michaelmas, out of Grange-hill farm in Tid St. Giles's in Lincolnshire.

Mr. Edmund Wise gave, in 1734, five pounds a year to this parish, in free-lands in Low-Leyton, to keep in good repair his family-tomb on the South side of the Church.

But the most considerable Benefactor was Mr. Henry Maynard, merchant, second son of Charles Maynard Esq; born here in 1646, and who died in 1686. By his will dated 18 Novemb. 1686, he gave to this parish, for a purchase of lands for the Minister, 400 l. [for his better maintenance and support, and for preaching a sermon every Sunday in the afternoon, and every St. Thomas's day, and on the day of his death, yearly for ever.]—Also, For a purchase, to the use of the Master of the Free School, 200 l. for his better maintenance, and for reading Prayers in the church on every Sunday, and teaching eight poor children.—For the purchase of lands, 300 l. the profits whereof, after sermon on St. Thomas's day, and the day of his death (which was 27 November, 1686,) to be distributed amongst the poor and real necessitous inhabitants of this parish.—And for the payment of 10 s. to the Clerk of this parish for his attendance at sermon on the 27th of November, and for a ring to each of the Churchwardens, for distributing then his Charity, 50 l. He also bequeathed 50 l. for the repair of the Free-school here; and a legacy for the repair of the Church, as we shall presently mention. Accordingly an estate of 1000 l. purchase, and of the yearly rent then of 50 l. was purchased in 1690, and settled in 1706, to answer all and every of the said Legacies.

(n) Lett. pat. 5 & 6 Ph. & Mar. 21 Jaco. Sept. 9. (o) Pat. 32 Eliz.

(p) Book of Alienations, Part 1 p. 224. (q) Inquis.

The CHURCH, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, consists of a body and two aisles. The body, and south aisle both of Church and Chancel, are leaded; as is also the north aisle of the Church. But the Chancel, with the north aisle of the same, are tiled [K]. A square Tower of Stone contains 6 Bells.

Mr. Henry Maynard bequeathed 100 l. for repairing and beautifying this Church; and 50 l. for a piece of Communion-plate.

This Church, as well as the lordship of the place, belonging to Ralph de Toni above-mentioned, he gave two parts of the Tithes to the Abbey of Conches in Normandy, founded by his father Ralph. His wife Alice surviving him, gave the other two parts of the Tithes, with this Church, in 1108, to the Priory of the H. Trinity, otherwise called Christs-Church, near Aldgate in London: And this grant was confirmed by their son Roger de Toni [L]. The Prior and Canons of H. Trinity having bought of the Monks of Conches the two other parts of the Tithes [M], got the whole confirmed to themselves about the year 1200, by the Bishop of London, and a Vicarage ordained here: Of which Tithes and Rectory, and of the Advowson of the Vicarage, they continued possessed till their dissolution, in 1531, when they came to the Crown (r).

This Rectory, styled and reputed a Maner, and the Advowson of the Vicarage, were granted by K. Henry VIII, in 1544, to Paul, and Edmund Withipoll, and their heirs; to hold in ca. by the 20th part of a knight's fee; They presented to the Vicarage from 1552, to 1576 (s).

Sir Reginald Argall died 20 December 1611, possessed of this Maner, Rectory, and Church, and the Advowson of the Vicarage; with divers pieces of land belonging to this Rectory, containing by estimation 60 acres; holden of the King in capite, by the 20th part of a knight's fee.—John was his brother and successor (t).

Afterwards this estate was dismembred. The Maner of the Rectory came to Richard Cooper Esq; who gave it to his sister Elizabeth, that left it by will, in 1708, to Fanshawe of Comb in Somersetshire Esq; It now belongs to Joseph Fell Esq; and is leased to Mr. Watson. The Rectory house is down.

The Tith of corn and hay was some time ago in . . . Masfall; and now in John Asgill Esq;

The Advowson of the Vicarage was sold, in 1600, by Sir Edmund Withipole to Sir Reginald Argall, and John his brother, above-mentioned (u). The latter alienated it to Dr. Henry King, afterwards Bishop of Chichester; from whom it passed to his son—Henry King Esq; and from him to his two daughters and coheiresses, one wife of Edmund Wyndham Gent, and the other wife of Mr. Isaac Houblon. These conveyed it, about 1690, to

John Conyers Esq; from whom it hath descended to his grandson, . . . John Conyers Esq;

In this Church there was a Chantry founded by George Monox Gent. the same, we suppose, as Sir George above-mentioned, valued, at the suppression, at 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. a year. And in the certificate of Chantries it is said, that this Town was then 'a great Town, having yn yt to the ' number of 360 houseling people.'

This parish is rated to the land-tax at 4014 l.

(r) P. Le Neve's MS. Collect. & Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 634, 635. Monastic. Anglic. Vol. II. p. 80. (s) Lett. pat. 36 Hen. VIII. & Newcourt, p. 637. Inquis. 1 Edw. VI. Aug. 20. & Inquis. 28 Eliza. (t) Inquis. 10 Jaco. July 22. (u) Book of Alienations, Part I. p. 271.

[K] The north aisle of the Church was built by Sir George Monox, and bears his name; as doth the South-aisle, that of Thorn, from a citizen and merchant taylor of the name, who either built, or contributed to the building of it. William Lee was a considerable benefactor towards the roof of the Church.

[L] Roger's Confirmation was in these words. * Roberto Dei gratia Lond' Episcopo &c. Rogerus de Toenia salutem. —Quia ego Rogerus filius Radulfi de Toenio confirmo & donum quod mater mea Adeliza fecit Ecclesie Sancte Trinitatis London' & scilicet Ecclesiam Sancte Marie de Wulcomsto ex integro, exceptis ii partibus Decime de dominio quas habent Monachi de Castillione tantum in eodem manerio &c.

* L

cum incremento, ex dono Matris, dimid' virgate terre, & unius acre prati &c. pro anima patris mei Radulfi, & Hugonis fratris mei qui apud prefat' Ecclesiam sepultus est. Testibus &c. —Ex autographo in Cur' Recept' Scacc'. Bag of London Diocese.

[M] The Abbey of Conches first leased their two parts of the Tithes here for ever to the Priory of the H. Trinity, for the yearly rent of 25 s. —And afterwards, in 1240, released and quitted all their right to the said rent, for the sum of 22 marks. P. Le Neve's MSS. —This Abbey of Conches is sometimes styled the Abbey of St. Peter of Chatillon, because it stands in Chatillon, a suburb to Conches.

Edmund Chishull, B. D. 1 Septemb. 1708, upon Barker's d. [N]. . . . John Conyers, Esq;
 Samuel Collins, M. A. 18 May 1733, upon Chishull's d. Edward Conyers Esq;
 Tho. Wetenhall, M. A. 2 Janu. 1759, upon Collins's d. John Conyers Esq;

9 W O O D F O R D ,

was so named from the Ford in the Wood, or Forest, where now is Woodford-bridge. This Parish was one of the seventeen Lordships with which Earl Harold endowed his Abbey of Waltham-holy-cross, and was confirmed to that Monastery, with all its lands and appertenances, and liberties [O], by K. Edward the Confessor, in his charter, in 1062 (w).

The Canons of Waltham held it at the time of the Survey [P]. And when K. Henry II. converted the Secular Canons here into Regulars, in 1177, he confirmed Wodeforda to them; as did K. Richard I. with the Church, by his Charter dated 18 September 1198 (x).

Among other Liberties belonging to this Abbey, they were permitted to assart their lands in Wodford, and many other places; and enclose them with a ditch and low hedge; that they might take of their woods at their pleasure; to have the forfeitures and assarts of their own men; to hunt the fox, hare, and cat in the forest; that their dogs should not be expediated; as is shewn more at large in the Description of the Abbey, under the next parish (y).

The Maner, and Church, of this Parish continued in the Abbot and Monks till their dissolution 23 March 1540; at which time the Farm of Hill-house was lett for 30 l. a year: the rent of assise of the free and customary Tenents, was 4 l. 7 s. 10 d. $\frac{1}{2}$. Perquisites of Court, 4 l. 7. 7 d. New rent, 2 l. 8 s. (z).

In 1545, K. Henry VIII. granted this Maner with appertenances, 10 acres of meadow, lands called Elbury, and Hall-grove 18 acres and 3 roods, and the Advowson of the Rectory of Woodford, to John Lyon, and Alice his wife, and the heirs of the said John; to hold in capite by the 20th part of a knight's fee (a). K. Edward VI, in 1547, having got this estate of John Lyon, citizen and Alderman of London, in exchange for other lands in Lincolnshire, gave it to

Edward Fynes, Lord Clinton and Say; who by license, dated 28 November 1553, alienated the Maner of Woodford and Hill-house to Robert Whetston (b). This Robert was of London, and having married Margaret, sister and coheir of Francis Bernard of Suffolk, had by her—Bernard Whetston, father of—Sir Bernard Whetstone of Woodford. This last had three wives, 1. Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of John Calybut of Castle acre in Norfolk Esq; by whom he had, Bernard, Calybut, Dorothy, Mary, Anne, and Brigitta. But no issue is recorded by his 2 d. and 3 d. wives, which were 2 Anne, daughter of . . . Whalley, widow of Giles Paulet, fourth son of William Marquis of Winchester, remarried to Richard Bellingham Esq; and, 3 Mary, widow of Richard Bellingham of Newtimber in Suffex Esq;—Bernard his eldest son, married Margaret daughter of the same R. Bellingham, by whom he had Bernard; Mary, wife of Sir Thomas Stepney, Kt. Jane, wife of Jonathan Whetstone of Bernack in Northamptonshire Esq; Frances, wife of John Foy, Gent. Thomasina, and Barbara: And dying 16 August 1624, was succeeded by his son—Bernard, then upwards of 40 years of age (c).

After him, according to the best information I can obtain, it belonged to Lady Rowe, I presume widow of Sir Thomas Rowe, because both Sir Thomas and his Lady lye buried in the chancel here, without monument or inscription. Lady Rowe sold the estate to

Sir Benjamin Thorowgood Lord Mayor of London in 1685, and Richard Thorowgood, his son, conveyed it about the year 1707, to

Sir Richard Child, late Earl Tylney. His Lordship kept the Maner, but sold the maner-house to Christopher Crow Esq; He married Charlotte, eldest daughter of Edward-Henry Lee Earl of Litchfield, widow of Benedict-Leonard Calvert, Lord Baltimore: She dying 22 Janu. 1720, was buried in the Chancel of this Church, with a most curious monument. Mr. Crow having procured an act of Parliament in 1727 to enable him to sell this House, sold it to (w) Monastic. Anglic. Vol. II. p. 11. of the Abbey, (a) Lett. pat. 37 Hen. VIII. Pardons, part I. p. 286. & Lett. pat. 1 Mar.

(x) Ibid. 16.

(y) Forest Rolls, 5 Edward I.

(z) Valuat.

(b) Abbey-Lands exchanged with the Crown. Book of

2 Caro. Apr. 4.

[N] This learned person, Mr. Chishull, was Fellow of Corpus-Christi College in Oxford; and having a grant of the Traveller's place from that Society, he sailed from England 12 September 1698, and arrived, the 19th of November following, at Smyrna, where he was Chaplain to the English Factory till February 10 1701-2.—He published, 'Antiquitates Asiaticæ Christianam Æram antecedentes; Ex primariis Monumentis Græcis descriptæ, Latine versæ, Notisq; & Commentariis illustratæ. Accedit Monumentum Latinum Ancyranum.' Lond. 1728. fol. A continuation of this, in a larger Volume, which he styled 'Antiquitates Asiaticæ ex Inscriptionibus Græcis, &c.' was intended by him: but he did not live to finish it. He published also, 'A Charge of Heresy maintained against Mr. Dodwell's 'Epistolary Discourse &c.' 1707. 8vo. And two Aflize Sermons, in 1713. And, in 1747, the learned Dr. Mead published his 'Travels in Turkey and back to England.' fol.

[O] Wodeforda, cum omnibus ad se pertinentibus cam-pis, pascuis, pratis, silvis & aquis. . . . Monast. Anglic. Vol. II. p. 12. . . . The bounds of their territories in this parish, as described in the Monasticon, were, 'From Angrices burn, or brook, to the Baldernens Hatch; and from thence to the King's Hatch, and from the King's Hatch to Angrices burn again.' lb. p. 12. The brook called here Angrice, seems to be that which runs between this parish and Chingford, and so on to Hale End and Salisbury-hall. The two Hatches, or low Gates in the Forest, mentioned here, are at present unknown.

[P] Terra Canonicoꝝ See Crucis de Waltham. Hund' de Beventreu. Wdefort ten' semper Sancta Crux, Tempore Regis Edwardi, v' hid' Semper ii carucate in dominio. Tunc xiiii carucate hominum, modo viii. Semper xiiii villani. Silva d porcis. xxvi acre prati. Tunc i molendinum, modo nullum. Tunc iv bordarii, modo viii. Tunc iv servi, n' odo nullus. Tunc i animal, modo vii. c oves. A porci. xl capre. Semper valuit c solidos. Lib. Domeld. fol. 16 a. Tit. 8.

William Hunt Esq;

The Custom of the Maner of Woodford is Borough-Englisch. Whence this should arise, that the youngest son inherits, is hard to account for. However, it prevailed greatly in the Kingdom of the East-Saxons; and without question was the Custom of that part of the country, whence these came [2].

Buckhurst, alias Monken-hill, Monket-grove, and 20 acres called Maggot, in this parish, and Chigwell, belonged to Stratford-Abbey. After the suppression they were granted by K. Edward VI, in 1547, to John Lyon, and Alice his wife, as the Maner here; To hold Buckhurst in capite, by the 40th part of a knight's fee: and the Grove of the Honor of Windsor (d). Sir John Lyon, dyed possessed of the same 7 Septemb. 1565. He was Lord Mayor of London in 1554. — Richard Lyon, his brother Henry's son, was his heir. He departed this life 17 March 1579, leaving — Henry his son and heir, aged 27 years (e).

The following persons have also Lands, or Estates, here, Peter Eaton; Peter Godfrey; and Thomas Godfrey; Esqres. Mr. Robert Jones; Marton Rockliff; John Moxon; Robert Foster; Charles Collyer, Mr. Edward Green; Samuel Baker &c.

At Woodford-Row Richard Warner Esq; has a fine Garden, with a Labyrinth, adorned with several Greek inscriptions, and other curiosities.

This Parish partakes of Robert Rampston's Benefaction, so often mentioned above; being twenty shillings a year.

The Church, dedicated to St. Margaret, consists of a body and north and south aisles. The Chancel hath only a vestry on the north side. In the Tower are 6 Bells.

This Rectory hath always been appendent to, and gone with, the Maner.

The Parish of Woodford is rated to the land-tax at 1850l.

Woodford-Wells were formerly in repute, as purgative, and good for many illnesses; but are now entirely neglected.

Before I dismiss this Hundred, I shall observe, That there is within the circumference of it about 500 acres of Marsh-land, adjoining to the River Thames, and parted from Kent by that River; which, notwithstanding, belong to the Parish of Woolwich, and are rated, and pay taxes, as parcel of that Parish. How to account for it, is not easy; unless it appeared, that the River Thames had altered its course, and formerly ran on the north of this marsh-land. There formerly stood on it a Chapel of Ease, of which the foundations are visible, and some few Houses, which are now fallen down, except one, called the Devil's House; being an Ale-house near the Thames-Wall, much frequented in summer-time. This House, and about 100 acres of the land, belong to Sir Thomas Webster Bart.

Richard Maister, M. A. 22 Octob. 1703, upon Shelley's d. . . . Richard Thorowgood Esq;

James Altham, M. A. 11 April 1729, upon Maister's d. . . . Richard Visc. Castlemaine.

John Shepard, M. A. 11 April 1766, upon Altham's d. . . . Charles Wymondesfold Esq; pro hac vice.

(d) Lett. pat. 1 Edw. VI.

(e) Inquis. 7 Eliz. nu. 39. & Inquis. 23 Eliz. May 3.

[2] Dr. Plot makes a random guess, "that it was introduced by the Lord of the Manor's claiming the right of enjoying the bride, daughter of his tenant, on the wedding-night; therefore the villan, or slave, doubting whether the eldest son was his own, made the youngest heir." — Plot's Natural History of Staffordshire, p. 278. I believe it will not be found that this was ever an established practice. And it foils the Doctor's conjecture, that the Lords made laws for the tenants, not the tenants for themselves. — This custom seems rather to have been derived from that just and equitable maxim, which entitled the Children of the same Parents to a reasonable proportion of their inheritance, till the Feudal System settled the chief and almost the whole of the real Estates upon the eldest Son, in order to enable him to perform the Feudal Duties and Services. By the name of Borough, it seems to have been first, or chiefly, used in Boroughs, as it is still at Maldon in this County, and elsewhere. And Englisch plainly denotes that it was derived from our Anglo-Saxon ancestors. Now, it is well known, that the Northern Nations in general had a great Delicacy in matrimonial affairs; they appear to have been chaste; and not abandoned to lewdness, as the wild wandering goatish Ishmaelites, and their descendents, the Turks. — According to Littleton's Tenures, it is very improperly called Borough English, in the country. His words are: "some Boroughs have such a custom, that if a man have issue many sons, and dyeth, the youngest son shall inherit all the tenements which were his father's within the same Borough as heire unto his father, by force of the custom, the which is called Borough English." Littleton's Tenures, lib. 2. c. 10. §. 165. Upon which Sir Edward Coke makes this remark, "Neither in an upland towne can there be a custome of Borough English, or Gavelkind, but these are customes which may be in Cities or Boroughes." — As for Marcheta Mulieris, a lewd custom said to have been in Scotland till abolished by K. Malcolm III, it appears to have been the invention of some ignorant Writers; who mistook it for Maritagium; which, according to the Statute of Merton, c. 7. was a fee for the Marriage of him that was within age, of meer right pertaining to the lord of the fee.

T H E

HALF-HUNDRED

O F

WALTHAM.

IS bounded on the West by the river Ley; on the North by Harlow Hundred; on the East by that of Ongar, and a small part of Becontree's. It is of a triangular figure; about 10 miles and a half long from North to South, and 6 and a half from East to West where broadest; but in the Southern part it is but two miles, and less. Anciently it belonged to the Abbey of Waltham; At the suppression coming to the Crown, it hath since passed by grant to the owners of the site of the Abbey, the Families of Denny, Hay, Wake, and Jones.

There are in it only these four Parishes,

Waltham Holy-crofs.	Nafing, and
Epping.	Chingsford.

These four Parishes are within the Forest:

1. W A L T H A M

is the most considerable place in this Half-Hundred; to which it gives name, and also to part of the Forest of Essex. As to the origin of the name, it may be seen under Waltham-Stow.

'Tis situated near the river Ley, where it, parting into several streams, forms divers little islands. The distance of it from London is 12 miles: and it has a Market on Tuesdays, and two Fairs on May 14. and September 25, 26.

This place is of no great antiquity. The first mention we have of it is about the latter times of the Saxons, when Tovi, a man of great wealth and authority, Stalhere, or Standard-bearer to K. Cnute, induced by the abundance of Deer, built a number of Houses here, and peopled them with sixty six inhabitants. After his death, his son Athelstan soon squandered away the estate: whereupon K. Edward the Confessor, into whose hands it was come, bestowed this Village on his brother-in-law Harold, son to Earl Godwin; who built a monastery here (f).

As it was this Monastery that gave birth to this Town, or at least contributed to its growth and importance, we shall therefore begin our account of it with that foundation.

Tovi had begun a Church here for two Priests, and committed to their keeping a miraculous Crofs, said to have been discovered in a vision to a Carpenter far westward, and brought hither in a manner unknown; which was reported to work many wonders [R]. On account of that Crofs, this place obtained the name of Holy Crofs.

Harold becoming thus possessed of it, with all its appertenances; in 1062 founded here a College for a Dean, and eleven secular Canons; in memory of K. Edward, his Queen Ædith, his father and mother, and all his other relations. And endowed it with, Northland, now Northfield, wherewith he found the Church of this Town endowed; and with the following Maners, Alwartune, [] Lambehithe, [Lambeth, or Lambourn] Lukintone, [Loughton] Nethleswell; Nefingan; Passfelde, in High-Ongar; Tippedene [supposed to be Epping] Upminster; Walde, [South-Weld,] Wallifare, in Boreham; Wodeford; in this County. Bri-kendune; Hicche; and Wrmeley, in Hertfordshire. Alrichsey; and Melnho, in Bedfordshire. West-Waltham in Berkshire. All these K. Edward the Confessor confirmed to this House, with very ample Privileges, and Liberties (g).

And to them were afterwards added these Benefactions. Maud, first Queen to K. Henry I, gave them the Mill at Waltham; as did Adaliza his second Queen, all the Tithes in this parish, as well of her demesnes, as of her tenants. And other persons gave them several fine Meadows near their House.

(f) Camden's Britannia. See also J. Farmer's History of Waltham: p. 11, 12.

(g) Monastic. Anglic. Vol. II.

[R] De miraculis Crucis in Monteacuto per fabrum inventæ tempore Canuti, et de ejus deductione ad Waltham, MS. in Bibl. Cott. Julius D. vi. 2.

Hugh de Nevill gave them the maner of Thorendon.—John de Chishull, Bishop of London, appropriated to them the Church of South-Weld: Robert de Valoines that of All-Saints in Hertford: Juliana, daughter of Geffrey, that of Sudecamps; and Geffrey de Scalers that of Badburgham, both in Cambridgeshire: John, Bishop of Sarum, the Churches of Old and New Windsor: Simon le Bret gave them the Church of Wrangle, in Lincolnshire: John, son of Alward, that of Leverton, in the same county: Everard de Geist the Churches of Geist, and Geisthorpe; and the third part of that of Norton, in Norfolk: Roger de Gaist, the Church of Kateram, or Taterham in Surrey (b). They had also the Rectories, or great Tithes of Epping and Nasing, with the disposal of the Vicarage of the latter [s]. And the Advowsons of the Rectories of Alphamston, Lambourn, Loughton; Nettlewell, Woodford, Wormley; and the third turn in that of Great Parndon; with the advowson of St. Nicolas's Chapel, in Stanford le Hope.

K. Henry II. granted them the maners of Siwardestune, and Eppinges, Waltham-hall, in Takeley; and Stansted-Thele; with all their appertinances; and the House of Walter de Geldeford, for a lodging whenever they went to the King's court: The tithe of Hay of the whole meadow belonging to the Lordship of Waltham, &c. the land of Lamburne, and the tithes of Purlai. And amply confirmed all their possessions and privileges before recited: together with the land in Dunton, given them by the Chamberlain of that place.

K. Richard I. besides two very ample confirmations, added to those Grants the whole Maner of Waltham; and the great Wood; and Harold's Park, with liberty to inclose it for the use of the Canons; and all the wastes, and 300 acres of effarts in that maner; and the Market of this Town: And the parish of Nesinges, which was a member of Waltham, with all its wastes, and 160 acres of effarts: Together with the Half Hundred. Paying, in lieu of all services, the yearly sum of 60 l. by tale in the Exchequer, at Michaelmas (i).

In 1377, John Morrice gave them 40 acres; And, in 1383, John Morrice senr. and others, a messuage, some shops and land, in this parish, Nasyng, and Roydon (k).

John de Tany gave them the maner of Theydon Boys.

What other estates they had, best appears by the Survey of them taken at the dissolution. And they were, The maner of Katherines in Great Parndon; Waterman's maner, in Matching; a Farm in Shering; the maner of Abbots in Stanway; the maners and rectories of Worming-ford, Blakemore, Margaret-ing; Priors in Bromfield; the maner of Little Badow. These five last they got from K. Henry VIII. in exchange for the maner of Stansted Abbots in Hertfordshire. And they had also in that county the maner of Little Amwell, and the rectory of Great Hormead. Their maner of Walkfare in Boreham they had exchanged, together with Sude Camps and Orfeth, or Orseye in Cambridgeshire, for Shingle-hall and Copped-hall (l). But still they had at the time of their dissolution the maner of New-hall, then lett for 4 l. 13 s. 4 d. They had likewise a maner called Cullings; a considerable estate at Stanford le Hope; and some in Willingale: The farm of Cavellands, in Middlesex: a Quit-rent of 15 l. 13 s. 4 d. in Berking; and rents of assise in the parishes of St. Mary-Hill, and St. Mar. Paten, in London (m) [T].

This House was endowed with very great and special Privileges and Immunities, as may be seen in their ancient Charters (n): Particularly in that of K. Edward III; granting them very ample Liberties in Waltham, Nasing, and Epping, which were of the King's ancient demesne; allowing them to have two Fairs at Waltham; a Market, and a Fair, at Epping-heath; the same at Takeley: And Free-warren in many of their Maners (o) [U].

From its first foundation it was a royal Chapel, subject to no Archbishop, or Bishop, only to the see of Rome, and the King (p). But, since the Reformation, this Church hath been under the jurisdiction of the Bishop of London, and his Commissary.

The Abbot of Waltham was one of the twenty eight in this Kingdom, who were styled Mitred Abbots, and sat the 20th in order in the Great Council of the Nation.

A List of the Abbots may be seen in Mr. Newcourt's Repertorium, Vol. II. p. 629, 630. in the History of Mitred Parliamentary Abbies, by Br. Willis Esq; Vol. I. p. 191, and J. Stevens's Supplement to the Monasticon, Vol. II. p. 113.

Robert Fuller, the last Abbot surrendered it to K. Henry VIII, 23d. March 1540, at which time the whole yearly Revenues of it were 1079 l. 12 s. 1 d. according to Speed, or 900 l. 4 s. 3 d. according to Sir William Dugdale.

The Abbey's Possessions in this Parish, besides their yards, gardens, and other demesnes in their own hands, were, The maner or lordship of Waltham; rents of assise; and the rents of several large parcels of land, meadow, and pasture, lett to divers tenants; the farm of the Rectory, and of Waltham Grange; and of their demesnes in the four Hamlets, of Siwardston, Upshire, (b) Monasticon. Vol. II. p. 18. (i) Ibid. p. 17. other Volume of this History, p. 14. 55, 56, 77. 194. 232. 494 497. Commissioners, in the time of K. Henry VIII. (n) Monastic. Anglic. Vol. II. p. 11—18. Edw. III. n. 39. (p) Monastic. ibid. p. 14. col. 1.

[s] The Churches of Nasinge and Alrichsey, in particular, were appropriated to the clothing of the Canons. See Monastic. Vol. II. p. 18.

[T] As the revenues of this Abbey were large, the members of it lived in suitable plenty, sometimes magnificence; And were often visited by some of our Kings, particularly by K. Henry III. . . . T. Fuller's History of Waltham Abbey, p. 9.

(k) Inquis. 51 Edw. III. and 7 Ric. II. (l) See the (m) From the account taken by the King's (o) Cart. 6.

[U] Namely, at Takeley, Berton, and Abbots in Stanway and Lexden; Wormley, Brokesburn, Brykendon, Emwell, and Stansted: Alrichesse, and Melho: Wrangle, Leke, and Maunby: Badburgham, Abbyton, Sudecamps, Horsey, and West-Fen: Geythwait, Geyste, Skarning, and Rishworken: Wytheresfeld: and Kateram. Cart. 6. Edw. III.

Hallifeild, Wood-Reydon; and of the maner of Claverham-bury; two water-mills, &c. [W].

Whatever lands the Dean and Canons of this House might have been endowed with by their founder Earl Harold, in this parish; which is not plain; they seem to have been deprived of the chief of them at the Conquest. For, at the time of the Survey, they held only half a hide here. The rest and the chief was holden by Walcher, bishop of Durham [X]. After his cruel death 4 May 1080 (q), it reverted to the Crown, and was enjoyed by the two Queens of K. Henry I. as appears by their grants to the College.

The foundation for a Dean and Canons was of no longer continuance than from the year 1062 to 1177. For the Court of Rome having formed the design of introducing into all Convents Monks instead of Seculars, under the false pretence that the latter lived more irreligiously and carnally than the others [Y], K. Henry II. converted this College into a Monastery for an Abbot, and sixteen Monks of the Order of St. Augustin (r). In so doing, among other motives, he saved his money: For, to pacify the Pope, having vowed to erect an Abbey for Canons regular, to the honor of God and St. Thomas à Becket, for the expiation of his sins (s); it was much cheaper for him to make a small change in this than to erect a new one [Z]. However, from this time till the Dissolution, it continued an Abbey for Austin Monks.

The site and most of the demesnes of it remained in the Crown during the last part of K. Henry the Eighth's reign; who granted a 31 years lease of them to Sir Antony Denny (t), Gentleman of his bed Chamber, and one of the executors of his will; as we shall shew more at large presently, after taking a short Survey of this Parish.

The Parish of WALTHAM-HOLY-CROSS, or WALTHAM-ABBAY, is very large; comprehending Four Hamlets, or Districts; that are Maners, or were formerly so esteemed and called in Records, and holden of the Abbey, which had very near all the Lands within the bounds of this parish. Those four Hamlets, are, 1. Siwardston, about two miles south from the Church. 2. Roydon, or Woodredon, two miles and upwards east. 3. Upshire, north-east. And 4. Hallifeild, a mile and a half north, of the same.

Most of these centered in Sir Antony Denny, and his heirs. K. Henry VIII. had granted him, in 1540, the Demesnes, with Sigmors Downe, parcel of Hallifeild-hall (u). In 1547 K. Edward VI. made him this very large Grant; namely, The site of the Monastery, and the Park, of Waltham; the Rectory, and tithes of the same, and the Advowson of the Vicarage; the maner of Claverbambury; and Waltham-grange; the Tildhouse, with these following lands, Cobbfeild 280 acres, Shepecotefeild 244 acres, the Warden 47 acres, Pukwellfeild 45 acres, Perifeild, 30 acres, Northfeild 112 acres, the Fortie acres 53 acres, Estfeild 200 acres, Scrutehills in five pieces 122 acres, Northlease 23 acres, the Curtell 10 acres, Ware meadow 38 acres, in Cobbmeade 30 acres, in Tonmead 24 acres, Northmead 23 acres, in le Trethey meadow 28 acres, Printfeild and Printmead, and the tithes of hay of the same; the tenement of Upshire; Floodlands, and Hedge crofts, 28 acres; the maner or tenement called Prickland with the tithes; a tenement called le Pytancer in Sewardston with the tithes of the same; Sulling myll meads 41 acres: with other smaller parcells (w).—The 1st. of July the same year, by license, he purchased of Sir Ralph Sadleir, to whom they had been granted, The maner, or farm, of Woodredon, and the maner of Sewardston, or Sewardston-bury, with the tithes belonging to both of them; Lands here called Hookes; Pynnacles [A]; and Cuffons-leasures 31 acres; in Hallifeild;

(q) Vide Will. Malmesbur. ed. 1601. p. 110.

(r) J. Bromton apud Decem Scriptores, col. 1118, 1119.

(s) Lett. pat. 32 Hen. VIII.

(w) Pat. 1 Edw. 6. pars 9.

(r) Decem Scriptores, col. 598. 1118, 1119. 1434.

(t) T. Fuller's History of this Abbey, p. 12.

[W] How considerable the value of these was, appears by the yearly rents they were lett for, at the time of the Suppression; namely, Waltham-grange, 93 l. 3. 9 d. The Rectory, 29 l. 15 s. 6 d. the water-mill, 26 l. 13 s. 4 d. Rents of assise, of free and customary tenants, 38 l. 7 s. 5 d. ob. Farms of divers lands, 67 l. 4 s.—The value of lands is now eight or ten times more than it was then.

[X] Terra Episcopi Dunelmensis in Excessa. Dimidium Hundredi de Waltham. Waltham tenuit Haroldus, Tempore Regis Edwardi, pro i manerio & xl hidis. Semper lxxx villani, & xxiv bordarii. Tunc vi servi, modo vii. Tunc vii carucate in dominio, modo vi. xxvii carucate hominum. Silva una, & cc porci, lxxx acre prati. ii runcini, xx animalia, lxxx oves, xii capre, xl porci. Pastura est ibi una que valet xviii solidos. Tunc i molendinum, modo iii. v piscine. Et tunc xx censarii, modo xxxvi. Et i carucata potest in manerio restaurari. Huic manerio adjacent ii Sochemanni, tenentes vi hidas T. R. E. modo v. Et medietatem sexte hide habet Sancta Crux: Et alteram partem tulit Willermus de Warena, & iv sochemannos de ii hidis & dimidio virgate. Et adhuc pertinebat huic manerio i hida xv acr' minus, quam inde tulit idem Willermus. Et Ranulfus frater Ilgeri xxx acras terre, & iv prati. Omnes illi Sochemanni qui ibi modo sunt, habent vii hidas & xv acras, & habebant T. R. E. In eorum dominio iv carucate, modo iv & dimidium, & semper i villanus. Tunc vi bordarii, modo viii. Tunc ii servi, modo nullus. Silva clxxxii porcis, xvi acre & dimidium prati, & iv acre pasture. De hoc toto & de manerio habebat Haroldus T. R. E. xxxvi libras; & homines Episcopi appreciantur lxiii libr' & v solidos & iv denarios, modo v ut alii homines testantur. Valet c libras. Et Londonie fuerunt xii domus pertinentes manerio, que reddunt xx solidos; Et i Porta quam Rex dedit antecessori, que etiam reddit xx solidos. Lib. Dome. Tit. vii.

[Y] That is the pretence used in K. Henry's Charter, . . . Cum in ea Canonici seculares nimis irreligiose & carnaliter vixissent, ita quod infamia conversationis illorum modum excedens multos scandalizasset. . . . illis amotis quos infamiae nota maculaverat. . . . Monastic. Vol. II. p. 13. But the true reason was, because most of those secular Canons used to marry, contrary to the Pope's unnatural decrees.

[Z] In K. Richard the 1st. reign, the Abbot of Waltham altered the course of the river Ley, for the advantage of Navigation; having obtained for that purpose the following license from William Longchamp, Bishop of Ely, Lord Chancellor, and Governor of the realm in the absence of the King into the Holy Land. . . . Vicecomiti Essex, salutem. Sciatis quod dedimus licentiam Abbati de Waltham avertendi cursum aque de la Lui in Villis de Waltham sicut voluerit, sine dampno alicujus, & ad commodum Navigii: Et ideo tibi precipimus quod hoc ei facere permittas sine impedimento. Teste meipso apud Westmonasterium nono die Septembris. Cartulary of this Abbey, fol. 103.

[A] Hookes and Pynnacles are sometimes called Maners; and were holden of the Abbot of Waltham Holy-cross by Sir John Say, who dyed in 1478. Inquis. 18 Edw. IV. with with the tithes of them; and Nasing.—The 25th of June before, John Earl of Warwick obtained leave to alienate to him Harolds Park, most of the lands of which lye in Nasing, but the House stands in Waltham (x). So that we see, Sir Antony Denny acquired almost all the lands belonging to this great Abbey in this parish; and dyed 10 Septemb. 1549, at Cheshunt, possessed of the maner of Sewardston, the Rectory of this place, 2000 acres of arable, meadow, pasture, and wood; and 100 acres called Hawkes farm; and the maners of Claverham-bury; and Hallyfeild; all which he held of the King in capite, by knight's service; and were then of the yearly value of 146l. 16s. 7d. ob. (y). His widow Joane, afterwards acquired, or got a grant, in 1553, of the maners and lordships of Waltham, and Nasing, three mills, a cottage, and a tenement called the Hermitage: to hold in capite (z). She held them, together with all the Courts, Fairs, Liberties, profits &c. [B] at the time of her decease, 15 May 1553 (a).

Sir Antony Denny, to whom these large grants were made, was a favorite, and one of the Gentlemen of the Privy Chamber, to K. Henry VIII [C]. In 1537, 1539, and 1541, that King had given him great revenues in Hertfordshire, belonging to the Abbey of St. Albans, and other dissolved monasteries (b). The family was seated at Cheshunt in the said County, and derived themselves from John Denny Esq; who served K. Henry V. in his wars in France, and being slain there was buried, with his second son Thomas, in the Chapel of St. Denis, no small honor in those days. His descendents were—Henry,—William, and—Edmund. The latter was constituted one of the Barons of the Exchequer, 6 May 1514, and dyed 22 Decemb. 1520 (c).—Thomas, his second son by his wife, Elizabeth daughter of George Mannoek, had nine children, of whom—Sir Antony, the second son, obtained this estate, as above-mentioned. He was one of the Knights for the County of Hertford in the 1st. Parliament of K. Edw. VI. We have mentioned before the time of his death, but cannot find where he was buried. By his wife, Joane, daughter of Sir Philip Champernon of Devonshire, a lady of great parts and beauty, and a favorer of the Reformation, that dyed in 1553, he had two sons, Henry, and Edward: and three daughters; Douglas, married to John Dive; Mary, to Thomas Astley; and Honora, to Thomas Wingfeild, Esquires. Of Edward, the second son, an account is given below [D].—Henry Denny Esq; the eldest son, born in 1540, succeeded his father: and was married twice. By his first wife Honora, daughter of William Lord Gray of Wilton, he had two sons, and several daughters; of whom Anne was married to George Goring of Ovingden in Suffex Esq; By his second wife, Elizabeth, daughter of John Lord Grey of Pirgo, he had Henry, that dyed without issue, and two daughters that deceased in their infancy. He dyed 24 March 1573-4, possessed of the site of the Monastery of Waltham, with appertenances, then of the yearly value of 246l. the Park 120l. the maner of Sewardston or Sewstonbury 23l. Halifeild-hall 15l. 6s. the maner of Woodrydon and Prickland 13l. the maner of Claverhambury 27l. the Rectory of Waltham 24l. Harolds Park 4l. 16s. lands and tenements at Gallow-hill 5l. other parcels 36s. 8d. Nasingbury 94l. 1s. 3d. and the Rectory there, 16l.—Robert, his eldest son and heir, then only 9 years old succeeded him (d). But he dying 12 August 1576, was succeeded by his brother—Edward Denny, Esq; born 14 August 1569 (e). He was knighted in 1589; and when K. James I. passed from Scotland to London at his accession to the throne, Sir Edward, being then High-Sheriff of Hertfordshire, met him with a noble retinue of 140 men suitably apparelled [E] and well mounted: and made his Majesty a present of a fine horse with rich accoutrements (f). On the 27th of October 1604, he was summoned to Parliament by the title of Baron Denny of Waltham: and advanced by patent, 24 Octob. 1626, to the degree of Earl of Norwich (g). He

(x) Pat. 1 Edw. VI. partes 6 & 8. (y) Inquis. 4 Edw. VI. nu. 84. (z) Lett. pat. 7 Edw. VI. (a) Inquis. 7 Edw. VI. nu. 23. (b) Statute 33 Hen. VIII. and Chauncy, p. 280. 283. 301. 399. 460. See Biographia Britannica, Vol. III. p. 1648. (c) Dugdale Chronica Series. (d) Inquis. 16 Eliz. June 18. See also his second wife's epitaph in this Church: She was remarried to Sir Edward Grevyll, by whom she had Sir Fulk Grevyll, &c. (e) Inquis. 18 Eliz. Nov. 8. (f) T. Fuller's Worthies, in Hertfordsh. p. 31. & Stow's Annales, p. 822. (g) S. Segar Honores Anglicani.

... In ancient times, they were held by one Vitalis, and his son William, and his grandson Philip: The latter living in adultery with Edith, wife of Alcher, or Aucher, owner of Copped-hall, Richard Fitz-Aucher, son of Edith, caused this Philip to be arraigned and hanged unjustly for a robbery, and the burning the house of William Fitz-Audelyne, of Stapleford, which had been done by certain thieves, and not by the said Philip. Reg. of Waltham-Ab.

[B] T. Fuller says, she bought of K. Edward VI. for the sum of 3000 l. and upwards, the reversion in fee of Waltham, [by which he means the Maner] with large privileges in the Forest adjoining. Hist. of the Abbey, p. 13.

[C] Sir John Cheke bestows the highest encomiums upon him. See his life, by J. Strype, p. 219, 220. As doth also Roger Ascham, in these words. 'Religio, doctrina, respublica, omnes curas tuas sic occupant, ut extra has tres res, nullum tempus consumas.' ... Epistol. edit. Oxon. 1703. p. 329, and p. 101. He appears to have been a great encourager of learning, and learned men.

[D] This Edward was a knight, Gentleman of the Privy

Chamber to Qu. Elizabeth, one of the Council of Munster in Ireland, Governor of Kerry and Desmond, where his posterity hath since flourished, and Colonel of some Irish forces there. He departed this life 11 Febr. 1599, about the 52d. year of his age, and was buried in the south aisle of Waltham Abbey-Church; where a sumptuous monument was erected to his memory by his widow, Margaret, daughter of Pierce Edgecombe, of Mount Edgecombe in Cornwal Esq; she was once Maid of honor to Qu. Elizabeth, and lived 48 years a widow after her husband's decease, not dying till 24 April 1648, aged 88. She lies buried in Bishop's Stortford-Church, with an epitaph. They had seven sons at least: one of them, Charles, senior Fellow of King's College Cambridge, dyed 29 December 1635, aged 38 years, and is buried by his mother. See Epitaphs in this Church; and Sir Henry Chauncy, p. 197.

[E] In blue livery coats, and white doublets, hats and feathers, and all well mounted on horses with red saddles. Stow, p. 822.

dyed died 20 December 1630 [F], and was buried in this Church. By his lady, Mary, third daughter of Thomas Earl of Exeter, he had one daughter, his sole heir, named Honora. She was married, 6 January 1606-7, through the favor and countenance of K. James I, to one of his servants and attendants from Scotland into England, Sir James Hay Kt. to whom he granted the title of Lord Hay, with precedence next to the Barons of England, but without place or voice in Parliament. The 29th of June 1615 he was advanced to the title of Baron Hay of Sauley; and, 5 July 1617, to the further title of Viscount Doncaster; and, 13 September 1622, to that of Earl of Carlisle. He was also Master of the Great Wardrobe, Gentleman of the robes to K. James I, a Privy Counsellor, Knight of the Garter; and first Gentleman of the bed Chamber to K. Charles, I. In 1619, and 1622, he was sent Ambassador into Germany and France, where he lived in such splendor that he impaired his estate, as he did otherwise by his remarkable Hospitality. His Lady Honora dying, he took to his second wife, in November 1617, Lucy one of the daughters of Henry Earl of Northumberland. He himself departed this life 25 April 1636, leaving by his first lady—James, Earl of Carlisle, his only son and heir, who was a great sufferer for the cause of K. Charles I. during the civil wars. He married Margaret, third daughter of Francis Earl of Bedford, but died in October 1660, without issue. His widow was remarried to Robert Earl of Warwick, and afterwards to Edward Earl of Manchester; and enjoyed the chief of this estate in jointure till her decease (b).

Then it coming to the sisters of Charles Goring, Earl of Norwich, in right of their grandmother, Anne, one of the daughters of Henry Denny Esq; (i) as above-mentioned, they sold it to the trustees of

Sir Samuel Jones of Northamptonshire. He gave it to Samuel, fifth son of Sir William Wake [G] of Clevedon in Somersetshire, Bart. who thereupon took the surname of Jones, and was Sheriff of this County in 1699. This last left it to his nephew, —Charles, second son of Sir Baldwin Wake, who also took the surname of Jones; and married Elizabeth eldest daughter of Sir Samuel Vanacker Sambroke Bart. but died 21st. March 1739-40, without issue; being succeeded by — Sir Charles-Wake Jones. — Sir William-Wake Jones died in September 1765, and was succeeded by his son.

But part of this great estate was dismembred upon the death of James Earl of Carlisle: He having devised in his will, 8 March 1660, the Maners of Sewardston, and Woodredon to William Earl of Bedford, and other trustees, in order to be sold.

SIWARDSTON was accordingly purchased of them; 20 October 1674, by William Pocock, Gent.—It belonged afterwards to James Southerby Esq; and then to his son—James Southerby Esq;

This Hamlet is said to have been formerly a distinct Parish, so named from a Saxon owner, one Siward. There is still a heap of rubbish, called the ruins of the old Church.

WOODREDON, or Roydon, stands upon an eminence, and bounds that most delightful prospect, which Chesthunt, and that part of Hertfordshire, enjoy. It was sold by the trustees above-mentioned; and belonged in 1742 to John Gibson Esq; and afterwards to his wife's mother, Mary Greene.

The Maner of UPSHIRE and HALLIFIELD continued in the Crown, after the suppression of the Abbey [H], till 1571, when Qu. Elizabeth granted it to Richard Hill, and William James; together with 91 acres of arable, meadow, and pasture, and many other parcels, and woods; of which the measures and quantity are not specified: woods and underwoods in the Forest of Waltham; two parcels in the Queen's mead; the Dean's house in the Church-yard, then in the Curate's possession, and many other tenements and messuages: several Fisheries, and Islands, in the water adjoining: a water-mill, &c. (k).

The 4th. of October 1670, a capital messuage, and 100 acres in these Hamlets, belonged to Henry Wollaston of Shenton Esq;

Of late, Hallifield-hall with appertinances, hath been in the Collard family of Albanes in Bernston. [See in the other Volume, p. 450.] Ady Collard Esq; died possessed of it in 1747, and it is now in his heirs.

At a Forest-Court, held 4 October 1670, before Aubrey, Earl of Oxford, Chief Justice in eyre of the Forests on this side Trent, and Steward of the Forest of Essex, The Claim of the Lord of the Maner of Waltham upon this Forest, with other Liberties, Immunities, and Privileges, &c. was very ample and extensive; comprehending whatever seemed at any time to have been granted to the Abbey (l). It is sufficient for me just to mention that such a Claim was made, to which all persons concerned may refer.

The Inhabitants of ancient messuages and tenements in Sewardston Hamlet, as well free as customary, claimed common of pasture in all the wastes there, the whole year, for neat-beasts,

(b) S. Segar, as above; and Dugdale's Baron. Vol. II. p. 419. 427.

(k) Lett. pat. 14 Eliza.

(l) See the Charters to the Abbey in the Monasticon, Vol. II.

[F] He made his will 22 August 1630, by which he left Sewardston to his son-in-law, the Lord Viscount Doncaster, and Earl of Carlisle.

Arms of Denny. Gules, a saltier, argent, between 12 crosses, or.

[G] A pedigree of the ancient family of Wake, or Wac, is in Dr. Stukely's Itinerarium Curiosum, p. 9. See also the other Volume of this History, p. 221.

Arms of Wake. Or, two bars, gules, in chief three tor-teaux. Crest. On a wreath a Wake's knot.

[H] The revenues of the Abbey, at the time of the Suppression, in Upsire, were, Rents of assise of free and customary tenants, 15 l. 17 s. 6 d. Farm of some lands, 21 s. and 20 d. — In Hallifield, Rents of assise of free and customary tenants, 7 l. 6 s. ob. Farm of lands, 13 s. 4 d. Farm of ten meadows in Hallifield and Waltham, 3 l. 6 s. 3 d. — Survey of the Abbey's revenues.

and horse-beasts; Pannage for their hogs, except in the forbidden, or fence, month [*]. And common of estovers, or liberty of cutting wood, on the wastes, sufficient for their firing, from All-Saints to St. George's; to be drawn away each time on a sledge, only with two horses.

The customary tenants of Upsire Hamlet claimed, in the waste of the Forest, common of pasture all the year, for all their commonable cattle, except in the forbidden month; and common of estovers, by prescription, in the woods called Otehawes, Redding-hills, Woodriddens, Harth hills, Long-running, Burned heath, Leadyng Queane, High beach green, and Amesbury.

The Lord of the maner of Hallifeild claimed to hold a capital messuage and 100 acres in the Hamlet of Hallifeild and Upsire; and to have free liberty to cut trees and wood growing upon his own grounds, for repairs, and hedge bote, and fire bote.

HAROLDS PARK, so named from Earl Harold, part of whose demesnes it was, and given by him to this Abbey; is about 3 miles North-east from the Church. The house stands in this parish, but most part of the land is in Nasing, being upwards of 200 acres. See under Nasing.

Warleys, is a beautiful seat in this parish, which was inhabited by the late Richard Morgan Esq; and afterwards by his widow.

The following persons have also some lands and estates in this parish. Thomas-Stacy Grubb; Richard Monday; and William Noel, Gent. Richard Hunt, and Jonas Hanway, Esq; Mr. Henry Clarke; George-Richard Carter; Thomas Hanway; John Henniker; Thomas Waller; George-Edward Packingham; James Legg; John Sanders; William Burrell; Joseph Mason; Thomas Foster; Curtis Stock; Richard Holland; Thomas Jessup; Joseph Finch; Thomas Stacy &c.

This parish receives forty shillings yearly, part of Mr. Robert Rampston's gift above-mentioned.—Robert Catrow gave, in 1597, twenty shillings a year to the poor.—Robert Brown, the same year, thirty shillings.—Henry Wolaston, in 1616, two pounds twelve shillings.—Robert Dane, ten shillings.—George Weylet, in 1691, forty shillings. And—Robert Grubb, also forty shillings a year. See a fuller account of these Benefactions in J. Farmer.

The CHURCH of this Abbey was also for the use of the parishioners. It was dedicated at first to the Holy Cross, pretended to have been brought here; and afterwards to St. Laurence.

It cannot be supposed, that Earl Harold could make any great progress in the building, during the four years he lived after having laid the foundations. Therefore it was undoubtedly built, with the rest of the Abbey, by degrees, and with the assistance of several benefactors, as low, or even after the reign of K. Henry II. 'Tis a Gothic edifice, rather large than neat, firm than fair, and very dark. The great pillars are wreathed with indentings, which are reported to have been formerly filled up with brass. To the south side of the Church adjoins a Chapel, now converted into a School; and formerly called our Lady's, because there was founded in it a Chantry of that name: and under it is a very fair arched Charnel-house, to which belonged a Gild, called the Charnel, well endowed with houses and lands, in this parish and Reydon; granted, 12 Novemb. 1548, to Thomas Golding Esq; (m) [I]. The whole was formerly well leaded, but now tyled.

In the middle stood the Tower, cathedral-wife. Part of it falling down soon after the surrender of the Abbey, probably in pulling down the Chancel and Choir, a wall was run up at the east end of the Church; and a handsom Tower erected at the west end; 86 feet in height from the foundation to the battlements. This was done in the year 1558 (n), at the charge of the parishioners. In this Tower there are 6 Bells.

William Lake, and Thomas Stock, in 1637, settled an Estate for the repair of this Church.

There was, in the Infirmary belonging to this House, a Chapel dedicated to St. Thomas the Martyr, [Becket] consecrated by William, bishop of Hereford, in 1188: And supposed to be instead of what K. Henry II. designed to have done in the memory of the said Thomas (o).

The Abbey having engrossed all the Tithes, and supplied the Cure by one of their own members; this Church remained, at the Dissolution, only a Donative, or Curacy, with a small stipend of 8 l. a year. But, in the last century, Edward Earl of Norwich settled a hundred pounds a year upon the Curate and his successors, payable out of the estate of Claverham-bury; with a House, and other good accommodations. The Advowson of the Living is in the owner of the site of the Abbey.

The founder, K. Harold, was buried in this Church, with his two brothers Gyrth and Leofwine. Since the demolition of the Chancel, or of a Chapel thereto adjoining, the place of his Sepulture is within the garden of the Lord of the maner. Over his grave was laid a plain, but rich, gray Marble Stone, with a cross fleurie carved upon it, and a Latin epitaph (p). The last account we have of it is, that it was at Waltham-mill; and seen there by Dr. Uuedal of Enfield. Towards the end of Qu. Elizabeth's reign, his coffin was discovered by Sir Edward Denny's gardiner, being of a hard stone, and covered with another; wherein the bones lay in their proper order, without any kind of dirt, but upon the touch mouldered into dust (q).

This Town gave birth to Roger de Waltham, Canon of St. Paul's, and a Writer, in the thir-

(m) T. Fuller's History of this Abbey, p. 6. 20. Account of Chantry-lands, & Lett. pat. 2 Edw. VI. on a stone at the west end. (o) From the Dedication. (p) Weever's Funeral Monum. p. 643. &c. Fuller's Worthies, in Essex, p. 320. & J. Farmer, p. 170. &c.

(n) Date (q) T.

[*] That is, fifteen days before old Midsummer-day, and fifteen days after.

[I] The Chantry-priest was called the Charnel Priest.

Concerning Thomas Golding, to whom this Chantry was granted, see in the other Volume, p. 328.

teenth century (r). And to John de Waltham, Keeper of the Privy Seal in the reign of K. Richard II. (s).

The learned Joseph Hall, afterwards Bishop of Exeter, and Norwich, was Minister of this Parish. And so was Thomas Fuller D. D. Author of the Church-History of Britain, The Worthies of England &c. [*I].

Waltham, with its Hamlets, is rated to the land-tax as follows. Waltham-Abbey 1870l. Siwardston, 1772l. 2s. Roydon, 752l. Upshire, 1756l. 2s. Hallifield, 1677l. 1s.

Mr. Laphorne
John Capon B. LL.

Feb. 1716, upon Darby's d. . . . } Charles-Wake Jones Esq; upon Laphorne's d. . . . }

2 EPPING

is east north-east of Waltham-Abbey, and divided into two parts; namely, Upland, where the Church is situated; and Townside, where the Town stands. It was named probably from its upper or higher situation; qu. Upping, or upper pasture. We find a Hamlet in Waltham called Upshire. Epping-street is of later date than the Church. The ancient way from Harlow to London, was from the corner of Wintry-Wood, where the turnpike stands, across the Forest to Abridge. John Baker of Epping mercer, in his will dated 29 Sept. 1518, charged an estate called Stonards in Theydon-Gernon, for repairing the Road between Harlow and London, and for charitable uses. This seems to have been for the sake of Epping-street, to induce Travellers to go that way, and the intention was answered.

The lands in this parish are entred, in Domesday-book, under two different Hundreds. What belonged to the Canons of Waltham is set down under that Hundred; and the other part under the Hundred of Harlow.

Those lands were divided afterwards into the following Maners. 1. The Maner of Epping-Bury, and Epping-Presbyter. 2. Copped-Hall. 3. Shingle Hall. 4. The Maner of Chambers. 5. . . that of Gills. 6. . . Campions. 7. . . Madeleys. 8. The Maner of Hayles.—Within this parish are also, Epping Long Green; Copped-hall Green; Ryse-street; Linset-street; Epping-place; and Gregory's.

The Maner of EPPING.

Epping-bury, the Maner-house, lies in a bottom by the side of the road, near a mile south south-east from the Church.

This was part of the possessions wherewith Harold endowed his Convent of Waltham: Or it was given to it, about the time of the foundation, by some benefactor: For it is said in Domesday-book, That Holy-Cross always held Epping, for a Maner [K].

In the eastern Extremity of this parish, partly in it and partly in that of Epping, by the side of Copped-hall park, is a fine old Camp, inclosing 11 acres, 2 roods, and 20 perches; commonly called Ambres Bank. The new road from Debden-green to Epping goes through it. Hereabouts appears to me to have been fought the decisive Battle between Boadicea and the Romans; as I have mentioned in the History of Colchester, Book I. p. 23.

Some have imagined (t), That this maner is the same that is called Tippedene in Edward the Confessor's charter to Waltham; the two first letters Ti, being by error written instead of E. To enable the reader to judge whether it was so, or no, we shall give below the boundaries of Tippedene [L], from the Saxon description of them in the Monasticon (u).

When K. Henry II. converted this House into an Abbey for Regulars, he granted and gave to them Eppinges with all its appertinances [M]; And the land at Eppinges which Bruning the Priest held of the Canons; the Tithes of the King's lordship in the same town; and the Church with all its appertinances: And the land of Helyoth (w). From the words give and grant some have been apt to infer, That K. Henry II. was the first donor of this estate to Waltham. But those general words are well known to be used in such Charters, as are Confirmation-Charters only.

However, this Lordship being confirmed to the Abbot and Monks of Waltham Holy-Cross, continued in their possession till the Suppression of the Monasteries. Then it came to the Crown, in which it continued during the remainder of K. Henry the Eighth's reign, the reigns of K. Edward VI. and Qu. Mary; and part of Qu. Elizabeth's.

On the 15th of April 1558, Qu. Maryannex'd this Maner, and that of Copped-hall, &c. among others, to the Dutchy of Lancaster (x).

In 1572, Qu. Elizabeth granted the maner of Epping, with appertinances, to Thomas Henneages and Anne his wife, in fee tail; To hold of the Dutchy of Lancaster, by the 20th part of a knight's fee (y).

Sir Thomas Henneage was a considerable person in his time; being Captain of the Guards, Treasurer of the Chamber, Vice-Chamberlain of (r) See J. Bale, p. 302. & Pitts, p. 321. & Dr. Tanner's Bibliothec. (s) Hen. de Knighton, col. 2685.

(t) N. Salmon, p. 31. (u) Monastic. Vol. II. p. 12.
Phil. & Mar. (y) Pat. 14 Elizab.

[*I] He had such an extraordinary memory, that he was able to repeat 500 strange words after twice hearing of them; and to make use of any man's sermon verbatim, if he once but either saw or heard it. Dav. Lloyd's Memoires &c. fol. p. 523.

[K] Terr, Canonicorum Sancte Crucis de Waltham. Hund' de Waltham. Eppingam tenuit semper Sancta Crux pro manerio & pro ii hidis, & xv acris. Semper i carucata & dimidium in dominio, & ii bordarii, & ii servi. Silva l porcis, iii acre prati, x animalia, i runcinus, xx porci, xx oves, viii capre;

Et valuit xv solidos. Lib. Domesd. fol. 15 b. Tit. 8.

[L] These are the land meeres, or bounds, of Tippedene. First Tippaburne, or brook; from that brook, up to the heath or plain; thence to the bounds of the valley with its back inclosure: so to the water; and along that till you come again to Tippedene. Monasticon, as above, p. 12.

[M] Concedimus ergo & donamus. . . . Eppinges cum omnibus ad se pertinentibus, campis, pascuis, pratis, silvis & aquis. — Ibid. p. 14.

the Household; Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaster, and Privy-Counsellor to Queen Elizabeth [N]. At the time of his decease, which happened 17 October 1595, he held this maner of Epping, with appertenances, and Wintry Park, Common, or Wood; the Rectory, with all tithes of every kind thereto appertaining; and the advowson of the Vicarage: also a weekly market, and two fairs yearly, in Epping. And divers other messuages in this and parishes adjoining (z). His wife, Anne, daughter of Sir Nicolas Pointz by Joane daughter of Thomas Lord Berkley, dyed 30 November 1593. They left an only daughter and heir, Elizabeth, born in 1557. She was then married to Sir Moyle Finch of Eastwell in Kent, son of Sir Thomas Finch, alias Herbert, lineally descended from Henry Fitz-Herbert, Chamberlain to K. Henry I; and who had the name of Moyle from his mother, daughter and coheir of Sir Thomas Moyle. Sir Moyle Finch was created a Baronet 29 June 1611. He dyed 18 December 1614, having had seven sons, and four daughters; namely, 1. Sir Theophilus, who departed this life before him, leaving no issue. 2. Sir Thomas. 3. John. 4. Sir Heneage, father of Heneage, created Lord Finch, and Earl of Nottingham, ancestor of the present Earl of Winchelsea and Nottingham, &c. Of the daughters, Anne was married to Sir William Twisden, of East Peckham in Kent; Catharine to Sir John Wentworth, of Gosfeild in this County. [See in the other Volume, p. 382.] Their mother, the Lady Elizabeth, was created Viscountess of Maidston 8 July 1623, and advanced to the title of Countess of Winchelsea 12 July 1628, with limitation to the heirs male of her body lawfully begotten. She dying 13 March 1633, was succeeded by her second son—Thomas, Earl of Winchelsea (a). In 1635, he sold this Maner and estate to

William Lord Grey, for the sum of 21,000 l. it being then of the yearly value of 1200 l. He was the eldest son of Sir Ralph Grey of Chillingham in Northumberland, descended from Sir John Grey, Lord Powis, made Earl of Tankerville 31 January 1418.—The purchaser of this estate was created a Baronet 15 June 1619; and, 11 February 1623, Baron Grey of Werke in the county of Northumberland. By Anne his wife, daughter and coheir of Sir John Wentworth of Gosfeild, he had, Thomas, who dyed 16 Febr. 1671-2. Ralph: and two daughters, Elizabeth, that dyed 22 Novemb. 1668; and Catharine, married first to Sir Edward Moseley, Bart. and afterwards to Sir Charles North Kt. eldest son and heir of Dudley Lord North; summoned to parliament in 1673, by the title of Lord Grey of Rolleston. William Lord Grey was buried in this Church 7 August 1674.—Ralph, Lord

Grey, the second surviving son and heir, dyed 15 June 1675. By his lady, Catharine, daughter and heir of Sir Edward Ford, of Harting in Suffex, he had 3 sons, Ford, Ralph, and Charles. —Ford, the eldest son and heir, was created Viscount Grey of Glendale, and Earl of Tankerville 11 June 1695. See his character and actions in our English Historians. But he leaving only one daughter, Mary, wife of Charles Benner, Lord Offulston, the title and estate descended to his next brother—Ralph, Lord Grey, of Werke, who attended K. William in most of his Campaigns. He dyed at Epping in July 1706, and having no issue, left this estate to his cousin

William, Lord North and Grey, eldest son of Charles above-mentioned. This William being bred to arms, served through the whole course of the war under the Duke of Marlborough; at the battle of Hochstet had his right hand shot off; and at length was made Lieutenant-general of the Forces, Governor of Portsmouth &c. He was married, but dyed without issue, 31 October 1734. His widow, and his heir Francis Lord North, sold this maner and estate, together with Copped-hall, to Edward Conyers, of Waltham-stow Esq; Of whom, and his Family, we shall give an account under Copped-hall.

At the Forest-Court in 1670, mentioned above under Waltham-Abbey, William Lord Grey brought in a very large Claim, for this Maner of Epping, of Liberties, Privileges, Immunities, Exemptions, Courts Baron and Lete, View of Frank-pledge, Profits and Emoluments, as extensive as any Maner doth, or can possibly, enjoy; being the same that were granted to the Abbey: Also to have a weekly Market here on Fridays: [first granted by K. Henry III. in 1253] and two Fairs, one, the Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday in Whitfun-week; the other, the last day of October, and the two first of November. Now they are on Whitfun-tuesday, and October 13.—The Lord North and Grey obtained a grant for two Markets; one on Tuesdays, the other on Fridays. The first is disused.

This maner was originally divided into two, viz. Epping-Bury, and Epping Presbyter. The latter holds a Court-lete under a maple-tree in the road between Epping-bury and the Church. They both belong to the same Lord, who is Lord paramount of all the rest.

COPPED-HALL,

called by contraction Copt-hall, is near two miles south-west from Epping-Church.

The name is derived from the Saxon Coppe, the top of a hill, it standing upon a high or copped ground [O].

(z) Inquis. 39 Eliz. nu. 107.

(a) See Dugdale, Vol. II. p. 445, & Collins's Peerage.

[N] He was descended from the ancient family of Heneage in the county of Lincoln, where they flourished from the time of K. Henry III. His father, Robert Heneage, was Auditor of the Dutchy of Lancaster, Surveyor of the Queen's woods beyond Trent, and dyed 4 July 1556. Collins's Peerage, edit. 1756. Vol. II. p. 307.

[O] It was not so named from Cobbing, a rivulet running at a little distance; or from two ancient Turrets of the old house, coped or covered with lead. T. Fuller, Hist. of Waltham-Abbey, p. 8, 9. . . . It was a mansion of pleasure and privacy for the Abbots of Waltham.

It was built in an elegant manner, in 1753, by the present worthy owner John Conyers Esq; who has adorned this work with a view of it.

The old House stood a little more southerly, and within the bounds of Waltham-parish; or was laid to it in process of time: But the new one is in Epping parish, as was settled at the summer-assizes upon a tryal on that account in 1761.

The old one was a noble large House, with a Court in the middle; as appears by a view of it, engraved at the charge of the late Sir Thomas Webster. It had a stately Gallery, 56 yards long, erected by Sir Thomas Henneage, which was blown down in November 1639 by a violent hurricane. In this old seat was a Chapel, where was placed the fine painted Glass from New-Hall, mentioned in the other Volume, p. 103. and now fixed in the Church of St. Margaret Westminster.

This estate seems to have been originally part of the Demesnes of Waltham-Abbey, for it was holden afterwards of the Abbot. K. Richard I. gave it to Richard Fitz-Aucher, who built a stately House, and fixed himself here; and also made a Park. He held it in fee and hereditarily of the said Abbey (b); by the serjeancy of —(c) [P]. He had two sons,—Sir Richard, his successor, and William that dyed without issue. Sir Richard left two sons, Stephen who dyed issue-less; and—Sir Henry. This last had license, in 1295, to add 15 acres to his Park of Copped, within the bounds of the Forest. He held the maner called Copped-hall, and the maner of Shingle-hall, of the Abbot, by homage. And dying in 1304, was succeeded by his son—Sir Aucher Fitz-Aucher, a Knight-Banneret (d) [Q]. He married Joanna, youngest daughter of Sir Walter Fauconberg (e).

Afterwards this estate was in the knightly Family of Shardlowe, mentioned in the other Volume, p. 14. 380.

Sir John de Shardlowe, who was possessed of it in K. Edward the III^d's reign, got a license, in 1350, for himself and Joan his wife, and his brother Thomas, to make an exchange of the maners of Copped-hall, and Shingled-hall, with the Abbot of Waltham, for the maners of Boreham in Essex, and Campes and Orsethe in Cambridgeshire (f).

In 1374, the Abbot had leave to enclose 120 acres of his demesnes, to enlarge his Parks of Harold's-Park and Copped-hall (g).

This Maner and estate remained in the Abbey till the reign of K. Henry VIII. Then it was either purchased for the King by Thomas Cromwell (h); or, according to others (i), Robert Fuller, the last Abbot passed away this fair seat to the King, in hopes to have preserved the rest of his revenues. The Abbey had in Exchange for it Cane-Fields and Cane-Wood, Pancras, Kentish-Town, and the maner of Dame Ellens in Little Warley; this was done by Act of Parliament.

Qu. Mary annexed this maner to the Dutchy of Lancaster; as we have seen under Epping.

On the 3d of August 1564, Qu. Elizabeth granted the capital messuage and park of Copt-hall alias Coppid-hall, to Sir Thomas Henneage and Ann his wife, mentioned under the Maner of Epping, to be held of her Dutchy of Lancaster, by the service of the 40th part of a knight's-fee (k). At the time of his decease, 17 October, 1595, he held this capital messuage, with appertinances, and the Park; with liberties of park and warren within the same; and all the lands, tenements, pastures, and woods, within the precincts of the said park in Waltham Holy-crofs; and divers other lands &c. in that parish, and this, then valued at 24 l. 6s. 8 d. per ann. (l). It passed from him, as the maner of Epping, to his daughter,

Elizabeth, married to Sir Moyle Finch, afterwards created Viscountess Maidston, and Countess of Winchelsea. Either she, or her son—Thomas Earl of Winchelsea, sold it to Lionel Cranfield Earl of Middlesex, constituted Lord High Treasurer, in 1622. He had a grant from that King, for himself and his heirs, of free warren in his Park and demesne land, exempt from the chief Justice in eyre, and other officers, which he laid claim to in 1630. He dyed 6 August 1643, leaving—

James his son and heir, who dyed in 1651, without issue, as did his brother—Lionel who had succeeded him. The latter dyed in 1674; and left his estate to his nephew

Charles Sackville Lord Buckhurst, eldest son and heir to Richard Sackville Earl of Dorset, by Frances his wife, only daughter, and at length sole heir, to Lionel Cranfield, first Earl of Middlesex above-mentioned. Thereupon he was created Earl of Middlesex 4 April 1675, and upon his father's death in 1677 became Earl of Dorset. [See a further account of that noble Family in the Peerages.] In 1700, his Lordship sold this seat and estate to

Thomas Webster Esq; He was created a Baronet 21 May 1703, and served as one of the representatives in Parliament for the Burgh of Colchester in 1705, 1707 and 8, 1713, and 1722. He also served the office of Sheriff for this County in 1704; and, 1 June 1718, was chosen one of the Verdurers of Waltham-Forest. [See some further account of the family, under Nelmes in Havering Liberty.] In the year Sir Thomas sold this Seat and Estate to

Edward Conyers, of Waltham-Stow Esq; He was descended from the ancient Family of Conyers, or Coniers, seated in Yorkshire, and the Bishoprick of Durham, and more immediately from Boltby, and Baglail-Hall near Scarbo-

(b) T. Fuller, Hist. of Waltham-Abbey, p. 8. natic. Vol. II. p. 149.
of T. Cromwell's Purchases, in the Exchequer.
6 Eliz.

(f) Inquis. 24 Edw. III.

(l) Inquis. 39 Eliz. Nov. 3.

(c) Liber ruber.

(d) Inquis. 32 Edw. I.

(g) Forest-rolls, 48 Edw. III. rot. 5.

(i) T. Fuller, Hist. of Waltham, p. 11, 12.

(e) Mo-

(b) List

(k) Lett. pat.

[P] Acenariæ coram Rege. Qre. whether it should not be Aucenariæ, and mean the King's Fowler.

[Q] Arms of Fitz-Aucher: Ermine, on a chief azure, three lions rampant, or.

J. E. Mackintosh design

Copied from an engraving, the west of St. John's Church, built 1753.

rough (m). The first that settled hereabouts, at Waltham-Stow, was Tristram Conyers Esq; He dyed 19 Novemb. 1619, and had, at the time of his decease, 2 messuages, 2 gardens, 20 acres of arable, 6 of meadow, 60 of pasture, 15 of marsh, in Waltham-stow and Layton; 56 acres of marsh, in East-ham; 3 messuages in the parish of St. Helens Bishops-gate; the maners of Scarborowe, and of Cleyton in Skipsey, in Yorkshire; a capital messuage, and 9 cottages in Houlbech, Moulton-fleet, and Quapload in Lincolnshire, which he held of the King, of his Honor or Abbey of Crowland.—William Conyers, his brother and next heir, was then 76 years old (n). He dyed without issue; Their brother Robert Conyers, of London, merchant, married Blanch, sister and heir of Dunstan Ducke, of Putney in Surrey Esq; and had by her—William, heir both to him, and to his two uncles above-mentioned. He was a Serjeant at law; and twice married. By his first wife, Mary, daughter of Sir Francis Harvey, of Northamptonshire, one of the Justices of the King's-Bench, he had a large Family; of whom only Elizabeth, Tristram, Mary, and William, out-lived him. By his second wife, Dorothy, daughter of Sir William Beecher, of Bedfordshire, Kt. he had 5 sons, and 5 daughters; but only Oliver, Dorothy, Judith, and Margaret, survived him. He dying in 1659, aged 73, was succeeded by his eldest son—Tristram Conyers Esq; who was also a Serjeant-at-law. He married Winifred, daughter of Sir Gilbert Gerrard, of Harrow-on the Hill Bart. a beautiful and accomplished woman, by whom he had 5 sons, and 6 daughters. One of the sons, Sir Gerard Conyers Kt. was Alderman of London, and dyed 20 July 1737: He had to wife Anne, daughter of Sir Christopher Lethieullier. Mary, one of the daughters, was wife of Sir Strange Jocelyn of Hide-Hall, Bart.—John Conyers Esq; the eldest son and heir, was of Queen's College Oxford, and of the Middle Temple London; King's Counsel; and elected Member of Parliament for East-Grinstead in 1695 and 1698. 1700. 1702. 1705. and several times after, till his decease in 1722. By his wife, Mary daughter and heir of George Lee of Stoke-Milborough in Shropshire Esq; he had 16 children; but only 4 arrived to maturity: namely, Edward, and these three daughters; Cæcilia, wife of Henry Brabant Esq; Elizabeth, wife of Herbert-Perrot, Esq; son of Sir John Pakington of Worcestershire, Bart. and Dorothy, of Sir Charles Mordaunt of Little Massingham, Bart.—Edward Conyers Esq; the son and heir, was of Corpus-Christi College in Oxford, and of the Middle Temple. In 1722 he was elected member of parliament for East-Grinstead, and again in 1734. He dyed 23 April 1742, leaving, by Matilda his wife, youngest daughter of William Lord Lempster,—John Conyers Esq; his son and heir, the present worthy possessor of the maners of Epping, and Copped-hall. By his first wife, Hannah, daughter of Richard Warner of Norfolk Esq; he had no issue. But he hath several children by his present wife, Lady Henrietta Fermor, third daughter of Thomas Earl of Pomfret [R].

SHINGLE-HALL, stands on, or near, Epping-Green, about three quarters of a mile north-east from the Church.

This Maner naturally claims the next place to Copped-hall; they both having belonged to the Shardlowe Family, and been both exchanged together by Sir John de Shardlowe with the Abbot and Convent of Waltham, for the maner of Boreham &c. in 1350.

Henry-Fitz-Aucher held this maner of Shingled-Hall, of the Abbot, in 1304, as well as the former (o).

It continued in the Abbey till the dissolution; at which time it was farmed by John Denton, at the yearly rent of 8 l. 10 s. (p).

In 1552, K. Edward VI. granted the maner of Shingill-hall, and a messuage called Parvytes, to Henry Lord Morley, and his heirs (q). And, 16 March 1562, that Lord, and Elizabeth his wife had license to alienate it, with appertenances, holden of the Queen in capite, to

John Benton (r): who, at the time of his decease 26 September 1570, held this maner of Shingle-hall, and Pynnes-croft, and Pynnes-meade.—Andrew, his son, was then 21 years old (s), and was succeeded by his son—Andrew. Of —Ralph Benton it was purchased by

Mr. Richard Day, who dying in August 1741, left it by will to his grandson

Sir Richard-Day Jenoure, Bart. Upon whose decease, 23 March 1743-4, it came to his mother—Joane, daughter of the said Mr. Day. [See in the other Volume, p. 426.]

John Benton claimed in this maner, a Court baron; liberty of frank-pledge; with all rights, rents, services &c. late belonging to the Monastery of Waltham; timber for repairs, wood for firing; pannage for hogs; liberty of fishing, fouling, and hunting, without any impediment from the officers of the Forest: And, for himself, and Tenants, except in new-erected cottages, to take pollard trees for firing in their own messuages only; and to have common of pasture in the Forest, for all cattle, and at all times of the year, except in the fencing month. All this by prescription.

The Maner of CHAMBERS,

The mansion house is pleasantly situated on a rising ground, about half a mile south-west from the Church; a handsome row of trees leading up to it from the Church Yard. The estate is said to be near 300 l. a year.

(m) See Sir W. Dugdale's Baron. Vol. II. p. 290. and Visitation of Essex, fol. 51.

20. (o) Inquis. 32 Edw. I.

(p) Valuat. of the Lands of the Abbey.

(r) Pat. 5 Eliza.

(s) Inquis. 12 Eliz.

(n) Inquis. 18 Jaco. May

(q) Lett. pat. 6 Edw. VI.

[R] Arms of Conyers. Azure, a manch or, charged with a baton.

This is thought to have taken its name from some owner, but more probably the owner from the place; because it is written variously Del Chambre, Atte Chambre, and Chambre. It seems, to have been an antient lodge; such a one, in Delamere Forest in Cheshire, retaining the name of the Chamber in the Forest. The first of the name I meet here, is Edmund Del Chambre of Epping, who, in 1410, held here in fee taile one tenement, 180 acres of arable, 12 of meadow, and 20 of wood, of the Abbot and Convent of Waltham, by the rent of 12 s. and 4 d. per ann. And, in the same village of the Prior of St. John of Jerusalem, one acre paying 4 d. per ann.—John Del Chambre was his son and heir (t). Hereby we see, that the chief of this estate was holden of the Abbot and Convent of Waltham, lords paramount of this parish.

In 1422, and 1430, Thomas atte Chaumbre, brother of Edmund, released all his right in lands here, to Thomas Tyrell, Thomas Lyes, clerk, and others: As did John Chambre Esq; in 1430, to John Randolph, clerk, &c. (u).

From this family it came, most probably by marriage, to the Skrene family: which gave name to the Maner of Skrenes in Roxwell. [See in the other Volume, p. 70. where an account of them is given, and where it properly belongs.] John Skrene who dyed 4 July 1452, held the maner of Chambers in Epping of the King in capite, by the service of the fourth part of a knight's fee; and jointly with his wife Philippa, the maner of Langhous in Chaldwell, &c.—John his son, then one year and half old (w), afterwards knighted; held, at the time of his decease in 1474, the maner of Chambres, the maners of Skrenes, Dukes, and Mountneys in Rokefwell, and others (x).

Rich. Harper sen. Esq; who dyed 11 March 1518, held this maner of the Abbot of Waltham, by fealty and rent of one Red Rose, being of the yearly value of 12 l.—George his grandson was his heir, then aged 15 years (y) [S].

John Halmer held it in 1536, of the King as of his Abbey of Waltham, by the same services as above. And dying 7 Decemb. that year, left —Thomas his son and heir 18 years old (z). —Henry Halmer passed it by fine in 1557, to Richard Whorewood (a).

Afterwards, this estate was sold to —Blackwell; from William Blackwell in 1568, it came to —John, who was succeeded by another —John, and he by —Edward.

Then it came into the Searle Family.

Edw. Searle Gent. who dyed 28 October 1625, held the maner of Chambers, with all its rights members and appertenances. John was his son and heir forty years old (b) [T].—The latter left —Andrew, his son, who dyed about six weeks after marriage; his widow was married to his kinsman—Andrew Searle, and had the estate. Andrew, called Capt. Searle, had one son, and a daughter wife of Oliver Martin.—Andrew Searle, the son had Andrew, John, and Richard.—Andrew Searle Esq; was of the Middle Temple, and Barrister at law: He married Anne, youngest daughter of Henry Beadell, an eminent scrivener in London. The 29th of December 1762, he had the misfortune of being drowned.

The Maner of GILLES,

The house stands about half a mile south of Chambers.

This estate passed by fine, in 1566, from Thomas Hales Gent. to Antony Browne one of the Justices of the Common Pleas; described as containing one messuage, 300 acres of arable, 24 of meadow, 40 of pasture, 36 of wood, and 15 s. rent (c).

Rich. Raynsford Esq; who dyed 14 Feb. 1603, held this maner.—Robert his son and heir was 21 years old (d).

In the year 1621, this estate was possessed by Thomas Palmer Esq; third son of Henry Palmer of Dewshall in Lamborn. He was educated at St. John's College in Cambridge; afterwards an utter Barrister of Lincoln's-inn: and married Joane daughter of John Hoyben of Canterbury, merchant; but dyed in this house without issue 28 May 1621, and was buried in this Church.

Afterwards it belonged, as well as the former to the Searle Family.

On the 30th of September 1670, Andrew Searle claimed in the Maner of Chambers, a court-baron, with all rents, services, and emoluments belonging thereto; and all trees, woods, and underwoods on the premises.—In the Maner of Gilles, he claimed liberty, of fishing, fowling, and hunting; to cut down timber, and wood for firing, without forfeiture; pollard-trees growing on his demesnes, to be spent in firing in the old messuages; panage for his hogs; and common of pasture for his tenants, except in the new erected cottages.—John Searle, who had two ancient messuages called Tackles and Coldhams, claimed common of pasture for all cattle; timber for repairs; pollard trees; and hedge-bote; by prescription.

(t) Inquis. 12 Hen. IV.

(x) Inquis. 14. Edw. IV.

(a) Fin. Trin. 4 & 5 Ph. & Mar.

(d) Inquis. ex parva Baga.

(u) Claus. 10 Hen. V. & 8, & 9 Hen. VI.

(y) Inquis. 10 Hen. VIII. July 22.

(b) Inquis. 10 Caro. Nov. 5.

(w) Inquis. 30 Hen. VI.

(z) Inquis. 35 Hen. VIII. Oct. 26.

(c) Symonds's Collect. Vol. III. fol. 13.

[S] He had also a moiety of the maner of Latton, [see in the other Volume, p. 487.] the maner of Barwicks in Stanford Rivers, and Churches in Lavers. Inquis. 10 Hen. VIII.

[T] He was one of those who were forced to compound for their estates, during the cruel oppressions in the last century. There is extant a printed acquittance to John Searle of Epping, for 100 l. paid by him in part of 200 l. imposed on him by Parliament, as a fine for Delinquency, 6 Sept. 1650 signed Richard Waring; and a Bond given from John Searle to Oliver Cromwell, penalty 100 l. Condition, that his menill servants shall demean themselves well, and appear upon notice left at the house.

CAMPIONS, is another Maner that formerly belonged to the Searle Family: and before, in 1635, to Thomas Wynch.

William Hester Esq; one of the Filazers of the Court of Common-Pleas, dyed possessed of it in Octob. 1748. And it is now in his heirs.

'Tis said to be about 80 l. a year.

The Maner of MADELEYS, or MARLES, is a small Maner, holden of the Maner of Epping; and consisting of two Farms.

The mansion house is a little way east of Shingle-hall above-mentioned.

Of this the ancientest account we have, is, that it belonged to the family of Wells, lords of the neighbouring maners of Theydon, Gernon, and Boys.

Adam de Welles, who dyed in 1345, held this tenement called Madles, of the Earl of Oxford, by the service of keeping one spar-hawk, at the will, and at the charge, of the said Earl.—

John de Welles, his son (e), held, in 1361, of the gift of Sir Adam de Welles, 1 messuage, 172 acres of arable, 6 of meadow, 12 of wood, 43 of pasture, 68 s. 7 d. rent, in Epping att Hethe, &c. of the Earl Stafford, the Abbot of Waltham, &c. (f).—Sir John de Welles, his son, who dyed in 1421, held also this maner of the Earl of Stafford. Eudo his son was dead before him, but left a son, named—Leo, then aged 15 years, who was heir to his grandfather (g).

This Leo at the time of his death in 1461, held the maners of Madles and Hemnales, as members and parcels of the maner of Gaynes park in Theydon-Gernon [U].—

Richard his son and heir was 24 years old (h). Cecily wife of John Viscount Wells, and daughter of K. Edward IV, which dyed 24 August 1507, held this maner, with the two others, of the Duke of Buckingham, of his Castle of Ongar, by the Service of the Wardstaff (i) [W].

Sir Will. Fitz. Williams of Milton in Northamptonshire, who dyed 9 August 1534, with the maners of Gaynespark and Hamnalls, held, by the same service, this maner of Madells, and 4 messuages, 240 acres of arable, 20 of meadow, 40 of pasture, 10 of wood, and 51 s. and 2 d. rent, of the heirs of the Duke of Buckingham, as of the Castle of Ongar (k).—William his son and heir passed it by fine, in 1553 (l), with other lands in Little Parndon, to

John Green: who at the time of his decease, in 1624, held this maner of Robert Earl of Warwick, of his Castle of Ongar, by the service of the wardstaff.—John his son and heir was twenty one years old (m).

This estate came afterwards to—Rawlins, with his wife. Of whom it was purchased by Mr. Blake, of London, merchant.

Another MANER,

in this parish, but placed in Domesday-book under the Hundred of Harlow, belonged, in Edward the Confessor's time, to Ansgar; and, at the time of the Survey, to Alan Earl of Bretagne [X].

This is supposed to be what is called the Maner or Hamlet of Rise-Hill or Rye-Hill, bordering on Little Parndon, the Inhabitants of which do their suit and service to the Leet of the Hundred of Harlow; they chuse their own Constable, and Surveyor.

This Hamlet consists only of six or seven straggling houses, either little farms or cottages.

A part of this estate has been called the Maner of Hales, or Hayles. The same is sometimes called a maner, sometimes a messuage. Nicolas Wychingham Esq; had lands and tenements in Epping-hethe, which, by his will, proved 16 April 1434, appear to have been this maner; in which he was succeeded by his grandson—Robert. He had also Rookhall in Little Totham (n).

Joan Biddleston, widow, which dyed 8 Octob. 1496, held this maner of Hayles, of Humfrey Duke of Buckingham; being 260 acres of arable, and 23 acres of meadow. Her son and heir—Thomas Biddleston was 30 years old (o).

John Smith of Epping Gent. at the time of his decease, 22 July 1570, held this maner or messuage of Hayles of the Lord Riche as of his Hundred of Harlow.—Nicolas his son and heir was eighteen years old (p).

Sir Will. Rowe likewise, at the time of his decease, 23 October 1593, held the maner of Hayles in Epping and Latton: The meaning of which must be, that some lands in Latton were laid to that estate.

This farm belonged afterwards to Mr. Searle, and of him was purchased by Isaac Foster of London Alderman, who dying without issue, gave it to a brother's son,—Abraham Foster of Eltham in Kent Esq; This last by Anne his wife left two daughters, one married to Lewis Scawen Esq; the other to Mr. Richard Merry of London Merchant.

The following persons have also some lands in this parish:

(e) Inquis. 19 Edw. III.
(i) Inquis. 23 Hen. VII.
(n) Inquis. 12 Hen. VI.

(f) Inquis. 35 Edw. III.
(k) Inquis. 28 Hen. VIII. nu. 20.
(o) Inquis. 12 Hen. VII. Nov. 10.

(g) Inquis. 9 Hen. V.
(l) Fin. 1 Mar. Term. Mich.
(p) Inquis. 15 Eliz. June 29.

(h) Inquis. 1 Edw. IV.
(m) Inquis. 22 Jaco.

[U] The maner of Park hall, alias Gaynes-park, and the maners of Hemnales, and Madles, composed the whole maner of Park-hall. Inquis. 1 Edw. IV.

[W] For a further account of this noble Family of Wells, and their various fates, see Sir Will. Dugdale's Baronage, Vol. II. p. 10. &c.

[X] Terra Comitum Alani. Hund' de Herlava, Eppingham

tenuit Wisgarus Liber homo, T. R. E, pro i manerio, & pro i hida & dimidio, & dimidio virgate. Semper i carucata in dominio, & dimidium carucate hominum, & ii villani, & ii bordarii. Silva c porcis, viii acre prati. Tunc valuit xx solidos, modo xxx. Hoc manerium tenet Osbernus de Comite. Lib. Domesd. Tit. 21.

John Clarke; John Kent; Thomas Battle; James Champain; Joseph Hazard; John Perry; Nymphas Stacy; John Browet, &c.

Charitable Donations.

John Baker, besides his benefaction for repairing the Roads, mentioned in the beginning of this parish; gave by will, a Grove called Ridden, now Stonards grove, lying in Epping, to the intent that the profits arising from it, that is from the fall of the wood and timber, should be applied to the uses of the Churches of Epping and Theydon Gernon, in equal portions.

The Lady Catharine Wentworth, buried here in a vault under the Communion-table, by her will dated 25 October 1638, bequeathed 400 l. to purchase Twenty pounds a year in land; whereof forty shillings to be given for a sermon to be preached every year on the day of her burial; and the rest yearly to the Poor of this parish. With that money, and the interest thereon, an estate in Foster street in Harlow of about 30 l. a year, was purchased in 1720.

John Reynolds, of Ipswich, Gent. by a deed dated 5 Febru. 1647, invested in trustees a parcel of land in Theydon-Mount, lett then for 11 l. 10 s. a year, assigning one moiety of it to the parish of Theydon-Gernon where he was born, and the other to the parish of Epping. Of this last moiety, one pound was to be paid to a Minister, for a sermon to be preached in the Chapel of Epping on the Wednesday before Palm-sunday, as a preparation for the Lord's supper: Five shillings to the bell-ringer: and the rest to the Poor of that part of the parish called Town-side.

—Searle, Gent. made a settlement for providing 12 penny loaves, to be distributed in this parish-Church every Lord's-day among the poor.

The CHURCH, dedicated to All Saints, is of one pace with the Chancel; the whole tyled. A Tower of flint and stone contains Bells. It stands pleasantly on a rising ground:

In the year 1722, about 260 l. raised out of Mr. Baker's gift above-mentioned, were laid out in thoroughly repairing and beautifying this Church. The body of it is paved with Purbeck-stone; the Chancel, without the rails, with Portland-stone; and within the rails with white marble: and wainscotted eight foot high with Norway oak. The Altar piece was also made handsom: and a new reading Desk, and Pulpit, erected.

It is remarkable, that the Communion Table is placed at a distance from the East wall of the Chancel, with a rail quite round it: which is supposed to have been done by Jer. Dyke, Vicar of this Church in the last century, out of a simple opposition to the Injunctions then issued out [Y].

The Tithes of this parish were given by Adaliza, second Queen of K. Henry I, to the Canons of Waltham, as is observed above. K. Henry II. gave afterwards to the Abbot and Monks of the same place the Church of Eppinges, with all its appertanances (q). Whereupon the Monks appropriated the whole profits of it to themselves, and got the Cure supplied either by one of their own members, or by some Chaplain; which they might more easily do, as they were exempt from Episcopal jurisdiction. For the Bishops, upon most occasions, were a strong barrier against the incroachments of the Monks. At the suppression, the Maner of Epping, with all the Tithes of corn and grain, were lett for 53 l. 6 s. 8 d. The rents of assise, were 30 s. 6 d. ob. Farm of lands, 15 s. 4 d. Perquisites of Court, 55 s. 7 d.

The Rectory, with appertanances, were granted, to Thomas Cornwall; who had license, in 1548, to alienate it to Francis Monox, and his heirs. But, before the year 1572, it was again in Qu. Elizabeth. As to the Advowson of the Vicarage, it was in the Crown from about 1556 to 1572. Then it was granted to Sir Thomas Henneage; and passed from him to the Families of Finch, Grey, Conyers, and to the present proprietor John Conyers Esq;

The first Institution to it as a Vicarage was in 1545 (r). For before the year 1540, the Abbey and Monks of Waltham were sole proprietors and Ordinaries of the place; and kept it in their own hands as a Curacy.

In EPPING-TOWN, which stands about a mile and a half from the Church, there is a Chapel, dedicated to St. John the Baptist.

The Abbot and Monks made a grant of it to John Peryent, Gent. who presented a Chaplain, that was instituted to it, 14 February 1540, as a Free Chapel, without Cure of souls (s). K. Edward VI. granted it, 6 Sept. 1550, to John Cokks Esq; with reserve to the Inhabitants of the village of Epping-Heath of free ingress and regrefs to and from the said Chapel for the hearing of divine service, as had been accustomed in former times. The 3d of May 1552, Cokks conveyed it to Henry Archer, and his heirs, with a like reserve of the free use of it to the Inhabitants; they being, in consideration of that, to keep it in repair. In 1573, this Chapel was settled in trustees for publick use: And the trust has been renewed from time to time.

George Campion gave to the trustees by will, 17 January 1615, a close in the parish of Theydon Boys, called Assfield, containing about four acres; appointing, half of the yearly rent to be given towards the maintenance of a preacher in this Chapel; and the other half to the Poor of Epping Town-side.

The Chaplain's salary is about 26 l. a year.

In 1622 a new aisle was added to this Chapel: and another in 1662.

Before the Reformation, lands and tenements were put in feoffment by several persons, to find a Priest to sing mass in this Chapel. And in the Certificate of Chantries, it is said, That (q) Monastic, Anglic. Vol. II. p. 14. (r) Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 248. (s) Ibid.

[Y] Such was the opinion of Mr. John Lloyd, late Vicar of this Church, and also of Mr. Holman.

this was a great Parish, 'having in yt to the 'number of 300 of houseling people.'

Epping is rated to the land tax at 3520 l.
3 s. 8 d.

John Lloyd, M. A. 27 Septemb. 1710, upon Lomax's d. . . . Lord North and Grey.
Stephen Waller, M. A. 26 Decemb. 1753, upon Lloyd's d. . . . Edmund Waller Esq;

3. N A S I N G, comprises the north-west corner of this Half-Hundred.

The Saxon word Nære, or Nære, signifies a nose, or promontory; and ing, a meadow, or pasture. But how the first is applicable to this place, I cannot well judge: Part of the parish is on the side of a hill. The name is otherwise written in records, Naffingham, Nefinga, Nefinges.

This was one of the estates wherewith Harold endowed his College of Waltham (t); which had it at the general survey [Z]: But, besides that, here was another estate, which in Edward the Confessor's reign belonged to three freemen; and, at the time of the survey, was holden by Ralph, brother of Ilger [A].

K. Henry II. confirmed to the Abbey of Waltham two Scrutlands of Nafinges [B], with the Church, and all its appertinances. K. Richard I. confirmed it also to that House, as a member of Waltham, with all its wastes, and with 160 acres of effarts in this place. Afterwards, he appropriated this Church, and that of Alrichsea in Bedfordshire, to the Chamber of the Canons Regular at Waltham, for the clothing of those which were in the old house there: enjoining, that they should keep those Churches in their own hands for the said use, and not grant them to any one, either by way of pension, or of farm. He also gave them the Tithes of Langrich (u).

The Abbey had, besides, 50 acres of land here, that they purchased, in 1279, of Walter de Tany; and 100 acres of arable, in this parish, and Reyndone, which they got by exchange with Roger Levenoth: And John Levenoth gave them, in 1304, eighty acres of arable here, holden of the Abbot and Convent by the service of half a knight's fee (w).

Of all the premisses the Abbey continued possessed as long as it subsisted.

At the time of the suppression, the maner of Nasing, with the Rectory and all the Tithes, were lett at 31 l. 18 s. The rents of assise from free and customary tenants amounted to 32 l. 18 s. 3 d. qa. Perquisites of court, 12 s. 5 d. (x).

In 1547, K. Edward VI. granted the maner, or farm, and demesnes of Nasingbury, with Queen-mead, and the Rectory and Tithes, to Sir Ralph Sadleir; who 1 July, the same year, had license to alienate them to

Sir Antony Denny (y). From him, and his successors, as Waltham-Abbey, they descended to Charles-Wake Jones Esq; Nasing-Bury, the maner-house, lyes near the Meadows, a mile west from the Church.

HAROLDS PARK, of which the House stands in Waltham parish, but most of the lands in Nasing, belonged also to Waltham-Abbey. [See above under Waltham.]

K. Edward VI. 27 March 1547, by way of exchange with John Dudley Earl of Warwick, gave him Harold's Park, parcel of Waltham-Abbey: which Sir Antony Denny procured.

Qu. Elizabeth, 18 July 1600, granted to Sir Edward Denny, the Park, lands, tenements and hereditaments called Harolds Park, in the parish of Nasing (z): undoubtedly to confirm the Family's title.

It now belongs to Richard Bateman Esq; having been purchased by his father Sir James Bateman of Mr. Chauncy.

The Abbot of Waltham had a Park here, which was inclosed by license from K. Henry III. in 1225 (a). It seems to be that at Fairmeade, which was in the hands of K. Edward VI.

There are also in this parish Nasing-Lodge, and Long Green, and Brodley Common.

As for the Lands belonging to Ralph brother of Ilger, mentioned above, they appear to me to have been what is now called Roydon Hamlet.

Mr. John Mumford; Thomas Carrington; Richard Wilson; Abel Darley Esq; and Mr. Matthew Merley, have also some estates here.

The CHURCH, dedicated to All-Saints, is a large stately edifice, standing on an hill, whence there is a delightful prospect. It consists of a middle pace, and north aisle, the length both of (t) Monastic. Anglic. Vol. II. p. 11. (u) Monast. Anglic. Vol. II. p. 11. 17. (w) Inquis. 8 & 20 & 32 Edw. I. (x) Valuation of the lands of the Abbey. (y) Lett. pat. 1 Edw. VI. & Inquis. 7 Edw. VI. & 16. Eliza. (z) Abbey-lands exchanged 1 Edw. VI. & Lett. pat. 1 Edw. VI. & 42 Eliz. (a) Claus. 10 Hen. III. m. 29.

[Z] Naffingham semper tenuit Sancta Crux pro v hidis. Tunc i carucata in dominio, modo i & dimidium. Tunc i carucata hominum, modo i & dimidium. Semper v villani, modo ii bordarii. Tunc ii servi, modo nullus. Silva l porcis. xiii acre prati. dimidium piscature. i runcinus, iv animalia, x porci, xv oves. Tunc valuit xl solidos, modo lx. Lib. Domefd. fol. 16 a. Tit. 8.

[A] Hund' de Waltham. Naffingham & Eping am tenere ii liberi homines T. R. E. pro manerio & pro iv hidis & dimidio xv acr' minus. Tunc iii carucate in dominio, modo ii. Semper iii carucate hominum. Tunc xi villani, modo vii. Modo ix bordarii. Tunc iii servi, modo nullus. Silva c porcis, l iv acre prati, pastura de xxxii denariis. Tunc i molendinum, modo nullum. Tunc vii animalia, & xxx porci, modo ii animalia, & xviii porci; Hoc est in Naffinga & Eppinges ii animalia & xxvi oves, & vi porci. Semper valent iv libras; Naffinga lx solidos, & Eppinges xx solidos. . . . Et preter hoc addita est huic terre i hida, quam tenuit liber homo, T. R. E. et adhuc tenet. Tunc i carucata, modo dimidium. Tunc ii bordarii, modo iii. Silva xx porcis, xii acre prati. Tunc valuit x solidos, modo xx. . . . Et adhuc i virgata terre que addita est Tempore Regis Willielmi, & pertinebat in Waltham Tempore Regis Edwardi, quam inde tulit Ranulfus frater Ilgeri, ut Hund' testatur, & valuit iii solidos. Hoc totum tenet Ranulfus in dominio. Lib. Domefd. fol. 80 b. Tit. 37.

[B] Scrutland, or rather Scrudland, signifies land allotted for buying apparel or cloathing; from the Saxon scruþ, apparel, or garment.

Church and Chancel. At the west end a Tower of stone, of good height, and embattled, contains 5 Bells.

K. Henry II. granted, or confirmed, this Church, with all its appertenances, to Waltham-Abbey (b). And it was particularly assigned for clothing some of the Monks, as hath been observed a little before. The Rectory was accordingly appropiated to them, and a Vicarage ordained, of which they continued patrons till their dissolution, when they came to the Crown.

In 1547, K. Edward VI. granted the Rectory and great Tithes to Sir Ralph Sadleir (c). From him they passed to the Denny Family, and their successors, as the estates in Waltham-Abbey. But the Advowson of the Vicarage was not granted away, but hath remained ever since the Dissolution in the Crown. Only Samuel Jones Esq; presented to it in 1688, during the unsettled state of affairs.

This Vicarage was augmented by the benefaction of the Rev. Stephen Hales, and Mrs. Palmer &c. jointly with Qu. Anne's bounty.

The parish of Nasing is rated to the land-tax at 2525*l*.

John Apperley,	20 Nov.	1701,	upon Turner's	d. . . .	} Qu. Anne. K. George I. and II.
Lewis Desbordes,	3 Decemb.	1719,	upon Apperley's	d. . . .
George Manley,	28 April	1721,	upon Desbordes's	cess. . . .
Michael Marlow, M. A.	13 May	1752,	upon Manly's	d. . . .
Thomas Salt, M. A.	11 Novemb.	1761,	upon Marlow's	refig. . . .

4 CHINGFORD is the most southern angle of this Half-Hundred; and was undoubtedly so named, from a Ford through the river Ley which bounds it on the West, and the Saxon word Cing, or as we pronounce it King; qu. King's-Ford, the Meadows adjoining being called the King's Meads, and the Ley the King's Stream. In records it is otherwise written Chilgelford, Cingeford, Cinghefort, Echingsford, Schingelford, Shingelford, Shymgylford.

The chief Maner in this parish was given by K. Edward the Confessor to the Cathedral Church of St. Paul's [C]; Besides which there was another Maner belonging to a Freeman, that was held, at the time of the Survey, by Robert Gernon.

From hence arose the two capital Maners in this parish, 1. One called Chingford St. Paul's. 2. And the other Chingford Comitis. From which last was afterwards taken another, named, 3. Gowers and Buckerels.

In this parish are also, Chingford-Green, Lowstreet, Merry Mount, and Warren-house.

1. The Maner of CHINGFORD ST. PAULS.

Chingford-hall lyes down near the river Ley, about a mile south-west from the Church. It has a court leet, and court baron.

In the year 1181, the demesnes of this maner were, 140 acres of arable, 17 acr. of meadow, 17 acr. of marsh, and about 200 of wood (d).

The Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's continued possessed of this Maner till the Reformation, when K. Henry VIII. took it from them.

In 1551, K. Edward VI. granted the maner of Chingford Pauli to Sir Tbo. Darcy, with the Advowson of the Church. [See in the other Volume, p. 494.] But Qu. Mary taking it from him, in 1553, granted it to Susan Tonge, alias Clarencieux, widow, and her heirs (e). She was first Lady of her Bedchamber, daughter of Richard White of Hutton, and widow of Tbo. Tonge Clarencieux, King at Arms; and there was included in the grant a messuage called Harriotts, and Stubwood, in this parish. In 1557 the said Susan Tonge had leave to convey the premisses, late Sir Thomas Darcy's, to several in trust, and—George White her nephew had license, 12 May 1565, to pass them to—Humfrey White his brother (f).

In Michaelmas-term 1567, this Humfrey, and Dorothy his wife, by virtue of a license dated 14 August the same year, alienated this maner, with appertenances, to John Leigh, or Lee (g), descended from the ancient family of Leigh, of Baggesley in the County of Chester.—Sir Robert Leigh, most probably his son, dyed 17 June 1607; possessed of this maner; and of Wooddeheron, and Reddens or Rayles, 70 acres; 4 closes called Reddens, 40 acres; Docke marshes, 18 acres, &c. His son and heir—Robert, then near 20 years old (h), was afterwards knighted, and dyed 18 June 1622, aged 55, leaving by Mary his wife, daughter of Henry Josceline of Torrels hall in Willingale, 3 sons, and 4 daughters (i)—Robert Leigh Esq; the eldest son and heir, married Margaret, daughter of Miles Branthwaite of Heathfield in Norfolk Esq; and had by her one son, and three daughters. He dyed 17 January 1672-3, aged fourscore years (k); and was succeeded by his only son—Edward, who had three wives, but issue only by the last, namely Agnes daughter of Richard Kirkby of Kirkby in Lancashire Esq; By her he had 2 sons, (b) Monast. Angl. Vol II. p. 13.

pat. 5 Edw. VI. and 1 Mar. Eliz.

(b) Inquis. 10 Jaco. July 1.

(c) Lett. pat. 1 Edw. VI.

(f) Lett. pat. 7. Eliza.

(i) Epitaphs in this Church.

(d) Hist of St. Paul's.

(g) Lett. pat. & Præc. Vic. Essex, Ret. 8 Mich. 9

(k) Epitaph.

[C] Terra Sancti Pauli. Hund' de Waltham. Cinghefort tenuit Sanctus Paulus T. R. E. pro i manerio & pro vi hidis. Semper ii carucate in dominio. Tunc iii carucate hominum, modo iv. Tunc vii villani, modo viii. Tunc iii bordarii, modo vi. Semper iv servi. Silva p porcis, 1 acre prati et ii piscature, ix animalia, ii runcini, xxvii porci, c oves. Tunc valuit iv libras, modo c solidos.

De hoc manerio abstulit Petrus de Valoniis i hidam et viii acras, que pertinebant Manerio T. R. E. Et silva ad 1 porcos valuit x solidos. De eodem manerio tulit Goisfridus de Magnavilla x acras prati. Lib. Domest. fol. 12 b. lit. 5.

Robert, and Edward, and a daughter named Mary (l). He departed this life 7 Septemb. 1691, aged 67, and was buried in this Church, where many of the Family lye.—Edward Leigh Esq; his second son and heir sold this estate to [D]

Robert Snell Esq; It was enjoyed by three brothers, and now by a widow of one of them.

The 4th of October 1670, Robert Leigh Esq; put in his claim, at the Forest-Court, for the usual most extensive privileges in this Maner: And for Common of pasture for all cattle in the waste of the Forest, by prescription. Also, by Charter, exemption from the Regarders of the Forest, and other pleas and actions: and liberty to take what wood he wanted for his own use, within this maner: and view of frank pledge.

2. The Maner of CHINGFORD COMITIS, or Earl's, is the other capital Maner in this Parish; so named from the noble Earls to which it belonged, as will appear in the sequel.

The mansion house stands about a mile east from the Church, on the left hand side of the road leading from hence to Woodford; at a place called Friday-hill.

This is the Maner that belonged, at the time of the Survey, to Robert Gernon [E], ancestor of the Montfichet Family; on which account it was holden of their Barony of Stansted Mont-fichet, by the service of one knight's fee. [Concerning these two Families, see the other Volume, p. 576.]

Under them this estate was held by the following persons. About the year 1188, it was in Fulbert de Dover, second of the name, lord of Chilham in Kent. He married Roese, daughter of Geffrey de Lucy, son of Richard de Lucy, Justice of England, and had by her—Robert, who dyed about the year 1203.—Richard de Dover, his son, married also a wife named Roese, and they held jointly this manner of Chingelford in the reign of K. Henry III.—Richard, their son and heir (m), by Joane his wife, which enjoyed this estate during her life, left an only daughter

Roese, that became the wife of Richard, natural son of K. John. They had two daughters, coheirs, Isabel, the second, brought this estate in marriage to her husband David de Strathbolgie,

Earl of Athol (n). Their son—John, Earl of Athol, inherited after them. But, during the cruel ambitious wars of K. Edward I. against Scotland, happening to fall a sacrifice to that Prince, for his adherence to Robert de Brus, he had the favour, on account of his being descended from the blood royal, to be hanged on a gibbet fifty feet high. His head was set on London bridge, and his body burnt (o). His lands thereupon becoming forfeited to the Crown, K. Edward I. gave this estate to

Ralph de Montbermer, Earl of Gloucester, who had married Joan de Acres that King's daughter, relict of Gilbert de Clare. However, in the reign of K. Edward II, David son of the Earl of Athol, compounded with Montbermer for his estate again. He had a son David, who presented to this living, in 1325. Yet this seems to have been but a part of the maner; for Bartholomew de Badlesmere had of K. Edward II. in exchange for lands elsewhere 10l. rent in Echinglesford, out of the estate of the Earl of Athol hanged for felony (p).

And after this Bartholomew had been beheaded, in 1321, for opposing the unlawful proceedings of Isabel, Queen of K. Edward II; his widow, and his son—Giles de Badlesmere recovered this, and the rest of his estates, by the favour of K. Edward III, and dyed possessed of them [F] (q). [See in the other Volume, p. 415. 438.] Upon the son's decease in 1338, his four sisters became his coheirs.

Margery, the eldest, had this maner for her purparty (r); she married William Lord Roos of Hamlake, who held, jointly with her, this maner of Chingelford, of the heirs of Richard de Plaiz, as of the fee of Stansted Monfichet, in free socage, by the service of 1d. per ann. as all his successors did. He dyed in 1343; and she in 1363 (s)—Thomas Lord Roos, was their son. The time of his death is unknown. But Beatrix his widow, who dyed in 1415, enjoyed this maner of Shingalford. Her eldest son, and successor,—John Lord Roos held this maner of the heirs of John Monfichet: And departing this life in 1421, was succeeded by his brother—Thomas, then 14 years and a half old (t): who, at the time of his decease in 1430, left—Thomas his son, three years old (u). He had the misfortune of being attainted in parliament in 1461, for his firm adherence to K. Henry VI. Thereupon K. Edward IV. gave this estate to his kinsman, (l) Epitaph. (m) Inquis. ann. incert. Hen. III. (n) Sandford's Geneal. Hist. ed. 1707. Dugdale's Baron. Vol. I. p. 461, and 462. (o) Matt. Westm. ad ann. 1306. Buchanan, &c. (p) Lett. pat. Edw. II. (q) Inquis. 1, 2, & 12 Edw. III. (r) Rot. Fin. 12 Edw. III. (s) Inquis. 17 & 37 Edw. III. (t) Inquis. 3 & 9 Hen. V. (u) Inquis. 9 Hen. VI.

[D] Arms of Leigh. Argent, a fesse sable, between two pellets in chief, and a martlet of the second, in base Crest. On a torse, a bear muzzled and chained.

[E] Terra Roberti Grenonis. Hund' de Waltham. Chingelford tenet Orgarus Teinnus de Roberto, quod tenuit i liber homo, T. R. E. pro manerio, & pro v hidis: et reddit x denarios de soca ad Waltham. Tunc ii carucate in dominio, modo una. Tunc iii caucate hominum, modo ii. Semper vii villani, & vi bordarii, & iv servi. Silva p porci, 1 acre prati, Semper i molendinum, et iv piscine. Et adhuc possunt restaurari ii carucate in dominio, et atera villanis. Tunc xi animalia, modo nullus. Tunc xxx porci, modo xxi. Semper valuit lxx solidos. Lib. Domeid. fol. 64. 2. Tit. 32.

[F] The family of Badlesmere, besides this maner of Chingford, had those of Thacksted, Lacheley in Lindell, Little Stanbridge, North Fambridge; and 100 acres in Stelbing, holden of Henry de Ferrers; with other estates in Lindell, and Dunmow. And Giles held, besides, the Balliwick and Stewardship of the Forest of Essex, of the King, as of his Crown. Inquis. 2 and 12 Edw. III. See in the other Volume, p. 438. 446.

Henry Bourchier, Earl of Essex. He dyed 4 April 1483, possessed of the maner (w), and was succeeded by his grandson—Henry Bourchier, Earl of Essex; who departed this life 13 March 1540. [See in the other Volume, p. 253, 254.] From this Family it undoubtedly took the denomination of Comitis.

But we find that this estate was restored to the Family of Roos in K. Henry VIIIth's time. Edmund Lord Roos, son of Thomas, then enjoyed the maner, and presented to this Rectory in 1490.

Alienor, his sister and co-heir, was married to Sir Robert Mannors, who dyed 13 October 1508: leaving his son—George Mannors, Lord Roos: that dyed in 1513, and was succeeded by—Thomas his son and heir, created Earl of Rutland, 28 June 1525. He had had special livery of this estate, the year before; as also of what had belonged to Isabell, another sister and coheir of Edmund Lord Roos.

About the year 1537, Thomas Earl of Rutland exchanged this maner with K. Henry VIII. for some lands that had belonged to Coggeshall-Abbey (x).

I suppose it rested after that in the Crown, till Qu. Mary granted the maner of Chingford Comitis, and the Advowson of the Church, as well as the maner of Chingford St. Paul's, to Susan Tonge, widow, in 1553 (y). Her nephew Humfrey White had license 8 May 1564 to alienate it to

William Jeffreyson, and others: And, 2 December 1571, the said Humfrey, and Dorothy his wife, conveyed it to John Branche (z). At the time of his decease, 4 July 1588, he held the maner of Chingford Comitis, by the 60th part of a knight's fee: and a messuage called Friday-hill, [now the Maner house,] and Burnet woods; of the Queen in capite: Also a messuage called Chingford-Hatch, holden of the Rectory of Chingford. His three sisters, or their issue, were his co-heirs.

Mary, one of them, married to William Udall, or Wedalle, had this estate (a). Their son—Henry Udall, sold it, by license dated 2 Decemb. 1591, to Lancelot Bathurst, and his son—Ralph (b). The latter, at the time of his decease, 13 July 1608, held this maner of Chingford-Comitis, with all the lands, services, court lete, free-warren; together with lands called Harriots; and the Advowson of this Church; thereto belonging.—Ralph Bathurst was his brother, and next heir (c). Of him it was purchased by Thomas Boothby Esq; This Family is originally of Staffordshire, and was seated at Marchanton in that county; where lived Richard Boothby in the reign of K. Henry VIII; from whom sprang a numerous progeny; that got great estates by merchandizing; made a considerable figure; and produced two Baronets Families: one of which was of this parish, and the other of Broadlow-Ash, in Derbyshire (d).

Thomas, the purchaser of this estate, was the second son of William Boothby, merchant in London. He was himself a Merchant, free of the Merchant-Taylors Company, and fined for Sheriff. By his first wife, Anne Grafton, who dyed 16 Decemb. 1622, he had two daughters; and three sons, William, and Richard, that dyed unmarried; and Walter, afterwards seated at Tottenham in Middlesex. By his second wife, Elizabeth Wright, he had two sons, Thomas, a merchant in Spain; Robert: and two daughters, Anne, wife of Matthew Bedell Esq; and Elizabeth, wife of — Styles of Westram in Kent Esq;—Robert Boothby Esq; the second son, of Friday-hill, married Mary, daughter and heir of George Hyer of Weston in the parish of Shere in Surrey, by whom he had 5 sons, and 4 daughters. The sons were, Thomas; George, who dyed single; Robert; William, of Shere; and Henry.—Thomas, the eldest son and heir, was created a Baronet 9 Novemb. 1660. He married Elizabeth, daughter of — Styles, of Westram in Kent, and had by her Thomas, who dyed 1 Decemb. 1669, aged 24, being a knight, and is buried in this Church; Robert, who deceased young; and Elizabeth, wife of Hugh Wood, of London, Turkey-merchant. Dying without issue male, he left this estate to his next surviving brother.—Robert Boothby Esq; He married Sarah, daughter of Samuel Jackson of Bicker in Lincolnshire Esq; by whom he had — Thomas, his only son and heir; and a daughter, Sarah, that dyed unmarried: Thomas Boothby Esq; dyed 13 May 1735.—Robert Boothby Esq; is the present possessor [].

In 1670, Dame Elizabeth Boothby claimed, within the Forest, the Maner of Chingford Comitis, with all liberties, emoluments, commons, wastes, fisheries, court-lete, and court-baron, and other immunities, and privileges thereto belonging; free-warren at Danhurst-hill, and Dovehouse field; separate fishery in the river Ley, running through Chingford-marshes; by Charter. Also, for herself and her tenants, common of pasture in the wastes, and commonable places of the Forest, for all commonable cattle, at all times except in the fence month: And liberty to cut down pollard-trees upon the demesnes of her maner, as of old accustomed: likewise hedgebote: And to appoint a sworn wood-ward, for her woods of Larks, and Danhurst-hill.

The Maners of St. Paul, and of Gernon, were originally the only Two Maners in this Parish. The former remained undivided: But the latter was divided; For, of Giles de Plaiz, lord of Stansted Montfichet, who dyed in 1303, Alexander Bayloll held two knights fees, in Chingford in the Hundred of Little Waltham; and in Wendon in the Hundred of Westhodelsford (e).

The part of Gernon's Maner which formed that of Chingford-Comitis, hath been accounted for. But this that belonged to Bayloll, is what constituted another Maner in this parish, called [] Arms of Boothby. Argent, on a canton-fable, a Lion's paw erased, or.

(w) Inquis. 1. Rich. III.
pat. 6 Eliz. Book of Alienations.
7 Jaco. May 5.

(x) From the Court of Augmentation.

(a) Inquis. 30. Eliza.

(d) See the Baronetage, ed. 1741. Vol. III. Part 1. p. 99.

(y) Lett. pat. 1 Mar.

(b) Book of Alienations.

(e) Inquis. 31 Edw. I.

(z) Lett.

(c) Inquis.

GOWERS and BUCKERELS, which lies due north from Friday-hill.

It was formerly called Pimps Maner, and there is a field still called Pimps-Hall.

Of this estate no mention occurs till the reign of K. Henry VIII. It was in that King's hands in 1544, and was styled late parcel of the lands of George Monox (f). It does not appear by the record how he came by it: But, the same year, he granted to Geffrey Lukyn, and his heirs, the Maner and capital messuage of Gowers and Buckerells in Chingford; and four closes of pasture there, containing 30 acres; Stokeley, 40 acres; Buckerells garden; Manfield, 16 acres; Lorymes, 10 acres; eleven acres and a half in Broad marsh mead; and other smaller parcels, in all to the amount of 181 acres (g) [G]. See in the other volume, p. 460.

The 16th of June this same year, Lukyn had license to alienate the premisses to Roland Rampston, and his heirs (b)——Robert Rampston, his son, Yeoman of the Chamber, to K. Edward VI. Qu. Mary, and Qu. Elizabeth; and mentioned below among the Benefactors, succeeded him, and dyed possessed of it 3 August 1585. He had also Stone-hall in Little Canfield, &c. [See in the other Volume, p. 464.]——Roland Rampston, son of his brother John, was his heir (i). The latter, by license dated 2 March, sold this estate to

John Hare Esq; and Lucy his wife, and Nicolas their son; by the name of Gowers and Buckerells, alias Pympe's maner; one messuage, 100 acres of arable, 30 of meadow, 120 of pasture, 40 of wood, 20 of marsh, and 20 s. rent, in Shingleford, alias Chingford (k).——Nicolas Hare, by license dated 2 March, 1597-8, sold it to Nicolas Barnsley, and his wife, and William Barnsley (l). In 1630, it belonged to

George Nodes, who put in his claim at the Court of Stratford Langthorn for the privileges of a Maner in this estate; which was allowed by the Attorney general, except the article of free-warren. Soon after it was in Thomas Gundry Esq; first Secondary in the Treasurer's Remembrancer's office in the Exchequer; a younger brother of William Gundry of Wimburn in Dorsetshire. From him it descended to his son, grandson, and great grandson, all of the name of Thomas. The latter was of Deulish near Dorchester, and of him it was purchased, about the year 1730, by Mr.

Israel Hammond; and now belongs to——James Hammond, Esq;

Tho. Witham, 27 April 1657, upon Rob. Plum's cess. : . . Oliver, P. (o).
Christopher Slater, M. A. 8 Novemb. 1722, upon Haslewood's d. . . Tho: Boothby Esq;
John Bunce, M. A. 15 Octob. 1737, upon Slater's d. . . } Rob. Boothby Esq;
Benjamin Bulkley, D. D. 15 March, 1742, upon Bunce's d. . . }
Charles Torriano, M. A. 30 Sept. 1757, upon Bulkley's d. . . Sir J^a. Torriano Kt.

(f) Lett. pat. 36 Hen. VIII. (g) Ibid. (h) Ibid. (i) Inquis. 27 Eliz. Nov. 20. nu. 5. (k) Book of Alienations. (l) Ibid. (m) Lett. pat. 2 Eliz. (n) Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 147. (o) Ex MSS. Lambeth, 945. no. 2.

[G] The names of the other parcels, were, Greenfield, 6 acres; Crosse-croft, 3 acres; Winter-hills, 6 acres; Borehampstells, 4 acres; 2 closes, with a granary, 8 acres; Buffills-hill, 4 acres; Whitmans, 3 acr. Rydens, 3 acr. Hempstells, 5 acr. Borehampstells-mead, 4 acr. The woods Chingford-batch is a capital messuage, at the bottom of the road below Friday-hill. It was held by John Branche, mentioned under the last maner.

The lordship, and maner of Borobouse, is also mentioned, as lying partly in this parish, and partly in the adjoining ones of Tottenham and Edmonton. It was granted by Qu. Elizabeth to William Dodington, 2 Janu. 1559 (m), and is supposed to be the Farm called Burwoods, belonging to the daughters of Mr. Tanner.

Miles Nightingale Esq; Mr. George Day; Richard Cowley; John Dell; Thomas Trapps, &c. have also some lands here.

In this Parish is an estate of 24 l. per ann. holden of the Rector, lately in possession of Daniel Haddon, of Broxted, called Scotts Maybews, alias Brindwoods. Upon every alienation, the Owner of the estate, with his wife, manservant, and maid servant, each single on a horse, come to the Parsonage; where the Owner does his homage, and pays his relief, in manner following. He blows three blasts with his horn: carries a Hawk on his fist: his servant has a greyhound in a slip; both for the use of the Rector that day. He receives a chicken for his hawk, a peck of oats for his horse, a loaf of bread for his greyhound. They all dine, after which the master blows three blasts of his horn, and they all depart.

Charities.

Robert Rampston, Esq; mentioned a little before, having in his life time given 8 l. yearly to 8 parishes in this county; he by will settled 22 l. a year for ever, to be distributed among the Poor of 12 parishes; whereof this parish receives 3 l. yearly. See in the other Volume, p. 464.

Thomas Boothby Esq; gave 5 l. 4 s. per ann. to the Poor of this parish for ever; and tyed lands for the payment of it: It is distributed in bread every Sunday.

The rent of three half acres in the common Marsh here; given to the poor in bread: The donor unknown.

The CHURCH, dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul, consists of a body and a south aisle; but the Chancel is of one pace: the whole tyled. The Tower contains 3 Bells.

This Church was not founded on the Maner of St. Pauls, but on that of Chingford-Comitis (n); and therefore hath been all along in the gift of the Lords of this last Maner.

Chingford parish is rated to the land-tax at 1744 l.

were, Whitmans-grove, 5 acr. and half; Slades-grove, and copice, 10 acr. Whittenham copice, 5 acr. and half; Buckerells grove, 2 acres. Together with a Fishery in the water de Roy, and all the Islands, belonging to this maner. Lett. pat. 36 Hen. VIII.

H A V E R I N G.

H A V E R I N G,

LIBERTY, is bounded on the west by the Half-Hundred of Becontree; on the north by part of Ongar-Hundred; on the south by the river Thames; and by Chafford Hundred on the east: being separated from this last by a rivulet, whose springs or fountains are about Navestoke and South-Weald, and its course by Rainham to the Thames at Wennington. The Saxon name for another little stream from Brentwood, which joins this below Brook-street, is Sybe-bunghbroke, and in its farther course has been called Inghebupne.

This Liberty is nine miles long from north to south; and four miles and a half in its greatest width from east to west; but near the Thames it is not above three quarters of a mile wide. It has been anciently a member of Becontree Hundred, and is set down as such in the Conqueror's Survey. In the Saxons time, it was ancient demesne, of the Crown Imperial of this realm: and, being one of the Royal Palaces, was erected into a Liberty independent of that Hundred, or indeed of any Jurisdiction, either Ecclesiastical or Civil, of the County, having in itself a tribunal for life and death. The reason of this seems to be, that the Kings of England having here a hunting-house, at which they passed much of their time, their officers should take cognizance of crimes within the verge of their Court, and that offenders should receive sentence under their more immediate inspection.—Or else it was an usual Privilege belonging to the royal Palaces.

[H] The story is garnished with these circumstances, That as the Church of Clavering in this County was consecrating, and was to be dedicated to Christ and St. John the Evangelist, K. Edward the Confessor riding that way, alighted, out of devotion, to be present at the consecration. During the procession, a fair old man came to the King, and begged alms of him, in the name of God, and St. John the Evangelist. The King having nothing else to give, as his almoner was not at hand, took the Ring from his finger and gave it the poor man. Some years after, two English pilgrims having lost their way as they were travelling to the Holy Land, they saw a company clothed in white, with two lights carried before them; and behind them came a fair ancient Man. The pilgrims joyning them, the old Man enquired who they were, and whence they came. After hearing their story, he brought them into a fine city, where was a room furnished with all manner of dainties: when they had well refreshed themselves, and rested there all night, the old man set them again in the right way. And at parting, he told them, He was John the Evangelist: Adding, as the Legend goes on, 'Say ye unto Edward your kyng, that I grete hym well by the token that he gaaf to me this Ryng wyth his own handes at the halowyng of my Chirche, whiche ryng ye shall deliver hym agayn, And say ye to him, that he dyspose his goodes, For wythin fixe monethes he shall be in the joye of heven wyth me, where he shall have his rewarde for his chastite and for his good lyvinge.'

At their return home, the two Pilgrims waited upon the King, who was then at this Bower, and delivered to him

This, probably, was the cause of esteeming Becontree, in modern reckoning, an Half Hundred, because so great a branch had been lopt off from it as Havering.

The name of H A V E R I N G, is plainly derived from the two Saxon words, Hæpen, a goat, and ing, pasture; qu. Goat's pasture.

But there is another derivation, though quite legendary and fabulous, which some Readers would think me very deficient if I should not mention. The substance of it is, That St. John the Evangelist, under the disguise of an old beggar, asking alms of K. Edward the Confessor; the King having nothing else at hand ready to bestow upon him, gave him a Ring off his finger. Some years after, St. John sent him this Ring back by two English Pilgrims, with notice that he should dye within six months. They delivered the message and Ring to him here, at his Bower; whence this place received the appellation of Havering. For a more particular account, see the note below [H].

This Liberty, being ancient Demesne of the Crown, belonged, as we have seen to K. Edward the Confessor: and, under him, to Earl Harold, his successor in the throne. At the time of the general Survey, it was part of William the Conqueror's Demesne lands: Under whom some parcels were held by Robert son of Corbutio, Hugh de Montfort, John son of Waleram; holden before by five Freemen, and one Socman. To this maner belonged twenty acres, lying in Lochetuna, or Loughton [I].

Havering Liberty was divided afterwards into these several Maners.

their message, and the Ring, from which circumstance this place is said to have received the name of Havering.

This whole story is wrought in basso relievo in the Chapel at Westminster where Edward the Confessor lies buried, on the back of the skreen that divides it from the altar. The statues of the King and the Pilgrims are also over the Courts of the King's-bench and Common-pleas, in Westminster-hall; and over the gate going into Dean's-yard. His picture was also on the glass of the east window of the south aisle of Romford Chapel, with two pilgrims, and under it, Johannes per peregrinos misit Regi Edwardo. A good picture of him is now on the glass of the Chancel-window of that Chapel; renewed in 1707. The Ring pretended to have been given by him, as above, to St. John, was deposited among other reliques in his Abbey at Westminster, and there was granted to this supposed Ring of St. Edward an Indulgence for 6 years and 360 days. Ailred Rievallenfis, col. 397, 398. Legenda Aurea, printed by W. Caxton, fol. 308. Dart's Hist. of Westminster-Abb. Vol. I. p. 51. Weever, p. 647. and Camden's Remains, p. 483.

[I] Terra Regis. Hundret de Beventreu. Häveringas tenuit Haroldus, Tempore Regis Edwardi, pro i manerio et pro x hidis. Tunc xli villani, modò xl. Semper xli bordarii, et vi servi, & ii carucate in dominio. Tunc xli carucate Hominum, modò xl. Silva d porcis, e acre prati. Modò i molendinum, & ii runcini, & x animalia, et clx porci, & cc et lxix oves. . . . Huic manerio adiacebant iv liberi homines de iv hidis T. R. E. reddentes consuetudinem, modo tenet Robertus Filius Corbutonis iii hidas, et Hugo de On

On the North.

1. Havering at Bower. 2. Pirgo. 3. Dagenhams. 4. Cockerells. 5. Gofayes. 6. Up-havering, or Gobions. 7. Reedon, or Ridden-Court. 8. The Maner of Romford, or Mannys. 9. East-House, Bedfords, and Geddyng-hall. 10. Stewards. 11. Marks.

On the South.

The Maners, ... 12. of Nelmes. 13. Lees-Gardens. 14. Maylerds. 15. Brettons. 16. Suttons: and 17. Dovers.

The name of HORN-CHURCH doth not appear to have been used here, till about the reign of K. Henry III. as we shall shew a little lower.

HAVERING-BOWER

was an ancient Retiring-place of some of our Saxon Kings; particularly of that simple Saint Edward the Confessor, who took a great delight in it, as being woody and solitary, fit for his private devotions. The legend says, it abounded so with warbling nightingales, that they disturbing him at his prayers, he earnestly desired of God their absence; since which time, as the credulous neighbouring swaines believed, never nightingale was heard to sing in the park, but many without the pales, as in other places (p). It was named Bower, from some fine Bower, or shady walk, as Rosamond's Bower at Woodstock.

This is a most charming spot, having a beautiful extensive prospect over a great part of Essex, Hertfordshire, Kent, Middlesex, and Surrey; and also a view of the Thames, with ships continually sailing up and down. Here Edward the Confessor is reported to have built a Palace, or perhaps improved an old one: It was of free-stone, and leaded. Some parts of the Walls are still standing, but not enough to shew its original form or extent; it being ruinous and uninhabitable.

(p) Camden's Remains, p. 483. edit. 1674. (q) Inquis. 16 Edw. I. (r) Inquis. 6 Hen. IV. (s) Liber ruber. fol. 14. (t) Vincent's Collect. (u) Ryley's Placita Parliam. p. 351. (w) Vincent, ibid.

Monteforti quartam hidam, et non reddiderunt consuetudinem ex quo eas habuerunt. Et adhuc idem Robertus tenet iv hidas & dimidium, quas tenebat unus liber Homo. . . . Ad hoc Manerium, T. R. E, attinebat etiam unus sochemannus de xxx atris reddens consuetudinem, et modo tenet Johannes filius Galerami. Et hoc Manerium, T. R. E, valuit xxxvi libras, modo xl. Et Petrus Vicecomes inde recepit lxxx libras de censu, & x libras de gersuma.

Huic manerio pertinent xx aci⁹ jacentes in Lochetuna, quas tenuit T. R. E, Prepositus Haraldi, modo tenet Prepositus Regis, et valuit xl denarios. Lib. Domeſd. fol. 2. b. 3. a. Tit. 1.

[K] That here were two Houses, appears by this extract from Records. Ao. 11 Hen. III. 'The Kynge did comytt to one Phyllipe Forrester the custody of his howses and parke of Havering during pleasure.'

In 1379 John de Brampton was Steward of the King's Maner of Havering at Bobre. Pat. 3 Ric. II.

[L] The Petition and Answer was published by Mr. Ryley; and is as follows. Ad petitionem Gilberti, filii & heredis Domini Thome de Clare, petent' remedium super eo quod cum temporibus transactis ad plura Parliamenta supplicasset Domino Regi per peticoem quod gratiam ei faceret de custodia Manerii & Parci de Haveryng; quam Pater suus p'quisivit de Domino Ricardo de Mountfitchet cum Balliva Foreste de Essex, prout patet per Cartam ejusdem Patris sui: Et Responsum fuit ei ad ultimum Parliamentum pro eo quod Domina

The CHAPEL stands near it, being only of one pace. It is dedicated to St. John the Evangelist.

Besides this palace, there was another at Pirgo, that belonged to the Queens of England; where they resided at their own conveniency; or probably during their widow-hood, Havering being usually part of the Queens Jointure [K].

Elianor Queen of K. Edward I. appears to have enjoyed it; and Henry Wych held of her one virgate of land, by the rent of 30s. a year, and 7s. per ann. under the name of custom; together with suit at her court from three weeks to three weeks; and by the service of fencing in six perches of the Queen's Park (q); By which it appears, that both Havering Bower, and Pirgo had Parks.

Anne, Queen of K. Richard II. held in dower this maner of Havering, then worth 100l. a year (r).

In the year 1166, William Hurel held land in Havering, by the serjeancy of keeping the Park: And John de Ruyme, in 1210 (s). But, in general, The keeping of the Park at Havering went along with the Forestership of Essex, as appears from Records in the Tower. Richard Montfitchet held both through almost the whole reign of K. Henry III. (t). Of him Thomas de Clare, second son of Richard Earl of Gloucester purchased it; from whom it came in time to the Veres Earls of Oxford. But Thomas de Clare was deprived of it, for a trespass, or misdemeanor, of a Park-keeper of his (u). And the custody was given to Henry Fitz-Aucher, who was commanded by K. Henry III. in 1223, to suffer one John, keeper of the Park of Havering, to have the tops of the timber trees there felled; in like sort as he and his ancestors were wont to have the same in the time of King John (w).

In 1307, Gilbert, son and heir of Thomas de Clare, petitioned the Parliament that he might obtain the custody of the said Maner and Park [L]. What effect this petition had, doth Regina tenuit predicta Manerium & Parcum, quod Dominus Abell & Willus de Effeden venissent ad dicend' & ostend' si quod sciverint pro statu Regine quare dictus Gilbertus habere non debeat secundum tenorem Carte & seisinam quam Pater suus habuit. Et predictus Johannes & Willus venerunt, & dixerunt, quod predictus Dns Thomas habuit quendam Parcarium ibidem qui fecit quandam transgressionem Dne Regine jam defuncte, [ob] quod erat imprisonatus, & in prisona obiit; & dicta Custodia capta fuit in manum Domine Regine de Domino Thoma de Clare existente in Hibernia, qui obiit eodem tempore; p' quod eadem Custodia remansit in eodem statu p' defectum seſte, & p' minorem etatem dicti Gilberti. Ita responsum est; Mandetur Breve de Cancellar Johi Abell Senescallo Regine, quod ipse veniat coram Rogero le Brabazon & sociis suis in quindena sancti Michis ad ostend' & dicend' si quid habeat seu dicere sciat pro statu Domine Regine quare custodia infra petita non debeat dicto Gilberto liberari. Et si dictus Johes nichil sufficiens pro Domino Rege vel Regina ostenderit Justic' tunc non omittant quin procedant ad faciend' quod justum fuerit in hac parte. Et sequatur dictus Gilbertus tunc ibidem si sibi viderit expedire, & mittatur ista Petitio Rogero le Brabazon & sociis suis sub Sigillo Regis de Cancellar'. Ryley's Placita Parliam. p. 351.

This long Petition and Answer I have inserted to shew the method of that time to apply to the King in Parliament, and his referring the complaint to be inquired into by the Judges.

not appear. But it seems to have been unsuccessful. For, from this time till 1483, the keeping of Havering-Park was granted to different persons, and not enjoyed by the heirs or representatives of Gilbert de Clare.

K. Edward II. granted it, 23 Febru. 1317, to William Gerand.—K. Edward III. in 1330, to Henry Aumeney; and, in 1376, to Ralph Tyle [M]: confirmed by—K. Richard II. to the same, and, after his decease in 1396 given to John Loweke, or Lowise.—K. Henry IV. and K. Henry V. to Norbury, and : : : Randell.—K. Henry VI. gave it in 1437, to Thomas Skargill, for life; and the next year, the office of Riding Forester in Waltham-forest, jointly with William Bolton. And in 1437, he granted the office of keeping the south-gate of this park to John Kemp, for life. The same he granted, in 1452, to Ralph Boyse for life; and the custody of the Park, and House of Havering, by patent and by authority of parliament.—K. Edward IV. in 1475, bestowed upon Sir Thomas Montgomery, [mentioned in the other Volume, p. : : :] the custody and stewardship of the whole Forest of Essex, with all emoluments thereto belonging. He kept them till 12 August 1484, when they were given to Robert Brakenbury, one of K. Richard the Third's Favorites; who had before given to his secretary, John Kendal, the custody of Havering Park (x).—The Vere Family, which claimed from Thomas de Clare above-mentioned, having been attainted, and two of them beheaded, for their adherence to the House of Lancaster; in 1485—John de Vere, Earl of Oxford, was restored by act of parliament to his Honors and Estates, and to the office of grand Forester of Essex (y) [N].

Havering-Park contained a thousand acres. The Lands are still in the Crown, but lett upon lease [O]. K. Charles II. leased out one part to the Duke of Grafton: The duchess of Grafton, and her second husband Sir Thomas Hanmer, sold the lease to one Richard Holdich, a South-sea Director. Upon the Directors forfeiture in 1721, this part coming to the South-sea Company, they sold it to Richard Ladbroke Esq; who gave it to his nephew Richard Ladbroke Esq; brother to Sir Robert, Alderman of London. Part of this is in the parish of Stapleford-Abbots.—The other part of the Park was leased out by K. Charles II.

(x) Vincent's Collect. I. p. 719, &c.

(y) Ibid. (z) Stow's Annales, p. 376.

(a) Lett. pat. 1 Eliz. (b) Vol.

[M] There was also granted to this Ralph several lands in fee, in Havering, and a water-mill, with the suits and services of the whole town of Havering, and 16 acres in Havering-marsh; and Le Markdich, and Havering-heth, two Fleets in the water. Lett. pat. 50 Edw. III.

[N] 2 Hen. VIII; 29 Octob. Rex concessit Comiti Oxonie, & heredibus suis, Custodiam & Seneschal' totius Forestie de Essex, & inter alia ministros ibidem constituere sub se ires Forestarios pedestres, feod. vid. per diem, viz. iij. pro quolibet. Pat. 2 Hen. VIII.

[O] Richard, son of William de Havering, held 120 acres here, by the service of finding Litter, [Litteram, most probably rushes,] for the King's Chamber. . . . Cart. 19 Hen. III. m. 3.

In 1284, Roger Bigot, Earl of Norfolk, and Lord Marshall, held in the maner of Havering one wood of 60 acres, to Robert Bertie, Earl of Lindsey, and enjoyed afterwards by his son, created Duke of Ancaster; and by his widow, the Duchess.

PIRGO

Stands near the Bower. It is written Pirgore and Purgore; the first syllable seems derived from Park: Perhaps it was Park-gate, as there were several Gates to the Park. Hereabout may have been one, which gave name to the place before this House was erected, and the little Park taken out of the Forest. Or else it is most probably derived from the two Saxon words, Pypige, and hou.

This House was built early, though not so early as the Bower. It was in being in 11 Henry III. a°. 1226, for we have seen already that it was at that time in custody of Phyllippe Forester; how long before that reign, nothing shews. And it seems to have been always the House of a Queen Consort, and her Jointure.

Here dyed, 9 July 1437, Joane, widow of K. Henry IV (z).

Q. Elizabeth, 24 April 1559, granted to Sir John Grey the site and capital Messuage of Pirgoe, alias Pirgore; and the Grange, or house of husbandry, called Piggs, thereto annexed: also the Park of Pirgoe, with its rights, members, and appertenantes: and all the parcels of the demesne lands belonging to that capital messuage: To hold in capite, by the fortieth part of a knight's fee (a) [P].

This Sir John Grey was second son of Thomas Grey, Marquis of Dorset; which Thomas was grandson of Sir John Grey, and Elizabeth Widvile, afterwards, Queen of K. Edward IV; concerning whom, and his Family, we shall beg leave to refer to Sir William Dugdale's Baronage (b). Only, we shall observe, that his eldest brother, Henry Grey, Duke of Suffolk, was father of the Lady Jane Grey, proclaimed Queen of England.

Sir John Grey dyed 19 Novemb. [Q] 1564, possessed of this estate, with the whole Park; and the several parcels of the Demesnes belonging to the said capital messuage [R]: and lies buried in the Chapel of Pirgo, with his wife, Mary, daughter of Antony Brown, Viscount Montacute. They had 4 sons, Thomas, John, Edward, Henry; and 4 daughters, Frances, Eli-which used to be the pasture for the King's cows and oxen. Placita apud Chelmsf. 13 Edw. 1.

[P] It doth not appear, but rather the contrary, that his father Thomas Grey Marquis of Dorset was ever possessed of this estate; as Dr. S. Knight, in his life of Erasmus, supposed, p. 293.—Arms of Grey. Barry of six, argent and azure, three torteaux in chief; and a label of 3 points, ermine.

[Q] So it is said in his Epitaph: but the Inquisition taken after his decease hath it 19 September.

[R] Those parcels were, 37 acres, 1 rood, and 6 perches near the Park; one meadow paled in called the Little Park; a pond of one acre and a half; 12 acres and a half in Broad meadow; 23 acres and a half of arable and pasture in Horn Church; 4 closes called Wiets lands; 2 closes called Tendetthills &c. Inquis. 7 Eliz. nu. 41.

zabeth, zabeth, Anne, Margaret.—Henry Grey Esq; the youngest son, was created 21 July 1603, Baron Grey of Groby. By his wife, Anne, daughter of William Lord Windsor, he had two sons, John and Ambrose, and two daughters. He dyed 26 July 1614 (c). Before his decease he sold this estate to Sir Thomas Cheke Kt. grandson of the learned Sir John Cheke.

The Cheke family was originally of Motston in the isle of Wight: where lived Richard Cheke, in the reign of K. Richard II. who married one of the daughters of the Lord Montacute: and had for successors, Edward, John, another John, and Robert. This last, by a daughter of . . . Bremshot, or Branchet, had 4 sons, David, Peter, William, and Thomas. David's line long flourished at Motston.—Peter, the second son, was settled in Cambridge, and by Agnes his wife, daughter of—Dufford, or De Ufford, had John, and 5 daughters; Anne, married to George Allington; Alice, to . . . Blithe M. D. Elizabeth, to . . . Spering; Mary, to Sir William Cecil, the great Lord Burleigh; Magdalen, first to Laurence Eresby, then to John Purefoy.—John Cheke, the son, was one of the most learned men in his time, Greek Professor at Cambridge, one of the Preceptors to K. Edward VI. knighted in 1551, made Chamberlain of the Exchequer, Secretary of State &c: He dyed 13 Septemb. 1557 [S]. By Mary, his wife, daughter and heir of Richard Hill, Serjeant of the King's wine-cellar, [re-married to Henry Mackwilliam Esq; and that lived till 30 Novemb. 1616. See in the other Volume, p. 357.] he left three sons, Henry; John, and Edward, which two last dyed without issue.—

Henry Cheke Esq; the eldest son, married Frances, daughter of Sir Humphrey Radcliffe of Elvestow in Bedfordshire, sister to Edward Radcliffe, Baron Fitz-Walter, and Earl of Suffex; which Edward dyed without issue in 1643. Whereupon, in right of the said Frances, her son,—Sir Thomas Cheke Kt. the purchaser of this estate, had a claim to the Barony of Fitz-Walter: He married, first, . . . daughter of Peter Osborn Esq; but by her had no issue. His second wife was, Effex, daughter of Robert Earl of Warwick, by whom he had Robert, born in 1625; Thomas; Charles; Francis: and 5 daughters, Frances, wife of Sir Lancelot Lake, Kt. Effex, married first to Sir Robert Bevill K. B. afterwards to Edward Earl of Manchester; Anne, first to Richard Rogers Esq; and next to Robert Earl of Warwick; Isabell, to Sir Francis Gerrard, Bart. and Elizabeth, to Sir Richard Franklin Bart. Their father, Sir Thomas Cheke, dyed 25 March 1659.—Robert, the eldest son, put in his claim to the Barony of Fitz-Walter against

Henry Mildmay Esq; in 1660 (d). But dying without issue was succeeded in this estate by his next brother—Col. Thomas Cheke, Lieutenant of the Tower in the reigns of K. Charles II. and James II. who dyed 13 April 1688. He married first the Lady Dorothy Sidney, daughter of Philip Earl of Leicester, by whom he had no issue. He afterwards married Letitia, daughter, and at length heir, of Edward Russel, second son of Francis Earl of Bedford, and sister to Edward Earl of Orford, and by her, who dyed 9 Janu. 1721-2, had Edward, Effex, and Anne.—Edward Cheke Esq; the son and heir, married Anne, daughter of Sir William Ellys, of Nocton, in Lincolnshire, Bart. and had by her several children; who all dying young, the Estate devolved, upon his decease 8 Octob. 1707, to his surviving sister

Anne, relict of Sir Thomas Tipping of Wheatfield in Oxfordshire Bart. She dyed 20 January 1727-8, and leaving only two daughters, this estate upon a partition fell to the lot of the youngest daughter [T], Catharine, married to Thomas Archer of Umberlade in the County of Warwick Esq; On the 14th of July 1747, he was created Baron Archer of Umberlade: and is the present possessor of Pirgo, and other very considerable estates. His Lady, Catharine, dyed at Pirgo, 20 July 1754. His great grandfather Sir Simon Archer Kt. was distinguished for his singular accomplishments, and his great knowledge in the History and Antiquities of this Kingdom. But for a more particular account of this worthy Family, see Sir William Dugdale's Antiquit. of Warwickshire, p. 781. and Ar. Collins's Peerage, Vol. V. p. 496.

This fine Seat has a small Chapell; in which there is a Monument for Sir John Grey, and his wife. [Here also lye buried Thomas Cheek Esq; Edward his son, Anne his widow, that dyed 11 Febru. 1722, and some of their children.

The Maner of DAGENHAMS

Stands south-east from Pirgo, bordering upon South-Weald. The name came probably from an owner who wrote himself de Dagenham. The s at the end of Dagenhams, the name of a neighbouring parish, intimates as much [U].

Henry Percy, Earl of Northumberland who dyed in 1454, held the maners of Dagenham and Cokerells of the King in capite, as of his maner of Havering att Boure, by fealty and yearly rent of 9 li. 10 s. 0. — Henry was his son and heir (e).

Sir William Husee at the time of his decease, 8 Septemb. 1495, held the maner of Potters-Fee, Dagnamis and Cokerells of Elizabeth, Queen of K. Henry VII. as of her maner of Have-

(c) Dugdale's Baron. Vol. I. p. 721, 722. rage, edit. 1735. Vol. II. Part 2. p. 775. 777.

(d) See Dugdale's Baron. Vol. II. p. 288. and Ar. Collins's Peerage, Inquis. 33 Hen. VI.

[S] For a more particular account of this great man, see his life published by J. Strype, Lond. 1705. 8°. — Arms of Cheke. Argent, three crescents, gules.

[T] Letitia Tipping, the eldest daughter, was married to Samuel Sandys of Ombersley Court in Worcestershire

Esq;

[U] In 1335, Philip de Dover held 37 acres of arable in this vill, at Delle, of William Dakenham, by the service of 13 s. a year. Inquis. 9 Edw. III. . . . So that we find there was a person in this parish of that surname.

* R

ring-

ring-att-Bowre [W];—John his son and heir, was thirty years old (f).

In 1517, Peter Christmas held the maners of Dagenham and Cockerells of Catharine Queen of England as of her maner of Havering; He dyed 9 October that year, and—William Turk, his next heir, was twenty four years old (g).

The next possessor was Thomas Legatt, who had not only these two Maners, but also several parcels adjoining [X]; and departing this life 18 January 1555, was succeeded by—Thomas Legatt his son and heir, 10 years, and 10 months old (b). Concerning the Legatt family, see under Stapleford-Tany, and in the other Volume, p. 123.

About the middle of the last century it was in a branch of the Wright Family of Kelvedon-Hatch. John Wright of that parish had three sons, Robert, from whom descended the Wrights of Brook-street; John, from whom the Wrights of South-Weald; and another John, of Wrights-Bridge near Horn-Church, but within the parish of S. Weald, and of Grays-Inn, Esq; who dyed in 1644. By Mary, daughter of John Mole, and Elizabeth sister of Sir Thomas Cheke, he had — Laurence Wright, M. D. who dyed 3 Octob. 1657. leaving his son and heir—Henry, who was created a Baronet 11 June 1660, and dyed 5 February 1663. He married Anne, daughter of John Lord Crew of Stene, which lady dyed 27 Sept. 1708, by whom he had—Sir Henry Wright, who dyed in 1681, under age, and unmarried; and

Anne, that upon her brother's death became a great heiress. She was married first to

Edmund, son and heir of Sir Robert Pye of Berkshire, by whom she had some sons and 5 daughters; Her second husband was William Rider Esq; [See in the other Volume, p. 568.] She gave this estate to

Edward Carteret Esq; uncle to the late Earl Granville, and one of the Postmasters General, who had married the Lady Bridget Sudbury, widow first of Sir John Sudbury, then of Thomas Clutterbuck Esq; He dyed 15 April 1739, having had by his said Lady several children which were all dead before him, except two Daughters; namely, Bridget, who was Maid of Honour to Queen Caroline, and Anne-Isabella, wife of Admiral Cavendish. These jointly sold this estate in 1748 to Henry Muilman Esq; the present possessor.

Sir Henry Wright built here, and He, or some of his descendants made a small Park. Mr. Carteret improved the building, and erected a Chapel.

COCKERELLS

is a maner adjoining south-west to the Park of Dagenhams. It is now only a Farm, standing without the moat, which once inclosed the Mansion-house. It took the present name from an owner. John de Wand, who dyed in 1251, held of the King in capite 120 acres of arable, 3 acres and 1 rood of pasture, with 61 s. 6 d. rent of assize and the customs of his tenants.—William Senefeld, son of Emma, eldest sister, and Julian, wife of Robert Cokerell, another sister of the said John, were his next heirs (i).

In 1454, it went with Dagenhams, and was the Earl of Northumberland's; from him it passed to Husee, and Legat, and Wrights; and came, as Dagenhams, to the daughters of Edward Carteret Esq;

They sold it, with the other, to Henry Muilman Esq;

GOOSHAYS.

This maner joins to those of Dagenhams and Cockerills. The mansion-house stands about half a mile from the Road on the right hand as you go from Brentwood to Romford. The first mention I find of the name is in 1334, when John de Dover held of Philippa Queen of England, as of her maner of Havering att Boure, one messuage in Gofaye, with sixty acres of arable, four of meadow, and 4 l. 6 s. 1 d. ob. yearly rent, by the service of paying yearly 37 s. to the Queen afore said; He was then succeeded by his son and heir—Philip de Dover, who dyed the next year. They two held of the King, in capite, in Newhall [that is Dovers, see a little lower] a capital messuage; and other parcels of land. — Richard de Dover was son of Philip (k).

John Chaderton was possessed of this maner in 1445 (l).

Alured Cornburgh, who dyed 2 February 1486, held this maner of Goseys, and 6 messuages, 20 cottages, 40 tofts, 500 acres of arable, 100 acr. of meadow, 500 of wood, and 10 marks rent, of the King in socage, as of his maner of Havering: Also the third part of the maner of Dovers.—Agnes Chamber, one of his sisters, and John Crafford, son of his other sister Alice, were his heirs (m). This Alured, or Avery, Cornborow, founded a Chantry at Romford; see below.

Thomas Legatt, mentioned above under Dagenhams, held this maner in 1555 (n).

Thomas Moreton, who dyed 1 April 1591, held the maner of Goosehayes, with appertenance, and 6 messuages, 20 cottages, forty tofts, 500 acres of arable, 100 of meadow, 500 of wood, and 40 s. rent, with their appertenance in Goosehayes, Havering att Bower, Romford, and Horne Church, of the Queen, as of (f) Inquis. 11 Hen. VII. Nov. 4. (g) Inquis. 9 Hen. VIII. Nov. 5. (b) Inquis. 2 & 3. Ph. & Mar. nu. 44. (i) Inquis. 36 Hen. III. (k) Inquis. 8 & 9 Edw. III. (l) Inquis. 23 Hen. VI. (m) Inquis. 2 Hen. VII. March 13. (n) Inquis. 3 Edw. VI. Nov. 7.

[W] Together with this maner he held a field called Le Whall; another named Wasygetts, of 14 acres; Wolynsfield, 24 acres; Tanners croft; Hurtisland; eight crofts called Dellonds; Tanners mead, and Wiggessmead, 3 acres. Inquis. 11 Hen. VII.

[X] In Havering he held, of the Queen, the maner of Gubbyns; messuages called Goldsmithes, Paynes, Turkes, Pondemans, Slickstones; Cowles, and Cowles meadow, 45 acres, parcel of Cockerells maner; Wattes meade; &c. And he held of New-College, a messuage called Solmes, and four other messuages. See Inquis. 2 & 3 Ph. & Mar. nu. 44.

her maner of Havering;—George was his son and heir (o).

Soon after it belonged to Richard Humble, of Southwark, vintner, and Alderman of London (descended from a family of that name in Norfolk,) who dyed 10 April 1616, possessed of this maner of Goosehayes, and many other parcels here (p). He married first Elizabeth, daughter and sole heir of John Pierſon of Nafing, by whom he had Peter; John who dyed without issue; Elizabeth, wife of Richard Ward, citizen and goldsmith of London; and three others that dyed without issue. By his second wife . . . daughter of . . . Kichingman no children are mentioned.—Peter, his son and heir, dying without issue, this estate came to the said Elizabeth, wife of Richard Ward (q).—Sir Humble Ward Kt. paid quit-rent for this maner in 1659 [r]. He was a wealthy goldsmith in London, and jeweller to Henrietta Maria Queen of K. Charles I. and for his kind assistance to K. Charles I. was knighted 24 June 1643, and advanced to the dignity of a Baron, by the title of Lord Ward of Birmingham, 23 March 1643-4. He dyed 4 Octob. 1670, having had by Frances his wife, niece and heir to Edward Lord Dūdley, Edward, and William; and three daughters (r).—Edward Lord Dudley and Ward, his eldest son and heir, built the House here; now mostly pulled down; and sold this estate to —Mead; wherein he was succeeded by his son—Sir Nathanael Mead, Kt. Serjeant at law. It is now held by William Sheldons Esq;

The Maner of UP-HAVERING, or GOBIONS.

The name of Up-Havering was used as early as the year 1202, and one William Up-Havering, then living, had taken his surname from hence (s). As to Gobions it was also from an owner's name, found at other parts of Essex, and in Bedfordshire. [See in the other Volume, p. 361.]

To whom this estate belonged after that, we have no account till 1479, when we find it recorded, that Thomas Urſwick held of Elizabeth Queen of K. Edward IV. the maner of Up-Havering, and one messuage, 200 acres of arable, 20 of meadow, 2 of wood, and 8 s. 1 d. rent in Havering att Bower. Part of which called Pinherſt, and 30 acres, were holden of Alured Corneburgh.—Catharine, wife of Henry Langley: Anne, wife of John Doreward, Elizabeth, Joane, and Mary Urſwyck, were his daughters and co-heirs (t). [See in the other Volume, p. 507.]

Next, Sir William Roche, who dyed 11 Septemb. 1549 [Z], held the maner, or tenement, called Upp-Haveringe alias Gubbyons, with appertenances, in Colley-Row, alias Collier-Row, and divers other lands, tenements, and hereditaments, parcel of the same, of the King, of his maner of Haveringe, as of ancient demesne, in socage, and for the rent of 53 s. 6 d. per ann. He had likewise the maner of Nelmes,—John Roche was his son and heir (u).

Thomas Legatt also, mentioned before under Dagenhams, held this maner of Gubbyns (w).

Sir Richard Minsbew had it in 1636.

One Col. Matthews was the next possessor of this estate upon record [A]. His son—Philip Matthews, of Great Gobions in Collyer-Row Ward, Esq; was created a Baronet 15 June 1662. He married Anne, daughter of Sir Thomas Wolſtonholme, of Forty-hill in Enfeild Bart. by whom he had a son, and two daughters: He departed this life in 1685; and his lady not till 20 March 1735, aged 89; having remained 50 years a widow. Their son—Sir John Matthews Bart. being a Colonel in the foot guards, was killed at the battle of Oudenard, and left no issue. Of the two Daughters, Dorothy dyed unmarried; and Elizabeth was the wife of Thomas Dawson D. D. once Fellow of St. John's college in Cambridge, who had by her four Daughters, Anne; Diana; Elizabeth; and Margaret.

Sir Philip Matthews, or some of his Family, sold this estate to Mr. William Curwen. And of his son—John Curwen Esq; it was purchased by Sir Philip Hall, of Upton, who was Sheriff of this County in 1727, and then knighted. He dyed 9 January 1745-6, aged 67, and was succeeded by his son—Philip Hall Esq;

The Maner of REDENE, or REDEN-COURT,

Stands on the left hand side of the Road, as you go from Brentwood, to Romford; almost opposite to Gooshays.

Court is an old name for a great man's house; And whether Reden is not derived from the two Saxon words, Red, a reed, and ben, a valley, we submit to the Reader's judgment. Or it might possibly have taken its name from an ancient family surnamed Reding, mentioned in an old deed.

On, or about the year 1379, Sir Richard de Havering did enfeoff Sir John de Newenton, and Emma his wife, in one messuage, two hundred (o) Inquis. 33 Eliz. (p) Inquis. 14 Jaco. Sept. 16. (q) Book of Pedigrees. (r) Dugdale's Baron. Vol. II. p. 472. (s) Pedes Fin. 4 Joh. in Recept. Theſ. Scaccarii. (t) Inquis. 19 Edw. IV. (u) Inquis. 4 Edw. VI. nu. 91. Apr. 16. (w) Inquis. 3 Edw. VI. nu. 47.

[r] And yet Martha Bray, who dyed 6 June 1628, held, in her demesne as of fee, this manner of Goosehayes, &c. Her son, Edmund Bray, was only 22 days old. Inquis. 14 Caro. ex parva Baga.

[Z] He was son of John Roche of Wixley in Yorkshire, and Lord Mayor of London in 1540. His wife Julian dyed in 1526. His son, Sir John, married Elizabeth daughter of Sir William Forman, Alderman. Epitaph. Stow's Survey of London. ed. 1720. b. 131. p. v.

[A] The account Mr. Symonds, his contemporary, gives of this man, is, That living near Romford, and being a forward lad, waiting for employment at the Court, he got to be under-Clerk to Sir Thomas Mewtys, Clerk of the Privy Council: In which employment he got to his wife the heiress of a citizen, worth 4000 l. and that set him up in the world. He was an Officer to the Parliament, and dyed in winter 1658. Symonds's Collect. p. 63.

and eighty and nineteen acres and half of arable, and 36 s. rent in Havering att Boure, to have to himself and heirs; which were anciently held of the maner of Havering att Bowre, as of the old Demesne of the King's Crown, by the rod, by services and customs and not by knight's service; but were then held by Charter, and yearly rent of 19 s. 4 d. (x).—Joane Swinderton, sister and heir of Thomas Newenton, dyed in 1445, possessed of the maner of Redene alias Reden-Court. She had, in 1422, passed this maner to trustees, I suppose for a settlement. It contained one messuage and 100 acres of arable, formerly William Fleming's, holden of the King by the service of finding litter in the King's chamber as often as he came to Havering: And there were other 66 acres of arable, for which 13 s. 8 d. were paid into the Exchequer: they holding also of the King (y).

Very soon after, this estate was in the Cook Family of Gedy-hall. For Sir Thomas Cook, at the time of his decease, in 1478, held this maner of Reden, alias Reden-Court, and 2 messuages, 74 acres of arable, 2 acres of meadow, 4 of wood, and 8 l. rent in Havering att Boure (z).

From him it passed to his posterity, more particularly mentioned under Gedy-hall—John Coke Esq; held this maner of Ridden-Court, in 1515 (a).—Sir Antony Cook, who dyed 28 December 1604, held this maner of Ridden-Court, of the King, as of his maner of Havering, by fealty only (b).

Some time ago it was purchased by John Hopkins Esq; who dying immensely rich 25 April 1732, was succeeded by his nephew—John Hopkins Esq; the present possessor.

The Maner of ROMFORD.

Romford took its name from the Ford through that little Stream which passes about the middle of this Town, and over which there now is a Bridge.

Whether it is a contraction from Roman ford; or a compound of the Saxon words, Rom, a Ram, or Rum broad, and ford, I submit to the Reader's judgment. This Town is at present the greatest thoroughfare in Essex, from the eastern parts of this County, and of Suffolk and Norfolk, to and from London.

Some have fancied, that the Road to Bury and Colchester this Way is not of long standing; That Travellers went anciently thither by On-gar; and for those who went toward Ingatstone, Horn-Church was the way, through the Green-Lanes, as they are called probably from being much over-grown with grass since the chief traffick has been by Romford, after the present nearer way was made passable [B]. But that eminent Antiquary, Smart Lethieullier Esq; who had duly considered the point, and carefully examined the countrey, has shewn, That 'the road went from Old Ford through that part of Wansted, where a Mosaic Pavement and other Roman Antiquities have been discovered, and proceeded through or near Ilford to Romford [the Roman Ford.] The course of the present Road is the only proper line: for several Hills or deep Valleys must have been crossed, had it gone either to the north or south of Ilford, the only proper spot for passing the river Rodon.' See his Dissertation on the Roads in this County, in the Introduction.

K. Henry III. first granted the privilege of a Market to Romford (c). But it has now two Market-days in a week: Tuesday is the Market-day for hogs and calves, which of late have been bought and sold on Monday afternoon; and Wednesday is the corn-market. A handsome Market-house was erected some years ago at the expence of the Crown. Part of the building is a Sessions-house. Here is also a Fair, June 24.

The first mention I find of the name of Romford, is in the Red Book of the Exchequer (d), where it is said, that in 1166, Roger Bigod Earl of Norfolk, held the wood of Romford by serjeancy, and payment of five shillings a year.

In 1277, Adam de Cretinge held of the King, in capite, in the parish of Romford, in the vill of Havering, 255 acres of land, and 33 s. 11 d. ob. rent, which he had of the gift of Roger de Rolling; and he owed thence yearly to the King for the farm of Havering 33 s. 5 d. and suit of Court every three weeks: And he was bound to feed all the King's hogs every year, whether there was pannage or no; paying one half penny for every hog worth 5 d. He held, in the same parish in the vill of Havering, of the Earl Marshall a wood of 100 acres, for which he paid yearly to the King 5 s. for the ferm of Havering, and to the Earl 1 d. He held also in the same vill, of the gift of Roger de Rolling, 5 acres; and 20 acres of the fee of Robert Fitz-William of Up-Havering, &c. (e).

Of this Adam, Henry de Winchester, who dyed in 1299, held the maner of Rumford by the service of 1 d. per ann. and service of the fourth part of a knight's fee. He married Maud his wife after the Jewish way; they were converted to Christianity, and had a son—Thomas (f).

In 1307, Roger Bigod Earl of Norfolk held of John de Creting, in Rumford, 1 capital messuage, 180 acres of arable, 5 of meadow, 100 of pasture called Layes, and 54 s. rent, by the service of 1 d. a year (g).

The maner of Rumford belonged next to Thomas de Brotherton, fifth son of K. Edward I. Earl of Norfolk, and Lord Marshall. For Sir Walter de Manny, who had married his daughter and heir Margaret, widow of John Lord Segrave, held, at the time of his decease, in 1372, the maner of Rumford, as of the right and inhe-

(x) Inquis. Ric. II.

(b) Inquis. 3 Jaco. May 14.

(f) Inquis. 27 Edw. I.

(y) Inquis. 23 Hen. VI.

(c) Claus. 31 Hen. III.

(g) Inquis. 35 Edw. I.

(z) Inquis. May 14.

(d) Liber ruber, fol. 19.

(a) Inquis. 8 Hen. VIII.

(e) Inquis. 5 Edw. I.

[B] So the old Road from Illington by Hornsey, on which the Romans went to Hertford, and Travellers to St. Albans, after the Watling-street by Edger grew ruinous, goes now by the name of the Green Lanes, since they have been unfrequented.

ritance of Margaret his wife, daughter and one of the heirs of Thomas late Earl of Norfolk and Marshal of England, of the King in capite, as parcel of the Earldom of Norfolk;—Anne, wife of John Hastings, Earl of Pembroke, was their daughter and heir (b). This Sir Walter de Manny, was of the Diocese of Cambray, one of K. Edward the Third's warriors, and Founder of the Charter-house.

Besides this maner of Romford, he had also those of Gr. Chesterford, [See in the other Volume, p. 554.] and of Dover-court with Harwich.

The Maner of Romford seems after this time to have changed its name to that of Manny's, corruptly Mawneys, or Mancies, from Sir Walter de Manny, its ancient possessor. And the reason may have been, that another Maner or two are found after this, namely those of Bedfords, and East-house, which seem to have been taken out of Romford: So the general name might be dropt, and so much of Romford maner as continued in the heirs of Manny, be called after his name, by way of distinction from the others.

Sir Walter de Manny's daughter Anne Countess of Pembroke did not inherit this estate; but it went to the daughter of John Lord Segrave,

Elizabeth, wife of John de Mowbray. Their son and heir—Thomas de Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk who dyed in 1400, held the maner of Rumford of Adam Karlyl; and left—Sir Thomas Mowbray, his son and heir (i), that had the misfortune of being beheaded in 1405. His mother Elizabeth being remarried to Sir Robert Goushill, and afterwards to Sir Gerard Ufflet, they enjoyed this estate in her right: which she held as part of her dower till her decease in 1424. [See in the other Volume, p. 554.] (k).—John Mowbray, the fourth Duke of Norfolk of this family dying in 1477 without issue male; this estate, among others, fell to the heirs of—Isabell, one of the two Daughters of Thomas Mowbray, the first Earl of Norfolk of this family. And the heir to Isabell, in this, was James Lord Berkley. His son—William Marquis of Berkley, and Earl Marshall, at the time of his decease 14 Febru. 1491, held this maner of Mawnye, with appertenances in Rumpford, and 1 messuage, 300 acres of arable, 40 of meadow, 200 of pasture, and 20 of wood, of the King in capite.—Maurice was his brother and heir (l). [See in the other Volume, p. 554, 555.] But William is said to have alienated it in 1487 to John Bishop of Lincoln (m).

George Dacre Esq; was possessed of this maner in 1555 (n). He had license, 24 April 1573, to alienate Mawneys maner, and

2 messuages, ten tofts, 300 acres of arable, 40 of meadow, 200 of pasture, 40 of wood, and 7 l. rent, to

John Leonard, or Lennard Esq; and his heirs for ever (o). At the time of his decease, 12 March 1591, he held this maner of the Queen in capite, by knight's service. His son and heir—Sampson Leonard Esq; (p) by license dated 1 March 1599, alienated, for the use of himself for life, remainder &c. this maner, and one messuage, one cottage, one garden, 130 acres of arable, ten of meadow, 100 of pasture, 100 of wood, and 72 s. 6 d. rent in Horn-Church and Rumford, to Frances Ewre, and others (q). [See under Alveley.]

Francis Fuller Esq; held the maner of Mawnes in 1627. Dying 10 March 1636, he was succeeded by

Francis Osbaston, his cousin and next heir, thirty-four years of age (r). [See under Berking, and Little Ilford.] By marriage of an heiress of the family of Osbaston, it came to

John Milner Esq; The late owner was Richard Newman of West-Ham Esq;

The Maners of EAST-HOUSE, and BEDFORDS, seem to have been taken out of the Maner of Romford.

East-house stands in Collier-row-lane.

As for The Maner of GEDDYHALL, it belonged, at the time of the Survey, to the Abbey of St. Peter's at Westminster [C]; How they lost it, or when they parted with it, doth not appear.

The Maner of EAST-HOUSE is first mentioned in the year 1332; when Roger William, of Havering, who was outlawed, is said to have held at the Estbous 1 messuage, 135 acres of arable, 10 of meadow, 20 of pasture, 2 of wood, and 25 s. 2 d. rent: And at the Field in the vill of Havering, 1 messuage, 67 acres of arable, 3 of meadow, 2 of pasture, 2 of wood, and 27 s. 2 d. rent of assise: And of John de Dover 49 acres of arable, and 1 grove, by the service of 13 s. 4 d. per ann. (s).

The next owner of it upon record was Sir Thomas Cooke, in the reign of K. Edward IV. (t) whom we shall presently mention more particularly under Geddy-hall.

These two Maners went together many years. They were separate in the last century; and East-house then belonged to Francis, and Henry, Osbaston. It now belongs to Carew-Hervy Mildmay, of Marks, Esq;

(b) Inquis. 46 Edw. III. 8 Hen. VII. Nov. 12. Alienations, part 1. p. 174, 175. 13 Caro. May. 10. (i) Inquis. 1 Hen. IV. (m) Lett. pat. 3 Hen. VII. (p) Inquis. 33 Eliz. (r) Inquis. 6 Edw. III. (t) Inquis. 18 Edw. IV.

(k) Inquis. 5 Hen. IV. & 3 Hen. VI. (n) Inquis. 2 & 3 Ph. & Mar. nu. 44. (q) Book of Alienations, as above. (s) Inquis. 5 Hen. IV. & 3 Hen. VI. (t) Inquis. 18 Edw. IV.

[C] Terra Sci Petri de Westmonasterio. Hund' de Ceffeorda. Geddesdunam tenet Sanctus Petrus pro i hida. Semper

i villanus, et i bordarius, in dominio. Semper valuit xx solidos. Lib. Domefd. fol. 14. Tit. 6.

BEDFORDS is first mentioned in 1478, when it belonged to Sir Thomas Cooke [D]: and passed from him to his posterity (u). It was held of the maner of Havering, by fealty, suit at the Court there, and yearly rent of 17s. 2d. (w).

Mrs. Matthews was possessed of it in 1659, as well as Gobions.

GEDDY-HALL, is not mentioned in records till the reign of K. Edward IV. It then belonged to, and was probably purchased by, Sir Thomas Cooke.

He was son of Robert Cooke of Lavenham in Suffolk: of the Drapers Company; one of the Sheriffs of London, in 1453; and Lord Mayor of that city in 1462. K. Edward IV. making forty-two Knights of the Bath, at the Coronation of his Queen, in 1465, Sir Thomas Cooke was one of them, and knighted by that King in the field (x). He began here a fine House, or Castle [E], which was not finished till his great-grandson Antony's time. For living in those bad times, when Contention was flaming between the Houses of York and Lancaster; and many were put to death, or grievously fined, upon trifling or false accusations, he suffered in the common calamity.

The cause was this: One Hawkins having requested of him the loan of a sum of money, he refused, when he understood it was for the use of Margaret, Queen of K. Henry VI. Hawkins being committed to the Tower in 1467, and put to the rack, mentioned this among other things: which one would have thought could not have been then accounted criminal. However, Sir Thomas was committed to the Tower, and by means of Sir John Fogge indicted of high-treason. Whereupon his House here was plundered of the furniture, and all that could be carried away; the deer in his Park, rabbits, fish, &c. destroyed: for which he could not get any recompence. For though, by the integrity of the Chief Justice, Sir John Markham, he was acquitted of treason, and only found guilty of misprision, yet he was committed first to the Compter, and afterwards to the King's Bench prison; from which he could not be released without paying 8000l. to the King, and 800l. to the Queen. The Chief Justice was also displaced.

Sir Thomas dyed in 1478, holding the maners of Bedfords, Gedyhall, and Elthous, and Reden-Court, of the Queen; and 2 messuages, 74 acres of arable, 2 of meadow, 4 of wood, and 8l. rent; 4 acres in le Sheld; lands, tenements &c. called Petyts and Cokestenens lond; Stone-feild; Long mead; a moiety of Herstgrove; all in Havering. Three crofts in Romford, near the Wind-mill. With other estates elsewhere [F]. By his wife, daughter and heir of Philip Malpas of London, he had Philip; William, seated at Chigwell; and Thomas. — Philip, the eldest son, born in 1454 (y), married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Henry, and sister and coheir of Edward Belknap; by whom he had John; and Beatrix wife of William Copley. — John, the son and heir, of Gedy-hall, dyed 10 October 1515, possessed of the maners of Gidding-hall and Est-house, Bedfords, Ridding-Court &c. leaving by Isabell, or Alice, his wife, the second and one of the three daughters and coheiresses of William Sanders of Sanbury in Surrey, Antony; and Catharine wife of Richard Ogle. — Antony, the son, born in 1504 (z), was a man of very great Learning; and made one of the Præceptors to K. Edward VI. by whom he was knighted. During Qu. Mary's persecuting reign, he was an exile in Germany. But, upon Qu. Elizabeth's accession, he returned to England. Besides the maners of Bedfords, Rydden-court, Gyddyhall and Est house, and the rest that had belonged to his great grandfather; he had the revenues of Avery Cornboroughes Chantry here; Higham-bushes, in Walthamstow; the maners of Chaldwell, Mascalls-bury in White-Roding, &c. (a). He finished Gedy-hall, that had been begun by his great grandfather, as we have observed above [G]. Dying 11 June 1576, aged 70, he was buried in Romford Chapel, with a stately Monument. He married Anne, daughter of Sir William Fitz-William, of Milton in Northamptonshire, and Gains-park, in Theydon-Gernon. His children by her were, Richard; William; Edward; Margaret, wife of Sir . . . Rowlett; Mildred, second wife of the great Sir William Cecil, Lord Burghley; Anne, wife of Sir Nicolas Bacon, Lord Keeper; Elizabeth, wife of Sir Thomas Hobby, and afterwards of John Lord Russel; son and heir of Francis Earl of Bedford; Catharine, wife of Sir Henry Killegrew, mother of Henry Nevill [H]. William, the second son, married Frances, daughter of Sir John Grey, brother of (u) Inquis. 18 Edw. IV. . . . 8 Hen. VIII. . . . 19, & 22. Eliza. &c. (w) Inquis. 22 Eliza. & 3 Jaco.

(x) Stow's Survey of London, edit. 1720. Vol. I. book 1. p. 61, 62. Vol. II. book 5. p. 121, 122. (y) Inquis.
18 Edw. IV. & Pedigree. (z) Inquis. 8 Hen. VIII. March 9. (a) Inquis. 19 Eliz.

[D] He held it by the service of giving one red Rose to the Queen, on June 24. Inquis. 18 Edw. IV.

[E] Carta Edw. IV. Licentia Tho. Cook mil. pro Parco & Castello faciend'.

[F] He had also the maner of Earles, [or Elmes] in Havering; the maner of Maudelyn Laufare; and a grove called le Claper, in Abbes Warle. Inquis. 18 Edw. IV. Vide Inquis. 19 Eliza.

[G] The inscription upon the stone front, under the window, in the middle was Edw. Oia; on the left side of the window, Aelb Jehovah, and some other Hebrew words; on the left hand, under the window, another sentence in Hebrew, worn out by time: underneath was set the year 1568. Under Edw. Oia was this distich, Ædibus his Frontem proavus Thomas dedit olim;

Addidit Antoni cætera fera manus.

Under this, upon the stone,

Sedes quisque suas, Domini sed mænia pauci Ædificant; levior cura minora decet.

Underneath, these two verses, with the date 1568; which renders it extremely probable, that they were added upon Sir Antony's entertaining the Queen here, in her progress that year.

Quod mihi dura, tuo ductu, Fortuna recessit,

Te, Regina, Domus, rura, nemusque canent. . . . From a Letter of Mr. Strype's.

[H] As their father was very learned, He had taken such good care of their education, that he had rendered them very accomplished Ladies, and well skilled both in Latin and Greek. See W. Haddon, Oration. p. 131. 138.

Duke of Suffolk. — Richard Cooke Esq; the eldest son and heir, aged 40 years at the time of his father's decease, survived him but about three years, for he dyed 3 October 1579, leaving by Anne his wife, daughter of John Caulton Gent. Antony, his son and heir aged 20 years, and Philippa wife of Hercules Mewtas of West-Ham. He had this maner of Guydy-hall with the Park, and the other estates, as his father (b) [I]. — Antony Cooke Esq; his only son and successor, was afterwards knighted, and enjoyed this maner of Guidihall, with those of Bedfords, Ridden-Court, and other estates. He departed this life 28 Decemb. 1604, having had by Hawise his wife, daughter of Sir William Waldegrave Kt. two sons, Edward, and Francis. — Edward, the eldest son, was 23 years old at the time of his father's decease, and a knight (c). He married Martha, daughter of Sir William Daniel Kt. one of the Justices of the Common Pleas, by whom he left two Daughters co-heirs [K]; Anne, wife of Sir Edward Sydenham; and Vere, wife of Sir Charles Gawdy of Crowshall in Suffolk.

Anne, and her husband Sir Edward Sydenham, took this estate for their purparty. They had 5 sons, and 5 daughters: of whom Anne, the eldest was married to Sir Thomas Wiseman, of Rivenhall, Kt. — Charles Sydenham Esq; the eldest son and heir, had, among other children, Mary; and Margaret, wife of Thomas Velley of High-Ongar Esq; This Mr. Sydenham sold Geddy-hall to

Mr. Richard Elmes, who paid quit-rent for it in 1659.

John Birch, of Geddyng-hall, was Sheriff of Essex in 1668.

It was next in Mr. John Hathersale, who sold it to

Sir John Eyles, Bart. This Family was long seated in Wiltshire. John Eyles Esq; was Lord Mayor of London, in 1688, and received the honor of Knighthood from K. James II. He had three daughters, whereof Sarah was married to Joseph-Haskin Styles of London Esq;

Francis Eyles Esq; brother of Sir John, was an eminent merchant, many years a Director of the East-India Company, Alderman of Bridge Ward, and created a Baronet 1 Decemb. 1714. He dyed in June 1716. By Elizabeth his wife, daughter of Mr. Ayley of London, which survived him till 6 April 1735, he had six sons, and four daughters. Joseph, the fourth son, was knighted by K. George I. — Sir John Eyles, Bart. the purchaser of this estate, eldest surviving son of Sir Francis Eyles, Bart. was Alderman of London, Lord Mayor in 1727, Sub-governor of the South-Sea Company, Member in several Parliaments; and one of the joint Post-masters general. He married Mary, daughter of Joseph Haskin Styles Esq; by Sarah daughter of his uncle Sir John Eyles Kt. above-mentioned, and had by her one son, and one daughter. The son, Francis, upon being made heir to his uncle Benjamin-Haskyn Styles Esq; took the surname of Haskyn Styles (d). Sir John dyed 11 March 1744-5 [L], and his son, — Sir Francis Haskyn sold this maner and estate, in October 1745, to Richard Benyon Esq; the present worthy possessor, who had been Governor of Fort St. George [M].

Sir John Eyles rebuilt this House in an elegant manner, and with plantations of trees, canals, and other improvements, rendered it one of the most compleat Seats in this County.

The Maner of STEWARDS.

From what estate this was originally taken; or to whom it belonged by that name, we do not find till Qu. Elizabeth's reign. Then, Marcellinus Halys Esq; who dyed 23 November, 1561, held this maner of Stewards, lying within the maner, or lordship, of Havering at Bower, and 10 messuages, 140 acres of arable, 40 of meadow, 100 of pasture, 30 of wood, and 30 s. 6 d. rent with appertenances, in Stewards, Braybrookes, Edroppes, Rookes, Albyns, and Capps; of the Queen in fealty only. He had also Lees Gardens, mentioned a little lower. — George Halys, his son and heir, was upwards of 36 years old (e).

It was next in a branch of the Quarles Family, descended from George Quarles of Ufford in Northamptonshire Esq; one of the Auditors in the reigns of K. Henry VII. and K. Henry VIII. His son — Francis Quarles, of Ufford Esq; by his first wife, Cæcilia, daughter of . . . Crunckhorn of the said County, had five sons, and one daughter. By his second wife, Brigett, daughter of . . . Brampton of Suffolk, he had seven sons, and three daughters. — James Quarles Esq; the third son by the second wife, and the first of the Family that settled here, was Clerk of the Green Cloth, and Purveyor of the Navy, in Queen Elizabeth's reign. He dyed 21 September, 1599 (f), possessed of this mansion house and messuage, called Stewards, and many other estates [N]. By his (b) Inquis. 22 Eliz. Nov. 30. (c) Inquis. 3 Jaco. May 14. (d) See the Baronetage, ed. 1741. Vol. IV. p. 155. (e) Inquis. 4 Eliz. nu. 136. (f) Inquis. 42 Eliz. July 31.

[I] These parcels belonging to Geddy-hall, are now first mentioned; Lez Moores, Stonefeild, Coufeild, Thisley feild, Oxleys, Langmans, Hunt mead, Valles, Shepecote-feild, Valles meadow, Grovefeild, Strete mead, Bushfeild, Brickfeild. — And in Havering; Holmans, Doddescrofts, Saveris, Austens, Pecocks, Sabyns, &c. Inquis. 22 Eliz.

[K] Arms of Cooke. Argent, a chevron componé, argent and azure, between 3 cinquefoils, azure. Crest. A horse's head, or.

[L] Arms of Eyles. Argent, a fesse engrailed sable: on a chief 3 flower de luces of the second.

[M] Arms of Benyon. Vaire, on a chief argent, 3 mollets gules, pierced of the second.

[N] Namely, lands called Tanners crofts, Cotefeild, great and little Bradnocke, Alwynes, Skinners crofts, Stewards closes, Barbors land; a messuage called Pinchbacke: another messuage called Heathcocks, alias Squirells-heath: lands named Crowland, Snelling, &c. containing together 120 acres; and Dovers, Rydon, Lyland mead, Nycholls Rydon at Harrolds wood; Shepcotts-Hawe in Collyrowe; messuages called Oldberries, Potters roses, and Hodges croft; all in Havering, Horn Church, and Romford. Besides other estates in Berking, Dagenham, Stanford-Rivers: and several estates in Hertfordshire. Inquis. 42 Eliza.

wife Joanna, daughter and heir of Edw. Dalton of Moore place near Hadham in Hertfordshire, he had 4 sons, Robert, James, Francis, Arthur; and 3 daughters. James Quarles Esq; the second son, was that honest inoffensive Poet, whose Emblems have passed through most young peoples hands [O].—Robert Quarles Esq; the eldest son and heir, was knighted: and had three wives. 1. Hester, daughter of Edward Lewkenor of Higham-hall in Suffolk. 2. . . Brewster, widow of Sir Thomas Sackford. 3. Mary, daughter of Parrys of London. This last, being a widow, paid quit-rent for Stewards in 1659.

The Maner of MARKS

Is above a mile west from Romford, bordering on Becontree Hundred. It hath been an ancient seat, named probably from an owner or possessor, as many other places in this County. [See in the other Volume, p. 202. 396. 423.] We have seen the name of Markdieb in a grant of K. Edw. III. to Tyle keeper of Havering Park. [See p. 60, note M.]

We hear nothing in particular of the owners of this estate till 1479, when Thomas Urswyck, who dyed in that year, held a maner called Markes, two messuages, a windmill, 200 acres of pasture, 100 of meadow, 60 of wood, and 110 s. rent in Havering at Bower;—Five Daughters were his coheirs, whose names we have before at Gobions, of which he was also possessed (g).

The next owner upon record, was Sir George Hervey, Lieutenant of the Tower of London, descended from a branch of the ancient Family of Hervey of Ickworth, now Earls of Suffolk (b). Sir Nicolas Hervey, second son of William Hervey of that place, was of the Privy Chamber to K. Henry VIII. He had two wives: the second was Bridget daughter and sole heir of Sir John Wiltshire, once Lady of the Bed-Chamber to Qu. Anne Boleyn; and relict of Sir Richard Wingfield, Knight of the Garter, and Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaster. By her he had several children; Anne, one of the daughters was married to George Carew, third son of Sir Edmund Carew, Baron of Carew.—George Hervey Esq; the fourth son, was afterwards knighted, and Lieutenant of the Tower of London; in which station he dyed 10 August 1605, possessed of this maner of Marks, and several other estates (i). [See under Berking.] He married Frances, daughter and co-heir of Sir Leonard Beckwith, by whom he had five sons, and six daughters. Four of the sons dyed young; as did also four of the daughters. Margaret, the first of them, was married to William Mildmay

Esq; eldest son of Sir Thomas Mildmay of Springfield-Barnes; and had by him three sons, Thomas, Carew, and Henry: and a daughter named Frances.—Sir Gawin Hervey, the fifth, and only surviving son, of Sir George, succeeded his father; having no issue, he adopted for heir his sister Margaret's second son Carew Mildmay Esq; who, upon Sir Gawin's decease, 1 Febr. 1627, came and resided at Marks. By . . . Garrard, his wife, he had —Francis; that married a daughter of Robert Honywood of Kent Esq; and had by her, Carew his son and heir; and three daughters, of whom Judith was married to John Searl D. D. Rector of Willingale Dou, and . . . to Arthur Heron, Rector of Moreton. — Carew-Hervey, alias Mildmay, Esq; was Sheriff of this County, in 1713, and having married Anne, daughter of Richard-Lennard Barrett Esq; he had by her two sons, Carew, and Francis. Upon his decease, 1 May 1743, he was succeeded by his eldest son — Carew, who is married to . . . daughter of . . . Estwood of Sherborn in Dorsetshire.

We come now to the Maners in the Southern part of this Liberty.

The Maner of ELMES, vulgarly NELMES,

Lies South-east of Romford, bordering on Chafford Hundred.

Besides what is just mentioned in Note T, I find nothing earlier concerning it than this; Sir William Roche who dyed 11 Septemb. 1549, held the maner of Elmes, alias Nelmes, with the appertinances, and 250 acres of arable, 20 of meadow, 50 of pasture, 20 of wood 53 s. 4 d. rent, in Havering at Bower: of the King as of the maner of Havering in socage, by fealty, and yearly rent of 52 s. in lieu of all services. — John his son and heir, was 24 years and upwards (k). Sir William Roche was possessed at the same time of Gobions, but it doth not appear how he came by either, or how his son parted with them.

Robert Harvey, who dyed 10 Septemb. 1608, held the site of the mansion-house, or capital messuage, known by the name of the Maner of Elmes, and three parcels of arable and pasture, containing 6 acres, belonging to this maner. — John was his son and heir (l).

Robert Naunton Esq; was lord of this maner in 1627: But it seems to have been, soon after, dismembred. For, in 1635, Sir Robert Cocke Kt. held nine several pieces of land, and nine parcels of wood, near Chese-cross, late belonging to the maner of Nerles, as it is wrongly spelt, purchased of Anne Cooke, widow, and others (m).

(g) Inquis. 19 Edw. IV. (b) See the Peerages. 4 Edw. VI. nu. 91. (l) Inquis. 6 Jaco.

(i) Inquis. 3 Jaco. Octob. 2.

(k) Inquis.

(m) Inquis. 3. & 9 Caro.

[O] He was born at Stewards in 1592, educated at Christ's College Cambridge, afterwards of Lincoln's-inn. He was then made Cup-bearer to Elizabeth, Queen of Bohemia, and Secretary to the learned Archbishop Usher. Departing this life in 1644, he was buried in St. Vedast, Foster-lane. Besides his emblems, which are an imitation of Herm. Hugonis Pia Desideria &c. he published at several times, The Histories of Jonah, Esther, Job militant, Sampson, &c. Pentalogia, or Quintessence of meditation; Argalus and Parthenia; Enchiridion of Meditations; The loyal Convert; The Virgin Widow, a Comedy, first printed in 1649, &c.

In the Rental for the Maner of Havering in 1659, William Witherings Esq; appears to have held Nellines, which I presume means Nelmes [P].

It belonged lately to Sir Thomas Webster, Bart. of Copped-hall, and of Battle-Abbey, in Suffex; and now to his younger son—Godfrey Webster Esq; who hath married Elizabeth, daughter of Gilbert Cooper of Lockear in Derbyshire Esq;

The Maner of LEES-GARDENS is south of Nelmes, and about 2 miles east of Romford.

Marcellinus Halys Esq, mentioned above under Stewards, held this maner de Gardens, with the appertinances, and two messuages, 190 acres of arable, 30 of meadow, 110 of pasture, 12 of marsh, and 39 s. of rent; in Gardens, Moulende, Renolds, Crofts, and Pestrels, [perhaps Pell-street] of the Queen, of her maner of Havering at Bower, in fealty only, and by the yearly rent of 21 s. 9 d.—Thomas Halys was his son (n).

Thomas Hone, of Gardens, Gent. dyed 7 September 1604, aged 65 years (o).

It is said to have belonged afterwards to the Lord St. John.

... Fisher, late owner of it, dyed about 1720.

George Lewis, a limner, had a moiety of it for life: The other moiety was in John Hopkins, alias Probyn, Esq; Counsellor at law; nephew of Sir Edward Probyn, Chief Baron of the Exchequer. In 1746, Counsellor Probyn sold it to

Mr. Dawson, of the Ordnance-office.

The Maner of MAYLERDS

Named probably from an owner, stands near Horn-Church, about two miles South of Romford.

A maner called Wybridges hath gone with it for a considerable time.

It appears by a Precept set down below [Q], that they once belonged to Sir Antony Browne, or at least to his widow, and to John Browne; then to Robert Charnock Gent, and William Fawkener: and contained 2 messuages, 3 tofts, 3 cottages, 3 dove houses, 3 gardens, 3 orchards, 100 acres of arable, 30 of meadow, 300 of pasture, 10 of wood, and 4 l. rent, in Horn-Church, and Havering.

They were divided afterwards: For, the maner of Wybridges was in Sir William Ayloffe Kt. and Bart. who dyed 11 August 1627, as will appear upon Bretons; and

Mr. Edward Thorowgood paid Quit-rent for it, in the year 1659.

The maner of Maylerds was in James Russhout Esq; who paid quit-rent for it also in 1659. being probably the same that was of Norcot in Worcestershire, and created a Baronet, 17 June 1661. Sir James married a sister of Thomas Vernon of Twickenham-Park in Middlesex Esq; and at his death, in February 1697-8, left two children minors, James and Elizabeth.—Sir James dying unmarried 21 Septemb. 1711, his sister

Elizabeth became his heir: She was married to Paulet St. John of Dogmersfeld in Hampshire, Esq; Burgess for Winchester. And dying without issue, Paulet St. John Esq; sold this estate to John Bamber M. D. who dyed possessed of these two Maners of Maylerds and Wybridges. See above under Berking, p. 8. From him they descended to

• Bamber Gascoigne Esq;

The Maner of BRETONS

Is south of Maylerds, bordering upon the parish of Dagenham, and about 2 miles and a half from Romford.

It took the name of Bretons from an ancient family surnamed le Breton, or de Breton, which had estates in Bocksted in this county in 1260, and 1310 (p). [See in the other Volume, p. 626.] By the name of Bretonnesland, it was passed by release from William Nortoft to William Buckingham, in 1361 (q).

It belonged in the reign of K. Edward IV. to the family of Scargill, or Scargwell [R]: one of whom was appointed Keeper of Havering Park, as above-mentioned.

In the reign of K. Henry VII. it was purchased by William Ayloffe Esq; Of him, and his descendents, some account is given in the other Volume, p. 138, 139. But we shall give a more perfect one, from authentick memoirs communicated to us.

The Family of Ayloffe, which is of Saxon extraction, was antiently seated at Bocton—Aloph near Wye in Kent (r), of which town they (n) Inquis. 4. Eliz. 35 Edw. III. m. 34.

(o) Epitaph in this Church.

(r) Ex Stemmate penes Dom.

(p) Inquis. 45 Hen. III. & 4 Edw. 2.

(q) Claus.

Josephum Ayloffe Bart.

[P] Thomas Witherings lies buried in Horn Church: He dyed in 1655, aged 55; and is said in his Epitaph to have been 'chiefe Postmaster of Greate Britaine and foreign parts, second to none for unfathomed policy, unparalleled sagacious and divining genius, witness his great correspondency in all parts of the Christian world.' A fit tool for the Times he lived in.

[Q] Elizabeth R. Ballivis suis Manerii sui de Havering atte Boure Sal'tem. P'cipimus vob', qd. sine dil'one & sedm consuetudine manei nri de Havering at Bowre plen', rect', ten', Robto Charnock gen. & W^o Fawkener de Maneriis de Maylerds, als Maylard-Greene & Wybridges, cm pt' ac de ii mess', iii tofts, iii cotagiis, iii columbariis, iii gardinis, iii pomariis, c acris terre, xxx acris prati, ccc acris past', x acris bosci, & iv l. Redd', cum p'tinen' in Horn-Church & Havering atte Bowre, que Johes Fowler, & Dna Joha Browne Vidua, nup. uxor Antonii Browne Mil', eis deforc', ne amplius, &c. Test. 23 Junii. 9 Eliz. Symonds's Collect. Vol. III. fol. 117.

[R] In the kitchen-window of Bretons were these Arms; Gules, a chevron, or, between 3 crescents, ermine. Above them, Scargwell, and underneath, 'Dnus Manerii de Bretons'. And, in the Church, there was an Epitaph for Thomas Scargile Esq; who dyed in 1475. Symonds's Collect. Vol. III. fol. 223. & Weever Fune. Monum.

were possessors in the reign of K. Hen: III. and which had that appellative distinction of Aloph united to its name, to intimate to us, that in the Saxons time it owned the jurisdiction of one Alulphus a Saxon (s). This Alulphus was ancestor of Thomas Aloff a man of great note, and Portreave of London in the reign of K. Edward the Confessor (t): from whom descended Thomas Ayloffe of Milton in Kent Esq; who dyed in the year 1533, and, with Margaret his wife, lieth buried in Milton Church (u).

In the beginning of the reign of K. Henry VI. John Ayloffe was seated at Horn-Church in this County of Essex, and by Ann his wife, daughter of Thomas West Esq; left—Thomas, his only son and heir, seated likewise at Horn-Church and at Sudbury in Suffolk, where he purchased a considerable estate; and dying in 1482 (w), left, by Agnes his wife, daughter of William Birch Esq; a son William; and a daughter, Agnes, married to Sir John Bruges Lord Mayor of London 13 Henry VIII. by whom she had Antony Bruges, from whom the Dukes of Chandos are descended; and Winifred Bruges, married to Sir Richard Sackville of Buckhurst, Ancestor of the Dukes of Dorset (x).—William Ayloffe succeeded his father in his estates, and purchased the maner of Brytensse, or Bretons, within the Lordship of Havering atte Bower, as also the Maner of Great Braxted, with divers lands there; and having married Etheldreda, daughter of Sir John Shaa, Alderman, and Lord Mayor of London, dyed 10 August 1517, and was buried at Horn-Church (y). He left two sons, William, and Thomas; as also, a daughter Agnes, or Elizabeth, married to William Gaynsford, of Crowhurst in Surrey Esq;—Thomas, the second son, was of Little Chishall in this County, and dyed 28 Septemb. 1554 (z). He left issue by Elizabeth, or Isabel, his wife daughter of Thomas, and sister and heir of, Sir Edward Walsingham, only one son William, father of William Ayloffe Esq; who being bred to the law at Lincoln's inn, was called to the degree of a Serjeant in Michaelmas Term 1577 (a).—William Ayloffe Esq; eldest brother of the said Thomas, succeeded to the Lordships of Brittons, Great Braxted, &c. And was Sheriff of Essex and Hertfordshire in 1564.

He married, first, Mary daughter of Sir Thomas Barnadiston, of Ketton in Suffolk, by Anne, daughter of Thomas Lucas of Colchester; and had by her four sons, William, Ralph, Thomas, who died an infant in 1590; and Giles: as also two daughters, Mary, and Elizabeth. He married secondly Margaret daughter of John Forster Esq; and widow of Sir Eustace Sulyard, but by her had no issue—William Ayloffe Esq; the eldest son, was made one of the Justices of the King's Bench 20th Eliz. and dyed 8 November 1585 (b). Having married Jane daughter of Sir Eustace Sulyard, by her he had three sons, William; Thomas; and George: and one daughter, Margaret, the wife of Edmund Broom, of Oxfordshire Esq. The second son, Sir Thomas, knighted 11 May 1603, married Mary Guicciardine, of the Family of Guicciardine in Florence, by whom he had Guicciardine Ayloffe, Secretary of the Dutchy of Lancaster, who dyed unmarried, and one daughter Camilla married to Edward Wentworth of Bocking Esq;—William Ayloffe Esq; eldest son of the last mentioned William, born in 1563, succeeded to the family estate. He was knighted by K. James I. at the same time with his brother Thomas, 11 May 1603, and created a Baronet 25th November 1612. He dyed 5th August 1627, and was buried at Great Braxted [S]. He had three Wives, namely Catharine, Barbara, and Alice. The 1st. wife, Catharine, was daughter and heir of John Sterne, of Melbourne in Cambridgeshire Esq; and by her he had three sons; and these four daughters; 1. Mary wife of Sir Antony Thomas, of Chobham in Surrey Kt. (c). 2. Elizabeth, wife of Gervase Lee of Norwell in the County of Nottingham Esq; 3. Jane married to Edward Keightley of Greys in Essex Esq; and 4. Hannah who dyed unmarried. Of the sons,—William, the eldest, dyed in the life time of his Father in America—Sir Benjamin the 2d. son succeeded in title and estate. James the 3d. son had his mother's estate at Melbourne [T]. Sir William's 2d. wife, Barbara, was daughter and heir of Thomas Sexton Esq. By her he had two sons. John, the youngest, dyed without issue, Thomas, the eldest, by Elizabeth his wife daughter of Edward Wentworth, of Bocking in Essex Esq; was father of Benjamin Ayloffe Esq; who by his wife Victoria, daughter of John Ereskin, and grand daughter of John (s) Philipot Villare Cant. p. 85.

Funeral Monum. p. 282.

(w) Ex Stemmate ut supra.

(x) Ex Stemmate, ut supra. Segar's Baron. Genealogic, Dugdale's Baronage.

(y) From the original Inscription on brass which was affixed to his Monument, and is now in the possession of Sir Joseph Ayloffe Bart.

(z) Inquis. 1 & 2 Ph. & Mar. nu. 55.

(a) Dugdale's Chron. Series.

(b) Dugdale's Chron. Series. & Inquis. 27 Eliz.

(c) Byshe's Visitat. of Surrey.

[S] Besides Bretons; he held also in this parish of Horn-Church, of the Warden and Fellows of New College, in free socage, by fealty only, as of their maner of Horn-Church-hall, a messuage called Burrs, Peacocke, and Marions, Solmes, and the maners of Shenge, and Streat, in Cambridgeshire. See under Wennington; and in the other Volume, p. 138. Inquis. 4 Caro. Octo. 30.

[T] He resided at Sheen in Meldreth in Cambridgeshire; and was twice married. By his first wife, Jane daughter of Sir William Herris of Shenfield in Essex, he had two sons; William; and James, who dyed unmarried. The eldest son, William Ayloffe of Basingburne in Cambridgeshire, having no issue by Elizabeth his wife, daughter of William Whalley of Screveton in Nottinghamshire, he devised in his will a considerable estate, at Gargrave in Craven in Yorkshire, to Trustees, for founding a Catechistical Lecture in Trinity Hall Cambridge, and for augmenting several small Livings in the Diocese of Ely. By his 2d. wife Elizabeth daughter of Thomas Penyston of Rochester in Kent Esq; he had three daughters Eliz. married to Richard Read Esq; Ann to Engiard Manwaring M. D. and Catharine who dyed unmarried; as also one son, Thomas, who by his wife Sufanna, daughter of John Wildboare of Foxton in Cambridgeshire, left William, Thomas, and James Ayloffe, who all dyed without issue.

Earl of Marr; had three sons, Benjamin, Ereskin, and Guicciardine, who all dyed unmarried; and four daughters Victoria, Felicia, Elizabeth, and Rebecca. Sir William by his 3d. wife, Alice, daughter of James Stokes, of Stoke near Coventry Esq; had two sons—1. Joseph, of whom and of his descendants we shall speak in the sequel.—2. William, who married Elizabeth daughter and heir of John English of Barstable in the County of Devon, and became the Ancestor of the Ayloffes of that County—Sir Benjamin, second son of Sir William Ayloff Bart. succeeded his father in title and estate. He was eminent for his Loyalty to K. Charles I. who appointed him High Sheriff of Essex at the Commencement of the Civil Wars, as a person in whom he could confide. Sir Benjamin was faithful to the trusts reposed in him, for which he was, by order of the Parliament, imprisoned in the Tower, had his estate sequestred, and was afterwards sent to Yarmouth with many more to be banished to the Plantations in the West Indies: but that inhuman order being reversed, he returned to Braxted, and compounded for his estate, paying for the same 1242 pounds, which great distresses obliged him to sell his estate at Breton's, as we shall shew presently. However, he had the satisfaction, after many hardships, to see the Restoration, and served in Parliament as one of the Knights of the Shire for Essex, in the first Parliament after the King's return. He dyed in the year 1662, and was buried at Braxted, having married two wives: by his 2d. wife, Margaret, daughter of Henry Porter Esq; he had no issue; but by his first Lady, Margaret, daughter of Thomas Fanshaw Esq; and sister of Sir Henry Fanshaw, father of Thomas Viscount Fanshaw of Ware-Park in the County of Hertford, he had three sons, and four daughters, Catharine, married to Thomas Hardwick of Leeds in the County of York Esq; and Alice, Margaret, and Hannah, which three last dyed unmarried, and are buried at Braxted; The three sons were, 1. Sir William, 2. Sir Benjamin, 3. Henry, a Captain of Horse, who had to wife Dorothy, sole daughter and heir of Richard Bulkeley of Chedle in the County of Chester, by whom he had three sons, Benjamin and Henry, who both dyed young; and Sir John Ayloff hereafter mentioned.—Also three daughters, Alice, Hannah, and Lucia, who all dyed unmarried, and are buried at Braxted. William, eldest son and heir of Sir Benjamin, embarked with his Father in the service of K. Charles I. and was Col. of a Regiment in Colchester, when it was besieged and surrendered. He married Ann daughter of Peter Orbye of Burton Pedwarden in Lincolnshire and of Chertsey in Surrey Esq; and Widow of Frederick de la Tremouille, Count de Laval and Benon, Baron de Moleon and Didon in France, and brother to the Duke de la Tremouille. She bore him two sons, Benjamin, and William, both of whom dyed unmarried in the life time of their father, who departed this life in the year 1675, and was buried at Braxted. His Lady, Ann Countess de la Vall, dyed on the 8th day of November 1683, and was buried with her husband at Braxted.—Sir Benjamin Ayloff 3d. son of Sir William Ayloff on the death of his elder brother without issue male, succeeded in title and estate. He was an eminent Merchant of the City of London, and having married Martha daughter of Sir John Tyrell of Heron Hall in Essex Bart. had one son, John, who dyed unmarried in the life time of his father, and two daughters, Margaret, and Martha. Sir Benjamin departed this life 5th. March 1722 and was succeeded by his nephew—Sir John Ayloff, Rector of Stanford Rivers, in this County, only son of his 3d. brother Henry, which Sir John dyed unmarried 10th. December 1730, and was buried at Braxted.

We now return to Joseph only son of Sir William Ayloff Bart. by his 3d. wife Alice Daughter of James Stokes Esq; This Joseph was of Gray's Inn, and soon became eminent at the Bar, insomuch that it was doubtful whether he, or Mr. Heneage Finch, afterwards Earl of Nottingham and Lord Chancellor, was the most rising man in the profession. But being seized by a consumptive disorder, owing to his intense application to business, he, by the advice of his Physicians, undertook a journey to Montpellier, where he dyed, leaving issue by Frances his wife daughter of Henry Ayscough of Yorkshire Esq; two sons, 1. Joseph Ayloff of Grays Inn Esq; Barrister at Law 2. William, Lieutenant Colonel of Foot, who dyed in Portugal unmarried 1706: and five Daughters, Alice married to the Reverend Dr. Thomas Dent of Lawford in this County. Barbara, the wife of Robert Watts Esq; Ann married to John Marshall of Easington in the County of Gloucester Esq; Margaret, who dyed unmarried, and Mary the wife of John Carter of London Esq; This last mentioned Joseph Ayloff of Grays Inn, married Mary, sole daughter of Bryan Ayliffe Esq; an eminent Merchant of the City of London, by whom he had one son, Joseph, and a daughter, Mary, who dyed an Infant. He departed this life in the year 1727, and was buried at Hendon in the County of Middlesex. Mary his widow having survived him till 1747, was buried in the same tomb with him. On the death of Sir John Ayloff of Stanford Rivers Bart. without issue, as abovesaid, on the 10. December 1730,—Sir Joseph Ayloff, the present Bart. only son and heir of the last mentioned Joseph Ayloff by Mary his wife, succeeded to the title and estate. He married Margaret, daughter, and sole heir of Thomas Railton of Carlisle and Croghlin in the County of Cumberland Esq.

Sir Benjamin Ayloff being forced to sell this estate, as we have just mentioned above, it was purchased by John Winniffe Esq; who paid quit-rent in 1659 for the maner of Brittons and Daniels.

It belonged afterwards to John Austin Esq; Alderman of London; and to

William Blackburn Esq; now to John Hopkins Esq; owner of Reeden-Court; who hath rebuilt the House here, in which he resides.

The Maner of SUTTONS,

Joining to Bretons, and lying about three miles south south east from Romford, is a part of the estate of New-College, Oxford, which they had with the rest of the lands of Horn-Church Hospital. The name comes from a southern situation with respect perhaps to Horn-Church-Hall.

This is very justly supposed to be Part of the twenty five pounds land in sterling; which K. Henry II. gave to the Hospital; and was confirmed by K. Richard I. and Henry III. the latter of whom describes it as half a virgate, and three parts of one fourth of a virgate, at a place called Reyns; and the fourth part of a virgate, and the eighth part of another, at a place called Rifebregg: and the eighth part of another virgate: and 66 acres, and 2 days work, and one rood of meadow, near Harolds bridge and Rifebregg; all holden of the maner of Havering, in capite. K. Henry III. confirmed also to them, all the lands which they enjoyed within that maner, of the men or tenants of the same, viz. 84 acres and a half, two messuages with yards, 1 acre of meadow, and 2 acres and a half of wood (d).

The College becoming possessed of this Maner with the rest of their estates in this parish, have enjoyed it ever since. They lett it out upon lease.

Sutton Gate, a seat adjoining, hath belonged many years to the Prujean Family; who have estates in Horn-Church to the amount of upwards of 150 l. a year. Sir Francis Prujean Kt. M. D. many years President of the College of Physicians, dyed 23 June 1666, and is buried in this Church, with his two wives, Margaret, of the ancient Family of Legat, of Dagenhams in this parish; and . . . Gorges: and also his only son, Thomas Prujean M. D. [U].

HORN CHURCH HALL

was also part of the estate belonging to the Hospital; but is not mentioned in records as a Maner, till 1549 (e).

The Maner of DOVERS

Is the most southern part of this Liberty, about 4 miles from Romford, joining to the Marshes. It is separated from Raynham by the Stream that parts Chafford Hundred from Havering.

This estate had its Name from an owner: and is sometimes otherwise called Newenball. In the reign of K. Henry III, Alice, wife of Richard de Dover, had one virgate of land, and one water-mill, in frank marriage, in the vill of Havering, of the gift of Hamon Passelewe (f).—John de Dover who dyed in 1298, held a certain messuage at la Newenballe in the vill of Havering, of the King in capite, with lands and tenements adjoining, by the service of paying yearly into the Exchequer 20 s. and doing fealty to the King at the same Exchequer; And there were 80 acres of arable, five free tenants that paid 10 s. 4 d. 16 acres of meadow, one water-mill, 35 acres of Purpresture;—John was his son (g). He held here 120 acres of arable, and other parcels, &c. and departing this life in 1334, was succeeded by his son—Philip de Dover (h), who dyed the year following. The account given by the Inquest, after his decease, was that he held certain lands and tenements in New-Hall, of the King in capite, by the service of paying yearly into the King's Exchequer 20 s. and a yearly rent of eleven shillings, to the Master and Brothers of Horn-Church, of the King's alms, at Easter and Michaelmas, viz. a capital messuage, 100 acres of gravelly, or sandy, soil, and 20 acres of better ground, 16 acres of meadow, 21 of pasture, a Fishery of two fletes, 6 l. 14 s. 11 d. ob. rent, and one water-mill.—Richard was his son and heir (i). See above under Gooshays.

William Babthorp, one of the Barons of the Exchequer, Walter Brecknok, Chaplain, and Ralph Babthorp, Esq; being seized in their demesne as of fee, of the site of the maner of Dovers, 1 water mill, and the suit and service of the whole vill of Havering; also of 35 acres, and other parcels of land; of two Fletes of water, viz. le Marlediche extending from the Thames as far as the Palace of Havering Park and Haveringheth, and from the Thames to the end of the bounds of Havering according to the course of the Brook; which were held of the King by the payment aforesaid: And holding also of the Master of New-College, as of the maner of Suttons, and others, 155 acres of arable, 46 of meadow, 93 of pasture, and 81. rent in Havering, Reynham, and Bures Gifford, They granted the premisses, by their charter, or deed, to Richard Walderne, and his wife. He dyed 28 April 1454, leaving his four daughters, Elizabeth, Johanna, Alianor, and Margaret, his heirs (k).

Alured Cornburgh, whom we have seen before at Gooshays, held in 1487, a third part of the maner of Dovers, with appertenances in Havering and in the Parishes of Horn-Church, Bowers-Gifford, Reynham, and Alvethley; Agnes Chamber, sister of the said Alured, and John Crafford, son of the Lady Alice, another sister of the said Alured, were his heirs (l). See under Gooshays. This maner became now parcelled out. By license dated 31 May 1519.

Richard Fermer, and others alienated a third part of the maner of Dovers, alias Newhall to John Redys, and Margaret his wife.

But it became united again in the possession of Thomas Collet Esq; under whom Arthur Crafford, who dyed 18 May 1606, held one messuage (d) Monastic. Anglic. Vol. II. p. 420. (e) Inquis. 3 Edw. VI. (f) Inquis. ann. incert. Hen. III. (g) Inquis. 27 Edw. I. (h) Inquis. 8 Edw. III. (i) Inquis. 9 Edw. III. (k) Inquis. 32 Hen. VI. (l) Inquis. 2 Hen. VII. & 19 Edw. IV.

[U] Arms of Prujean. Gules, on a bend cotised three roses, argent. Crest, A Griffin's head erased, fable.

and 20 acres of land in Horne Church near Rayneham (m).—Peter Collett Esq; at the time of his decease, 20 Decemb. 1607, held this maner of Dovers, alias Newhall, and 363. acres of land, with 40s. rent, by the payment of 20s. in the summonce of the Pipe, and yearly alms of 11s. to the Brotherhood of the Cornutines.—Hester, wife of Sir Antony Aucher, and Sara, wife of Sir Peter Layman, were his daughters and heirs (n).

Elizabeth Fountain, was lady of this maner in 1627. Lately it belonged jointly to Robert Nash LL. D. Chancellor of Norwich, and to the Rev. Thomas Dunford: Upon Dr. Nash's decease it wholly came to Dr. Dunford.

HAVING surveyed the several Maners within the Liberty of Havering, we come now to consider it as a PARISH; for within those large Bounds it contains only One Parish called HORN-CHURCH.

It is divided into Seven Wards; namely, Havering-Ward; North-End;—Noke-hill;—Collier-row;—Harold's-wood;—Romford-town;—and South-end—Wards.

Other places in it of some note, are, Havering-Park; Havering-Plain; Wright's-bridge; Brickhill; Mayland; Great Pondmans; Brakes; Marshalls; Hare-street, undoubtedly so named by contraction from Harold's Street; North-end, and South-end in Horn-Church; Langton; Hackton [W]; The late Serjeant Baynes's pleasant House, &c. [X].

On what account the name of Horn-Church was given to this place, we have no certain information [Y]. The origin of many names is undiscoverable: and why this Place should be called Horn-Church, as well as two neighbouring Parishes Horn don, i. e. Horn-hill, is what we are not able to make out.

It was not used, as we have just observed above, till about the reign of K. Henry III. And since it owed that name to the Foundation of an HOSPITAL here, it will be proper to give first an account of that Hospital.

What gave rise to it was K. Henry the Second's Grant of the Church of Havering, with all its appertinances, to the great Hospital of St. Bernard de Monte Jovis, in the diocese of Sedun, or Syon, in Savoy, and the Brothers there serving God, to make a fire for the Poor, ad faciendum sibi ignem pro Pauperibus [Z].

This King seems to have been the original Founder of the Hospital, or Cell here, for a Prior, or Master, and poor Brethren, subordinate to that foreign House, and dedicated to St. Nicolas, and St. Bernard. For his Son K. Richard I. confirmed to the Poor of Montjoy, [Montis Jovis] in the Church of St. Nicolas and St. Bernard, living at Havering, the Gift of his father, viz. xxv pounds of land in sterling &c. as above under Suttons. K. Henry III. again confirms their possessions to them by the name of Magister & Fratres de Monasterio Cornuto, Master and Brothers of the Horned Monastery; forbidding them to acquire any more in this maner without his special licence (o).

That it was then founded, and not sooner, is I think certain. At least the Monastery of St. Nicolas and St. Bernard, or of Montjoy, had not a maner here at the Survey, else we should have found it mentioned in Domesday-book. In K. Henry II's time the Church was called the Church of Havering; and, till his grand-son's confirming Charter, we hear nothing of Cornutum Monasterium, or Cornuta Ecclesia; so that this name came up in that Interval, if Henry III. did not give the name at the time of his Confirmation [A].

Peter Earl of Savoy having built the House from him called The Savoy in the Strand, in 1245, gave it to the Brethren of this Hospital; of whom Elianor, niece of the said Peter, and wife to K. Henry III, purchased the same for her son Edmund Earl of Lancaster.

Besides that, and the demesnes now constituting Horn-Church-hall, and Suttons, as above mentioned; they seem to have had very little else, except view of Frank-pledge, and gallows, in Havering (p): And a House in Fenn-Church street London [B].

The Master and Brothers here were removable at the will of the Provost of the Monastery in Savoy; had no College, nor common seal; and could neither plead, nor be impleaded (q).

The Revenues of this Cell being seized among those of other Priories Alien, [See in the other Volume, p. 407. 416. &c.] they were, with leave of the Pope and K. Richard II, purchased by (m) Inquis. 4 Jaco. cita 48 Hen. III. (n) Inquis. 7 Jaco. Nov. 9. (q) Monastic. ib. p. 418.

(o) Monastic. Anglie. Vol. II. p. 420. (p) Pla-

[X] Hackton-house belonged to John Sherwood, and afterwards to William Smith, Secretary at the South-Sea-House.

[Y] The main street in Horn-Church was called, in the time of K. Henry II. Pell-street, from the number of Pelt-mongers, or Skinners there. And Romford market was once so famous for leathern Breeches, as to occasion the vulgar Proverb, To go there to be new bottomed.—Another street in Horn-Church was called Pollard-street.

[Z] There is a tradition, but a groundless one, That Horn-Church was built by a female convert, to expiate her former sins, and that it was called Horn-Church at first, till a certain King riding that way, though it is not said who, nick-named it Horn-Church, and caused a pair of ox's horns to be fixed at the east end, the figure of which was kept up till lately in lead. . . . Weever, Fun. Monum. p. 646. . . . But it is much more probable, that the Bull's head of lead, affixed to the end of the Chancel, was the coat, or crest, belonging to the Religious House in Savoy, to which this was a cell. The Arms of Altorf in Swisserland, are a Bull's, or Buffler's, head caboshed. . . . Some have fancied, that as this was the Church of Havering by way of eminence, therefore from Havering-Church was derived by contraction Harn, or Horn-Church. . . . N. Salmon, p. 243.

[A] We do not find that the Monastery in Savoy was ever called Cornutum. The following passage in Paradin, points out where it stood. . . . 'Les peuples qui sont deça les Monts, en lobeissance du Duc de Savoye, . . . S'estendent du costé de Septentrion, depuis les Alkemaignes, & le Montiou, jusques a la mer-Ligustique. . . . Cronique de Savoye, p. 2.'

[B] Stow saith, 'Then have ye on the south side of Fenne-Church-Street over against the wall or pump, amongst other fair and large builded Houses, one that some time belonged to the Prior of Monte Jovis, or Monasterie Cornute, (a cell to Monte-Jovis beyond the seas,) in Essex. 'It was the Prior's inn when he repaired to London.' Survey of London, Book II. p. 79.

William of Wickham for his New College in Oxford (r).

From that time, Horn-Church-hall, and Suttons, with the Church, and the Tithes of the Parish, have remained in the possession of New-College [C]. Moreover, they are Ordinaries of the place; and the Vicar, as he is styled, holds the Church of them by lease for life, without taking Institution from the Bishop of the Diocese, and without paying Procurations, Synodals, First-Fruits, or Tenths.

Benefactions to HORNCHURCH.

Mrs. Alice Aylet, grand-daughter of Capt. John Aylet, who was at the siege of Colchester, with his father, left ten pounds a year for the Master of a Charity-School: to teach ten Boys to read, write, and cast accounts. The Bull at Horn-Church is charged for the Money. She dyed 11 Septemb. 1731, and was buried in this Church, with a monument.

The Lady Tipping founded a School at Havering, for teaching 20 children to read and write, and endowed it with twenty pounds a year.

Given—by Mrs. Seale, 20 s. yearly to poor Labourers.—By Mr. Ballard, 5 or 6 pounds a year to the Poor.—By Mr. Armstrong, 5 l. yearly to the Poor, and 1 l. to the Minister.—By Mr. King, 40 s. to the Poor.—Samuel Ballard, who dyed 12 June 1691, left his marsh-lands to the maintaining of his Tomb, and the remainder to the Poor.

Benefactions to ROMFORD.

Here is an Alms-house, and 50 l. a year for 5 poor people.

Lady Mildred, wife of William Lord Burleigh, and daughter of Sir Antony Cooke, gave 120 l. to six Tradesmen; for the loan of 20 l. a-piece, for two years, either to husbandman, carpenter, smith, shoemaker, baker, or taylor.

Given, by—Richard Bulloin, a House of 10 l. per ann. for reparation of the high-ways near or upon Romford Bridge.—Anne Elsdon, a House, called the Half-Moon, for bread to the Poor.—Mr. James Simpson, Houses near the Loom-Pond, of 3 l. per ann. for six labouring men, 10 s. a man.—Lewis Betts 40 s. per ann. to eight labouring men, four of Romford Ward, four of Collyer-Row; also 20 s. per ann. for reparation of the foot-paths from Collyer-Row, this last payable out of a farm at the corner, late in occupation of Joseph Vinton.—Anne Reynolds 3 l. per ann. for the Poor, out of an House between the Crown and White-Hart.—A Field called Hangmans-Acre, 2 l. per ann. the donor unknown.—Mr. Armstrong 2 l. per ann.—A moiety of an House, called Tylekiln, pays 20 s. per ann. to Romford, and 20 s. to Horn-Church.

Mrs. Margeret Birch gave 80 l. the interest to the Poor.—Joiakim Matthews 100 l. the interest to the Poor.—Richard Collet, of Harolds-Wood, 20 l. per ann. to poor widows of that Ward.

There is a new Charity-School erected in Romford-Street, and endowed by contribution of some of the inhabitants of this place and Horn-Church, which benefaction is daily encreasing. The Donors names are on the gallery in the Chapel, as are the names of others, who have contributed to the ornaments of the Chapel, or the relief of the poor.

The CHURCH of this parish, dedicated to St. Andrew, is a lofty spacious building, with north and south aisles, which the Chancel also hath; The Tower is covered with a spire to be seen at a great distance, and in it are five Bells. In the window of the north aisle of the Chancel is a picture of K. Edward the Confessor, and several Coats of Arms, but it does not appear whose they are.

Since the Vicars of Horn-Church are not to be found in the Bishop's Registry, I insert them here as far as I can trace them: The account of all but the first two is taken from the Parish Register. Richard Whyght. John Merick, nominated Bishop of Man by Henry Earl of Derby, admitted by the King Apr. 13, and consecrated at Lambeth the 15th, 1576; he dyed Nov. 7, 1599, in Yorkshire.—Ralph Hall A. M. buried May 3, 1595.—Thomas Barker Aug. 10, 1606.—Charles Ryves S. T. P. Dec. 22, 1610.—Josiah White Feb. 10, 1622.—Robert Poulden B. D. Mar. 31, 1632.—Thomas Man B. D. Sept. 18, 1648.—Michael Wells March 17, 1685.—Francis Shaw A. M. Nov. 17, 1696.—Thomas Roberts A. M. Sept. 15, 1721.—Henry Levett A. M. Nov. 2, 1725.—Francis Pyle A. M. 1730.—William Harris, M. A. Dec. 1758.—Samuel Speed, the present Vicar.

Lands and tenements were put in feoffment by William Walderon, to the intent that the Wardens of Trinity Gild here should find a Priest to celebrate within the Church of Horn-Church; and to keep solemn Obits yearly. It was worth at the suppression 5 l. 15 s. 8 d. yearly. And in the Certificate it is said, That the said Town of Horne-Church 'ys a populous towne, having 'in yt about the number of 600 of houseling 'people.'

Under this Mother-Church there are, within this extensive Parish Four CHAPELS OF EASE: Two at Havering-Bower, one at Romford, and one at Dagenhams.

One of the Chapels at Havering was a Peculiar Royal Chapel for the King, Queen, and Household: It is still used for the neighbouring Inhabitants. The other Chapel at Havering was for the Foresters, Officers, and the rest of the neighbours.

The Chapel of Romford is the most considerable; and dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and (r) Bp. Tanner's Notitia Mon. fol. p. 132. See also Newcourt, Vol. II. p. 336. 338.

[C] The inhabitants pay the great Tithes on Christmas-day, and are treated with a bull and brawn. The Boar's head is wrestled for: the Poor have the Scraps.

The Lessee of Horn-Church-hall under the College, is Richard Spencer Esq;

St.

St. Edward the Confessor (s). It is spacious, consisting of two paces of equal height, and a Chancel. The Tower is low; and in it are five Bells. For some ages Horn-Church was the only publick place of worship in the Liberty of Havering, to which the Inhabitants resorted; and where they were buried. About the reign of K. Edw. II. [D], soon after 1323, a Chapel was erected at Romford. By this time we may suppose the number of people here increased, upon clearing great part of the Forest of the wood, and turning it to agriculture. And it was grown so considerable in 1247, as to obtain the privilege of a Market.

The old Chapel of Romford stood a quarter of a mile nearer to Horn-Church than the present; the Place bears still the name of Old-Church (t), though no traces of the structure are left. We may suppose the buildings of Romford to have stood thereabout, till upon making the present road the Inhabitants chose to remove hither. The old Chapel being ruinous was taken down, and the present Chapel, 28 feet longer, and 14 broader, than the former (u), erected by composition between the College and the inhabitants, confirmed by the Bishop of London. This instrument is recited by Mr. Newcourt, containing a Licence from the College for the People of Romford to have a Cemetery, and Sepulture; who till that time were forced to carry their dead to Horn-Church; though, as they alledged in their Petition to the Pope, they were five miles distant from that Church.

This, it seems, was not done by authority of the College or Bishop, but of the Pope; for, in pursuance of the Petition just now mentioned, a Bull was obtained from Pope Alexander V, about the year 1407, granting leave to the Inhabitants of Romford to bury in the Church-yard of that place.

In the Composition, the Warden and Fellows of New College reserved to themselves and successors for ever, all Tithes real and personal, offerings, obventions, fruits, and profits, and all other rights belonging to the mother Church of Horn-Church. With this proviso, that if the inhabitants of Romford subtracted any, they should be deprived of their right of Sepulture here, till they made amends. Moreover, the Warden and Fellows reserved to themselves the power of putting in, and removing the Chaplain.

This Chapel [E] belongs to the Temporary Vicar of Horn-Church, as he is styled. He appoints and maintains a Chaplain to officiate here; to whom a dwelling-house belongs. The Vicar receives yearly from the possessor of the land, once the Royal Park, at Havering 5*l.* in lieu of a buck and doe, formerly received in kind. This is paid from that part which is in lease to Mr. Ladbroke.

Avery Corneborow, Esquire of the Body to K. Henry VI. and Edward IV. founded a Chantry here, for one Priest to pray for his soul, and the souls of his friends, in the Chapel: And also to preach twice in the year at least at South-Okingdon, Horn-Church, Dagenham, Berking, and South-Weld, besides Romford: and to keep one Obit of 20*s.* for the said souls. The yearly value of it, at the suppression, was 15*l.*

Another Chantry was founded by divers persons, to find a Priest called our Lady Priest, to say divine service in this Chapel. The yearly value of the same amounted to 6*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* And in the Certificate it is said, "The said Town ys a very great Towne, conteyning 20 myles in compass, and having in yt by estimation about the number of 900 of houseling people."

John Ongir the younger, gave by will, to the Chapel here, in case his daughter dyed without issue, an estate in this Town, out of which 5 marks to the brotherhood of our Lady, to pray for him, his brothers and sisters; 20*s.* yearly to pore pepyll, and to foule ways &c. This estate was once Robert Darcy's, and afterwards John Marshall's, before Ongir. — J. Thoroughgood left it by will to — William Jermin; who, about 1716, sold it to — Thomas Scawen Esq; by whom it was conveyed again to — Onesiphorus Leige.

William Page, 20 Novemb. 1422, left Parkfeild for an Obit. And George Downham, in 1478, founded an Obit for 300 years, and longer if the Laws would.

The several parts of this Liberty are rated to the Land-tax as follows: Havering-Ward, at 93*l.* Collyrow-Ward, 1047*l.* North-end-Ward, 1556*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.* Noke-hill Ward, 659*l.* Harold's-wood Ward, 1192*l.* Romford-town-Ward, 2606*l.* Horn-Church, 821*l.* South-end-Ward, 2802*l.* 3*s.* 1*d.*

(s) Bull of Pope Alexander V.

(t) From an old Church-book.

(u) Noy's Reports, p. 127.

[D] Magister Monasterii Cornuti habet licentiam erigendi Capellam infra manerium de Havering, et sacra celebrandi. Placit. Forestæ, 17 Edw. II. in the Tally Court at the Exchequer, Rot. 5 dorso.

[E] In the Chancel window was this inscription. Orate

* * The Maner of Stewards, now belongs to William Gill Esq; of Eshing, near Godalming in Surrey.

pro Dno nro Henrico rege Anglie, et Dna nra Johanna regina, Roberto Chicheley, Elizabetha Uxore sua, & Oibus benefactoribus istius ecc'lie quæ nova fundata fuit in honore Dni nri Jesu Christi ac beate Marie virginis et Scti Edwardi Confessoris quondam regis Anglie an D. 1407.

T H E
H U N D R E D
O F
C H A F F O R D

HATH on the West the Liberty of Haverring, from which it is parted by a Brook named Ingreburne: On the South it is bounded by the river Thames; and on the East by Barnstaple Hundred; between which, and Have-ring, it runs into a point towards the North West, where it joins a small part of the Hundred of Ongar.

It is written in records Ceafford, Ceffeord, and Ceffeud: The latter part of which name was undoubtedly taken from a Ford through Ingre-burn, or some Ford through the other Brook that partly divides this Hundred from that of Barnstaple, and discharges itself into Purfleet.
There is such a Saxon word as Cap, swift, strong; but whether the first part of the name is derived from that, or from Ceadda, otherwise Cedd, the famous Bishop of the East-Saxons
(w), quasi, Cead's Ford; we submit it to the Reader's judgment. In the parish of Berking, there is Chadwell-streer, and Chadwell-Heath, undoubtedly so called from St. Cead, or as vulgarly styled, Chad: that Bishop having been in great repute, and sainted, for bringing the Inhabitants of these parts again to Christianity, after their apostasy. He was the second Bishop of London; and preached much, and erected several Churches in this County, and neighbourhood, particularly at Tilbury (x).

The Length of this Hundred from north to south is thirteen miles; and the Width from west to east seven miles where widest; but in the northern extremity, about South-Weald, it is not above two miles and a quarter wide.

'Tis in the disposal of the High-Sheriff for the time being [F].

With regard to Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction, it is in the Archdeaconry of Essex.

(w) Bede, Eccl. Hist. L. II. c. 5. & L. III. c. 22.
(z) N. Salmon, p. 284.

[F] The perquisites of it, one may imagine, were formerly very considerable; as appears by the following record, wherein John Carbonel, Sheriff in 1292, lett one half-year's profits of it to Edmund Columbers, for the sum of 5 l. 6 s. 8 d. equal then to what would amount now to 70 l.
at least. "Edmundus Columbers de Turrok Breonzum ob-ligatus Dnō Johī Carbonel, Vicecomiti Essex et Hertf. in quinque libris & dim' marc' pro custodia Hundrī de Chaf-

There are within this Hundred fourteen Parishes, which I treat of in the following order.

Alveley.	North Okendon.
Wenington.	Cranham.
Rainham.	Upminster.
Thurrock-West.	Great Warley.
Greys.	Little Warley.
Stifford.	Childer-ditch.
S. Okendon.	South-Weald.

I. A L V E L E Y.

The name of this Parish is written in records
these other various ways; Avele; Alvithley;
Alvethale; Alvi, and Alvy-thele; Alviela;
Alumeleýe; Anvelers, and Anveliers; Auve-lers: which makes it difficult to account for the true derivation.

Most of the Names of Parishes in this County being of Saxon original, so is undoubtedly this.
The termination ley is well known to signify a pasture ground. And the first syllable might be formed from Ælf, an Elf, or Fairy: or from Alvid, a Saxon Freewoman, which had other lands in this neighbourhood (y). It doth not appear that hyð [i. e. harbour] at any time made part of the name. And to derive it from Al-veus, a creek, and make this name a compound of Latin and Saxon (z), is too far-fetched, not to say ill-grounded.

In Edward the Confessor's reign, the lands in this parish belonged to Suene; to five Freemen, named Ulfi; Edward; Godmann; Uluuin; Ulstān: and to five other Freemen, whose names are not specified. At the time of the general Survey, they were held by John son of Waleram; Odo, Bishop of Bayeux; William of Wa-

(x) Idem L. III. c. 22.

(y) See under Sutton.

ford; habend' a festo Pentecost' A° R. Rs Ed. 20. usq; festū scī Mich' proxime sequent' Solvend' ad Castr' Rs Colecest' .
Et etiam ten' eidem Johī in bono servit' p tam debit'
Dnī R's levand' quam de perquisitis suis, & de respons' omnium Brev' Rs prout consuet' fuerunt; et conservare eum & ministros contra Regem in demand. Et invenit plegios &c.
Dat apud Chemsford die mercur' in Sept' Pentecostes." Cart. origin. penes R. R. Tho. Tanner, Libr. Appleton, N° 12.

ruen; Suene, and his under-tenant Leuvin; and by Ansgar the Cook.

They were divided afterwards into these four Maners. 1. The Maner of Alveley. 2. The Maner of Belhouse. 3. and 4. And those of Bumpsted, and Bretts.

I. The Maner of ALVELEY.

The mansion house is entirely demolished. It stood in a little field, of about two acres, adjoining to the south-east corner of the Churchyard. This field, or close, is still surrounded with a moat; which, though more or less grown up, plainly appears all round the close, and in some parts is still of a considerable width, and full of water. The situation is dry and pleasant, the ground falling gently to the south, with an agreeable prospect to the distant Kentish-hills. This estate is part of what the Son of Waleram possessed at the Survey [G].

In the reigns of K. Henry II. and K. John, Gilbert de Tany, or Tani, held it, of the King, under the name of Anvilers, as part of his Barony [H], by the service of six knights fees (a) [I]. [Concerning the Tany Family, see above, p. 79. and under Stapleford-Tany.]

Afterwards, it was for several years in Families surnamed de Breanfun or Brianfon, Bradeston, and De la Pole.

It came by marriage into the Brianfon Family [K]. For, Bartholomew de Brianzon, who dyed in 1287, is recorded to have held, as part of the inheritance of his wife Johanna, this maner of Auuelers, as it is there stiled, of the King in capite, by the service of one knight's fee. [See above, p. 113.] His son and heir—William (b) held, by the same service, this maner of Alumeley; and dying in 1310, was succeeded by his brother—John: who, at the time of his decease in 1315, held the maner of Alvethale, with the maners of Fyfhide, Terling-hall, Leighe, West-Thurrock, Thorndon, &c. (c). His son and successor—Sir John Brianzon, held, jointly with his wife Margaret, this maner of Avythale of the King, in capite, by the service of one knight's fee; besides a parcel holden of William de Bumsted; and another parcel, of the heirs of Thomas Wyche, sen. the former, by the service of one pound of pepper, and the latter, of 20d. per ann. He dyed in 1337 (d).—Joanna, his daughter and heir, held two parts of the maner of Alvythele, of the King, as of the Crown; and also two parts of West-Thurrock maner. She dyed in 1339. It is not said who was her next heir, only that the remainder, or reversion (of W. Thurrock we suppose) was in William de Wanton (e).

Alveley Maner was next in the Bradeston Family. Thomas de Bradeston, who had summons to Parliament from 1342 to 1360, and departed this life in August 1360, held this maner of Alvythele, with the Advowson of a Chapel here, of the King by the same service as his predecessors. Thomas was his son (f). Agnes, his widow, enjoyed the third part of this maner in dower, till her decease in 1369; and her next heir was—Thomas, son of Robert, and grandson of her said husband (g). He enjoyed this whole maner, with the advowson of a Chapel here; and dyed in 1374, leaving his only daughter and heir,

Elizabeth Bradeston (h): The time of her death is not mentioned. She was married to Sir Walter De la Pole, who held this maner of Alvythele by the law, or courtesy, of England, at the time of his decease in 1433, as part of the inheritance of his late wife Elizabeth, of the King in capite by knight's service; remainder, or reversion, to

Edmund Inglesthorp, cousin and heir of the said Elizabeth (i).—Johanna Ingaldsthorpe, most probably his daughter, dyed 21 June 1495. But she is not recorded to have had any thing more in this parish, than the Advowson of the free Chapel in Alveley, then valued at 16l. She held also the maners of Hokeley, and Overhall near Berklowe. These two last had belonged to John Tiptoft Earl of Worcester, who dyed in 1469. The heirs of the said Johanna, were, the grandson, and the four daughters, of Isabell, her only Daughter and heir; viz. 1. John Stonor, son of Anne, one of the daughters; and the four other daughters, of the same Isabell; 2. Elizabeth, married first to Thomas

(a) Liber ruber Scacc. & Testa de Nevill. Edw. II. (d) Inquis. 11 Edw. III. Vol. II. p. 137. &c. & Inquis. 34 Edw. III. 12 Hen. VI.

(b) Inquis. 15 Edw. I. (e) Inquis. 13 Edw. III. (g) Inquis. 43 Edw. III.

(c) Inquis. 4 Edw. II. & Inquis. 9 (f) Dugdale's Summons, & Baron. (h) Inquis. 48 Edw. III. (i) Inquis.

[G] Terra Johannis filii Walerami. Hund' de Ceffeorda. Aveleiam tenuit libere Suenus, Tempore Regis Edwardi, pro manerio & pro iii hidis & dimidio, modo tenet Johannes in dominio pro tantundem. Tunc viii villani, modo vi. Tunc iii bordarii, modo v. Tunc iv servi, modo i. Tunc ii carucate in dominio, modo i. Tunc inter homines iii carucate, modo ii. vi acre prati. Tunc & post valuit viii libras, modo c solidos. . . . Et quidem Liber homo Ulfus tenet dimidium hide quam posset vendere, sed Valeranus pater Johannis addidit eam huic manerio. Semper i villanus, et i bordarius. Tunc dimidium carucate, modo nichil. Tunc valuit x solidos, & quando recepit similiter, modo valet vii solidos. Lib. Dom. Tit. 40.

[H] In Baronia sua de Domino Rege. Testa de Nevill.

[I] Quære, if not a mistake here? six knights fees seem too great a service for the single Maner of Alveley, though it might then include Belhouse, Bumsted, and Bretts.

[K] Bartholomew de Brianfon is one of the subscribing witneses, together with other then inhabitants of this parish, to several antient Deeds in the possession of the Rt. Honorable the Lord Dacre; From whence it seems very probable, that the Brianfon Family about that time resided here. And that they had a Capital Mansion in this place, appears, not only from the assignment of the Dower of Margaret widow of John Brianfon, in 1319, wherein mention is made of . . . 'Capitale Messuagium dicti Manerii'. . . . But also from the Inquisition taken after the death of Thomas de Bradeston, in 1369, where we find these words. . . . 'in quo quidem Manerio. [viz. Alveley] est unum capitale Messuagium, quod nihil valet per annum ultra sustentationem domorum &c. Item est ibidem quedam Pastura annexa Manerio predicto et inclus' pro feris continent' xxx acr' que nihil valet ultra sustentationem ferarum.'—xxx seems to be a mistake for ccc, it being hardly credible that they should be so few as Thirty, whether the inclosure was for a Park or a Warren.

Le Scrope, and afterwards to Sir Henry Wentworth; 3. Margaret, wife of Sir John Mortimer; 4. Isabell, wife of Sir William Hodilston; and 5. Lucy, wife of Sir Thomas Fitz-William (k).

Alured Rawson, citizen of London; and merchant of the Staple at Calais, was lord of this maner in 1509 (l).—Nicolas Rawson, his son, left one daughter and heir, named Anne, who was married to Sir Michael Stanhope (m); ancestor of the Lord Chesterfield. He was involved in the unhappy fate of Edward Duke of Somerset, the Protector; who had married his sister. Anne, his widow, long survived him, to the great advantage of the Stanhope family, for she took very great care of her childrens education and fortune.

